There is one point that I desire to make clear to the more obstinate gentlemen of the typothetæ, and that is that the standard of living determines the form of our civilization. Mechanics and laborers will not work for less than that which furnishes them with subsistence, with necessities and comforts to which they have become accustomed. The prices of food products, clothing, rents, etc., have steadily increased during the past decade and the purchasing power of the dollars that we receive as wages is correspondingly lessened. Hence the claim of Mr. Ellis that wages have advanced 33⅓ per cent is offset by the cold fact that we are also compelled to pay more tribute to the landlord, the beef trust, coal combine and other associations of capital that are squeezing the people to pay dividends on the watered stock; and therefore I deny the correctness of the logic of Mr. Donnelly, who stated in conference in so many words that we were "squeezing" the employers.

It is a truism that men are never paid according to what they earn, but according to the average cost of living. Now, as a simple matter of equity, how can the typothetæ claim that they, the buyers of labor power, are to be the sole judges of the price to be paid? The sellers of coal, meat, oil, sugar, etc., fix their price; why should not those who dispose of their labor power have the same right? They do have that right, but it can only be maintained in a degree in this capitalistic competitive system through organization, because the natural opportunities are being monopolized by a few. Without organization, t'e so-called liberties of the working people are becoming a delusion, for no moneyless worker stands an equal chance with the millionaire captain of industry.

Another objection that was raised in the conference between the typothetæ representatives and your committee was that the employers of the larger cities are losing ground to their competitors in the smaller places, and one gentleman (Mr. Green, I believe) raised the point that some jobs had been sent from New York to England. I imagine no system will ever be devised that will keep a certain amount of book and job work in the same office forever, or even in the same country. The International Typographical Union is doing all in its power to abolish these alleged disadvantages, and for that reason the hours of labor will be reduced generally—printers in Chicago will be affected no more and no less than those in Podunk or any other place. As for jobs going to England, the hours of labor are being reduced in that country as well as in America and the purchasing power of wages received is almost the same, and it is doubtful whether the English printers turn out as great amount of work in a given time as do the Americans.

In conclusion, I wish to emphasize the fact that the International Typographical Union and other trade unions, in making the reduction of the hours of labor the paramount issue, are striving to realize one of the most far-reaching and noblest missions ever undertaken by any organization. We are endeavoring to open opportunities to all the people; not a few.

The eight-hour day means not less wages, but more wages; it means the absorption of the unemployed army of workers and the increasing demand for labor as well as minimizing of the present fierce, cut-throat competition.

The eight-hour day means the creating of new hopes, desires and aspirations among our class—a nobler manhood and a happier womanhood and childhood. The eight-hour day means that those now employed would be less exhausted after a day's toil; that mental and physical resources would be fostered and developed and life and health prolonged.

The eight-hour day means stronger family ties, pleasant homes, more time for good books, to attend lectures, to cultivate music, art and science, and for the study of all the glories lavished upon mankind by generous Mother Nature.

The eight-hour day means that poverty would be decreased, sweatshops would be wiped out, drunkenness, prostitution, crime and misery would be greatly reduced; it means that wealth would be more equitably distributed, enlightenment disseminated, invention and discovery stimulated, and a greater and grander progress would bless the world than mankind has yet known.

This is the glorious ideal for which the organized workers are struggling, and they deserve the sympathy and support of all true men and women.

Delegate Kreft (Philadelphia) asked if men who came out of open or unfair offices would receive benefits.

President Lynch replied that it would be the policy of the International Typographical Union to take care of all men who left work in support of the eight-hour day.

Delegate Green (Atlanta) was glad to hear of the enthusiasm and success in the eight-hour movement in different parts of the country; but there were some districts that were not as sanguine of success, and such territory naturally looked for assistance from stronger sections.

Delegate Fennessy (Los Angeles) declared that the strong districts would aid and assist the weaker ones; that San Francisco, which had already secured the eight-hour day, was pledged to assist Los Angeles and adjacent territory in the work.

Delegate Hughes (Providence) made a statement of the conditions in his vicinity, and the difficulty that might be encountered in enforcing the eight-hour day.

Delegate McCahill (Columbus) detailed the favorable conditions in his territory.

President Lynch stated that Delegate Cahill's motion to adopt the report of the eight-hour committee, and instructing the secretary-treasurer to issue the same in pamphlet form for distribution, was before the convention.

The motion was adopted unanimously by a rising vote, amid scenes of unprecedented enthusiasm.

President Lynch announced the presence of President Higgins, of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union, and stated that if there was no objection Mr. Higgins would address the convention.

No objection being offered, President Lynch introduced Mr. Higgins, who said in part: The International Typographical Union has the best wishes of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union in its efforts in the shorter hour movement. The step must be taken some time, and it seems it is for the International Typographical Union to make the first effort. A noted American once said, "The way to resume specie payments is to resume," and the determination thus expressed made the resumption of specie payments a success. The International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union has patterned after the International Typographical Union, the mother organization, in its work. Some organization must bear the brunt of the battle, and it seems that the International Typographical Union is to assume the leadership in achieving the short day. It is always best to recollect that old and familiar saying, "never to cross a bridge till you come to it," and he hoped the difficulties in the way would not be overestimated until the International Typographical Union stood face to face with them. If the international printing organizations will agree to some plan of procedure, and thus work together, it is to be hoped that co-operation will be the inspiring spirit that actuates and guides the movement. Some one must bear the initiatory work, and the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union feels that if it is the lot of the International Typographical Union to make the start, the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union, while unable, owing to its agreements, to co-operate in some places at the present time, can co-operate in others, and that help will be offered freely and unreservedly. The organized pressmen were 18,000 strong, the Brotherhood of Bookbinders 11,000 strong, and the total membership of the organized printing trades numbered fully 75,000. These figures mean that the printing trades should stand together on all trade questions. Mr. Higgins said he was a close reader of THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL, and he complimented President Lynch, Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood and the extensive corps of correspondents who treated labor questions in such an able and masterly manner. He believed that if the International Typographical Union did not take the first step for the shorter day now, the movement may never be made at all. He was in full sympathy with it, and extended his best wishes. Godspeed the printers in the work.

Digitized by Google

Robert Glocking, president of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, was introduced and spoke in part as follows: Considering the close alliance of the printing crafts, there should never be an opportunity lost for mutual conference. There never was a time when interests were so potential as now. There should be no lack of harmonious relations. Pressmen and bookbinders are as deeply interested as the printers, and the printers' losses are their losses. No opportunity should be lost where the bookbinders can assist the printers. The same arguments are used now against short hours as in the olden times, and the principle is the same now as it was then. Arguments have been made by the typothetæ against the eight-hour day because of the disturbance it is claimed it will make in business conditions in industrial trades. Short hours mean comfort, leisure for study, happiness, and the satisfying of human desires, which means nothing else but the consumption of products, and the one is equal to the other. The bookbinders agree that where opportunity offers they will stand beside the big brothers, the printers, in the movement. He regretted that the eight-hour report did not allude to the allied trades in the movement. The new era of relationship has begun that will be of advantage to all. He hoped for the formation of a federation of printing trades covering the North American continent, possibly all under one head.

The president announced that the mailers, who were in session on the floor above, desired to be recorded as in favor of the eight-hour report.

Delegate Hertenstein (St. Louis) moved that all laws conflicting with the adoption of the eight-hour day on January 1, 1906, are hereby repealed.

The motion was adopted.

Delegate Smith (Lincoln) introduced the following resolution:

TORONTO, CANADA, August 18, 1905.

To the Woman's International Auxiliary in Convention Assembled:

LADIES—The International Typographical Union, in convention assembled, unanimously passed the following resolution:

Whereas, The International Typographical Union recognizes the noble work which has been accomplished by the Woman's International Auxiliary, and desires to express its appreciation of all that the auxiliary has done in forwarding the interests of union labor, and desiring to assure the auxiliary of its hearty support of the movement in which it is engaged; be it

Resolved, That the International Typographical Union extends to the Woman's International Auxiliary fraternal greetings and best wishes for its continued growth and development and power to do good.

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed by the chair to convey these greetings to the auxiliary convention.

The resolutions were referred to a special committee, consisting of Delegates Smith (Lincoln), chairman; Steele (Washington), and Cahill (St. Paul).

The following communications were read and ordered made part of the records:

NEW YORK, N. Y., August 15, 1905.

J. W. Bramwood, Secretary International Typographical Union, Convention Hall, Toronto:

Accept our most sincere congratulations on the fifty-first annual convention. May your deliberations be wise and beneficial to your International Union, and reflect credit on the honorable craft you represent. I beg to assure the International Union that you have our most sincere wishes for the success of the eight-hour day, and pledge our moral and financial aid in securing the same.

Fraternally yours, B. A. LARGER,
General Secretary United Garment Workers of America.

DENVER, COLO., August 10, 1905.

J. W. Bramwood, Secretary-Treasurer International Typographical Union of North America, Toronto, Canada:

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER—I take pleasure in transmitting to you the following resolution which was unanimously passed by the delegates in convention assembled at Galveston, Texas, during the week of July 11, 1905:

"Whereas, The International Typographical Union of North America has declared for a universal eight-hour workday on and after January 1, 1906, for all members of that organization; and

"Whereas, Said organization is meeting with great success and some opposition to this movement for shorter hours and better conditions; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Retail Clerks' International Protective Association does hereby endorse the movement of the International Typographical Union of North America for a universal eight-hour workday. We wish them success in their undertaking, and we recommend to our membership the rendering of all possible aid to make a success of the movement."

Wishing your convention the best of success and with greetings from the organized clerks of America, I remain, with personal regards, fraternally yours, MAX MORRIS, Secretary-Treasurer.

Digitized by Google

WILMINGTON, DEL., August 12, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union of North America, in Convention Assembled:

BROTHERS—It is with deep regret that I inform you that Union No. 123, of Wilmington, Del., will be unrepresented at the fifty-first convention. This is no fault of our union, however, but is due entirely to a circumstance which was beyond our control.

I was elected delegate in May, and at once began making preparation to attend the convention, but on June 13 went to bed with typhoid fever, and, although I am convalescing, I am not strong enough to make the trip to Toronto, yesterday being my first day out of the house. I am very weak, but am gradually gaining strength.

Sampel P. Green, who was elected alternate in May, has found that it will be impossible for him to attend.

Had I attended, I would have been uninstructed, so far as I have been advised; therefore I have no special request to make of the convention.

I hope the convention will be the most successful in the history of the International Typographical Union, and also productive of the greatest good.

With best wishes, I am yours fraternally,

A. O. H. GRIER,

Absent Delegate from No. 123, Wilmington, Del.

TORONTO, August 15, 1905.

J. W. Bramwood, Secretary International Typographical Union:

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER—I have received a letter from the international secretary, Mr. J. H. Harzbecker, asking me if possible to try and get a hearing at your convention, to explain to the delegates the cause of our strike, which has been on for ten weeks now. Sir, I know that your time is valuable, and for that reason I will not make the request to be heard at the convention, but instead I enclose a circular letter which will explain our case, and if read at the convention will cover all the points necessary. I have also been instructed to extend to your convention the best wishes of our international union. Yours fraternally,

ARTHUR CALLOW,

Business Agent Local 204.

[The circular letter referred to contained information relative to the unfair baking firms in Toronto.]

NEW YORK, August 12, 1905.

To the Delegates of the International Typographical Union, Annual Convention, Toronto, Canada:

DEAR SIRS AND BROTHERS—The board of management of the Co-Operative Press, New York, sends its fraternal and brotherly greetings to the members of the International Typographical Union, through the delegates in session at the convention in Toronto, Canada. There is no doubt in our minds that the convention will not only be successful, inasmuch as the question of the eight-hour day will be thoroughly discussed, but will also be an epoch in the history of the labor movement in the United States and Canada. The Typographical Union can be proud of the organization they have, and the work they have accomplished in succeeding in reducing the hours of labor and increasing the wages of the men in this trade.

There is no doubt that the printer's trade is the best trade organized at the present time, and the trade, as a whole, has been benefited as a result of the change in the condition of the workingmen.

The printers are going into a great economic battle on January 1 next year to demand from the employers the eight-hour working day. You, no doubt, are well aware of the fact that the employers also intend to make a determined fight against the demand of the union. The convention now in session will no doubt work out a systematic campaign in the coming strike in order that the Typographical Union will force the Typothetæ of America to concede the eight-hour day.

Enclosed we beg to hand you clippings from two Philadelphia papers, which speak for themselves. At a meeting of master printers of all the New England states, held in Philadelphia on June 21, only one concern spoke in favor of the eight-hour day for the workingmen, and that was the Co-Operative Press of New York. Our representative, Edward Meyer, was hooted and jeered by all the rest of the master printers, including a good many New Yorkers, who are supposed to be very fair-minded and liberal to their workmen.

The Co-Operative Press is an institution organized in 1902 by a conference of progressive trades unions, for the purpose of assisting the daily labor press in New York. The concern is not a private institution, but a co-operative one in the strict sense of the word. No individuals receive the profits of this concern, and there are no superintendents in our employ with high salaries. Our compositors work forty-eight hours a week, and the conditions under which our men work are of the best kind.

When our representative made the statement at the meeting of master printers that the Co-Operative Press would assist the Typographical Union in demanding the eight-hour day, he was laughed at, hissed and hooted, and forced to sit down after speaking about ten minutes.

We would like to make the following request: That your convention recommend to the delegates from locals in New York state, New Jersey, Connecticut that as the Co-Operative Press was the only concern in the eastern states who supported the printers' demands, that this concern be supported in every way possible if occasion permits. We have a good job printing office and turn out good work, and should like to have the work of some of your locals in this vicinity. The profits of this concern, as stated before, go to a good cause, and this should also be considered.

The German Typographical Journal has made mention of the Philadelphia meeting, and we should be pleased to have you do the same.

Trusting your convention will be the best ever held, and wishing you success in the eight-hour movement, we remain, yours fraternally,

R. ROCHOW, Manager.

Delegate Snyder (Colorado Springs) asked unanimous consent to consider the report of the committee on Los Angeles Times. There being no objection, it was so ordered.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON LOS ANGELES TIMES CONTEST

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—We, your committee on the Los Angeles Times contest, beg leave to report as follows:

We find that the present effort to unionize the Los Angeles Times has been supported financially by the International Typographical Union for about three years and six months. We gather from the report of the secretary-treasurer that International funds to the amount of $33,650.11 have been expended in Los Angeles in connection with the Times fight. It is further set forth in the report of the president that we are now prosecuting as vigorously as the monetary allowance will permit the effort to unionize the Times; that early in the year the executive council, following the policy of subordinating all enterprises to the eight-hour movement, reduced to $600 per month the appropriation for financing the Times contest; that even with this reduction we have more than held our own, and that the Times has continued to lose in both advertising and subscriptions.

Digitized by Google

We gather further from the report of the president that the Cincinnati convention submitted to the referendum a proposition for a special assessment of five cents per capita to finance the Los Angeles Times contest, and this proposition was adopted; that later the additional five cents was merged into the regular per capita, and that from September 26, 1904, the executive council has financed the Times fight from the regular funds; that both the Washington convention and the St. Louis convention instructed the executive council to continue financial assistance and to press the effort to secure a victory in Los Angeles.

After diligent investigation, we find that the conditions in Los Angeles prior to the date on which the present contest was inaugurated were about as bad as they well could be. While the contests against the Times were conducted vigorously by No. 174 while they lasted, they were generally declared off at the end of a few months, and accomplished practically nothing of lasting benefit. These occasional efforts usually served only to further anger the Times and make it more pronounced in its intense opposition to trades unionism generally and the Typographical Union particularly. When the present fight was begun, Los Angeles Typographical Union No. 174 faced many obstacles and met with great difficulties in inaugurating necessary reforms. The Times not only gloated editorially over what it considered a vanquished foe, but made a practice of educating in its composing room young men to operate its typesetting machines, and also aided them in gaining superficial knowledge of the compositor's art. Later these partly instructed craftsmen were sent to other portions of the coast, and in fact throughout the entire jurisdiction, to aid unfair employers in resisting requests made by typographical unions.

As Arthur A. Hay, the International Typographical Union representative in Los Angeles, will address the convention on the Times matter, your committee does not deem it necessary to here enter into details of the contest.

We earnestly agree with the recommendation in the president's report that the efforts to unionize the Los Angeles Times should be continued, and we are one with the declaration that "success will be cheap at any expenditure."

We recommend to the convention, therefore, that it endorse and approve of the Los Angeles Times contest as at present conducted; that it expresses its appreciation for the progress thus far made, and that it instruct the executive council to continue financial assistance for the purpose of carrying on the effort to unionize the Los Angeles Times, the council to be the judge of the amount of money necessary for this crusade. Respectfully submitted,

W. A. Snyder,
W. A. Needham,
H. H. Austin,
F. A. Spead,
Mark H. Barnum.

President Lynch stated the question was on concurrence in the report of the committee and the recommendations contained therein.

On motion of Delegate Snyder (Colorado Springs), and there being no objection, Arthur Hay, of Los Angeles, was granted the privileges of the floor. Mr. Hay spoke as follows:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen—On behalf of Los Angeles Union, and personally, I wish to thank the officers of the International Typographical Union, the Woman's Auxiliary of the International Typographical Union, the various anti-Times committees throughout the jurisdiction and the membership generally for the material assistance and kind words of encouragement extended to those in charge of the contest with the Los Angeles Times.

Before entering into the details of that controversy I desire to say, owing to reports heretofore rendered to International Typographical Union conventions and to the membership directly through the medium of circulars and the columns of The Typographical Journal many delegates here assembled are familiar with the points which will be touched on today.

While it seems to those who have been closely identified with the Times movement that every member of the International Typographical Union should be familiar with all the reasons which brought about this contest, the fact remains that this is not the case. Letters from subordinate unions in various parts of the jurisdiction and questions asked at this and other conventions lead me to believe that it would not be amiss to briefly give the reasons leading up to the original trouble with the Times.

As a rule the presentation of statistics proves tiresome, but, knowing the interest all members take in this matter, I am sure you will accord a patient hearing.

For refusing to accept a 20 per cent wage reduction the Los Angeles Times locked out its union printers August 5, 1890. An aggressive fight on the part of Los Angeles Typographical Union No. 174 was brought to a conclusion by an agreement between the union and a representative of the Times, whereby H. G. Otis was to unionize his newspaper within a specified time. This agreement was flagrantly repudiated by Otis, and since that time many determined efforts have been made to unionize the Times, but without success, owing to lack of finances.

At the Birmingham convention the delegate from Los Angeles, acting under instructions, requested the executive council to select a representative to take charge of the movement that had been recently inaugurated by No. 174.

The council referred the matter to President Lynch.

I was selected for this work, and arrived in Los Angeles October 31, 1901.

At that date the local union had less than 150 dues-paying members and less than $1,000 with which to defray the expense of the impending struggle. The local members were being assessed from $5 to $8 per month.

On or about January 1, 1902, an appeal was made to sister unions, setting forth the inability of No. 174 to finance, without assistance, the contest with the Times. As a result of this appeal, many typographical unions on the Pacific coast and several in other portions of the jurisdiction forwarded regular contributions for months, the total sum thus contributed amounting to $2,755.92.

The executive council contributed $250 for the months, each, of April, May, June, July and August, 1902, and $500 for the months, each, of September, October, November and December of the same year. One thousand dollars was advanced for January and February, 1903, this amount later being deducted from the first instalment of the Los Angeles five-cent assessment fund. This fund was proposed at the Cincinnati convention, and the proposition was adopted by an overwhelming majority when submitted to the membership in November, 1903.

The Los Angeles five-cent assessment fund amounted to $26,350.11. The first instalment reached Los Angeles March 6, 1903. The fund was exhausted September 26, 1904.

Digitized by Google

At the St. Louis convention the committee on the Los Angeles Times contest recommended "that the executive council be instructed to furnish such finances from the defense fund as in its wisdom may be necessary for the continuance of the contest." This recommendation was unanimously adopted by the convention. In accordance therewith, in September, 1904, the executive council reduced the amount allowed for the Times contest to $600 a month.

As many members of this convention, as well as the membership at large, are not familiar with the financial system under which the Times fight is, and has been, conducted, I desire to say that all funds for the contest prior to March 1, 1903, were handled by the financial secretaries of No. 174. On that date the funds were deposited in a national bank in the names of the president and financial secretaries of Typographical Union No. 174 as "trustees of the International Typographical Union fund," and the financial secretary was placed under $3,000 bonds. All money is drawn by check signed by the two trustees, a financial report, containing an itemized statement of and original receipts for all expenditures, is filed monthly with the secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union, and each month the president and secretary of No. 174 audit the books and accounts of the committee.

The anti-Times committee is composed of one member each from the chapels of the Record, the Express, the Herald and the Examiner, one representative of the job branch, one representative at large and myself.

Now, as to the conditions which existed at the inception of this contest, and those which obtain today.

At the Washington convention an exhaustive report was made as to the status of affairs in Los Angeles, and the fact was pointed out that the most serious obstacle in the path of the contest with the Times was the absence of a competitor in every respect. At a conference of the executive council, delegates from western unions, the delegate from Los Angeles and myself the conclusion was reached that it would be wise to request the Hon. William Randolph Hearst to acquire a morning newspaper in Los Angeles. Accordingly, a resolution to this effect was introduced in the convention, and was adopted by a unanimous vote. Shortly after the adjournment of the convention, Mr. Hearst was waited upon in New York by President Lynch, and later in San Francisco by myself, and further requested to acquire a paper in Los Angeles. On December 12, 1903—four months after the Washington convention adjourned—the Los Angeles Examiner made its initial appearance, and was greeted by a huge demonstration by organized labor, thousands of men participating in the parade.

The pay roll of the Examiner shows that since the establishment of that paper union men, directly or indirectly connected with the International Typographical Union, have received each week wages averaging

Printers	$1,400
Mailers	55
Stereotypers	170
Photo-engravers	250
Pressmen	260

or a total to July 1, 1905, of

Printers	$113,400
Mailers	4,455
Stereotypers	13,770
Photo-engravers	20,250
Pressmen	21,060

or a grand total paid to union men affiliated with the printing trades amounting to $172,935.

With the recent voluntary increase in wages granted by Mr. Hearst and the ever increasing number of employes, the assertion can safely be made that the establishment of the Los Angeles Examiner will bring to members of the International Typographical Union more than $100,000 every year, and to all the printing trades combined nearly $135,000 annually.

In the Times contest the International Typographical Union has expended about $35,000, and as a direct result of that expenditure members of the printing trades in one office alone have received more than $172,000.

As a direct result of the crusade against the Times, the membership of Los Angeles Typographical Union has increased from 180 to approximately 300—an increase of more than 65 per cent.

The morning newspaper scale has been increased from $4 to $4.25, and on the Examiner not one member receives less than $4.50 a night.

The afternoon newspaper scale has been increased from $3.50 to $4, and many members employed on afternoon papers now are receiving more than the scale.

The job scale has been increased from $18 to $20 a week, and preparations have been made that will result in the successful inauguration of the eight-hour day in Los Angeles on the first of next January.

A few years ago not one of the daily union newspapers in Los Angeles deemed it wise either to advocate or defend the principles of organized labor, which for years had been vilified almost daily by the Times.

Now the Record is ultra-friendly, carries the union label on its editorial page, and extends the use of its columns for replies to attacks of the Times. The Express is doing much to discredit the influence of H. G. Otis and his paper, while the Examiner is rapidly changing public sentiment in favor of organized labor.

Until recently the Times was a power in national, state and municipal politics.

At this time it is practically without influence, experienced politicians preferring its animosity to its friendship, and it is the exception, rather than the rule, that any candidate espoused by the Times is successful at the polls.

At the inception of the present contest the leading advertising agencies of the country recognized the Times as the advertising medium of southern California, as a result of which there daily appeared in its columns the announcements of nearly every general advertiser.

Today the Times is shorn of foreign advertising, more than 200 of the leading advertisers of the country having withdrawn, due to the efforts of organized labor.

We have no hesitancy in admitting that we have been unable to affect the Times' local advertising patronage. All the large advertisers are members of the citizens' alliance, and are sparing no effort or expense to maintain the supremacy of the Times in local advertising. However, it is contrary to sound reasoning to believe that this condition can exist long. When the fact becomes thoroughly understood—and it is bound to be in time—that the Examiner has the largest and a steadily increasing circulation, while that of the Times is slowly but steadily decreasing, the local advertising condition will adjust itself.

While we have been unable to materially affect the local advertising patronage of the Times, we have, with the aid of the Examiner, been very successful in reducing its circulation. In nearly all of the suburban towns the Times' circulation is less than that of the Examiner, and in Los Angeles the supremacy of the Examiner no longer is a debatable question.

The steady decrease of the circulation of the Times has been brought about notwithstanding the desperate efforts of Mr. Otis to stem the tide. Today the Times is offering premiums intrinsically worth more than the subscription price of the paper. But these premiums are offered in vain. Costly premiums and an army of solicitors can not restore confidence in a paper that stands convicted before the public of graft, libel, malice and blackmail.

Last year the Times, through methods known to itself, secured the contract for printing the official proceedings of the city council. At the time of the award, members of the anti-Times committee protested to the city council without avail. The charter of the city of Los Angeles provides for the recall of recreant public officials. Immediately after the award of the city printing, the anti-Times committee circulated petitions and secured thereto more than a sufficient number of signatures of qualified voters demanding that the chairman of the printing committee of the city council be recalled. The petition was rejected by the city clerk purely upon technical grounds. A second petition was circulated, which was accepted by the city council. The Times carried the petition to the courts, where again it was rejected on a technicality. A third petition was at once circulated, and presented to the city council. Again the Times appealed to the courts. This time the same judge upheld the petition in every respect. The city council was compelled to order a special election, at which the Times satellite was recalled by a vote of nearly 3 to 1, and a member of the Electrical Workers' Union elected to fill the vacancy.

Digitized by Google

Not satisfied with securing through questionable means the contract for printing the city proceedings, the Times endeavored to rob the city by printing less lines to the inch than specified in the terms of the contract. The anti-Times committee noted this from the first, and daily measured the city advertisements appearing in the Times and computed the difference to which Mr. Otis was legally entitled and that which he endeavored to collect. The contract between the city and the Times expired June 8, 1905, and a day or so thereafter we secured an injunction against the city officials, preventing them from paying the Times $2,076.17 of the last instalment which it endeavored to collect. The matter is now in the courts with every prospect of defeat for the Times.

For many years San Diego—three hours' ride from Los Angeles—was dominated by the Printers' Protective Fraternity. That city, together with Redlands, Santa Ana, Pasadena, Long Beach, San Pedro, Ocean Park and Santa Monica, to a large extent furnished the supply of non-union printers to the Times. At this time there is not one member of the Printers' Protective Fraternity working in San Diego. The "Morning Union," for fourteen years a fraternity stronghold, now is in complete harmony with the International Typographical Union. Unions have been organized in Redlands, Santa Ana, Pasadena, Long Beach and San Pedro and the jurisdiction of No. 174 has been extended over Ocean Park to Santa Monica. These conditions have been brought about by the work of the anti-Times committee and as a result of organizing the surrounding territory the Times now has no easy task in securing non-union printers.

Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen, I have given you, in as brief a manner as the importance of the subject will permit, the history of the Times controversy; how and to what extent the contest has been financed; the conditions existing at the outset, those obtaining today, and the progress that has been made. Possibly more could have been accomplished toward the ultimate end, yet the anti-Times committee willingly submits to the scrutiny of this convention the work that has been done, and is confident this work will be continued until the Los Angeles Times joins the ranks of 90 per cent of the daily newspapers of North America, and requires as one of the conditions of employment in the composing room the possession of a card issued by the International Typographical Union.

The question coming on concurrence in the report of the committee on Los Angeles Times contest, it was adopted unanimously.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON OFFICERS' REPORTS

To the Officers and Delegates:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—Your committee on officers' reports has carefully considered the reports of the president, vice-presidents, secretary-treasurer and organizers, and begs leave to submit herewith its observations and conclusions.

In opening this report, we desire to congratulate the International Typographical Union on the comparative freedom from friction that has marked the fiscal year 1904-1905. Reference to the report of the secretary-treasurer discloses that we have had only nineteen small strikes, and that only 256 members were affected by these strikes. Of this number 111 returned to work when settlement was made, seventy-two were displaced and seventy-three are involved in pending disputes. We believe that our policy and our methods have been "dictated by wisdom, prudence and forethought," and we are also of the opinion that our relations with the American Newspaper Publishers' Association have aided in the comparative peace to which allusion is made. We trust that the president's hope for eventual amicable, satisfactory and mutually profitable relations between the United Typothetæ and the International Typographical Union may be realized.

We know that that portion of the president's report reviewing the campaign for the eight-hour day has been referred to the eight-hour committee, but we take the liberty, nevertheless, to express herein our endorsement of the methods that have thus far been pursued and our commendation of the wisdom that has marked the struggle. In common with more than 47,000 of our fellow workmen, we look forward with conviction to the inauguration, peacefully we hope, of the eight-hour day on January 1, and we believe that such a consummation will place the International Typographical Union in the forefront of all the labor organizations of the world. It is true that we have been backward in accomplishing this great reform at present enjoyed by so many wage workers in other trades, but circumstances must always guide in policy pursued; and we feel that the International Typographical Union might not have been justified in sooner seeking to shorten the workday. With the introduction of machinery and improvements making for economy in effort in many other directions, we can now assert that the time for the eight-hour day is here, and that we are amply justified in pressing forward to its realization.

The documents in the St. Louis case, and which are submitted as a part of the president's report, set forth so clearly the history of that case that comment is scarcely necessary. That the executive council was amply justified in the steps that were taken, and that the suspension of St. Louis Typographical Union, so promptly made by the executive council, was the only remedy, drastic though it was, are statements that are not open to dispute.

Your committee recommends, therefore, that the action taken by the executive council in the St. Louis case be endorsed by this convention, and the council be commended for its prompt action in the premises.

The scale statistics which are a part of the president's report were, we understand, reproduced for the information of the delegates, and require no special comment from this committee, except to express approval for the facts as presented and commend to the delegates a careful study of the statistics, so that the progress they outline may be fully grasped by the delegates to this convention.

Digitized by Google

It is a cause for satisfaction that we were successful in the famous Wunch litigation, and we note that the president declares that

The effect of the decision will be to establish a legal right in New York state of union men to refuse to work with non-union, and a decision by the New York court will have great influence in the courts of other states.

Under the caption "Another Interesting Decision," the president explains a decision handed down by a New York court holding that labor unions may within lawful limits boycott, strike and picket. It appears that in August, 1903, after an effort extending over a year to unionize the electrotype department of the United States Printing Company of Brooklyn, the union sent letters to the company's customers informing them that the company would not employ union workmen. The union also adopted a system of boycott and picketing which the company asserted interfered with its business. As a result of the troubles a compromise was effected and a contract entered into between the company and the unions of stereotypers and electrotypers by which the company agreed to employ only union men. Two employes refused to join the union and alleged that the company threatened to discharge them unless they did so. They obtained an injunction from the supreme court preventing the company and the union from interfering with their employment. The attorneys who represented the stereotypers' union appealed from the decision granting the injunction, contending that the agreement to employ only union men was clearly valid, as the result of a voluntary understanding resulting from arbitration and that there was neither duress nor threats used by the unions in securing the execution of the agreement with the printing company. In order that the delegates may realize fully the importance of the decision, we quote again that portion used in the report of the president:

"An injunction against organizing a strike can not stand. Neither can a union be enjoined from picketing or boycotting. This injunction is too broad and sweeping. An employe who has not bound himself to his master by a contract can not be bound by law to work for him, and may quit his employment if conditions are not to his (the employe's) liking. A strike per se is not unlawful. What man may do individually he may do collectively. Picketing for purposes of observation is not illegal, and only becomes illegal when they adopt violence. But where persuasion or argument is used, no injunction can apply."

The close distinction made by the court in its decision and quoted in the president's report, is also reproduced herewith because of its importance:

"There is a manifest discrimination, well recognized, between a combination of workmen to secure the exclusive employment of its members by a refusal to work with none other, and a combination whose primary object is to procure the discharge of an outsider and his deprivation of all employment. In the first case, the action of the combination is primarily for the betterment of its fellow members. In the second case such action is primarily 'to impoverish and crush another' by making it impossible for him to work there, or, so far as may be possible, anywhere. The difference is between combination for welfare of self and that for the persecution of another. The primary purpose of one may necessarily but incidentally require a discharge of an outsider; the primary purpose of the other is such discharge, and, so far as possible, an exclusion from all labor in his calling. Self-protection may cause incidental injury to another. Self-protection does not aim at malevolent injury to another. The law views an injury arising from competition differently from an injury done in persecution."

The tolerant attitude of the union is not insisting on the discharge of the non-union employes, but agreeing to accept these employes into membership, was much in favor of the union, and we believe that the value attached to this position contains a lesson for our subordinate unions. It appears to us that the courts are manifesting a disposition, and that this trait frequently appears in their decisions, to protect the non-union workmen, and whenever these workmen are such because of ignorance of the trade-union principle and deception on the part of the employers, our local unions will do well to extend to them the utmost consideration. In the case at bar, considering the union's position, the decision referred to says:

"That the aim of the union was not the discharge of the plaintiffs as individuals is clear from the clause in the agreement that they, and all other present employes, would be admitted to the union. Thus it was willing to avert in the only way possible the injury to the present employes which might rise from the agreement that henceforth only union men should be employed. It would seem that the purpose was not to drive out non-union men that places might be made for union men, but to assure that there should be no employes in this branch who were not members of the union. It may well be that the union deemed it essential to the interests of its members who were employed that all of the employes should be allied, so as to act henceforth in concert on questions of wages, work hours, privileges, or of the employment of only those, to work with them, who were approved by them as skillful or competent. This is a fair inference, because the union did not need to afford this privilege of admission. If it be said that the employer insisted on this provision, nevertheless it appears that the union was willing to insert it. Presumably it would not have done so if the object of the strike was to cause the discharge of the plaintiffs and their fellows, unless, of course, the strike had failed in that respect."

From the president's report we gather that the decision in favor of the union was agreed to by all of the judges, both as to law and fact, and can not be appealed.

The detailed work of the president's office as set forth in his report shows, among other things, the vast addition to that official's duties occasioned by the eight-hour campaign, and sets forth clearly the number of circulars, buttons, and other documents issued in support of that campaign. The large number of contracts examined and approved shows that there has been general compliance with the law which requires that

No local union shall sign a contract guaranteeing its members to work for any proprietor, firm or corporation, unless such contract is in accordance with International law and approved by the International president.

The committee on officers' reports at the St. Louis session took occasion to point out that the object of the law is to secure a uniformity in contracts and to insure that they will be in line with International law, and expressed the belief

That the general welfare of the International Typographical Union, as related to the conditions under which its members work, requires that, as nearly as possible, these conditions shall be uniform, and we believe that, internationally, this can only be secured by a strict compliance with the law and requirements of the parent body.

Digitized by Google

Your committee desires to congratulate the executive council on the removal of the headquarters to a modern office building. The International Typographical Union is certainly entitled to "commodious offices with facilities adequate for the volume of business" and "arrangements, furnishings and facilities" that will be "in keeping with the dignity, importance and business standing and reputation of the International Typographical Union."

We desire to congratulate the International president on his connection with the unionizing of the Brooklyn Eagle composing room, and we also believe that this convention should extend thanks to the commissioner of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association for his co-operation in the effort to unionize the Eagle.

The report of the secretary-treasurer, since it deals almost entirely with the financial affairs of the organization, has been referred to the committee on returns and finances, and will, no doubt, be carefully reviewed by it. This committee can not, however, refrain from referring to the continued growth in the membership of the International Union and the healthy condition of its treasury. Our average paying membership for the past fiscal year was 46,734, and the total membership, as shown by reports of local unions, is 48,299. The balance shown by the secretary-treasurer's books on May 31, 1905 (exclusive of the Cummings memorial fund, which contained $11,321.85), was $69,052.09, the increase in the regular funds for the year being $32,694.47.

In the secretary-treasurer's report are to be found numerous tables which are very valuable for reference purposes. The compilation of them, and report as a whole, is an evidence of the system prevailing in the conduct of the affairs of the organization, and the secretary-treasurer is entitled to great credit for the energy and care displayed in the discharge of his duties.

Your committee has also examined the reports of the first, second, third, fourth and fifth vice-presidents, and the various organizers, and we desire to record our appreciation of the efforts put forth by these officials to advance the general interests of the International Typographical Union. The organization system is at present as well nigh perfect as it can be, and with a large corps of experienced and capable officials at command, it is possible to get on the scene of trouble a trained representative of the organization early in the difficulty, and when the effort to adjust the difficulty gives promise of success.

In conclusion, we desire to congratulate the executive and other officers of the International Typographical Union on the completeness of the annual reports presented, and to urge upon the delegates and the membership at large careful consideration of the facts and figures set forth in these reports. Fraternally,

W. S. Ripley,
Ben. C. Robinson,
A. G. Slemons,
J. R. Alford,
J. F. Quirk.

Delegate Hertenstein (St. Louis) desired to place St. Louis on record, and moved that the report of the committee on officers' report be concurred in.

The motion was adopted unanimously.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON RETURNS AND FINANCES

Toronto, Ont., August 15, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee on returns and finances respectfully presents the following for your consideration: Though it requires only a cursory examination of the report to demonstrate that the International Union is in better condition numerically and financially than ever before, your committee deems it advisable to draw especial attention to the features of the secretary-treasurer's statement, on which no labor seems to have been spared.

In his opening table, the secretary-treasurer presents a summary of the receipts and expenditures for the fiscal year. From it an idea is gained of the magnitude of the yearly financial transactions of the International Union. The tabulation could not be more concise and complete, or be arranged so as to be more readily understood.

Following the opening table is one showing the condition of the funds on May 31. It reads thus:

CONDITION OF FUNDS—MAY 31, 1905.

Regular.

Burial fund	$19,927 78
Executive council or defense fund	7,505 87
General fund	1,891 04
Special defense fund	37,671 09
The Typographical Journal fund	2,056 31
Total	$69,052 09

Assets.

Fletcher National Bank, deposit	$26,782 65
Union National Bank, deposit	10,000 00
Invested in United States bonds	31,956 25
Deposited with postoffice	225 00
Cash on hand	88 19
Total	$69,052 09
Increase in regular funds during fiscal year	$32,694 47

CUMMINGS MEMORIAL.

Balance in fund May 31, 1905	$11,312 85

Assets.

Drexel & Co., deposit	$5,068 10
American National Bank, deposit	6,244 75
Total	$11,312 85
Increase in fund during fiscal year	$6,172 36

Next in order is a report of the receipts and expenditures of the executive council and joint defense board. This statement covers the fund expended under the direction of the executive council, and sets forth the benefits and assistance given each union, the expenses of officers, organizers and committees.

Under the head of "Our Membership" the secretary-treasurer reports the issuance of forty-three charters, the surrender and suspension of forty-five and gives the number of local unions on May 31, 1905, as 690, divided as follows:

Digitized by Google

Typographical unions—English	633
Typographical unions—German-American	21
Mailers' unions	24
Typefounders' unions	3
Newspaper Writers' unions	9
Total	690

The average membership of these unions, based upon the per capita tax payments for the twelve months ending May 31, 1905, was as follows:

Typographical—English and German	45,435
Mailers	1,047
Typefounders	98
Newspaper Writers	154
Total	46,734

This is an increase of 569 over the preceding year, and 4,298 greater than the average for the fiscal year of 1903. In 1891, when the International Union controlled pressmen, pressfeeders, bookbinders, bindery girls, photo-engravers, stereotypers and electrotypers, as well as the allied trades now affiliated with it, the average membership was 25,165. During the past fourteen years control of the trades named above has been surrendered, yet the organization increased its average paying membership from 25,165 to 46,734—a gain of 21,569, or an average yearly gain of more than 1,400. When the several crises through which the organization has passed, and the continued opposition of employers is considered, your committee believes that all must be proud of our progress.

On January 1, 1904, every member of the organization began paying 5 cents per month to the special defense fund. The law providing for the fund was enacted at the Cincinnati convention in 1902, and was subsequently ratified by the membership. This fund is "for the purpose of advancing and defending the principles of unionism, as applied to our own trade, whenever and however the executive council may decide." The executive council has had no occasion to use any of the fund, and it contained on May 31, 1905, the sum of $37,671.09. Since the fund is increasing monthly, there should be something like $54,000 in it by January 1, 1906, for use in the eight-hour campaign, if needed for that purpose.

A comparative statement shows the International to have collected and disbursed more money in the last year than in any previous one. The receipts amounted to $244,689.24, and the expenditures were $205,822.41. The excess of receipts over expenditures was $38,866.83. Adding to this $36,357.62, the balance in the regular funds, and $5,140.49 in the Cummings memorial fund on June 1, 1904, the balance in the International treasury on May 31, 1905, is found to have been $80,364.94. It will be interesting to note in this connection that the International has received $2,090,634.05 and expended $2,036,991.22 between May 1, 1891, and May 31, 1905. In the expenditures are included the sum transferred to the Union Printers' Home and the loss in the Indianapolis National Bank.

The secretary-treasurer is little more than a collecting agent for the Home fund. He transfers monthly to the proper officer the Home fund's portion of per capita tax, and all other money received belonging to it. All expenses from the Home fund are made under the direction of the trustees, and the financial transactions of the institution appear in the trustees' report. It is, therefore, only necessary in this connection, for your committee to state that the secretary-treasurer collected for and transferred to the Home treasurer, in the past year, the sum of $56,235.95.

In the general fund there is not found the healthy condition existing in the others. The expenditures of this fund during the fiscal year were $37,868.88, the receipts $35,418.74. The expenditures therefrom exceeded the receipts by $2,450.14. Deducting this sum from $4,341.18, the balance in the fund at the beginning of the year, $1,891.04 results as the balance to the credit of the general fund on May 31, 1905. Unusual expenditures are pointed out by the secretary-treasurer as follows:

Federation assessment	$1,408 74
Removal of headquarters, new office furniture, desks, fixtures, etc.	1,488 70
Addressograph and supplies	285 16
Three new typewriters, desks and copy-holders	384 00
Total	$3,566 60

As none of these, with the exception of the American Federation of Labor assessment, are likely to soon be duplicated, the general fund should hold its own for the present without assistance from other funds or an increase in the portion of per capita tax credited thereto.

We mentioned in an early part of this report a table containing an itemized exhibit of the receipts and expenditures of the executive council or joint defense fund.

A summary of it reads as follows:

RECEIPTS.

Balance to credit of fund June 1, 1904	$2,501 38
Per capita tax	42,060 88
International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union—Special per capita tax	2,439 22
Cash returned	107 55
Total		$47,109 03

EXPENDITURES.

Paid to local unions	$19,360 16
Expenses of officers and organizers	16,995 41
Expenses of committees	2,664 72
Wisconsin state printing plant bill	58 50
Telegrams	524 37
Total	$39,603 16
Balance in fund May 31, 1905	7,505 87
Total		$47,109 03

The receipts of the fund exceeded the expenditures, thus increasing the balance in the fund to $7,505.87. In this connection it is noted that the amount expended from the defense fund from its inception to May 31, 1905, aggregates $590,635.14.

During the past year burial benefits numbering 567 were paid. This is eleven less than the preceding year, but the highest number with that exception. The payment of these 567 burial claims necessitated an expenditure of $39,690. Since the receipts of the fund were $42,060.85, they exceeded the expenditures by $2,370.85, and increased the balance in the fund from $17,556.93 on June 1, 1904, to $19,927.78 on May 31, 1905.

Digitized by Google

From the establishment of the burial fund to the close of the fiscal year 6,116 benefits, amounting to $367,995, had been paid. It is shown by the secretary-treasurer's report that the balance in the burial fund will grow slowly, but the revenue is not great enough to warrant an increase in the benefit at this time.

Those portions of the secretary-treasurer's report referring to THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL, Cummings memorial fund, Los Angeles contest and eight-hour movement have been referred to the respective committees on these subjects.

Sixteen local unions were involved in nineteen strikes during the year. Of the total number of strikes, seven were won, six lost, one arbitrated and four were pending at the close of the year. Two hundred and fifty-six members were engaged in these difficulties. Out of that number 111 returned to work when settlement was made, seventy-two were displaced and seventy-three are involved in the pending disputes.

An item of $770.73, for the printing and distribution of the annual scale report, is among the expenditures of the year. This report was on the desks of all delegates at the opening of this session, and was reproduced in part in the report of President Lynch. Those who had not seen the full report, prior to finding it on their desks, must have immediately grasped the value of the figures given therein. The data was compiled by the secretary-treasurer from the reports furnished by local secretaries. It is the fifth of its character issued by the secretary-treasurer, and is even more complete than its predecessors. Much work was undoubtedly necessary to put together understandingly a statement of this kind. Nothing like it, so far as your committee is aware, has been undertaken by the secretary of any other American trade union. We congratulate the secretary-treasurer upon the report and the International Union upon the increases in local scales and the reduction of the hours of labor shown therein.

In connection with this scale report we would call the attention of the delegates to the fact that these reports are confidential, and care should be taken that these pamphlets do not fall into the hands of parties who might make improper use of them.

A striking feature of the secretary-treasurer's report is the large table showing the amount received from each union for all purposes during the year, and the sum paid each one from the strike and burial funds. In it is properly accounted for all money received by the secretary-treasurer. The compilation is valuable for reference purposes, and reflects to the credit of the secretary-treasurer, since it is indicative of the painstaking manner in which he conducts his office.

That each local may know the numerical strength of those about it, the secretary-treasurer compiled a table giving the membership of each union in good standing, in arrears, and the total number of members on its rolls. From this statement it is found that there are 48,299 members on the rosters of our local unions. Of this number 43,665 are reported as in good standing and 4,364 in arrears. It must be remembered in this connection that the holders of traveling cards located in unorganized towns are not included in these figures.

Among the assets of the International Union are thirty one-thousand-dollar 2 per cent United States bonds. The annual interest on them amounts to $600. The bond investment amounted to $31,956.25 at the close of the year.

The summary of the daily record of the mail and express matter sent out by the secretary-treasurer during the twelve months ending May 31, 1905, gives some idea of the detail work of his office.

MAIL.

Typewritten letters	23,409
Postal cards	11,830
Papers (exclusive of those mailed by printer)	12,638
Organizing literature, packages	448
Supplies, packages	3,916
Miscellaneous (receipts, circulars, etc.)	19,646

EXPRESS.

Organizing literature, packages	108
Supplies, packages	1,140
Total	73,135

The foregoing shows an increase of 2,332 in the number of typewritten letters sent out by the secretary-treasurer during the past year.

Comprised in the expenses of transacting the general business of the organization for the past year are to be found: Officers' salaries, $4,300; office rent, light, insurance, telephone, new furniture, etc., $4,578.11; clerk hire, auditors' services, $7,956.90; stationery for headquarters and vice-presidents, $431.13; miscellaneous printing, $865.95; postage (exclusive of eight-hour circulars), $882; stamped envelopes and postal cards, $934.05; expressage, $297.10; exchange, $92.60; telegrams (prior to November 1, 1904), $370.18; supplies purchased for resale, $2,900.89. A total of $23,608.91. Deducting from this $6,187.19 received from supplies, interest and desk room, the net cost is found to be $17,421.72, or about 37 cents per member. The item of officers' salaries alone represents a cost of 9.2 cents per member. These figures demonstrate that our affairs are being conducted conservatively and as economically as it is possible to handle the great volume of business now passing through headquarters.

Supplemental to his statement for the fiscal year, the secretary-treasurer has presented the following summary showing the receipts and expenditures from June 1 to August 8, 1905, inclusive, and the condition of the funds on the last named date.

REGULAR FUNDS.

June 1, 1905, balance as per report	$69,052 09
Aug. 7, 1905, cash receipts to date	43,552 94
Total	$112,605 03
Expenditures	40,661 50
Balance	$71,943 53

Digitized by Google

ASSETS.

Invested in United States bonds	$31,956 25
Fletcher National Bank, deposit	24,748 08
Union National Bank, deposit	10,000 00
Draft for convention expenses	5,000 00
Deposited with Indianapolis postmaster	225 00
Cash on hand	14 20
Total	$71,943 53

CONDITION OF FUNDS.

Executive council	$4,865 70
Burial fund	21,574 33
General fund	1,198 67
Home fund	1,009 45
The Typographical Journal	432 29
Special defense fund	42,863 09
Total	$71,943 53

CUMMINGS MEMORIAL.

June 1, 1905. Balance in fund	$11,312 85
Aug. 7, 1905. Cash receipts to date	600 75
Total	$11,913 60
Expenditures	2 50
Balance	11,911 10

ASSETS.

Drexel & Co., deposit	$5,068 10
American National Bank, deposit	6,843 00
Total	$11,911 10

This report has been examined by your committee, and found to be correct. Your committee desires to state that the books of the secretary-treasurer are in excellent condition. They have been audited to July 31, 1905, by expert accountants, who not only certify to their correctness, but commend the secretary-treasurer upon the state of his accounts. Your committee desires to add its commendation, testify to the business methods prevailing in the office of the secretary-treasurer, and congratulate the International Union on the manner in which its financial affairs are conducted.

The president announced that the report would be divided.

The preceding portion of the report was then adopted.

The report continued:

Proposition No. 97—By Jacksonville (Fla.) Union No. 162:

Whereas, The Home for Union Printers is located in Colorado Springs, Colo., one of the healthiest and most beautiful sections of the country; and,

Whereas, The headquarters of the International Typographical Union is located at Indianapolis, Ind., a great distance from the Home; and,

Whereas, By being so located in different sections of the country, large and unnecessary expense is thereby incurred; and,

Whereas, It is believed that much money could be saved to the membership at large, and the affairs of the International Typographical Union conducted much more advantageously than at present, were the two located at the same place, especially in the matter of the publication and printing of THE JOURNAL; therefore,

Resolved, That the executive council is hereby instructed to have printed and submit the proposition to a referendum the question of locating the headquarters of the International Typographical Union at Colorado Springs, Colo., and it is hereby instructed, if such measure should carry, to make all necessary arrangements for the transfer of the headquarters and the printing and publication of THE JOURNAL at said Home for Union Printers within sixty days after the passage of such measure.

Resolved, That the sum of $10,000, or so much thereof as is necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any moneys not otherwise appropriated in the general treasury, to carry into effect the provisions of this measure.

Resolved, further, That the executive council is hereby authorized to levy an assessment of 25 cents per capita upon the entire membership, if the funds in the treasury are not adequate for the above purpose, the same to be use for the purposes above specified.

The committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 102—By Mr. Sterling (Boston):

Resolved, That the following question be submitted to the referendum:

Do you favor an assessment of 10 cents per month for the purpose of providing a pension of ten dollars ($10) per month for needy members of the International Typographical Union, who have been in good standing for twenty-five years and who are not less than sixty-five years of age?

The committee reports unfavorably, as Proposition No. 9, already adopted by this body, provides for investigation and report to the next convention on the matter of pensions.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Your committee recommends that the assistant secretary of this convention be paid the sum of $100 for his services, the reading clerk $50, and the messengers and sergeant-at-arms $25 each.

Your committee recommends that the committee on laws and the committee on conference with telegraphers be paid the sum of $65 each, to reimburse them for extra time and for four days' attendance and expenses thereof previous to the convention.

JOHN J. MCLOGAN,
ED D. DONNELL,
W. S. CARLIN,
J. L. HARTNETT,
NEIL CROWLEY.

The part of the report covering the salaries of assistant-secretary, reading clerk, messengers, sergeant-at-arms, committee on laws and committee on conference with telegraphers, was then adopted.

There being no objection, the report of the committee on returns and finance was adopted as a whole.

Delegate Rhoades (Boston), by unanimous consent, submitted the following:

Proposition No. 133—By Delegate Rhoades (Boston):

Resolved, That the International Typographical Union, in fifty-first session assembled, hereby acknowledges its deep appreciation of the friendly attitude assumed by William R. Hearst toward organized labor and his material assistance in the fight against the Los Angeles Times.

The resolution was adopted.

Digitized by Google

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON COPYRIGHT.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee on copyright law presents the following for your consideration:

Owing to the lack of proper data or the possible access thereto, your committee can only report in a general way matters pertaining to copyright law.

The standing copyright committee reports many conferences being held during the year and that much good has come from them. These conferences have been between representatives of the International Typographical Union, representatives of the typothetæ, representatives of the English Publishers' Association and individual publishers. The result of these conferences has been concerted and harmonious actions.

During the year five bills were before congress, of which one was passed and approved March 3, 1905. This was in the nature of an amendment of section 4952 of the copyright law, and can be found on pages 107 and 108 of the pamphlet entitled "Officers Reports to the Fifty-First Convention." This act does not apply to books published in English, or to books published in a foreign language previous to the passage of the amendment, and seems to be free from any danger to the manufacturing clause of the copyright law.

The amendment of section 4956, which was endorsed by the St. Louis convention, known as H. R. 13355, was introduced in the house by Mr. Tawney. The bill was referred to the committee on patents, and being favorably reported to the house by the committee, was passed April 2, 1904, but failed of passage in the senate, although receiving a strong recommendation from the chairman of the senate committee on patents. This bill in full can be found on page 108 of the pamphlet entitled "Officers' Reports to the Fifty-First Convention." Your committee recommends that this convention go on record as favoring H. R. 13355, and that a copy of the following resolutions be forwarded to the speaker of the house and to the presiding officer of the senate at Washington:

Whereas, The International Typographical Union is ever ready to take the lead in any endeavor to secure more equitable laws and better social and material conditions; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the International Typographical Union, in its fifty-first annual convention assembled, unqualifiedly endorse H. R. 13355; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the speaker of the house and presiding officer of the senate at Washington.

Your committee would further recommend that in order to prevent a continued importation into this country of perfect plates and shells under the head of "Old Type Metal," which is now admitted free of duty and whereby the government is defrauded of its just revenue and certain members of our craft deprived of a portion of the labor to which they are justly entitled, that the following resolution be forwarded to the speaker of the house and the presiding officer of the senate at Washington:

Whereas, In order to prevent the continued importation into this country of perfect plates and shells under the head of "Old Type Metal," which are now admitted free of duty, and whereby the government is defrauded of its just revenue and certain wage-earners deprived of a portion of the labor to which they are justly entitled, the International Typographical Union, assembled in convention, unanimously protests against the continued importation into this country of perfect plates under the head of "Old Type Metal;" therefore, be it

Resolved, That paragraph 533 of the tariff act of 1897, which reads as follows, "Old copper, fit only for manufacture, clippings from new copper and all composition metal of which copper is a component material of chief value not specifically provided for in this act," be transferred from the free list and placed on the dutiable list at an ad valorem duty of 25 per cent.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the speaker of the house and the presiding officer of the senate at Washington.

The abuse of paragraph 533 of the tariff act of 1897 (which is the subject of complaint in the above resolutions), is that importers purposely damage plates and shells in a way that allows admission as "old type metal," but such damage does not destroy their use, only serving as a means of evading duty provisions of the tariff law.

Your committee wishes to congratulate the membership at large on the earnest endeavor and untiring efforts of the standing copyright committee, President Lynch and other officers of the International Typographical Union during the past year on behalf of desired copyright legislation, and fully believe that a continued effort and co-operation will be agreeably rewarded in the near future.

FRANK M. COFFEY, Chairman.
H. C. MAYDWELL,
IDA L. GRAY,
JAMES E. LEIGH.

There being no objections, the report of the committee was declared adopted.

Delegate Green (Atlanta) moved that the afternoon session, ending regularly at 5 o'clock, adjourn to meet at 7:30 P. M.

The motion was adopted.

The convention then adjourned till 2 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

LABOR TEMPLE, TORONTO, CANADA,
August 18, 1905.

Vice-President Hays called the convention to order at 2:10 o'clock.

On motion of Delegate Bandlow (Cleveland) roll call was dispensed with.

Delegate Croft (Boston) was excused from attendance on account of illness.

Unanimous consent was given for the presentation of the following resolution by Delegate Esty (Paterson):

Proposition No. 134—By Delegate Esty (Paterson):

Whereas, Philadelphia as at present organized is a menace to the welfare of the printing trades and all other trades; and,

Whereas, The establishment of a paper by the

Digitized by Google

Hon. William R. Hearst in any of the large cities where he now has papers has been conducive to the best interests of all labor organizations; be it

Resolved, That the executive council, if in their judgment it be for the best interests of the International Typographical Union, consult with Mr. Hearst as to the advisability of starting a paper in Philadelphia on the same broad lines of his other papers.

Referred to committee on resolutions.

Consideration of the report of the committee on laws was resumed.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON LAWS.

The following substitute for Proposition No. 33 by Delegate West (Brockton) was reported by the laws committee:

Proposition No. 33—Substitute by the laws committee: New section under head of "Apprentices":

Section —. All apprentices employed on daily or weekly newspapers, magazines or publications of any description, under the jurisdiction of the International Typographical Union, where machine or typesetting devices are in use, must be employed the last two years of their apprenticeship on the case, and at all the intricate handiwork of the craft, excepting the last three months of said apprenticeship, which time may be devoted exclusively to work on linotype or typesetting devices in use in the office where said apprentice is employed. Four years to constitute an apprenticeship term.

The substitute of the committee was adopted.

Delegate West (Brockton) asked permission to withdraw Proposition No. 36. The request was granted.

Proposition No. 37—By Delegate Lovett (Charleston, W. Va.):

A resolution to amend the by-laws so as to increase the per capita 5 cents per month per member, the increase to be devoted to THE JOURNAL, to make it more of an instructor in the branches of the trades under our jurisdiction, and to promulgate the system of education of the membership upon the vital questions before us at this time, and upon which the International officers have done their utmost to enlighten the readers. Valuable suggestions as to the best methods of doing various kinds of work could be given in the increased space at the disposal of the members, repaying many times the small increase in per capita.

Committee reports unfavorably.

Delegate Cherry (Indianapolis) spoke in favor of the proposition.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 38—By Mr. Johnston (Houston):

Add the following to the general laws under head of "The Label":

Section —. In towns or cities where there are no unions of the printing trades, persons so desiring may be allowed to use the provisional union label of the International Typographical Union under the following conditions: They shall sign an agreement with the officers of the International Typographical Union that they will employ no printers except such as are members of the International Typographical Union and at a scale of wages which shall not be less than $10 per week in any case for such hours as the executive council may stipulate; where such town is located within fifty miles of any subordinate union of the International Typographical Union, the scale to be paid shall be not less than the scale of the subordinate union nearest thereto; they shall employ not to exceed one apprentice; they shall comply with such laws of the International Typographical Union as the executive council may deem it necessary to require for the protection of the label in the section of the country in which they may be located, and they shall be required to surrender said labels at any time on demand of the executive council. The executive council may refuse to issue the provisional union label in towns or cities where there are enough printers to organize a union, or where for any reason it is deemed inadvisable to do so.

Section —. Persons desiring to use the union label under the provisions of section — of these laws shall make application for loan of the same to the secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union. They shall be required to pay for the use thereof the same price as is paid for labels by subordinate unions, and, in addition, shall deposit with the secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union a bond in the sum of $50, with two endorsers, as good and sufficient security, for the faithful and prompt return of said labels to the International Typographical Union officer by whom the labels shall be issued.

Section —. Should it become necessary for the Typographical Union to send a representative to collect the labels issued, for return to the secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union, the publisher holding said labels shall pay traveling and per diem expense of said representative, in a sum not to exceed the amount of the bond furnished. Otherwise the bond to be held as void upon return of labels.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 39—By Clinton (Iowa) Union:

Whereas, It is impossible for a large number of the smaller unions to send delegates to the annual convention of the International Typographical Union on account of the expense attached thereto; therefore, be it

Resolved, By Clinton Typographical Union No. 334, That we request the delegates at the coming convention at Toronto, to amend our laws by increasing the per capita tax 5 cents per month, the money so raised to be used in defraying expenses of delegates from unions having a membership of less than fifty.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 40—By Mr. Martin (Denver):

The following is submitted as an amendment to the constitution and by-laws of the International Typographical Union:

That members fifty years old may work for 15 per cent less than the regular scale for time work, and that members fifty-five years old may work for 25 per cent less than the regular scale for time work: Provided, That not more than one can work under the scale in any one office unless such takes the place of an apprentice.

The committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 41—By Mr. Martin (Denver):

The following is submitted as an amendment to the constitution and by-laws of the International Typographical Union:

(1) That each union shall take steps to initiate all non-union printers in its jurisdiction who have never worked against unionism. Those who have done so, or held previous membership, to be admitted according to terms agreed upon by the union.

Also, that apprentices be admitted, as apprentices, free of initiation money after serving three years, paying 10 cents per month to the local union. When they are eligible to become journeymen, they shall be granted a card of membership free, if they enroll in their fourth year; be charged $2 if they enroll at the beginning of their fifth year, and $3 if they enroll the last six months of their apprenticeship, after which, if they neglect to enroll, they will have to pay the regular initiation fee. All apprentice members to receive a copy of THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL regularly, for which the local union will pay 5 cents to the International Typographical Union.

Digitized by Google

(2) I would suggest that no admission fee be charged non-union out-of-town printers.

(3) Dues—25 cents per month (20 cents to the International Typographical Union and 5 cents to the local union) to continue until a union is formed in that locality, or he becomes a regular member of a subordinate union.

(4) Benefits—The regular death benefit of the International Typographical Union, a copy of THE JOURNAL regularly and a traveling card on leaving, entitling him to admission into any union he may wish to enter.

(5) That each subordinate union shall submit a monthly report of the condition of its jurisdiction to the officers of the International Typographical Union. Penalty for neglect, $1, to be published in THE JOURNAL.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

The committee on laws asked for further time on Proposition No. 42.

The request was granted.

Proposition No. 43—By Delegate Harris (Washington, Ind.):

Amend section 6, article vi, by-laws, lines 11 and 12, to read:

"For the burial expenses of the deceased, the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars ($150)."

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 44—By Delegate Needham (Des Moines):

Strike out section 12, article v, of the by-laws.

Amend the general laws by inserting under the heading "Recommendations" the following:

Section —. The International Union, in convention assembled, calls to the attention of the executive the importance of giving to the smaller unions a fair and equitable apportionment in the appointment of committees.

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Samuel L. Landers, Canadian organizer for the United Garment Workers of America, was introduced and addressed the convention. He urged support for the label of his organization.

The report of the committee on Union Printers' Home was then read.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON UNION PRINTERS' HOME.

TORONTO, August 18, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee on Union Printers' Home, to whom was referred that portion of the president's address touching the Home, beg leave to recommend that the policy of the board of trustees as to the admission of applicants afflicted with locomotor ataxia, or any disease of a pronounced progressive character, or any loathsome disease, be approved by this convention. The statistics of the Home show that its population has about doubled during the past ten years, and that at the present time neither the Home nor its revenues are large enough to accommodate all the applicants. Therefore, we believe that the board of trustees should continue to exclude those afflicted with diseases that require or are certain to require the entire service of a personal attendant, and endeavor to dispense the benefits of the Home for the greatest good to the greatest number, until such time as the craft sees fit to enlarge the accommodations or increase the revenues, or both.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 123—By Delegate Steele (Washington):

Whereas, No specific provision has as yet been made at the Union Printers' Home at Colorado Springs for the accommodation of female members of the International Typographical Union who may find it necessary, by reason of failing health, to seek the advantage of residence at that institution; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the trustees of the Home be, and they hereby are, instructed to set aside a portion of the proposed Cummings memorial addition, when completed, for the use of eligible female members of the International Typographical Union.

Committee recommends that the resolution be referred to the board of trustees of the Home, with a request that they give it careful consideration before completing the proposed Cummings memorial addition, because the care of female residents at the Home is sure to confront them as time goes on and our organization grows. From what your committee can learn, accommodations for female members of the union at the Home are inadequate.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 104—By Delegates Kennedy and Mulvihill (Minneapolis):

We are authorized by No. 42 to appeal to the convention of the International Typographical Union from the decision of the board of trustees in the case of William Myrick, of Minneapolis No. 42.

Proposition No. 104 is an appeal by Minneapolis Typographical Union No. 42 from the decision of the board of trustees of the Union Printers' Home denying the petition of William Myrick for admission to the Home. An examination of the documents filed along with this appeal discloses a wide difference of opinion between three physicians in Minneapolis and the Home physician, and the documents also contain a suggestion from the admissions committee of the board of trustees that the subject be brought to this convention.

After careful consideration of the case, your committee reached the conclusion that it would be unwise for this convention to set the precedent of overruling the judgment of the admissions committee, and the board of trustees, and the Home physician, on petitions of this character; but in view of the fact that there is a difference of opinion between the examining physicians, and that the examining committee of the board suggested this appeal, and that No. 42 has proposed to reconvey the applicant from the Home to Minneapolis at its own expense, if, after a personal examination by the Home physician, it is shown that the applicant should not be admitted, or even after a short residence at the Home he proves to be undesirable, your committee recommend that the board of trustees approve the petition of William Myrick on those conditions.

Digitized by Google

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 124—By Delegate Brady (Norfolk):

Whereas, When a resident of the Union Printers' Home vacates he is treated handsomely in the matter of railroad transportation, clothing and meals, but usually has no funds; therefore, be it

Resolved, That a resident member of the Union Printers' Home, upon vacating, or on six months' leave of absence, shall be entitled to the sum of $25, said amount to be refunded before beneficiary shall be entitled to readmission to the Home.

Committee reports unfavorably.

T. B. Brown,
H. B. Freeman,
John Cantwell,
Frank H. Seffing,
Eyre Damer,
Committee.

The report of the committee was adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON LAWS.

Consideration of the report of the committee on laws was resumed.

Proposition No. 21—By Delegate Bandlow (Cleveland German-American):

Add to section 87 of the general laws the following:

"Nor shall German composition in English offices be done at a lesser rate or longer hours than in vogue in offices under jurisdiction of the Typographia."

The committee recommends the following as a substitute:

Section 87. Work in foreign languages shall be at the scale rates of the particular union having jurisdiction. Provided, That in no case shall English composition be at a lesser rate than that of the typographical union. Nor shall foreign composition in English offices be done at a lesser rate or longer hours than is in vogue in offices under jurisdiction of such foreign language union.

The substitute of the committee was adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON LABEL ON TEXT-BOOKS.

To the Officers and Delegates of the International Typographical Union Convention:

Ladies and Gentlemen—Your committee on label on text-books begs to submit the following:

We have examined the International label committee's report, as published in the officers' reports.

The following suggestions were furnished us by Mr. Wright, president of Chicago Typographical Union No. 16, and we have carefully considered and discussed same, and believe them to be practicable if the subordinate unions, central labor bodies, state federations of labor and legislative committees will enlist their aid in helping us to secure the desired end. We believe the cost of text-books to be largely in excess of actual cost and a fair margin of profit, and the frequent changes in series and methods are also largely influenced by the desire for inordinate gain.

Your committee would respectfully suggest to the convention, for submission to local unions, a possible solution of this and the vexing question of union label school books, believing the following plan will alleviate, if not eradicate, the excess cost of text-books and the preponderance of non-union made books, in whole or in part:

1. That local typographical unions should advocate the passage of laws by individual states providing for the purchase or compilation of uniform text-books for such states. Title to copyright for such uniform text-books to be owned by the state.

2. Any responsible publisher whose plant shall be located in its entirety in such commonwealth, may, by application, receive the right to publish such books without payment of royalty to the state. The only restrictions shall be that the applicant for the right to publish such books shall be the employment of free labor, sanitary working conditions, and at least the standard hour and wage scales.

3. The state board of education, or other duly constituted authority, shall fix a standard of type, paper, binding and workmanship.

4. No restriction regarding the use of the typographical union or allied printing trades council label shall be recognized as invalidating the copyright, and the imprint of the publisher shall be imperative on such text-books.

We recommend that the secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union be instructed to hereafter have all twelve and eighteen point labels made of steel, and cut deep. Our reason for asking this is because the present labels of the smaller sizes are of such material as to practically render them useless after a few thousand impressions are made from same; and especially is this true when labels are used on the finer classes of work.

We also learn from Mr. Hill, a member of the International committee, that some trouble has been experienced on account of the inability to secure the proper reports from local unions in some sections of the country.

This label question is of great importance to us at the present time, and we would suggest or recommend that each delegate be instructed, upon his return home, to have a label committee appointed by his local, and that they immediately get into correspondence with Mr. McPhail, chairman of the committee on text-books. There is much to be accomplished by these local label committees, and they are also of valuable assistance to the text-book label committee, as through their assistance the text-book committee is enabled to secure valuable information as regards the text-book laws in the various states.

We are especially anxious that these committees lose no time around Boston and vicinity, as that is the center for text-books without the label.

We should have a label committee in every local union, and we recommend that the chairman of this committee keep after such local unions until this end has been accomplished. Respectfully submitted,

Digitized by Google

A. B. Moore, Chairman,
F. B. McCurdy, Sec'y,
Kenneth M. Forbes,
James A. Scanlon.

Secretary Bramwood expressed his willingness to try to follow the recommendations as to steel labels, but declared that it was impracticable.

The report of the committee was adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON SUBORDINATE UNIONS.

To the Officers and Delegates of the International Typographical Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee on subordinate unions submits the following report:

Proposition No. 100—By Delegate Klaus (St. Paul) (by request of No. 30):

Resolved, That the executive council be instructed to work out a feasible scheme of having all scales of subordinate unions within the jurisdiction of the International Typographical Union expire on a certain date. For example: All book and job scales to expire on the last day of December of each year; all newspaper scales to expire on the last day of June of each year, or both to expire jointly.

The committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 103—By Mr. Sterling (Boston):

Resolved, That the executive council be instructed to consider and report at the next session of the International Typographical Union on the advisability and feasibility of so arranging the duration of future book and job scale agreements that at some future date they may all terminate simultaneously.

The committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 121—By Delegate Nelis (Chicago):

Resolved, That the International Typographical Union insist that as part of all future contracts between this organization and the United Typothetæ and subordinate organizations thereof, the practice of establishing and maintaining schools for the purpose of teaching non-union and non-skilled persons the operation and mechanism of the various typesetting machines cease, and the schools now being conducted by them be discontinued.

The committee reports unfavorably.

Thomas G. Croft, Chairman,
M. M. Hearns,
James P. Cherry,
A. E. Brewer,
L. Senker.

The report of the committee was adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON LABEL.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

Ladies and Gentlemen—Your committee on label submits the following report:

Proposition No. 46—By Delegate West (Brockton):

Resolved, That it is the urgent request of the International Typographical Union that the allied printing trades councils of the United States and Canada insist that all theatrical, seashore, mountain and pleasure resort printing of every description bear the label of the allied printing trades council.

Committee reports unfavorably and offers the following substitute:

Section —. Subordinate unions shall create a standing label committee, whose duty it shall be to encourage by systematic campaign the use of the allied printing trades union label, and union printing labels where allied printing trades councils do not exist. Quarterly report shall be made to the International secretary-treasurer.

Delegate West (Brockton) opposed the report of the committee.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 47—By Delegate West (Brockton):

Resolved, That it is the sense of the International Typographical Union that it is the duty of all union printers to demand the label of the boot and shoe workers' union on all footwear purchased by them.

Also, That the box or carton containing the purchase must bear the label of the allied printing craft.

Committee reports unfavorably and offers the following substitute:

Section —. It is deemed to be the duty of all members of the International Typographical Union to give preference to union-made goods, whenever such articles can be obtained, in preference to non-union products. Subordinate unions shall provide such penalties as local conditions warrant.

Delegate West (Brockton) favored the adoption of his proposition.

Delegate Dirks (St. Louis) and Delegate Barnes (Chattanooga) favored the report.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Your committee has considered the extract from the report of President Lynch, entitled "The Label and Its Enemies," and respectfully reports that the committee has endeavored to cover the subject in its substitute for Proposition No. 46.

Proposition No. 135—By the label committee:

Resolved, That local unions are urged to use their influence to have public libraries in their jurisdiction use, as far as practicable, books bearing the label.

The committee reports favorably.

D. B. Barnes,
C. W. Habecker,
E. Alford,
J. S. Hollingsworth,
J. J. Dirks.

The report of the committee was adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON DELEGATES TO AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Toronto, Ont., August 17, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee on report of delegates to American Federation of Labor respectfully presents the following for your consideration:

Digitized by Google

After due consideration of their report, we heartily concur in their action, especially in regard to the printers' eight-hour movement. Your committee endorses the adoption of resolutions thanking the American Federation of Labor and President Gompers for their favorable action, which resulted in pledging the moral and financial support of the American Federation of Labor to the International Union in the fight for the shorter workday.

In the case of the International Union versus New Orleans central body, would recommend to endorse the report of the federation committee.

In accordance with the above recommendation, your committee respectfully submits the following resolution:

Whereas, This convention has gone down on record as standing for a universal eight-hour day on January 1, 1906; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the International Typographical Union, in convention assembled, tenders the American Federation of Labor and President Gompers its sincere and heartfelt thanks in proffering their moral and financial support to the shorter workday.

Respectfully submitted,

E. L. Kuhnholz,
John F. Finley,
T. J. Hanley,
Joseph M. Casey.

The report of the committee was adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.

Toronto, Ont., August 15, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee on miscellaneous business respectfully presents the following for your consideration:

Proposition No. 91—By Delegate Sherman (Denver):

Resolved, That the secretary-treasurer shall send a circular letter to the secretary of each local union, embodying the following extract from the International Typographical Union laws of 1905, page 58, section 76:

"All local unions must pass laws defining the grade and classes of work apprentices must be taught from year to year of their apprenticeship, with the aim in view that they may have the opportunity of acquiring a thorough knowledge of the printing trade."

Also the following from page 73, section 139, book of laws of 1905:

"It is the sense of the International Union that subordinate unions shall make every effort possible to secure the proper training and instruction of apprentices in offices under their jurisdiction, to the intent that they may become competent workmen."

Your committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 129—By Delegates Sullivan and Jordan (Nashville):

Whereas, The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will convene in Birmingham, Ala., in May, 1906; and,

Whereas, At its last session, held in Dallas, Texas, in 1902, the International Typographical Union presented a memorial in its efforts to unionize the Methodist Publishing House at Nashville, and same was defeated; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the International Typographical Union have a representative in attendance at the next conference and urge our claims for recognition.

The committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 130—By Delegate Burlington (St. Joseph):

Whereas, The present and future welfare of the International Typographical Union and its subordinate bodies will be best and most materially benefited in the better instruction and technical education of individual members and apprentices; and,

Whereas, Past experience has shown such work must be done wholly by the International Typographical Union and local unions; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the executive council of the International Typographical Union be and is hereby instructed to submit to the next annual convention of the International Typographical Union such recommendations and detailed plans as may seem most practicable in the work of establishing a better and still more efficient workmanship in the International Typographical Union membership;

Resolved, That the subordinate unions of the International Typographical Union be encouraged, assisted and urged to establish technical libraries, and otherwise work for a still more efficient workmanship among their members and apprentices.

The committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 132—By Delegate Tolan (New York):

To the President and Members of the International Typographical Union:

Gentlemen—It is a well-established fact that the members of our craft are not technically educated up to what they should be in matters relating to the printing business, and gradually outsiders are making strong inroads into the trade, thus depriving the printer of the opportunity he rightly deserves.

How many printers of today know the history of the art from its infancy? How many can tell how type, stereotype, electrotype, photo-engravings, paper, etc., are made? Not one out of a hundred.

Again we have the printer whose knowledge ends in setting straight matter or a plain reprint "ad" or "job." He would willingly devote some of his spare time in learning something more in this line were the opportunity placed in his way. He can not get it where he works, as his employers keep him engaged on just such matter as he has the knowledge of.

In my experience as a close student of the art of printing, I have constantly come in contact with men who have admitted that they were very derelict in matters which they were expected to know, and could not execute a piece of work which was given to them.

Every printer certainly seeks a position in life where he can better himself financially, and the educated man gets the first.

It is a matter of fact that today there are technical schools throughout the country devoted to various branches of our trade, such as "ad-writers," estimating on work, photo-engraving, and various other branches which are affiliated with printing. The "graduates" of these schools are today filling the positions which rightly belong to the members of the union.

Why not educate them? In good faith I can say that now is the time to consider this matter thoroughly.

In view of these conditions, I desire to offer to your honorable body a few suggestions which I have had in mind for a number of years, and which, I believe, will have a tendency to overcome these wrongs.

Digitized by Google

I would suggest that some means be devised at this convention by which at least four of our members—who are thoroughly familiar with every detail—be elected or appointed as lecturers or instructors; one to cover each section of the country. The duties of these instructors would be to prepare a number of lectures with illustrations for the stereopticon, covering every detail from the invention of printing down to the present time. Each lecture could be given in turn, gradually educating the printer up to date. Illustrations could be shown as to the proper display of "ads," "jobs," etc.; the harmony of colors; spacing, margins, and any number of other details. Designing and estimating on all classes of printing would be another valuable feature. In fact, there seems to be no end to the good which could be derived in this way.

I earnestly believe that every local union throughout the country would heartily co-operate with an innovation of this kind, thus bearing the greater portion of the expense connected with it.

In conversation with a number of our members upon this subject, I have been convinced that it is no "idle dream"—but something which would be of tenfold benefit to all seeking a better knowledge of "the art preservative of arts."

The good printer works his way up; he is promoted ahead of the other fellow simply because he has had the opportunity of learning the things which his less fortunate friend did not have the opportunity of doing.

Why not place us all on a more equal basis, so that when work is "given out" John can "deliver the goods" just as well as Bill?

Gentlemen, I trust you will give this suggestion your earnest consideration. Fraternally yours,

CHARLES T. PEYTON.

New York, July 26, 1905.

Committee reports unfavorably, the spirit being covered by Proposition No. 130.

The report of the committee was adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON ORGANIZATION.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—Your committee on organization respectfully presents the following for your consideration:

Proposition No. 90—By Delegate O'Connor (Louisville):

Whereas, The International Typographical Union is at present conducting an aggressive organizing campaign in Louisville and this campaign is meeting with considerable success, holding forth promise of complete returns within a very short time, thus placing Louisville again in the ranks of the thoroughly organized cities; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the International president be instructed to continue the work in Louisville until such time as in his judgment No. 10 is again in control or further effort is unnecessary.

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 99—By St. Louis delegation:

Whereas, The Inland Type Foundry has locked out members of St. Louis Typographical Union No. 8 by employing a non-union man, and has refused to adjust the matter; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the attention of members of this organization is hereby directed to this fact; and be it further

Resolved, That the American Federation of Labor is requested to take cognizance thereof.

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 122—By Delegate Bandlow (Cleveland German-American):

Resolved, That the International president, or a representative chosen by him from the executive council, if he is unable to attend, be instructed to proceed to Philadelphia with a view of unionizing the Philadelphia Inquirer, and, failing to make terms, effort be made without delay to place the Philadelphia Inquirer upon the unfair list of the American Federation of Labor.

Committee recommends that this proposition be referred to the executive council.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Your committee on organization, after reviewing the reports of the several organizers and their work during the past year, desires to congratulate the International Typographical Union upon the splendid condition of this branch of work. Printed reports from President Lynch and the various organizers, and oral statements from a number of organizers who appeared before your committee, show that the work of organization throughout the jurisdiction of the International Typographical Union has been thoroughly and systematically prosecuted, and that the territories represented by the various organizers are in splendid condition, except in a few localities. The reports show that a large number of scale contracts have been referred to them, and successfully negotiated, and many differences between employers and employes have been amicably adjusted.

Considering the work of organization as a whole, during the past year, we, your committee, believe that thousands of dollars in strike benefits have been saved to the International Typographical Union through the good work of its organizers. And further recognizing the great importance of this work just prior to the enforcement of the eight-hour workday, we would recommend that the executive council be authorized to further the work of organization to its fullest extent commensurate with the funds at its disposal.

Your committee would also recommend and insist that all subordinate unions use their best endeavors to organize their immediate surrounding territory.

For further information, your organization committee directs the attention of the membership to the reports of the president, vice-president and organizers previously submitted in printed form.

Respectfully submitted,

D. W. GREEN, Chairman,
H. T. WOLFE,
J. C. AIDE,
RAY W. BAKER,
VICTOR TARDIF.

The report of the committee was adopted as a whole.

Chairman Stevenson, of the arrangements committee, at this time invited the ladies to visit Hanlan's Point in the evening.

Digitized by Google

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON ALLIED TRADES RELATIONS.

TORONTO, ONT., August 18, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee on allied trades relations respectfully presents the following for your consideration:

1. That the report of the president captioned "Our Affiliated Unions and the Joint Agreement" be approved.
2. That the same report, under the head "Exhibit C," and captioned "Agreement, etc., amended January 14, 1905," which contains the rules governing the joint conference board, the allied printing trades councils, the allied union label, as well as the itemized decisions of the joint conference of the year now closed, be approved.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 94—By Delegate Damer (Mobile):

Amend section 12 of the allied trades agreement so as to read as follows:

Section 12. In localities where there are unions chartered by two or more of the organizations parties to this agreement, a local allied printing trades council may be formed by common agreement of the several organizations.

Committee reported unfavorably.

Delegate Damer asked permission to withdraw the proposition. Permission was granted.

Proposition No. 120—By Delegate Donnell (Cincinnati):

Resolved, That the agreement now existing between the International Typographical Union and the allied trades be abrogated.

In view of previous recommendations by your committee, this proposition is reported unfavorably.

Delegate Donnell (Cincinnati) spoke in favor of the resolution and against the report, and called attention to the deplorable situation in Cincinnati.

Delegate James (Toronto) urged a possible change in the agreement—not abrogation.

Delegate Henderson (Rochester) spoke against the proposition.

Delegate Tolan (New York) offered the following substitute:

That the executive council make no agreement with the allied trades that will conflict with the eight-hour law on January 1, 1906.

Delegate Nock (Birmingham) spoke in favor of the substitute.

Delegates Fennessy (Los Angeles), Steffen (Cleveland), White (San Francisco), Esty (Paterson), Everett (Memphis), McInerny (Chicago mailers), McCahill (Columbus), Green (Atlanta), Senker (Scranton), Sherman (Denver) and McLogan (Detroit) opposed the original resolution and favored the committee report.

Delegates Brady (Roanoke), Coffey (Lincoln) and Barnes (Chattanooga) favored the proposition.

After an explanation by President Lynch, Delegate Tolan, by unanimous consent, withdrew his substitute.

The adverse report of the committee was adopted.

Your committee fully appreciates the advantages which have accrued from this phase of the work of the affiliated organizations, and, with the more clearly defined powers of allied printing trades councils embodied in the new agreement as amended January 14, 1905, we look to the future for enhanced co-operative work and larger results.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE W. SOVERINO, Chairman,
GEORGE E. SHAFFER, Secretary,
J. T. HARRIS.

The report of the committee was adopted.

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER RELATIONS BETWEEN THE INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION AND THE COMMERCIAL TELEGRAPHERS' UNION.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—Your special committee appointed to consider the relations that shall exist between the International Typographical Union and the Commercial Telegraphers' Union beg leave to report as follows:

We find that the fiftieth session, held in St. Louis last year, adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that the International Typographical Union and the press telegraphers have certain mutual interests which could be advanced by devising some plan of co-operation.

Resolved, That as soon as practicable after the election of delegates to the next International Typographical Union convention the president is hereby instructed to appoint a committee of five, said committee to meet at least three days prior to the above-named convention, for the purpose of considering all propositions and suggestions submitted by either subordinate unions or representatives of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, looking to a closer community of interests of the International Typographical Union and the press telegraphers.

Resolved, That the president be and he is hereby empowered in the interim to confer and co-operate with the president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union where our interests can be conserved.

Pursuant to the instruction contained in the resolutions quoted, President Lynch appointed the undersigned as the committee, and the members of this committee met in Toronto on Thursday, August 10. No propositions were submitted by subordinate unions. President Lynch informed your committee that occasion did not arise during the past year for co-operation with the president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union for the conservation of our interests.

There appeared before your committee S. J. Small, president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, and A. L. Boyer, chairman of the general executive board. The subject of an agreement defining the relations that should exist was carefully gone into by these gentlemen and your committee, and the representatives of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union finally submitted two brief propositions. Later these representatives withdrew these propositions and submitted the following communication:

Digitized by Google

TORONTO, ONT., August 12, 1905.

Mr. T. F. Kane, Chairman, and Members of International Typographical Union Committee on Conference with Commercial Telegraphers:

GENTLEMEN—After our several conferences with your committee, and familiarizing ourselves with the laws governing unions affiliated with the International Typographical Union, we believe that our objects can be more easily attained through the joint conference board, to which several of the printing trades are now attached.

We will therefore withdraw our previous proposition seeking a working agreement between the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America and the International Typographical Union, and instead ask admission to the joint conference board, where we would enjoy the advantages of co-operation, not only with the International Typographical Union, but also with the several other printing trades organizations represented in the joint conference board.

We desire to express through you the appreciation of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America for the courtesies shown by the International Typographical Union in appointing your committee and making these negotiations possible.

We also desire to personally thank the committee for the cordial manner in which we have been received and assisted in the work, which we firmly believe will result in great and lasting benefits to the two unions which we have the honor to represent. Fraternally yours,

S. J. SMALL, President,
A. L. BOYER, Chairman
General Executive Board.

Accompanying the foregoing was the following letter, containing, as will be observed, a request that your committee recommend that the present convention of the International Typographical Union endorse the proposed action of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union in requesting representation in the joint conference board provided in the agreement between the five international unions of the printing trade:

TORONTO, ONT., August 12, 1905.

Mr. T. F. Kane, Chairman, and Members of International Typographical Union Committee on Conference with Commercial Telegraphers:

GENTLEMEN—The last convention of the International Typographical Union unanimously declared that it was the sense of that body that the printers and press telegraphers have certain mutual interests which could be advanced by some plan of co-operation.

During the past year this belief has become more firmly established in the ranks of both the International Typographical Union and the Commercial Telegraphers' Union.

In view of the expressed desire of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union for representation in the joint conference board of the International Typographical Union and affiliated bodies, we respectfully request that your committee recommend that the present convention of the International Typographical Union endorse the proposed action of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union in making application for representation in the said joint conference board. Fraternally yours,

S. J. SMALL, President,
A. L. BOYER, Chairman
General Executive Board.

Your committee does not believe that this convention should endorse this request, or in any way instruct the representatives of the International Typographical Union on the joint conference board. It is the opinion of the committee that the petition for representation on the joint conference board which the Commercial Telegraphers' Union will submit to the board should be considered by that board at the time the petition is received, and that the full board should decide the question on its merits and without instructions from the unions that its members represent.

While the action of the representatives of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union in withdrawing all propositions they submitted to your committee practically takes the question out of the committee's hands and out of the hands of this convention, your committee is of the opinion that the convention should go on record at this time as to relations of the nature suggested by the Commercial Telegraphers' Union. We realize that, as wage earners, we owe support and sympathy to all trade unions, but we believe that this support and sympathy can be best expressed through the American Federation of Labor, with which the International Typographical Union is affiliated. We believe that the field of the International Typographical Union should be confined to the departments in printing offices over which it has jurisdiction, and we do not consider that the interests of the International Typographical Union or the Commercial Telegraphers' Union would be advanced by any hard and fast agreement. The past history of such alliances is not sufficient warrant for the contracting of new agreements, or for the extension of the jurisdiction of the International Typographical Union so as to cover new fields. The best results can, in the opinion of your committee, be achieved by the various unions working in their respective trades, and when joint action is necessary the consideration of such action by the unions interested, and as applied to the particular difference then under consideration.

President Lynch and Secretary Bramwood also appeared before your committee, and your committee desires to return to these officials thanks for valuable information imparted to the committee, and which aided it greatly in reaching a conclusion. Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS F. KANE,
EMMETT WHEALAN,
WILLIAM E. ORSER,
A. H. BLAIN,
CHARLES J. BUEHLER.

Moved by Delegate Buehler (Milwaukee) that President Small, of the Commercial Telegraphers, be given the floor for ten minutes. Carried.

Mr. Small addressed the convention, and urged that the telegraphers be admitted to the joint conference board.

The report of the committee was adopted as a whole.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON ARBITRATION

TORONTO, ONT., August 18, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee on arbitration respectfully presents the following for your consideration:

At the present time there are in effect 145 arbitration agreements in seventy-five cities, seven of which have been negotiated since the St. Louis convention, complete details of which will be found by reference to that portion of President Lynch's report entitled "Arbitration Agreements in Force."

Digitized by Google

Attention is called to that part of Commissioner Driscoll's address to the convention wherein he suggests that the executive council be authorized to meet with the special standing committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association during the coming year, to formulate an agreement to be submitted to both organizations for their approval at their succeeding conventions.

In this connection we desire to call attention to President Lynch's report on this subject, given under the head of "Arbitration."

We assert that we believe in arbitration; but arbitration is only possible where the parties in dispute approach the question in a fair and conciliatory manner, and hereby recommend the convention to instruct the executive council along the lines suggested by President Lynch in his report.

The committee further recommends that the action of the executive council in the case of the Kansas City mailers, which will be found in the officers' reports, be endorsed.

We review with pleasure the progress which has been made in the cause of arbitration by our representatives, and that it has been demonstrated that this procedure is an important factor in the promulgation of a better feeling between employer and employe. Respectfully submitted,

James A. Hartman, Chairman,
D. C. Lovett, jr., Secretary,
James P. Croft,
J. W. Mullen,
W. B. Parsell.

The report of the committee was adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON RESOLUTIONS

Toronto, Ont., August 17, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee on resolutions respectfully presents the following for your consideration:

Proposition No. 49—By Delegate Crosman (Boston):

Whereas, The plank on land monopoly in the platform of the American Federation of Labor declares that occupancy and use should be the only title to land; and,

Whereas, Such an arrangement would be a denial of equality in the right of all persons to the use of the earth;

Resolved, That the delegates from the International Typographical Union to the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor be instructed to propose and support the following change in Plank 10 of the platform of the American Federation of Labor: "The abolition of the monopoly system of land holding by taxing all land according to its value."

Submitted without recommendation.

Delegate Crosman (Boston) spoke in favor of his proposition.

Delegate Condon (Des Moines) moved that it be laid on the table. The motion was lost.

Delegate Anderson (Macon) moved as a substitute to refer the proposition to the Federation delegates.

The substitute of Delegate Anderson was adopted.

Proposition No. 98—By Delegate Seffing (Cleveland):

Resolved, That the name of A. T. Proctor, late of Cleveland, be placed upon the list of deceased members.

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 60—By Delegate Condon (Des Moines):

Whereas, The prosperity of the International Typographical Union is due in no small measure to the loyalty and unswerving fidelity to union principles of the many members now beyond the meridian of life; therefore, be it

Resolved, That foremen should use judicious care in the employment of help, to the end that no injustice be done through prejudice on account of an age limit; keeping in mind that the scale of the typographical union always represents the minimum rate of wages.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

The convention took up Proposition No. 61, but adjourned in the midst of discussion.

Chairman Draper, of the committee on appeals, announced that he was ready to report on the Philadelphia case immediately after the disposal of Proposition No. 61.

The convention adjourned to 7:30 P. M.

EVENING SESSION.

Labor Temple, Toronto, Canada,
Friday, August 18, 1905.

President Lynch called the convention to order at 7:45 o'clock.

Delegate Seaman (Cincinnati) moved to dispense with roll call.

The motion was lost by a vote of 82 to 62.

The roll call showed the following delegates in attendance:

Alberts, C. H.,
Alberts, O. E.,
Alford, Eli,
Alford, J. R.,
Alter,
Ames,
Anderson,
Austin,
Baker,
Ball, Edward,
Bandlow,
Barnes,
Barnum,
Bastian,
Bennetto,
Berger,
Beyer,
Birkedahl,
Biwer,
Blain,
Brady,
Brewer,
Brown,
Bryan,
Buehler,
Bulcock,
Burlington,
Cahill,
Cantwell,
Carlin, W. S.,
Carpenter, W. P.,
Casey,
Cherry,
Clark,
Coffey,
Colburne,
Collier,
Comerford,
Condon,
Conway,
Corcoran,
Crammond,
Creager,
Croft, J. P.,

Digitized by Google

Croft, T. G.,
Cronin,
Crosman,
Crowe,
Crowley,
Damer,
Davy, W. W.,
Dawson,
Dechend,
DeGour,
Dirks,
Donnell,
Draper,
Dwyer,
Eby,
Esty,
Everett,
Fahey,
Faries,
Feckey,
Fennessy,
Ferguson,
Finley,
Flaherty,
Forbes,
Frazier,
Freeman, H. R.,
Freeman, J. F.,
Garrison,
Geng,
Gibbons,
Gillard,
Gleason,
Godkin,
Golds,
Gray, Ida,
Gray, M. R.,
Green,
Gude,
Habecker,
Hanley,
Hartman,
Hartnett,
Hearns,
Henderson, H. D.,
Henderson, U. T.,
Hertenstein,
Hinman,
Holderby,
Hollingsworth,
Holm,
Hughes,
Irwin,
James, W. R.,
Johndrew,
Johnson, J. M.,
Johnson, R. M.,
Johnson, Horace,
Jordan,
Kane,
Kay,
Kennedy, E. F.,
Kennedy, J. P.,
Kinner,
Kipp,
Klein,
Klaus,
Knapp,
Kreft,
Kuhnholz,
Kupke,
Larson,
Leader,
Lee,
Leigh, J. E.,
Lovett,
Lucas,
Lyon,
Marcy,
Markey,
Marshall, David,
Marshall, W. A.,
Martin, Albert,
Maydwell,
Mayer,
McCahill,
McCracken,
McCullagh,
McCurdy,
McInerney,
McKee,
McKibbin,
McLogan,
Meade,
Millard,
Miller, Hugo,
Moore, A. B.,
Moore, R. P.,
Moore, W. J.,
Morehouse,
Morse,
Mullen,
Mulvihill,
Neary,
Needham,
Neilan,
Nelis,
Nihill,
Nock,
O'Brien, J. M.,
O'Brien, T. J.,
O'Connor,
O'Donnell,
Orser,
O'Sullivan,
Parker,
Parsell,
Plambeck,
Porter,
Purnett,
Quigley,
Quirk,
Reilly,
Rhoades, J. F.,
Rhodes, W. H.,
Ripley, R. L.,
Ripley, W. S.,
Robbins,
Robinson, B. C.,
Robinson, W. J.,
Ryan,
Saltus,
Sandow,
Sayers,
Scanlon,
Schleif,
Seaman,
Seffing,
Senker,
Shaffer,
Shepard,
Sherer,
Sherman,
Shrope,
Shultz, J. M.,
Smith, H. W.,
Snyder,
Soverino,
Spead,
Steele,
Steffen,
Stubbs,
Sullivan, George,
Sullivan, Jerry,
Sutch,
Tardif,
Thompson,
Throssell,
Tolan,
Vander Perel,
Vauthier,
Watters,
West,
Whealan,
White,
Whitley,
Wilcox,
Witchall,
Wolfe,
Woody,
Wright.

The convention proceeded to consider the report of the committee on resolutions.

REPORT OF RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE.

TORONTO, ONT., August 16, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee on resolutions respectfully presents the following for your consideration:

Proposition No. 61—By Delegate Berger (Milwaukee Newspaper Writers):

Whereas, Experience has proven that the militia can be used by capitalists as an engine of destruction in the subjugation of the working people, workmen have been arrayed thus against workmen, and ordered to shoot down their comrades; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the fifty-first annual convention of the International Typographical Union that we declare our intention, and hereby instruct all affiliated bodies to hold absolutely aloof from all connection with the militia until the militia system in vogue in Switzerland, or a similar system, is adopted in the United States.

The committee reports unfavorably.

Delegates Berger (Milwaukee Newspaper Writers), Wright (Ashtabula) and Bandlow (Cleveland German-American) favored the proposition, and Delegates Green (Atlanta) and Sherman (Denver) spoke in opposition.

The main question was ordered, and the committee's adverse report was concurred in by a vote of 137 to 29.

Delegates Bandlow (Cleveland German-American), Biwer (St. Louis German-American), Henderson (Rochester), Crosman (Boston) and Buehler (Milwaukee) asked to be recorded as voting against the report of the committee, and it was so ordered.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON APPEALS.

The committee on appeals submitted the following report:

TORONTO, August 18, 1905.

To the Officers and Delegates of the Fifty-First Annual Convention:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—Your committee on appeals herewith submits its report on the undermentioned proposition submitted to it by the convention:

Proposition No. 64—By the Philadelphia delegation:

Whereas, Philadelphia Typographical Union No. 2 has for over fifteen months been engaged in a life-and-death struggle with the Philadelphia Inquirer; and

Whereas, The success of the eight-hour day in a competitive district comprising over 60 per cent of the total membership of the International Typographical Union is dependent, to a great degree, on maintaining the integrity of Philadelphia Typographical Union No. 2, which can be accomplished only by sustaining the fight which Philadelphia Union is now carrying on.

Resolved, By the International Typographical Union, in fifty-first annual convention assembled, That we emphatically endorse the fight now being waged by Philadelphia Typographical Union No. 2 against the Philadelphia Inquirer; and be it further

Resolved, That the executive council be and the same is hereby instructed to place at the disposal of Philadelphia Union, immediately after return to headquarters, the sum of $7,800, this sum being due Philadelphia Union under a fair and equitable construction of both the Washington and St. Louis agreements between the executive council and Philadelphia Union, provided that Philadelphia Union out of this sum shall reimburse those of its sister unions who have contributed financial support; and be it further

Digitized by Google

Resolved, That the executive council be and the same is hereby instructed to continue financial assistance to Philadelphia at the rate of $200 per week until the Inquirer fight is won or until the next convention; Provided, That Philadelphia Union contribute at least an equal amount, and that the fight be conducted under the supervision and direction of the executive council, itemized vouchers being furnished that body by the local union for all moneys expended, and the work to be in charge of an International representative to be selected under the terms of the Washington agreement; and be it further

Resolved, That the executive council be and the same is hereby instructed, in case the eight-hour fight or any other circumstances drain the International Typographical Union treasury to such an extent as to endanger the continuation of the Philadelphia campaign or the regular work of organization, to submit to a vote of the referendum a proposition for an extra assessment in such amount and for such length of time as may be deemed necessary by the executive council to meet the contingency.

The committee heard the Philadelphia delegation, who presented their side of the case at length by their spokesman, Delegate Kreft. In addition we had the printed statement, entitled "The Philadelphia Situation," which the convention has before it.

Messrs. James M. Lynch, J. W. Bramwood and Hugo Miller, the executive council, were summoned, and presented the case from their standpoint. Messrs. Lynch and Bramwood recited a mass of testimony, oral and written, maintaining that they had carried out their instructions according to their interpretation of International Typographical Union laws.

Your committee, after carefully considering the whole situation, recommends the following:

1. That the appeal be dismissed and the previous actions of the executive council be sustained.

2. Resolved, That the fifty-first annual convention of the International Typographical Union, now assembled, emphatically endorse the fight now being waged by Philadelphia Typographical Union No. 2 against the Philadelphia Inquirer.

3. That this convention recommends to the executive council that it appropriate $250 per week for the purpose of thoroughly organizing Philadelphia, the local union to appropriate a like amount per week, not more than $250 per week to be used in the Inquirer contest, until the Inquirer fight is won; the balance to be expended in an effort to unionize the large number of non-union and open book and job offices at present existing in Philadelphia, said appropriation to continue at the discretion of the executive council, as provided in our laws. Respectfully submitted,

P. M. Draper, Chairman,
H. B. Ames, Secretary,
Jos. C. Larson,
W. H. Jordan,
E. F. Kennedy.

Chairman Draper, of the appeals committee, gave a brief synopsis of the work of the committee, and read the following stipulation:

Toronto, August 18, 1905.

Agreement between executive council, International Typographical Union, and the Philadelphia delegation:

The Philadelphia delegation agrees to the proposition that the organization work and fight is in charge of the executive council, and that Philadelphia Typographical Union No. 2 will accept and obey suggestions and orders issued by the council.

John Meade,
Ernst Kreft,
W. W. Faries.

Delegate Draper then moved the adoption of the report.

The question being on concurrence in the report of the committee, it was adopted unanimously by a rising vote.

Delegate Kreft (Philadelphia) desired to thank the committee for its fair and impartial report, and stated that the Philadelphia delegation stands ready to meet the executive council and prepare for the organization work in Philadelphia. He said that city will be ready for the eight-hour day. He referred to the typothetæ attempt to make a nine-hour contract and enforce the open shop, when the union refused by unanimous vote to agree to any such proposition. He again expressed sincere gratification, on behalf of the delegates and the Philadelphia Union, for the impartial report of the committee and the unanimous endorsement of that report by the convention.

Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood briefly outlined the position of the executive council on the Philadelphia situation, and thanked the appeals committee for its fairness and impartiality. He asserted that a more general observance of and respect for the laws of the organization and the obligation taken by members, would obviate a repetition of some of the incidents of this convention.

The convention then resumed consideration of the report of the committee on resolutions.

REPORT OF RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE.

Proposition No. 62—By Delegate Berger (Milwaukee Newspaper Writers):

Whereas, Labor creates all values or makes them useful and accessible to mankind, but the present economic system is such that it is impossible for the great mass of wageworkers to save up a sufficient amount of money or property to secure them against want and misery, and the indignities of capitalistic charity in their old age; and

Whereas, It is the prime object of the trade union movement to improve and elevate the standard of living of the working class everywhere and in every way possible; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the executive board of the International Typographical Union be instructed to use its best efforts to induce the congress of the United States to pass a bill which will secure to every wageworker in the United States who has earned no more than $1,000 average wage per year, a pension of not less than $12 per month at the age of sixty, and thereafter for the rest of his or her natural life; Provided, however, That such wageworker is a citizen of the United States and has lived in this country for at least twenty-one years continuously at the time when the application is made.

Digitized by Google

The committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 63—By Delegate Berger (Milwaukee Newspaper Writers):

Whereas, No matter how manifold are the tasks of trade unionism, its main purpose must be the betterment of the wages and of working conditions, and, in order to accomplish this aim, every trade union must therefore try to weld together all the available fellow workmen into the organization; and

Whereas, It is well known by dire experience that two trade unions of the same craft that oppose each other are worse than none, and especially the experiment of the now defunct Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance has clearly proven that such dual organizations lead to organized scabbery and to the poisoning of the labor movement; and

Whereas, It is clear to every thinking workingman that the trade union movement must work out its own salvation, and must bring about such reforms in its tactics, methods and organization as are made necessary by the progress of the time, and are the result of the understanding of the rank and file, and that especially the question of organization by industrial groups must be solved by the trade unions themselves, and can not be solved for them by outsiders; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we consider the recent formation of the so-called Industrial Workers of the World, formed by outsiders under the pretext of "industrialism," as a slightly disguised effort to revive the treacherous and scabby Socialist Trades and Labor Alliance, and as an hostile act against bona fide trade unions, calculated to split up and ruin the forces of labor; furthermore, be it

Resolved, That the delegates of the fifty-first annual convention of the International Typographical Union hereby warn all the trade unions affiliated with our body and every honest union man in the country that the giving of any help, aid or comfort to the so-called "Industrial Workers of the World" means giving help, aid or comfort to the enemies of organized labor, and whether done with good intention or not, can only result in great damage to the general labor movement of America.

The proposition was withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Proposition No. 101—By Delegate McLogan (Detroit):

Whereas, The imposition upon travelers by transportation companies of requiring so-called contracts upon passage tickets to be signed by the original purchaser, and the placing upon such tickets of the description of such purchaser for the purpose of preventing the transfer of such tickets to any other person, is causing the loss of many millions of dollars yearly to the traveling public and a like gain of millions of dollars in unearned profits to these corporations, from the forfeiture to them of such unused tickets; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the imposition and outrage of these practices has become a nuisance that should no longer be tolerated by the people, and the time is now ripe for a move to throw off this burden of graft and oppression by the enactment of national laws.

Resolved, That the International Typographical Union, in convention assembled, hereby declares in favor of an act by the United States congress, and by the Canadian parliament, to make all railroad and steamboat passage tickets good to bearer, and respectfully requests all labor organizations and all other good citizens of the United States and of Canada to join with us in petitions to our lawmakers to wipe out by appropriate legislation this infamous system of robbery.

The committee reports unfavorably.

Delegates McLogan (Detroit), Kreft (Philadelphia) and Johnson (Washington) favored the proposition.

Delegate Nock (Birmingham) supported the report of the committee.

The report of the committee was non-concurred in and the proposition was adopted.

Proposition No. 118—By Delegate Austin (Multnomah):

Whereas, The eight-hour day is the paramount issue before the working people of the United States and Canada at the present time; and

Whereas, The time is approaching when all union men of this continent will have to align themselves, through their respective international unions, in support of the eight-hour workday; and

Whereas, The Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America will, in the immediate future, ask the several press associations employing press telegraphers on newspapers to grant to said press telegraphers an eight-hour workday; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this International Typographical Union, in convention assembled at Toronto, Ontario, heartily endorses the efforts of our fellow workers, the press telegraphers, to secure a shorter workday; and further

Resolved, That we, the delegates to this convention, pledge ourselves individually to support, morally and otherwise, the press telegraphers in their stand for the eight-hour day.

The committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 125—By Delegate Gray (Aurora):

Whereas, Experience has demonstrated that the woman's auxiliary is a helpful adjunct to the International Typographical Union; and

Whereas, The officers and members of some of the local unions have discouraged the organization of woman's auxiliaries; therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the International Typographical Union that officers and members of all local unions should aid and encourage the organization of woman's auxiliaries.

The committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 126—By Delegate Hollingsworth (Jacksonville):

Whereas, Charles Allan was duly elected a delegate to this convention in accordance with the laws of the International Typographical Union; and

Whereas, Charles Allan would have attended this convention had it not been that an all-wise Providence willed otherwise, he having died only a few days after his election as a delegate to this convention; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the name of Charles Allan be placed upon the roster of deceased members of the International Typographical Union, and the sympathies of this convention be extended to his bereaved family.

The committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Digitized by Google

Proposition No. 128—By Delegate Aide (Kansas City):

Resolved, That the name of John C. Ivers, of Kansas City Union No. 80, be transferred from the list of permanent members to that of deceased members.

The committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

The following was offered as an addition to the committee's report and adopted unanimously:

Proposition No. 136—By Delegate Davy (Indianapolis):

Resolved, That the name of John Sexton, of Indianapolis Typographical Union No. 1, be transferred from the list of permanent members to that of deceased members.

T. T. Nock,
J. H. J. Black,
William Burlington,
J. A. O'Connor,
G. W. Schleif,
Committee on Resolutions.

The report of the committee on resolutions was then adopted as a whole.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP AND CONTROL OF TELEGRAPH

To the Officers and Members of the Fifty-First Convention of the International Typographical Union of North America:

Ladies and Gentlemen—Your committee on government ownership and control of the telegraph begs leave to report as follows:

During the past year little progress has been made for this measure.

During the recent session of congress the business before the senate and house committees was so voluminous with appropriations and other bills that, your committee is informed, but little consideration was paid to the measure, which was then in the hands of another committee. Your committee was also informed that the forthcoming session of congress is looked forward to with brighter hopes for progress, for the reason that government and municipal ownership sentiment is developing and making such rapid gains that many converts are rushing to the standard of government ownership of all public utilities.

We recommend that the executive council confer with the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, and that they co-operate with them so that a careful consideration could or would be paid to our appeals for the passage of this valuable measure.

We recommend that our delegates to the next convention of the American Federation of Labor be instructed to request of that body that governmental ownership and control of the telegraph be made a preferred measure; that the legislative committee be directed to co-operate with the International Typographical Union committee stationed in Washington, in pushing the work among the membership and the committees of both houses of congress, and that all organizations represented in the federation be requested to take the necessary steps toward putting into practical effect the measure we have been striving for for years. Respectfully submitted,

Freeman M. Saltus, Chairman,
William E. Purnett, Secretary,
L. A. Gude,
D. J. McKibbin,
John J. Dwyer.

The report of the committee was adopted.

The convention then resumed consideration of report of committee on laws.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON LAWS.

Proposition No. 51—By Delegate Blain (Seattle):

Amend section 41, general laws, by inserting in the fourth line, after the word "applies":

"Unions not having a local defense fund equal to $10 per capita shall immediately establish such fund, which must be provided at a rate of not less than $1 per annum."

Strike out standing resolution No. 8, page 78.

Committee reports unfavorably.

Withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Proposition No. 52—By Mr. Goodkey (Washington, D. C.):

Amend section 59 of the general laws to read as follows:

WITHDRAWAL CARD.

Section 59. Members in good standing who cease to work at the business, or remove from the jurisdiction of a subordinate union, shall be entitled to the withdrawal card issued by this union, which exempts them from the payment of all dues, and deprives them of all offices and benefits whatsoever.

Section 60. The withdrawal card shall contain on its obverse side the following words:

International Typographical Union
.....19....

This certifies that ..... the holder hereof, is at this day and date a member in good standing of.....Typographical Union No..... of the.....of.....and is granted this Honorable Withdrawal Card, which exempts him (her) from all dues or taxes whatsoever, and acquits him (her) of all rights to benefits of any kind whatsoever in said organization; and he (she) is required to deposit same with the proper officer before seeking work under the jurisdiction of any subordinate union; and he (she) promises not to violate any trade requirement of the said International Typographical Union, or its subordinate bodies, while holding this card.

Witness our hands and the seal of the union, the day and year first above written.

.....President.
.....Secretary.
Countersigned.....Sec.-Treas. I. T. U.

The reverse of the card shall contain the following, which must be subscribed to when the holder deposits same for the purpose of resuming active membership:

I hereby affirm, on my honor as a man (woman), that since receiving this card I have not been guilty of violating any regulation of the International Typographical Union, or any union subordinate thereto; and this declaration is made with the full knowledge that any willful misrepresentation renders me liable to discipline.

.....(Signature)

Digitized by Google

The withdrawal card issued by trade district unions shall be similar to the above, with such changes and additions as may be necessary.

Section 61. Immediately on returning to the business or coming within the jurisdiction of a subordinate union the holder of a withdrawal card shall deposit the same, subject to the approval of the subordinate union issuing it, and shall be placed on the active list.

Section 62. A member of a subordinate union working regularly at the business can not demand the right of withdrawing from the union on the plea of economizing expenses or of inability to pay his (her) dues; and the union, in such a case, is justified in refusing a card.

The committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 53—By Delegate Sullivan (Cincinnati):

Amend the general laws by adding the following:

Section 94. Any printer who has maintained a continuous membership in the International Typographical Union for thirty years or more, and who, by reason of old age, illness or other circumstances beyond his control, is rendered incapable of earning a livelihood, shall, upon satisfactory proofs of such total disability, have the option either of entrance to the Union Printers' Home or of receiving a sum per month equivalent to the per capita cost of maintenance of members at the said Home, subject to all conditions governing entrance to said Home of ordinary cases, such amount so to be paid to be computed monthly. Nothing in the foregoing part of this section is to be so construed as to limit the entrance of printers to said Home who have maintained a membership in the International Typographical Union for a lesser number of years, the object being to set the stamp of approval on his or her effort for continuous membership.

Committee reports unfavorably.

Withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Proposition No. 54—By Delegate Sullivan (Cincinnati):

Amend article v, "Admission of Inmates," of the by-laws of Union Printers' Home, by adding the following:

Section 3. Any member suffering from an incurable disease, and by such disease rendered incapable of earning a livelihood, and whose application for admission has been denied by the proper officers, shall, upon satisfactory proofs of such total disability, be paid a sum equal to the per capita cost of maintenance of members at the Union Printers' Home, such amount to be computed monthly.

Committee reports unfavorably.

Withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Proposition No. 55—By Mr. Arnold (Milwaukee):

Amend section 72, general laws, to read as follows:

Section 72. Subordinate unions shall not allow proprietors who work at the trade, and who are not active members, to use the union label on any work performed in the office of such proprietors. Provided, That in cities where local unions prohibit or discourage proprietor membership, the label can be granted to such offices that are otherwise union, to be used on work performed by union men. Local unions shall have the right to grant the use of the label to any proprietor who is an active member when he wishes to do his own work, and where union help can be obtained, works not more than the established number of hours per day in any week.

Committee recommends the following as a substitute:

Section 72. Subordinate unions shall not allow proprietors who work at the trade, and who are not active members, to use the union label on any work performed by such proprietors. Provided, That in cities where local unions prohibit or discourage proprietor membership the label can be granted to such offices that are otherwise union, to be used on work performed by union men. Local unions shall have the right to grant the use of the label to any proprietor who is an active member, when he wishes to do his own work, and, where union help can be obtained, works not more than the established number of hours per day in any week.

The substitute of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 56—By Delegate Gude (Springfield, Ill.):

Amend section 133, general laws, under subheading "Standard of Type," by striking out all of the words in the last sentence as follows:

"This section shall only apply to hand-set type."

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 57—By Delegate Cantwell (Montreal):

Amend general laws as follows, either by adding to section 123 or making a new section:

"For the purpose of carrying out the eight-hour day the International Typographical Union shall make unlimited the number of weeks in which members of subordinate unions shall receive benefits, who are on strike to enforce the eight-hour day. Provided, That the allowance shall be $7 per week for married men and $5 per week for single men; and further provided, that the executive council shall have power to call off the strike if it is deemed prudent to do so."

The committee recommends the following substitute:

Section 123. When a strike has been inaugurated under the provisions of sections 114, 115 and 117, the executive council shall pay to the order of the president and secretary of the union involved, for such time as the executive council may deem wise, an amount equal to $7 per week for each married man and $5 per week for each single man entitled thereto.

Delegate Rhoades (Boston) moved to amend the substitute by adding after the last line, "whether they were employed in union or non-union offices."

The amendment was lost.

The substitute offered by the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 58—By Delegate Dirks (St. Louis):

Amend section 6, article vi, constitution, "The Executive Council," by changing "second vice-president," in second line, to read "first vice-president."

This proposition is covered by Proposition No. 5, which was reported unfavorably.

Withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Digitized by Google

Proposition No. 59—By Delegate Condon (Des Moines):

Amend section 47 of the general laws to read as follows:

Section 47. Any member depositing a certificate of membership in any subordinate union of the International Typographical Union, shown by publication in THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL to be one month or more in arrears for per capita tax, may require of the local secretary a statement of such deposit of said certificate, under seal of such union, and upon forwarding the amount of per capita due on said certificate, together with said statement to the International secretary-treasurer, shall be entitled to receive the International dues stamps, and shall not be deprived of International benefits by reason of the delinquency of such subordinate union.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 66—By Delegates Tardif and Vauthier (Jacques-Cartier):

That a new section be added to the general laws to read as follows:

"Foreman becoming interested as partner in a firm shall not have the right to belong to employers' association. Violation of this section shall be punished by expulsion."

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 67—By Delegates Tardif and Vauthier (Jacques-Cartier):

Add a new section to the general laws to read as follows:

"A foreman shall not have the right to represent his employer in a conference of joint committee of local unions and employers for the purpose of changing the scale of wages."

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 68—By Delegate Victor Tardif (Jacques-Cartier):

Amend the last sentence of section 36, general laws, to read as follows:

"Provided local union can prohibit employers and foremen interested as partner in a firm from being active members of their organization if they so desire."

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

By unanimous consent, Proposition No. 82 was next considered.

Proposition No. 82—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Strike out all of section 64, under the head "Typesetting Machines," general laws, and substitute the following:

Section 64. In machine offices under the jurisdiction of the International Typographical Union, no person shall be eligible as a "learner" on machines who is not a member of the International Typographical Union or an applicant for membership working under a permit. The time and compensation of "learners" shall be regulated by local unions.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 70—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Strike out all of section 64, general laws, under the head of "Typesetting Machines," and substitute the following:

Section 64. In machine offices under the jurisdiction of the International Typographical Union, no person shall be eligible as a "learner" on machines who is not a member of the International Typographical Union, or an applicant for membership working under a permit. The time and compensation of "learners" shall be regulated by local unions. Provided, Regularly employed apprentices in machine offices, having had one year's experience at actual hand composition in said office, shall be privileged to work on machines during all of the last three months of their apprenticeship, and the learners' scale shall apply to such apprentices.

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was non-concurred in and the proposition defeated.

Proposition No. 71—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Add to general laws under the head of "Membership" the following new section:

Section 62a. For the purpose of recognition of courtesies and valuable services rendered a local union may grant an honorary membership card, such honorary membership not being subject to transfer to the active list.

The honorary membership card shall contain on its obverse side the following:

INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION.

.....19....

This certifies that.....the holder hereof, is at this day and date an honorary member in good standing of..... Typographical Union No.....of..... and for courtesies and valuable services rendered is granted this honorary membership card, which exempts him from all dues or taxes whatsoever, and acquits him of all rights to benefits of any kind whatsoever in said organization.

Witness our hands and the seal of the union, the day and year first above written.

.....President.

.....Secretary.

Countersigned.....Secy.-Treas. I. T. U.

The reverse of the card shall contain the following:

This honorary membership card is granted for courtesies and valuable services rendered, and is subject to recall by the local union granting same, and is of no value unless countersigned by the International Typographical Union secretary-treasurer.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 69—By Delegates Tardif and Vauthier (Jacques-Cartier):

Amend the second sentence of section 72, general laws, to read as follows:

"Local unions shall have the right to grant the use of the label to any proprietor who is an active member, and working at the trade, and who employs at least one journeyman, International general laws to prevail in such office."

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Digitized by Google

Proposition No. 72—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Amend article ii, constitution, under the head of "appeals," adding the following new sections:

Section 3. An appeal by either party from the decision of a subordinate union to the International president, or an appeal by either party from the decision of the International president to the executive council, or an appeal from the decision of the executive council to the International convention in no case shall be allowed unless a copy of all argument and papers filed in said appeal shall be served on the opposite party to the appeal, and all papers filed in the case must be authenticated by the seal of the subordinate union where said case originally originated.

Section 4. The appellant or appellee shall have the right to file such argument or papers as he or she deems advisable in any case before the International president, the executive council or the International convention; but in all cases all papers or argument filed must bear the seal of the subordinate union where said case originated. In all cases papers or argument not properly authenticated shall be rejected and not considered.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 73—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Strike out all of sections 1 and 2, article iv, of the constitution, and substitute the following new sections:

Section 1. Subordinate unions are entitled to representation in conventions of the International Union according to the following apportionment: Unions with 100 members or less, one delegate; more than 100 and less than 500 members, two delegates; more than 500 and less than 1,000 members, three delegates, and 1,000 or any greater number of members, four delegates. Each delegate shall be paid out of the treasury of the International a sum equal to 4 (four) cents per mile from place of location of the subordinate he or she represents to the convention meeting place, to be computed on the basis of the quickest traveled route. Two or more subordinate unions having a membership of less than 100 members each, may combine and elect one delegate, the certificate of a delegate so chosen to be signed by the president and secretary of each of the unions he or she represents.

Section 2. In computing mileage, railroad mileage books and steamer estimates shall be conclusive evidence as to distance traveled.

Section 3. Each delegate shall be entitled to one vote, and no proxies shall be allowed.

Committee reports unfavorably.

Withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Delegate Wright (Ashtabula) was excused from further attendance at the sessions.

Delegate Green (Atlanta) moved that the convention do now adjourn till 9 o'clock Saturday morning.

The motion prevailed by a vote of 111 for and 79 against.

Digitized by Google

SIXTH DAY.

MORNING SESSION.

LABOR TEMPLE, TORONTO, CANADA,
Saturday, August 19, 1905.

The convention was called to order at 9:15 o'clock.

The roll call showed the following members present:

Abraham,
Aide,
Alberts, C. H.,
Alberts, O. E.,
Alford, Eli,
Alford, J. R.,
Ames,
Austin,
Baker,
Ball, Edward,
Bandlow,
Barnes,
Barnum,
Bastian,
Bennetto,
Birkedahl,
Biwer,
Blain,
Brady,
Brewer,
Brown,
Buehler,
Cahill,
Cantwell,
Carlin, W. S.,
Carpenter, W. D.,
Casey,
Cherry,
Coffey,
Comerford,
Condon,
Conway,
Corcoran,
Crammond,
Creager,
Croft, J. P.,
Croft, T. G.,
Cronin,
Crosman,
Crowe,
Crowley,
Damer,
Davy, W. W.,
Dechend,
DeGour,
Dirks,
Donnell,
Draper,
Dwyer,
Eby,
Edwards,
Esty,
Everett,
Fahey,
Fennessy,
Ferguson,
Finley,
Flaherty,
Flynn,
Forbes,
Frazier,
Freeman, H. R.,
Freeman, J. F.,
Garrison,
Geng,
Gibbons,
Godkin,
Golds,
Gray, Ida,
Green,
Gude,
Hanley,
Hartman,
Hartnett,
Hawley,
Hayes,
Hearns,
Henderson, H. D.,
Henderson, U. T.,
Hendrick,
Hertenstein,
Heuston,
Hinman,
Holderby,
Hollingsworth,
Holm,
Hughes,
Irwin,
James, W. R.,
Jerrard,
Johndrew,
Johnson, Horace,
Johnson, J. M.,
Johnson, R. M.,
Jordan,
Kane,
Kay,
Kennedy, E. F.,
Kinner,
Kipp,
Klaus,
Knapp,
Kreft,
Kuhnholz,
Kupke,
Larson,
Lee,
Leigh, J. E.,
Lovett,
Lyon,
Marcy,
Marshall, David,
Marshall, W. A.,
Martin, Albert,
Maydwell,
Mayer,
McCahill,
McCracken,
McCullagh,
McCurdy,
McInerney,
McKee,
McKibbin,
McKinstry,
McLogan,
McWilliams,
Meade,
Millard,
Moore, A. B.,
Moore, R. P.,
Morehouse,
Morse,
Mowbray,
Mullen,
Mulvihill,
Neary,
Needham,
Neff,
Neilan,
Nelis,
Nihill,
Nock,
O'Brien, J. M.,
O'Connor,
O'Donnell,
Orser,
O'Sullivan,
Parker,
Parsell,
Plambeck,
Porter,
Purnett,
Quigley,
Quirk,
Reilly,
Rhoades, J. F.,
Rhodes, W. H.,
Ripley, R. L.,
Ripley, W. S.,
Robbins,
Robinson, B. C.,
Robinson, W. J.,
Rogers,
Ryan,
Saltus,
Sandow,
Sayers,
Sayles,
Scanlon,
Schleif,
Schultz, W. A.,
Scott,
Seaman,
Seffing,
Selden,
Senker,
Shaffer,
Shepard,
Sherer,
Sherman,
Shrope,
Shultz, J. M.,
Slemons,
Smith, H. W.,
Snyder,
Soverino,
Spead,
Steele,
Steffen,
Sullivan, E. D.,
Sullivan, George,
Sullivan, Jerry,
Sutch,
Tardif,
Thompson,
Throssell,
Tolan,
Turner,
Vander Perel,
Van Doren,
Varley,
Vauthier,
Watters,
Webber,
West,
Whealan,
White,
Whitley,
Wigg,
Wilcox,
Witchall,
Wolfe,
Woody,
Wright.

The following communication was read and ordered made part of the records:

TORONTO, August 19, 1905.

To the Officers of the International Typographical Union and the Delegates of the Fifty-First Convention:

The newly elected officers of the Woman's International Auxiliary desires to extend congratulations upon the decisive and unequivocal action of the convention in again declaring for the eight-hour workday, and assure you that the united efforts of the entire membership of our organization—over 1,000 earnest women—the wives, mothers and sisters of union printers, is hereby promised you in assisting in bringing about the desired result, in any way that the executive council of the International Typographical Union may suggest.

MRS. ED D. DONNELL, President,
MRS. CHARLES MCKEE, Secretary-Treasurer.

Delegate Dirks (St. Louis) rose to a question of privilege and asked permission to explain his vote on the report of the committee on appeals.

The chair ruled that the privilege could be extended only at the time of casting the vote, but if there was no objection the delegate might proceed.

Delegate Fennessy (Los Angeles) objected, and the president ruled Delegate Dirks not in order.

Digitized by Google

The following was offered:

Proposition No. 137—By Delegates from Toronto No. 91:

FELLOW DELEGATES—It is our painful duty to officially announce the death of Edward Frederick Clarke, who represented No. 91 at the Montreal session of the International Typographical Union in 1874.

He was the leading spirit in advocating the shorter workday in the early '70's—better known throughout the Province of Ontario as the "nine-hour movement." As chairman of the committee having in charge the guidance of that struggle on behalf of labor reform, well did he do his duty, both by tongue and pen, and the successful outcome of that issue was in no small measure due to the individuality of Mr. Clarke.

He was elected by the citizens of Toronto mayor for four consecutive terms; also held the confidence of the people in the legislature of this province for many sessions. At the time of his death he occupied the honored position as member from this city in the house of commons of Canada.

Although not directly connected with the printing trade for some years past, he never relinquished his active membership with our union, and was proud to be called a union printer. Trades unionism and the rights of the working classes always found an honest and able champion in our deceased brother.

No objections being offered, the memorial was ordered spread upon the minutes.

The following was also offered by the Toronto delegates:

Proposition No. 138—By the Delegates from Toronto No. 91:

That the name of Edward F. Clarke, of Toronto, who represented No. 91 at Montreal in 1874, be transferred from the active to the list of deceased members.

No objection being offered, the proposition was adopted.

The following was offered by Delegate Johnson (Memphis):

Proposition No. 139—By Delegate Johnson (Memphis):

Resolved, That the name of H. J. McGrann, of Memphis Typographical Union No. 11, be transferred from the list of permanent members to that of deceased members.

No objection being offered, the proposition was adopted.

The following was submitted by the committee on organization:

Proposition No. 96—By Delegate Mayer (Hamilton, Ohio):

Be it Resolved, by the fifty-first annual convention of the International Typographical Union, That the executive officers of the International Union devise ways and means to make a permanent fight against the foreign work of the non-union offices of Hamilton, Ohio.

The proposition was withdrawn by unanimous consent.

The following was submitted by the committee on subordinate unions:

Proposition No. 48—By Delegate Crosman (Boston):

Resolved, That the executive council be and is hereby instructed to take such steps as may be necessary to have all book and job scales within the jurisdiction of the International Typographical Union terminate at the same date.

The proposition was withdrawn by unanimous consent.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON LAWS.

Proposition No. 74—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Add the following new section to article x, constitution, under the head of "Penalties":

Section 4. Any member in good standing of a subordinate union under suspension by the executive council, shall, upon demand, receive a traveling card from said subordinate union, provided the cause of suspension of the subordinate union was the making of an illegal contract or an illegal scale of prices or an illegal change in the scale of prices, upon which action of the suspended union the member claiming benefits under this section is prohibited from participation under the provisions of section 138, general laws.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 75—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Strike out all of section 9, article ix, under the head "Revenue and Funds," of the constitution, and substitute the following:

Section 9. The executive council shall have the power and authority to transfer the moneys of this union from one fund to another whenever deemed necessary to maintain the integrity of this organization, except the burial fund, which fund can only be transferred by action of International convention.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 76—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Strike out all of section 32 of general laws and substitute the following:

Section 32. In towns where there are not a sufficient number of printers employed to hold a charter from this body, the organizer shall furnish application blanks to such as are there and wish to become members of the International Typographical Union, and such blanks, when filled out, shall be forwarded by him to the secretary-treasurer, who shall cause the names of applicants to be published in THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL; and if, after the lapse of thirty days after such publication, no valid objection is received, the secretary-treasurer shall, upon applicants' subscribing to oath, as provided in section 31, issue a certificate of membership, which shall entitle the holder to all rights and privileges of a member of the International Union. Each application shall be accompanied by an initiation fee of $10, and such member shall be liable for the regular International Typographical Union per capita tax and assessments. Provided, That all applications under the provisions of this section shall be accompanied by the recommendation of the organizer forwarding same as to competency, eligibility, etc., of said applicant.

Committee reports unfavorably.

Withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Proposition No. 77—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Strike out all of article xiv, section 1, under the head of "Certificate of Membership and Withdrawal Card," and substitute the following:

Section 1. The International Union shall issue,

Digitized by Google

in blank form, cards with appropriate designs, to be known as the certificate of membership, withdrawal card and the honorary membership card, which shall be furnished subordinate unions, except district trade unions, at prices fixed by law, on proper application being made therefor.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 78—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Strike out all of section 7, article ix, under the head "Revenue and Funds," of the constitution, and substitute the following:

Section 7. The burial fund shall be used to pay the burial expenses of members in good standing at time of death, and the amount of benefit in each case shall be $80 (eighty dollars).

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 79—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Strike out all of section 38 under the head of "Membership," general laws, and substitute the following:

Section 38. Every member must demand, and shall receive within a reasonable time thereafter, on payment of the proper sum, due stamps or a working card for each month's dues paid. It shall be optional with subordinate unions to choose either the adhesive stamps or working cards hereinbefore mentioned, except to show the payment of arrearages of dues, which shall be indicated by the attachment to the member's current working card of an adhesive stamp for each month's dues paid.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 80—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Strike out all of section 80, general laws, under the head "General Discipline," and substitute the following:

Section 80. Not more than forty-eight hours shall constitute a week's work. No member of a subordinate union shall work more than six days in a week, nor more than the number of hours constituting a day's work in any jurisdiction multiplied by six, where a substitute can be obtained. Should any member work, through inability to secure a substitute, a greater number than six days in any one week, or more than the number of hours specified in this section, said member must give to the first available substitute all such extra days (or hours, to be specified by the local union), and shall work a correspondingly less number of days in the succeeding week, so as to bring the average number of days within a maximum of six days per week. All violations or evasions of this law shall be punished by a fine of not less than one day's minimum pay for each violation. And it shall be obligatory upon the part of the local union in whose jurisdiction said violation occurs, to impose and collect such fine. Six-day papers publishing Sunday editions shall be classed in the category of seven-day morning papers.

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 81—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Add to general laws the following new section:

Section 70a. Journeymen members shall be allowed to show up for and accept employment as substitutes at the scale. This shall not be interpreted to mean that a journeyman can apply for a situation at less than the situation regularly pays.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 83—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Add to general laws, under the head "Miscellaneous," the following new section:

Section 158a. The last Sunday in the month of May of each year shall be known as Typographical Union Memorial day. Subordinate unions are urged to observe the same with suitable ceremonies and to decorate the graves of all departed union printers and to hold such other services as may be appropriate to the occasion.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 84—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Amend general laws under the head of "Membership" by adding the following new section:

Section 28a. No subordinate union shall exact more nor less than $10 (ten dollars) as an initiation fee; provided, any subordinate union may proceed as set out in section 28, general laws.

Committee reports unfavorably.

Withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Proposition No. 85—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Add to general laws under the head of "Membership" the following new section:

Section 32a. For the purpose of a thorough organization of organized territory the organizer shall proceed as provided in section 32. Provided, That if in his judgment the occasion demands, he shall apply to the nearest local union to said organized territory for dispensation, and upon same being granted, can accept applications for membership at a minimum initiation fee of $2. But in all cases that time limit shall be set out in the application of the organizer.

Committee reports unfavorably.

Withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Proposition No. 86—By Delegate Coffey (Lincoln):

Add the following new section under the head "Typesetting Machines," general laws:

In offices operating two or less linotype machines an operator-machinist may be employed, but where three or more machines are in operation in any office a machinist shall be employed, at a salary to be fixed by the local union. Provided, That where more than one shift is worked the employment of a machinist on one shift and a machinist-operator on the other shift (or shifts) shall be deemed a compliance with the law.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 87—By Mr. Wynne (Chicago):

Amend section 131 of the general laws by adding the following:

No member holding active membership in any local union shall sign an individual or private contract, with any employer, agreeing to work for any stated length of time, wages or conditions. The union alone has the power to contract for conditions, wages and hours.

Digitized by Google

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Delegate Green (Atlanta) moved that no leave of absence be granted to delegates.

The motion was adopted.

Proposition No. 88—By Delegate Barnes (Chattanooga):

Amend section 60, page 54, general laws, as follows:

Members who are proprietors, wholly or in part, of printing offices shall take out withdrawal cards; provided, this shall not apply to publishers of labor publications.

Committee reports unfavorably.

Withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Proposition No. 89—By members of Joliet No. 194:

To the Delegates and Laws Committee of the International Typographical Union:

GENTLEMEN—The undersigned, members of the Joliet Typographical Union No. 194, desire to present to you for your consideration the following amendment, with the hope that you will give it your endorsement and favorable recommendation before the convention for adoption:

"No person shall be admitted to membership in any local who holds a card in any other allied printing trades craft, except upon surrender of same to the local in which he seeks membership."

The object of the above is to do away with the two-card membership, which is a detriment and drawback to any union practicing it. Joliet has been struggling with the problem for several years, but the situation has been growing steadily worse until at our last regular meeting an amendment similar to the above was presented for adoption. An effort is being made to knock it out, and knowing that the membership has a wholesome respect for the International Typographical Union, we desire that this amendment be adopted by the convention, thereby giving us the necessary leverage to adopt the same here.

We can see no reason why the International Typographical Union should not protect its locals the same as the International Printing Pressmen's Union does in this respect, as you will note in the following laws quoted from the constitution and by-laws of the International Printing Pressmen's Union:

"Section 10. Any person making application for membership in a subordinate union who holds a card in any other organization claiming jurisdiction in pressrooms shall surrender said card to the union in which he seeks to become a member before being admitted, and said card shall become the property of the union where deposited."

"Section 15. No man shall be allowed to operate a press or assume charge of any office under the jurisdiction of the International Union who is not at the time a member in good standing of a subordinate union; and any subordinate union that accepts as a member any man who has ever been a journeyman at any other trade shall be fined $500 for the first offense, and their charter revoked on second offense."

When the pressmen's union was organized here in Joliet No. 194 sought to help them out by taking a number of their members into our union. This practice was kept up until now we have eight or nine members holding two cards, and in the smaller offices two situations.

The local pressmen's union, acting under the laws above quoted, refuse to admit our members to their union, but are continually proposing their members for admission into our union. These two-card members, and especially the secretary of the local pressmen's union, take an active part in the affairs of our union, always looking to the best interests of the pressmen's local, carrying back to them all business transacted by us. This condition of affairs is manifestly unfair to No. 194. We therefore urge upon you the necessity of prompt action by the International Typographical Union at the coming convention, thereby putting a stop to the two-card practice in all locals, and permitting us to adopt similar laws that will exclude from our councils the members of the pressmen's union, who are continually proposing legislation for their benefit and using No. 194 as a catspaw to pull their chestnuts out of the fire. A union, such as the local pressmen, whose officers and members have not the moral courage to formulate and adopt a regular scale of wages and have it signed, but permits its members to work under individual arrangements, is not the kind of a union to be upheld by the Typographical Union.

Fraternally yours,
M. J. MILHOUSE,
Chairman of Executive Board.
F. I. WEISHAAR,
Member Executive Board.
H. E. WEIBS,
Ex-President No. 194.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 92—By Delegate Donnell (Cincinnati):

Strike out that part of paragraph "C," section 3, page 27, book of laws 1905, commencing with fifth line, quoted below:

"A list of all rejections, expulsions, suspensions and reinstatements made and reported by subordinate unions."

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 93—By Delegate Forbes (Jersey City):

Amend section 45, general laws, by striking out words, "This shall not apply to unions located within five miles of each other, when the current working card of the nearest union shall hold good for thirty days," and inserting in its place: "Provided, This shall not prevent sister unions located within a radius of five miles mutually agreeing to recognize each other's current working cards for a period of thirty days."

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 95—By Delegate Dawson (New Kensington and Tarentum):

Add the following to section 36, page 48, general laws:

Provided, Employers who do not work more than eight hours in one week shall not be required to become members of a local union, but shall be entitled to the use of the label upon signing the agreement as approved by the local and International Typographical Union.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 105—By Mr. Maxwell (Omaha):

Add new section to the by-laws, as follows:

Section 7. All appeals and decisions shall be published in THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Digitized by Google

Proposition No. 106—By Delegate Johnson (Washington, D. C.):

Amend the general laws by adding new section as follows:

Section —. Subordinate unions shall fix a time and date for regular monthly meetings that will permit members holding situations on seven-day newspapers to attend these meetings.

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 107—By Delegate Johnson (Washington, D. C.):

Amend article vi, section 7, to read as follows:

Section 7. It shall be the duty of the agent, in the event of the Union Printers' Home corporation neglecting or refusing to comply with the provisions of the deed under which the land on which the Home is situated was transferred, or disobeying any of the orders of the International Typographical Union, to enter upon and take full possession of the property as the custodian of the International Typographical Union. Provided, That it shall be the duty of the agent to attend at least one meeting of the board of trustees during his term of office.

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 108—By Delegate Johnson (Washington, D. C.):

Amend article viii, section 3, to read as follows:

Section 3. When any officer or member is required to perform service away from his home, he shall be allowed, in addition to the amounts set forth above, first-class railroad fare by the shortest route to and from his destination, and actual hotel expenses. Provided, That an itemized bill shall in all cases be rendered.

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 109—By Delegate Steffen (Cleveland):

Amend section 3, article iii, by-laws, by striking out the words "alphabetical order" and inserting in lieu thereof the words: "Arranged in the order of receiving the highest number of nominations (when a tie occurs the name to be drawn by lot)," etc.

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 110—By Delegate Moore (Fort Worth):

Resolved, That until January 1, 1906, the law requiring the publication of the names of applicants for membership in this body (where said applicants live in a town where there are not a sufficient number of printers to hold a charter) be suspended, and that organizers be empowered and instructed to obligate such applicants and issue them an International certificate of membership, upon the payment by said applicant or applicants of an initiation fee of $2 each.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 111—By Delegate Moore (Fort Worth):

Resolved, That the International Typographical Union per capita be increased 10 cents per month per member and said increase be set aside as a "delegate fund," and that hereafter all unions under the jurisdiction of the International Typographical Union be required to send delegates to this body; and

Resolved, further, That the International Typographical Union defray the traveling and other necessary expenses of said delegates out of said delegate fund.

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 112—By Delegate Moore (Fort Worth):

Resolved, That third line, section 80, page 59, general laws, be amended as follows:

Strike out the words "more than six days in any one week" and insert in lieu thereof "more than six consecutive days;" and in line 8 strike out the words "six days in any one week" and insert in lieu thereof "six consecutive days."

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 113—By Delegate Reilly (Dallas):

To amend section 66, page 56, of the general laws, by affixing the following:

Provided, That nothing in the foregoing shall be construed to mean that machine offices may not employ help to wipe or clean machines, or fill metal pots; however, such help shall not be employed in excess of one man to each fifteen machines or fraction thereof.

Committee reports favorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 114—By Delegate Alford (Manila):

Amend article iii, section 6, of the by-laws, by striking out the word and figure "June 1" and substituting therefor "July 1."

The committee offers the following as a substitute:

Add following to section 6, article iii:

Provided further, That the vote of unions situated at such a distance from headquarters that the returns can not reach headquarters within the prescribed time shall be counted upon receipt of same.

The substitute of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 115—By Delegate Nock (Birmingham):

Amend sections 96, 100 and 136, general laws, by striking out the word "practice" in first line of each of these sections.

Committee recommends the following substitute, which will carry out Mr. Nock's proposition:

Strike out all of sections 96, 100 and 136 and substitute the following sections in their respective places:

Section 96. The selection by foremen of their forces from day to day, or not having any regular situation in an office, is prohibited. Foremen must give out such minimum number of situations as are needed to meet office requirements. Employment other than a regular situation shall be classed as extra work.

Section 100. Phalanxing by foremen, or giving out six-day situations on seven-day papers, thereby controlling extra work, constitutes a sub-list. Any member in an office, seven-day paper or otherwise, is entitled to employ in his stead, whenever so disposed, any competent member of the International Typographical Union, without consultation or approval of the foreman of said office. A fine of $25 shall be imposed upon foremen for violation or evasion of this law. Any chairman failing to report the violation of this section shall be fined $25.

Digitized by Google

Section 136. The interchanging, exchanging, borrowing, lending or buying of matter previously used, either in the form of type or matrices, between newspapers or job offices, not owned by the same individual, firm or corporation and published in the same establishment, is unlawful, and shall not be allowed. Provided, That the reproduction of such type or matrices shall be deemed a compliance with this law.

The substitute of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 116—By Delegate McCahill (Columbus):

Add to section 3, article viii, by-laws:

"All local unions shall furnish each registered apprentice within their jurisdiction a copy of THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL."

Committee offers the following substitute:

"It is recommended that local unions furnish THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL to registered apprentices within their jurisdiction."

The substitute of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 117—By Delegate Needham (Des Moines):

To strike out section 148 of general laws.

To amend section 41 of general laws by striking out said section and substituting the following:

Section 41. All dues and assessments, except International per capita tax, shall be collected upon percentage of gross earnings of members. Stockholders and proprietors shall pay upon the ratio of the minimum wage scale of the situation held. Active members not working as journeymen, or members engaged in any vocation outside the jurisdiction of the union, shall also pay upon the minimum union wage scale. This shall not, however, prohibit unions from having flat dues for the purpose of returning the same as rebate for attendance at meetings. Subordinate unions shall provide a penalty to be imposed upon members making a false statement of earnings under this section.

Committee reports unfavorably.

Withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Proposition No. 119—By Delegate Reilly (Dallas):

Resolved, That any member of the typographical union who shall publish through any medium other than THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL any article, or series of articles, attacking in any manner the way in which the business of the union is being conducted, or who shall give publicity to any internal disagreements or strifes that may exist in the International Typographical Union, or who shall in any way discuss the affairs of the typographical union before any one not a member of the union, shall be brought to trial for such offense, and, if found guilty, shall be fined in any sum from $10 to $50, or suspended or expelled, as the judgment of the local union of which he or she is a member may decree.

Provided, That nothing in the foregoing shall be so construed as to prohibit the duly authorized officers of either the International Typographical Union or any subordinate union of the International Typographical Union from holding conferences and entering into discussions of union affairs, where such conferences and discussions have for their object the settlement of difficulty with employing printers or the welfare of the union.

Committee reports unfavorably.

Withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Proposition No. 131—By Delegate Burlington (St. Joseph), by request:

Add to the general laws, immediately after section 28, the following new sections:

(1) Subordinate unions may establish and maintain a loan fund for the purpose of giving aid to traveling printers who are members in good standing of the International Typographical Union, and to aid their own members who desire to leave their jurisdiction, such amounts to be endorsed on their current working cards, traveling cards, certificates of membership, etc. Provided, That 10 per cent of a member's first earnings thereafter shall be required to be repaid until the loan or loans are paid, together with an amount sufficient to pay the expense of returning said loan to the issuing union by bank draft or postoffice money order.

(2) No union shall loan to a member more than enough to travel by railroad more than 200 miles, plus $1. Provided, That the aggregate of sums borrowed by any one member from the different subordinate unions shall not exceed $25 at any one time.

(3) Subordinate unions, through their secretaries, are required to consider all sums due on loans, shown on traveling cards, certificates of membership, etc., as dues, and to collect the required per cent thereof and forward to the issuing union, first loan having precedence, together with an amount sufficient to pay the expense of returning said loan to the issuing union by bank draft or postoffice money order, and may refuse to issue traveling cards until such sums due are paid, if in their opinion such measure be necessary to the safeguarding of the loan funds.

(4) Subordinate unions, through their secretaries, failing to enforce all sections of the International Typographical Union laws relating to loans shall be held to the payment of all sums delinquent, and shall be fined not less than $5 nor more than $25 for each offense.

General laws, new section to be added immediately after section 35:

Any member who shall obtain a loan or benefit from any subordinate union under false pretenses shall be suspended or expelled, or fined not less than $5 nor more than $25, as the subordinate union may deem proper.

Amend section 44, general laws, by adding immediately after the line, "This certificate expires in six months from date," the following sentence: "On the reverse of the above certificate space shall be provided for the record of loans made by subordinate unions."

Committee reports unfavorably.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Proposition No. 42—By Delegate Draper (Ottawa, Ont.):

Amend subsection (b), "Funds," of section 3, by-laws, "Duties of Secretary-Treasurer," in the last line, by adding the words "and the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada."

Committee recommends the following substitute:

Resolved, That the secretary-treasurer be authorized and instructed to pay to the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress a per capita of 1½ cents monthly on all members of the International Typographical Union in good standing in the Dominion of Canada.

The substitute of the committee was adopted.

Delegate Donnell (Cincinnati) offered the following by unanimous consent:

Resolved, That Proposition No. 92, concurred in by the laws committee, take effect immediately.

The resolution was adopted.

President Lynch stated that if there were no objections the report of the laws committee as a whole would be declared adopted as amended. There being no objections, it was so ordered.

Digitized by Google

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.

TORONTO, ONT., August 19, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee on miscellaneous business respectfully presents the following for your consideration:

Proposition No. 50—By the Boston Delegation:

At the monthly meeting of Boston Typographical Union No. 13 on June 25, 1905, the following was adopted:

Resolved, That the delegates from Boston Typographical Union No. 13 to the Toronto convention of the International Typographical Union, to be held in August of the present year, are hereby instructed to bring to the notice of said convention the necessity of a government parcels post service, so that said convention may devise ways and means for the agitation and consummation of such service before the various trade organizations of the United States.

We recommend that this be referred to the executive council for favorable consideration.

ROBERT BANDLOW,
J. E. EDWARDS,
F. A. PARKER,
C. W. MCCAHILL.

The report of the committee was adopted.

CONCLUDING REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON RESOLUTIONS.

TORONTO, ONT., August 19, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee on resolutions respectfully presents the following for your consideration:

Proposition No. 134—By Delegate Estey (Paterson):

Whereas, Philadelphia as at present organized is a menace to the welfare of the printing trades and all other trades; and,

Whereas, The establishment of a paper by the Hon. William R. Hearst in any of the large cities where he now has papers has been conducive to the best interests of all labor organizations; be it

Resolved, That the executive council, if in their judgment it be for the best interests of the International Typographical Union, consult with Mr. Hearst as to the advisability of starting a paper in Philadelphia on the same broad lines of his other papers.

Committee reports favorably.

T. T. NOCK,
G. W. SCHLEIF,
WILLIAM BURLINGTON,
J. H. J. BLACK,
J. A. O'CONNOR.

The report of the committee was adopted.

The report of the resolutions committee was then adopted as a whole.

FURTHER REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON UNION PRINTERS' HOME.

Proposition No. 45—By Rutland Union:

RUTLAND, VT., June 22, 1905.

J. W. Bramwood, Secretary International Typographical Union, Indianapolis, Ind.:

DEAR SIR—I am authorized by No. 326 to appeal the case of Samuel D. Daniels from the decision of the board of trustees to the convention of the International Typographical Union at Toronto. Will you please bring the papers in the case before the convention? Yours fraternally,

G. A. SMITH, President.

The papers in this case constitute a part of the records of the board of trustees of the Union Printers' Home. They will be at the disposal of the committee to which this appeal is referred.

Committee reports unfavorably, because this appeal belongs in the class referred to in the president's address, covered by our report yesterday and approved by the convention.

T. B. BROWN,
H. R. FREEMAN,
EYRE DAMER,
FRANK H. SEFFING,
JOHN CANTWELL.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Delegate Anderson (Macon) said he hoped eventually to see the ladies admitted to the Home, and stated that the trustees could draw on him for $50 to be applied to that purpose.

The report of the committee on Union Printers' Home as a whole was adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL.

TORONTO, August 19, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

GENTLEMEN—We, your committee on TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL, beg to report that we heartily endorse the policy of THE JOURNAL, believing under the course pursued that it keeps the membership in close touch with each other, as well as trade conditions, and the report of the secretary-treasurer as to the financial success of THE JOURNAL is especially gratifying.

We wish to call the attention of the membership to the patrons of THE JOURNAL, and urge upon them to use every means within their power to make advertising in THE JOURNAL profitable to the advertisers.

We call to the attention of the editor the demand for a technical department in THE JOURNAL, and suggest that if a practicable plan can be developed that he lay such plan before the next convention for its consideration.

Respectfully submitted,

W. T. ANDERSON,
JOHN TOLAN,
JOHN KLAUS,
WILLIAM P. CARPENTER,
E. D. SULLIVAN,
Committee.

The report of the committee was unanimously adopted.

Digitized by Google

Chairman Anderson (Macon) stated in connection with the report from THE JOURNAL committee that in the past few days the action of this convention in enforcing its laws had been distorted and construed by certain persons in attendance here as an effort to muzzle the press. The chairman stated that for the benefit of those who might be appealed to by such argument, and in justice to the convention, he wished to say that the convention had taken absolutely no such action and had not attempted to stifle nor muzzle the press, and that no man who spoke or voted on the proposition had any such intention. That the convention had only enforced its laws, which provide against the circulation of malicious, false or scurrilous literature or statements; that a labor editor or any other editor was entitled to criticize this organization, its officers or members, the convention only demanding that when charges are made they shall be founded on fact, and language held within the bounds of decency. This is demanded by the laws of the land, and is all that the action of the convention implied or intended to imply.

SUPPLEMENTARY REPORT OF CUMMINGS MEMORIAL COMMITTEE.

TORONTO, ONT., August 18, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

The undersigned members of the Amos J. Cummings memorial committee, present at the fifty-first session of the International Typographical Union, desire to present the following report of the work and progress of the committee, supplemental to that appearing in the reports of officers presented to the convention:

As stated previously, the amount in the Cummings fund May 31, 1905, was $11,312.85. Since that time and to July 31, 1905, $360.75 additional has been forwarded to headquarters, making the total $11,673.60.

Pledges are on file with the committee from various unions for fully $1,500 more, the major part of which will be sent in shortly, thus insuring fully $13,000 to the fund. Many delegates have informed members of your committee that the question is under consideration in their locals, and it seems an assured fact that the ultimate and complete success of the project is in sight.

Inasmuch as the next session of the International Typographical Union is to be held at Colorado Springs, your committee will endeavor in every way possible to secure the balance of the sum expected—in the neighborhood of $8,000—to the end that at least the cornerstone can be laid at that session, if not the building dedicated, by the officers and delegates to that convention, thus making the occasion doubly interesting.

Your committee earnestly desires the co-operation of all the delegates to this convention in the work of raising the balance, and especially wishes to secure the aid of those unions that have so far failed to contribute, or have only advanced a portion. The amount of 50 cents per member is so small that its appropriation can not entail a hardship upon any union.

Contributions have been received from 360 unions in various sums, and fifty individuals and women's auxiliaries have also sent in various amounts.

Literature pertaining to the matter was prepared for presentation to the delegates, outlining the work since the annual report was made, but it has failed to arrive.

Your committee earnestly entreats the attention of the delegates to this convention to the necessity of prompt action in this project, and especially asks that they take a personal interest, and upon returning home endeavor to get favorable action.

MICHAEL COLBERT, Chairman,
HARVEY E. GARMAN, Secretary,
ALFRED D. CALVERT,
T. B. BROWN,
DAVID HASTINGS,
JOSEPH M. JOHNSON,
Cummings Memorial Committee.

The supplementary report was ordered made part of the records.

The committee on laws offered this additional resolution:

REPORT OF LAWS COMMITTEE.

Proposition No. 140—By the laws committee:

Referring to that part of the president's report under the caption "Condition That Requires Attention," the committee on laws submits the following resolution:

Resolved, That the executive council be authorized to seek a conference with the representatives of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, with a view to formulating an agreement which could be made acceptable to both parties on that matter.

The report of the committee was adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON THANKS.

TORONTO, ONT., August 19, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the International Typographical Union:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee on thanks respectfully presents the following for your consideration:

The delegates hereby extend sincere thanks to Chairman Hugh Stevenson and all members of the arrangements committee of the fifty-first session of the International Typographical Union; to the members of Toronto Union No. 91, and to the Woman's Auxiliary No. 42, for the many courtesies extended and for the magnificent program and entertainment arranged and so successfully carried out for the benefit of all officers, delegates and ex-delegates and visitors.

To the Rev. Bernard Bryan for invoking divine blessing on the proceedings of the convention.

To the Hon. J. P. Whitney, premier of the province of Ontario; Thomas Urquhart, mayor of the city of Toronto; Alderman J. J. Graham, chairman of the civic reception committee; Prof. Goldwin Smith; Robert Glockling, president of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders; Edward Randall, first vice-president of the International

Digitized by Google

Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union; John McVicar, ex-president International Typographical Union; John Armstrong, ex-president of the International Typographical Union; and Edward M. Meehan, president of Toronto Typographical Union, for their cordial words of welcome to the convention.

To Hamilton Typographical Union No. 129, Alderman H. A. Martin, acting mayor of the city of Hamilton, and the firm of R. Duncan & Co., for the courtesies extended on the occasion of the visit to that city.

To the press of the city of Toronto, for the impartial reports of the proceedings of this convention, and for other courtesies extended.

To Samuel M. Gompers, president American Federation of Labor; Martin P. Higgins, president Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union; the Toronto Allied Printing Trades Council; J. P. McDonnell, editor National Labor Standard, for the words of good cheer in the great movement toward the eight-hour day, and their proffers of aid in the effort to secure same.

To the various committees of the convention for their tireless and efficient work.

To President Lynch, Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood, their assistants, the sergeant-at-arms and messengers.

CHARLES HERTENSTEIN, Chairman,
ALBERT MARTIN, Secretary,
W. M. REILLY,
W. W. WILCOX.

The report of the committee was adopted as a whole.

FINAL REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON LAWS.

To the Officers and Members of the Convention:

Your committee on laws has concluded its deliberations, and the results are well known. We do not feel that it is necessary to assert that the motives actuating us have been prompted by what we believe to be for the best interests of the membership at large. A number of propositions came before us which possessed undoubted merit, but the committee considered the time inopportune for the adoption of the same. We appreciate the support given our report, and trust that the future will reveal the wisdom of your conclusions.

Respectfully submitted,
JOE M. JOHNSON, Chairman,
HORACE JOHNSON,
T. J. CREAGER,
J. VANDER PEREL,
WALTER H. MCKEE.

The report of the committee was adopted.

After authorizing the secretary to make necessary corrections in the record of proceedings, the minutes of the fourth, fifth and sixth day were approved.

Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood announced that the proceedings of the sixth day's session and the credentials presented at the fifty-first session would be mailed to the delegates as early as possible.

The Scranton delegation, Messrs. Millard and Senker, gave notice that they had been instructed to ask the International Typographical Union to meet at Scranton, Pa., during its fifty-third session.

Delegate Fennessy (Los Angeles) said he could not go home to Los Angeles satisfied unless there was a grand whoop for the eight-hour day. He asked favorable and unanimous consideration for the following resolution:

Resolved, That the official battle cry of the International Typographical Union in the agitation for the eight-hour day be:

"We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen."

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

Delegate Anderson (Macon) moved that when we do adjourn it be with three cheers and a tiger for the eight-hour day, led by Delegate Fennessy.

The motion was unanimously adopted.

A recess was then taken, with the understanding that no other business be taken up except the unfinished report of the committee on thanks.

The convention reconvened in a few moments, the delegates singing a popular song.

THE PRESENTATIONS.

The committee on arrangements of the local union, consisting of Hugh Stevenson, chairman; John Armstrong, vice-chairman; E. J. How, treasurer; John Chinn, secretary; Thomas C. Vodden, assistant secretary; R. S. Burrows, Fred Craig, George W. Dower, J. T. Edworthy, S. Hadden, F. W. Hamblin, Thomas Heaton, A. B. Hutchcroft, W. R. James, G. A. Martin, E. M. Meehan, A. McLiver, J. McMahon, M. O'Grady, W. Palen, W. H. Parr, J. H. Pollard, W. T. Robson, James Simpson, N. R. Taylor, Edwin Till, A. E. Thompson and Ernest Webb, were then called before the platform by President Lynch, who acted as spokesman at the request of Chairman Hertenstein, of the committee on thanks.

President Lynch made a few fitting remarks on the excellent entertainment furnished by the committee, and the patience and good nature displayed by its members. He then presented Chairman Stevenson with a beautiful silver service; Secretary Chinn with an elegant gold watch; Vice-Chairman Armstrong, a gold-headed cane; Treasurer How, a silk umbrella; Assistant Secretary Vodden, a silk umbrella; and the balance of the members of the committee with handsome seal rings. The convention also presented to Toronto Union a beautiful Canadian flag.

President Lynch again thanked the arrangements committee for their courtesies and kindly attendance to the needs of the convention.

The president also expressed the belief that the committee on thanks of this convention had proven to be one of the most diligent, and was entitled to the appreciation the convention would surely accord to it for work well done.

Chairman Stevenson, on behalf of the arrangements committee, returned thanks for the handsome presents, and said they hoped to be able to greet the International Typographical Union in Toronto again.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Armstrong could scarcely find words to express his feelings for the beautiful remembrance. He spoke of the eight-hour day, and the Saturday half-holiday so prevalent in Toronto. He again thanked the convention on behalf of the committee, and hoped to see the convention again.

Secretary Chinn said he wished the convention could stop another week.

President Meehan, on behalf of Toronto Union, accepted the flag from the International Typographical Union, and said he hoped to see a Canadian flag placed in the Union Printers' Home, as this is an international organization.

Delegate Fennessy (Los Angeles) then asked the convention to give three cheers and a tiger for the eight-hour day and the International Typographical Union, which were given in a hearty and rousing spirit.

Three cheers and a tiger were also given for President Lynch, the executive council, and Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood.

There being no further business before the convention, the president declared the fifty-first session of the International Typographical Union adjourned sine die.

J. W. BRAMWOOD,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Digitized by Google

MEMBERS OF THE FIFTY-FIRST SESSION.

Abraham, Alex.....Stratford, Ont.
Aide, J. C.....Kansas City, Mo.
Alberts, C. H.....Lake Charles, La.
Alberts, O. E.....Schenectady, N. Y.
Alford, Eli.....Providence, R. I.
Alford, J. R.....Manila, P. I.
Alter, S. Herman.....Williamsport, Pa.
Ames, H. B.....Toledo, Ohio.
Anderson, W. T.....Macon, Ga.
Austin, Harry H.....Portland, Ore.

Bair, M. Walter.....Lancaster, Pa.
Baker, Ray W.....Fresno, Cal.
Ball, Edward.....Kingston, Ont.
Bandlow, Robert.....Cleveland, Ohio.
Barnes, D. B.....Chattanooga, Tenn.
Barnum, Mark H.....Washington, D. C.
Bastian, Charles W.....York, Pa.
Beattie, Charles.....Montreal, P. Q.
Bennetto, Edward.....Bridgeport, Conn.
Berger, Victor L.....Milwaukee, Wis.
Beyer, Rudolph A.....Saginaw, Mich.
Birch, R. J.....Chatham, Ont.
Birkedahl, William.....Denver, Colo.
Biwer, Jacques.....St. Louis, Mo.
Black, J. H. J.....Sioux Falls, S. D.
Blain, A. H.....Seattle, Wash.
Bowers, Harry F.....Bellefontaine, Ohio.
Brady, W. S.....Norfolk, Va.
Brewer, A. E.....Toronto, Can.
Brown, T. B.....Topeka, Kan.
Bryan, Robert B.....Waco, Texas.
Buehler, C. J.....Milwaukee, Wis.
Bulcock, John T.....St. Louis, Mo.
Burlington, William.....St. Joseph, Mo.

Cahill, J. J.....St. Paul, Minn.
Cantwell, John.....Montreal, P. Q.
Carlin, W. S.....Wheeling, W. Va.
Carpenter, W. P.....Elmira, N. Y.
Carter, Charles C.....Joplin, Mo.
Casey, Joseph M.....Erie, Pa.
Cherry, James P.....Indianapolis, Ind.
Clark, William A.....Bay City, Mich.
Coffey, Frank M.....Lincoln, Neb.
Colburne, R. C.....Superior, Wis.
Collier, James M.....Coshocton, Ohio.
Comerford, W. H.....Buffalo, N. Y.
Condon, Ed S.....Des Moines, Iowa.
Conway, William F.....Buffalo, N. Y.
Corcoran, Daniel L.....New York, N. Y.
Corning, P. H.....Norwich, Conn.
Crammond, George.....Toronto, Can.
Creager, T. J.....Springfield, Ohio.
Croft, J. P.....Boston, Mass.
Croft, T. G.....Galveston, Texas.
Cronin, John.....Toronto, Can.
Crosman, W. L.....Boston, Mass.
Crowe, Dan J.....Lexington, Ky.
Crowley, Neil J.....Pueblo, Colo.

Damer, Eyre.....Mobile, Ala.
Davey, L. J.....Middletown, N. Y.
Davy, W. W.....Indianapolis, Ind.
Dawson, B. C.....New Kensington, Pa., etc.
Dechend, Harry.....Youngstown, Ohio.
DeGour, H. F.....Reading, Pa.
Dill, Charles.....Canton, Ohio.
Dirks, J. J.....St. Louis, Mo.
Donnell, Ed D.....Cincinnati, Ohio.
Dorsey, M. J.....Pekin, Ill.
Draper, P. M.....Ottawa, Can.
Dwyer, John J.....Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Eby, Edward.....Cincinnati, Ohio.
Edwards, J. E.....Clinton, Ill.
Esty, James B.....Paterson, N. J.
Evans, A. M.....Champaign-Urbana, Ill.
Everett, John N.....Memphis, Tenn.
Fahey, Henry.....Binghamton, N. Y.

Faries, Walter W.....Philadelphia, Pa.
Feckey, W. W.....Steubenville, Ohio.
Fennessy, T. D.....Los Angeles, Cal.
Ferguson, David.....Akron, Ohio.
Finley, John F.....New York, N. Y.
Flaherty, John F.....Burlington, Vt.
Flynn, Michael D.....Princeton, N. J.
Forbes, Kenneth M.....Jersey City, N. J.
Frazier, George E.....Baltimore, Md.
Freeman, H. R.....Salt Lake City, Utah.
Freeman, J. F.....Binghamton, N. Y.

Garrison, Edwin W.....Newark, N. J.
Geng, Fred W.....Rockford, Ill.
Gibbons, Thomas J.....Springfield, Mass.
Gillard, Charles E.....Sandusky, Ohio.
Gleason, Eugene.....New Castle, Pa.
Godkin, James H.....Hartford, Conn.
Golds, Phil J.....Guelph, Ont.
Gray, Ida L.....Aurora, Ill.
Gray, M. R.....Indianapolis, Ind.
Green, Dan W.....Atlanta, Ga.
Gude, L. A.....Springfield, Ill.

Habecker, Charles W.....Fort Wayne, Ind.
Hanley, Thomas J.....Hamilton, Ont.
Hansen, C. F.....Elgin, Ill.
Harris, John T.....Washington, Ind.
Harrison, Richard P.....Hackensack, N. J.
Hartman, James A.....Baltimore, Md.
Hartnett, John L.....Troy, N. Y.
Hawley, Charles A.....Winnipeg, Man.
Hayes, Max S.....Cleveland, Ohio.
Hearns, Murray.....Grand Rapids, Mich.
Henderson, H. D.....Rochester, N. Y.

Digitized by Google

Henderson, U. T .....Council Bluffs, Iowa.
Hendrick, C. C .....New Orleans, La.
Hertenstein, Charles .....St. Louis, Mo.
Heuston, Robert J.....Union Hill, N. J.
Hinman, R. G.....Omaha, Neb.
Holderby, R. T.....Atlanta, Ga.
Hollingsworth, J. S.....Jacksonville, Fla.
Holm, A. B.....Chicago, Ill.
Huber, J. N.....Greensburg, Pa.
Hughes, Maurice E.....Providence, R. I.

Irwin, F. T .....Manchester, N. H.

James, W. R.....Toronto, Can.
Jerrard, Josiah.....Winnipeg, Man.
Johndrew, Orvis F.....Beaver Valley, Pa.
Johnson, Horace.....Memphis, Tenn.
Johnson, J. M.....Washington, D. C.
Johnson, R. M.....Beaumont, Texas.
Jordan, W. H.....Nashville, Tenn.

Kane, Thomas F .....Boston, Mass.
Kay, Frank.....Atlantic City, N. J.
Kennedy, E. F .....Pittsburg, Pa.
Kennedy, J. P., sr.....Minneapolis, Minn.
Kinner, Bert M .....Bradford, Pa.
Kipp, Charles F.....Columbus, Ohio.
Klaus, John .....St Paul, Minn.
Klein, Fred.....Pittsburg, Pa.
Knapp, Harry C.....Washington, D. C.
Kreft, Ernst.....Philadelphia, Pa.
Kuhnholz, E. L .....New Orleans, La.
Kupke, William. .....Chicago, Ill.

Larson, Joseph C.....Chicago, Ill.
Leader, H. E.....Altoona, Pa.
Lee, William W.....Tarrytown-Ossining, N. Y.
Leigh, J. E .....Trenton, N. J.
Lovett, D. C., jr.....Charleston, W. Va.
Lucas, W. R.....Batavia, N. Y.
Lyon, C. B.....Sunbury, Pa.

Marcy, O. N .....Marlboro-Hudson, Mass.
Markey, James H.....Albany, N. Y.
Marshall, David.....St. Catherines, Ont.
Marshall, W. A.....Galesburg, Ill.
Martin, Albert.....Peterborough, Ont.
Maydwell, H. C.. .....Meriden, Conn.
Mayer, John F.....Hamilton, Ohio.
McCahill, C. W.....Columbus, Ohio.
McCallum, James S .....Jamestown, N. Y.
McCracken, Robert C .....Washington, Pa.
McCullagh, B. C.....Toledo, Ohio.
McCurdy, F. B .....Houston, Texas.
McInerney, William.....Chicago, Ill.
McKee, Walter H.....New York, N. Y.
McKibbin, David J.....Sioux City, Iowa.
McKinstry, Ernest.....Port Arthur, Ont.
McLogan, John J.....Detroit, Mich.
McWilliams, D. T.....Zanesville, Ohio.
Meade, John.....Philadelphia, Pa.
Millard, Miles H.....Scranton, Pa.
Miller, Hugo.....Indianapolis, Ind.
Moore, A. B.....Fort Worth, Texas.
Moore, R. P.....Shreveport, La.
Moore, W. J .....Brockville, Ont.

Morehouse, Albert W.....Danbury, Conn.
Morse, Edwin T.....Hartford, Conn.
Mowbray, R. E.....Streator, Ill.
Mullen, J. W .....Rock Island, Ill., etc.
Mulvihill, George E.....Minneapolis, Minn.

Neary, Charles J.....Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.
Needham, W. A.....Des Moines, Iowa.
Neff, Jesse F .....Sedalia, Mo.
Neilan, Francis W.....New London, Conn.
Nelis, William M.....Chicago, Ill.
Nihill, Thomas F .....Orange, N. J.
Nock, T. T .....Birmingham, Ala.

O'Brien, J. M... .....Yonkers, N. Y.
O'Brien, T. J .....Lawrence, Mass.
O'Connor, John A.....Louisville, Ky.
O'Donnell, Edward J.....Newburgh, N. Y.
O'Neal, A. B. F.....Massillon, Ohio.
Orser, William E.....Rochester, N. Y.
O'Sullivan, John V., jr.....Port Huron, Mich.

Parker, F. A.....Racine, Wis.
Parsell, W. B.....Kansas City, Mo.
Pennington, Herbert.....Mattoon, Ill.
Plambeck, Richard C.....Chicago, Ill.
Porter, Frank J.....Detroit, Mich.
Purnett, William E.....Butte, Mont.

Quigley, Thomas.....Kalamazoo, Mich.
Quirk, John F.....Albany, N. Y.

Reilly, W. M .....Dallas, Texas.
Rhoades, J. F .....Boston, Mass.
Rhodes, W. H.....Danville, Ill.
Ripley, R. L.....Lansing, Mich.
Ripley, W. S.....Omaha, Neb.
Robbins, C. E.....St. Louis, Mo.
Robinson, B. C.....Los Angeles, Cal.
Robinson, W. J.....New York, N. Y.
Rogers, A. C.....Warren, Pa.
Ryan, F. H .....London, Ont.

Saltus, Freeman M .....Worcester, Mass.
Sandow, Thomas H.....Wilkes Barre, Pa.
Sayers, John F .....Milwaukee, Wis.
Sayles, E. Roy.....Brantford, Ont.
Scanlon, James A.....Syracuse, N. Y.
Schleif, George W.....Richmond, Va.
Schultz, W. A.....Elizabeth, N. J.
Scott, Fred C.....Syracuse, N. Y.
Seaman, William H.....Cincinnati, Ohio.
Seffing, Frank H.....Cleveland, Ohio.
Selden, Frank W.....Pontiac, Mich.
Senker, Louis H.....Scranton, Pa.
Shaffer, George E .....Harrisburg, Pa.
Shepard, L. C.....Grand Rapids, Mich.
Sherer, George W.....Pontiac, Ill.
Sherman, E. S .....Denver, Colo.
Shrope, M. D. L.....Easton, Pa.
Shultz, J. M.....Decatur, Ill.
Slemons, A. G.....Terre Haute, Ind.
Smith, H. W.....Lincoln, Neb.
*Smith, Shelby .....Philadelphia, Pa.
Snyder, W. A.....Colorado Springs, Colo.
Soverino, George W.....Fall River, Mass.
Spead, F. A.....Lowell, Mass.

* Expelled from convention and seat declared vacant on fourth day.

Digitized by Google

Steele, Philip S.....Washington, D. C.
Steffen, F. W.....Cleveland, Ohio.
Stubbs, C. L.....Springfield, Ohio.
Sullivan, E. D.....Cincinnati, Ohio.
Sullivan, George.....Lafayette, Ind.
Sullivan, Jerry.....Nashville, Tenn.
Sutch, John.....East Liverpool, Ohio.
Suydam, W. L.....Springfield, Mass.

Tardif, Victor.....Montreal, P. Q.
Thompson, Sam.....New York, N. Y.
Throssell, Elmer.....Newark, N. J.
Tolan, John.....New York, N. Y.
Turner, W. P.....Greensboro, N. C.

Vander Perel, J.....Denver, Colo.
Van Doren, Frank W.....Keokuk, Iowa.
Varley, James B.....Somerville, N. J.
Vauthier, Bruno.....Montreal, P. Q.

Watters, James.....Ottawa, Can.
Webber, George.....Olean, N. Y.
West, John H.....Brockton, Mass.
Whealan, Emmett.....Chicago, Ill.
White, H. L.....San Francisco, Cal.
Whitley, John J.....Houston, Texas.
Wigg, Walter H.....St. Thomas, Ont.
Wilcox, W. W.....Peoria, Ill.
Witchall, W. H.....Duluth, Minn.
Wolber, Gustave J.....Newark, N. J.
Wolfe, Harry T.....Columbus, Ohio.
Woody, R. Leon.....Richmond, Va.
Wright, R. E.....Ashtabula, Ohio.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

INDEX.

	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
Addresses—
By Commissioner Driscoll, American Newspaper Publishers' Association	171	...	...
By George H. Ellis, president United Typothetæ	161, 162	...	...
Ordered made part of records	162	...	162
By Robert Glockling, president International Brotherhood of Bookbinders	200	...	...
By Samuel Gompers, president American Federation of Labor	196	...	...
By William Green, chairman executive committee United Typothetæ	162	...	...
By Arthur Hay	202–204	...	...
By M. P. Higgins, president International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union	199	...	...
By Samuel Landers	212	...	...
By Henry Russell Wray	173, 174	...	...
By A. D. Small, Commercial Telegraphers' Union	218	...	...
Addresses of Welcome—
By John Armstrong, ex-president International Typographical Union	133	...	...
By Robert Glockling, president International Brotherhood of Bookbinders	133	...	...
By Alderman J. J. Graham	132	...	...
By President Meehan, No. 91	133	...	...
By John McVicar, ex-president International Typographical Union	133	...	...
By Edward Randall, vice-president International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union	133	...	...
By Chairman Stevenson, No. 91	132	...	...
By Prof. Goldwin Smith	132	...	...
By Mayor Thomas Urquhart of Toronto	132	...	...
By Hon. J. P. Whitney, Premier of Ontario	132	...	...
Response to by President Lynch	133	...	...
Age Limit—Foremen not to do injustice to members passed (Condon, Proposition 60)	155	219	219
Allan, Charles—Name of transferred to deceased list (Hollingsworth, Proposition 126)	176	222	222
Allied Trades Agreement—Report of President Lynch on, approved by committee on allied trades relations	217	...	...
To abrogate (Donnell, Proposition 120)	176	217	217
To amend (Damer, Proposition 94)	166	217	217
Amendments—To add to law regarding (Dirks, Proposition 8)	149	164	164
American Federation of Labor—Amendment to Plank 10, platform of, referred to delegates to (Crosman, Proposition 49)	154	219	219
Delegates to ask that Government Ownership of Telegraph be preferred measure	223	...	223
Requested to take cognizance of lockout in Inland Typefoundry (St. Louis delegation, Proposition 99)	167	216	216
Thanked for proffer of support in eight-hour fight	215	...	215
Appeals—
To add new section to by-laws in re (Maxwell, Proposition 105)	168	230	230
To add to law in re (Coffey, Proposition 72)	156	226	226
Applicants—
Providing $10 initiation fee for, when from unorganized towns (Coffey, Proposition 76)	157	228	228
Suspending law in re publication names of, when from unorganized towns (Moore, Proposition 110)	175	231	231

Digitized by Google

	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
Apprentices—
Concerning instruction of (West, Proposition 33)	152	211	211
Recommitted	172	...	...
Secretary-Treasurer instructed to issue circular directing attention to law regarding (Sherman, Proposition 91)	159	215	215
To strike out section 165, general laws in re (West, Proposition 33)	152	211	211
Recommitted	178	...	...
Armstrong, John—Address by	133	...	...
Invited to platform	132	...	...
Battle Cry—Of International Union	234	...	234
Birdsall, Organizer F. C.—Report of	74	...	...
Bonnington, Organizer F. J.—Report of	74, 75	...	...
Book and Job Scales—All to expire at same time (Crosman, Proposition 48)	154	228	228
Boot and Shoe Workers—Endorsing label of (West, Proposition 47)	153	214	214
Boyle, Organizer P. J.—Report of	76	...	...
Bracken, Fourth Vice-President—Report of	48	...	...
Brady, Organizer B. G.—Report of	75, 76	...	...
Burial Benefit—Increasing to $150 (Harris, Proposition 43)	153	212	212
Increasing to $80 (Coffey, Proposition 78)	157	229	229
Bryan, Rev. Bernard—
Invited to platform	132	...	...
Invocation by	132	...	...
By-Laws—
Article I—Section 4, To amend (Smith, Proposition 65)	136	163	163
Article III—Section 3, To amend (Steffen, Proposition 109)	168	231	231
Article III—Section 6, To amend (Alford, Proposition 114)	175	231	231
Article V—Section 3, To amend (Draper, Proposition 42)	153	232	232
Further time granted	212	...	...
Article V—Section 3, To strike out part (Donnell, Proposition 92)	166	230	230
Article V—Section 12, To strike out (Needham, Proposition 44)	153	212	212
Article VI—Section 6, To amend (Harris, Proposition 43)	153	212	212
Article VIII—Section 3, To amend (McCahill, Proposition 116)	175	232	232
To add new section in re appeals (Maxwell, Proposition 105)	168	230	230
To amend so as to increase per capita tax (Lovett, Proposition 37)	152	211	211
Canadian Trades and Labor Congress—
To pay per capita tax to (Draper, Proposition 42)	153	232	232
Further time asked	212	...	...
Certificate of Membership—
Amending law in re (Coffey, Proposition 77)	157	228	229
Deposit of, with delinquent union (Condon, Proposition 59)	155	225	225
Clarke, Edward F.—
Name of transferred to deceased list (Toronto Delegation, Proposition 138	228	228	228
Memorial in re (Toronto Delegation, Proposition 137)	228	228	228
Colbert, Organizer Michael—Report of	76–79	...	...
Commercial Telegraphers' Union—
Moral support pledged (Austin, Proposition 118)	175	222	222
Report of conference committee with	217, 218	...	...
Committees—Appointed	135, 136	...	...
Apportionment of (Needham, Proposition 44)	153	212	212
Allied Trades Relations—Appointed	135	...	...
Change in personnel of	163	...	...
Report of	217	...	...
Appeals—Appointed	135	...	...
Report of..173, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189,	220, 221	...	...
Arbitration—Appointed	135	...	...
Change in personnel of	163	...	...
Report of	218, 219	...	...
Armistice between Colorado Springs and Pittsburg—Appointed	165	...	...
Copyright—Appointed	135	...	...
Change in personnel of	163	...	...
Report of	210	...	210
Conference committee with Commercial Telegraphers—Appointed	136	...	...
Compensation of	209	...	209
Report of	217, 218	...	...

Digitized by Google

	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
Committees—Continued.
Credentials—Appointed	135	...	...
Change in personnel of	163	...	...
Reports of	160, 161	...	...
Eight-Hour Day—Appointed	135	...	...
Report of 161, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197,	198, 199	...	...
Report ordered printed in pamphlet form	199	...	...
Finances and Returns—Appointed	135	...	...
Report of 206, 207,	208, 209	...	...
Governmental Ownership of Telegraph—Appointed	135	...	...
Report of	223	...	...
Government Ownership of Typefoundry—Appointed	135	...	...
Label—Appointed	135	...	...
Change in personnel of	163	...	...
Report of	214	...	...
Laws—Appointed	135	...	...
Compensation of	209	...	209
Reports of.....163, 164, 165, 166, 170, 171, 172, 211, 212, 223, 224, 225, 226, 228, 229, 230, 231, 232,	234, 235	...	...
Los Angeles Times Contest—Appointed	135	...	...
Report of.....201, 202,	203, 204	...	204
Miscellaneous Business—Appointed	135	...	...
Changes in personnel of	163, 186	...	...
Reports of 215,	216, 233	...	...
Officers' Reports—Appointed	135	...	...
Report of.....204,	205, 206	...	...
Organization—Appointed	135	...	...
Change in personnel of	163	...	...
Report of	216	...	...
Press—Appointed	135	...	...
Change in personnel of	163	...	...
Report of Federation Delegates—Appointed	135	...	...
Change in personnel of	163	...	...
Report of	214, 215	...	...
Resolution—Appointed	135	...	...
Reports of.....219, 221, 222,	223, 233	...	...
Subordinate Unions—Appointed	135	...	...
Reports of	214	...	...
Thanks—Appointed	135	...	...
Commended by President Lynch	235	...	...
Report of	234, 235	...	...
Typographical Journal—Appointed	135	...	...
Change in personnel of	163	...	...
Report of	233	...	...
Union Label on Text-books—Appointed	135, 136	...	...
Report of	213	...	...
Union Printers' Home—Appointed	135	...	...
Reports of.....212,	213, 233	...	...
Communications—
Colorado Springs Merchants' Association	174	...	...
Colorado Springs Real Estate Exchange	174	...	...
Colorado State Commercial Association	173	...	...
Colorado Springs Telegraph, Editor Davis	179	...	...
Denver Chamber of Commerce	174	...	...
Denver Hotel and Restaurant Keepers' Association	174	...	...
Delegate-Elect A. O. H. Grier	201	...	...
International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union	162	...	...
J. P. McDonnell, Editor National Labor Standard	179	...	...
Mayor of Colorado Springs	174	...	...
Minneapolis Union No. 42	163	...	...
New York Co-operative Press	201	...	...
Pittsburg Iron City Central Trades Council	173	...	...
Retail Clerks' International Association	200	...	...
Secretary Morrison, American Federation of Labor	179	...	...
Toronto Allied Trades Council	170	...	...
Toronto Bakers' Union No. 204	201	...	...
Toronto Bookbinders' Union	169	...	...

Digitized by Google

	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
Communications—Continued.
Trustee McCaffery, Union Printers' Home	174	...	...
United Garment Workers	200	...	...
United Labor League of Pennsylvania	173	...	...
Woman's International Auxiliary	170, 227	...	...
Constitution—
Article I—Section 1, To amend (Kennedy, Proposition 2)	148	163	163
Article I—Section 1, To amend (Kipp, Proposition 3)	149	163	163
Article I—Section 4, To amend (Kipp, Proposition 4)	149	163	163
Substitute adopted	170	170	170
Article II—To add new section (Coffey, Proposition 72)	156	226	226
Article IV—Section 1, To substitute (Coffey, Proposition 73)	157	226	226
Article IV—Section 2, To substitute (Coffey, Proposition 73)	157	226	226
Article VI—Section 6, To amend (Dirks, Proposition 5)	149	164	164
Article VI—Section 7, To amend (Johnson, Proposition 107)	168	231	231
Article VII—Section 1, To amend (Kennedy, Proposition 6)	149	164	164
Article VIII—Section 1, To amend (Kipp, Proposition 7)	149	164	164
Article VIII—Section 3, To amend (Johnson, Proposition 108)	168	231	231
Article IX—Section 7, To substitute (Coffey, Proposition 78)	157	229	229
Article IX—Section 9, To substitute (Coffey, Proposition 75)	157	228	228
Article X—To add new section in re cards for members suspended unions (Coffey, Proposition 74)	157	228	228
Article XIV—Section 1, To substitute (Coffey, Proposition 77)	157	228	229
Article XVII—Section 3, To amend (Dirks, Proposition 8)	149	164	164
To add new section in re organization country printers (Martin, Proposition 41)	153	211	212
To add preamble (Bandlow, Proposition 22)	151	166	170
To add proviso allowing aged members to work for less than scale (Martin, Proposition 40)	153	211	211
Contracts—Members shall not sign private (Wynne, Proposition 87)	158	229	230
Convention—
Hours of	135	...	135
Officers of, appointed	135	...	...
Representation at (Moore, Proposition 111)	175	231	231
Representation at (Clinton Union, Proposition 39)	153	211	211
Copyholders—Admission of (Kennedy, Proposition 2)	148	163	163
Copyright Law—Report of special committee on	210	...	210
Report of standing committee on	109-112	...	...
Resolution in re, to be sent congress	210	...	210
Country Printers—Plan for organization of (Martin, Proposition 41)	153	211	212
Cummings Memorial—Report of committee on	113, 116, 234	...	...
Daniels, Samuel D.—Appeal from decision Home trustees in case of (Rutland Union, Proposition 45)	153	233	233
Deceased Members—
Transfer name of Charles Allan to list of (Hollingsworth, Proposition 126)	176	222	222
Transfer name of E. F. Clarke to list of (Toronto Delegation, Proposition 138)	228	228	228
Transfer name of J. C. Ivers to list of (Aide, Proposition 128)	176	223	223
Transfer name of H. J. McGrann to list of (Johnson, Proposition 139)	228	228	228
Transfer name of A. T. Proctor to list of (Seffing, Proposition 98)	167	219	219
Transfer name of John Sexton to list of (Davy, Proposition 136)	223	223	223
Defense Fund—Establishment of local (Blain, Proposition 51)	154	223	223
Delegate Fund—
To create (Moore, Proposition 111)	175	231	231
To create (Clinton Union, Proposition 39)	153	211	211
Delegates—
Irregularly elected, seated	161	...	...
Late arrivals, seated	170, 186	...	...
List of, presenting credentials	133-135	...	...
Obligation, taken by	135	...	...
Devereux, Organizer J. C.—Report of	79, 80	...	...
Dolan, Organizer T. H.—Report of	80, 81	...	...
Driscoll, Frederick—Address by	171	...	...
Dues—Percentage plan for local (Needham, Proposition 117)	175	232	232
Due Stamps—Amending law in re (Coffey, Proposition 79)	157	229	229

Digitized by Google

	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
Dual Membership (See MEMBERSHIP).
Eight-Hour Day—
Laws conflicting with repealed	200	...	200
Mailers recorded as favoring	200	...	...
Proposition in re, to be included in 1906 book of laws	196	...	196
Reports of special committee on ... 161,	189–199	...	...
Report of International committee on	5–10	...	...
To govern all departments	196	...	196
Election of Officers—
Amending law in re (Steffen, Proposition 109)	168	231	231
Vote of distant unions to be counted (Alford, Proposition 114)	175	231	231
Ellis, George H.—Address by	161, 162	...	...
Exchange of Matter (See LOANING AND BORROWING OF MATTER).
Executive Council—
Amending law in re composition of (Dirks, Proposition 5)	149	164	164
Amending law in re composition of (Dirks, Proposition 58)	155	224	224
Appeal in The Smith Case (Proposition 1) ... 137–148,	179–189	...	189
Approving action in case Kansas City Mailers	219	...	219
Approving action in St. Louis case	204	...	204
Authorized to confer with American Newspaper Publishers' Association in re plate supplements	234	...	234
Resolution concerning parcels post preferred to (Boston Delegation, Proposition 50)	154	233	233
To confer with W. R. Hearst in re starting paper in Philadelphia (Esty, Proposition 134)	210	233	233
To finance Philadelphia Inquirer fight (Philadelphia Delegation, Proposition 64)	136	220	221
To induce congress to provide old age pensions (Berger, Proposition 62)	155	221	222
To submit plan for establishing more efficient workmanship, and technical libraries (Burlington, Proposition 130)	177	215	215
To have all book and job scales expire on same date (Sterling, Proposition 103)	167	214	214
To have all scales expire on same date (Klaus, Proposition 100)	167	214	214
Unionizing of Philadelphia Inquirer referred to (Bandlow, Proposition 122)	176	216	216
Expenses—Of officers and members (Johnson, Proposition 108)	168	231	231
Expulsions, Etc.—
Amended law in re publication of, made effective immediately	232	...	232
Not to be published (Donnell, Proposition 92)	166	230	230
Female Members—Accommodations for at Union Printers' Home (Steele, Proposition 123)	176	212	212
Fennessy, Organizer T. D.—Report of	81	...	...
Fifth Vice-President—Report of	48	...	...
Foreign Languages—
Work in, shall be at scale of union having jurisdiction (Bandlow, Proposition 21)	151	213	213
Foreign Work—In non-union offices at Hamilton, Ohio (Mayer, Proposition 96)	167	228	228
Foremen—
Consideration of age limit by, when employing help (Condon, Proposition 60)	155	219	219
Employment of help by (Croft, Proposition 23)	151	170	170
Importation of help by (Cahill, Proposition 24)	151	171	171
Must give out minimum number of situations (Nock, Proposition 25)	151	171	171
Phalanxing by, constitutes sub-list (Nock, Proposition 29)	151	172	172
Shall confine themselves to hours regulated by law (Barnes, Proposition 27)	151	172	172
Shall not fill place of regular machine operator (Barnes, Proposition 28)	151	172	172
Shall not represent employers in scale conference (Tardif and Vauthier, Proposition 67)	156	225	225
When partner, shall not belong to employers' association (Tardif and Vauthier, Proposition 66)	156	225	225
Fourth Vice-President—
Providing salary for (Kipp, Proposition 7)	149	164	164
Report of	48	...	...

Digitized by Google

	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
Funds—Transfer of (Coffey, Proposition 75)	157	228	228
General Laws—
Section 10—To amend (Sullivan, Proposition 12)	149	165	165
Section 32—To amend (Moore, Proposition 13)	150	165	165
Section 32—To substitute (Coffey, Proposition 76)	157	228	228
Section 36—To amend (Moore, Proposition 14)	150	165	165
Section 36—To amend (Sullivan, Proposition 15)	150	165	165
Section 36—To amend (Dawson, Proposition 16)	150	165	165
Section 36—To amend (Tardif and Vauthier, Proposition 68)	156	225	225
Section 36—To amend (Dawson, Proposition 95)	167	230	230
Section 38—To substitute (Coffey, Proposition 79)	157	229	229
Section 41—To amend (Blain, Proposition 51)	154	223	223
Section 41—To amend (Needham, Proposition 117)	175	232	232
Section 44—To amend (Burlington, Proposition 131)	177	232	232
Section 45—To amend (Forbes, Proposition 93)	166	230	230
Section 47—To amend (Condon, Proposition 59)	155	225	225
Section 59—To amend (Goodkey, Proposition 52)	154	223	224
Section 60—To amend (Goodkey, Proposition 52)	154	223	224
Section 60—To amend (Barnes, Proposition 88)	158	230	230
Section 61—To amend (Goodkey, Proposition 52)	154	223	224
Section 64—To substitute (Coffey, Proposition 82)	158	225	225
Section 64—To substitute (Coffey, Proposition 70)	156	225	225
Section 65—To substitute (Woody, Proposition 17)	150	165	165
Section 66—To amend (Reilly, Proposition 113)	175	231	231
Section 71—To amend (Buehler, Proposition 18)	150	165	166
Section 72—To amend (Arnold, Proposition 55)	155	224	224
Section 72—To amend (Gude, Proposition 56)	155	224	224
Section 72—To amend (Tardif and Vauthier, Proposition 69)	156	225	225
Section 80—To substitute (Coffey, Proposition 80)	157	229	229
Section 80—To amend (Moore, Proposition 112)	175	231	231
Section 80—To amend (Seaman, Proposition 19)	150	166	166
Section 80—To amend (Knapp, Proposition 20)	150	166	166
Section 87—To add to (Bandlow, Proposition 21)	151	213	213
Recommitted	166	...	...
Section 94—To amend (Croft, Proposition 23)	151	170	170
Section 95—To amend (Cahill, Proposition 24)	151	171	171
Section 96—To amend (Nock, Proposition 115)	175	231	232
Section 96—To amend (Nock, Proposition 25)	151	171	171
Section 96—To amend (Barnes, Proposition 26)	151	171	171
Section 97—To amend (Barnes, Proposition 27)	151	172	172
Section 98—To amend (Barnes, Proposition 28)	151	172	172
Section 100—To amend (Nock, Proposition 29)	151	172	172
Section 100—To amend (Nock, Proposition 115)	175	231	232
Section 123—To amend (Cantwell, Proposition 57)	155	224	224
Section 131—To amend (Wynne, Proposition 87)	158	229	230
Section 136—To amend (Nock, Proposition 30)	151	172	172
Section 136—To amend (Kennedy, Proposition 31)	152	172	172
Section 136—To amend (Kennedy, Proposition 32)	152	172	172
Section 136—To amend (Nock, Proposition 115)	175	231	232
Section 148—To strike out (Needham, Proposition 117)	175	232	232
Section 149—To substitute (West, Proposition 33)	152	211	211
Recommitted	172	...	...
Section 165—To strike out (West, Proposition 33)	152	211	211
Recommitted	172	...	...
Add new section in re label for unorganized towns (Johnson, Proposition 38)	152	211	211
Add new section in re appointment committees (Needham, Proposition 44)	153	212	212
Add new section in re pensions (Sullivan, Proposition 53)	154	224	224
Add new section in re quarterly reports (Sullivan, Proposition 12)	149	165	165
Add new section in re subs (Coffey, Proposition 81)	158	229	229
Add new section in re employment machine-tenders (Coffey, Proposition 86)	158	229	229
Add new section in re competency of machine operators (West, Proposition 36)	152	211	211

Digitized by Google

	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
General Laws—Continued.
Add new section in re machine-tenders (West, Proposition 35)	152	173	173
Add new section in re jumping machines (Croft, Proposition 34)	152	172	173
Add new section in re union-made goods (Substitute for Proposition 47, West)	153	214	214
Add new section in re local initiation fee (Coffey, Proposition 84)	158	229	229
Add new section in re Typographical Union Memorial Day (Coffey, Proposition 83)	158	229	229
Add new section in re honorary membership (Coffey, Proposition 71)	156	225	225
Add new section prohibiting foremen from representing employers in scale conference (Tardif and Vauthier, Proposition 67)	156	225	225
Add new section in re partner-foremen (Tardif and Vauthier, Proposition 66)	156	225	225
Add new section in re dual membership (Members Joliet Union, Proposition 89)	158	230	230
Add new section in re admission country printers (Coffey, Proposition 85)	158	229	229
Add new section in re loan fund (Burlington, Proposition 131)	177	232	232
Add new section in re meetings subordinate unions (Johnson, Proposition 106)	168	231	231
Glockling, Robert—Addresses by	133, 200	...	...
Gompers, Samuel—Address by	196	...	...
Government Ownership of Telegraph—
Delegates to American Federation of Labor to ask that, be made preferred measure	223	...	223
Report of special committee on	223	...	...
Report of standing committee on	112, 113	...	...
Graham, Alderman J. J.—Address by	132	...	...
Green, William—Address by	162	...	...
Hay, Arthur—Address by	202–204	...	...
Hayes, Organizer M. S.—Report of	81, 82	...	...
Hays, Organizer John W.—Report of	82, 83	...	...
Hays, First Vice-President—Report of	44–46	...	...
Headquarters—To remove International to Colorado Springs (Jacksonville Union, Proposition 97)	167	209	209
Higgins, M. P.—Address by	199	...	...
Hill, Organizer A. E.—Report of	83–88	...	...
Hearst, William R.—
Executive Council to confer with, in re starting paper in Philadelphia (Esty, Proposition 134)	210	233	233
Expressing appreciation of friendly attitude of (Rhoades, Proposition 133)	209	209	209
Hogan, Organizer J. W.—Report of	88	...	...
Hudspeth, Organizer H. S.—Report of	88	...	...
Industrial Workers of World—Trade unionists warned against (Berger, Proposition 63)	155	222	222
Initiation Fee—
For printers in unorganized towns (Moore, Proposition 13)	150	165	165
Of local unions, shall not be less than $10 (Coffey, Proposition 84)	158	229	229
Inland Typefoundry—Lockout in (St. Louis Delegation, Proposition 99)	167	216	216
Importation of Help—To amend law in re (Cahill, Proposition 24)	151	171	171
Insurance (See Life Insurance).
International Strife—In re publicity of (Reilly, Proposition 119)	176	232	232
International Officers (See Election of Officers).
International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union—
Telegram from	162	...	...
Telegram to	137	...	137
International Union—To change name of (Kipp, Proposition 3)	149	163	163
Ivers, John C.—Name of transferred to deceased list (Aide, Proposition 128)	176	223	223
Invitations—
To visit O'Keefe's Emporium	165	...	165
To car ride	186	...	...
To ladies to Hanlan's Point	216	...	...
Invocation—By Rev. Bernard Bryan	132	...	...
James, Organizer W. R.—Report of	88, 89	...	...

Digitized by Google

	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
Label—
Amending law in re use of (Buehler, Proposition 18)	150	165	166
Amending law in re use of (Arnold, Proposition 55)	155	224	224
For unorganized towns (Johnson, Proposition 38)	152	211	211
Unions urged to have public libraries use books bearing (Label Committee, Proposition 135)	214	214	214
Use of on theatrical printing, etc. (West, Proposition 46)	153	214	214
Use of by proprietor members (Tardif and Vauthier, Proposition 69)	156	225	225
Landers, Samuel—Address by	212	...	...
Leache, Organizer C. L.—Report of	89	...	...
Life Insurance—Plan for compulsory (Kennedy, Proposition 10)	149	164	164
Loan Fund—To create (Burlington, Proposition 131)	177	232	232
Loaning and Borrowing Matter—
To amend law in re (Nock, Proposition 30)	151	172	172
To amend law in re (Nock, Proposition 115)	175	231	232
To amend law in re (Kennedy, Proposition 32)	152	172	172
To amend law in re (Kennedy, Proposition 31)	152	172	172
Machine Tenders—(See Typesetting Machines).
McVicar, John—Address by	133	...	...
McGrann, H. J.—Name transferred to deceased list (Johnson, Proposition 139)	228	228	228
McLoughlin, Organizer J. E.—Report of	90–98	...	...
Meehan, Edward—Address by	133	...	...
Meeting Place—
Colorado Springs nominated	173	...	...
Pittsburg nominated	173	...	...
Result of vote for	184	...	...
Tellers appointed to count vote for	184	...	...
Meetings—Time for, of local unions (Johnson, Proposition 106)	168	231	231
Members—Aged, to work below scale (Martin, Proposition 40)	153	211	211
Membership—
Concerning honorary (Coffey, Proposition 71)	156	225	225
Application for, from country printers (Coffey, Proposition 85)	158	229	229
Persons holding, in other unions, shall not be admitted (Members Joliet Union, Proposition 89)	158	230	230
Prohibiting employers and partner-foremen from holding active (Tardif and Vauthier, Proposition 68)	156	225	225
Proprietors holding, shall take withdrawal cards (Barnes, Proposition 88)	158	230	230
Proprietors not required to hold (Dawson, Proposition 95)	167	230	230
Methodist Episcopal Church South—Representative to attend conference of (Sullivan and Jordan, Proposition 129)	176	215	215
Militia—Members to hold aloof from (Berger, Proposition 61)	155	220	220
Miller, Second Vice-President—Report of	46–47	...	...
Mulcahy, Third Vice-President—Report of	47–48	...	...
Myrick, William—Appeal from decision Home trustees in case of (Kennedy and Mulvihill, Proposition 104)	168	212	213
Nuernberger, Fifth Vice-President—Report of	48	...	...
Officers of Convention—
Appointed	135	...	...
Compensation of (finance committee's report)	209	...	209
Obligation of	135	...	...
List of	135	...	...
Old Age Pensions—
Government to pay (Berger, Proposition 62)	155	221	222
To provide (Sterling, Proposition 102)	167	209	209
To provide (Sullivan, Proposition 53)	154	224	224
To provide (Lovett, Proposition 11)	149	164	164
To provide (Dirks, Proposition 9)	149	164	164
Organization—Work of, in Louisville (O'Connor, Proposition 90)	159	216	216
Parcels Post—In re agitation for (Boston Delegation, Proposition 50)	154	233	233
Penalties—Add new section in re (Coffey, Proposition 74)	157	228	228
Pension (See Old Age Pensions).
Philadelphia Inquirer—In re unionizing of (Bandlow, Proposition 122)	176	216	216
Philadelphia Union—In re financial aid for (Philadelphia Delegation, Proposition 64)	136	220	221
Presentations	235	...	...

Digitized by Google

	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
President Lynch—
Congratulated on unionizing Brooklyn Eagle	206	...	...
Directed to continue organization work in Louisville (O'Connor, Proposition 90)	159	216	216
Report of	5-44	...	...
Response to addresses of welcome	133	...	...
Three cheers for	236	...	...
Priority Law—To amend (Croft, Proposition 23)	151	170	170
Privileges of Floor—To amend law in re (Smith, Proposition 65)	136	163	163
Proctor, A. T.—Name transferred to deceased list (Seffing, Proposition 98)	167	219	219
Proofreaders—To amend law in re (Kennedy, Proposition 2)	148	163	163
Propositions—
Presented before Wednesday noon	163	...	163
Presented in duplicate	163	...	163
Propositions, Resolutions, Remarks, etc., by Authors—
Aide (Kansas City), to transfer name of J. C. Ivers to deceased list (Proposition 128)	176	223	223
Alford (Manila), to amend section 6, article iii, by-laws (Proposition 114)	175	231	231
Anderson (Macon), remarks, etc.	163, 170, 219, 233, 234	...	...
Seconding nomination Colorado Springs	175	...	...
Arnold (Milwaukee), to amend section 72, general laws (Proposition 55)	155	224	224
Austin (Portland, Ore.), pledging moral support to Commercial Telegraphers' Union (Proposition 118)	175	222	222
Bandlow (Cleveland German-American), remarks	164, 166, 185, 210, 220	...	...
In re unionizing Philadelphia Inquirer (Proposition 122)	176	216	216
Recorded as voting against substitute for Proposition 22	170	...	...
Recorded as voting against committee's report on Proposition 61	220	...	...
To add preamble to constitution (Proposition 22)	151	166	170
To add to section 87, general laws (Proposition 21)	151	213	213
Barnes (Chattanooga), remarks	164, 184, 214, 217	...	...
To amend section 60, general laws (Proposition 88)	158	230	230
To amend section 96, general laws (Proposition 26)	151	171	171
To amend section 97, general laws (Proposition 27)	151	172	172
To amend section 98, general laws (Proposition 28)	151	172	172
Barnum (Washington, D. C.), seconding nomination of Pittsburg for next meeting place	173	...	...
Berger (Milwaukee Newspaper Writers), remarks	187, 220	...	...
In re Industrial Workers of World (Proposition 63)	155	222	222
In re old age pensions (Proposition 62)	155	221	222
In re militia (Proposition 61)	155	220	220
Biwer (St. Louis German-American), recorded as voting against committee's report on Proposition 61	220	...	...
Black (Sioux Falls), remarks	185	...	...
Blain (Seattle), to amend section 41, general laws (Proposition 51)	154	223	223
Boston Delegation—Concerning parcels post (Proposition 50)	154	233	233
Brady (Roanoke), remarks	217	...	...
Providing funds for Home inmates on furlough (Proposition 124)	176	213	213
Bramwood (Secretary-Treasurer), law in Smith case	184	...	...
On Smith case	184, 185	...	...
On beneficial features	164	...	...
Brown (Topeka), seconding nomination of Colorado Springs	175	...	...
Buehler (Milwaukee), remarks, etc.	218	...	...
Recorded as against committee's report in Proposition 61	220	...	...
To amend section 71, general laws (Proposition 18)	150	165	166
Burlington (St. Joseph), in re establishment of technical libraries (Proposition 130)	177	215	215
To amend section 44, general laws (Proposition 131)	177	232	232
To create loan fund (Proposition 131)	177	232	232
Cahill (St. Paul), remarks, etc.	171, 197	...	...
To amend section 95, general laws (Proposition 24)	151	171	171
Cantwell (Montreal), to amend section 123, general laws (Proposition 57)	155	224	224
Cherry (Indianapolis), remarks, etc.	165, 211	...	...
Clinton (Iowa) Union—To create fund for delegates' expenses (Proposition 39)	153	211	211

Digitized by Google

Propositions, Resolutions, Remarks, etc., by Authors—Continued.	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
Coffey (Lincoln, Neb.), remarks	217	...	...
To add to article ii, constitution (Proposition 72)	156	226	226
To substitute for sections 1 and 2, article iv, constitution (Proposition 73)	157	226	226
To substitute for section 7, article ix, constitution (Proposition 78)	157	229	229
To substitute for section 9, article ix, constitution (Proposition 75)	157	228	228
To add new section to article x, constitution (Proposition 74)	157	228	228
To substitute for section 1, article xiv, constitution (Proposition 77)	157	228	229
To substitute for section 38, general laws (Proposition 79)	157	229	229
To substitute for section 64, general laws (Proposition 70)	156	225	225
To substitute for section 64, general laws (Proposition 82)	158	225	225
To substitute for section 80, general laws (Proposition 80)	157	229	229
To add new section in re honorary membership (Proposition 71)	156	225	225
To add new section in re subs (Proposition 81)	158	229	229
To add new section in re Typographical Union Memorial Day (Proposition 83)	158	229	229
To add new section in re initiation fee (Proposition 84)	158	229	229
To add new section in re admission country printers (Proposition 85)	158	229	229
To add new section in re machine-tenders (Proposition 86)	158	229	229
Condon (Des Moines), in re age limit (Proposition 60)	155	219	219
Motion by	219	...	...
To amend section 47, general laws (Proposition 59)	155	225	225
Creager (Springfield, Ohio), remarks	164	...	...
Croft (Galveston), excused from attendance	210	...	...
To add new section to general laws in re jumping machines (Proposition 34)	152	172	173
Croft (Boston), to amend section 94, general laws (Proposition 23)	151	170	170
Crosman (Boston), remarks	219	...	...
Recorded against committee's report on Proposition 61	220	...	...
Regarding Plank 10, American Federation of Labor platform (Proposition 49)	154	219	219
To have all book and job scales expire same time (Proposition 48)	154	228	228
Damer (Mobile), to amend section 12, allied trades agreement (Proposition 94)	166	217	217
Davy (Indianapolis), to transfer name of John Sexton to deceased list (Proposition 136)	223	223	223
Dawson (New Kensington), to amend section 36, general laws (Proposition 16)	150	165	165
To amend section 36, general laws (Proposition 95)	167	230	230
Dirks (St. Louis), remarks, etc. 164,	214, 227	...	...
In re old age pensions (Proposition 9)	149	164	164
To amend section 6, article vi, constitution (Proposition 58)	155	224	224
To amend section 6, article vi, constitution (Proposition 5)	149	164	164
To amend section 3, article xvii, constitution (Proposition 8)	149	164	164
Donnell (Cincinnati), remarks, etc. 184, 198,	217, 232	...	...
To abrogate allied trades agreement (Proposition 120)	176	217	217
To strike out part section 3, article v, by-laws (Proposition 92)	166	230	230
Draper (Ottawa, Ont.), remarks, etc. 135, 173,	187, 219	...	...
To amend section 3, article v, by-laws (Proposition 42)	153	232	232
Esty (Paterson), executive council to consult with W. R. Hearst in re starting paper in Philadelphia (Proposition 134)	210	233	233
Everett (Memphis), remarks	217	...	...
Executive Council, appeal in The Smith Case (Proposition 1) .137–148	179–189	...	189
Faries (Philadelphia), remarks, etc. 136,	137, 184	...	...
Fennessy (Los Angeles), remarks, etc. 172, 173, 199,	217, 227	...	...
In re battle cry	235	...	235
In re armistice between Colorado Springs and Pittsburg	165	...	165
Forbes (Jersey City), to amend section 45, general laws (Proposition 93)	166	230	230
Freeman (Binghamton), extending congratulations to International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union	137	...	137

Digitized by Google

Propositions, Resolutions, Remarks, etc., by Authors—Continued.	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
Goodkey (Washington, D. C.), to amend sections 59 and 61, general laws (Proposition 52)	154	223	224
Gray (Aurora), to encourage organization woman's auxiliaries (Proposition 125)	176	222	222
Gleason (New Castle), remarks	172	...	...
Green (Atlanta), remarks, etc.....163, 164, 166, 171, 183, 199, 210, 217, 220,	226, 230	...	...
Gude (Springfield, Ill.), to amend section 133, general laws (Proposition 56)	155	224	224
Harris (Washington, Ind.), remarks	188	...	...
To amend section 6, article vi, by-laws (Proposition 43)	153	212	212
Hayes (Cleveland), address on eight-hour day	198, 199	...	...
Remarks, etc.....164, 166, 173,	184, 189	...	...
Henderson (Rochester), remarks	217	...	...
Recorded as against committee's report on Proposition 61	220	...	...
Hertenstein (St. Louis), remarks, etc	200, 206	...	...
Hollingsworth (Jacksonville, Fla.), to transfer name of Charles Allan to deceased list (Proposition 126)	176	222	222
Hughes (Providence), remarks	199	...	...
Jacksonville (Fla.) Union—To remove headquarters to Colorado Springs (Proposition 97)	167	209	209
James (Toronto), remarks	217	...	...
Johnson (Houston), to add new section to general laws in re label (Proposition 38)	152	211	211
Johnson (Memphis), to transfer name of H. J. McGrann to deceased list (Proposition 139)	228	228	228
Johnson (Washington, D. C.), instructing appeals committee to report on Proposition 1	136	...	137
Instructing secretary-treasurer to note on ballot that proposed increase in officers' salaries will not increase per capita tax	164	...	164
Remarks, etc.	170, 222	...	...
To amend section 7, article vi, constitution (Proposition 107)	168	231	231
To amend section 3, article viii, constitution (Proposition 108)	168	231	231
To add new section to general laws in re meetings local unions (Proposition 106)	168	231	231
Joliet Union, Members of, to add new section to general laws in re dual membership (Proposition 89)	158	230	230
Jordan and Sullivan (Nashville), to send representative to conference Methodist Episcopal Church South (Proposition 129)	176	215	215
Kennedy (Minneapolis), in re compulsory life insurance (Proposition 10)	149	164	164
To amend section 1, article i, constitution (Proposition 2)	148	163	163
To amend section 1, article viii, constitution (Proposition 6)	149	164	164
To amend section 136, general laws (Proposition 31)	152	172	172
To amend section 136, general laws (Proposition 32)	152	172	172
Kennedy and Mulvihill (Minneapolis), appeal from decision Home trustees, case William Myrick (Proposition 104)	168	212	213
Kipp (Columbus Newspaper Writers), remarks, etc	164, 184	...	...
To amend section 1, article i, constitution (Proposition 3)	149	163	163
To amend section 4, article i, constitution (Proposition 4)	149	163	163
Substitute for	170	170	170
To amend section 1, article viii, constitution (Proposition 7)	149	164	164
Klaus (St. Paul), to have all scales expire same date (Proposition 100)	167	214	214
Klein (Pittsburg), nominating Pittsburg	173	...	...
Knapp (Washington, D. C.), to amend section 80, general laws (Proposition 20)	150	166	166
Kreft (Philadelphia), remarks, etc....136, 137, 164, 172, 183, 184, 199,	221, 222	...	...
Law Committee—Authorizing executive council to confer with American Newspaper Publishers' Association on plate supplements (Proposition 140)	234	234	234
Lovett (Charleston), to increase per capita tax and add to Journal fund (Proposition 37)	152	211	211
Regarding protective insurance (Proposition 11)	149	164	164

Digitized by Google

Propositions, Resolutions, Remarks, etc., by Authors—Continued.	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
Lynch (President), appointing committees	135, 136	...	...
Asking early disposition Smith case	136	...	...
On entertainment	235	...	...
On Smith case	183, 184, 185, 186	...	...
Report of, on Joint Agreement, approved	217	...	217
Ruling in re benefits to members coming out of open offices	199	...	...
Martin (Denver), to allow aged members to work for less than the scale (Proposition 39)	152	211	211
To add new section to constitution in re organization country printers (Proposition 4)	153	211	212
Mayer (Hamilton), in re foreign work in Hamilton non-union offices (Proposition 96)	167	228	228
Maxwell (Omaha), to add new section to general laws in re appeals (Proposition 105)	168	230	230
Miller (Indianapolis German-American), excused from voting on Smith case	189	...	...
McCahill (Columbus), remarks	171, 199, 217	...	...
To amend section 3, article viii, by-laws (Proposition 116)	175	232	232
McInerney (Chicago Mailers), remarks	217	...	...
McLogan (Detroit), remarks, etc	137, 217, 222	...	...
That railroad tickets be good to bearer (Proposition 101)	167	222	222
Moore (Shreveport), to amend section 32, general laws (Proposition 13)	150	165	165
To amend section 36, general laws (Proposition 14)	150	165	165
Moore (Fort Worth), to amend section 80, general laws (Proposition 112)	175	231	231
To suspend law in re publication names of applicants from unorganized towns (Proposition 110)	175	231	231
To create delegate fund (Proposition 111)	175	231	231
Needham (Des Moines), to add new section to general laws in re committees (Proposition 44)	153	212	212
To strike out section 12, article v, by-laws (Proposition 44)	153	212	212
To amend section 41, general laws (Proposition 117)	175	232	232
To strike out section 148, general laws (Proposition 117)	175	232	232
Nelis (Chicago), in re typothetæ schools (Proposition 121)	176	214	214
Nock (Birmingham), remarks, etc	175, 188, 217, 222	...	...
To amend section 96, general laws (Proposition 115)	175	231	232
To amend section 96, general laws (Proposition 25)	151	171	171
To amend section 100, general laws (Proposition 115)	175	231	232
To amend section 100, general laws (Proposition 29)	151	172	172
To amend section 136, general laws (Proposition 30)	151	172	172
To amend section 136, general laws (Proposition 115)	175	231	232
O'Connor (Louisville), in re organization work in Louisville (Proposition 90)	159	216	216
Philadelphia Delegation, in re financial aid Inquirer fight (Proposition 64)	136	220	221
Reilly (Dallas), remarks	171	...	...
Publicity to internal strifes (Proposition 119)	176	232	232
To amend section 66, general laws (Proposition 113)	175	231	231
Rhoades (Boston), expressing appreciation friendly attitude W. R. Hearst (Proposition 133)	209	209	209
Motion by	224	...	...
Rutland Union, appeal from decision Home trustees, case S. D. Daniels (Proposition 45)	155	233	233
Scranton Delegation, in re convention 1907	235	...	...
Seaman (Cincinnati), remarks, etc	163, 219	...	...
To amend section 80, general laws (Proposition 19)	150	166	166
Seffing (Cleveland), to transfer name A. T. Proctor to deceased list (Proposition 98)	167	219	219
Senker (Scranton), remarks	217	...	...
Sherman (Denver), remarks, etc	163, 164, 175, 217, 220	...	...
Instructing secretary-treasurer to issue a circular calling attention to sections 73 and 76, general laws (Proposition 91)	159	215	219

Digitized by Google

Propositions, Resolutions, Remarks, etc., by Authors—Continued.	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
Smith (Philadelphia), remarks, etc.....135,	136, 183	...	...
Expelled from convention (Proposition 1).....137–148,	179–189	...	189
Explanation by.....	187	...	...
To amend section 4, article i, by-laws (Proposition 65).....	136	163	163
Vacates seat	189	...	...
Smith (Lincoln), extending greetings to Woman's International Auxiliary	200	...	200
Snyder (Colorado Springs), nominating Colorado Springs.....	173	...	...
Remarks, etc.	184, 201	...	...
Steele (Washington), remarks, etc.....136, 163, 166,	184, 188	...	...
In re accommodations for female members at Home (Proposition 123)	176	212	212
Steffen (Cleveland), remarks.....	217	...	...
To amend section 3, article iii, by-laws (Proposition 109).....	168	231	231
Sterling (Boston), to have all book and job scales expire same date (Proposition 103)	167	214	214
To provide old age pensions (Proposition 102).....	167	209	209
St. Louis Delegation, in re lockout in Inland Typefoundry (Proposition 99)	167	216	216
Sullivan (Cincinnati), to amend article v, Home laws (Proposition 54)	154	224	224
To provide pensions for members (Proposition 53).....	154	224	224
Sullivan (Lafayette), to amend section 36, general laws (Proposition 15)	150	165	165
Sullivan (Nashville), to amend section 10, general laws (Proposition 12)	149	165	165
Sullivan and Jordan (Nashville), to send representative to conference Methodist Episcopal Church South (Proposition 129).....	176	215	215
Tardif and Vauthier (Jacques Cartier), prohibiting foremen from representing employer in scale conference (Proposition 67).....	156	225	225
Prohibiting partner-foremen from belonging to employers' associations (Proposition 66).....	156	225	225
To amend section 36, general laws (Proposition 68).....	156	225	225
To amend section 72, general laws (Proposition 69).....	156	225	225
Throssell (Newark), remarks	185	...	...
Tolan (New York), remarks.....	164, 217	...	...
In re improving workmanship (Proposition 132).....	177	215	216
Toronto Delegation, memorial in re E. F. Clarke (Proposition 137)....	228	228	228
To transfer name E. F. Clarke to deceased list (Proposition 138)..	228	228	228
Vauthier (See TARDIF AND VAUTHIER).
West (Brockton), endorsing label Boot and Shoe Workers (Proposition 47)	153	214	214
In re use of label on theatrical printing (Proposition 46).....	153	214	214
Remarks, etc.	163, 214	...	...
To substitute for section 149, general laws (Proposition 33).....	152	211	211
Recommitted	172	...	...
To strike out section 165, general laws (Proposition 33).....	152	211	211
Recommitted	172	...	...
To add new section to general laws in re machine-tenders (Proposition 35)	152	173	173
To add new section to general laws in re competency machine-operators (Proposition 36).....	152	211	211
White (San Francisco), remarks, etc.....184,	188, 217	...	...
Woody (Richmond), to substitute for section 65, general laws (Proposition 17)	150	165	165
Wright (Ashtabula), remarks, etc.....	220, 226	...	...
Wynne (Chicago), to amend section 131, general laws (Proposition 87)	158	229	230
Proprietors—
Members becoming, shall be transferred to honorary list (Sullivan, Proposition 15)	150	165	165
Shall take withdrawal cards (Barnes, Proposition 88).....	158	230	230
Shall not be required to become members (Dawson, Proposition 16)...	150	165	165
Shall not be required to be active members (Dawson, Proposition 95).	167	230	230
Shall pay International dues only (Moore, Proposition 14).....	150	165	165

Digitized by Google

	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
Quarterly Reports—Amending law in re (Sullivan, Proposition 12)	149	165	165
Radley, Organizer R. F.—Report of	98–99	...	...
Randall, Edward—Address by	133	...	...
Railroad Tickets—Congress to pass law making all, good to bearer (McLogan, Proposition 101)	167	222	222
Reports of Officers—
Committee on appointed	135	...	...
Delegates to American Federation of Labor	105–109	...	...
Fifth vice-president	48	...	...
First vice-president	44–46	...	...
Fourth vice-president	48	...	...
Organizer Birdsall	74	...	...
Organizer Bonnington	74, 75	...	...
Organizer Boyle	76	...	...
Organizer Brady	75, 76	...	...
Organizer Colbert	76–79	...	...
Organizer Devereux	79, 80	...	...
Organizer Dolan	80, 81	...	...
Organizer Fennessy	81	...	...
Organizer Hayes	81, 82	...	...
Organizer Hays	82, 83	...	...
Organizer Hill	83–88	...	...
Organizer Hogan	88	...	...
Organizer Hudspeth	88	...	...
Organizer James	88, 89	...	...
Organizer Leache	89	...	...
Organizer McLoughlin	90–98	...	...
Organizer Radley	98, 99	...	...
Organizer Rodier	99, 100	...	...
Organizer Rust	99	...	...
Organizer Scott	100–103	...	...
Organizer Wells	103, 104	...	...
Organizer Wilson	104	...	...
Organizer Woodrow	104, 105	...	...
President Lynch	5–44	...	...
Second vice-president	46, 47	...	...
Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood	49–73	...	...
Standing Committees—
Copyright law	109–112	...	...
Cummings memorial	113–116	...	...
Government ownership of telegraph	112, 113	...	...
Union label on text-books	116	...	...
Third vice-president	47, 48	...	...
Union Printers' Home	117–131	...	...
Representation at Conventions—
Amending law in re (Coffey, Proposition 73)	157	226	226
In re plan for (Clinton Union, Proposition 39)	153	211	211
Resolutions—To strike out No. 8 (Blain, Proposition 51)	154	223	223
Rodier, Organizer J. A.—Report of	99, 100	...	...
Rust, Organizer F. A.—Report of	99	...	...
Salaries of International Officers—To increase (Kennedy, Proposition 5)	149	164	164
Salaries and Expenses (See EXPENSES).
Scales—
To have all book and job scales expire same time (Sterling, Proposition 103)	167	214	214
To have all expire at same time (Klaus, Proposition 100)	167	214	214
Scott, Organizer Charles T.—Report of	100–103	...	...
Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood—
Commended by finance committee	206–209	...	...
Commended by committee on officers' reports	206	...	...
Instructed to note on ballot that proposed increase in officers' salaries will not increase per capita tax	164	...	164
Instructed to issue circular calling attention to sections 73 and 76, general laws (Sherman, Proposition 91)	159	215	215

Digitized by Google

	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood—Continued.
List of delegates read by	133-135	...	...
On Philadelphia case	221	...	...
On Smith case	185	...	...
Report of	47-73	...	...
Supplementing list of delegates	170	...	...
Three cheers for	236	...	...
To include in Book of Laws proposition providing for eight-hour day	196	...	196
To have 12 and 18 point labels made of steel	213	...	213
Sexton, John—Name transferred to deceased list (Davy, Proposition 136)	223	223	223
Six-Day Law—
To amend (Moore, Proposition 112)	175	231	231
To amend (Coffey, Proposition 80)	157	229	229
To amend (Knapp, Proposition 20)	150	166	166
To amend (Seaman, Proposition 19)	150	166	166
Small, A. D.—Address by	218	...	...
Smith, Prof. Goldwin—Address by	132	...	...
Smoking—Prohibited	163	...	163
Standard of Type—To amend law in re (Gude, Proposition 56)	155	224	224
Stevenson, Hugh—Address by	132	...	...
St. Louis Case—Action executive council in, approved	204	...	...
Strike Benefits—To amend law in re (Cantwell, Proposition 57)	155	224	224
Sub-Lists—
Amending law in re (Nock, Proposition 115)	175	231	232
Phalanxing by foremen constitutes (Nock, Proposition 29)	151	172	172
Substitutes—To add new section in re (Coffey, Proposition 81)	158	229	229
Subordinate Branches—
Names for (Kipp, Proposition 4)	149	163	163
Substitute for	170	170	170
Technical Libraries—In re establishment of (Burlington, Proposition 130)	177	215	215
The Smith Case—See Report of Appeals Committee	179-189	...	...
Toronto Delegation—To transfer name E. F. Clarke to deceased list (Proposition 138)	228	228	228
Typesetting Machines—
Employment of help to clean and wipe (Reilly, Proposition 113)	175	231	231
Foreman shall not fill place of regular operator (Barnes, Proposition 28)	151	172	172
In re jumping (Croft, Proposition 34)	152	172	173
In re competency of operators of (West, Proposition 36)	152	211	211
In re learners on (Coffey, Proposition 70)	156	225	225
In re learners on (Coffey, Proposition 82)	158	225	225
Operators of, may accept bonus (Woody, Proposition 17)	150	165	165
Machine-tenders shall have no control over operators (West, Proposition 35)	152	173	173
Unions shall set degree of competency for operators of (Barnes, Proposition 26)	151	171	171
Where three used, machinist must be employed (Coffey, Proposition 86)	158	229	229
Typographical Journal—
Policy of, endorsed	233	...	233
Technical department for, suggested	233	...	233
To increase per capita tax and devote to (Lovett, Proposition 37)	152	211	211
Unions to furnish apprentices with (McCahill, Proposition 116)	175	232	232
Typographical Union Memorial Day—To establish (Coffey, Proposition 83)	158	229	229
Union Label on Text-Books—
Report of standing committee on	116	...	...
Report of special committee on	213, 214	...	...
Union Printers' Home—
Amending law in re agent of (Johnson, Proposition 107)	168	231	231
Appeal from decision trustees of, case William Myrick (Kennedy and Mulvihill, Proposition 104)	168	212	213
Appeal from decision trustees of, case S. D. Daniels (Rutland Union, Proposition 45)	153	233	233
Funds for inmates of, on furlough (Brady, Proposition 124)	176	213	213
Report of Trustees	117-131	...	...
To amend article v, by-laws of (Sullivan, Proposition 54)	154	224	224
To provide accommodations for female members at (Steele, Proposition 123)	176	212	212

Digitized by Google

	Introduced.	Com's Report.	Final Action.
United Typothetæ—In re committee from	137	...	...
Maintenance of schools by (Nelis, Proposition 121)	176	214	214
Urquhart, Thomas—Address by	133	...	...
Wells, Organizer D. M.—Report of	103, 104	...	...
Whitney, Hon. J. P.—Address by	132	...	...
Wilson, Organizer W. B.—Report of	104	...	...
Withdrawal Card—To amend law in re (Goodkey, Proposition 52)	154	223	224
Woman's Auxiliaries—To encourage (Gray, Proposition 125)	176	222	222
Woman's International Auxiliary—Greetings to	200	...	200
Letter from	227	...	...
Working Cards—In re local agreement to recognize (Forbes, Proposition 93)	166	230	230
Woodrow, Organizer S. T.—Report of	104, 105	...	...
Workmanship—In re improving efficiency of (Tolan, Proposition 132)	177	215	216
Wray, Henry Russell—Address by	173, 174	...	...

Digitized by Google

THE MECHANISM OF THE LINOTYPE

By JOHN S. THOMPSON

Author of "History of Composing Machines," "Correct Keyboard Fingering," etc.

THE REVISED SECOND EDITION CONTAINS CHAPTERS ON THE

DOUBLE-MAGAZINE MACHINE
THE "PICA" MACHINE OR MODEL THREE
THE TWO-LETTER MACHINE

And gives full and complete instructions on their care and mechanism. Every adjustment fully described and illustrated. The only up-to-date and authoritative work on the subject.
List of Technical Questions to assist students of the Linotype, and Valuable Hints on the Erection of Machines and Handling of Tools

Flexible Leather, $2.00 postpaid : Address all orders to

THE INLAND PRINTER COMPANY

CHICAGO & NEW YORK

Mr. Foreman or Supt.:

If you want a better soap than you are now using in your shop, send

$4.50 for ½ gross, or
$8.50 for 1 gross of

Puck's Soap

(LARGE SIZE)

as a trial order. If it is not the best soap you ever used, send it back, and we will refund the money. We'll pay the freight.

(Ask the editor of this Journal as to our responsibility)

N. B.—This offer applies only in cities and towns where PUCK'S SOAP is not on sale at retail. Write for sample.

The Puck Soap Co., Des Moines, Ia.

Practical & Popular

THERE is no better way of emphasizing the practicability and popularity of the

New York Linotype School

133 West 24th Street
NEW YORK

than in the announcement that we are about to add two more machines to the school plant in order to accommodate the patrons of this school.

Have you thought it over? Why not learn the machines now? Let me teach you operating and mechanism thoroughly for $60.00

CHAS. E. GEHRING, Director

Digitized by Google

The Monotype

"THE MAN BEHIND the GUN"

BATTLES, it is now recognized, are won by "the man behind the gun," and so industrial campaigns in like manner are won by the "man behind the machine." In both cases, however, the difficulties of the task are materially lessened when either gun or machine is adapted to lighten the labors of the man who stands behind it. THE MONOTYPE, for instance, is so designed as to enable its operator to produce the maximum of high-grade work with the minimum of effort and thus to participate in the rewards of commercial victory.

Wood & Nathan Co.: Sole Selling Agent

1 Madison Ave., NEW YORK

334 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. : 311 Church St., Nashville, Tenn.
Hadwen Swain Mfg. Co., Representative for Pacific Coast, San Francisco, California

Digitized by Google

THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL

VOL. XXVII
NO. 5

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION OF NORTH AMERICA

Digitized by Google

The Man Who Knows

the good and the bad points of all

Typewriters

buys

the Remington

REMINGTON TYPEWRITER CO.

New York and Everywhere

Indiana Branch—No. 12 East Market Street, Indianapolis

Digitized by Google

Contents for November 1905

Some Statistics..... 505
How the Gag is Applied..... 508
"The Why and Wherefore"... 509

NOTE AND COMMENT.....510-525
A Belated Question-Mark Circular..... 518
"Are You a Mason?"..... 513
An Autocratic Board of Directors..... 519
A Sworn Statement..... 521
Convicted Out of Their Own Mouths..... 515
Country Employers Wise... 524
Farmers Waking Up..... 525
Force vs. Reason..... 522
How They Feel in the Country..... 530
In the Good Old Days..... 521
Like Stone Walls..... 513
Lend a Hand..... 522
New Haven Eight-Hour Meeting..... 522
Not a Square Deal..... 519
"Progressive Printer" Progressive..... 520
Resolutions by Butte Union 520
Resolutions by Columbia Union..... 523
Scouring the Earth for Printers..... 512
Successful Eight-Hour Movement..... 524
Stand Pat!..... 511
The Eight-Hour Assessment 511
To Avoid Strikes..... 524
The Labor Press..... 525
The "Un-American" Boycott 523
The Slanderer..... 525
The Condition of Business and the Eight-Hour Day.. 514
The Pirates Again..... 518
The Hatters Win..... 520
The Record-Herald Protests 517
Union Shop the Open Shop.. 511
Wages and Cost of Living.. 517
What the Eight-Hour Day Means..... 522

WHAT WE ARE DOING.... 526-530
Conditions Where Strikes Exist..... 528
Miscellaneous..... 530
More Complete Victories.... 526
The Eight-Hour Movement. 526

WOMAN'S DEPARTMENT...533-537
Chattanooga, Tenn..... 535
Chicago, Ill..... 536
Cincinnati, Ohio..... 537
Evansville, Ind..... 535
From the President..... 533
From the Sec'y-Treasurer.. 534
Kansas City, Mo..... 535
Louisville, Ky.....534
Nashville, Tenn..... 537
Omaha, Neb..... 535
St. Louis, Mo..... 533
Syracuse, N. Y..... 533
Seattle, Wash..... 537
Toronto, Can..... 536

CORRESPONDENCE.....538-601
Atlanta, Ga..... 561
Ann Arbor, Mich..... 562
A Few Eight-Hour Towns.. 572
An Early Day Strike—Never Called Off..... 582
Albany, N. Y..... 584
Buffalo, N. Y..... 550
Bridgeport, Conn..... 541
Boston, Mass..... 567
Bellingham, Wash..... 573
Batavia, N. Y..... 590
Cincinnati, Ohio..... 562
Chicago, Ill..... 563
Colorado Springs, Colo..... 556
Clarksburg, W. Va..... 570
Charleston, W. Va..... 594
Cleburne, Texas..... 597
Cleveland, Ohio..... 600
Denver, Colo..... 551
Detroit, Mich..... 538
Elizabeth, N. J..... 573
Erie, Pa..... 592
Eight-Hours 'Tis..... 599
Greenville, Texas..... 561
Guelph, Ont..... 590
Hyphenphilosophy..... 587
Holyoke, Mass..... 577
Harrisburg, Pa..... 593
Ithaca, N. Y..... 597
In Memoriam..... 600
Ithaca, N. Y..... 571
Indianapolis, Ind..... 566
Kansas City, Mo..... 569
Las Vegas, N. M..... 549
Los Angeles, Cal..... 553
Lowell, Mass..... 560
Mobile, Ala..... 576
Mailers' Trade District Union..... 598
Montreal, Canada..... 543
New Jersey Eight-Hour Conference..... 554
Newark, N. J..... 557
Nashville, Tenn..... 558
Notes from the Union Printers' Home..... 586
New Rochelle, N. Y..... 589
Oklahoma City, Okla..... 558
Omaha, Neb..... 561
Our European Letter..... 579
Ottawa, Canada..... 588
Pittsburg, Pa..... 540
Philadelphia, Pa..... 548
Pontiac, Mich..... 557
Proofroom Notes..... 570
Providence, R. I..... 592
Perth Amboy, N. J..... 594
Rochester, N. Y..... 539
Racine, Wis..... 575
Robert Toulouse Murray.... 582
St. Louis, Mo..... 541
Syracuse, N. Y..... 552
San Francisco, Cal..... 552
Schenectady, N. Y..... 555
Spartanburg, S. C..... 560
Scranton, Pa..... 570

CORRESPONDENCE—Continued
Some Men and Their Methods..... 572
Sacramento, Cal..... 574
San Antonio, Texas..... 577
Salt Lake City, Utah..... 585
Should Endorse Their Friends..... 589
Sherman, Texas..... 591
Should Endorse Principles.. 593
St. Joseph, Mo..... 595
Sioux City, Iowa..... 595
Troy, N. Y..... 559
Toledo, Ohio..... 539
"The Gang"..... 571
Take a Book Along..... 578
Toronto, Canada..... 587
The I. T. U. Button..... 596
Tacoma, Wash..... 599
The Union Button Question 601
Unjust Discrimination..... 617
Vincennes, Ind..... 576
Wilmington, Del..... 591
Williamsport, Pa..... 598
Washington, D. C..... 544
Wilmington, N. C..... 549
Worcester, Mass..... 555
Who Knows A. W. Dauherty? 566
Winnipeg, Canada..... 568
Washington, Pa..... 574

OFFICIAL BUDGET.....602-607
Applications From Unorganized Towns..... 605
Applications for Membership..... 605
Addresses Wanted..... 602
Charters Issued and Surrendered..... 604
Election of Officers..... 607
Miscellaneous..... 603
Notice to Secretaries..... 602
The Journal Mailing List... 602
The Death Roll..... 604
Union Printers' Home..... 604
Unions in Arrears..... 603

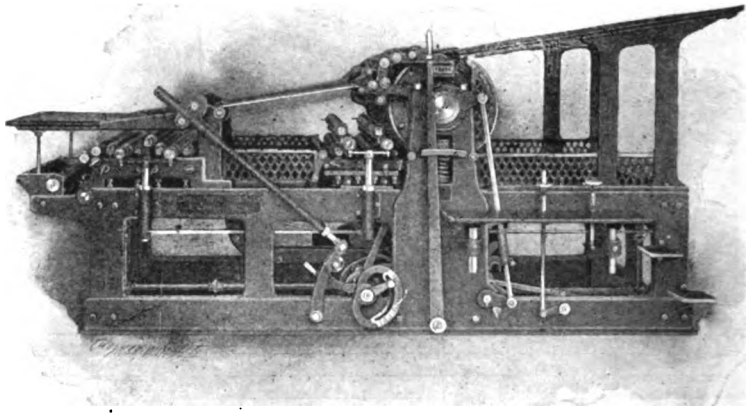
FINANCIAL STATEMENT...608-615
Donations to the Cummings Memorial Fund..... 615
Official Notice..... 614
Prove Practicability of Socialism..... 615
Report of Secretary-Treasurer..... 608
Report of Secretary-Treasurer Union Printers' Home 614

I. S. AND E. U..... 616
Applications for Membership..... 616
Election of Officers..... 616
Official Directory..... 616
Report of Secretary-Treasurer..... 616

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY..... 618
Allied Printing Trades Councils..... 618
International Typographical Union..... 618
Subordinate Unions..... 619

Digitized by Google

THE CENTURY



Friction! Rosin! and Profanity!

Could be entirely dispensed with in operating your presses, did they possess immovable Continuous Register Racks and Gears locking bed and cylinder together throughout the entire printing stroke.

When properly made ready and printed on a press mechanically accurate between bed and cylinder, a cut cannot fail to register with its overlay—nor can a slur—that bane of the pressman—creep into the tail of the form.

No press can be mechanically accurate between bed and cylinder, unless the bed and cylinder are locked together by rack and gear through the entire printing stroke.

The CENTURY is the only press not dependent upon the time losers, "Friction, Rosin and Profanity," to produce accurate register work between bed and cylinder.

The Campbell Company

HENRY A. WISE WOOD, PRESIDENT

334 DEARBORN STREET, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS No. 1 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY

189 FLEET STREET, LONDON, E. C., ENGLAND

Digitized by Google

The Typographical Journal

J. W. BRAMWOOD, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER, INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA
ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE, INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER
ISSUED ON THE FIFTH OF EACH MONTH

VOLUME XXVII November, 1905 NUMBER FIVE

SOME STATISTICS.

BY HENRY M. JAMES.

THE readers of THE JOURNAL have not had the pleasure (and, printer-like, some of them will say doubtful pleasure) of reading any statistics presented by me for their perusal for some time. Figures are never interesting unless they are digested and their import thoroughly understood. However, I believe that the figures presented in this article, showing as they do what was done by the great British unions, among them those in the printing and allied trades, during 1903, will prove of considerable interest. The readers of THE JOURNAL who received copies of the "Minimum Wage Scales of the Typographical Unions," compiled from reports of the local secretaries by Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood (who deserves to be elected a fellow of the Statistical Society as a reward for his hard work in the compilation), will find considerable enlightenment if they will compare that report with the figures and table presented herewith. Before I go any further, I must acknowledge the courtesy of Charles James Drummond, former secretary of the London Society of Compositors and now an official in the labor department of the Board of Trade, a government institution, in sending me a copy of the "Tenth Abstract of Labor Statistics of the United Kingdom" for 1902–1904. It has been a matter of hard work to study this volume and cull therefrom the salient points of most interest to the readers of THE JOURNAL, but the end, it is felt, justifies the labor.

FEDERATIONS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.

In 1903 there were six federations of trades councils, with 424,827 members, and one general federation of trades unions, with 403,301 members. In the printing and allied trades the United Kingdom Federation had 46,418 members, and there was one other federation with 2,570 members. There were forty-three associations of employers, seven of these being federations, in the same trades. The total number of trades councils was 204, with a membership of 839,110. In 1904 the trades union congress, held at Leeds, had 453 delegates present, representing 1,320,432 members in 159 unions.

STANDARD RATES OF WAGES AND HOURS.

Under this heading we need only concern ourselves with the figures presented with regard to printers. It will be observed that the accompanying table, which presents the hours and rates recognized at the beginning of 1905 as the minimum for a full week's work, exclusive of overtime, deals only with hand composition.

It will be at once noted that the wages for hand compositors are not overlucrative from the American point of view. Yet the economic conditions that obtain in the British isles are such that the workman is not so poorly paid as the figures would intimate. Everything is cheaper, and the standard of living is not so high as obtains here. In many of the towns mentioned six-roomed houses may be obtained for a dollar and a quarter or a dollar and a half a week. Houses—not flats. However, the workman is always striving to obtain more, for notwithstanding the cheaper economic conditions, the printer does not receive the remuneration to which he feels he is justly entitled. The printer is better off, however, than those in other industries, for the report shows that, to take one case alone, the average cash wages per week of ordinary agricultural laborers in England and Wales for 1903 were 18s ($4.50, say), while in Ireland they averaged 10s 11d. These laborers, however, received extra pay for piecework, overtime, etc. Throughout the kingdom the police (patrolmen) are poorly paid, as compared with the princely remuneration that obtains in the United States. In London the minimum is 25s 6d, maximum 33s 6d, for the metropolitan police, while the minimum for policemen in the city proper is 27s and the maximum 42s 6d. From what we read,

Digitized by Google

Towns.	Compositors (for Hand Composition).
	Weekly Rate of Wages.			Weekly Hours of Labor.
	Jobbing.	Weekly Newspapers.	Daily Newspapers (Morning).	Jobbing.	Weekly Newspapers.	Daily Newspapers (Morning).
England and Wales.	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.
Barrow-in-Furness	33 0	33 0	....	54	54	..
Birkenhead	36 6	36 6	46 6	51	51	50
Birmingham	34 6	34 6	45 0	52	52	48
Blackburn	32 6	32 6	34 0*	52	52	52*
Bolton	33 0	33 0	33 0*	52	52	52*
Bradford	33 0	32 0	42 0	51	51	50
Brighton	30 0	....	....	54	..	..
Bristol	31 0	32 0	40 0	52½	54	54
Burnley	31 6	31 6	....	52	52	..
Cardiff	32 0	32 0	40 0	52½	52½	52½
Derby	33 0	33 0	38 0	52	52	48
Halifax	32 6	32 6	....	52	52	..
Huddersfield	30 0	30 0	38 0	51½	51½	51½
Hull	32 0	32 0	42 0	53	53	50
Ipswich	28 0	28 0	35 0	54	54	50
Leeds	35 6	....	46 0	52½	52½	48
Leicester	33 6	35 0	38 0	52	52	50
Liverpool	36 6	36 6	46 6	51	51	50
London	39 0	39 0	....	52½	52½	..
Manchester	35 0	35 0	42 0	50	48	48
Middlesbrough	32 0	34 0	34 0*	52	52	52*
Newcastle-on-Tyne	35 0	35 0	42 0	52½	52	50
Northampton	30 0	31 0	....	52	52	..
Norwich	26 0	26 0	40 0	54	54	..
Nottingham	34 6	35 0	38 0	52	52	50
Oldham	34 0	34 0	34 0*	51½	51½	52½*
Plymouth	30 0	30 0	33 0	54	54	48
Portsmouth	30 0	....	32 0*	54	..	54
Preston	32 6	32 6	35 0*	52	..	52*
Reading	28 0	28 0	....	52	52	..
Sheffield	35 0	....	45 0	51	51	48
Southampton	24s. to 27s.	....	....	54	..	..
South Shields	....	....	....	..	..	..
Sunderland	33 0	....	35 0*	53	..	53*
Swansea	31 0	31 0	31 0*	54	54	54*
Walsall	32 0	32 0	....	52	52	..
Wolverhampton	32 6	35 0	35 0*	52	52	52*
Scotland.
Aberdeen	30 0	30 0	39 6	50	50	50
Dundee	31 6	32s.6d. & 35s.	42 0	50	50	50
Edinburgh	32s. & 32s. 6d.	32s.6d. & 35s.	40 0	52½	52½	51
Glasgow	34 0	34s. & 35s.6d.	40 0	50	50	50
Ireland.
Belfast	34 0	34 0	42 0	52½	52½	50
Cork	32 6	32 6	42 0	52	52	48
Dublin	35 0	....	....	54	..	..

* Evening Newspapers.

Digitized by Google

there are no opportunities for graft, as the law is strictly carried out. This by way of illustration. Without graft, we must agree with Gilbert that "the policeman's life is not a happy one."

ONE HUNDRED PRINCIPAL TRADE UNIONS.

In 1903 there were 1,166 unions, with a total membership of 1,902,308, as compared with 1,190 unions with 1,924,809 members in 1902. The banner year was 1901, when there were 1,225 unions, with 1,939,022 members. The 100 principal unions in 1903 had 1,133,-640 members, an income of £2,073,612 (the highest in a decade), and expended £1,895,-015. At the end of the year these unions were worth £4,550,775, an average per member of £4 0s 3½d (say $20). This is, indeed, a notable showing, and speaks volumes for the good management for which these unions are noted. Forty-one unions in the printing and allied trades had a membership in 1903 of 60,102, an increase of over 1,000 over 1902. Seven printers' and allied trades unions, with a membership of 44,877, had an income of £89,109 in 1903, and their expenditures are given as £87,677, and funds at the end of the year as £170,094. The expenditures of these seven unions show gradual increases since 1892, when the amount spent in benefits was £55,658. The total expenditures of the 100 principal trade unions show gradual increases since 1892, when the amount spent was £1,433,111, against the £1,895,015 expended in 1903.

The London Society of Compositors and the Typographical Association are, of course, included in the 100 principal unions under review. In 1892 these unions had 9,978, and 11,313 members, respectively, which figures had risen in 1903 to 11,270 and 17,698. The income of the London Society in 1903 was £32,715 and its expenditures £32,875 (the out-of-work benefits were the principal drain). The income of the Typographical Association (which operates throughout the kingdom, but not in London) was £25,681 in 1903, and its expenditures £24,864. The former society had funds of £72,249 and the latter £53,531.

WORKMEN'S CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES.

In 1903 there were 2,291 societies, of which 2,027, with 2,085,731 members, made sales amounting to £87,975,651. These were classed under the head of "co-operative distribution and production," and were wholesale and retail. Retail societies, numbering 1,455, with 1,987,423 members, made sales to the tune of £57,512,887. There were 16 wholesale associations for production in the printing and allied trades, employing 760 people, and making sales amounting to £133,454, and 17 retail associations, having 706 employes and making sales worth £125,-833.

NUMBERS EMPLOYED.

According to the census of 1901, there were 334,261 people employed in the printing and allied trades, such as books, stationery and paper. Of these, 2,051 were boys and girls aged thirteen to fourteen.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION SCHEMES.

Particulars are given of the working of sundry schemes under the workmen's compensation acts of 1897 and 1900, mention of which is frequently made in labor items from across the water. These include payments for death and to dependents, for incapacity, and other benefits. In 1903, under 52 schemes, there were 126,358 workmen employed. The contributions by employes were £42,374, by employers £64,154, and other receipts came to £4,471, a total of £110,999. Payments on death and to dependents were £15,997, for incapacity £59,424, for other benefits £11,112, other payments £2,102 and management expenses £5,697, a total of £94,332. The funds of these schemes at the end of the year were £172,408.

[Concluded in December Number.]

TALKING about printing and its growth it is remarked that in 1671 Governor Berkley, of Virginia, when questioned regarding instruction in the colony, thanked God that "there are no free schools nor printing, and I hope we shall not have them these hundred years." Now more than one-fifth of the total population of the country is enrolled in the public schools, and free printing is represented by practically 21,000 newspapers and periodicals. Other times, other manners.

Digitized by Google

HOW THE GAG IS APPLIED.

The following is a facsimile of a letter being sent to newspaper publishers. Note the attempt to dictate what the newspapers shall publish, and the thinly veiled offer to subsidize them. Ninety per cent of the papers of the country granted the eight-hour day years ago. It is safe to say this form of "coercion" will be resented except where the paper's policy is exclusively controlled by the counting room.

TELEPHONES: {537, 2000, 2000} Cortlandt. CABLE ADDRESS: "Namus," New York. CODES USED Commercial Cable, Western Union. A. B. C., Lieber's.

The National Association of Manufacturers of the United States of America

DAVID M. PARRY, Pres't., Parry Mfg. Co., Indianapolis, Ind. F. H. STILLMAN, Treas., Watson-Stillman Co., New York, N. Y. MARSHALL CUSHING, Sec'y., General Offices, New York, N. Y.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS: (Three General Officers, Twelve Vice-Presidents, Six Members-at-Large:)

LUDWIG NISSEN, Ludwig Nissen & Co., New York, N. Y. DANIEL C. RIPLEY, United States Glass Co., Pittsburg, Pa. JOHN KIRBY, Jr., Dayton Mfg. Co., Dayton, O.
GEORGE A. DRAPER, The Draper Co., Hopedale, Mass. R. C. JENKINSON, R. C. Jenkinson & Co., Newark, N. J. R. T. SKINNER, Advance Thresher Co., Battle Creek, Mich.
E. H. DEAN, Dean Brothers Steam Pump Works, Indianapolis, Ind. ELLIOTT DURAND, Heath & Milligan Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill. A. H. BULLARD, Bullard Machine Tool Co., Bridgeport, Conn.
H. S. SMITH, Menasha Woodenware Co., Menasha, Wis. J. W. VAN CLEAVE, Buck's Stove and Range Co., St. Louis, Mo. H. S. CHAMBERLAIN, Chico Furnace Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.
WILLIAM McCARROLL, American Leather Co., New York, N. Y. A. B. FARQUHAR, A. B. Farquhar Co. Ltd., York, Pa. GEORGE T. COPPINS, Walworth Mfg. Co., Boston, Mass.
C. W. POST, Postum Cereal Co., Battle Creek, Mich. F. C. NUNEMACHER, The Nunemacher Press, Louisville, Ky. D. A. TOMPKINS, D. A. Tompkins Co., Charlotte, N. C.

General Offices: 170 BROADWAY, (Maiden Lane and Cortlandt Street,)

NEW YORK, October 7, 1905.

CONFIDENTIAL

Dear Sir:-

The manufacturers of the country, many of them advertisers and friends of yours — and all of them friends of yours, whether they are advertisers or not — are again in the midst of an eight-hour and open-shop campaign, and I want, if you will permit me, to ask your considerate interest in their cause, not to the extent of printing anything or of suppressing anything, but merely to get you more and more closely in touch with the general situation touching the fight which the employing printers of the country are now making. (We want to help you to get hold of the truth in the matter; that is all.)

We honestly believe that the restrictive and coercive legislative propositions made by organized labor in the last two years could never have been prevented without the opposition of an aroused public sentiment as developed by the newspapers, which (as an old newspaper man) I believe also to have opinions of their own. In this case, where unquestionably the Typographical Union is seeking to press intolerable conditions upon the employing printers, the great issues concerning all employers and all holders of property (and believers, in a measure at least, in the value of individual effort) are, as we cannot help but feel, vitally to be effected one way or the other.

Even if we were asking a great sacrifice of you, we should be prepared to reciprocate your interest in every way possible.

Respectfully and cordially yours,

Marshall Cushing

Secretary.

Digitized by Google

"The Why and Wherefore."

Following are a few extracts from the address on "The Why and Wherefore of the Eight-Hour Demand of Union Printers," delivered by Frank K. Foster at a meeting held under the auspices of New Haven Union No. 47. Lack of space prevents a reproduction of the entire speech:

The desire of man for rational leisure has developed in direct proportion with the growth of his higher faculties. Illiterate men do not desire time in which to read; unthinking men time in which to think. When men are merely beasts of burden physical needs are alone imperative. But when the mere working man is transformed by education into the thinking man, leisure for the use of his new found faculties becomes equally imperative.

* * *

The fact should not be lost sight of that the time is comparatively brief in which the shop worker owns himself, physically as well as mentally, after deducting not alone the hours during which he is at work, but also the time employed going to and from his work and that absolutely required for the rest and repair of his physical organism. In reality a reduction of 10 per cent in the length of the working day means an increase of 33 per cent in the time in which the wage earner is at liberty to act as a free agent.

The movement for the shorter workday has both a history and a philosophy. It has both an economic and an ethical justification. It has not been created, as our friends of the typothetæ would have us believe, by the strident demands of loud-voiced agitators, but is the product of those elemental forces which continually broaden the aspirations of the workers of the world.

* * *

In a strictly economic sense, labor is a commodity and is bought and sold in the market as such. The price of commodities, the wise men have long assured us, is regulated by the law of supply and demand. Under normal conditions, when the supply of a commodity is decreased the demand increases. No one questions the right of manufacturers to adjust production to the probable demand. Why should the seller of the commodity of labor be curtailed in his freedom when he seeks to regulate the supply of his commodity which he deems best to put upon the market?

* * *

We do not assume that all wage earners will at once make the best possible use of additional leisure. Social chronicles of any age do not reveal the fact that the so-called leisure classes have so rendered an account of their stewardship. But the trade union does contend that reasonable leisure is an essential requisite for the production of the most efficient labor, for intelligent citizenship and well balanced men. The most powerful nations industrially are those where the short-hour day obtains.

The employers claim that the insuperable objection to the eight-hour day is the increased cost of production. Rummaging among the archives of the Boston public library a few days ago I came across the report of the committee of the New York employing printers in 1872 in reply to the eight- hour demand of that time, and you may find there the same stereotyped arguments which now do duty after a lapse of nearly half a century. Meanwhile the world has moved. In other industries in this country hundreds of thousands of mechanics are working on the eight-hour basis. All over the world, and particularly in the antipodes, steady progress has been made toward this goal. And this progress has been made despite the insistence upon the fallacy by employers that any reduction of the hours of labor decreases production. In 1838 the factories of this state ran sixteen hours a day. Without the determination of labor to have more of life, do you suppose the operatives would have achieved the present working day?

* * *

And another point of interest to our timid fellow craftsmen who fear that their wages will be decreased with the decreasing hours. The old couplet,

"Whether you work by the piece or the day, Decreasing the hours increases the pay,"

is based on economic truth, as any one can convince themselves who takes the trouble to use his powers of observation in the industrial world about him. So long ago as 1847, in a debate upon this very subject in the House of Parliament, the Earl of Ellesmere said: "It is a remarkable fact, everywhere and at all times the same, the more hours men work in any staple branch of manufactures the less they receive in the form of wages." Lord Macaulay, in a powerful argument maintained the same position.

* * *

We are quite satisfied to accept the employers' dictum that our craft is fairly intelligent and decently moral, but there is room for improvement in the physical scale, as the statistics of any insurance company will bear witness. We maintain, as a fundamental proposition, that until the "expectation of life" of the average printer of any given age shall equal that of the average member of the so-called independent classes of like age that there remains the strongest of arguments for the further reduction of the working day, whether it be to eight, seven or even less. Will the typothetæ maintain that such is now the case? Whatever else insurance companies may be—and recent developments indicate that their functions are many and varied—they will not be accused of being sentimental organizations, at least so far as the policy holders are concerned. Now you will find that the printer of twenty-one years of age taking out a life policy will have to pay a premium therefor based upon several years less expectation of life than that of the man who is not subjected to the influence of shop surroundings. It is no answer to this to say that other mechanics are handicapped in the same manner. We have a right to the natural period of existence and this right can not be shaken by all the arguments of those opposed to the eight-hour demand.

Digitized by Google

Note and Comment

OFFICIAL BATTLE CRY OF THE I. T. U.

We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen.

How is the strike insurance business, Mr. Macintyre?

MONEY may talk, but it can't set type—it takes printers to do that.

JUST stand pat, obey the law (even judge-made law), and we will win.

JUDGE HOLDOM virtually holds the eight-hour workday to be unlawful. We suppose this would also apply to the twenty-four-hour workday.

SEEING defeat staring them in the face at every point, the members of the typothetæ are seeking the aid of the courts in a vain attempt to stem the tide.

SOME competent legal authority should definitely determine what is "lawful" and "unlawful." Some jurists hold acts to be "lawful" which other jurists declare "unlawful." With such wide divergence of views on the part of those whose duty it is to construe the law, is it any wonder that the layman's mind is befogged on these points? Get together, gentlemen.

WITH national, state and private banks tumbling about our heads; with insurance scandal shrieking from the headlines of the newspapers; with staid and long-respected business institutions enmeshed in charges of graft and corruption; with Tom Lawson hammering to pieces our ingrained ideas of honor in the business world; with charges of secret rebates against the railroads, tirades against tainted money, and indications of imprisonment for beef trust officials—the daily press scarcely finds time to refer back to Sam Parks as a representative labor unionist.

UNION buttons are going out from headquarters at a lively rate just now. At the present rate it will not be long until every member is showing his colors. Articles on this subject by JOURNAL correspondents recently have undoubtedly been a great factor in stimulating the demand.

IT IS shameful the way some of the members of the typothetæ are being threatened with a boycott by the "business interests" in case they sign eight-hour contracts. What has become of the "individual liberty" they prated so much about? Consistency, etc.

ON one day recently forty "want ads" appeared in two St. Louis papers for non-union printers and pressmen. About half of these were from one firm. This firm has been claiming for the past month that it had more printers than it needed. Just advertising for fun.

JUDGE HOLDOM'S references to "coercion" are ambiguous. This learned jurist should explain his remarks. THE JOURNAL ventures the assertion that even Judge Holdom has been "coerced" many times into doing things disagreeable to him.

DOES your wife buy the Home Companion? The Crowell Publishing Company, of Springfield, Ohio, prints it. The Crowell Company secured an injunction against Springfield Union and employs non-unionists. That's all.

IF anything were needed to demonstrate the weakness of the typothetæ and the falsity of its claims that the struck offices are well supplied with competent printers, it is found in the pleas for court injunctions.

GIVE the fullest publicity to the injunction obtained by the typothetæ. Let the people know the aid of the courts has been invoked by unfair employers to prevent you from obtaining a shorter workday.

Digitized by Google

The Eight-Hour Assessment.

Acting in accordance with our laws, the executive council of the International Typographical Union, on October 17, submitted to the referendum the following proposition:

Shall an assessment of fifty (50) cents per week per member, payable each week, be levied on the membership of the International Typographical Union, for the purpose of financing the eight-hour contest until its termination, under the following terms and conditions:

Said assessment shall not apply to unions engaged in strike during the progress of the strike, in case such unions are collecting a local assessment, for strike purposes, equal to 50 cents per week per member.

When a strike is settled or the local assessment discontinued or reduced to less than 50 cents per week per member, the International assessment, as above specified, shall immediately apply to the members of such unions.

The assessment shall take effect with the week beginning Monday, November 6, 1905, and shall continue in the discretion of the executive council of the International Typographical Union, it being understood that the assessment shall be promptly discontinued when conditions warrant such a course.

It shall be the duty of local officials to collect this assessment at the end of each week and transmit the same, without delay, to the secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union.

Circulars dealing with this subject were mailed to all members of the organization whose names appear on THE JOURNAL mailing list.

At this date (October 27) a number of unions, including some of the larger locals, have made returns to headquarters, and from present indications the proposition will be adopted by an overwhelming majority.

It is the intention of the executive council to discontinue the one-half of one per cent assessment now being collected, in case the 50-cent-per-member per week proposition is adopted.

Stand Pat!

As a last desperate attempt to swing public opinion to its way of thinking, the typothetæ is making an effort to secure injunctions wherever any pretext can be trumped up. Our members should have no fear of injunctions. Injunctions will not beat a printers' strike. All the court orders in the world will not compel our members to go to work in unfair shops. All they have to do is to remain firm and steadfast, and victory is theirs all along the line. Money, influence in the commercial world, and other things may be at the command of the unfair employers—but they lack the printers. And the printing business needs printers. The miscellaneous collection of strikebreakers that have been secured are not printers—the employers know that as well as we do. Carried away by a few sentimental ideas in regard to the open shop, the typothetæ members that are left may for a brief while hope to discourage our members by making a bluff at running with this riff-raff, but the business instinct will prevail in the end with business men.

Union Shop the Open Shop.

Certain employers have claimed to recognize the right of labor to organize, have expressed their approval of unions, and have at the same time contended for the open shop. That the open shop would mean the disruption of the union, is generally conceded. If these employers approve of unions, why don't they approve of the union shop? Do you suppose for an instant that these employers want the so-called open shop because of their love for the non-unionist? Don't you know that the real reason for their wanting to establish the open shop is that it may prove an entering wedge for the complete disruption of the union. The non-union shop, erroneously called the open shop, is closed to union men. The union shop, erroneously called the closed shop, is open to all men—for the union is open to all competent workmen and is willing and anxious to take them in. The only condition the union imposes is that those who come in shall bear their part in keeping up decent conditions. The employer who says he believes in unions, and at the same time advocates the open (or non-union) shop, is either a fool or a prevaricator.

THE Crowell Publishing Company, of Springfield, Ohio, employs non-union labor and secured an injunction against the members of Springfield Typographical Union. The Crowell Publishing Company publishes the Woman's Home Companion, and Farm and Fireside. Lest we forget.

Digitized by Google

Scouring the Earth for Printers.

G. I. Brayton, one of THE JOURNAL'S correspondents, unearthed a contemptible typothetæ trick in far-away England. Mr. Brayton recently proceeded to England from Australia on his globe-encircling tour, and his attention was attracted to the following ad, which was being run in papers all over the United Kingdom:

JOB COMPOSITORS, first-class, and competent LINOTYPE OPERATORS required immediately, to proceed to Canada; permanent situations guaranteed each man before leaving Liverpool; wages 18 dollars (£3 15s.) per week of 53 hours; applicants must be prepared to pay own passage out, and be ready to sail with employer's representative first week in November.—Reply to "Canada," care Charles Birchall, Ltd., Liverpool.

This set Mr. Brayton to thinking, and he finally decided to investigate the matter. Answering the ad, he received the following entertaining literature:

[Copy of Typewritten Letter.]

Reply to Liscard.

THE WINNIPEG PRINTERS' BOARD OF TRADE

175 McDermot Avenue, WINNIPEG, CANADA.

Personally-Conducted Printers' Tour of Canada,

NOVEMBER, 1905

CHARLES BRUNNING
Manager.

237 LISCARD ROAD
LISCARD, LIVERPOOL
October 11, 1905.

J. BRYAN, 5, Blucher St., B-ham:

You appear to have had plenty of experience and I engage you for Canada conditionally that you agree to the enclosed particulars. Wire me your decision, forward deposit money to either myself or to Allans direct, and guarantee will be forwarded you. I hope to be in Birmingham shortly, but prefer to fix matters up before my arrival. I can see you there to give you full particulars, and will notify you the date of my visit and the name of my hotel. C. B.

[Copy of Typewritten Circular.]

PERSONALLY-CONDUCTED PRINTERS' TOUR TO CANADA, NOVEMBER, 1905.

In reply to your letter re application for job printer or linotype operator for Canada, please read carefully the following particulars:

(1) I guarantee each man selected by me a permanent situation at the following rate of wages—Job printers, 18 dollars (£3 15s od per week of 53 hours). Linotype operators, 20 dollars (£4 3s od per week of 53 hours). This scale of wages is the minimum in Winnipeg. Most men who are a trifle above the average make from 2 dollars per week more, according to ability. The selected men are required to immediately proceed to Winnipeg. Those, however, who wish to proceed further west may do so, as there is a constant and ever-increasing demand for job printers and linotype operators throughout the entire Canadian North West, as well as in the eastern provinces.

(2) If you are selected, you must be prepared to immediately pay a deposit of £2 on a second-class fare direct to Winnipeg from Liverpool, and the balance must be paid at the Liverpool offices of the Allan Line Steamships to Canada on the date preceding or morning of sailing, when tickets will be issued through to Winnipeg. A deposit of £1 is required on the third-class fare, balance to be paid in the same way as the second-class fare. Under no consideration will any free passages be issued.

(3) On behalf of the Winnipeg Printers' Board of Trade, I give a written guarantee to each man engaged on receipt of deposit money, and each man must be prepared to surrender at time of embarkation steamship and railway tickets into the hands of the employers' representative, who will also take control of baggage checks through to Winnipeg. A second-class ocean and rail fare to Winnipeg by the new Allan Turbine Steamer "Virginian" leaving Liverpool on Thursday, October 26, costs £12 6s 8d, and a third-class ocean and rail fare to Winnipeg costs £9 1s 8d. Work begins immediately on arrival in Winnipeg, and every accommodation will be provided by the Winnipeg Board of Trade for the men's reception, lodgings and furnished rooms for married men, who propose to take their wives, being reserved at a moderate figure. Single men may procure excellent and superior board and lodgings, including three substantial meals per day, from 4½ to 5 dollars per week (18s to £1). Cheaper lodgings may be had. The outfit consists of ordinary clothing, with plenty of good warm underclothing and a heavy, well-lined overcoat, which may be procured in Canada on arrival. In Winnipeg the winter period sets in about the middle of November, but it is not particularly cold until January.

(4) Applicants for these positions will kindly bring with them copies of originals of testimonials, specimens if procurable, in order that a quick decision may be arrived at, as the short date to day of sailing will permit of no delay.

(5) Second-class berths will be reserved immediately on receipt of deposit money. Third-class accommodation is arranged on the day of departure.

I hope to visit Manchester, Leeds, Sheffield, Birmingham and London, where applicants will be interviewed, but providing full particulars be forthcoming by post, men may be selected without the option of interview. In such cases the deposit money may be forwarded to me direct, or to Messrs. Allans, envelopes to be marked "Printers' Tour." Steamship and tourist agents are not permitted to book passages for this personally-conducted party.

It will be noted that no mention is made of the eight-hour strike now in progress in Winnipeg and other portions of Canada and the United States. This carefully prepared circular is intended to convey the impression that there is a genuine demand for printers in Winnipeg and other localities, and flattering inducements in the wage line are offered.

Digitized by Google

Bear in mind, dear reader, that the Winnipeg Printers' Board of Trade is a member of the United Typothetæ of America. Read the letter of its agent carefully, especially that portion in regard to surrender of steamship and railway tickets and baggage checks at time of embarkation, and see how men are practically sold into slavery to serve the purposes of the typothetæ. Notice, if you please, the suggestion that "those who wish to proceed further west may do so." We take it for granted that they may also proceed further south if they wish, unless prevented by law.

Acting for the International Typographical Union, Mr. Brayton sent letters to the British printing trade unions, calling attention to conditions in this country, and warning union men that this "personally conducted" excursion was but a strikebreaking expedition, pure and simple.

Cablegrams were promptly sent from International headquarters to the secretaries of the British printing trade unions, requesting that all possible publicity be given the real purpose of this "personally conducted printers' tour." We have received assurances in response that no union men will emigrate now that the facts are known, and that some of those who had deposited the £2 requested in the advertisement and circular would immediately insist upon its refunding.

The secretaries of the typographical societies of Great Britain also issued circulars giving full particulars, that of Secretary Skinner, of the Typographical Association, containing Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood's message on the subject.

And yet the typothetæ claims to be flooded with competent workmen!

The attention of farmers' unions is called to the fact that Farm and Fireside is published by the Crowell Publishing Company, of Springfield, Ohio. The Crowell company does not employ union men, and went into the courts for an injunction against Springfield Union.

It's a regular landslide.

"Are You a Mason?"

Under the above heading, the following quotation from an authority with which all Masons are conversant was brought to the attention of the editor of The Journal by the Union Cause, a paper now being published at Mitchell, S. D., in the interest of the printers on strike:

The twenty-four-inch gauge is an instrument made use of by operative masons, to measure and lay out their work; but we, as Free and Accepted Masons, are taught to make use of it for the more noble and glorious purpose of dividing our time. It being divided into twenty-four equal parts, is emblematic of the twenty-four hours of the day, which we are taught to divide into three equal parts, whereby we find eight hours for the service of God and the relief of distressed worthy Brothers, EIGHT FOR OUR USUAL AVOCATIONS, and eight for refreshment and sleep.—Young's Masonic Guide, page 23.

As a number of the prominent members of the typothetæ are Masons, the above is respectfully submitted for their consideration. If they are good Masons, they will see the point. "Eight [hours] for our usual avocations" is what the union printers are contending for. We wonder if Brother Parry and other Masonic employers who constantly inveigh against the eight-hour workday and organized labor have ever given careful thought to the teachings of the order?

Like Stone Walls.

Hats off to the boys at the front!

There have rarely been such exhibitions of true-blue unionism and steadfastness of purpose as are being shown by the unions now engaged in strikes for the eight-hour day. These are indeed times that try men's souls, and men's unionism as well. The members of unions on strike have been tried and not found wanting.

It's an easy matter to keep a cheerful spirit and boast of your everlasting love for union principles when the sun is shining, but when the clouds gather and the storm breaks, then comes the real test—then is demonstrated what manner of men union printers are.

Hats off to the boys at the front!

Digitized by Google

The Condition of Business and the Eight-Hour Day.

The man at the case, at the machine, or at the press or binder's bench, has few moments to fully acquaint himself with the actual condition of the business of the country. Unless of unusually studious habit, with a leaning toward the investigation of political and financial economics, he usually can not controvert representations that may be made to him regarding the folly of attempting to better his condition by asking a higher wage or a shortening of the number of hours of labor. The men who have by unusual ability, or from happy opportunity, become employers of skilled workmen, are, or should be, the guardians of the printing trades. If, from undue competition, and bad faith one with the other, the trade has become so degraded "that there is no money in it," the fault surely lies with these captains or pilots. If one employer puts in labor-saving machines, almost invariably he uses the improved facilities to undersell his competitors. If no union existed, and necessity compelled men and women to work any number of hours that might be dictated by those who employ them, there could be no standard for making prices, for each employer would be restrained only by the amount of humanity and consideration nature may have endowed him with. If the day's work consisted of twelve hours, and the wages were barely enough to sustain life, the printing-trade employer would be no better off, under his present policy, for he would give the difference to the public in order to undersell his competitor. The working men and women have no voice in the ordering of competition, but they have a voice in claiming a reasonable share of the prosperity of the country, which the printing trade should enjoy in common with other industries. How wide and far-reaching this prosperity is, the trade does not appreciate, evidently, judging from the amount of denunciation leveled at the International Typographical Union for daring to ask for a shorter day at current wages.

From the report of the Moody Corporation, 35 Nassau street, New York city, the following is taken verbatim. The Moody Corporation announces that it will shortly issue a monthly magazine in the form of a review, for investors, bankers and men of affairs. The standing of the organization is of the highest, and its reports are considered as careful and conservative. Here is the condition of the country today as given by its prospectus:

The price level is rising and is at the highest point ever reached at this season of the year.

With bumper crops of corn and wheat in sight, the prices of wheat are above 80, and of corn about 50 cents per bushel at Chicago.

Cotton is selling above 10½ cents, with a good crop promised.

Record crops of hay, oats, potatoes, and many other feed and food products are either gathered or assured. Nearly all are selling at high prices. There have been no crop failures this year.

From nearly all industries and industrial centers come reports of increasing business and record-breaking output or earnings.

Railroad earnings, both gross and net, are at record figures, with the future so bright that a car shortage is already at hand.

The demand for equipment materials for railroads is greater than for several years.

The iron and steel business, the barometer of industry, is so prosperous that many mills have sold their possible capacity for months ahead. Labor is scarce and wages rising.

The pig iron output for five months in succession has been at a record point, with prices strong and advancing.

The output and export of copper are unprecedented. Prices are very high.

The boot and shoe business is more prosperous than for years. Prices have advanced from 5 to 25 cents per pair, partly to meet the rise in leather.

Wools have risen 30 to 40 per cent recently.

Most woolen mills are very busy, and some are turning orders away. Prices of woolens and worsteds have been advanced frequently this year, and are now 15 or 20 per cent higher than a year ago.

Cotton mills, idle a year ago, are now busy and prosperous. They are having some trouble in obtaining sufficient operatives, notwithstanding recent advances in wages.

Although radical advances have been made in the prices of cotton goods, yet many manufacturers are declining to accept orders at present prices for late fall delivery.

The prices of linen goods have been advanced many times this year and still higher prices are expected.

The prices of knit goods are very high, and are rising. Many lines of fall underwear are now held at prohibitive prices, because the mills are not desirous of taking further orders.

The great demand for lumber, paper and burlap, at the present extremely high prices, indicates the great quantity of goods being handled, the great amount of advertising being done, and the great number of buildings being constructed or enlarged.

Digitized by Google

The production and consumption of coal is greater this year than ever before. Prices, especially of anthracite, are very high.

Steamships and vessels, instead of going out with half-cargoes, or in ballast, as was the case last year, are now taking full cargoes. Forward rates have increased from 25 to 100 per cent.

The total value of imports and exports is greater this year than ever before.

The output of gold this year will exceed that of 1904 by about 25 per cent; that of 1895 by 100 per cent, and that of 1885 by 300 per cent. This assures plenty of money, rising prices and a safe base for expanding credits.

Bank clearings are greater than ever before. They are not due mainly to speculation, for Wall street has been comparatively quiet.

Average prices of active stocks in Wall street are now higher than ever before—even higher than during the very prosperous times of 1902.

More than 1,000,000 immigrants reached our shores last year. They are now flocking here as never before.

All records for building will be broken this year in this country and in many cities. In New York city alone more than $168,000,000 worth of new buildings and improvements were contracted for in seven months.

Dwelling houses were never in such demand as at present. In New York and vicinity rents have risen from 10 to 25 per cent this year.

Prices of lots in most cities are rising rapidly. Prices of farm lands are rising everywhere. In parts of the west and northwest they are double or treble the prices of a few years ago.

While rapidly rising rents and prices of land ordinarily indicate the culmination of a prosperity period, there are many reasons for believing that this will be an exceptional period, and that prosperity will continue to increase for at least one year. Some of these are the rapidly increasing supply of gold; the rapidly increasing population, composed largely of able-bodied adults from Europe; conditions resulting from wars and war debts in several foreign countries; probability of continued good crops, due partly to irrigation and better developed lands; our unsurpassed quantities of cheap materials.

John Wanamaker saw some of these tidings of prosperity when he, a few days ago, told the members of the National Negro Business League, "You are beginning at the best time America has ever had."

While there are many adverse factors, the most of them are simply the concomitants of all periods of prosperity. Thus, rising rents and prices increase the cost of living and tend to check prosperity by decreasing the consumptive demand for goods. To be sound and continued, prosperity should be accompanied by rising wages, as well as rising prices and rents. Such is likely to be the case with the present prosperity, though it is improbable that wages will rise as rapidly as will prices and rents.

The effect of prosperity upon legislation, politics and reform movements is peculiar, though not inexplicable. Prosperity blights reforms and strengthens the party in power. Radical legislation and changes have but little chance when business is brisk and prospects bright. At such times the country, in the language of the late Senator Hanna, is willing to "stand pat" and "let well enough alone."

Bryan was defeated in 1896 not so much by the herculean work of the republican party, as by the rapid rise in the price of wheat just before election.

It is reasonably certain that the Dingley tariff act will not be reformed by the next congress. If any railroad rate legislation is passed, it will be mild and harmless. The trusts will not be curbed while prosperity is on deck.

Had adversity set in last spring it is almost certain that an extra session of congress would have been called for September to lambast our railroads, whack our bad trusts and punch holes in our tariff wall. It might then have been child's play for Lawson to pull down the pillars of our financial temple.

Consider these facts carefully, and then determine if the forward movement of the International Typographical Union is not only justifiable, but also whether those who have so arrogantly opposed it are imbued with a principle of fairness, in view of the matter here quoted and of which they must have been fully acquainted.

Convicted Out of Their Own Mouths.

A great many members are no doubt familiar with the lengthy circular issued by a few Chicago employers, in which letters appear from various typothetæ offices intended to show that conditions were very satisfactory from their standpoint, and that the strike was over and the union beaten. Among others quoted in this circular are Poole Brothers, who were on record as saying:

> * * * Our business has been carried on with very little interruption; the open shop principle and the continuation of the nine-hour day has been successfully established in our plant, and we propose to maintain it. * * * The strike, so far as we are concerned, is settled.

After reading the letter quoted from the average person would naturally come to the conclusion that the strike, so far as Poole Brothers was concerned, was lost to the union.

Then Poole Brothers made a break. They sent letters to country foremen in every locality, fairly begging them to come to

Digitized by Google

Chicago to work for them. This letter is a lengthy affair, covering three pages of solid typewriter. In it are set forth the cheapness of living in the city of Chicago, the amount of money that can be saved, and the chances for advancement that are open to non-unionists who may come to that city on the strikebreaking proposition. Poole Brothers, in sending this letter to country foremen, seem to have forgotten that the foremen have proved to be among our most loyal members when it comes to standing out for the eight-hour day.

The beautiful word picture that Poole Brothers have drawn as a bait to induce country printers to "come on" is worthy of the author of the famous typothetæ question-mark circulars. In fact, it is too good to keep. THE JOURNAL quotes a portion:

Since this strike is called we have employed such a number of non-union compositors, and we are now running almost a full force. We have, however, some positions yet unfilled, and desire to employ a few more competent job compositors. To that end we address you. We will offer you the same terms that obtained in our composing room prior to the strike, that is, $19.50 per week of fifty-four hours (nine hours a day). This proposition appeals to the thinking printer in the country. As a rule he does not earn to exceed $12 per week. If he be a single man it costs him about $5 for room and board, so that his net earning capacity is but $7 per week. A single man can live in Chicago and get first-class board and lodging for $5 per week, but as we are offering $19.50, after paying his board he would still have remaining $14.50, or more than double the sum he has left as the result of a week's work in the country. It is not what one makes and expends for living expenses that avails him, but that which he earns over and above such expenses. If he is a married man, whom it costs more to live than when he was single, our offer is still more attractive. It probably costs him $10 per week to live, leaving him but $2 net. He can live in Chicago as reasonable as he can live in the country, but he would have left as a result of his week's work $9.50, or, in other words, his net earning capacity would be increased nearly five times.

The editor of THE JOURNAL submits the above figures to the consideration of those of our members who are working or have worked in Chicago.

The following paragraph from the letter may prove of interest in view of the fact that an injunction has been issued against the members of No. 16, restraining them from "violence":

We have also been asked if there has been any violence in this strike. Up to the present time there has not been a single act of violence and we are assured both by the president and individual members of the union that there will be none.

The attention of our members is called to the above statement, over the signature of Poole Brothers, of Chicago, one of the firms that subscribed to the application for an injunction to restrain members of No. 16 from "violence."

Half a hundred of these letters have been forwarded to THE JOURNAL by foremen in various parts of the country. A foreman in Ashland, Wis., answered the circular and forwards the editor a copy of his answer. It follows:

ASHLAND, WIS., October 13, 1905.

Poole Brothers, 116 Harrison Street, Chicago, Ill.:

GENTLEMEN—Your circular letter of the 10th inst., offering me a position in your printing office in Chicago, received. You are undoubtedly right in your idea that "a job in Chicago" is an alluring bait to the average young and inexperienced country printer; but you are wrong in some of your other conclusions. You offer me $19.50 for fifty-four hours' work in an "open" shop, and steady work "providing I give satisfaction." You assume that I am working for $12 per week. I am getting $19.25 per week, and working nine hours a day, but after January 1 will be working eight hours a day at the same pay. The lowest wages paid to printers in this town is $15 per week. Last June a scale was presented to the employers here calling for eight hours a day after January 1, at same pay. After due consideration, hearing the employes' side of the case, and talking the matter over, the scale was accepted and every employing printer in town signed it.

In regard to the statement that the country printer has a limited chance to rise in his business, let me tell you that the percentage of country printers, who get above working at the case, or who go into business for themselves, is four times greater than that of the city printer.

Another thing, the country printer is on better terms with his employer, has less trouble and fewer disputes, has a better chance to have a home of his own, a better, pleasanter and very much more healthy place to work, and if he is married a far better place to bring up a family. You are right in saying that it is not the money that a man makes that constitutes a good job—it is the pleasure, the health and the good things that the money will allow him to have.

The best thing that a country printer can do is to stay away from unhealthy, trouble-infested Chicago, strike or no strike.

I know of only one printer in Ashland who seems to be dissatisfied with the place, and as soon as he sobers up I will hand him your letter.

Very respectfully yours,

FREEM SMITH,
Foreman Ashland Press.

Digitized by Google

The Record-Herald Protests.

That ultra-conservative newspaper, the Chicago Record-Herald, takes issue with Judge Holdom, of Chicago, on the injunction which he recently issued, restraining No. 16 from various actions in connection with the eight-hour-day strike in that city. The learned judge's reasoning is asserted to be "puzzling in the extreme." THE JOURNAL quotes the editorial of the Record-Herald in full:

THE INJUNCTION AND THE EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

It is an established principle that men may not pursue an unlawful object in lawful ways. It is also settled law that men may not use unlawful means in pursuing a lawful object. If the Chicago Typographical Union No. 16, just permanently enjoined by Judge Holdom, has been guilty of conspiracy in either of the above senses, it has no ground for complaint, the restraining order being in accord with precedent and prevailing equitable practice.

But it is by no means clear from the published summary and extracts from the court's opinion that, so far as the eight-hour-day issue is concerned, there has been anything illegal about the strike. Indeed, the judge's reasoning on that cardinal point is puzzling in the extreme. We are told that "many of the actions" enjoined "might be in themselves harmless," but that "the unlawful scheme upon which the defendants have embarked," and in furtherance of which they are resorted to, impresses upon them an unlawful character. What the "unlawful scheme" is we gather from the following sentences:

"The foundation of the strike in this case is the union contract demanding a closed shop and an eight-hour day. Both the closed shop and the eight-hour day are unlawful when it is attempted to coerce the employer to enter into them against his will. The United States supreme court held that the sovereign power of the state of New York could not force an eight-hour day upon the employer, and what the sovereign power of a state can not do can not be done by any other power."

Leaving the demand for the union shop on one side, what makes the demand for an eight-hour day unlawful? Why may not a man, or a combination of several men, ask employers to adopt a workday of this or that length and quit work to enforce the demand? Of course, no employer may be "coerced" by improper means, such as force or threats of force, to grant an eight-hour day, but the same thing is true of a demand for a 5-cent increase in pay. What, in either case, makes the demand unlawful is not the fact that the employer is "unwilling" to grant the demand—we are all constantly compelled to do things we do not like to do, owing to circumstances, competition, the will of other men—but the employment of wrongful and illegal means in the attempt to enforce it. If the actions of the striking printers have been "in themselves harmless," they could not possibly have rendered unlawful the intrinsically lawful demand for an eight-hour day. And if both the object and the means are lawful, what makes the "scheme upon which the union has embarked" unlawful? The opinion is a striking instance of circular reasoning.

The reference to the supreme court decision in the New York case is manifestly fallacious and irrelevant. The "sovereign power of a state" can not, the court held, under our constitution, punish a man for making a contract with another man agreeing to work more than eight hours in bakeries and similar establishments. The decision sustained the right of individual contract against an alleged unwarrantable interference on the part of the state. What bearing has it on the right of individuals, singly or collectively, to endeavor to secure an eight-hour-day contract? Such an endeavor is an exercise of the very right the court upheld against state interference.

Wages and Cost of Living.

Scribners' Magazine for November has an article by J. Lawrence Laughlin on "The Hope for Labor Unions." We do not know who Mr. Laughlin is and it does not matter, for it is evident that he has not acquainted himself with the true conditions under which the wage-worker is seeking to better himself and to obtain approximate justice for himself and for his fellows. "In the economic history of the last fifty or sixty years in the United States and Great Britain," says Mr. Laughlin, "it appears that money wages have risen about 50 per cent for unskilled labor and about 100 per cent for higher grades of work, while the hours of labor per day have been lowered considerably. Moreover, this gain in money wages has been accompanied by a fall in many articles consumed by the laboring class." We refer Mr. Laughlin to the report of the Moody Corporation in these columns for enlightenment as to the fall in many articles consumed by the laboring class. Let Mr. Laughlin take the amount of a workman's wages in his hand. Let him lay aside the amount demanded for rent and for clothes, and go out to market and see what he will have to pay for food. Let him look upon the remnant of that weekly wage that is left, and let it come into his soul that those few coins stand between his family and destitution. His beautiful theories will go a-glimmering when brought face to face with cold, inelastic facts. Prices of some few articles, that are really luxuries to the average workingman, have lowered, it is true, but the things that are needed to make red blood and firm muscles—beef, good bread, potatoes, etc.—have become higher and higher in the last few years. As well try to convince a starving man that he is not hungry as to try to make the workingman believe Mr. Laughlin's assertion.

Digitized by Google

A Belated Question-Mark Circular.

The Milwaukee typothetæ issues what will probably be the last of the famous series of question-mark circulars. It is addressed to the employing printers of the central northwest, and starts off with an apology for the non-appearance of the printed proceedings of the Milwaukee mass meeting of employers. We quote: "Events have transpired in the large cities (east and west) with such startling rapidity, and the officers of the United Typothetæ have, as a consequence, been so completely occupied, that the printing of the complete report of this meeting has been deferred."

Further the circular interrogates:

Do you belong to the typothetæ?

Can you afford to face the problems which are constantly arising between employers and employes without the support of this organization, particularly when employes in every branch of the industry are unionized and are continually making unjust and unreasonable demands on the employer because of their strength of numbers?

Think about these questions—analyze them—study the problem from every point of view and you will find but one solution. A firm stand on the part of organized employers against the unjust demands of organized labor. That is the whole story, and the concern which thinks it can fight the concerted action of the unions alone will find itself most sadly battered in the final roundup.

Your interests are identical with those of all your competitors; what injures them injures you, and you are only playing the fair and manly part when you bear your share of the burdens which belong to the employer's side of this controversy.

There is no fight against the union as such.

The above sounds a little bit familiar, doesn't it? Let us change a few words—a very few—and see how it reads:

Do you belong to the UNION?

Can you afford to face the problems which are constantly arising between employers and employes without the support of this organization, particularly when EMPLOYERS in every branch of the industry are organized and are continually making unjust and unreasonable demands on the EMPLOYE because of their strength FROM ORGANIZATION.

Think about these questions—analyze them—study the problem from every point of view and you will find but one solution. A firm stand on the part of organized EMPLOYES against the unjust demands of organized CAPITAL. That is the whole story, and the EMPLOYE who thinks he can fight the concerted action of the EMPLOYERS alone will find HIMSELF most sadly battered in the final roundup.

Your interests are identical with those of all your FELLOW WORKERS; what injures them injures you, and you are only playing the fair and manly part when you bear your share of the burdens which belong to the EMPLOYE'S side of this controversy.

There is no fight against the TYPOTHETAE as such.

The moral of the above, whether as originally quoted or as paraphrased, is—organization. Though the typothetæ be beaten all along the line in its fight against the decent workday—and present conditions point unmistakably to such a result—their struggle will not have been in vain if a true realization of the value of legitimate organization comes to the members of that body. And a realization of the value of organized effort will, if they be consistent men, bring with it a more careful consideration of the rights of their organized employes.

The Pirates Again.

In the October issue of the Bricklayer and Mason the following appears in denunciation of the practice of piracy on the part of a number of labor exchanges:

Recently the Michigan Union Advocate and the INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL condemned in vigorous terms the growing plagiarism of labor editors. It is high time, we rise to add, that this pilfering of other men's brains be put an end to, and we shall be only too glad to help in calling attention generally to this pilfering.

While it may be a higher compliment to find one's brain work wrongfully claimed in this way, such compliments after a time become tiresome, to say the least. When editors are so lacking in the first essential of their profession as to be obliged, in order to fill and vitalize their sheets, to reproduce the productions of those of known competence, it is pitiable; but when to this lack we find joined a lack of honor, then another and far stronger adjective is applicable.

It will be remembered that THE JOURNAL, several months ago, started after the pirates, but the job was too big—in fact the space was wasted, for all the good it seemed to do. The Michigan Union Advocate has now adopted THE JOURNAL's plan of publishing a list of instances of journalistic piracy coming to its notice. We opine the editor of that paper will soon tire of his labor of love.

Digitized by Google

Just one more word on this subject, and THE JOURNAL is done. The "Mister Dooley" articles which have appeared in the recent numbers of THE JOURNAL were written by the editor of THE JOURNAL. Up to date the editor has noted that these articles, entitled "Mr. Dooley on the Open Shop" (August JOURNAL), and "Mr. Dooley on the Typothetæ" (October JOURNAL), have been reproduced in about sixty different labor papers and magazines, and have been properly credited in about five.

An Autocratic Board of Directors.

D. M. Parry's paper, American Industries, devotes its entire editorial page in the issue of September 15 to the eight-hour fight of the International Typographical Union. While the printers are, as a rule, not concerned in the least as to how the Parryites regard their organization, or methods of securing economic reforms, a review of part of the article mentioned may prove amusing, if not interesting.

The page editorial starts out with the following:

> The board of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers today adopted the following preamble and resolutions:

Then follows a series of resolutions of the stereotyped kind—the John Macintyre kind—in which "individual liberty" fairly screams, ending with the following:

> Resolved, That the National Association of Manufacturers recommend to its members universal support of the employing printers in resisting these attacks, the purchase of printing of the lawful open shops, and active legal prosecution of both employer and union members, parties to any unlawful closed shop agreements; and, further, that members and other business men be urged to refrain from enforcing contracts for printing during illegal attacks of labor unions.

The childishness of the resolutions is only equaled by the nerve of the board of directors. Take note, if you please, of the fact that the board of directors is "resolving" for the entire manufacturers' association. Wouldn't there be a yell of holy horror if the board of directors, or its equivalent, of a trade union should presume to legislate for the union. The sacred business interests would then claim that any action taken in such a manner was but a "movement of the leaders," and that the members did not endorse it.

Not a Square Deal.

The Grandin Advertising Agency handles the advertising of the Post products. The Grandin Advertising Agency is C. W. Post. It is only a little scheme of C. W.'s, whereby the publishers are buncoed. As all printers know, a certain commission is allowed the advertising agencies by newspapers. If Post placed his contracts direct, he would have no excuse for claiming any commission. So he uses the letterheads and contracts of the "Grandin Advertising Agency," and collects the regular agency commission. Of course the real advertising agencies can not be expected to grow very enthusiastic over this, and the following from the Mail Order Journal shows how the scheme is regarded in the business world:

> So C. W. Post, the Battle Creek (Mich.) brain builder through grape nuts, is going to publish a paper! This paper is to be known as the Square Deal. Its inspired object is to forward Post's fight against organized labor. On the other hand, publishers don't think that Post, since he has organized the Grandin Advertising Agency to save agent's commissions, is giving them just the right sort of a square deal.

J. F. MOREHOUSE, one of the oldest and best known printers in Springfield, Ohio, and who for twenty years had been foreman of the Crowell Publishing Company, has purchased a country paper, the Osborne Local, and will henceforth devote his time to the work of editing the paper. Mr. Morehouse is getting along in years, but rather than go back on the old organization, he walked out with the rest of the men when the strike occurred. Such lifelong devotion to union principles is worthy of more than passing note. Mr. Morehouse will be remembered by the delegates to the St. Louis convention as the representative of Springfield Union on that occasion.

Digitized by Google

"Progressive Printer" Progressive.

The two editorials quoted below are from the October issue of the Progressive Printer, of St. Louis. The Progressive Printer has been watching the shorter workday fight with the characteristic "show me" spirit of all good Missourians, and has come to the conclusions embodied in the appended editorials:

THE LIGHT OF EXPERIENCE.

The past month has been one of experience to printers, but not of revelation in the prologue of the typographical union for the eight-hour day. They took by the forelock the seeming intent of the typothetæ to loose the bands of the closed shop and declare their factories to be open shops, by requesting proprietors to declare at once that they would accept the eight-hour day under present conditions, January 1, 1906, or that they would not, and in the latter cases the men were called out. "Seeming intent" is used advisedly, because the languishing of purpose among employers and the final death of the cause in many cities, some of them where every member of a local typothetæ had signed a resolution to declare for the open shop, made their forelock an easy tuft to pull out. And so again it transpired that the lamp of experience is lighting the way to success for the organization with the simpler but more significant title, and unless all present indications fail the shorter workday will be adopted January 1, 1906. Outward show made the typothetæ appear formidable—in assemblings, demonstraton and reiterated resolutions; but to meet a determined adversary there must be "that within which passeth show," there must be conviction, sincerity, principle, a universal conscience, and a single purpose on which all are united, or that body not possessing these qualities becomes a band of pilgrims waiting to be shown.

—

TYPOTHETAE INNER THINGS.

There is no use "kicking against the pricks." The United Typothetæ is not yet quite of age and still it has a task before it which maturer organizations would hesitate undertaking. It looks now as if it had sold goods which it can not deliver. The organization was formed in 1887, to fraternize, to defend its rights, and to advance through social features, and with all powers delegated in convention. This has all been changed. It is now a law-making body, offensive instead of defensive, with all powers in the hands of the executive officers, and the elimination of all pleasure functions. But one thing it has not been able to do, and very important it is, too. It did not change the constitutional tendencies of its members when its printed constitution was changed, and so, "men are only boys grown tall, hearts don't change much after all." The typothetæ speaks of members under its control, but it has no such control whatever; this is an inner truth. Then, any contingency such as the mercenary interests of a member through alliance or business connection will sway his allegiance; this is another inner truth. Jealousies engendered in the ordinary competition for business is still another inner truth. And finally, but not all, was the jealousy recently manifested through the favoritism shown certain firms by the union, in not calling out their men as they had done from others of the typothetæ shops. All these are sap destroyers and they weaken the parent organization, or rather they place a rational limitation of powers upon it.

Resolutions by Butte Union.

At a recent meeting of Butte (Mont.) Union No. 126 the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, by Butte Typographical Union No. 126, in regular meeting assembled, That we are prepared to forward our whole eight-hour fund to the International Union, and stand ready to pay special assessments for the help of striking brethren; and,

Resolved, That this union is prepared to send every dollar in its entire treasury, if necessary. Recognizing the fact, as we do, that the unions enjoying the eight-hour day are equally interested with those now on strike for it; therefore, be it further

Resolved, That we place entire confidence in our International officers, President J. M. Lynch, Secretary Bramwood, Hugo Miller and J. W. Hays, and acknowledge the splendid manner in which they have conducted and are conducting the great struggle for the eight-hour day for union printers of North America.

The foregoing resolutions were embodied in a circular which was sent to all subordinate unions.

The Hatters Win.

The United Hatters of North America were victorious in their suit against C. H. Merritt & Son, a Danbury non-union hat firm, and the latter must now account to the union for all the profits it derived by using counterfeits of the hatters' union label upon its goods. It is also restrained permanently from using any more of the counterfeit labels. The decision in the case was handed down in the superior court at Bridgeport, Conn., by Judge Milton A. Shumway. The action was brought by Martin Lawlor of Bethel, secretary of the United Hatters of North America, and, with a few exceptions, all the claims of the complaint were found by Judge Shumway to be true. The judge decided that C. H. Merritt & Son will have to pay to the union all the profits it has made through the use of the counterfeit labels, which were first adopted by the firm March 15, 1904. The exact amount of profits can only be estimated, but it is thought to be several thousand dollars.

Digitized by Google

In the Good Old Days.

The following letter from Chicago appeared in the correspondence columns of the Printer of August 15, 1860. A comparison between it and the present voluminous and interesting letters of Correspondent Knott of that city is worth while.

CHICAGO, August 1, 1860.

MY DEAR PRINTER—I am engaged at present, as you see, in the wholesome endeavor of correcting the morals of the "Skunk City." Bad whisky and country printers here predominate at this season of the year; though better printers or more pleasant companions than the old "standbys" can not be found anywhere.

I met President Farquhar a day or two since, looking as gay as a peach. Our meeting was unanimous. Farquahar put out his hand; Spivins made a grab at it, and our feelings so overcame us that we retired to the "International" and "smiled" at each other. "Smiled," did I say! We "snickered right out," as the gentleman from Boston would say.

This city is full of printers. It seems to be a sort of summer resort for the old tramps, and many country offices having "caved" during the past winter and spring, strapped jours are as plenty as blackberries in Texas. The consolidation of the Times and Herald, which happened a day or two since, has thrown some fifteen A1 printers out of work.

The Union is progressing finely. It is, in my opinion, the model Union of the States, and everything of a character to create dissatisfaction or hard feeling is carefully excluded from its halls. All its members seem to be actuated by a desire to increase the power of the Union for good, and of advancing its interests. Success to it, and all Unions. SPIVINS.

THE Industrial Era thus describes the rat: "When Judas Iscariot betrayed his Lord he had the grace to go and hang himself; when Benedict Arnold became a traitor he went to stay (not to live) among strangers; but the modern rat has the unblushing gall to drag his tail around among those who once recognized him as a man."

THE author of the "Dreams of a Rarebit Fiend," which are being run in a number of newspapers, evidently acquires his inspiration from the typothetæ bulletins. On second thought, he may be eating gripe nuts.

A Sworn Statement.

The following is a true copy of the experience of Michael Fertig, of Philadelphia, and speaks for itself:

BUFFALO, October 17, 1905.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

GENTLEMEN—Freely I make this statement for benefit of other unfortunates who may be caught in the spider web of the Buffalo Typothetæ.

I met a representative of Gies & Co., a John Brunskill, on Thursday, October 12, in Philadelphia, who agreed to place me in a permanent position in Buffalo at $17.50 per week, to start, with transportation to this city. He called for me with a cab and went to Broad Street Station and bought a ticket and berth (12). On arriving in Buffalo, Saturday morning, I was hustled to the Gies establishment, scarcely being given time to eat a lunch, because he (Brunskill) wanted me to be at work at eight o'clock. When I finished work, Saturday afternoon, I was escorted to a dingy-looking room in the Caxton building, adjoining the printing shop of James E. Shaw. Here I found four cots in a room back of Shaw's office, on the third floor. These were occupied by three strikebreakers and a watchman. Monday two additional cots were put in, one occupied by a soldier. The surroundings were anything but cheerful, and all we could do was to read the papers. The promises made were not fulfilled, and on Monday night I was informed that I would have to pay $6 a week for board and cot, and also transportation would be deducted from my first week's pay, although assured that my railroad ticket would be paid by Gies & Co.

Not being used to such a mode of living, the hardships inflicted seemed doubly hard, and on first opportunity I surrendered myself to the care of Typographical Union No. 9, promising that this will be the last time I will ever be misled into taking a striker's place. It is my first offense and will be the last. I remain, Respectfully yours,

MICHAEL FERTIG,

133 South Twenty-fourth street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Michael Fertig, being duly sworn, deposes and says that the foregoing is a true and correct statement.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 17th day of October, 1905. AUGUST R. LUENSE, [SEAL] Notary Public in and for Erie County, N. Y.

WITNESSES:

CHARLES E. KINSKEY,
President Typographical Union No. 9.
W. J. MCLAUGHLIN,
Secretary No. 9.
W. P. KILCAWLEY,
Chairman Eight-hour Committee.
CHARLES E. CONLEY,
T. F. CHUTE,
GUST. MEYER,
Members Eight-hour Committee.

After Mr. Fertig placed himself in the hands of the union there seemed to be a big load taken off his mind. He was overjoyed with the treatment he received from the members of No. 9, and when he left for Philadelphia at 9 o'clock, with a union traveling card in his pocket, he was at a loss to sufficiently express his thanks.

Digitized by Google

What the Eight-Hour Day Means.

The Dayton (Ohio) Daily News, in a long editorial on the eight-hour day, winds up an argument in its favor as follows:

Eight hours for work does not mean eight hours for sleep and eight hours to sit on the curbstone and look at the sun. It means a great deal more than that. It means culture and cultivation. It means fewer men in the jails and asylums, fewer drunken men, fewer gamblers, fewer divorces, fewer paupers. We believe it means more roses in the cheeks of women, more smiles in the faces of men. We believe it means fewer tears, fewer aching hearts, fewer gray hairs and more wisdom, which is a better understanding of the laws of nature and of nature's God. If we are not ready for the eight-hour day this year, let us believe that it will not be many years until we have so perfected our machinery that we can proclaim that at last we have reached the stage where we need not labor but one-third of the day.

New Haven Eight-Hour Meeting.

The eight-hour meeting held in the Music Hall at New Haven, Conn., on September 28, under the auspices of New Haven Union, was a complete success. The large hall was crowded with representatives of all the unions in the city, and there were delegates from all parts of Connecticut and Massachusetts. Before the speechmaking a musical entertainment was given which was highly successful. Frank K. Foster, of Boston, was the principal speaker of the evening. His topic was "The Why and Wherefore of the Eight-Hour Demand," and press reports assert that he did justice to the subject, which he treated in a way that was considered fair and impartial. He said in part that the eight-hour demand was not a local movement, but was of worldwide significance, and he pointed out that in 1838 the painters of New England worked thirteen hours a day, and that they now work but eight, and would cut that down if it was found necessary. He spoke of time as being the only thing which all men held in common, and said that long hours of work made it impossible for the printers to live out their entire life, a thing each man was entitled to do. Mr. Foster remarked that the printers worked in cramped conditions, were always likely to contract metallic diseases, etc. In closing Mr. Foster said:

As regards the typothetæ, all I can say is that they are very poorly organized, and we do not fear them. We are an ancient and honorable craft, and with encouraging reports coming in from the unions holding the eight-hour practice there is no such word as "fail."

Letters were read from a number of unions, and resolutions were adopted congratulating the membership of the International Typographical Union on the success of the shorter workday movement.

Lend a Hand.

The Boston central labor union has issued a circular to all organized labor, asking support for the printers in the eight-hour fight. Following is an an extract from the letter:

The members of your organization can help the printers to win an eight-hour victory. Your financial support is not now asked for, but your moral support is. You are requested—and it should be your cheerful duty without a request—to take a hand in booming the union label of the craft. See to it that the merchant where you trade, the social, fraternal or other organization to which you belong, patronizes union label printing. Appoint a committee to boom this label. Insist upon its use by those with whom you spend your money. A bit of lively action now will be worth tons of sympathy by and by.

The printers are on the firing line. Pass up the ammunition. Back them up! Rally for the short-hour movement for yourself as well as for the craft of Franklin!

Force vs. Reason.

Under the above editorial heading, John B. Lennon, editor of The Tailor, discusses the remarkable series of victories that have attended the campaign for eight hours by the International Typographical Union. The general secretary of the Journeymen Tailors' Union calls attention to the complete absence of any form of violence on the part of the printers, and says, "the contest of the printers with the employing printers of the country for the inauguration of the eight-hour day has demonstrated very clearly the superiority of reason and acquiescence to the law of the land over brute force and violation of the law." Mr. Lennon notes some recent strikes or lockouts that have been lost for the reason that a similar course was not followed, and draws the following moral:

Digitized by Google

The printers in their contest depended entirely upon the reasonableness and equity of their demands, and are winning from one end of the land to the other. This should be a lesson to the trade unionists of the country, that they must depend upon reason and justice rather than intimidation and violence. It is unquestionably true that the charges of the latter that are made against the trade unionists are exaggerated a thousandfold. This will continue to be the case, and for that reason the unions should be exceptionally particular in their conduct to give absolutely no cause or reason for any such criticism.

Resolutions by Columbia Union.

Columbia Typographical Union No. 101 (Washington, D. C.), at its regular monthly meeting October 15, adopted by a rising vote, without debate, the following resolutions, which are self-explanatory:

Whereas, The contest for the eight-hour day in the book and job branch of the printing business has been in progress in some of our principal cities and many of the smaller towns of the country for several weeks; and,

Whereas, The spirit of loyalty displayed by our brothers in the locals affected, resulting in many cases in complete victory, is a source of gratification to us; and,

Whereas, The able manner in which the fight is being conducted by the eight-hour committee of the International Typographical Union meets with our hearty endorsement; therefore,

Be it resolved, That Columbia Union No. 101 hereby extends to the International eight-hour committee, and through it to the locals involved, hearty congratulations upon the magnificent success thus far achieved.

Resolved further, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the International eight-hour committee.

Boston Union No. 13 has appointed a committee to interest the various religious organizations in the printing trades' label. Letters were sent to a number of ministers throughout New England, and quite a number of the replies received have greatly encouraged the committee.

With C. W. Post as dealer, we have our doubts about the squareness of the deal.

The "Un-American" Boycott.

The following resolutions, introduced by the printer delegates to the Indiana state federation of labor, were unanimously passed by the recent meeting of that body:

Whereas, The International Typographical Union, at its session in St. Louis, Mo., in August, 1904, fixed January 1, 1906, as the date for the establishment of the eight-hour day in the printing offices of the country; and,

Whereas, Several unsuccessful attempts have been made by the union officials to secure a conference with the representatives of the United Typothetæ of America in the hope that at such conference an amicable arrangement might be entered into whereby the eight-hour day would be assured to the printers of the country without resort to strikes; and,

Whereas, The manufacturers' association, the citizens' industrial alliance and the employers' associations of various sections of the country have from time to time met and passed resolutions in opposition to the granting of the eight-hour day by the employing printers of the country, and have sought in every way to prevent the interested parties from getting together and adjusting their differences in a friendly manner, thereby inviting and encouraging an industrial conflict that can not but prove harmful to the business of the country as well as bring suffering and want to the homes of many wage workers; and,

Whereas, The manufacturers' association and the citizens' industrial alliance have laid great stress against the boycott and sympathetic strike on the part of the unions, and have sought to array public opinion against the unions because of the boycott and sympathetic strike, it was reasonable to suppose that these capitalistic associations would not resort to them; yet there is no doubt that they have resorted to them in many cities in an effort to coerce employing printers who prefer to dwell in peace with their employes; threats of boycotting in a business way, threats of social ostracism, threats of almost every imaginable sort have been made by these people who prate so loudly against intimidation; and,

Whereas, If there ever existed in the mind of any person a doubt as to the hypocrisy of Parry and Post and their followers in regard to the boycott and its use this doubt has been removed by the numerous instances of boycotting brought out in the printers' movement for the eight-hour day; and no sympathetic strike ever inaugurated was less warranted than the interference of these hypocrites in the affairs of the printers and their employers; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Indiana state federation of labor, that we endorse the action of the Typographical Union in seeking to establish the eight-hour day in the printing industry, and pledge the printers our fullest support in the movement; that if boycotting is fair and just by a manufacturer it is also fair and just by a unionist, and that we pledge the printers of this state that should any manufacturer or merchant in this state attempt to boycott an employing printer because he has signed a contract with the union to give the eight-hour day on January 1, 1906, we will pay him in the same coin. The printers of the country have undertaken to conduct this movement without involving other unions, and the Indiana state federation is determined that, so far as lays in its power, there shall be no outside interference from manufacturers or merchants; and, further

Digitized by Google

Resolved, That the delegates to this convention take up this matter with the printers in their respective localities with a view of preserving industrial peace, if possible, but at the same time serving notice in unmistakable terms that organized labor does not propose to stand idle while a few would-be union crushers resort to the boycott of fair-minded employers.

Successful Eight-Hour Movement.

Under the above head, the Leather Workers' Journal has the following to say of the eight-hour movement:

The eight-hour movement inaugurated by the printers of the United States has made an almost complete sweep. Though only inaugurated a short time ago, they have won a very large per cent of the strikes. When the United States supreme court, in its wisdom and alleged justice, declared the eight-hour law unconstitutional, it left the matter where a strike or lockout or a trade agreement was bound to secure eight hours, not only for the bakers, but the typos as well. The eight-hour law harms neither the employer, the employe, nor the public, but is of the highest benefit to all. No better campaign was ever planned nor was one more successfully carried out.

Success to the eight-hour movement.

To Avoid Strikes.

The following scheme for a complete settlement of the "labor problem" is taken from a recent issue of the New Haven (Conn.) Evening Register:

TO AVOID PRINTERS' STRIKES.

PLAN WILL BE SUGGESTED AT NEXT MEETING OF TYPOTHETAE.

At the next meeting of the Connecticut Typothetæ a scheme will be brought up by a Hartford member that he believes will do away with strikes and be of much benefit to the trade if it is adopted. The object of the plan is to show to the workmen that the employers will give them as much protection as the union and will do as well by them.

The plan is to have a printer make an agreement to work for a certain period of time, say ten years. He is to deposit a certain amount each week in a bank, say 50 cents. The employer will put in a similar amount for each workman. At the end of ten years, if the man continues to work, he can withdraw the sum he has put in and also what the employer has put in, which is an equal amount. If the man quits work before the ten years has expired he can withdraw all that he has put in the bank, but he does not get any of the money that the employer has put in.

How nice! And wages from $11 a week downward. Don't you see funny things in the papers?

Country Employers Wise.

Not a day passes that THE JOURNAL does not receive marked copies of country papers containing strong editorials urging the country printers to turn a deaf ear to the alluring promises of the typothetæ. Space would not permit the printing of one-tenth of these articles, but the following from the Minden (Neb.) Times-Herald is representative of the feeling of the country employer on the subject:

The Omaha job printing establishments are advertising for non-union country printers to take the places of union printers after the expiration of their contracts with the union organization October 5. The existing difficulty between the Omaha Typographical Union and the typothetæ is the proposal of the former to inaugurate an eight-hour workday after January 1. No doubt a great number of country printers will jump at an $18 situation with a guarantee of a permanent position. The country printer's job will last just as long as the strike is on in Omaha, and no longer. As soon as the strike is ended the old men will be taken back whether they win or lose. The employers can always find excuse for discharging a non-union printer when an opportunity offers to refill his place by a man who has become an expert at his special line of work, and instead of winning a job printer reputation the country printers will be branded as "rats" by the union, and are no more respected by the typothetæ. The country printer will be used only as a weapon against the typographical union, and as soon as the battle is won—either way—they will have no further use for their weapons, and they will be looking for work under difficulties. The principal job shops in Omaha employ union printers, and always will, strike or no strike, and the printer that can get $10 a week in the country during this trouble had better stay with it, no matter whether the demands of the union are just or unjust, in his opinion. It is all right to sympathize with the typothetæ at long distance, but if you accept a position you may have occasion to learn why the union wants an eight-hour day.

THE supreme court of Nevada recently handed down a decision upholding the constitutionality of the state eight-hour law. The law was contested by several of the large mine owners.

Digitized by Google

The Labor Press.

The labor papers of the country, with a few exceptions, are doing splendid service in the eight-hour fight. Many of them are publishing in full the bulletins sent out by the International eight-hour committee, and supplementing this by printing full résumés of the local situation. The fact that the editors of a majority of the labor papers are members of the International Typographical Union enables them to present in an intelligent manner the progress of the fight. The fight of the printers for decent hours is the fight of all organized labor, and other unions do not begrudge the space given so liberally to the contest. That a very few of the labor papers see fit at this time to subordinate the eight-hour struggle to local political news, is to be regretted. The occasion, however, affords an opportunity for the union man to observe which are the real labor papers, and which are the adjuncts to the "literary bureaus" of political parties.

Farmers Waking Up.

Slowly but surely the farmers of America are realizing that their interests are identical with those of the wage earners of the cities. Slowly but surely the agriculturists are awakening to the fact that low prices for farm products in times of prosperity are a result not of chance, but of combination on the part of the big buyers and the railroads. Slowly but surely the farmers are evolving ideas of co-operation among themselves. They have found that by standing together and holding their products for a decent price, much can be gained. And as a result of this discovery on the part of the farmers will come a sympathy and a spirit of friendliness toward the trade unions of the cities. The farmer will eventually learn that better pay for the city workers means better prices for farm products. The Farmers' Journal says:

> The International Typographical Union would not last a month if it did not enable its members to dispose of its work at higher figures than it otherwise could. The bricklayers could not muster up another state or national meeting if it were not the means by which the bricklayers sell their labor at a higher price than they could otherwise command. The same may be said of all other workingmen's organizations. They have been conceived, built up and maintained on the one idea of enforcing the demands for larger remuneration for services rendered. And this should be the dominating idea of the farmers' union. Cotton must sell for a higher price by reason of the union, or else the union die.

All through the west and northwest farmers are being organized into unions, and a number of papers devoted to their cause have been started. The first idea of the farmers' unions seems to be the inauguration of a plan whereby all shall hold their farm products until a decent price can be obtained. This is not much different from the principle that animates the trade unionist in refusing to work for less than a decent remuneration. This is but the beginning. When the farmers are "shown" the idea will rapidly take root and the complete organization of all agriculturists assured.

The Slanderer.

The following article from the Cigarmakers' Journal has been going the rounds of the press:

> The foul tinge of slander does more damage to the labor movement than the opposition of employers and even non-union men. The unprincipled puppet who wilfully or maliciously lies about a fellow workman is worse than a scab. The fellow who goes about slandering and lying about officers or members is, in nine cases out of ten, a scab at heart, and worse than the meanest thug, who only robs one of his money and valuables. Honest, true union men only have their character, and this they are entitled to until it is shown by facts that they are not worthy. The sneaking character assassin who will rob another of his character has no decency, and is the meanest kind of a criminal and should be shunned by all decent men. One of the surest ways to destroy a union, discourage the non-unionist from joining the union and giving the union a bad standing with the public is to lie, vilify, and slander the officers and active members thereof. Things who do this should be rounded up and expelled, and the sooner they are the better it will be for all concerned.

In one of his latest heart-to-heart discourses on the dreadful unions, C. W. Post again trots out his famous "statistics"—intended to show the woefully small percentage of trade unionists in this country. A writer in Collier's recently stated that there were three kinds of prevaricators—the liar, the damn liar, and the statistician. The superlative term seems to fit nicely in C. W.'s case.

Digitized by Google

What We Are Doing

More Complete Victories.

Since the last issue of THE JOURNAL the following unions have gained complete victories, having signed eight-hour contracts with all book and job employers:

28, Galveston, Texas.
41, Augusta, Ga.
46, Sacramento, Cal.
62, Utica, N. Y.
87, Houston, Texas.
104, Birmingham, Ala.
167, Schenectady, N. Y.
219, Canton, Ohio.
225, McKeesport, Pa.
239, Carbondale, Pa.
243, Hutchinson, Kan.
292, Grand Junction, Colo.
301, Richmond, Ind.
311, Grand Forks, N. D.
352, Phœnix, Ariz.
396, Canandaigua, N. Y.
419, Anniston, Ala.
449, Calgary, Alberta.
453, Norwich, N. Y.
481, Iola, Kan.
499, Deposit, N. Y.
556, Wilmington, N. C.
582, Nome, Alaska.
595, Athens, Ga.
616, Tonopah, Nev.
641, Ennis, Texas.
653, Jamestown, N. D.
13, St. Paul-Minneapolis German-American.

The Eight-Hour Movement.

Since the October JOURNAL went to press the eight-hour movement has progressed in a manner that is both satisfying and encouraging. We have won complete victories in a number of towns, and have made great gains in the cities where trouble still exists. Our members are standing like the proverbial stone wall. Money almost without limit, power in the commercial world, the insidious coercion of the daily press, attempts at bribing our members by the offer of large blocks of stock and subsidies, injunctions against almost every conceivable legitimate action—these have been but a few of the powerful forces that have opposed the members on strike, but they have proved of no avail. Take Detroit Union, for instance: It has been subjected to almost every one of the above enumerated influences, and after being on strike for twelve long weeks, met in regular session and renewed the obligation of fidelity to the International Typographical Union, and reported that not a man had deserted. And none will desert, for Detroit has announced its intention of securing the decent workday in spite of all the influences that can be brought to bear on it. And the case of Detroit Union is not exceptional—it is typical. While not so many complete victories have been recorded during the last month, steady, consistent gains are being made everywhere. Many firms which seemed determined to never grant the eight-hour day have, after seven or eight weeks' trial of the "free and independent," signed the union agreement. The Chicago Typothetæ, after issuing a statement to the effect that the strike was over, that the employers were satisfied with their non-union printers, and that they were prepared to do business at the same old stand—then secured an injunction against No. 16, in which they claimed that their business was being ruined by the Chicago Union. And at the same time our members are probably familiar with the frenzied appeals for help that are being sent broadcast over the country by the typothetæ shops of that city. The same condition exists in other cities. The typothetæ shops have partial forces of rats in many places, but the rat is the same the world over—he is not a printer. The employers will soon discover this fact—and it is just as well to let them find it out, for it may cause them to hesitate the next time the typothetæ invites them to declare war on their workmen.

Below is given a complete list of the cities that have gained the eight-hour day to date (October 27). The cities appearing in bold face type have secured the shorter workday since the last issue of THE JOURNAL.

4, Albany, N. Y.
5, Columbus, Ohio.
11, Memphis, Tenn.
19, Elmira, N. Y.
21, San Fancisco, Cal.
22, Dubuque, Iowa.
28, Galveston, Tex.
36, Oakland, Cal.
41, Augusta, Ga.
44, Rome, N. Y.
46, Sacramento, Cal.
49, Denver, Colo.
50, Saginaw, Mich.
51, Lawrence, Mass.
52, Troy, N. Y.
54, Raleigh, N. C.
58, Portland, Ore.
62, Utica, N. Y.

Digitized by Google

64, Lafayette, Ind.
65, Virginia City, Nev.
67, Lockport, N. Y.
69, Newark, Ohio.
73, Ottumwa, Iowa.
74, Belleville, Ill.
75, Burlington, Iowa.
76, Terre Haute, Ind.
79, Wheeling, W. Va.
81, Bay City, Mich.
82, Colorado Springs, Colo.
83, New York Hebrew.
86, Reading, Pa.
87, Houston, Tex.
95, Helena, Mont.
96, Glens Falls, N. Y.
97, Peru, Ind.
100, Norwich, Conn.
102, Ottawa, Ont.
104, Birmingham, Ala.
105, Goldfield, Nev.
108, Hagerstown, Md.
110, Union Hill, N. Y.
112, Scranton, Pa.
115, Salt Lake, Utah.
121, Topeka, Kan.
124, Bloomington, Ill.
125, Durham, N. C.
126, Butte, Mont.
129, Hamilton, Ont.
131, New York Bohemian.
134, Paducah, Ky.
138, Austin, Tex.
142, Olympia, Wash.
143, Danbury, Conn.
144, Fresno, Cal.
146, Charleston, W. Va.
147, Ashland, Wis.
149, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.
150, Elizabeth, N. J.
151, Oil City, Pa.
158, Springfield, Mo.
161, Fall River, Mass.
163, Superior, Wis.
164, Kewanee, Ill.
167, Schenectady, N. Y.
168, Muskegon, Mich.
170, Tacoma, Wash.
175, Pueblo, Colo.
177, Springfield, Ill.
179, Leadville, Colo.
180, Sioux City, Iowa.
184, Cheyenne, Wyo.
188, Waco, Tex.
193, Spokane, Wash.
194, Joliet, Ill.
195, Paterson, N. J.
198, Fort Worth, Tex.
199, Zanesville, Ohio.
200, Youngstown, Ohio.
201, Victoria, B. C.
202, Seattle, Wash.
205, Jamestown, N. Y.
207, Eureka, Cal.
210, Salem, Ore.
211, Oshkosh, Wis.
213, Rockford, Ill.
214, Pendleton, Ore.
217, Murphysboro, Ill.
219, Canton, Ohio.
221, San Diego, Cal.
225, McKeesport, Pa.
226, Vancouver, B. C.
227, Cripple Creek, Colo.
229, Crawfordsville, Ind.
230, Danville, Ill.
231, San Jose, Cal.
232, Binghamton, N. Y.
235, Rahway, N. J.
236, Ogden, Utah.
237, Sandusky, Ohio.
239, Carbondale, Pa.
242, York, Pa.
243, Hutchinson, Kan.
251, Muscatine, Iowa.
255, Anaconda, Mont.
256, Great Falls, Mont.
257, Lisbon, Ohio.
260, Findlay, Ohio.
262, Uniontown, Pa.
265, Ottawa, Ill.
267, Frankfort, Ky.
270, New Castle, Pa.
271, Boise, Idaho.
272, Chicago Norwegian-Danish.
274, Amsterdam, N. Y.
275, Victor, Colo.
277, Missoula, Mont.
280, Marietta, Ohio.
282, Sterling, Ill.
285, Ansonia, Conn.
286, Marion, Ind.
289, Titusville, Pa.
292, Grand Junction, Col.
293, Pensacola, Fla.
294, Waukegan, Ill.
301, Richmond, Ind.
303, Cleburne, Texas.
304, Albuquerque, N. M.
305, Newburgh, N. Y.
306, Alton, Ill.
307, New Brunswick, N. J.
311, Grand Forks, N. D.
315, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.
316, North Adams, Mass.
318, East Liverpool, Ohio.
320, Pottsville, Pa.
321, Connellsville, Pa.
322, Kingston, N. Y.
323, Hoboken, N. J.
324, Racine, Wis.
330, Chicago Bohemian.
332, Muncie, Ind.
334, Clinton, Iowa.
335, Rossland, B. C.
344, Green Bay, Wis.
345, Olean, N. Y.
347, Wabash, Ind.
348, Girard, Kan.
351, Sharon, Pa.
352, Phœnix, Ariz.
353, Newport News, Va.
355, Bellingham, Wash.
356, Jacksonville, Ill.
358, Greenwood, B. C.
362, Traverse City, Mich.
364, Coshocton, Ohio.
369, Taylorville, Ill.
370, El Paso, Texas.
373, Durango, Colo.
378, Brantford, Ont.
379, Ithaca, N. Y.
381, Boone, Iowa.
387, Mount Vernon, N. Y.
388, Walla Walla, Wash.
390, Pontiac, Ill.
391, Guelph, Ont.
392, Pittston, Pa.
395, Vincennes, Ind.
396, Canandaigua, N. Y.
401, Hazleton, Pa.
407, Linton, Ind.
410, Everett, Wash.
414, Marshalltown, Iowa.
415, Butler, Pa.
416, St. Catherines, Ont.
419, Anniston, Ala.
422, Mayaquez, P. R.
425, Canon City, Colo.
433, Dover, N. J.
434, Trinidad, Colo.
439, Bakersfield, Cal.
441, Salem, Ohio.
449, Calgary, Alberta.
450, Columbus, Ind.
453, Norwich, N. Y.
456, Washington, Pa.
461, Cairo, Ill.
465, Tucson, Ariz.
468, Yonkers, N. Y.
470, Pittsburg, Kan.
473, Moberly, Mo.
476, New York Slavonic.
479, Centralia, Ill.
480, Tiffin-Fostoria, Ohio.
481, Iola, Kan.
489, Livingston, Mont.
491, Pocatello, Idaho.
492, Bellaire, Ohio.
493, Henderson, Ky.
499, Deposit, N. Y.
505, Clinton, Ill.
509, Greenville, Texas.
511, Batavia, N. Y.
512, Pontiac, Mich.
513, De Soto, Mo.
514, Niles, Mich.
515, Iowa City, Iowa.
522, Morristown, N. J.
523, Tarrytown, N. Y.
527, Oelwein, Iowa.
542, Shelbyville, Ind.
550, Windsor, Ont.
555, Dunkirk, N. Y.
556, Wilmington, N. C.
566, Salida, Cal.
568, Lake Charles, La.
571, Chickasha, Ind. Ter.
573, Aberdeen, Wash.
576, San Luis Obispo, Cal.
578, Coffeyville, Kan.
581, Fort Madison, Iowa.
582, Nome, Alaska.
590, Park City, Utah.
591, Pekin, Ill.
593, Athens, Ga.
596, Houghton, Mich.
599, Herrin, Ill.
603, Fort Dodge, Iowa.
615, Manistee, Mich.
616, Tonopah, Nev.
617, Wallace, Idaho.
625, Salisbury, N. C.
626, Manila, P. I.
638, Stroudsburg, Pa.
640, Berlin, N. H.
641, Ennis, Texas.
643, Waterville, Maine.
653, Jamestown, N. D.
658, Perth Amboy, N. J.

MAILERS.

3, St. Louis, Mo.
5, Toronto, Ont.

GERMAN-AMERICAN.

1, Philadelphia, Pa.
2, Cincinnati, Ohio.
4, Buffalo, N. Y.
5, Rochester, N. Y.
6, Cleveland, Ohio.
7, New York, N. Y.
8, Newark, N. J.
9, Chicago, Ill.
11, Baltimore, Md.
12, Louisville, Ky.
13, St. Paul-Minneapolis, Minn.
14, Indianapolis, Ind.
16, Pittsburg, Pa.
18, Belleville, Ill.
19, Columbus, Ohio.
21, Detroit, Mich.
24, Toledo, Ohio.
25, Wheeling, W. Va.

Following is a list of the cities where strikes exist. Cities where eight-hour agreements have been signed with proprietors employing over seventy-five per cent. of the book and job members are indicated by bold face type. Those having secured agreements with proprietors employing fifty per cent. of the book and job members are distinguished by stars.

Digitized by Google

1, Indianapolis, Ind.
2, Philadelphia, Pa.
*3, Cincinnati, Ohio.
8, St. Louis, Mo.
9, Buffalo, N. Y.
15, Rochester, N. Y.
16, Chicago, Ill.
18, Detroit, Mich.
*29, Peoria, Ill.
30, St. Paul, Minn.
39, Grand Rapids, Mich.
40, St. Joseph, Mo.
42, Minneapolis, Minn.
47, New Haven, Conn.
48, Atlanta, Ga.
*55, Syracuse, N. Y.
59, Quincy, Ill.
60, Roanoke, Va.
*63, Toledo, Ohio.
77, Erie, Pa.
*88, Hannibal, Mo.
90, Richmond, Va.
*94, Jersey City, N. J.
*103, Newark, N. J.
117, Springfield, Ohio.
122, Kalamazoo, Mich.
127, Hartford, Conn.
136, Duluth, Minn.
154, Ann Arbor, Mich.
159, New London, Conn.
162, Jacksonville, Fla.
165, Worcester, Mass.
172, San Antonio, Tex.
*173, Dallas, Texas.
187, Wilkes Barre, Pa.
190, Omaha, Neb.
*191, Winnipeg, Man.
216, Springfield, Mass.
218, Sioux Falls, S. D.
220, Columbus, Ga.
233, Niagara Falls, N. Y.
*240, Altoona, Pa.
291, Aurora, Ill.
308, Watertown, N. Y.
310, Lowell, Mass.
338, Charlotte, N. C.
397, Greensboro, N. C.
*503, Stamford, Conn.
510, Lynchburg, Va.
*524, Freeport, Ill.
605, Mitchell, S. D.

Conditions Where Strikes Exist.

It is the intention to give in the following brief summary the situation on October 27 in the several towns which have not yet gained complete victories.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Two more typothetæ shops have resigned from that body and signed eight-hour agreements since the October JOURNAL went to press. There were ten typothetæ offices in Indianapolis when the eight-hour demand was first made. There are but five now, and but one of them is of any consequence. Only twenty members are now on strike. No. 1 has financed its eight-hour fight and has paid benefits of $7 and $10. The struck shops have secured a miscellaneous collection of strikebreakers, but are able to turn out but a small percentage of the work formerly done. The strain on the non-union shops is becoming intense, and the local officers assert that it is only a question of a week or so till a break will occur in the employers' ranks, and a complete victory can be announced for No. 1.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Seventy members out. On October 18 the Philadelphia Typothetæ made a demand on No. 2 that it sign a contract calling for the open shop and providing that employes may be worked almost any number of hours per day at a certain rate per hour. In the typothetæ's ultimatum it was threatened that notices containing the above provisions would be posted in all offices on the following Monday, and that discharge would result in case of failure to sign individual contracts. Acting on advice from the executive council, No. 2, at a meeting attended by over 900 members, unanimously rejected the proposition and decided to strike offices enforcing the threat contained in the ultimatum. Up to October 27 only six firms had enforced the threat. About 900 members of No. 2 are employed in typothetæ offices.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Seventy-nine offices, employing 180 men, have signed eight-hour agreements. Twenty-three offices, employing 144 men, refused to sign, and the men are out. The list of offices signed includes some of the largest. The struck offices have been able to obtain but a few alleged printers and are almost completely tied up. Several of the strikebreakers imported by the typothetæ are now in the workhouse on various charges. The local electrotypers refused to handle non-union work and also went on strike for the eight-hour. No. 3 is confident of winning a complete victory.

St. Louis, Mo.—Just eight offices, employing about eighty members, still out. The usual riff-raff is making a bluff at printing in the struck offices. The St. Louis citizens' alliance has declared a boycott on the houses that have signed, but it will prove ineffectual, as the unfair shops are in no position to handle any of the work that might be diverted to them by that patriotic (?) organization. Only a question of a short time and a complete victory can be reported from St. Louis.

Buffalo, N. Y.—With a membership of 425, Buffalo has but 140 members on strike for the shorter workday. Thirty offices have signed, and the struck offices are unable to get competent printers. Advices from that city state that "chicken coop printers" are the best the typothetæ can secure. Non-unionists imported are quitting on account of mistreatment. Victory looked for in a short time.

Rochester, N. Y.—Situation unchanged. Sixteen offices signed, thirteen refused. One hundred and twenty men on strike. Manufacturers' association furnishing money to unfair employers, but not furnishing any printers.

Chicago, Ill.—Situation practically unchanged. The few shops which have not signed are making frantic appeals for help, securing injunctions, sending out personal letters to country printers, and in many other ways showing that they are in dire straits. A little while longer and the strain will prove too great for them. Chicago is on the eve of a complete victory.

Detroit, Mich.—"The Stone Wall" is standing as firm as ever. Not one desertion. A most aggressive label campaign has been instituted in Detroit and it is bearing results. In its desperation, the Detroit typothetæ has secured a drastic injunction against the members of No. 18, restraining them from almost every conceivable act that would have any connection with the strike. In regular meeting Detroit Union reaffirmed its allegiance to the International Typographical Union by taking the obligation over again. You can't beat union men like those in Detroit.

Peoria, Ill.—Three more eight-hour agreements have been signed by Peoria Union since the last issue of THE JOURNAL. There are still a few men out, with prospects of a speedy settlement of all trouble.

Digitized by Google

St. Paul, Minn.—Two hundred and fifty out, including copyholders, apprentices, etc. Forty-five non-unionists at work, seven of them competent. Union standing firm and members confident.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Situation practically same as reported in last JOURNAL. About seventy men out. What few competent men the typothetæ has been able to import have been taken from them by the union. Men in excellent spirits and confident of winning. Struck shops losing a great deal of work.

St. Joseph, Mo.—Not one desertion. Union waging a label campaign that is bringing results. City council of St. Joseph passed resolutions commending the local union in its stand. Will win in a short while.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The small force of non-unionists secured has been decreased until none remain except a few incompetents. Bosses trying to create disturbances in order to secure injunction. Local union has situation well in hand and is sure of a complete victory.

New Haven, Conn.—Union standing firm. No change in situation.

Atlanta, Ga.—But seven men now on the strike roll. Fourteen shops have signed and six refused. The twenty-seven men employed in the struck offices have almost all found work in the fair shops, due to the increased patronage given by the public to those offices and the utter inability of the unfair shops to handle work. Prospects bright for a complete victory soon.

Syracuse, N. Y.—But thirty-five men still out. Ten non-unionist incompetents have been secured in their places. Union has voted a 10 per cent assessment, and feels sure of victory shortly.

Quincy, Ill.—Situation unchanged.

Roanoke, Va.—Situation unchanged.

Toledo, Ohio.—The struck shops are beaten to a standstill. The Hackerdorn Printing Company and the Newton & Rotherick Company, two typothetæ offices, have just signed. Class of non-unionists imported even worse than the usual average. Two injunctions have been secured against the local union—not to prevent any violence, for nothing of the kind has been engaged in, but to prevent the union from peaceably seeking to persuade non-unionists to join the union.

Erie, Pa.—All signed but three one-man offices.

Hannibal, Mo.—No change.

Richmond, Va.—Members standing pat and refusing to be drawn into fights started by members of typothetæ.

Jersey City, N. J.—But two shops—the Jersey City Printing Company and the American Type Founders Company—still out. These firms are having difficulty in getting out their work with small forces of incompetents. Union being sued for $100,000, but is not frightened.

Newark, N. J.—Agreements have been signed with thirty-five offices, and the union is laboring with ten that refused to sign. No less than 225 men and boys, principally "goose printers" from the New York east side, have been sent into this city to take the places of the union men, and yet the struck offices are making frantic appeals for aid. Non-unionists are complaining that the promised good wages are not forthcoming. The Advertiser job printing house, a small typothetæ plant, signed eight-hour contract October 26. Union will win complete victory.

Springfield, Ohio.—All offices signed except two, one of these being the Crowell Publishing Company, which has secured an injunction against the local union. The electrotypers quit the Crowell Company, refusing to handle non-union work. Union is confident of winning. The Crowell Company publishes the Woman's Home Companion.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—Strike in seven offices. Members firm and determined. Union issuing weekly labor paper.

Hartford, Conn.—Situation unchanged. One hundred members out.

Duluth, Minn.—Stubborn fight on, but union cheerful and confident. Most members working in union shops.

Ann Arbor, Mich.—All offices signed with the exception of the Richmond & Backus Company. Now in the seventh week of the strike and members say they are bound to win.

New London, Conn.—Three offices still out, involving six men. Offices badly crippled.

Jacksonville, Fla.—Thirteen members out in one office. No non-unionists have been secured.

Worcester, Mass.—About all signed up. But eight men now out, with prospects for complete victory in sight.

San Antonio, Texas.—Situation improving.

Dallas, Texas.—Offices employing half the men affected by eight-hour law have signed. Outlook bright.

Wilkes Barre, Pa.—One office still out.

Omaha, Neb.—Sixty men locked out. Eight offices affected.

Winnipeg, Man.—Eight-hour agreements signed with sixteen firms employing seventy-two men. Twelve firms, employing fifty-two men, refused to sign, and the men are out. Winnipeg Typothetæ trying to secure men in England.

Springfield, Mass. The union standing solid. Struck offices seriously embarrassed.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Members firm, in spite of a drastic injunction. Determined to win. Union issuing paper.

Columbus, Ga.—Twenty members and two apprentices out.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—Local union making magnificent fight. Has been issuing daily paper since strike occurred, and is making an unqualified success of the venture.

Altoona, Pa.—Strike on in Mirror office. Union making good headway.

Aurora, Ill.—Making winning fight, in face of the usual injunction.

Watertown, N. Y.—No change. Fifty members out.

Lowell, Mass.—C. I. Hood Company's printing department signed since last report, making six offices to agree to the eight-hour day. Fight now on one office.

Digitized by Google

Charlotte, N. C.—Only four offices now out. Presbyterian Standard signed since last report.

Greensboro, N. C.—All offices signed except three; only one of latter of any consequence. All members working in fair shops.

Stamford, Conn.—Strike on in one office.

Lynchburg, Va.—Two shops out. Struck offices unable to turn out work. Union confident of victory.

Freeport, Ill.—Four shops signed; two refused. Most of men who came out are working in the fair offices.

Mitchell, S. D.—Two incompetent men and two girls are trying to print in the place of seventeen men on strike.

Miscellaneous.

Secretary Langston, of Palestine (Texas) Union No. 472, says: "We have gained our fight with the Daily Visitor and Weekly Advocate." The strike occurred in this office in March.

Secretary Alter, of Williamsport (Pa.) No. 141, says: "Another office signed. The next to the largest one. That leaves two of the friendly ones still out, and the one unfair one. Twelve shops and nine signed. Will get the rest."

Secretary Welborn, of Asheville (N. C.) Union, says: "Five out of seven offices have signed the eight-hour agreement. The newspapers have had eight hours for some time. We do not think there will be any trouble the first of January with the other two, as long as the unions stand firm elsewhere. At first two said 'never,' but have since hinted there will be no trouble on January 1."

Secretary Forbes, of Jersey City (N. J.) No. 94, says: "We have signed an agreement with the Journal calling for an increase of $3 per week, or $24 and the closed shop."

Secretary Hennring, of Greeley, Colo., says: "The Tribune (six of us employed) has signed an agreement. The Sun has not yet signed, the boss being in Missouri and his acting manager without authority, though he has four union men employed and says that he has little doubt, or none at all, that he will sign. This leaves us in good shape, and we anticipate no trouble whatever on the eight-hour question. Coming to the Tribune four years ago from Chicago, I found wages here from $9 to $11 per week. We now have two at $13.50, three at $15, and one at $20 in the Tribune office, and a tight little union in No. 586."

THE Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen is going to build an international home, and $75,000 has been set aside to start with. The business organizations of Colorado Springs recently held a meeting and decided to make an offer to the trainmen of a tract of land and such other inducements as will practically insure the location of the institution in that city. In this connection it may be of interest to know that the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen has been in existence twenty-three years, that it has 728 lodges, with 78,000 members, $1,560,000 in its treasury, pays out $140,000 every thirty days in claims, has over $87,000,000 insurance in force, and has paid out $11,512,636.13 in benefits.

How They Feel in the Country.

Following are a few extracts selected at random from the files of our country exchanges:

We haven't very much sympathy for the city job printing offices in their trouble with their employes. They "cut prices" on the country offices and when the "strike" comes they rush to the country offices to hire their help. The Combe Printing Company, of St. Joseph, had a cheeky representative in Gallatin the other day.—Gallatin Democrat.

Let those who are our worst competitors fight their own battle with their own money, much of which, had they remained in their own territory, would have gone into our coffers. We all know the conditions of the country printer are far superior to his fellow craftsman in the city, and the many idle hours of our workmen and machinery are traceable to the grasping greed of the large city concerns. If they lose the fight I believe we, as country publishers, will be gainers. Personally we desire to see the union win, as we believe the tactics employed by the typothetæ in attempting to secure help from the smaller towns where no unions exist is about as contemptible as anything we know of.

Printers who have never belonged to a union are lured away to fill the places of strikers, thus doing their fellow craftsmen a great injury and placing a stigma on their own reputations as not being "square" men. The typothetæ in its system of advertising and offering big wages is unscrupulous, and we fail to see where they take into consideration the country publisher to whom they are now turning to for assistance.

If the International Typographical Union wins their fight for an eight-hour day we can not figure out where the country publisher will lose anything, but we can see where he does himself an injury in assisting the typothetæ.—Kincardine (Can.) Reporter.

THE October number of the Locomotive Fireman's Magazine contains a lengthy account of the International Typographical Union's campaign for the eight-hour day. The article is accurate and well written, giving the history of the shorter workday movement from its inception.

Digitized by Google

President's Paragraphs

THE EIGHT-HOUR BATTLE.

The writer can conceive of no better introduction to this month's installment for this department than the appended quotation from the speech delivered by Frank K. Foster at the eight-hour meeting held under the supervision of Boston Typographical Union No. 13 on the evening of October 23, in Faneuil Hall: "No matter how much sympathy you may get, if you want the eight-hour workday for the members of the book and job branch of the International Typographical Union you will have to fight for it, and fight hard. Reduction in the hours of labor never was secured except by the means of offense and defense. You have got to take it. It won't be handed to you on a silver platter by our friends of the typothetæ. If it is worth having it is worth a struggle. Civilization is measured, not by the beauties of art galleries or architecture, nor by the glamour of wealth, nor the pomp of aristocracy, but by the shortness of hours the average man has to work to get a living." The history of our eight-hour movement proves the truth of the assertion that if we want the eight-hour day we "will have to fight for it, and fight hard." From the inception of our agitation, effort has been made to peaceably adjust the problem. This desire has been on every occasion met with rebuff, beginning with the St. Louis convention of the United Typothetæ, and ending with the Niagara Falls gathering of the representatives of that association. Indeed, prior to the Niagara Falls conclave, at which we were told that "the convention instructs the committee to inform you that it is unable to consider any agreement leading toward the eight-hour day," the employers had deliberately forced the issue in San Antonio, Detroit and Chicago. The employers did not desire peace. They wanted war, believing that capital was strong enough to force back the wheels of progress in the printing industry, and that victory for the masters would be followed by great profit. Furthermore, the associated employers never of their own volition made one move toward peace. At the Detroit conference, at the Toronto convention, and finally at Niagara Falls, combined capital, believing that its intrenchments were secure against assault, that the union printers would not "fight for it, and fight hard," in the effort to establish the standard workday, would not listen to any proposition under which the eight hours would become effective, now, next year, or eventually. And the employers brought on industrial war.

A RECORD OF PROGRESS.

It was on September 8 that, as a matter of defense and self-preservation, the general movement for the eight-hour day was brought to a focus. At that time 160 unions had arranged with employers for the shorter workday. During the eight weeks that have elapsed 100 additional unions have secured eight-hour agreements. In more than fifty cities strikes are on, and in all of these jurisdictions a greater or lesser number of employers have agreed to the union's proposition. So that the record of the "battle" has been one of progress toward the eight-hour goal. Hundreds of unions have been prevented, by reason of contracts, from making the eight-hour demand, but as these contracts expire the eight-hour proposition is submitted and agreements are forthcoming. If the present advance continues, and there is no reason for doubting that it will, then on January 1 the eight-hour day will be in general effect, notwithstanding that a number of contests may be on at that time. The record is one to be proud of, and the membership need have no fear as to the final result. An industrial army that continues to advance, as with an army engaged in actual warfare, will eventually occupy all of the hostile territory. Adding each day to our victorious legions, the eight-hour idea is bound to obtain because of its irresistible momentum.

SOME MISLEADING STATEMENTS.

In the circulars issued from headquarters attention has been called to a very few of the many misleading and manufactured statements issued by the employers' organization. It reminds us of the individual who whistles to keep up his courage. In one bulletin, for instance, the following appears as the report from the employers affected by the eight-hour strike in a large city: "All members firm and standing pat." In the next bulletin the statement is: "Members firm and standing pat." The following day: "Firm and standing pat," and then simply: "Standing pat." In another instance a series of reports, ostensibly from an eastern city affected by the strike, were published. Day after day the proprietors were said to be standing firm and the situation to be well in hand. Then the bulletin compiler woke up and discovered, to his intense disgust, that there was not and never had been an eight-hour strike in that particular city. Immediately the bulletin announcements changed tone, and it was frantically asserted that the employers would stand firm when a strike did occur. In almost every case where employers break away from the typothetæ and sign eight-hour contracts, we are told through the medium of this intensely comic bulletin that "they were on the fence anyway." In several instances local typothetæ have signed eight-hour agreements, and we are then gravely informed by the typothetæ's comic sheet and its excruciatingly comical editor, that "there never was a branch of the typothetæ" in that particular city. And so it goes. Almost any kind of a story, and even the stereotyped assertions repeated day after day, appear to satisfy the employers.

THE INJUNCTION FAILS OF ITS INTENT.

After opposition to the eight-hour day became futile and the open-shop cry had fallen flat, the masters resorted to that haven of all employers' associations, the injunction judge. We can all recall the encomiums and compliments showered on the International Typographical Union on those occasions when other employers were in difficulty with their wage workers. "If we only had the typographical union to deal with, there would be no trouble," and "the typographical union is in a different class," shouted these worthies. We were not asking for anything then. How different when we press our request for the eight-hour day! Our laws, and especially our obligation, our history and our customs, our members and officers, all assailed and vilified, and our local unions bound by sweeping injunctions obtained through the medium of perjured and purchased affidavits. In short, if any of our members were impressed with the notion that they were not made of the same clay as other toilers, then the employers are beating that idea to a speedy death. Notwithstanding that not one disorderly act has been committed, and that only peaceable methods have been followed in jurisdictions where strikes obtain, the employers have had no difficulty in securing injunctions. It is their hope that these injunctions will discourage our members and break the spirit behind the strike. But the opposite effect has been created. If you want to arouse even the most amiable of men, do him an outrageous injustice. That is just what these injunctions are—outrages, purely and simply, and they have no place in this movement. The injunction mill continues to grind, and our courts of justice are now the tail of the employers' kite. But our members are not going back to the nine-hour composing rooms. That's what counts.

Digitized by Google

THE CHICAGO BRAND OF JUSTICE.

Of all the injunctions thus far granted in the struggle for the eight-hour day, the Chicago rule is doubtless the most drastic. It was there declared that when picketing and boycotting are used and indulged in as a means to forcing a closed shop on an employer against his will they become unlawful methods. The injunction was granted on affidavits which charged the union with using threats, intimidation, the picket line, bribery and the boycott as a means to enforce upon the employers an unlawful contract of an eight-hour day and a closed shop. "Many of the actions charged in themselves might be harmless," the court held, "but when used even in the slightest degree to carry out the unlawful scheme upon which the defendants have embarked they become in themselves unlawful with the legal definition of a conspiracy." Commenting on and protesting against this most unfair injunction, Secretary Harding, of No. 16, in an able article printed on the editorial page of the Chicago Chronicle, said: "What is this 'unlawful scheme' upon which Judge Holdom says the printers have embarked? It is an effort on our part to establish the eight-hour day in book and job offices. This attempt is unlawful, Judge Holdom says, because 'the foundation of the strike in this case is the union contract demanding a closed shop and an eight-hour day. Both the closed shop and the eight-hour day are unlawful when it is attempted to coerce the employer to enter into it against his will.' Using this declaration as the basis for his opinion, Judge Holdom issues a restraining order which, if words have any meaning, means that Chicago Typographical Union No. 16, after an existence of more than half a century, must surrender its charter to the International Typographical Union and cease to exist as a trade union. If we refuse to surrender our charter and continue doing the things which we have always done we violate the terms of the injunction. From this conclusion there is no escape. The union can not live if we have no right to endeavor by lawful means to establish and maintain an equitable scale of wages, to shorten hours of labor and improve conditions of employment. Chicago Typographical Union No. 16 has had what Judge Holdom calls a closed-shop contract with every daily newspaper shop in Chicago for many years. We had a closed-shop contract with the Chicago Typothetæ and the members thereof for the three years ending July 1, 1905. We have contracts now with 300 book and job offices."

A LEADING NEWSPAPER DENOUNCES THE INJUNCTION.

In a leading editorial the Chicago Record-Herald took occasion to analyze the injunction secured by the Chicago Typothetæ, and said that it was by no means clear from the published summary and extracts from the court's opinion that, so far as the eight-hour-day issue is concerned, there has been anything illegal about the strike. "Indeed, the judge's reasoning on that cardinal point is puzzling in the extreme. We are told that 'many of the actions' enjoined 'might be in themselves harmless,' but that 'the unlawful scheme upon which the defendants have embarked,' and in furtherance of which they are resorted to, impresses upon them an unlawful character. What the 'unlawful scheme' is we gather from the following sentences: 'The foundation of the strike in this case is the union contract demanding a closed shop and an eight-hour day. Both the closed shop and the eight-hour day are unlawful when it is attempted to coerce the employer to enter into them against his will. The United States supreme court held that the sovereign power of the state of New York could not force an eight-hour day upon the employer, and what the sovereign power of a state can not do can not be done by any other power.' If the actions of the striking printers have been 'in themselves harmless,' they could not possibly have rendered unlawful the intrinsically lawful demand for an eight-hour day. And if both the object and the means are lawful, what makes the 'scheme upon which the union has embarked' unlawful? The opinion is a striking instance of circular reasoning. The reference to the supreme court decision in the New York case is manifestly fallacious and irrelevant."

NOTES.

Summing up the entire situation, taking into consideration the manufactured statements issued by the employers and usually followed by an appeal to the courts, we are amply justified in the assertion that we control the situation.

That all that is necessary to a complete victory and the general establishment of the eight-hour day is continued firmness and loyalty.

That thus far our members on strike have stood like adamant for the principle at stake.

And that we will win—in fact, have won.

JAMES M. LYNCH, President.

Digitized by Google

Woman's Department

WOMAN'S INTERNATIONAL AUXILIARY.

President—Mrs. Ed D. Donnell, 906 West Eighth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Secretary—Mrs. C. E. McKee, 430 East Vermont street, Indianapolis, Ind.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

No. 29 celebrated its second anniversary on October 12 by holding a reception, to which the husbands of the members were invited. Music and short talks formed the program, after which refreshments were served.

The members are engaged in making a fine quilt, which will be raffled, the proceeds to be sent to No. 8's members at the Home.

Plans are making for a testimonial to be tendered our efficient secretary, Mrs. George Woodward.

No. 29's visiting committee has organized and notified the officers of No. 8 of its readiness to minister to the latter's members who might appreciate sickroom attention.

Are you asking your tradesmen to have the label placed on their printing?

Are you spending union made money for non-union goods? MRS. J. J. DIRKS.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

I had the good fortune to attend the convention at Toronto and enough praise can not be given for the hospitality extended to us. Being a Canadian myself, I felt very proud of my people.

I had the privilege of nominating Mrs. McDougal, of Toronto, for first vice-president and had the pleasure of seeing her elected. I, in turn, was honored by the office of guide.

Just a few remarks about Auxiliary No. 35 to Typographical Union No. 55. We have been but a year and a half in existence, but we feel that we have accomplished considerable in so short a time. We meet the first Wednesday of each month in the parlors of the associated charities. After our regular business session we spend a social hour and discuss ways for increasing our treasury.

We retain all our charter members and have the promise of some new ones, whom we will surely keep if they once join us. We have lost, by removal from city, two of our officers and two of our members, whom we miss very much.

At our last meeting we were visited by a delegation from No. 55, headed by President Taylor, to report the latest phases of the movement to establish the eight-hour day in all job offices. The members of our auxiliary promised their hearty cooperation as loyal women. We do not intend that our husbands' money shall buy any but union made goods. We are all looking forward to a speedy settlement.

Our members are all most hospitably inclined, and have thrown open their homes on many occasions. They send flowers and give aid whenever necessary. We are preparing now for a public euchre, and other things, so we may be able to assist with our mite.

Our chaplain and first vice-president have just returned from a trip abroad, and we welcomed them at their home with a very pleasant surprise.

At all our sessions we wear our badges, also our eight-hour button. I feel that by another year our auxiliary will be in good running order.

I wish to congratulate Mrs. Kennedy upon the able way in which she settled many questions at the convention, and feel sure that Mrs. Donnell will be able to do the same.

We are always glad to hear from any auxiliary through THE JOURNAL.

MARY D. STANTON, President.

FROM THE PRESIDENT.

There seems to be a disposition on the part of a few delegates and others who attended the Toronto convention, to criticize, more or less severely, the report of the secretary.

This report was rather a lengthy one, consisting of twenty-four good-sized pages of rather small type, and as the most of it was compiled from notes taken by myself, we were conceited enough to think we had accomplished wonders. But we have been awakened from our dream the past month, and we have come to the conclusion that if all that has been said about us and the report is true, as secretary of a convention we must have been almost an utter failure. We have one consolation, however. The stenographer furnished us by the convention threw up her hands after the first day, and at the end of the second day quit unconditionally.

The omission of the referendum provision in the report was inexcusable, but fortunately it was discovered in time, and appears in the new constitution and by-laws, which are now in the hands of our entire membership. We also failed to embody in the report the motion that Mrs. Kennedy, the retiring president, was to receive a copy of the minutes of the two previous conventions.

We desire to call the attention of the membership to the election order on the last page of the new constitution and by-laws. The convention at Toronto made absolutely no provision for holding such election, and in order that there be no misunderstanding in this matter, we have issued this executive order to govern until the next convention can pass suitable laws.

For the nice things said about us by correspondents in last month's JOURNAL, we desire to return our most sincere thanks. A few words of cheer, occasionally, sandwiched in between the "knocks," has a tendency to spur one on to greater efforts.

We want to acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to attend the fiftieth anniversary of the

Digitized by Google

Nashville Typographical Union, which was held October 3. Mrs. John A. Aul and Mrs. Edward Buchanan will please accept our thanks. The newspapers of Nashville compliment Mrs. Buchanan very highly upon her address in behalf of the auxiliary on that occasion. We also acknowledge receipt of the Trades Union Advocate, the new labor paper started by the typographical union at Kalamazoo, Mich. Typographically it is all right, and it is "chuck full" of good trades union reading matter. Mrs. Maynard has our thanks for a copy of the first issue.

We are more than pleased to learn that the auxiliaries in cities where the printers are out on strike for the eight-hour day are rendering every assistance in their power to help the cause along. In Cincinnati the auxiliary members visited almost every business house in the city and left a list of union offices, urging the business men to select their printer from this list. As a rule we received the most courteous treatment, and we believe our canvass will be productive of much good.

We want every delegate to the Toronto typographical convention to consider seriously the formation of an auxiliary to his union. After voting for the hearty endorsement given the International auxiliary at the "eight-hour convention," we can't see how his conscience will let him do otherwise. Write our International secretary-treasurer for constitution and by-laws, information blanks, blank application for charter, etc., and "get busy."

MRS. ED D. DONNELL.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The last meeting of Louisville auxiliary was a very enjoyable one. That of most importance was the report of our delegate, Mrs. J. D. Kane. On finishing reading, Mrs. Kane announced that several resolutions were overlooked and not in the printed minutes, but that she had received a letter from Mrs. Donnell stating that the resolutions omitted would appear in our new by-laws. The most important resolution omitted was that on referendum introduced by Mrs. Bowen, of Washington, D. C. I see in the October JOURNAL, Mrs. Bowen has a copy of this resolution in her letter. From my interpretation of this law, I think our esteemed International secretary a little premature in sending out her notices for the 20 cents per capita tax. The law plainly reads that all amendments that are favorably acted upon at the woman's International convention shall be referred to the local auxiliaries, to be voted upon two months after the adjournment of the convention. I do not know whether the amendments have been submitted to the other locals, but I do know they have not been submitted to our auxiliary. We were all delighted with the honor conferred upon our delegate, and I take the opportunity to thank the ladies of the convention for thus remembering one of our most valued workers. We knew when we sent Mrs. Kane to Toronto, she would look out for the interests of her auxiliary.

MRS. J. O. AMES,
President.

FROM THE SECRETARY-TREASURER.

The auxiliary is in its fourth year, and its prospects for the future look as if it were here to stay. Our retiring president and secretary can look back with pride and be able to say that their work of love has not been in vain. The retiring secretary was correct when she said, "One-half of each day must be devoted to the work." And if the work increases, and we grow as we should, I promise the ladies I will work the harder, and from the many kind letters I receive, I know they will be patient with me until I get familiar with the work. And if a mistake is made it will be from the head and not the heart. I shall accept criticism in the spirit in which it is given. For are we not banded together to lend a helping hand. "With malice toward none and love for all" and hearty co-operation of each auxiliary we can make this work a grand success. If any have failed to get new constitutions and by-laws, please inform me at once. The receipts and expenditures to and including October 17, 1905, were as follows:

RECEIPTS.

Sept. 9.	From Mrs. Ed D. Donnell, former secretary-treasurer	$373 79
Aug. 28.	Lincoln—For third quarter	7 50
Sept. 20.	Jackson—For third quarter	1 35
Sept. 23.	Washington—For supplies	1 00
Sept. 25.	St. Paul—For third quarter	4 00
Sept. 26.	Louisville—For third quarter	2 80
	For supplies	50
Sept. 28.	Pueblo—For third quarter	3 00
Oct. 3.	Spokane—For third quarter	2 80
Oct. 5.	Seattle—For first quarter	6 60
Oct. 6.	St. Louis—For fourth quarter	7 35
	For supplies	25
Oct. 6.	Bradford—For first quarter	2 60
Oct. 11.	Austin—For first quarter	2 20
Oct. 12.	Atlanta—For first quarter	2 00
Oct. 12.	Cincinnati—For first quarter	7 60
Oct. 13.	Kalamazoo—For third quarter	2 40
Oct. 17.	Washington—For third quarter	16 00
Oct. 16.	Mrs. J. T. Snyder—For International pin	1 55
Oct. 16.	Charter for Boston auxiliary	2 00
	Total receipts to Oct. 17	$447 29

EXPENDITURES.

Sept. 9.	Convention stenographer	$10 00
Sept. 9.	Expressage	2 30
Sept. 10.	Car fare to Cincinnati	1 50
Sept. 19 to Oct. 17.	Stamps	15 70
Sept. 19 to Oct. 17.	Printing and stationery	94 10
Oct. 12.	Mailing convention reports	6 69
Oct. 14.	Bond for secretary-treasurer	5 00
Oct. 14.	Typewritten copy St. Louis convention	1 50
	Total expenditure to Oct. 17	$136 79

RECAPITULATION.

Total receipts	447 29
Total expenditures	136 79
Balance in bank	$310 50

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. C. E. MCKEE,
Secretary-Treasurer.

ENGLISH VERSUS SLANG.

Grammar Teacher—"James, give me a sentence containing the word 'despair.'"

James—"Me goil gave me dis pear."

Digitized by Google

EVANSVILLE, IND.

I expect the majority of our good sisters throughout the country noticed in the International convention report that I expected to move to Evansville within a short time. Well, here I am, and what little I have seen of the place I like it very much. Now, "just watch our smoke!" If we don't have a nice live auxiliary here within another month, it will not be our fault. Mr. Lee is foreman here of the Keller Printing Company, and Messrs. E. M. Morrison and T. H. Kilgore, formerly of Louisville, are also here with their wives. We have enough members already to send for a charter.

I wish to extend my best wishes to all our newly-elected officers, and would be glad to hear from any of the members of the woman's auxiliary. My new address is MRS. JOHN F. LEE.

708 Upper Second street.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

Woman's Auxiliary No. 39 gave a grand ball Monday, October 16, which was the best attended social affair ever given by No. 39. The committee in charge of the entertainment included Mrs. D. K. Kirkland, Mrs. G. Gus Crawford, Mrs. W. B. Cobb, Mrs. A. W. Hannefield, Mrs. Charles W. Fear. From a social and financial point the ball was a decided success.

Copies of the proceedings of the fourth annual convention have been received and distributed among the members. Much interest is being taken by the members in the questions acted on by the convention.

Since returning home from the Toronto convention the writer has received several letters and souvenirs from members of different auxiliaries. The acquaintanceships formed at our annual gatherings are dear to all of us, and remembrances, even though they be but a postal card, bring back pleasant memories and thoughts.

While in attendance at the Toronto convention the writer received much attention and many favors from the members of Toronto Typographical Union and Woman's Auxiliary No. 42. Mrs. McDougal, our first vice-president, Mrs. Henry Thompson, Mrs. O'Grady, W. R. James, John Chinn, Hugh Stevenson and Mr. Edworthy certainly proved to be entertainers par excellence. I only hope I shall some day be able to reciprocate.

Mrs. A. E. Gross, our former president, and little daughter Ruth have both been on the sick list, but are reported as out of danger.

Much interest is being taken in auxiliary affairs, and a movement has been started to secure permanent headquarters for our auxiliary. The president, Mrs. E. A. Louck, hopes to see an increase in membership during this coming winter.

Mrs. W. B. Cobb and Mrs. Frank Williams, two of our members, visited the Printers' Home while on their summer vacation in Colorado, and are warm in their praise of that institution.

The officers and members of Woman's Auxiliary No. 39 feel grateful to those members of No. 80 who have aided them in building up the "baby" auxiliary. The gradual increase in membership is directly traceable to the work of a few members of No. 80, who never miss an opportunity to speak a good word for No. 39.

At a recent meeting of No. 39 Mrs. A. W. Hannefield entertained the members with a description of a recent visit to the Union Printers' Home at Colorado Springs. Mrs. Hannefield says the Home is the finest institution in the world, and hopes that the time will come when a sick or superannuated member sent to the Home will not be separated from his wife, as is now the case.

MRS. CHARLES W. FEAR,
Secretary.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

The woman's auxiliary to Typographical Union No. 89 is steadily increasing in membership and enthusiasm. We met at the home of Mrs. G. D. Groaners October 5. The meeting was short, as nothing but the rummage sale was talked of. This sale will be the largest the ladies have ever given, and begins on the 20th and will continue till all is sold. All members of No. 21 are expected to take some part toward making this sale a great success. Each of us will make one or more aprons. This will give us a counter of new aprons.

All seemed well pleased with the convention report, and appreciate Mrs. Donnell's effort to have one for all. In my opinion nothing could have been nicer, as oftentimes one wishes to refer to the report, and now one can do so with no trouble to any one.

No. 89 was represented by its secretary-treasurer, John O'Brien, and we were glad to see his cheerful face.

Our president, Mrs. Ed Hale, will entertain No. 21 November 9. MRS. OZA BLODGETT.

OMAHA, NEB.

Please give me space wherein to congratulate the woman's auxiliary on the bright prospects which now appear of the typographical union winning the eight-hour day. It is needless to say that in the outcome of the pending struggle no one is more deeply interested than the printer's wife and family, seeing that it will give the head of the family that much more time in the home for rest, physical and mental recreation and improvement. The effects of this can not, in my judgment, be overestimated, as anything that lessens the printers' hours of drudgery must be conducive to their welfare and the comfort and happiness of the home, and happy homes make for good citizenship.

In this struggle, if long drawn out, the women and children will be called on to take up their share of the burden and make many sacrifices of self-denial, as well as lend their moral and active assistance, if it should become necessary, and this I feel every member of the auxiliary is ready to do.

However, the present indications are that the fight is as good as won, without any turbulence or bitterness engendered, as employers are becoming convinced of the reasonableness of the demand, and that the sympathy of the general public is with the union for the same reason. I will not discuss what the women can do in the strike until an emergency arises and the need of their help is more pressing, but I believe there is a field wherein they can do much.

Digitized by Google

The Omaha auxiliary just now is busily engaged in "boosting" the union label, and between it and the Omaha Union Label and Home Industry League the effect of their united work in this direction is truly astonishing in promoting the sale and purchase of union-made goods under the "Omaha plan," as explained by me at the late convention in Toronto.

In this connection I would suggest the adoption of the scheme in every district where our auxiliary exists, as it is a work within woman's sphere, and one for which her position as "business agent" for the home makes her peculiarly fitted. We, in Omaha, are very much gratified at the results obtained here, and are of opinion the same results can be achieved elsewhere if an earnest effort is made.

MRS. FRANK A. KENNEDY.

—

The long-expected struggle for the eight-hour day is now on us in earnest. About sixty of our job printers in Omaha have been locked out by the employers, and more expected to follow. At present only three men have proved traitors, and, needless to say, not one of them is the husband of an auxiliary member. Had they been, I believe they would have been loyal to the cause that has placed them where they are today, and by whose means they have been enabled to reap the benefits during the past. Let us hope that the struggle may not be a prolonged one, but that the success which has been achieved in other cities may be repeated in Omaha. Our last two meetings have been exceedingly well attended, and not one word of complaint has been heard from the women who expect to be the greatest sufferers in this struggle, but all seemed determined to assist the men to stand firm, and many were the ways and means devised and plans laid to help out the family exchequer and perform the miracle of making $7 clothe, feed and house a family. The families of job printers were cordially invited to visit the homes of the newspaper men to spend the day, staying for dinner and supper. (This invitation may not be accepted till later on.) The auxiliary is holding itself in readiness to assist the union whenever called upon, and they are assured of their sympathy, encouragement and good wishes for ultimate victory.

The first of our winter card parties is to be held at the home of Mrs. Ellsworth, in Dundee, on the 26th, and a large crowd is expected. The prizes are again to be donated by some of our generous and wealthy members. Our long-deferred rummage sale also takes place the last week of this month, and everybody is busy collecting all odds and ends that can possibly be turned into cash. So you see we are a very busy crowd of women, and the interest is never allowed to wane. Reports at every meeting show that the work of pushing the label goes steadily on. In the meantime, the war cry is "Victory for the eight-hour day!"

MRS. D. G. CRAIGHEAD.

CHICAGO, ILL.

I wanted to tell you last month about our Colorado Springs club, but was afraid of occupying too much space. Auxiliary No. 41 is forming a club of members and women relatives of members of No. 16 for the purpose of having a couple weeks' outing in and about Colorado Springs during the time of the convention next summer, the convention days to be given to entertaining to the best of our ability, the rest of the time to exploring the wonders and enjoying the beauties of this garden spot of the world. I find printers universally enthusiastic about it, but the housewife is somewhat doubtful. Why is it that women are looking for trouble continually, instead of happiness? These are some of the questions asked me: Suppose some of those terrible rainstorms come up and we are tenting, wouldn't we have some accident? The nights are so cold, how can we sleep in tents? How are we going to manage our work? How much is it going to cost? Don't you think that is a lot of money just for a couple of weeks? But no one has yet asked me the question, Have you found out any way that we can have a little better time than the average tourist? Personally, I foresee but one trouble, and that will be getting the ladies away from Colorado.

It is rather too early to announce our winter social features, but next month I shall endeavor to do so and give dates, so that all our friends can participate. Our auxiliary is in a flourishing condition, and we are all well.

MRS. GILBERT R. JONES.

TORONTO, ONT.

Members of Woman's Auxiliary No. 42 have again settled to business with very pleasant memories of the convention.

Our September meeting was well attended, and several new members were received. Our president, Mrs. D. McDougal, read the report of the convention.

Mrs. Darwin, of the label league, gave a splendid address on the necessity of buying only union-label goods. We have heard of Prof. Darwin's theories, but the label league theories, or rather facts, will not make a monkey of any one.

Our auxiliary is anxious to assist the striking bakers in every way possible. All consumers are requested to patronize only the firms which deal fairly with their employes. The bakers' union requests financial aid from all organized trades. All should help the bakers, because they "knead the dough."

Really, we feel flattered after reading all the nice things our fair and gallant confreres have written of the craft and their friends here. Wish they could have remained for our national exposition—the greatest annual fair on earth—open for two weeks, with a daily attendance of from 50,000 to 125,000.

Toronto's convention fever is still running high, if we are to judge by all who say: "Colorado Springs for mine!"

Labor day parade was a great success, and afforded much satisfaction to all interested in organized labor.

Digitized by Google

No. 42's first entertainment of this season will be held at the home of the Misses Reeves, Lakeview avenue, on Saturday evening, October 28, that all may have an opportunity to attend. A good time is assured.

Invitations are out for our initial "at home" in the new labor temple, on November 30. All members and friends are endeavoring to make this event a memorable one. There is a splendid field for auxiliary work in the Queen City. Our membership can be greatly increased.

All are greatly interested in the eight-hour campaign, and confident of the outcome. For enthusiasm, however, the palm goes to those delegates who, at our (Coney) island, were so often up in the air on the "8." Our cousins called it the Russian slide.

Eight hours. The days are getting shorter. It's a shame to burn the boss's oil!

ANGELA MCCANN.

SEATTLE, WASH.

Seattle Auxiliary No. 23 is making extensive arrangements to give a grand ball at the new labor temple, built and owned by the organized workers of Seattle, on Wednesday, October 25. The wherefore of the occasion is to celebrate the twenty-third birthday of Seattle Typographical Union No. 202.

Work is progressing steadily upon the proposed Christmas bazar, to be held by No. 23 toward the latter part of December, the ladies being engaged on various fancy articles, which are to be sold at auction to the highest bidder.

Mrs. A. A. Sherman and Mrs. Phil Rummel, late of the Spokane auxiliary, were visitors at our last meeting. Their husbands being now members of Seattle Union, the ladies will shortly withdraw from the Spokane auxiliary and swell our number by two. Fraternally yours,

MRS. G. W. FICKS.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

At the regular meeting of Auxiliary No. 7, October 4, Mrs. P. J. Thornly was elected secretary to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. H. J. Loser, resigned on account of the ill health of Mr. Loser, who has been confined to his home for the past four or five weeks. Mrs. Loser has been a very able and efficient secretary since we organized, more than four years ago, and we regret very much having to give her up, but it is felt that in Mrs. Thornly she has an able successor.

Mrs. T. J. Dougherty most delightfully entertained the auxiliary with an afternoon luncheon at her home on McTyeire avenue, Thursday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. A two-course menu was served, the color note of pink and white being carried out in the ices and cakes. Individual souvenir cakes bore the hostess' monogram in pink.

Mrs. A. G. Bostic will entertain the auxiliary at her home in Eastland, October 26.

Nashville Typographical Union No. 20 celebrated its golden anniversary October 3 at Casino Theater, Glendale Park, with a magnificent banquet. On this occasion our president, Mrs. Edward Buchanan, distinguished herself by delivering a most pleasing address, which was received with hearty applause.

As delegate to the Toronto convention, I read before Auxiliary No. 7, at the September meeting, a report of the proceedings of the convention, also of the entertainment features for the week, which I think all in attendance agreed were the most delightful ever given the International Typographical Union.

MRS. JOHN A. AUL.

CINCINNATI, OHIO.

The first of a series of entertainments planned by the woman's auxiliary was a Dutch lunch, given at the residence of Mrs. F. P. Holloran on Tuesday, October 3, which was a decided success. The house was appropriately decorated, and the waitresses made pretty "Gretchens" in their becoming costumes.

The effort to get at the social side of the "print" was successful, and presages a very much greater acquaintance of the families of the members in the near future. This will, indeed, be a grand work, and will make for the solidarity of the work which is being, and which must be, accomplished by the typographical union and its auxiliary.

The women at present are, of course, much interested in the work for the eight-hour day, and those who are on the fortunate day side are looking forward to January 1, when the husband, son and brother will have more time to devote to their families.

We are particularly proud of the fighting qualities of our men, and can see nothing but victory in the end, and one brave woman, whom we know of, says to her husband each morning: "——— if you go back to work—well—you needn't come 'round."

At our regular meeting, October 9, Mr. Donnell, of the strike committee, made a very interesting talk on the present condition of affairs, and suggested work for the auxiliary which may be helpful at this time.

From now on our meetings will be held in the afternoon, and we hope to have a full attendance.

MRS. WILLIAM B. OGDEN,
President.

COMPRESSION.

The final chapter of the serial novel was two columns long, but the editor had only one inch of space for it.

Accordingly he compressed the hero's tragic end into the following paragraph:

"Arthur took a small brandy, then his hat, his departure, besides, no notice of his pursuers; meantime a revolver from his pocket, and, lastly, his own life."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"MY curiosity is running away with me," said the farmer when his two-headed calf got loose and towed him around the barnyard.—Cornell Widow.

Digitized by Google

Correspondence

DETROIT, MICH.

"State of Michigan, county of Wayne, ss.—In chancery," etc. That is the title of 500 typewritten subpœnas to our local members in injunction proceedings to show cause why we should not be permanently restrained from picketing and boycotting the "open shops," returnable October 23.

Not a single desertion from our ranks has occurred, notwithstanding all manner of inducements from the typothetæ.

It was unanimously voted to assess ourselves 10 per cent on all earnings in excess of $10.

President Dickson wishes to extend his heartfelt thanks, on behalf of No. 18, to all subordinate unions and officers for their material and moral support which has been extended.

Union headquarters are running as an "open shop"—that is, never closed.

Did you ever think as the hearse passes by
That it won't be long before you and I
Will take a ride in that large plumed hack
And never remember of coming back?

Did you ever think when grasping for gold
A dead man's hand no dollar could hold?
It's nip and tuck as we try to save—
But we lose it all when we reach the grave.

Do you ever think in our labor and strife
It's our duty to brighten each other's life?
Let each take a part, be it great or small,
For Union is strength—divided we fall.

Don't get discouraged, boys, keep up the fight—
We're bound to win "because we are right;"
Shoulder to shoulder, be stanch and true—
You fight for me and I'll fight for you.

The bowling season was formally opened September 30 with a "head pin tournament," which is six frames and six balls; sixty is the highest possible score, no count unless head pin is down. Morris Gloster won first prize, with the score of fifty-nine. Second and third prizes went to President Lloyd and F. McManus, with a tie score of fifty-six. The regular league schedule began October 2, with great enthusiasm and the alleys in perfect condition.

The typothetæ agent here has organized the strikebreakers and rats into a printers' protective fraternity society. Auto rides, theater parties and smokers are features of the society—all at the bosses' expense. Ain't that real nice?

"Ned" Weston spent a couple of weeks with us recently, en route for 'Frisco from New York.

"Scorch" Kehoe drew his card and has emigrated to the "wild and woolly."

"Crow" Egan is with us again.

Never kick a man when he is down—unless you are sure he will never get up again.

We may not be superstitious, but a ladder won't fall on a man who is not under it.

WALTER O'DAY.

Detroit Typographical Union No. 18 held a very enthusiastic regular meeting on Sunday, October 1, which was in itself a splendid refutation of the absurd claims of the typothetæ that dissensions and weakness were fomenting in the ranks of the union.

After the regular business, the meeting was addressed by President Dickson, who outlined the present aspect of the situation and dwelt upon the harmony and good feeling that existed in the union. He was followed by Organizer Haight, who presented additional reasons why Detroit Typographical Union could not possibly lose this fight, and spoke feelingly of the deep brotherly feeling that had been engendered between the members by this uncalled-for lockout.

Mr. Brooks also touched a popular chord in his appeal to the men to stand steadfast.

At this point a very affecting part of the meeting occurred.

Robert McDonald introduced the following resolutions, prefacing their introduction with a tribute to the stability of the stand the union had made as a body:

Whereas, Over seven weeks ago the local typothetæ, at the instigation of the National Typothetæ and the National Manufacturers' Association, locked out 130 members of the Detroit Typographical Union without cause, the union having made no demands upon the employers whatever; and,

Whereas, This loyal little band of 130 men, with the undivided support of their brother members in Detroit Typographical Union No. 18, have carried on this contest against the combined employers' associations with such avidity as to earn the respect of union printers throughout the United States and Canada; and,

Whereas, The employers, after all their extravagant claims regarding their ability to run their offices with non-union men, have failed most lamentably to substantiate, in even a small way, those claims; and,

Whereas, With the heavy fall business coming into those offices, it is plain that they can not longer hold out against the tremendous pressure that is being brought to bear upon them, since the small and incompetent forces in those offices could not turn out the work even in times which have been unusually dull; and,

Whereas, There is every indication that the typographical union will win hands down, with a continuance of the lines of attack which have proven so eminently successful up to the present time; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, members of the Detroit Typographical Union No. 18, in a regular meeting assembled, do hereby affirm our determination to continue this just battle without abatement until the eight-hour day is assured and the union label—that emblem of fair play and fair wages—shall occupy the place of honor it deserves in every printing office in the city of Detroit; and, be it further

Resolved, That we realize the trying duties which this conflict has forced upon the officers of the International and local union, and that we hereby reaffirm our absolute confidence in those officers and heartily endorse their untiring, faithful and conscientious efforts in our behalf; and, be it further

Resolved, That we, as a body, renew our oath of allegiance to our grand organization, which has been sorely tried—but not found wanting.

As the reading was finished, Mr. Holt, one of the oldest members of the union, arose slowly and made a motion that Mr. Walker, now secretary, but one of the early presidents of the union, read the obligation, as provided for in the final paragraph of the resolutions. Continuing, Mr. Holt said that forty-four years ago Mr. Walker, in his capacity of president, had initiated him into the Detroit Typographical Union.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Walker read the obligation, and the entire membership present stood, and holding up their right hands, took again their obligation to the typographical union.

The scene was most impressive, and many eyes were dim with a suspicion, at least, of tears.

After some further business, this most harmonious meeting came to a happy close, and served to prove to all present that the typographical union was a unit in its determination to fight to the last ditch and, finally, to force the typothetæ to capitulate within its own stronghold. J. H. WALKER.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

If the employing printers of this city had had to rely upon their own resources, No. 15 would have won the eight-hour fight within a week. The velvet hand of the manufacturers' association has descended upon both employer and workman, and the fight is now on to a finish. Only a sworn affidavit from D. M. Parry, however, will convince the International Pressmen's Union that outside influences are involved in the fight. The rank and file are already convinced of that fact, nevertheless, and would gladly take a hand, were it not for their "fool" contract and the obstinacy of their international officers. Their organization stands out today as a horrible example of a capitalistic trade union blocking the way of a great movement for the benefit of its own members. The International Typographical Union is equal to the occasion, and will win the eight-hour day in spite of all opposition.

The Union and Advertiser and the Post Express have again been placed upon the unfair list. They were both removed some time ago, in an effort to organize them. In the case of the Post Express it was successful, and when the demand for the eight hours was refused, the employes of both news and job departments left in a body. The Union and Advertiser, however, was a different proposition. It was absolutely impossible to organize that concern. The people employed there are of the kind who desire something for nothing, and prefer to allow others to struggle and sacrifice to gain conditions for them to afterward enjoy. When No. 15 made the demand for the new scale of prices and hours of labor, the Union and Advertiser immediately raised its jobbers up to the union scale of $16, and promised them the eight hours if No. 15 won out. On these terms its employes (with a few exceptions) were induced to make individual contracts. If these contracts are similar to those made by the imported strikebreakers, there is only one definition for workingmen who sign them, namely, "fools." Few working people of the city have ever subscribed for the Post Express, but quite a number do read the Union and Advertiser. It is up to all such to subscribe for some other paper until these firms are brought into line.

The musicians' union of this city is having an interesting experience with the courts. A short time ago it was ordered by an injunction to reinstate to membership one Bachman, who had violated the constitution and by-laws of the organization. On its failure to obey the order, the officers of the union were twice hauled before the court and fined for contempt. The two distinctive features of this injunction were: First, instead of "restraining" the union from some act it intended to commit, the court ordered it to "do" a specific thing; and second, when the fine of $750 for contempt was placed upon the union, the court issued an order attaching the entire funds, some $4,000, in order to prevent an appeal to be taken from its decision. The bank where the money was on deposit, however, refused to turn over the funds, and both union and bank appealed from the decision of the court. Now the facts are produced by the attorney for the union, which prove that the affidavit made by Bachman, and upon which the original injunction was based, was false from start to finish. It was with great difficulty that the grand jury was induced to take the matter up, and when Bachman was face to face with a possible charge of perjury, he admitted that the substance of his affidavit was false, but claimed he had not read it before signing, and therefore could not be held responsible. His attorney substantiated this claim, and, in order to evade responsibility for drawing up this affidavit, said he had been "misinformed" as to the facts at the time it was written. As the grand jury is usually made up of men who are hostile to organized labor, the excuses of Bachman and his lawyer will no doubt be accepted by them, and no indictment will follow. The musicians' union seems to have no redress but to accept the situation and pocket the loss. The grand jury of this same county only a few years ago indicted prominent labor men for "conspiracy to raise wages." It makes quite a difference "who is who in America" nowadays. HENRY D. HENDERSON.

TOLEDO, OHIO.

All this talk about labor and capital being "partners"; that their interests are "identical," etc., hath a mighty hollow sound when a conflict of interests develops. The trade unionists of this city received a jolt in the late sweeping injunction issued by Judge Morris that will start some new thoughts in their think boxes. The injunction restrains the trade unionists from doing almost everything (except voting) that would further their interests as a class. The so-called great daily press likewise lines up on the side of the business interests when the whip is cracked. In this city the workers would have had no means to keep the public in touch with the organized labor movement in the present struggle, were it not that an obscure labor weekly and a heretofore almost unheard-of socialist paper came to their rescue. Meanwhile the great dailies contain column after column of slush, telling of the virtue of their want columns and such other "heavy" topics intended to relieve (?) the burden of labor in the struggle for existence. For over twenty years the workers have been demanding the eight-hour day, and during all this time the labor press has fought valiantly labor's cause, with little or no support. In many localities labor papers are rarely, if ever, thought of by workers except in times of industrial warfare—when the capitalistic press either deserts the workers outright or remains silent. Boost the boosters of the fair list—the labor and socialist press.

Digitized by Google

At first the employers could not see their way clear to grant the eight-hour day, owing to the fact that the dear public would not stand for the increased cost of production. Now they do not give the eight-hour day a thought. They want "open shop." Wonder why?

This eight-hour agitation has been of great benefit in the education of the craft. We knew too much about sports and too little about economics.

In its last analysis, men of different factions all want the same thing. It's simply a matter of tactics and of "getting together."

The proposition to teach the ethics of organized labor in the manual department of the Toledo university has brought out considerable opposition from the class known as the "best" citizens. This branch of study is intended solely to complete the work and education of a trade school, and instead of training students to become "scabs" upon the organized workers, the proposed instruction will be to advance the aims of organized labor. Dr. Pyle, the instigator of the resolution, said: "A doctor of medicine, who remains outside of the medical organization, and who violates the code of ethics adopted by the members of the profession in its organized capacity, is shunned and dubbed a 'quack.' The word 'quack' to the members of the organized medical profession is as odious as the word 'scab' to the members of the labor organizations. In either case, the opprobrious epithet designates a traitor to his class. * * * If we are to judge a class by its social importance, the laboring class should be given the first consideration. All other classes are dependents, and can not exist without the consent of the toilers. Working class ethics is held in contempt by the dominant force in the United States for no other reason than it has no political influence. The abstract virtue in the working class code is not considered. It is little understood outside of its own active membership and a few students of social science. To offer it as a serious study to prospective graduates of a trade school is a departure that ought to receive the hearty approval of every progressive workingman and workingwoman." Mrs. Bertha H. Mailly has been appointed instructress.

One of the greatest successes in the "we don't patronize" line was the affair in which No. 63 and the proprietor of a local skating rink were the actors. It lasted three days and—it is unnecessary to add—we won.

At this writing the fifth week of the strike finds our membership with as strong a spirit of determination to win as at the outset. While an injunction has been granted restraining the entire trade union membership of this city from interfering with the business of one of the struck shops, nevertheless we are making some telling points against all of the struck shops, and have them fought to a standstill. Only the scum and offscourings of the cities and small towns have been induced to come here, and to date it has cost the employers more money, both in the nature of loss of patronage and spoiled work, than the cost of granting the shorter workday would have amounted to in two years.

Just because you may be enjoying the eight-hour workday and the "closed shop," don't think this fight is not yours as much as the other fellow's. In the present instance, as Franklin said, "If we do not hang together, we will hang separate."

But then, I forgot, I'm not supposed to say anything—I'm enjoined.

Save your votes and elect a judge.

Riding home in hacks and automobiles is pretty soft for those guys who heretofore never rode on anything softer than "bumpers."

JOSEPH P. KEATING.

PITTSBURG, PA.

The typothetæ will soon be levying an extra assessment on its members. It costs to advertise, and if the newspapers all over the country are getting any way nearly the graft our papers are, it will not take more than November to finish that half-million dollars they claimed they had raised to fight the eight-hour day.

Contrary to expectations work has not livened up any hereabouts.

Arthur Baird has resigned as foreman of the Perley Brothers composing room.

Robert Hays is again doing business "at the old stand." Percey F. Smith has withdrawn from the Pittsburg Printing Company and gone back at it alone by purchasing the Burgess plant, and "Bob" is the foreman.

A very neat booklet has been received from the Carnegie Technical Schools. Only the school of applied science (technical courses) can now be opened. The announcements of the opening of the school of apprentices and journeymen will come later. The apprentices and journeymen who contemplate taking advantage of the schools will certainly welcome the opening where will be afforded opportunities for advancement that many covet. The fee is so small that compositors who desire to learn the linotype, etc., machines in this vicinity can attend the evening sessions, and become skilled in that branch without having to journey to schools in other cities.

Charles De Maria, a member of No. 7, died at Mount Pleasant, Mich., on August 6. He leaves a widowed mother.

Particularly sad is the home of our deceased brother, George H. Hummel. On October 11 the father was taken, and in a few days the eldest daughter, aged eight years, passed away. Though but forty years of age, Brother Hummel was one of our oldtime members. The family has the heartfelt sympathy of our organization in its deep affliction.

The wife of George Pearce, one of our members employed on the Press, died at his home at Emsworth, a suburb of this city. Mr. Pearce has the sympathy of his fellow workmen as well as a large friendship among the members of No. 7.

Digitized by Google

If indications point to anything, we expect much for labor when the American Federation of Labor meets here in a few days.

Our eight-hour committee has been strengthened by combination with the committee on organization. It is doubling its efforts, and hopes to gain the point of eight hours work, eight hours sleep and eight hours to do, each of us, as we please.

It is indeed pleasing to state that by the time THE JOURNAL reaches our members Francis X. Barr will have been defeated for re-election to office of clerk of courts. It is now admitted on all sides that his name will be scratched, for his attitude toward No. 7 and unionism in general.

We propose to increase the jurisdiction of No. 7 if possible. Our members believe that those towns that are within our suburban limits have no right to expect men to labor longer hours and for less money than paid in the city.

The Dispatch duckpin league is again going at a lively pace. Sanders, of the Seminoles, and Wiard, of the Mohawks, are playing a very strong game. The Wylie avenue alleys seem to be the most popular among the admirers of the game who are employed on the Dispatch.

Some of those who went to Chicago under the pretense of working have returned from their trip of inspection and pleasure. HARRY C. CAMPBELL.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

Three applications were received at the last meeting. William Naphey was elected a member, and Fred Jepcoat and Frank Peterson were received as probationary members. The meeting was largely attended, and several interesting reports were read. Every member should attend the meetings from now on; give at least one night in the month to the union, and help the good work along. Adjournment is before 10 o'clock as a rule.

Work is fair at present in union shops, and will continue, as election of city officials is at hand. The label offices will have plenty of work printing pasters and other campaign work, with the little joker always in sight.

The Pressmen and Assistants' Union No. 175, of this city, gave a smoker at their last meeting, a large delegation from New Haven Union being present. Norwalk and other cities were represented. Delegate Bennetto, of No. 252, gave an exhibition of club swinging. Refreshments were served and a good time was enjoyed by all.

Hodcarriers get $2 a day for eight hours in Bridgeport. What do you think, Mr. Jobber, does not eight hours belong to you?

A number of members from No. 252 journeyed to New Haven to attend the entertainment and address under the auspices of Typographical Union No. 47, at Music Hall, Thursday evening, September 28. Those who went were well pleased. The address delivered by Frank K. Foster, of Boston, Mass., "The Why and Wherefore of the Eight-Hour Demand," was a treat. J. F. LYNDERS.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The October meeting of No. 8 was attended by President Lynch, who addressed the members, and gave a statement of the eight-hour campaign over the jurisdiction. He was greeted with particularly hearty enthusiasm, and his encouraging report filled his hearers with determination—if such were needed. President Lynch declared that he had been in conference with No. 8's executive committee and unequivocally endorsed the conduct of the eight-hour fight in St. Louis. The strike situation here remains as previously reported—eight struck houses, whose original force consisted of eighty-eight men, besides apprentices. Many of these men have been absorbed by other shops, so that St. Louis is in a position to fight it out all winter and next summer—and then some more. The physical condition of the struck houses is well known. The principal one is "still" advertising—or, I should say, advertising still—for non-union printers. If at this date, October 20, six weeks after being struck, they must advertise for men, which they have done without intermission, why does a little dog wag his tail?

The contract violation by the Omaha Typothetæ recalls Secretary Macintyre's language in his annual address at Niagara Falls: "* * * it (the revocation of the St. Louis nine-hour scale contract) shows without a doubt that that organization (International Typographical Union), when it serves their purposes, will not observe any contract that they may enter into." Evidently no distinction is drawn between contracts conforming to the superior law of the contracting parties and those which do not. The International Typographical Union punishes its subordinates for insubordination; the United Typothetæ of America does not, but allows its locals to sign the eight-hour contract. There's a reason!

No. 8 now has a sick relief system.

That Chicago judge's injunction ought to Holdom for a while, but the harvest days will soon be over, Jesse, dear.

The "stone wall" is not builded on sand, proverbially speaking.

A Chicago firm advertises here for non-union printers at union scale. How can you run an "open" shop under "closed" shop conditions? Smoke up.

Not only the struck shops here, but the few rat traps also advertise for help.

The allurement offered by the Grand Rapids Typothetæ is the privilege of working in "a beautiful northern city." Do they suppose an "independent" worker "with soul so dead, who ne'er unto himself hath said" a fair day's pay for a fair day's work, can appreciate the beauties of nature?

"Twenty-three for you," said the foreman to the sub, in giving out a situation.

A linotype operator on a local daily recently unwittingly incited to riot and the open shop by an error he committed in setting a labor ad. The copy read "Wanted—Bricklayers. 5200 block Plymouth avenue, near Union." The operator made "non-union" of the last two words. The riot ensued when a lot of "independents" arrived at the "job," where card men were already at work.

Digitized by Google

A few weeks ago St. Louis socialists were refused a permit to hold a street meeting, and proceeded to meet without it. Police charged the gathering, clubbing the people indiscriminately. Because of this effort to throttle free speech, the socialists announced their intention of again meeting in the same place. Met with determination, the police, who are but an incident in our government "of, by and for," so-called, "ignored" the socialists.

All that glitters is not gold. Because a fellow can stand at a window and rattle a rule in a stick does not necessarily indicate that he can print.

The citizens' industrial association held "the first meeting of the season" on October 5, when an address was delivered by the national secretary, James A. Emery, of New York. At the close of the address a letter was read, asking the members to favor the printing concerns that are fighting for an "open shop" in placing their orders for printing. Objections to the letter were raised. It was claimed that it was in the nature of a boycott, something that the association does not approve of; that there are no large open shops in the city which are able to handle a fair proportion of the trade. Others held that the seven firms which are contending for the open shop are large enough to take care of all business that might be offered. The proposition urged in the letter was adopted.

President Jackson, of Typographical Union No. 8, after consultation with the executive committee and some of the firms that have signed the eight-hour agreement, issued the following:

The action of the citizens' industrial association at the Odeon Thursday evening as to certain printing houses does not greatly interest the members of Typographical Union No. 8. Our members have not found one place where the association has been able to hurt them. In fact, our members think that the opposition of the association will make our victory for an eight-hour day more complete and be of benefit to any establishments that it may threaten. A bluff is about all that the association can put up. There is not, so far as we have been able to learn, and we are keeping a close watch on the movements of these would-be boycotters, a single business man of weight or influence who is active among them or who can be depended upon to back up and assist any attack that the alliance may undertake against our union.

The action of the association, as expressed in the adoption of the suggestion contained in the letter read urging the alliance's members to favor the printing concerns that are fighting for the "open shop" in placing their orders, was probably manufactured for the purpose of creating sympathy for the eight printing concerns against which there are strikes. The only proposition the proprietors of job printing offices have had put up to them is whether the eight-hour day would be granted by them on January 1, 1906. Satisfactory assurances have been given the union by all offices in the city, excepting the eight against which there are strikes, that the eight-hour day will be granted on the above-mentioned date.

There is no occasion for any delay in the delivery of printing. The hundred and more houses that have signed up are capable of getting out all printing that may be required of them.

A constitutional convention was held at South McAlester, I. T., several weeks ago. Section 13, article 16, of the constitution read: "No person shall be denied or refused employment for the reason that he is or is not a member of any labor union, provided he is otherwise qualified." The committee on revisions and corrections on October 14 declared the foregoing section stricken out.

"An anarchist is a man who, rolling in wealth, deliberately violates the laws of his country to pile up more wrath." This definition, given by a prominent barrister at a free-bridge hearing here, is the correct one. The men who are endeavoring to smash labor unions are, many of them, connected with monopolies which are prostituting legislative bodies, bribing juries and judges and officers sworn to enforce the law. The whole business system of the nation has become so permeated with graft that the question, begotten in a spirit of facetiousness, becomes devoid of levity—"Can a man engage in business and remain honest?" The clergy is showing signs of rousing from the lethargy which has enthralled it, and is discussing the question of capital and labor. Inevitably, these ministers will soon have it intimated to them that their criticisms of capital's treatment of labor will result in the loss of their wealthy parishioners. Will the men of the cloth bravely expound the gospel of the square deal and golden rule, even though it threatens the persecutions the Romans visited on the early Christians, or will they value more the source of their daily bread and desist? As National Secretary Emery, of the citizens' alliance, well says and says well, "The citizens' industrial association is not here for an idle purpose." The sinister alliance is the America mafia.

"We had no idea there were so many non-union printers until we began to advertise for them."—C. M. Skinner, of Buxton & Skinner, in Globe-Democrat.

COMPOSITORS — Competent non-union compositors, $19.50 per week of fifty-four hours. Buxton & Skinner Stationery Company.—St. Louis Republican, October 22.

"He who expects little shall not be disappointed."

Consistency is a jewel because it is precious. Jewels are precious because rare. It happens not so rarely that jewels are the medium of our being well "done."

Are you pushing the "badge of servitude?"

The union printer is not a bribe-taker. Independence comes only through organization.

The Presbyterian ministers' league and the industrial council, both of Kansas City, have effective fraternal affiliation. Rev. William Carter represents the ministers in the council and Charles W. Fear is the council's delegate to the ministers' league. By the way, the Presbyterians are taking active notice of the industrial problem, having created an institution to deal with this phase of the common people's livelihood, and placed in charge thereof Rev. Charles Stelzle, a former union machinist. Mr. Stelzle announces that more than 7,000 Presbyterian ministers discoursed on industrial matters on the Sunday preceding Labor day.

Will Maupin, of the Lincoln Wageworker, according to a paragraph in a recent issue, saw things at Toronto which were "wriggling." Maybe it was caused by pain.

Digitized by Google

Harry Sharpe, C. J. Foster and W. W. Baker represented No. 8 at the session of the Missouri allied printing trades council convention held at Columbia, Mo., October 17–18.

William S. Waudby is writing some good eight-hour copy for the Buffalo Progress.

"A person can live on 12 cents a day—but few people are willing to do it."—Exchange. Hence, organization.

The way the boys in the trenches are fighting suggests the possibility that President Ellis was misinformed in his address at Niagara Falls, that the declaration of the International Typographical Union anent eight hours "does not reflect the views of the large number of the members of that union who are employed in the book and job branch."

John Mitchell's talk to the miners at Elizabeth, Pa., anent the eight-hour day should prove instructive to the "God-given" class.

"We believe that the policy of protection to American labor and American industry should be maintained."—Massachusetts Republican Platform. And it's a ten to one shot that some of these platform makers are members of the citizens' a-lie-ance. The dear voter!

"The melancholy days have come,
The saddest of the year."
These open-shop prints are very bum,
The dearest of the dear.

The Inland Printer's praise of the delegates of the Toronto convention for their tolerant and gentlemanly reception to President Ellis is appreciated. But this treatment is no new thing, as the Inland seems to think. The printers have always been gentlemen. Ask Commissioner Driscoll if his reception at conventions of the International Typographical Union have not always been most cordial.

A convention of stationers recently held here refrained from discussing the printers' eight-hour strike, though some of them are typothetans, on the ground that "it would be meddling in other people's affairs." On the other hand, a minister publishing a church paper in Chicago announced to his annual conference, held in southern Illinois, that he refused to grant the eight-hour day, and would run an open shop. Whereupon he was greeted with protests.

It is deemed opportune to say that an effectual means of preventing a jackass from braying is to tie a weight to its tail, as it is a physiological fact that it can not bray without raising its tail.

A galley boy who had noticed in the style sheet that linotype operators were enjoined from sending in tight lines gently reproved a head man who experienced difficulty in emptying a display head.

The body of Oscar Donoho, whom I mentioned last month as having drowned, was found, after being in the water over a month.

Tom Carter 'll get you ef you don't watch out.

The contestants in a recent female physical culture show wore union suits.

The struck shops have lost several excuses lately because the "19.50" was found to be about $12 in American money.

I regard it desirable that readers of THE JOURNAL refrain from yielding to the many tempting propositions being sent out at this time by the publishing houses of the large cities, particularly Philadelphia and New York. These offers call for a contract to take a weekly or monthly publication for a year or longer, a premium of books being offered practically free. Let's wait and see what they intend doing New Year's.

"Ever hit the wrong key?" asked Slug twenty-nine. "Seldom strike the right one," rejoined thirty.

J. J. DIRKS.

MONTREAL, CANADA.

J. C. Malhiot, formerly of the Herald job department, died recently. His funeral was largely attended, the principal officials of the Herald and Unions No. 176 and 145 attending. He was one of the oldtime members of No. 176.

James Connolly, ex-foreman of the Gazette job room, died October 12. Mr. Connolly had been for thirty-six years foreman of the Gazette job room, and in that capacity endeavored to "play both ends against the middle." He lost both. He was dismissed by the Gazette management without pension or extra remuneration for past services, and then applied for admission to the union and was refused. 'Nough said.

A new weekly paper by the George Murray Publishing Company has made its appearance, called the Standard. It is illustrated and printed on good paper. It is issued every Saturday.

A new French morning paper has made its appearance, called L'Opinion.

Alexander Smith, machinist on the Herald, has resigned to accept a similar position on the Johannesburg (South Africa) Star. The Herald "boys" gave him a hearty send-off.

The executive of the manufacturers' association, at a recent meeting, recommended raising the dues and also the establishment of a reserve fund. For what? We should do the same.

Boom the eight-hour day. Do not be afraid of injunctions.

Let us go into our pockets and subscribe a little towards the Cummings memorial fund. We might want to use the Home some day.

The trades and labor congress of Canada has declared itself in favor of the Dominion senate being elected by the people. Well, I guess not! The manufacturers' association has something to say about that.

At a recent banquet of the manufacturers' association Hon. R. Lemieux, solicitor general of Canada, delivered himself of the following:

> Fortunately, in Canada, the relations between capital and labor are not strained as they are across the border, and if our wage-earners will only remain true to themselves and not seek the advice of foreigners, they will command the respect and the sympathy of their fellow countrymen.

Pure nonsense. It is but a short time ago that the conductors and motormen of this city "were true to themselves," obeyed the mandates of the church and the capitalistic press, and forsook the international union, with the result that they were given their old scale of wages and old conditions. The company threw out a paltry bait of $5,000 for a relief fund, but the employes lost the first year $48,000 in wages and the second year $39,000. In the meantime rents and other necessities went up, but the wages—well, hardly.

Digitized by Google

The British local government board refused to sanction a draft of the by-laws of the town council of Dukinfield, Cheshire, owing to a full stop not having been put in. The draft has now been revised, and the town clerk informed the board recently that every "i" had also been dotted.

Clement Johnson, late of the government printing office, Ottawa, is now machinist on the Herald.

President Beattie has transferred his affections from Morton, Phillips & Co. to the Herald job room.

Harry Friedlander, ex-financial secretary, returned recently from a visit to Chicago, where he visited all the offices and officials. He is much impressed with the Windy City.

The success of the eight-hour day throughout the jurisdiction has filled our members with enthusiasm, and not a few feel like beginning the contest immediately, but wiser counsels prevail, in view of our "moral agreement." However, the union is prepared for eventualities. JOHN CANTWELL.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Loyalty, thy name is success.

Hon. John R. McLean has purchased a controlling interest in the Washington Post, having paid $600,000 therefor. He at once took charge as editor-in-chief, Scott C. Bone, the managing editor under the late Mr. Wilkins, resigning. The rumor committee has been doing overwork in consequence of the change in ownership.

Glorious have been the achievements of the executive council in the struggle for the shorter workday.

According to reports from Rome, machines have been put into the printing office of the Vatican.

The playing of the championship between the National and American League leaders was a busy time for John Heydler, the courteous secretary of the National League. At no time, however, was he too industrious to give a glad hand to his friends. In New York he favored the writer with a kindness which was decidedly appreciated. Mr. Heydler formerly worked at the printing business and is a first-class operator. He can talk shop at all times, and delights in it, too.

Mark Towers, who operates a machine on the Post, traveled to New York and saw the Athletics defeat the Giants 3 to 0. He occupied a box and rooted for Philadelphia.

William Hinton, one of the makeups on the New York Evening Mail, spent a day in Washington quite recently. "Billy," as he is called here, never looked better in his life, a fact perhaps attributable to the conditions brought about by riding on the water wagon. He has lost none of his ability of harmless backcapping, and says that the vocation is healthful.

Louis Ferber, the bank man on the Post, is given to absentmindedness. Perhaps the most amusing incident in this line occurred the other day when he had his hair cut and was shaved. On getting out of the chair he thoughtlessly tore off a car ticket and handed it to the barber. "Cars are not running," said the barber, and Louis came to his sober senses.

"Spike" Leonard, of Chicago and Washington, returned from the Windy City, and says he will work for Uncle Sam this winter.

The eight-hour day is coming fast. It looks as though by January 1, 1906, it will be a consummation devoutedly to be wished.

"The last ditch" seems to be filling up rapidly—with the debris of the once "fighting" typothetæ.

The printers' label received attention at the typothetæ's recent convention. The latter requested "all employers' associations to officially protest against the use of the union label on political printing;" and further requested the officers of this association "to urge individual membership, whether corporations, firms or individuals, not to permit the use of the label on any of their printed matter." This action sufficiently demonstrates that the label is a big factor in the business world, and it is convincing proof of the effectiveness of a continued insistence upon its use, and a firm demand for its appearance upon everything we consume, whether food or clothing. It will cost nothing to ask for it, and it will entail no suffering to refuse to buy anything without the emblem of unionism. Demand the label as you go on.

The re-election of President Ellis by the typothetæ convention is taken as a vote of confidence rather than to assume that the action was one of expediency. It is somewhat difficult of comprehension, however, why his administration should be looked upon as being successful. But it may be that no one else wanted the job. Whatever may have been the controlling influences which resulted in his being again chosen, it is well worth the while to glance over his annual report. He quotes from the proceedings of the Toronto convention, wherein the printers agreed to the eight-hour committee's report: "We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen." He then adds, and, mark his comments: "This statement, made first by the president, considered and reported by the eight-hour committee, and unanimously passed by the convention, would seem to settle emphatically the position of the International Typographical Union. That it does not reflect the views of a large number of the members of that union who are employed in the book and job branch, those of us who are familiar with the views of our employes are well aware." Judging of more recent events the "familiarity with the views" of the employes was not well founded. In the face of the disastrous skirmish at San Francisco, and the absolute inability to secure help to take the places of the union printers, President Ellis is blind to the true condition of affairs, or his estimate of the importance of telling the truth is of a rather shady nature. It may be well not to check him in his madness. Surely the members of the typothetæ are much wiser now, and if not, will become so very soon. They have had ample evidence that the union printers are out for the eight-hour day with determination, and having broken the ranks of Ellis' society, the latter will soon find the "last ditch"—in disastrous defeat. Then will come the reckoning of the sums contributed to defeat a just cause. The money thus expended will be actually paid by the consumer of printers' ink, so to speak. And the patrons will be made acquainted with the truth: That it is not the eight-hour day which forced prices up, but that it was for the creation of a fund to prosecute an injudicious warfare against competent workmen.

Digitized by Google

One of the local preachers had for his text a few Sundays ago, "The young man without principles." An operator on the Post made it read, "The young man without picnic pies." The word "principles" was divided on the last syllable. Of course, the proofreader caught the error, but the operator became angry when twitted about the matter.

Some men who have ambitions to become eligible candidates for delegate endeavor to erect platforms to run on. Two years ago one of Columbia's members got together a lot of figures and data in order to show that the dues in Washington were higher than other places and ought to be reduced. He was a success—in election. The dues remained the same. At the last meeting an effort was made to reduce the mileage allowed the delegates from 5 cents to 3 cents, and in his contention one of the advocates advanced the argument that because the master bakers were forced to reduce their bread to 5 cents after they raised it to 6, Columbia Union could easily reduce the mileage. Another one argued that because a delegate-elect could get a cheap excursion rate his pay should be cut down porportionately, and even went so far as to contend that six meals were sufficient between Washington and Colorado Springs. Ludicrous as it seems, these excursion rate economists were purely honest in their ignorance. The proposition was overwhelmingly defeated. A real amusing phase of the matter is that the contenders for good wages should attempt to cut down the pay of a delegate. But then there is the hope that they will live and learn.

The president of the United Typothetæ must have had some doubts about the members paying their strike assessments, because he says in his report that "the emergency fund, contributions to which became obligatory upon the members, has increased beyond the most sanguine expectations." But his story may be of the iridescent type. The treasurer's report is not made public.

The Master Printer, the organ of the Master Printers' Association of Philadelphia, reprints part of the financial statement of the International Typographical Union, in connection with a brief résumé of the Toronto convention. It might be added with truth that the union printers stand ready for any assessment to reach the eight-hour-day goal.

Conferences with high school principals of Boston, according to President Ellis, disclose the fact that boy pupils are unwilling to give the time to learn the printing trade, and he is wondering where the proper material is to be found to make intelligent printers. A shorter workday will be an inducement in the first place, and if the printers' unions are permitted to govern the apprentice question there will be a competent workman at the expiration of every apprenticeship. Experience has taught this.

The axiom that lightning will not strike twice at the same place is liable to go wrong if the Elliott Printing Company, Grand Rapids, Mich., does not sign an eight-hour agreement. Recently the company sustained a $25,000 loss by fire caused by lightning.

The long-promised extension to the Post composing room, and incidentally a big addition to the Washington Post building, is a reality, and the members of the chapel have new lockers and many other conveniences which heretofore were not had. But proper sanitation is still lacking, however. Some day the discomforts now endured will be rectified, as they ought to be.

"Joe" Scannell, well and favorably known in many cities in these United States, is one of the steady subs on the Post. The fact of the matter is, he is nearly a regular.

David Wright, who cuts copy on the Philadelphia North American, spent a few days of his vacation in Washington. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wright.

William Seltzer, who is responsible for making the mails on the North American in Philadelphia, spent a week during September in Washington. Mrs. Seltzer accompanied him, and while here they were the guests of her daughter, who resides on Mount Pleasant. Mr. Seltzer worked for a long while in this city, and is well known, but he really kept himself in seclusion during his visit.

Many printers will have much to be thankful for this year, and their prayers on Thanksgiving day should be of corresponding force and earnestness. The same is equally true of the employers. May I venture the hope that "God works in a mysterious way his wonders to perform."

The binning of hard coal has been an equally hard problem. The warmth which follows its ignition, however, will be enjoyed one hour more this winter than heretofore. It will be a combination of comfort and joy.

"Let me furnish you with light and heat (and work) nine hours during the winter," sings the typothetæ man. Wonderfully generous along certain paths is he.

"Labor day Sunday" is not a bad idea, so long as it does not conflict with the "six days shalt thou labor," etc., doctrine.

Hail, hail, the eight-hour day!

When the clock strikes the quitting time of the eight-hour day it re-echoes the rallying of all which closed the Toronto convention. The pay envelope is a sort of tiger.

The continuance in office of President Gompers and his staff at the head of the American Federation of Labor has been of great worth to that organization. The same principle obtains in any other labor society. The principle is practiced with force in successful corporations. Whenever a good man is chosen to a prominent office he is always re-elected. His selection at once is a guarantee that the organization is stable and worthy of confidence. Continuation in office, it is true, sometimes breeds corruption, and disaster follows. But in such cases the man is quickly removed. However, the latter class is very rare. Usually and it must be accepted as true, when the man is judged by his deeds of worth to the organization, by the achievements as to advancement of the cause he espouses, by the judicious government of matters, by the wise administration of his office, he is by force re-elected, and the organization becomes stronger each year. The same is true of the head of a large railroad, a large corporation of any kind, The economical administration of affairs makes him a valuable executive, and his continuation in office follows. Of course, ambition prompts many men to create discord. This is true, very true, in some labor organizations. Some printers are inclined to the policy of changing their International officers, and the most ludicrous allegations are made why a change should be made. But no argument is produced which demonstrates wherein the organization will have greater prestige. Experience has taught the printers that a more effective organization was had after Mr. Prescott was repeatedly chosen president. The International has grown strong and numerically big for no other reason than, following close upon former President Prescott's retirement, came the re-elections of President Lynch. Another case of continued growth and triumph of its principles is the miners' union, by the keeping in office of President John Mitchell. Other cases could be cited, all showing the wisdom in not changing the chief officers at the behest of those who feel aggrieved.

Digitized by Google

If you go to Colorado Springs next August take an interesting book with you as a gift to the Home library.

The conception of the full doing of one's duty toward his fellow is sometimes awfully distorted. It is a case of being done.

The Evening Star's mechanical force has four duck-pin teams, and proposes to do some bowling the coming winter. They are captained by Palmer, late of Baltimore, Wirsing, formerly of Pittsburg, Essig and Cromwell, old homers. Twenty-four men will contribute 50 cents per week, and at the end of the season will give a banquet. It is quite likely that the Post and the Times forces will follow suit in organizing teams, and duck pinning will be a favorite pastime the coming winter.

Robert Grohorn, a Pittsburg newspaper writer, was in Washington recently. Mr. Grohorn was formerly a printer, and carries a card at the present time. The last time there was trouble in Pittsburg the Post people wanted him to set type. He refused and quit the Post employ. He was shown Washington by the affable Ed Wirsing.

The editor of a labor paper who deludes himself with the belief that to roast his fellow craftsman is to educate his readers, is a pitiable subject. There are a few such fellows, and their following is correspondingly small.

The evil that man doeth unto himself comes oft from his violation of his obligation. Keep sacred, therefore, the pledge you made when you joined the printers' union.

The employer who was once a union printer should have the manhood to live out his solemn obligation. The change in condition gives no man license to violate it.

Such is the state of man: Today he works nine hours, and who can tell but tomorrow he will work only eight.

Abuse of executive officers in the so-called labor papers reflects only the venom of the man who pens the thought.

Colonel Tyree, who represented Richmond at the Birmingham convention, spent a few days in Washington the first week in October. There are grand old men in all walks of life, and Tyree is the type in the ranks of the union printers.

It must be extremely gratifying to read: "And there is not a deserter from our ranks." Glorious devotion to unionism.

Private information from Colorado Springs is to the effect that the faces on the rocks in the Garden of the Gods are wreathed in smiles in contemplation of the pleasures to be had next August. Take a book with you.

Recently the bankers were in annual session in this city. They enjoyed many privileges which the printers were deprived of. The financiers had a deadhead pull on all wire facilities. Such is the advantage of being in the banking business.

The liberal spirit shown by editor McQuilkin, of the Inland Printer, must be greatly appreciated by the union printer as well as by the members of the United Typothetæ.

Jerome Healy, the affable and efficient secretary of New York Union, has been honored by his party in the Bronx. He was the democratic nominee for coroner, and as a nomination on the Tammany ticket is equivalent to an election, Mr. Healy is now receiving congratulations. Later on he will receive a salary of $6,000 per annum for a term of four years. It is a matter of pleasure to note the political advancement of craftspeople, and Jerome is one of the deserving. Best wishes to you, former secretary of No. 6.

The membership of Columbia Union grows each month—greatly by traveling cards.

Will you contribute a book to the Home library next August?

The resolute will of the union printer spoke in a golden tongue to the typothetæ membership. The much-talked-of desertions came not, and the firmness of the contenders for an eight-hour day was really the prime force which won the fight thus far, and the same element of strength will further the contest to a complete victory. In time to come, there is reason to believe, the employer will admit the advantages of a shorter workday.

We are assured that the educational committee of the United Typothetæ "has been busily at work." As time goes on the whole association will be very much wiser, because the eight-hour day will give each member additional time to study, reflect and contemplate.

F. C. Roberts, who has been an effective organizer for the American Federation of Labor, and who is now on Uncle Sam's payroll in the big printery, is a regular contributor to the Washington Trades Unionist. He writes just as he talks, and he is at all times advocating the advancement of the principles of trade unionism. He is logical and too forceful at periods to suit everybody. But at that he does well with the pen.

Digitized by Google

JAMES MONROE KREITER.

A number of firms in this city have already signed the eight-hour scale, though no pressure has been brought to bear on them, and there is little fear of any extended trouble in enforcing the scale generally when the time comes. During September there was an attempt made in one or two offices to do work for a Richmond office that was on strike, but it was stopped at once on the request of the officers of Columbia Union, and later the local typothetæ issued orders to its members not to do any work for offices on strike. The Sudworth Printing Company has already put the eight-hour scale into effect. It has recently developed that Pearson's, a book and job office, has been an eight-hour office for the last fifteen years. The bulletins of the International Typographical Union eight-hour committee are read with avidity on their arrival. Keeping the membership thoroughly informed is a splendid move and much appreciated.

At the meeting of Columbia Union on October 15 a motion to reduce the mileage of delegates to the International Typographical Union convention at Colorado Springs next year was voted down by a large majority. We pay our delegates 5 cents mileage each way and $10 a day for the usual six days of the convention, which is little enough when one considers the expenses that have to be borne by the delegates.

"Jakey" Dwight, of the government printing office, whose ancient home was Springfield, Mass., recently underwent an operation for an abscess in his back, which was entirely successful. He has been able to return to work.

At this writing the appointment of a permanent public printer has not yet been made, and Mr. Ricketts is still "acting." While the newspapers have been predicting the appointment of some other man, Mr. Ricketts' friends are still confident of his eventual selection. In the meantime he has instituted a number of reforms, the need for which his general knowledge of the office apprised him. No new names of possible appointees have been mentioned.

The installation of the seventy-two Lanston machines, purchased during the incumbency of Public Printer Palmer, is going on rapidly, and that their effect will be greatly felt is evident from the inroads that have been made by those and the Mergenthalers that have been heretofore installed. It can not result otherwise than in a reduction of the number of hand compositors during the next year, after the adjournment of congress.

Thomas Doonan, of the government printing office, died on September 29, from a tumor of the bowels, after his disease had been diagnosed peritonitis and appendicitis, the facts not appearing until a surgical operation was performed from which he never rallied. Mr. Doonan came here from Columbus, Ohio, a dozen or so years ago, he being well known in that city, where he had lived the greater portion of his life. He was one of the sunniest of men and there was sincere regret at his decease, which was at the age of fifty-four years.

Karl H. Baker, a former compositor and proofreader in the government printing office, was recently reinstated, after an absence of a dozen years or so. He is well known throughout the country, and was for a number of years a resident of the City of Mexico.

Paul J. Maas, formerly of the Chicago Record-Herald, of which he was the labor editor, has become a resident of the national capital, at least for the winter. He is well known as one of the ablest labor writers.

Charles E. Groome, of the government printing office, won a gold medal for rifle shooting at the recent meet, at Sea Girt, L. I., of the American Rifle Association. Groome is a southern boy and a well-known national guardsman.

James Carlisle Spottswood, son of J. M. A. Spottswood, acting foreman of printing of the government printing office, is a member of the Grand Opera House stock company, of New Orleans, and is making a name for himself as an actor.

Somebody in the quoin business went fishing for suckers and got several bites. On a quoin recently received in the Record room was written the name and address, "Miss Annie S. Jones, Duluth, Minn.," with an intimation that she would receive sealed proposals. A number of the susceptible Record boys wrote to the supposed young lady, only to get the cheering information that no such person lived in Duluth.

Sam Nedry, formerly one of the proprietors of the Trades Unionist, of this city, recently returned to Washington from Roanoke, Va., where he has been for some time.

Louis P. Kenney, who has been acting assistant foreman of the Record (sixth) division of the government printing office since the resignation of William J. Dow, some months ago, recently received the permanent appointment. He has been here for about fifteen years, coming from Red Cloud, Neb., and his experience has been such as to amply qualify him for the position. Mr. Dow is publishing three papers in Missouri, and says he would not return to Washington for any position in the gift of the public printer.

Reuben C. Hardesty, for some years a compositor and proofreader in the government printing office, who went to Colorado a half dozen years ago in search of health, has been paying a visit to his old haunts in this city. He is the editor and proprietor of the Berthoud (Colo.) Bulletin, and, in addition to securing health, is acquiring wealth in the golden and centennial state.

While there is no reason to fear that the "knocking" labor press is hurting the work for unionism, there is no evidence that it is doing it any good. It is the news furnished that is of benefit. I seriously question whether the opinions of editors ever cut much figure in the world. The same is true of the correspondence of THE JOURNAL; it is valuable to the extent that it is newsy. There should be enough happenings of general interest to the craft in every city large enough to have a union to furnish from half a column to four or five columns for THE JOURNAL, and that without resorting to unpleasant personal mention. I believe it would be more useful than trying to discover who first "tore into Toronto."

Digitized by Google

Lon A. Shimp, a former Washington man, is another who has embarked in the newspaper business in the west, his paper being the Georgetown (Wash.) News, published in a thriving suburb of Seattle. The appearance of his paper agrees with his personal statements—that he is being well supported and making more money than Uncle Sam ever paid him.

A. W. Sefton, jr., still another Washington man, has recently engaged in the publication of the Omaha Labor Advocate, after some time spent in the farther-west mountain states, and his paper gives promise that he will "make a go" of it.

Foreman David J. Roberts, of the fourth division of the government printing office, celebrated his fiftieth birthday on October 14 by inviting his friends out to his suburban home to make merry with him. He has many friends in the west who will rejoice to learn that he is no older than that.

The poorest test of unionism that I know of consists of abusing and misrepresenting the officials of our organization. The old test with the same class was to make faces at the foreman (behind his back). A. F. BLOOMER.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

This city is at present in the throes of one of the fiercest municipal campaigns that has ever been waged here. The citizens are trying to wrest control from the ring of politicians who have controlled things for the last ten years. As usual, when political campaigns are so close, and those in power feel that they may be ousted, every expedient is resorted to to gain votes. The central labor union on October 8 endorsed the "gang" that is at present at the head of affairs in this city, on the plea that they have always been friendly to organized labor. And why not, when the workingmen walk up to the polls and vote to keep them in power? But the printers have not profited by this love of organized labor spoken of in the resolutions adopted by the central labor union, as every particle of city newspaper advertising goes to the non-union newspapers. This is due, in a great measure, to the fact that the union newspapers of this city insist on supporting those who are in favor of reform in the conduct of the municipal affairs of our city, and therefore are overlooked when the politicians have any advertising contracts to give out.

The Inquirer, the only newspaper exponent of graft, and supporter of the "gang" at present in control here, came in for its share of disapprobation from the citizens a few nights ago. Governor Folk, of Missouri, was here and delivered an address at the Academy of Music, in which the western reformer aroused his hearers to such enthusiasm that it was feared there would be a riot on the streets. The mob, after the meeting adjourned, swooped down on the Inquirer office, and it was thought that in its fury it would demolish the plant. One speaker standing in front of the building cried: "You lie even in the name of your paper; you call it the Inquirer, its real name is Iniquity. Your scab sheet should be issued from the eastern penitentiary." This sentiment is heartily endorsed by Typographical Union No. 2, which is in a position to know, the members of which have been subjected to every conceivable form of unfairness while employed there. The Inquirer management thought it was perfectly fair to make the men work overtime for nothing, or rather, with the promise of a vacation which was never fulfilled, and when the occasion warranted it was also thought fair and just to make the men stand around a couple of hours at a time without pay, waiting for copy. It also acted as agent for an installment house, men owing money to this establishment, which was an advertiser in the Inquirer, being ordered to pay up or quit. There was also a shylock society conducted there, the various heads of departments reaping the profits thereof. Is this not enough to change the name of the paper from Inquirer to Iniquity?

There has been much said pro and con as regards labor and politics, and there are many views on this momentous question, but the action of one of the large newspaper chapels seems to come nearer the solution than any heard of recently. A resolution was adopted that, without regard to party affiliation, the members of the chapel vote with the party that agrees to advance the interests of Typographical Union No. 2.

The fight against the Inquirer being carried on by No. 2, and also that against the German Demokrat, is largely responsible for this awakening of the workingmen to their duty in municipal affairs. Every one is thoroughly aroused against these two papers, which are supporting those in power to the best of their ability. When the management of this unfair paper started to antagonize No. 2 and turned our men out, then it was that this upheaval began, and it has been growing through the efforts of the members of No. 2 spreading it broadcast throughout not only Pennsylvania, but adjoining states, until now it has reached such proportions that the "gang" trembles for its position in power.

The membership committee is doing great work here in rounding up the non-union printers of this city. There have been nearly seventy men obligated since the committee started to work, and this was accomplished in less than six weeks. This is an illustration of what can be accomplished by systematic work. The names of all printers are obtained from the street directory and assessor's lists and divided among the committee according to wards, and then they are visited and prevailed on to join the union and reap the benefits of organized effort, as it has been proven time and again that the success of the workingmen, both for shorter hours and higher wages, can only be brought about through organization.

The book and job situation here is what might be termed tense. The Franklin club, the Philadelphia branch of the national typothetæ, is watching every action of the union, and the same may be truly said of the union as to our friend—the enemy. There has been a linotype school established here, the object being to have enough non-union printers trained and skilled in running machines by the time they are ready to precipitate trouble here, or, anyway, to have them on hand by January 1, 1906. It is no easy matter to turn out competent operators in this short space of time, and in cities where it has been tried the proprietors have found this out to their sorrow in the destruction to their machinery. It is a common error for men to think that a six weeks' course at one of these schools, no matter whether a man is a printer or not, will make him a competent operator. Of course there are exceptions to all rules, but if the apprenticeship would be made six years the graduates would be more likely to give satisfaction.

Digitized by Google

The action of the Chicago Typothetæ in securing an injunction against No. 16 is surely an evidence of weakness. They have said all along they had more than enough applications to fill the positions of the union men. Judge Holdom says: "The foundation of the strike in this case is the union contract demanding a closed shop and an eight-hour day. Both the closed shop and the eight-hour day are unlawful when it is attempted to coerce the employer to agree to them." It would appear that if this is unlawful then a nine-hour contract is equally so. As this is only an agreement to work a certain number of hours for a specified sum and under the condition that none but union men be employed, it seems just and equitable. What hurts most is the part referred to as coercion. If we would wait for the proprietors to grant the eight-hour day without being forced we would still be waiting at doomsday.

Now that the baseball season is over and our city has produced a champion—but not a world's champion—we can again expect to hear the sound of the pins as they go sprawling over the end of the alley after a well-directed shot by an expert printer-bowler. There are some good bowlers among the morning newspaper men, and it is hoped the league will be revived this winter. Printers can not have too much exercise.

Again the printer has demonstrated that there is a large vein of sympathy in his system. One of the men of the North American force was unfortunate in being afflicted with abscesses on his eyes. Under the direction of F. M. Reidel, assisted by G. W. Williams, a game of baseball was arranged between the North American and the Ledger, in which the former was, as usual, the victor. Admission was charged, and through the sale of score cards, which were decorated with advertisements, quite a neat sum was raised. Thanks were extended to all who participated.

This beautiful October weather has brought quite a number of tourists to town.

Form a Colorado Springs club, visit the Printers' Home and see the beauties of Colorado.

That is an admirable scheme to boom the label in vogue in St. Louis. Drop a piece of cardboard the shape of a label with printed matter on it in all your correspondence, calling attention to the fact that it is an emblem of good workmanship and fairness, and to demand it on your printing. Boom the label.

What has become of our woman's auxiliary? It has not been visible for some months.

All the labor papers that come to the union rooms are taking a hand in politics in their different localities. This is a healthy sign. The workingmen some day will wake up and realize that they control the destinies of this country.

On sending this letter away it has just been learned that an ultimatum has arrived at union headquarters insisting upon No. 2 signing a three-year contract at nine hours per day on or before Monday, October 23. A special meeting of the union will be called immediately, to take action on this communication from the typothetæ, and the membership will be kept informed from time to time through the circulars issued from International Typographical Union headquarters. Now has the crucial point arrived in the history of No. 2. Stand firm, fellow members, and remember that the fate of the entire Atlantic seaboard depends upon success in Philadelphia.

JOHN MEADE.

LAS VEGAS, N. M.

At a special meeting held Sunday, October 15, the committee appointed at the last regular meeting to revise the wage scale, etc., for the contract to be presented in a short time in connection with the eight-hour movement, and which consisted of E. J. Scott, J. Joquel and H. Oaks, made its report. Many changes are noted, and the report as a whole was unanimously adopted by the members present. The meeting was a lively one, and every point was thoroughly gone into, section by section, and amendments were frequent. Now the members are resting on their oars and awaiting results.

J. P. Joquel ("Joe") and Alvin Schwisher, the former from St. Louis, and the latter from Leadville, are with us for a while. "Joe" is busy on the newspaper, the job department claiming Mr. Schwisher.

S. J. SANSOM.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

No. 556 feels proud to say we were successful in having the eight-hour agreement signed on the 9th of October by every office in town—nine in all—without the least trouble. The agreements were presented on Saturday morning, October 7, to the proprietors, by a committee of one from each office, appointed by President C. H. Huband on last meeting day, October 5, with a return date for Monday, October 9, at 6 P. M.

A new paper (the Independent) entered the field here on the 5th. It is a four-page, six-column paper, hand-set, which affords work for several compositors, whose homes and families are in this city. This paper and job office was the first to lead off with its signature for the eight-hour day. May it live long and prosper, is our best wish.

R. C. KIMBROUGH.

Digitized by Google

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The fight for eight hours is on in Buffalo, with both sides putting up a firm front. Our men are entering on their fourth week with not a deserter from the ranks. It is only a question of the men standing firm, and they are bound to win. Some of the talent secured to take union men's places are a joke. Incompetents, chicken-coop printers and boys compose most of the staffs at present. A varnisher by trade was secured for one office, and he told a committeeman that he expected to master the trade in a couple of weeks. The Caxton building has been made the headquarters for rooming some of the importations. One man that was brought from Philadelphia reported to our union that they kept out so much a week for his railroad ticket and charged him $6 a week for board, leaving a very small balance for any self-respecting man to get along on. The chapels that are on strike are Hansauer, Jones & Co., Courier Lithographing Company, A. T. Brown, Baker, Jones & Co., Gies & Co., Mathews, Northrup & Co., The Bensler Press, J. W. Clement Company, J. C. V. Kraft, John T. Lynam, Adams & White, Turner & Porter, The Hayes Company. Among this list are some proprietors who formerly held cards, but have joined the ranks of the typothetæ. Prospects look good for an early victory for No. 9.

Recently railroad accident insurance companies put out a lot of advertising matter that depicted railroad accidents in a horrible manner, in order to get travelers to take out accident policies. These advertisements incurred the wrath of railroad magnates, as they had a tendency to keep business away from the railroads. The following item from a union-baiting sheet shows the way they boycott in other lines of business besides labor unions:

> While there will be no direct order issued directing the traveling men to discontinue their insurance in the offending companies, the quiet wink will be passed out, and in a short time those insurance concerns will find that many railroad men have dropped their policies with them.

Chester Masten is visiting friends in the city. He is on a furlough from the Home. Mr. Masten speaks in glowing terms of the Home and its management.

"Sport" Howard printed for a few days here and then departed for the metropolis.

"Willie" West has returned to the newspaper field after an absence of some years.

Johnny Dillon, of Bradford, Oil City and Titusville, is back in his old home town, but the spell Nick Buckley has cast over him is hard to shake, and we believe Oil City will see him ere long.

Like a breeze from the west, "Tony" Britton blew into the burg last week. He was not looking for work, but for men to go to work. "Tony" is now on the road to fame and fortune and has settled down into a thoroughgoing business man. He is representing a Dunkirk firm, and they have had to increase their staff, owing to the volume of business that Mr. Britton is securing for them.

The Times has been running some fine pictures of printing groups in their Sunday edition. The writeup and pictures of the Home were fine.

Joe Fullerton went to New York to take in the championship baseball games. The old fever struck him, and he decided to leave Buffalo for a while. His friends wish him success, no matter what city he decides to cast his lot in.

John Wendling stopped long enough for a shave and then hustled away for the west.

The "Vega" chapel is almost disrupted, only three of the charter members remaining, namely, Messrs. McSween, Evans and O'Brien. Unless a large delegation arrives this winter it will be pretty lonely for the boys.

In the report of one of our organizers we note a complaint against plate makers in Pennsylvania. We do not know whether the agreement is lived up to in that state or not, but we can say for the Buffalo branch of the American Press Association that that institution lives right up to the law, and the management has been more than fair with No. 9 and other unions in this vicinity. No request that we know of—that was presented in a regular manner—has ever been denied.

A Chicago dispatch to the New York Herald, purporting to give both sides of the eight-hour question, was a very clever piece of work. To an innocent person it read all right and appeared to be fair to both parties, but the "black hand" had to make its appearance somewhere and the windup of the article asserted that the printers could not win, in fact, it tried to prove that we were beaten already. These "unbiased" correspondents from seats of war were never known to be reliable.

Southern cities will have the pleasure of seeing the portly "Herr" Miller, Charley Pugh and Mr. Sharp soon. They have formed a touring party to spend the winter in the sunny south. We don't know whether they went on cushions or in automobiles, but Charles Miller declared that they would do it in style.

One firm here offered a New York printer (who was here on a wedding trip and thought he would have a little fun applying at typothetæ offices for work) $40 a week. Inasmuch as the scale is $17.50, they are certainly paying a stiff price for their whistle.

The October issue of THE JOURNAL was a hummer, and furnished enough matter to keep its many readers busy.

Orson Derby, Arthur Hansen and Johnny Dwyer, of Niagara Falls, are frequent visitors on official business. They report everything satisfactory at the Falls, and claim the little union is a sure winner.

Charley Norris is writing some clever articles for the local labor paper, the Progress. The paper is doing a lot of good work for the eight-hour movement, and is worthy of support.

We are in the midst of the usual fall political campaign, and all the candidates are trying to show what good friends they are to labor during the couple of weeks preceding an election.

Talking about property owners, Dan Knott, of the Express, seems to have all our land barons beat in No. 9. He is interested in a 1,000-acre farm in the northwest, and is still buying more.

The job printers' bulletin was a neat circular, and right to the point.

Warren Pinder, who is foremanizing at Adams,

Digitized by Google

N. Y., writes that that town and Albion, N. Y., have agreed to the eight-hour proposition.

Statistics prove that during war or turbulent times more male children are born. Whether the eight-hour battle has anything to do with it or not we don't know, but about eight well-known printers have been blessed with sons the past month.

A rumor is current that the municipal league's secretary solicits printing for non-union firms. If this is true, it will not do the league's efforts much good. The matter should be looked into.

"Majah" Patterson has blossomed into a politician of no mean order. He landed his man at a primary in fine style, and proposes to elect him without fail. W. A. COYELL.

DENVER, COLO.

The Post has arranged for new quarters. Some time ago the Fair building, on the corner of Champa and Sixteenth streets, burned, and Messrs. Bonfils and Tammen recently returned from New York, where they contracted for a ten years' lease for a twenty-five-foot front on Sixteenth and fifty-foot on Champa. The building will be four stories high. This will make one of the finest and most commodious newspaper offices in the west. Work was to commence November 1 and be finished by July 1.

The printers' board of trade, a combination of the employing printers of this town, together the last few years for bettering their conditions, has gone out of existence. This combination was a good thing, so far as the allied printing trades were concerned, and we all worked together in harmony. I was sorry to see it go out of business, but a bank failure where the funds were and a little difference of opinion among members, proved the undoing. Rumor has it that it will be revived shortly upon different lines. Claude Miller, a member of No. 49, was the managing secretary. He has become superintendent of the United States Colortype Company.

The Denver society of ex-delegates has been thoroughly organized for the purpose of aiding in entertaining those who call on us on their way to the Springs convention, and endeavor to partly pay back past favors. All the exes (about fifty) in the city are in. The officers are: George E. Esterling, president; J. Vander Perel, vice-president; E. S. Sherman, secretary; J. W. Lambert, treasurer. They will produce something good for the travelers.

T. C. Egan, now running a job office of his own, but formerly prominent in the work and an ex-delegate and ex-organizer, who hurt his hand more than a year ago in an accident on a street car, necessitating partial amputation, has had to undergo another operation, and will probably lose the entire hand.

No. 49 held a special meeting, and, without a dissenting voice, ordered all of our eight-hour assessment forwarded to headquarters. It was the largest-attended meeting for years, and the sentiment among the boys here is to keep the sinews of war at the right hand of the executive council, and back them up in making a red-hot finish to the fight the "teapot" started. It is safe to say that No. 49 will be found ready to increase the present assessment whenever called upon.

"Charley" Watson, who has worked on the News for years unnumbered, is now subbing on the Post.

Howard Lee, again reading proof on the News, is contemplating buying into the Great Western Printing Company.

A great many tourists continue to arrive, and work is still slack.

The boys tell a story of a sub on the Post recently who did not come up to expectations, and it was up to some one in authority to inform the gentleman. After passing it around it finally fell to the lot of one of the apprentices to convey the disagreeable information, which he did by telling the victim his money was ready for him at the front office. The boy was thanked and informed that the operator in question had plenty to last him until Monday, which is the regular pay day. This was on Saturday night. He continued to work.

To show that unions are not solely organized for self: One Charles Gustafson, an operator, some months ago, brought his wife, quite low with consumption, to Denver. He worked through the busy spell and then left town, leaving his wife destitute. Her condition was brought to the attention of No. 49, which furnished her with the necessary comforts until her death, and aided a brother in giving her suitable interment. No trace of Gustafson was secured. The matter is to be handled by the union. The application of a No. 15 hobnailed boot, by a 300-pound man, to Gustafson's anatomy would be a good thing, and those with whom he comes in contact should take pains to let him know what they think of such conduct.

Another case was that of Mr. Plack, one of our members, who was stricken down by the dread plague. He had gone in debt for a little home, and the payments were coming due and he unable to work. The union stepped in, advanced the necessary funds to meet the same, as well as something to live on. He died in peace and quiet, and his family disposed of their interests, repaid the loan and had something left. And yet Post and his ilk say labor unions are the scum of the earth.

It is rumored the Great Western Printing Company is contemplating purchasing a monotype. We have nothing of that kind here. Both the Mergenthaler and monotype agents were in town recently.

The officers of No. 49 are alert in the enforcement of all our laws, especially as to priority.

No printers (non-union) have left here for the east, as there are none to speak of. "Teapot" officials have been beseeching employers in this city to send the name of "just one" man, but those to whom the communications were addressed promptly turned them over to the union. Maybe that ain't the way to work together.

Although the next convention is practically to be held at home, quite a number of the boys are willing to be honored, and have their lightning rods up. "Tim" Foley, of the News, can probably be considered an active candidate, and has lots of friends. Others mentioned are George McCormick, "Doc" Tanner and Will Ashley, of the Post. There will no doubt be plenty of others.

Digitized by Google

It is more than possible that a woman's auxiliary will be organized here in the near future.

The United States Colortype Company has purchased ground and will soon begin the erection of a new building on Broadway to accommodate its rapidly-growing business. Beats the dickens how this eight-hour day hurts.

Former 49ers away, but heard of lately, are Barney Slack, foremanizing in Des Moines; Barney Merrigan, touring New York; John Keller, floor boss in a Connecticut town; Northrup, running a job office in New Jersey.

Homer Campbell, ex-Sioux City at Birmingham, and formerly here, stopped over a few days en route to Seattle, his home.

John Duncan, an oldtime Denver and Leadville boy, who has been at Honolulu for about three years on the Gazette, arrived in town, on his way to Leadville to remain. He reports the Denver contingent in the islands doing well, and that there are few subs out there. HARVEY E. GARMAN.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

Conditions in printing circles in the Salt City are practically unchanged since the last issue of THE JOURNAL. There are thirty-five men still out, and all these declare they will remain out until victory is assured. The unfair employers have secured in all about ten non-unionists and rats, who are scattered about the different offices. The ability of these alleged printers does not shine very brightly, and they are not a brilliant success as strikebreakers.

At the regular meeting of No. 55, on October 1, the reports of the eight-hour and executive committees were read, and were received with enthusiasm. They showed that the strikers were determined to win out, and that they had the support of the entire union. An assessment of 10 per cent was made on all working members, to take effect from October 7.

A special meeting of the union was held on October 15, and the progress of the strike was reported by the eight-hour committee. The attendance was very large, and enthusiasm prevailed.

The woman's auxiliary to Typographical Union No. 55 gave a great send-off to Mrs. John J. Jillson, one of the members, on the occasion of her departure to join her husband, who came out of Lyman Brothers during the strike, and is now in Philadelphia, Pa., where he is connected with the Lanston Monotype Company. Mrs. Jillson was the recipient of a valuable and appropriate testimonial from the ladies, and she returned her thanks for the gift in a few words, during which she expressed her regret at severing her connection with the auxiliary. Refreshments were served and an enjoyable evening was spent.

We hear that Eugene ("Duffy No. 2") O'Brien has left Rochester for Hot Springs, Ark., for the benefit of his eyes, which have been troubling him for some time. He was forced to leave the Boston Herald on account of his misfortune, and came to his home in Rochester. After a short rest he started in to work on the Rochester Herald, but after a while was forced to give up. His many friends here hope his stay at the Springs will be productive of beneficial results.

Jim Corcoran, always jovial, is the happiest man in town since his old partner, "Sport" Howard, struck town. The latter is subbing on the Post-Standard, and Jim and he are giving an exhibition of Damon and Pythias that is affecting and realistic in the extreme.

These cards have been deposited since October 1: Dan P. Horan, James Patterson, Michael Flynn, Matt Hayes, J. Bumpus Jones, "Sport" Howard, James Wilson, Ben Woods, Frank Watts, S. S. Patrick, T. C. Tippett, Thomas F. O'Brien, Robert Moore, W. A. Quinn and Thomas Emslie. Only a few of the above remained here, most of them wending their way westward.

Charles E. Neighbors ("Chippy"), who has been under the weather for some time, has left for his old home at Parsons, Kan., in the hope of recuperating.

Larry Sutton, of the Herald adroom, who devoted his abilities and energy to the management of the Seneca Falls (N. Y.) baseball club the past season, and incidentally won the pennant of the Empire state league, has returned home, well pleased with the life of a baseball magnate. Larry had a bunch of husky young ballplayers that were the goods for fair, and gave the people of the Falls a gilt-edge article of baseball. F. A. WARD.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Our eight-hour situation is in excellent shape. Only three or four offices decided to continue on the nine-hour basis when the "clean up" occurred at the end of last July, and the results have been so unsatisfactory that negotiations are now under way for a settlement. The typothetæ is printing by-laws which provide for a working week of forty-eight hours. No better evidence could be afforded of the abandonment of any demand for longer hours. The incompetency of many non-unionists, the desire on the part of others to participate in the benefits of organization, and the lack of ability to produce first-class work, added to the public support given the eight-hour movement, have combined to make conditions unbearable for the nine-hour shops.

To our fellow craftsmen involved in controversy we send a word of cheer and encouragement. The success of the movement already noted insures fruition. In a few localities the contest may last some time, but the International will surely gain the day. The "open shop" slogan will prove a trade disturber, but it will help neither side. Without organization there is no possibility of employers estimating on work with a knowledge of what their competitors pay for labor. The result is chaos. The average "open shop" means longer hours and lower wages.

The three political conventions engaged in effort to elect municipal officials on November 7 have endorsed the union label in unequivocal terms.

The union labor convention, held on August 31,

Digitized by Google

adopted this section in its platform: "We demand that all supplies for the public institutions of this city and county bear the union label where such can be provided, and that goods of home manufacture shall in all cases be given preference. We recommend a rigid enforcement of the eight-hour law as to all work performed by or for this municipality."

The republican convention of September 28 express itself as follows: "Resolved, That this convention endorse the action of the supervisors in requiring the use of the union label on all public printing, and that our nominees be instructed to continue that practice."

The democratic convention, likewise held on September 28, only in another hall, unanimously supported our emblem in this resolution: "Resolved, That we approve the course of the democratic majority of the board of supervisors in requiring the union label on all city printing."

San Francisco is a union label city. We keep at it, and get results. Several hundred labels were ordered for election work, but it looks as though more will be required.

A non-union nine-hour shop presented the lowest bid for $3,000 worth of city printing. Earnest protests were offered by the trade organizations, and in one week three daily papers published strong leading editorials against giving work to a nine-hour, incompetent house. The result may be guessed.

On October 4 the San Francisco Examiner celebrated its twenty-fifth birthday as a morning newspaper. The chapel adopted congratulatory resolutions appropriate to the occasion, signed by Leo Michelson, the present chairman, and John Collner, the first chairman. The latter is still hale and hearty, and sets type with the best of them. The seven other thriving Hearst papers in the country where the recipients of fraternal greetings, as well as W. R. Hearst, "with the wish that the longest leased wire may never grow shorter, and that the relations of all the younger chapels for twenty-five years to come may be as pleasant as ours have been during the past quarter of a century." A memento well timed consists of special pages of the Examiner. The first page is a reproduction of the issue of twenty-five years ago, with Senator George Hearst's picture in the center. Another page has the son, W. R. Hearst, showing to advantage in a section of present-day journalism. The Examiner management entertained the staff at supper, and the latent musical and other kinds of talent were developed. The composing room lived up to its reputation.

George C. Bigler is with us once again. He was last employed on the New York Journal, but when a man once lives in California he looks upon the state as his home.

M. D. McCaslin, who has many friends throughout the country, was presented with a daughter on September 29.

Work is not bountiful. Though warning after warning appears in the San Francisco letter, many printers express surprise because they fail to "catch on" immediately after arrival. Don't come.

WILL J. FRENCH.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Each of the four amendments to the International Typographical constitution submitted to the referendum by the Toronto convention received a majority vote of the Los Angeles membership.

At this writing Organizer T. D. Fennessy is in San Antonio, Texas, negotiating an agreement with the job offices of that city resisting the eight-hour workday.

The printing pressmen's union of Los Angeles has agreed to permit the web pressmen to apply for a separate charter. With the affiliation of the web pressmen's union, the allied printing trades council will be composed of eight organizations—an appropriate and significant number at this particular time.

Before this letter appears in print the allied council will have given its ball—to take place on the evening of October 20—the proceeds of which will be utilized in booming the label. Present indications point to a most successful affair, both socially and financially. William F. Howe, the business agent of the council, is convincing even the most skeptical that it is good policy to employ a label agent.

At last Los Angeles Typographical Union has wiped out a long-existing injustice to proofreaders by raising their scale to that of other employes in the composing rooms of daily papers. In one respect, the meek and lowly comma chaser is like the lordly walking delegate—he is damned by the boss and damned by the men—and for this distinction he certainly is entitled to the same pay received by half of those who "cuss" him.

At a recent meeting the central labor council enthusiastically adopted resolutions, with only one dissenting vote, congratulating the union men of New York city upon the opportunity to vote for Hon. William R. Hearst for mayor. He is a true friend, and the workingmen of this town have the good sense to know it.

The fourth monthly meeting of the eight-hour conference of southern California will be held at Long Beach on Sunday, October 22. As a direct result of the work of this conference, every job office in Bakersfield, Kern and San Diego has signed an agreement granting the shorter workday on and after January 1 next, and the proprietors of San Pedro have signified their intention of so doing. Immediately upon the return of Organizer Fennessy from Texas, it is his intention to make the rounds of southern California and gather in agreements wherever possible. Little, if any, trouble is anticipated in this section of the jurisdiction.

The remarkable success of the International eight-hour committee throughout the country is receiving widespread commendation. There can be no doubt that President Lynch, Vice-Presidents Hays and Miller and Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood are absolutely "making good," but there is a lesson in the victories they are achieving. That lesson is: Whenever the members of an organization assist their officers they assist themselves, and whenever the members hinder their officers they hinder themselves. In this eight-hour battle each member is doing his or her share. Hence, victory is inevitable. How different would be the result were half the membership accusing the other half of all manner of things, as is sometimes the case in the labor movement. It is sincerely to be hoped that this eight-hour fight will prove of lasting benefit to the organization, not only for the shorter workday it will secure, but even more for the lesson it has made plain.

Digitized by Google

Sam Jones, the noted southern evangelist, once said, "It's the hit cur that yelps." Judging from the manner in which Br'er Otis is emitting wails of disapproval of organized labor, the shoe must be pinching, else the Times would not devote so much space to a subject so distasteful to its owner.

Meantime, the eight-hour day.

FRANCIS DRAKE.

NEW JERSEY EIGHT-HOUR CONFERENCE.

The monthly meeting of the New Jersey eight-hour committee was held in Newark, N. J. The following delegates were present: J. N. Griffiths, Camden, No. 132; G. F. Miller, W. J. Burke, S. W. T. Valentine, Elizabeth, No. 150; L. E. Keller, Hoboken, No. 323; K. M. Forbes, A. Ball, J. Fisher, Jersey City, No. 94; H. J. Gottlob, R. E. Throssel, R. B. Hill, Newark, No. 103; H. E. Austin, H. W. Thomas, C. H. Marse, New Brunswick, No. 307; A. Guenther, P. J. Miller, Orange, No. 424; W. B. Borland, Paterson, No. 195; G. E. Mowen, L. W. Niles, J. Kermode, Plainfield, No. 399; F. McCollon, N. F. Doyle, Perth Amboy, No. 658; R. D. Uhler, Rahway, No. 235; J. F. Lambruskin, F. Halsted, J. Van Pelt, Somerville, No. 628; E. Johnston, F. L. Kresge, Trenton, No. 71; P. W. Van Skiver, Union Hill, No. 110; Organizers Woodrow and McLoughlin, President Ford and Secretary Mead, of the New Jersey state federation of labor, and a number of visitors.

Organizer Woodrow's report showed gratifying results in the state.

Reports of unions were as follows:

Camden No. 132.—Signed eight-hour contracts with all offices.

Elizabeth No. 150.—All offices signed eight-hour contracts for two years.

Jersey City No. 94.—Outlook favorable. Two shops, the Jersey City Printing Company and the American Type Founders' Company, are still out, and the firms have considerable difficulty in getting out work. Men employed are incompetent. The Jersey City Journal, for years an open shop, will be a closed shop after October 16. Asks members of typographical union to use their influence in stopping American Type Foundry type. Are being sued for $100,000, but are not frightened in the least.

Newark No. 103.—Ten offices on strike; nine are typothetæ shops. Believes typothetæ has spent considerable money, and the Parry association has contributed $15,000 to fight for an open shop, which is actually the real fight. Public and business sentiment is in favor of the eight-hour day. Shops are badly crippled; have secured a number of men and apprentices who are very incompetent. Plum Printing Company, where seven men were pulled out, has secured fifteen men, and still can not turn out one-half regular work. Union is financially and numerically strong, and has not lost one member since strike. Have met with some difficulty on account of work being sent to New York. Have assessed all members working 10 per cent, and no complaints have been received; all are loyal to the union, and expect a speedy settlement. Have appointed a committee of three to act in conjunction with a similar committee from Orange Typographical Union, federated trades council of Orange, and Essex trades council, to agitate for the prevention of a scheme to establish a typographical trade school in the Orange high school, which will cost $2,000. Believed to be a scheme to get apprentices to be used as strikebreakers.

New Brunswick No. 307.—Anticipate no trouble in signing eight-hour agreements, as employers have promised to sign.

Orange No. 424.—Favorable. Investigates all work from Newark, and refuses to do any work from struck shops.

Paterson No. 195.—Well organized with exception of Evening News and Chronicle. Extends financial and moral aid to Jersey City and Newark.

Plainfield No. 399.—Union instructed eight-hour committee to visit shops in the coming week.

Perth Amboy No. 658.—Have signed first agreement with employers for $15 and eight hours. Offers financial and moral aid to any union in trouble.

Rahway No. 235.—Progress.

Somerville No. 628.—Eight-hour committee will sign all shops on 16th. One typothetæ member notified president that he would sign agreement.

Trenton No. 71.—Central labor union put the struck companies on the unfair list. Chairman of offices were instructed to investigate all work coming in shops.

Union Hill No. 110.—Signed contracts with all employers.

Resolution presented by Delegate Forbes, Jersey City No. 94:

Resolved, That delegates to New Jersey eight-hour committee be instructed to return to their respective unions and endeavor to have their employers refuse to purchase American Type Foundry type until that concern has settled its difficulty with Typographical Union No. 94.

Adopted.

Resolution presented by Delegate Forbes, Jersey City No. 94.

Resolved, That we, the New Jersey eight-hour committee, enter a vigorous protest against the work from struck towns being performed in union offices in New York city.

By Delegate Miller, Elizabeth No. 150.—That protest be referred to Organizer McLoughlin to bring before New York No. 6 and also to President Lynch. Adopted.

By Delegate Halsted, Somerville No. 628.—That invitation to hold next meeting in Elizabeth be accepted. Adopted.

By Delegate Gottlob, Newark No. 103.—That this association go on record as opposing the scheme of putting typographical trades schools in any school, and the scheme to put a trade class in the Orange high school be condemned. Adopted.

Digitized by Google

By Delegate Halsted, Somerville No. 628.—That the president appoint a committee of three to act in conjunction with any union to defeat any plan to establish a trade class in school.

President Ball appointed Delegates Halsted, Somerville; Gottlob, Newark; Guenther, Orange.

By Delegate Uhler, Rahway No. 235.—That the thanks of this association be extended to No. 103 for the entertainment afforded. Adopted.

On motion the meeting adjourned to meet in Elizabeth on Sunday, November 19.

P. W. VAN SKIVER,
West Hoboken, N. J. Secretary-Treasurer.

WORCESTER, MASS.

The advice of the executive council to call out all members working in book and job offices where the proprietors refused to sign agreements was carried out Monday, October 9, and at this writing the officers hope that the strike will be of short duration. Twenty-four men were called out, settlements having been negotiated with nine firms, employing twenty-four men, previous to October 9. On October 12 the Belish Printing and Publishing Company signed, and a few days later the employes of the George C. Whitney Company were ordered to return to work, an agreement satisfactory to the executive committee having been made, making the total number of men now working under the eight-hour agreement about forty. Headquarters were established in a hall in central labor union headquarters, where the members, when not on picket duty, enjoy themselves at cardplaying and other amusements. All the Worcester dailies and other publications are kept on file, and thus far no signs of discontent appear to affect the men who are on their third week of the strike. The delegates to the central labor union brought the matter before that body at the October 18 meeting, and the union's strike was strongly endorsed. The allied printing trades council, at a meeting held the previous night, also adopted measures to bring about a successful termination of the union's troubles through advocating, more than ever before, the use of the label. But few men have thus far been secured to take the strikers' places—and those we are assured are incompetent. Two of the shops are completely tied up, and unless the typothetæ is able to find men to replace our members soon it is certain "there'll be things doin'."

I am pleased to note that Herbert W. Cooke, of Boston, is being mentioned as a candidate for the office of trustee of the Union Printers' Home at the next election of International Typographical Union officers. Mr. Cooke's strong personality and many other good qualities have won him many friends, who firmly believe that if elected to the office it would be a case of "the right man in the right place."

Frank P. Hughes, for nearly twenty years a member of Worcester Union, took out a traveling card last week, having accepted a position in Hudson. Mr. Hughes, when calling for a "traveler," could not refrain from showing signs of grief at parting with the men he had helped to build up No. 165 since its institution. He has been one of the hardest workers in the union, and will be greatly missed. We all hope that the office he was employed in—the Davis Press—will come into line soon, that we may again enjoy his valuable assistance.

I am told that an employing printer in this city who refuses to grant the eight-hour day to his employes, on the plea that it would be ruinous to his business, made the statement to a business man recently that 47 per cent of the expense in his business was in the business office. This statement is not doubted by any one who knows the party referred to. There are seven compositors employed in the composing room. The office force equals that number, at salaries running as high as $40 per week. All through the dull season the compositors were compelled to lay off, while the high-salaried clerks drew their money. We are told that the convenient system of bookkeeping adopted by the Worcester employing printers necessitates a large office force. Better, Mr. Printer, return to the old system of bookkeeping, cut down the business office expenses to say 25 per cent or less, and then you may see your way clear to grant to the employes the much wanted eight-hour day.

The three days' fair held by the central labor union, October 12, 13 and 14, proved a success financially, about $500 having been realized. The parade of labor organizations the opening night was successfully carried out, about 1,500 men being in line. Our union was represented by about seventy members, headed by the banner and a transparency bearing the words, "We demand eight hours" and "See that the allied printing trades label is on your printing." Nearly 3,000 people attended the fair the opening night.

FREEMAN M. SALTUS.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.

After five weeks of idleness the striking printers have gained a victory over the General Electric Company. Negotiations were closed on the 20th of October and the printers went back to work the following Monday, with the understanding that about 50 per cent of the force was to be put to work, the firm claiming that the work did not warrant the full force being re-engaged. No. 167 held a special meeting on the evening of the 20th and declared the strike off. This settles all controversies so far as the eight-hour law is concerned, and after January 1 Schenectady will be right in line and at the head of the procession.

Our union, at its last meeting, donated $20 to the Labor Temple fund.

At our last regular meeting our president, Dennis Mahar, presented his report as delegate to the annual convention of the workingmen's federation of the state of New York, held at Ithaca. Mr. Mahar dwelt extensively on the proceedings of the convention, and cited a large number of changes, new measures adopted, and bills passed by that body.

The article in the September number of THE

Digitized by Google

JOURNAL written by John N. Page, of Beloit, Wis., and entitled "The Union Button," should be read by every printer. But he should not be satisfied with simply reading the article. He should act. If he is the possessor of a button himself he should induce others to purchase one, and if not, get one as quickly as he knows how, thereby setting a good example and showing that he is a loyal union man. I would like to tell Mr. Page how it was done up this way. Our president, Dennis Mahar, purchased a quantity of buttons and presented one to every member of our union (No. 74) with these words: "50 cents, please." That was enough. Every member of our union is wearing the button. A printer without the button should "go way back and sit down."

J. D. Beers, an oldtime printer of Old Dorf, but lately of Utica, died on the 20th of September, aged eighty-two years. He was at one time a prominent member of No. 167, but old age forced him into retirement, and for some years he had been living an unobtrusive life. No. 167 at its last meeting took action on his death by appointing a committee to draft resolutions of condolence, which will be forwarded to the family.

The temple fund committee is holding a fair at this writing, under the auspices of the trades assembly, which promises to eclipse everything ever attempted by that body. A big street parade by all the unions in this city will be one of the features, about fifty-five labor organizations having promised to be in line.

The Labor day committee, comprising ten delegates of the trades assembly, were presented with handsome gold fountain pens. Mr. Quigley made the presentation speech.

President Mahar was honored at the state convention of the workingmen's federation in Ithaca by being elected as third vice-president.

About 400 of the Troy collar girl strikers will be in line when the big labor demonstration takes place in connection with the trades assembly fair.

The trades assembly at its last meeting donated another $25 to the striking collar girls of Troy.

L. J. HUMPF.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.

Eight hours or bust!

The 1906 convention will be a whopper. The local committee of arrangements, realizing this, has been at work early, and already things are well advanced for its entertainment. Several of the committee's members are old convention-goers, and their experience, coupled with the enthusiasm of the rest, will result in arrangements that will encompass every detail. Nothing will be left undone to make this Rocky mountain meet a memorable one, long to be remembered by those who attend, and longer regretted by those who don't.

But while the convention vehicle is tooling along merrily, for the nonce we are all right up in a front seat of the eight-hour wagon. We have enjoyed an eight-hour day in this locality for some time, but we all realize, as every printer alike situated must, that if the eight-hour day does not become universal there is a very grave doubt if it will long maintain here or anywhere else. It is now a "show-down." Either it is eight hours or it is nine hours. Either it is offices conducted under the square, fair methods of union law, or it is the "open shop"—which is chaos. It is for us to choose NOW, and there is no question as to what we choose. It is no matter of sentiment; it is business—bread-and-butter business. The loyalty and stamina of those who have been called upon to stand the brunt and make the sacrifices of the fight proves their determination to win, and it is the bounden duty of every member of the International Typographical Union to do all in his power in every way to see the contest through to the bitter end. No matter what may be his condition, it is vital to every man holding a union card that the fight be won. And it will be won. No. 82 will do her share.

Within the past three months the grim reaper has claimed two of our members, and in both instances the claim was sudden. On August 24, while sitting in a chair at his home, Jesse Wharton, who had been in the Springs for about three years, a sufferer from lung trouble, passed away. Mr. Wharton had been engaged in the cigar business until a short time before his death. Mrs. Wharton and her two children accompanied the remains back to their old home in Ohio.

George Bridge died suddenly on September 27, while being transferred from his residence to the Home. There was nothing about Mr. Bridge's condition to indicate that so sudden a collapse was imminent, but before he was fairly within the hospital at the Home the end came. Mr. Bridge had been a victim of tuberculosis for a number of years, but until very recently had been able to work. His funeral, held from St. Mary's Church, was attended in a body by his shopmates in the Out West chapel.

Word comes that Jerome F. Healy, secretary-treasurer of "Big Six," has accepted the nomination of coroner in the Bronx district, New York, and will resign. No. 6 will lose a good secretary and the Bronx get a good coroner. Pathological impediments and bad walking, I regret to say, prevent my casting a plunker for Jerome. It will be strange to think of Healy mixing with the "dead ones," though.

A committee sent out by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen to inspect sites for their proposed home recently visited the Springs. A considerable portion of their time was spent at the Home, where every courtesy was shown them and every means put at their disposal to obtain the information they were seeking. The trainmen will shortly vote by referendum on the questions of whether a home shall be established and where it shall be located. Very little doubt exists that the Springs will get it, as exceptionally fine inducements will be made.

Will the firm of Reilly & Wood, of Texas, please report? Last seen of lanky Reilly and rotund Wood they were planning to scuttle the Detroit boat in Buffalo. A convention without these Lone Star stars would be a tame affair. They are booked for Colorado Springs.

Ernest Webb, of Toronto, member of the convention committee of that city, is a source of much valuable advice to our local committee. "Erny" is in a tent at the Home, and is improving rapidly. He had the good judgment to come to Colorado before his trouble was advanced, and will get well in consequence.

Digitized by Google

A little important advice, based on personal experience and observation: If you think your lungs are affected, find out at once. Any reputable physician can tell you positively. There need be no guessing. If you find they are, don't jim around with creosote and cod-liver oil, but hike forthwith for the Rockies. Don't wait. The Home can and will give you as fine treatment as any sanitarium on earth—and the Home is yours. Three months now may mean ten years to you later.

Eight hours or bust! CHARLES M. CARTER.

NEWARK, N. J.

In Newark, as elsewhere, a game fight is being waged for the eight hours. The strike here was precipitated on September 12, and in all seventy-six cardholders and four apprentices walked out. Agreements have been signed with thirty-five offices, and we are still fighting ten others.

Newark has always been a closed town, and the efforts of the United Typothetæ to break this record are apparent when it is considered that no less than 225 men and boys have been sent here to take the places of those on strike.

The typothetæ centered its fight on the Osborne Calendar Company, a firm which does considerable European work, and is noted for its artistic printing. To fill this establishment the goose shops on the New York east side were gutted, and from reports submitted their work has been very satisfactory—to us. The goose printers are having the time of their lives, for the company has furnished a house for them, they receive their board free, have carriage rides to and from work, have private detectives at their beck and call, and receive $19, all in one week. To many of them it is, no doubt, a very sweet dream; but, alas, the awakening! The typothetæ has been very unfair in its treatment of the local situation, and has taken every opportunity to attempt to turn public sentiment against the strikers. Garbled reports have been made to police and press, and in some instances the distorted facts have been extremely ridiculous.

Aside from the Osborne Company, but few of the offices are paying the scale to their imported makeshifts. After an applicant enters the office the third or fourth question is generally, "How much will you work for? We are paying $12, but if you prove competent we will increase this to $13." As a rule the man holds out for the $13, but as under open-shop conditions you must work for what the employer is willing to pay you, the applicant goes to work for the $12. There are about a dozen now working for this amount in the struck offices.

The most remarkable feature of the struggle in the employers' eyes is how the employes have lived up to their union principles. The local typothetæ has issued hundreds of pamphlets to the business houses calling attention to our obligation, the strongest sections appearing in capital letters. Commenting upon this, the pamphlets say: "Is it any wonder that these union men are willing to sacrifice home, loved ones, in fact, everything, for their organization?"

The inducements offered to some of our men to desert were flattering in the extreme, one proposition embodying $500 worth of stock. Others were offered a proportionate share of the profits, contracts calling for $19 weekly for life, the establishment of a pension list, life annuities ranging from $12 to $15, etc.

In several of the offices professional strikebreakers have been placed to bolster up the weak-kneed rats. These strikebreakers are under contract with the United Typothetæ, and receive a stipulated amount each week in addition to the prevailing scale. Some of these professionals are men who owned shops of their own and were bought out and placed upon the typothetæ payroll, to be used in their present capacity.

It can be taken for granted that No. 103 is in this fight to win, and win we will. We are fighting the typothetæ, the manufacturers' association and the citizens' alliance, but with our solid front and plenty of cash we have nothing to fear. The universal demand for the eight-hour day is a just one and one that is bound to be recognized. The workingman's interests have the same privilege of advancement as the business man's interests, and it is certainly up to us to see that we keep abreast of the times. When we cease to fight for our rights our downfall will become sudden and complete. When our rights cease to be our rights then our individual interests will sink into the common interests of the employers. Let us, then, make this fight a memorable one.

E. D. BALENTINE.

PONTIAC, MICH.

A circular to an employing printer here, from the Milwaukee Typothetæ, was recently found in a rubbish heap. (It had been assigned to the waste basket.) It started out by asking, "Do you belong to the typothetæ?" It then went on to tell about the unjust and unreasonable demands of organized labor, because of its strength in members. It then went on to say:

> Think about these questions—analyze them—study the problem from every point of view and you will find but one solution. A firm stand on the part of organized employers against the unjust demands of organized labor. That is the whole story, and the concern which thinks it can fight the concerted action of the unions alone will find itself most sadly battered in the final round-up.

In the above the typothetæ really admits that no one concern can fight the union alone. The typothetæ really can see ahead to the "final round up." It further says:

> Even if you are not a member of a local typothetæ or affiliated with the United Typothetæ of America, do not fail to notify the undersigned, or Secretary John Macintyre, of New York, at once, in case an eight-hour demand is made upon you. We are interested in your welfare and may be able to render you valuable assistance.

It is very evident, from the above, that the typothetæ is feeling of the smaller set and the country editors, to get what they have to say, and also a little sympathy. Yes, Secretary Macintyre, of the United (?) Typothetæ, the demand for the eight-hour day has been made here in Pontiac and granted. Just notify your members (that have not already done so), to follow suit, and they will be happy. The eight-hour day is sure to come. With the "open shop" clause in force, no union man would dare to own a home or even attempt to own anything, because he might have to leave town any day. Printers notice this—There are actually members of No. 512 who have bank accounts. No open shop here.

Digitized by Google

The Daily Gazette has ordered another linotype machine. The Gazette Publishing Company was recently reorganized, with Governor Fred M. Warner as a stockholder. It is to be run as a republican daily.

Miss Grace Sutton, a former member of No. 512, was recently married to a Mr. Armstrong, of Detroit. No. 512 extends congratulations to them.

I am certainly in favor of the suggestion of John N. Page, of Beloit, Wis., with reference to the union button (article in October JOURNAL). When the wearer is in another town the union button acts as "an introduction" to brother typos. Wear one, boys, it might mean a good deal to you some day.

And still the bills and circulars are delivered around the city. The imprint is there, but no union label. By using it, a demand is made for it. Mr. Jobman, don't be afraid of wearing your label out, as more can be had. Just use them on a few of those jobs. ROY V. HENDERSON.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.

Work is brisk at this writing, and everybody busy.

We have moved into our new hall, and our last meeting was certainly a good one; nearly everybody was there, and there was something doing continuously during the two hours' session.

Five journeymen and two apprentices were given the obligation.

The eight-hour situation looks better to us all the time; our members feel greatly encouraged by the success of other unions, and are determined to make this an eight-hour town.

A new member was added to the label committee, and a vigorous label-booming campaign will be made from now on.

We are doing all we can to organize the country printers in our vicinity, and where we have not been able to take them in we have fully explained our eight-hour movement, thereby educating them along the lines of unionism; from every quarter we have had assurances from the country printers that they were heartily in sympathy with the movement, and that we had nothing to fear from them.

The ways of the "barn stormer" are many and varied. Foreman Jackson, of the Oklahoman, had an experience with one recently that was the limit. The first take he caught was a bunch of want ads. After quite a struggle he finally got them up and dumped them, when, behold! he had run them all in, making one big paragraph of the whole. "Jack" said: "To the woods for you."

Cards deposited—Hugh M. Walker, Fort Worth; Anthony Noonan, Chicago; E. G. Berry, Shawnee, Okla.; John R. Matley, Peoria, Ill.; J. A. Markwell, Guthrie, Okla.; Charles A. Cooper, Dallas, Texas; T. M. Meaher, Muskogee, I. T.; W. C. Reaves, South McAlester, I. T.; Clarence Smith, Dallas, Texas; T. W. B. Parker, Tulsa, I. T.

Cards withdrawn—W. E. Evans, John R. Matley, Roy Hastings, J. A. Markwell, L. Garrison, W. C. Reeves, Anthony Noonan, J. L. Tucker, E. G. Berry, Ernest Beekman, Guy Spenny.

O. S. WILSON.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

Magnificent! This expresses the result of the efforts of the committee in charge of the golden anniversary of No. 20 on the evening of October 3 at Glendale Park. About 300 partook of the splendid hospitality, and all were more than pleased. The label committee, consisting of Messrs. Hallum, Coffery, Sullivan, Roberts and Luton, did itself proud in the work expended upon the getting together of the souvenir matter, involving, as it did, such an enormous amount of labor. And the mechanical work on the souvenir and menu card—but it is only necessary to say that the force of Foster & Webb had this portion in charge, as the book itself stands as a monument to the efficiency and artistic skill of the members of No. 20 employed in that establishment. There has never been a more artistic piece of work turned out in Nashville, and this is saying a good deal, too.

President A. E. Hill was master of ceremonies, and, if a slang phrase will be pardoned, he "was right there with the goods." His emphasis of the eight-hour successes throughout the jurisdiction was very timely and pleasing to the members of No. 20 present, and when he called upon the members to repeat the eight-hour slogan of the International Typographical Union the response was given heartily.

Other speakers on the program were Governor John I. Cox, Major E. B. Stahlman, President James M. Lynch, Mrs. Edward Buchanan and Rev. D. C. Kelley, D. D. The absence of President Lynch was greatly regretted, but was thoroughly understood on account of the eight-hour struggle necessitating his presence at headquarters. Speakers not on the program were the old reliable and genial Herman Hasslock, who never fails to have a good word or do a good deed for No. 20, and Thomas W. Wrenne. All the speeches were short and to the point, but it would be unjust not to make special mention of the effort of Mrs. Edward Buchanan, president of the local woman's auxiliary. Although not accustomed to speaking in public, her address compared more than favorably with those of the oldtimers at the speech-making business. While her talk was short, it was to the point, and elicited the hearty approval of all present.

All in all, the celebration of the union's golden anniversary was a most pleasant affair, and it is scarcely necessary to say that the absent ones have good reason to regret that they were not there.

Digitized by Google

All han's 'round for the next fifty years.

While it is a pleasure to read of the success of other locals in securing the eight-hour day, yet it is most deplorable that No. 20 can not get into line because of a contract extending to January, 1909. It was a great mistake to make such a long-term contract in view of the approaching eight-hour day. Does any member suppose for a moment that No. 20 could not get eight hours now? Where would the proprietors get non-union men?

W. H. Higginbotham, a long-time member of No. 20, who has been a member of the board of public works for several years, was recently defeated for re-election to that office. He is a fine man, thoroughly honest and upright in all his dealings, and it is a pity that a large number of trade unionists contributed to his defeat. Had organized labor thrown its strength to him he would have been re-elected.

H. J. Loser, financial secretary of No. 20, is seriously ill at his home, and his many friends hope for him a speedy and complete recovery of good health.

James R. Alford, delegate to the Toronto convention from Manila, P. I., is in Nashville, where he is well known, having worked here a number of years ago. While he has been notified to report at Washington for duty, he is inclined to stay here until next spring.

The Marshall and Bruce Company, although entitled to use the label, firmly refused to do so until recently, when they made application for the little right bower of unionism. "There's a reason."

B. A. Ratterree.

TROY, N. Y.

Convention is over, and now to settle down to work. But Toronto is a great place, and the inhabitants, especially the printing fraternity, are a jolly and good natured bunch. Here's to you, Toronto, for a visit some future day!

Some of the "muzzled" labor editors have been slapping again; but what a senseless lot of "bosh." Praise, instead of spite, should now be the order of the day, after the way the convention spoke.

The Colorado "bunch" certainly "bunched" their poetry and prose in telling the beauties which exist in their region.

By the signing of the eight-hour-day agreements last May, the members now realize what would have happened when the last order of the executive council was issued.

During the past month No. 52 has lost two of its oldest and most esteemed members, Osman B. Smith and Alexander Kirkpatrick. The former was a charter member of No. 52, and up to two years ago was actively engaged at the business, but since that time he has been confined to his home. Mr. Kirkpatrick carried his card for thirty-three years, and was at work up to within two months of his death. No. 52 extends its sympathy to their bereaved relatives.

The committee in charge of revising the constitution and getting it ready for the printer has been working overtime of late, with the expectation of finishing the job within the year.

After being reported dead, blind and at the Home, "Nels" Doggett drifted into town a short while ago, and he says he is not a dead one, yet, by any means.

The Troy Standard has increased the size of its newspaper, and has also installed a new press and stereotyping outfit. The change brings the Standard up to the "standard" of a first-class newspaper.

The Troy Times Art Press has acquired more floor space for its composing room, the change being made necessary by the large demand made for its work. It is in all respects an ideal work room.

Troy is now in the throes of a collar strike, and the firms whose employes are out have gone into the courts and secured injunctions forbidding picketing and all that goes to make up a strike. But they should remember the old adage "that a woman will have the last word," and from the present outlook of the strike, I guess they will be the last to say the words, "We go back to work."

While Troy has been among the fortunate ones in securing signed contracts for the eight-hour day, the members should remember that there are a number of places not so fortunate, and who may have to fight to gain "eight hours for work and sixteen hours to do with as we please."

The reports from the various centers of the eight-hour fight are full of words of praise for the members who are putting up with the brunt of the battle. The scene in Detroit, when members renewed their obligation, must, indeed, have been an inspiring one.

A great stroke of generalship, by which the enemy was both dumfounded and astounded, was the order of the International executive council.

Albany No. 52 showed what aggressive and determined action can accomplish. In the face of a typothetæ "bull" the union took the "bull" by the horns, and in a space of less than two weeks had them all signed up.

Organizer McLoughlin jumped into town Monday night, and in company with President Rauney, of No. 52, made a visit to Cohoes, for the purpose of getting them in line for the eight-hour-day inauguration.

Since the eight-hour battle quite a number of cards have been passed around by our traveling brethren.

A unique position assumed by the collar manufacturers' association here was that they would not submit to arbitration or compromise the points at issue in the collar strike, which has been on since the 27th day of April. A number of merchants submitted the petition to the association, asking for the arbitration, and that is the answer.

The "90 per cent normal" bulletins of the typothetæ are not taken much stock in, when you consider that the 90 per cent membership is on our side of the house and will not listen to Mr. Macintyre's entreaties to return and help the "normal" output.

"Let Judgment Follow," by the Los Angeles Times, of California, and distributed to members throughout the country, was knocked out of business by the judgment of the convention to follow up the fight against that newspaper, and to the finish.

Digitized by Google

Get on the band wagon, all unions not now having for their slogan—

Eight hours after January 1, 1906.

J. HARTNETT.

SPARTANBURG, S. C.

THE JOURNAL for September is full of interesting reading, and surely worth the time spent in reading it from cover to cover, as many of us do. THE JOURNAL would be welcome every week, but, no doubt, we appreciate it more by waiting for it each month.

At our next meeting the scale to be presented to the employers on January 1 will be discussed, and the report of the scale committee will be received at the December meeting. We do not anticipate any strenuous opposition to the eight-hour clause, as the majority of the members are now working less than fifty-four hours per week, and it is expected that the employers will realize that as much work can be done in eight hours as is now done in nine. Operators on both dailies are working less than eight hours and the arrangement is satisfactory.

There has been considerable talk of a labor paper here, and although nothing definite has been decided, it is probable that it will make its appearance in the near future.

Not having a non-union printer in town makes this place poor picking for strikebreaking material.

We will have eight hours to sell to the employer after January 1, and will do as we please with the other sixteen—that's definitely decided—not only because we will be loyal to this cause, but because it is right that we should win.

Work continues good, with plenty of help.

Be consistent—don't boycott the members of other organizations by buying articles without the label—you can get them, and they are the best.

WALTER A. RIGGS.

LOWELL, MASS.

We have entered upon the sixth week of our strike for the eight-hour day, confident of victory, more and more convinced that our cause is just, and are standing shoulder to shoulder in unbroken ranks. People who love to talk of heroism and self-sacrifice for right may well contemplate our two score men and women on strike here, standing unitedly for the betterment of their trade, at great self-sacrifice. It is a powerful moral lesson, worthy the martyrs of old, this solid, principle-upholding phalanx of the Lowell Typographical Union, bearing aloft the true measure of true manhood—

Be to thine own self true,
And it must follow, as day follows night,
That thou canst not then be false to any man.

This strike is practically won. Already six offices have signed the eight-hour agreement, and the fight is now centered on mainly one office, from which the "rats" are literally deserting the ship, and the harvest is ready for the gleaners. Since our last letter, the printing department of C. I. Hood Company, proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla and other medicines, came under the eight-hour agreement. Years ago this was the first Lowell office to grant union hours and scale, its label being No. 1, and that number is retained, to the honor and glory of a large establishment with world-wide reputation.

President Spead and Secretary-Treasurer Brown, of our union, are doing yeoman service during the strike, and their efforts are ably seconded by committees and the pickets. The daily meetings of the strikers are well attended. The pickets—those hard-working, much-abused evangelists who go out into the highways and byways, preaching the gospel of unionism to the "rats," seeking the lost, succoring the weak, helping the outcast to see the error of his ways—are working night and day, and the incidents of their work would fill a book. No threatened "injunction" scares Lowell pickets—they know how to peacefully reach a "rat" and show him the glory-crowned heights of united printerdom. As a consequence, the offices that have not signed are tied up in a knot, and whoever "pays the fiddler" is paying a very high price for a most lugubrious wail.

The Courier-Citizen plant, the largest here, is laboring under the biggest trouble of its life. With all its influence and wealth, and it has considerable of both, it has never since the strike secured anything like a sufficient complement of help; its well-paying work is either undone or has left, and the only sound in its composing room is the clatter of a few miserable "rats," who, under normal conditions, would not be permitted to desecrate the room. This "help," the scourings of Canada and Nova Scotia, is here mainly under false names, trying to earn a few tainted dollars in a way that even their own conscienceless carcasses puts to shame. It's the best the typothetæ can furnish—and in that the union printers of America may well rejoice! The typothetæ is beaten, for it can not get anything like a sufficient quantity of workmen outside the International Typographical Union!

Organizer Charles T. Scott dropped in on us the other day, heard reports, looked over our books, and congratulated us upon the favorable outlook and condition. In the evening he addressed a large and enthusiastic meeting of the craft, and spoke for over an hour as only he can speak. As an orator, Mr. Scott ranks high. His thoughts are expressed in a clear, succinct manner that carries conviction, and above all, his earnestness is a delight and a satisfaction. Come again, Mr. Scott; let not your visits, like the angels', be "few and far between."

There is every evidence that the press is muzzled on the eight-hour strike, but what the press may do is of small consequence. The printers want no cheap notoriety from the worthy labors they are engaged in. They know too well how cheap newspaper notoriety is secured, and the typothetæ "lords of creation" are welcome to it all. The newspapers can wear the muzzle, and still the people know; they can not be fooled. The amusing part of it all is that the typothetæ moguls think they keep the public in ignorance by muzzling the press. In that they remind us of the silly ostrich that hides his head in the sand when pursued, and thinks his whole body is covered.

Digitized by Google

The local pressmen are waking up to their duty as union men and fellow workmen. Last week they fined a member who did a bit of "rat" work, and promise to make things lively for the next offender.

Battle for the eight-hour day, for the betterment of the condition of your craft. It is a cause worth fighting for, a cause which will soon be attained by the loyal, firm, united stand of the members of the International Typographical Union.

"Watchman! tell us of the night—
What its signs of promise are?"
"Traveler! o'er yon mountain height
See the glory-beaming star?"
"Watchman! does its beauteous ray Aught of joy or hope foretell?"
"Traveler! yes, it tells the day, Promised land of Israel!"

D. A. SULLIVAN.

OMAHA, NEB.

At this date (October 18) the situation at Omaha is all that could be expected, and the executive committee seems to have matters well in hand. October 6 thirty men were locked out in five shops. This number was increased to sixty, by four additional plants locking out their employes October 16. There is also considerable talk of asking for injunctions to prevent Omaha Union from inducing nonunionists to desert from the shops referred to.

The wisest thing done by the local executive committee was when it employed Hon. W. J. Connell as its attorney. Mr. Connell is one of the most aggressive attorneys in Omaha, and knows the business from A to Z. The blacklisting and boycotting threatened by the local business men's association has depreciated in value to a considerable extent since Mr. Connell's services were placed at the disposal of those proprietors who agreed to the eight-hour demand, in order to prosecute members of the business men's association who undertook to coerce them into renouncing the union. So far Mr. Connell has not been called upon to go into the courts.

Chairman Polian, of the committee having in charge the late Labor day celebration, reported a surplus approximating $450. This committee has the honor of being the second to make a success of a venture of this kind in many years. The other occasion was the minstrel show given for the benefit of the Cummings memorial fund, the sum of $200 being turned in. Success seems to be all that is coming to No. 190 of late.

With a membership of 250 and less than sixty locked-out members drawing benefits, the 6 per cent assessment unanimously placed at a meeting of No. 190, held September 10, in anticipation of a lockout in local job offices, will prove ample, on top of a $5,000 local defense fund.

The local pressmen and feeders made an agreement with the local typothetæ recognizing the open shop—that is, they assert that their department is closed, but the other departments may be run on the open-shop plan so far as the pressmen and feeders are concerned. Some pressmen are said to have predicted the defeat of No. 190 in the eight-hour fight and deemed it advisable to accept a slight increase in wages and also the open shop. They will probably own up to being buncoed now.

I. J. COPENHARVE.

GREENVILLE, TEXAS.

Our little city is moving along nicely. All members have work.

We have in our city what not many towns can boast of. We have a "holiness" paper. The proprietors, owing to religious scruples, can not sign a contract, but they agree to and are now working two union men. They are paying over the scale, and agree to work union hours. Beginning January 1, 1906, they will work eight hours.

The offices here seem to be perfectly satisfied with the contract which calls for eight hours on January 1, 1906.

The Evening Banner has discontinued the use of telegraph plate and is now all home print.

There are lots of good reasons why printers should only have to work eight hours, and if all union men will do their duty, the employing printers will see that just as much work can be turned out in eight hours as in nine hours. Let's all work together, work fairly, and we will win our fight for eight hours.

THE JOURNAL for October is one of the finest editions of that magazine we have ever seen. Every issue is better than the other. The reports of the different officers and organizers are as complete as could be.

No. 509 has a lot in East Mount cemetery, and has just recently had some valuable improvements made on it. We have one brother buried on it.

Let all our unions put on a bold front, do their duty, and the fight is won. A. A. CLARK.

ATLANTA, GA.

After two weeks' effort to induce the proprietors of the typothetæ offices in Atlanta to sign the eight-hour agreement, as instructed by the executive council of the International Typographical Union, seventy-four men were called out at noon, September 20, affecting seven offices. No one stayed in. Twelve offices signed the agreement. After being out only a day and a half the Franklin Printing Company, the largest establishment in the city, agreed to the eight-hour day, and forty-seven men returned to work. The offices that have agreed to grant the eight-hour day on January 1 are as follows: Southern Printing Company, Converse & Wing, Blosser Printing Company, Franklin Printing and Publishing Company, Southeastern Tariff Association, Tompkins Printing Company, R. C. Ward, Richardson Printing Company, Terry Printing Company, W. R. Bean & Company, J. J. Thomason, Syl, Lester & Company, V. B. Lisson, C. L. Wood. The struck shops are as follows: Byrd Printing Company, La Hatte Printing Company, J. L. Turner Printing Company, Dittler Brothers, Montag Brothers, Bennett Printing Company. The efforts of the employers to secure help from the outside have proven unsuccessful, and only two country printers have so far been induced to come to Atlanta to take the place of the strikers. Work is being transferred from the struck shops to label concerns, with the result that only seven of our members are left on the strike rolls, and these are accepting casual employment. We have a membership of 252, and a local assessment is being levied to push the fight to a successful conclusion. So, it will be seen, the prospect certainly looks bright for the eight-hour day in Atlanta.

Digitized by Google

Another daily paper and a $30,000 book and job plant for Atlanta are announced in the daily press.

Friday, October 20, was "Roosevelt day" at the Georgia state fair, held in this city, and the president addressed a multitude of people at the fair grounds. The president was welcomed in behalf of the city by the union printer-mayor, James G. Woodward, who, at the conclusion of his speech, presented to the president, in behalf of organized labor, a handsome tablet of Georgia marble suitably inscribed. Mr. Roosevelt was deeply impressed at this mark of appreciation by the labor element of Atlanta, and devoted the major portion of his address to the good effects of organized labor.

C. E. Loomis, a member of No. 48 for many years, and who will be recalled by the oldtimers over the country, celebrated his seventy-first birthday on Monday, October 23. Mr. Loomis is still hale and hearty and is taking life easy at the soldiers' home in this city. He would be glad to hear from his friends.

Organizer Albert E. Hill, of Nashville, was in Atlanta recently, on his return from official visits to Augusta, Charlotte, Roanoke and Richmond. Augusta proprietors signed up for eight hours with increased scale.

At this writing the eight-hour towns number 240. The list grows daily. Mr. Lynch has in preparation another popular song, which will be ready January 1, entitled—

"Victory!" W. S. WARDLAW.

ANN ARBOR, MICH.

All offices in town signed up with the exception of the Richmond & Backus shop. We are now on our sixth week, and the management of this concern still warbles "open shop," but we are inclined to the opinion that after a continued siege with the conglomerate mixture of whisky-soaked, morphine-doped, witless rodents that he has run up against and been forced to call "gentlemen," he will be forced to say "open shop be d——d."

A rodent giving his office name as Marshall, but addressed by the typothetæ as Steneberg, is serving his second term in the lockup here. After the expiration of his first incarceration he came to the union and made a proposition, on strength of his having a re-engagement with the Richmond & Backus firm at a more remunerative salary, to leave town if we would pay his transportation to Buffalo and give him a card. He was politely told to resume his engagement, but, unfortunately for him, he went out to see "some of the boys," and is again in the toils. We presume his favorite ditty, on release, will be "Put Me Off at Buffalo."

Another sample of the "frat" is a fellow posing as a linotype artist, who, after tying up the machines, "jumped" and cashed in on a saloonkeeper for the balance he claimed was due him, signing his name to an order as H. H. W. Lyons. But his business name at the office was McMahon. The saloonkeeper is out, so is one of the traveling gentleman's bosom friends, as we are informed he was accompanied on his tour by one of his friend's suits of clothes.

There is a "freak" here, giving his name as Ryder, who, on the approach of any one wearing an eight-hour button, pulls out a police whistle, gives a few toots and ambles giddily onward. He is known by the boys as "Whistling Rufus."

No wonder a member of the International Typographical Union looks with pride on his button after coming in contact with the class of printers floating around, claiming they are making an honest living, and using the old stereotyped chestnut, "The union turned me down."

Another specimen of the long-tailed gentry, who has been ten years in the strikebreaking business, and boasts of having won out in Lansing and other places, and who is working for the R. & B. firm here, is "Jack" Turner, with an alias. He was a former cardholder in Detroit Union.

BERT LATHROP.

CINCINNATI, OHIO.

There is very little change in the strike situation from that reported in October, seventy-eight offices having signed. Three persons claiming to be strikebreakers appealed to the strike committee of No. 3 recently, and asked to be furnished with transportation and some money on leaving the city. They were supplied with both. The next day it was discovered that the three were still in the city, having hypothecated the railroad tickets, and were having a good time generally on No. 3's money. Warrants were secured and the grafters taken before the judge of the police court on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. It later developed that they were not printers at all. They drew as a prize for their little act fines of $100 each and 30 days in the workhouse, which will hold them for a while.

The book and job men are a solid crowd, and show a spirit of loyalty creditable to any union.

Interest is now added to the strike situation by the action of Electrotypers' Union No. 31 stopping work the latter part of October, partially on account of refusing to handle non-union composition and mainly to enforce the eight-hour day.

We are paying 11½ per cent on our earnings in this city to finance the eight-hour movement.

In the Philadelphia letter last month mention was made of the incident wherein James E. Gaither was a partner in a successful raid on a lottery. Gaither has been here for the past twenty years, and would very much like to have part of that $15,000 now.

Next month there will be more to tell.

W. R. VOILES.

Digitized by Google

CHICAGO, ILL.

When it comes to the question of poking one's nose into other people's business the employers' association or citizens' alliance can poke farther up and away than most organizations that engage in sympathetic actions. I have at hand the following:

September 16, 1905.

To the Employing Printers of Chicago:

GENTLEMEN—We are informed that Typographical Union is presenting to the employing printers of Chicago a contract calling for the closed shop and an eight-hour day after January 1, 1906. One of the principles of the employers' association is the open shop. Through numerous strikes backed by this association, the last of which was the teamsters' strike, this principle has been established in many industries in Chicago which were heretofore closed. Many of our members have, within the last few days, telephoned us, inquiring whether the employing printers would sign a closed-shop contract and would also increase the price of printing by going on the eight-hour basis. According to the custom of this office, that we may have all information concerning the situation tabulated, and also that we may give accurate answers to the inquiries of our members, we request that you fill out, at your earliest convenience, the enclosed blank and return to this office. We remain respectfully yours,

CHICAGO EMPLOYERS' ASSOCIATION,
FREDERICK W. JOB, Secretary.

This list of questions follows:

Have you been asked to sign contract with Typographical Union No. 16? If so, have you signed same or promised to sign? Will you refuse to sign contract if asked to? What was told you regarding attitude of other firms on the issue involved when you were asked to sign? How many employes have you in your composing room? Do you favor the eight-hour day? Do you favor the nine-hour day? Do you favor the closed shop? Do you favor the open shop?

Frederick W. Job (long or short "o") is a lawyer by profession, a failure as member of the state board of arbitration by experience, and a salaried meddler in other people's business affairs in fact. He would no doubt be as active in the cause of unionism as he is in anti-unionism if he considered it as advantageous. As the talking delegate of the employers' association he is a pronounced success, but his capabilities as secretary to his employers' interests are being strongly tested. Mr. Job is an Alton (Ill.) product, where his father was a prominent democratic politician. The son mapped out a political career for himself, expecting to become the Moses of the labor vote. His political appointment on the state board of arbitration came from ex-Governor Yates, a boyhood friend. His aspirations as the mogul of labor were not realized, and he gracefully switched his sympathies to the other side by reason of the pull gained through his political appointment, and it probably pays him better. The association represented by Mr. Job is an aggressive aggregation. It proposes to crack the union skull wherever it appears. It must be a source of annoyance to realize that it is not receiving the same amount of gratuitous advertising it did in the teamsters' strike, and that its bid for the approbation of the moneyed interests is restricted to paying the bills in a fight where the opposition is fully as adroit and agrarianistic. The prophecy is timely that the results in this contest will be different. The employers' association has taken a bite as big if not larger than it can chew.

The fact that the interests Mr. Job represents beat the teamsters a short time ago does not signify that the same interests can beat the printers. In my letter last month I said the same idiom would apply to the teamsters that was sometimes applied to prizefighters—"they had met their man." The same thing may, possibly, be applied to the employers' association.

As to the increase in prices of printing: The large mercantile houses can well afford to pay the slight increase in the cost. The moderate or occasional consumer is not making much noise over it. Such houses as John V. Farwell, Marshall Field & Co., Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., Montgomery Ward & Co., all of whom are active in the fight against unionism, as well as hundreds of others, would never notice the extra expense, so far as its constituting a privation is concerned. To them it is simply a question of adding to the millions already accumulated. They never do pay what printing is worth. It is well known among employing printers and large consumers that when half a dozen or more figure on work, large or small, the one who makes the mistake gets the job. That was aptly illustrated to me when I, in common with John Langston, Charley Smith, of Robinson & Smith, and representatives of A. R. Barnes, H. J. Armstrong, P. F. Pettibone & Co., and the Drover's Journal were accustomed to gather tri-weekly at Swift & Co.'s Lake street office "to see how much money we were going to lose," as the purchasing agent was in the habit of expressing it. When Armour & Co. started a printing office it was suggested that Swift & Co. would probably do the same. The stationer replied that the house was getting its printing below cost and would not care to change conditions. It may be the employing printers think they will have to stand the extra loss of granting the eight-hour day. They should spend some of their energy and money in the other direction, and make the commercial houses that get their printing below cost stand some of it.

The conflicting assertions given publicity by E. F. Hamm, the Chicago secretary of the typothetæ, respecting the plans of that organization, are as fickle and capricious as can be expected from one who is at his wits' ends for plans to circumvent the shorter day. One day he solemnly and impressively declares the employers have all the men they need (correct no doubt), and that business is running under normal conditions—which employers, consumers and strikers know is a lie. The school for operators established on the upper floors of the Grand Central depot was a failure, else it would not have been discontinued. It does not require argument to demonstrate that. The next day it is announced with blare of megaphone the intention of employing typewriter girls at fabulous salaries to learn operating linotype machines. If complete stoppage of business while that period of apprenticeship lasts was feasible, the plan might be practical. Then comes the announcement of the purpose of establishing a school for boys to learn the printing trade, providing the pupils promise to eschew labor unions and work for typothetæ members under open-shop rules. Another doubtful expedient. When the boys grow to manhood they will be like other men, have ideas of their own as to what they want, and will join unions to enforce better conditions, in spite of the youthful, misconstrued and prematurely exacted pledges. The scheme of extorting pledges to refrain from unionism is an old one. One who is, by force of circumstances, compelled to renounce his constitutional liberty, by placing himself subject to the caprices of his employer or starve, does not make the promise without a secret evasion of mind. If he has a spark of manhood he will revolt mentally at such coercion, or he is a whelp. His word to the union is given freely through desire for advantage. His word to the employer is the price of the requirements of his stomach, or, as it sometimes appears, the price of his cupidity. Mr. Hamm, or Ham—the name is suggestive either way—will have to study up something new in order to effectively earn his salary.

Digitized by Google

It looks as though there would be warm times at the 1906 convention. I saw a letterhead the other day containing the names of Colorado Springs printers and business men who are already laying plans for a successful convention. I am also informed Mrs. Gilbert Jones, secretary of the Chicago auxiliary, is arranging for an excursion of ladies, the purpose being to start about ten days ahead, and do a little camping out at the foot of Pike's Peak. James D. Coughlin is fathering a personally-conducted excursion at the same time, and as he is familiar with the surroundings, he would doubtless make a success as guide to points of interest. The scheme is a laudable one, and, with the increasing interest in conventions, both as participants and visitors, Jim's idea will probably be a winner.

P. A. Toomey is back in Chicago for the winter, fresh and brown as a ripe walnut, from his South Dakota farm. Pat thinks there is nothing like a farmer's life, and South Dakota is the only place to live.

Thomas Jefferson McGovern, a unique character of the old school, and known from one end of the country to the other, died at Alexian Brothers' hospital September 22. T. Jeff, as he was familiarly known, was about forty-five years old, was an Omaha product, and was buried in the union lot at Calvary cemetery. An odd circumstance in connection with Jeff was that one brother was a bartender and another a Catholic priest.

Joel A. Kinney, an oldtimer in the printing business, an ex-soldier and pensioned fireman, died in this city September 27, aged seventy-eight years. Mr. Kinney was a pressman, a charter member of No. 16, and served as treasurer of the union in 1852, '53 and '54. As a volunteer fireman, he was connected with the old Fire King No. 1, in the early 50's, and, later, was an assistant marshal in the paid department. In 1860 he joined a party in company with H. E. Rounds, of this city, and crossed the plains with an ox train, carrying mining machinery and supplies for the Pike's Peak region. Later he enlisted in a Colorado cavalry regiment, doing good service in Missouri. Mr. Kinney was a bachelor, and a familiar figure at the oldtime-printer gatherings.

The Chicago papers recently contained an interview with an imported strikebreaker, named Tom Carter, who posed as the champion of personal liberty by virtue of his boasted reputation as a gunfighter. The same tactics credited to him and his employers would result in blanket injunctions, wholesale arrests, and grand jury investigations, if indulged in by strikers. Employers' associations even go further, and claim the parties who act as silent sponsors for disturbers of the peace are as guilty as if actually engaged in the unlawful act. It is conceded that parading armed strikebreakers through the streets during the teamsters' strike, in order to demonstrate the right to free use of the public highways, was largely responsible for the disorder prevailing at that time. It was an inflammatory act calculated to increase violent passions rather than allay them, and it had the desired effect. The printers had paraded before them this non-union man who boasts he is a terrifyer, and who relies on his reputation as a fighter to secure the right to work, which right no one disputed. The typothetæ was responsible for this lurid streak of fire that dashed across the labor sky. The printers created no condition for this bold warrior of the south to display his prowess. He should have been arrested for carrying concealed weapons (if he had any). The fact that he was engaged to demonstrate the doctrine of American liberty as seen by the employer only, was no excuse for the sensational display of bluff for the benefit of those who claim the same American liberty. The printers are cleaning up the field close to the typothetæ lines, and they will capture the typothetæ citadel before they are through. The introduction of gun-fighters instead of printers into the controversy was a new solution for the problem confronting the struck offices. The declaration that business was continuing under normal conditions and the strike was a matter of history, when compared with the importation of a strikebreaker who boasted that his salary was double that of the striker because of his fighting proclivities, disclosed a condition of affairs that was, to say the least, unique.

Occasionally you will see a newspaper department headed "This, That and the Other." Here are a few things I have heard: Posted in the Donnelley office—"Notice—There shall be no loud talking, singing, playing pool, or playing the pianola after 11 P. M." That Poole Brothers allow the rats to have bottled beer on the floor. That Kendig & Hitchings' men played seven-up with the proprietors during the strike in that office while the said proprietors were making up their minds what they were going to do. That W. S. Timblin is back in town. That S. T. Jacobs, proprietor of the Central Typesetting Company, who held a working card, borrowed $200 from the executive committee to meet his payroll under a promise to sign the agreement, and the next day turned his plant of three machines over to the W. F. Hall Company, a typothetæ office. That "Kaintuck" Waltemade is back from the Home. That

Digitized by Google

B. F. Simmons, chairman of the Tribune chapel, was held up and relieved of $3 and his watch—probably the robbers figured it was assessment night. That the baseball game between Chicago and St. Louis printers resulted in a victory for "us"—result, $50 toward the strike fund. That the railroads are playing both ends against the middle—the typothetæ buy tickets to ship men into town and the unions buy tickets to ship them out again. That one party claims all I do toward writing these letters is to sign my name. That Harry Chirpe has connected himself with the business end of a south-side printing concern. That the employers' association recommends business men to boycott eight-hour offices. That appreciative acknowledgment is due to Isaac D. George, Thomas H. MacRae and D. L. McNair for the kindly congratulatory letters sent me, and also to the numerous personal assurances of sympathetic approval. That some of the above also applies to A. F. Bloomer, of Washington. That the stereotypers in the Western Newspaper Union, Chicago Newspaper Union, Kellogg's Auxiliary and the American Press Association will have the eight-hour day with the printers.

One of the disconcerting features connected with strikes is the meddling of allied trades in connection with struck work. It is positively asserted that some pressmen are aiding in making up, registering forms and changing plates in the struck offices. Some of this work was a matter of controversy between the officers of No. 16 and the pressmen before the strike, and was never settled. Why the pressmen should deliberately work against union men is beyond comprehension. The pressmen never did a kind act to an affiliated union except the handing out of platitudinous sympathy. Witness the action of the union during the Franklin feeders' strike. Also their position eighteen years ago during the nine-hour strike. Compare their position now in the eight-hour movement. After being flimflammed into an open-shop agreement, they begin to talk about the eight-hour day a year after the printers set the date. The nine-hour day was not accomplished by aid from the pressmen. The eight-hour day will be gained without aid from them. Some time ago I heard a speaker in a lodge meeting make a comparison between the members who sit around listlessly while others do all the work. He said the former class were not boosters—they were roosters. Just so with the pressmen—we will make the eight-hour day—they will come in for the results. They are not boosters—they are roosters.

The injunction issued by Judge Jesse Holdom, of this city, restraining the union, its officers and members, from in any manner interfering with the typothetæ, either individually or collectively, was one of the most sweeping prohibitive documents ever filed. It practically tied the hands, feet and tongues of union officers and members from doing any and every act that the proprietors considered they only had the sole and exclusive right to perform. No accusations of assault or violence were made—they were falsely intimated but not stated—so the question resolves itself down to the interpretation of what constitutes lawful or unlawful conduct by persuasion or purchase. The injunction even goes so far as to prohibit the issuing of the list of union and non-union offices, and denies the right of one man to urge the other to join his association. I am not sure that I am safe from arrest in discussing the matter, but it certainly is not intended to stifle reasonable discussion, therefore we can look into the case in a dispassionate manner and see how far the course inaugurated by the typothetæ can be supported without depriving one of his constitutional right of peaceable assemblage and freedom of speech, and what is contemplated by the term "free speech" as it is meant within the law. No sympathy nor frantic efforts to create false sentiment should be spent in favor of organizations that depend on physical force to attain their ends. That unfortunate characteristic of some union men has done more to place trade unions in a false light before the civil courts and the public than can be overcome in years.

The typographical unions throughout the country are suffering from the results of that indefensible position, and it has come to the point where the guiltless are put in the same class and seem to be destined to suffer with the guilty.

Crimes committed in the name of unionism are not, and should not, be tolerated any more than when committed under other provocations, either just or unjust. Union men who wink at or fail to condemn such are, to say the least, on the verge of unsafe citizenship.

The right to persuasion under the promise of better conditions at once or in the future is the present question facing the union, and is to be decided by the courts. If that is denied, what is the use of agitating on any question, economic, political or social? The employer who offers more money to the employe of his competitor is in our class of lawbreakers. Political campaigns are made up of slanderous arguments and aspersions. The party in control of the government can, with equal justification, enjoin the other party from interfering with its right to control. That sounds like a senseless assertion, but just compare the two cases. The controlling party is in possession and its lease of possession is in the hands of the voters. But the other party is doing its utmost to gain the prize by arguments in favor of a better platform, the ideal conditions of which are claimed to be so far above the party in power that the comparison resolves itself into charges of corruption, graft and every other form of general cussedness.

Then, again, a manufacturer expects to make sales by claiming his product is of better quality and cheaper in price than his competitor's. He must, according to the typothetæ argument, be amenable to the law because he is interfering with a competitor's business by representations either true or untrue.

The printers' organization is in the business of selling labor. If it can control the labor, if it can peaceably force conditions upon the employer by virtue of that control, if it can maintain its position by comparing the advantages of its labor over other labor, it would seem as though that was a law-abiding act. If it is a crime to state that one office is union and the other not, where is the line of free speech to be drawn? It is not a crime to conduct a non-union printing office; so why the objection to such non-union classification? We advertise our friends and tell who are opposed to us; we are looking out for our own interests and expect to help those who are friendly to us. If we can induce a non-union man to become one of us it is as lawful as to induce a democrat to become a republican, or vice versa.

Digitized by Google

These distinctions are well illustrated by that old saying that if one man kills another it is murder; if 100 men kill a portion of another 100 it is a mob; if 10,000 men engage in conflict it is war. It is all wrong in the sight of the ruler of the universe, but earthly law regards it differently.

Rivalry between unions and employers' associations is no more wrong than the same methods employed between business rivals. My space in THE JOURNAL is too limited for a lengthy discussion, but it is a grand subject for thoughtful consideration.

After four days of argument by ex-Judge William H. Barnum, counsel for the union, Judge Holdom decided the injunction should stand as filed. The union is as determined as ever to stand for eight hours, and it remains to be seen whether the employers can do business without union men.

GEORGE J. KNOTT.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

Of course, all union printers know the purpose of a strike being ordered in the job offices at Indianapolis; but few there are, likely, that are acquainted with the unusual, hasty and vigorous battle that has been waged on the typothetæ during the past few weeks by the printers of No. 1.

The first clang of the battle-axe was responded to by the union voting a 10 per cent assessment on all earnings; and this was immediately followed by a large number of members voluntarily subscribing $2 a week each in addition to the assessment, to be collected at the option of the strike committee, and this in face of the fact that even then our war chest was well filled ($8,000 in defense fund); but we were mindful of Napoleon's philosophy "that no army is stronger than its belly," and we did not propose to give the "other fellow" a chance to have a "coal scare" nibbling on our striking members during these chilly morns. The local is paying all benefits out of local treasury. So much for the money end of it—now for a few incidents:

And in a few days W. S. Fish, president of the Indianapolis Typothetæ, resigned from that organization, and signed the eight-hour agreement of No. 1. The Indianapolis Typothetæ was then reorganized, and the newly chosen president said that "that organization stood firm."

And in a few days W. D. Pratt, one of the delegates to the Niagara Falls typothetæ convention, cut loose from that organization, and reorganization again took place, and another bulletin proclaimed that "all members of the typothetæ stood firm and would defeat the eight-hour day."

And in a few days W. B. Burford, Indiana state printer, and delegate to the Niagara Falls convention, resigned from the typothetæ, and is now under the shadow of the wing of Indianapolis Typographical Union No. 1. His resignation again necessitated reorganization of the typothetæ, and again an interview appeared in the daily press "that all employers were still standing firm."

And in a few days E. P. Fulmer, the treasurer of the local typothetæ resigned. They again reorganized, sent out a statement—"all the typothetæ offices had sufficient competent help, and were standing firm."

And in a few days G. M. Cornelius, a prominent member of the typothetæ, became discouraged on account of not being supplied with competent help, as per typothetæ promise, sent for a committee from No. 1, signed our agreement, and again "the typothetæ stood firm."

And in a few days—but what's the use of rubbing it in.

There are at this time fifty-seven union offices in this city that have agreed to the eight-hour day to take effect January 1, 1906. Indianapolis Typographical Union No. 1 has a membership of 475, and only twenty-three members are at this time on the strike roll.

FRANK J. DEWARF.

WHO KNOWS A. W. DAUHERTY?

On Tuesday morning, October 3, 1905, Dr. Rayhill, surgeon of the Illinois Central Railroad, telephoned to Edward Koch, president of Belleville (Ill.) Typographical Union No. 74, informing him that a man having a Typographical Union card, issued at Joplin, Mo., September 23, 1905, was found seriously wounded alongside the tracks south of the city. He either fell from or was struck by a train. After seeing the card, and finding that the unfortunate man—A. W. Dauherty—was in good standing with the International Typographical Union, President Koch ordered that he be taken to St. Vincent Hospital. There Dr. Irwin took charge of the patient, who died shortly after noon, the same day. Telegrams sent to the Joplin (Mo.) and New York unions failed to locate relatives, and Secretary Bramwood was notified, under whose instructions the deceased was ordered buried. Whereupon funeral arrangements were made by President Koch and Secretary Neubauer, and the deceased, A. W. Dauherty, was given a decent Christian burial at 4:30 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, October 5, 1905. A number of German printers of Typographia No. 18 participated. Rev. W. M. Gardner, of the Presbyterian Church, officiated at the grave. The following members of No. 74 acted as pall-bearers: George H. Thebus, Albert Buechler, Edward Koch, August F. Neubauer.

A. F. NEUBAUER.

Belleville, Ill.

OFFICIAL BATTLE CRY OF THE I. T. U.

We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen.

Digitized by Google

BOSTON, MASS.

A few weeks ago I had the good fortune to run across a bound volume of the Boston Weekly Messenger, which was published every Thursday by Nathan Hale at the office of the Boston Daily Advertiser, No. 3 Congress street, corner State. It is a valuable relic, and is the property of James F. Rhoades, delegate to the Toronto convention. Looking over the number for January 4, 1816, I happened on this advertisement:

RAN AWAY FROM PATRICK M'DALLOGH.

Whereas, my wife, Mrs. Bridget McDallogh, has again walked away with herself, and left me with five small children and her poor blind mother, and left nobody else to take care of house and home, and, I hear, has taken up with Tim Gilligan, the lame fiddler, the same that was put in the stocks last Easter for stealing Barney Dooley's game cock. This is to give notice that I will not pay for bite or sup on her account to man or mortal, and she had better never show the marks of her ten toes near my house again. PATRICK McDALLOGH.

In their strenuous efforts to get non-union men to send elsewhere, to take the places of men on strike for the eight-hour day, members of the typothetæ have adopted the worm-eaten method of having certain small printers act as employment agencies and advertise for help, and when they apply try to persuade them to accept jobs as strike-breakers in this or that city. They have spent a lot of money, and have gone over New England with a fine-tooth comb, but the amount of advertising still going on proves that the typothetæ has not got and is not getting all the men it wants.

A funny incident of the strike at Hartford for the eight-hour day came to my attention. It seems that after the men in a certain office had walked out the superintendent made up a number of forms and loaded them on a wagon, to be taken to a neighboring pressroom, but when it came time to start, the horse refused to move, and upon an application of the whip, would only rear on his hind legs. As he absolutely refused to go in the direction desired, the driver had to be content with the other road. This is emblematic of the course being pursued by the typothetæ. They are trying to force us to go their way by applying the whip, but they have found the printers decidedly balky, and will have to abandon their course.

A conference of printers from all over New England is called to take place in this city on October 23, to consider conditions as they exist in the district. Preparations being made would indicate that the event is expected to have an important bearing on the eight-hour fight. A mass meeting in Faneuil Hall in the evening is expected to be a grand affair, prominent trade unionists and eminent divines meeting on the platform to boost the eight-hour day. An account of this meeting will be found in this column next month.

Harry Gould, of Erie, Pa., who worked on the Boston Herald last year, but went back to Erie after the death of his wife, called on his friends here the last of September. He is now holding down a "mill" on the Erie Dispatch.

The woman's auxiliary to No. 13 is now well under way. A number of hustling ladies have taken hold of the matter, and within a short time it is expected that the Boston auxiliary will have a membership more in proportion to the size of No. 13. Plans are already under way for social events of different kinds for the winter months. It is up to you, brothers, to interest your wives, mothers and sisters in this movement, whose object is to advance your interests. Mrs. Herbert W. Cooke has been elected president, and Mrs. Thomas Rogers secretary. The auxiliary starts off with seventeen charter members.

The esteemed Kreiter is in error when he states that "President Herbert Cooke, of the Society of Typographical Journal Correspondents, asserted that he will drill the scribes to a higher standard." Not being an expert with the hammer, I will attempt to "drill" no one, and think that my astute fellow correspondent might have given me credit for better sense and less egotism than the "assertion" implies.

The principal legislation passed at the meeting of the state branch of the American Federation of Labor, held in Pittsfield, Mass., was the adoption of the plan to circulate pledges through every union in the state, that union men everywhere will not vote for members of the legislature who have assumed an unfriendly attitude toward labor measures.

Five men worked in an office in Hartford, Conn., but neither of them knew whether his neighbor belonged to the union or not. When the word came to quit they looked at each other, and passed it along on general principles. Then it was discovered that all five of them were union men, and the office was a "closed shop" next morning.

Many thousands of cards bearing the legend, "Do you know Mickey, the rat?" were circulated in Lowell, with salutary effect. As a result, I understand that "Mickey" was ostracized by everybody, even the bartenders refusing to sell him a drink. It is tough on a rat when they won't even sell him poison.

President Ellis, of the United Typothetæ of America, wears a worried look these days. From outward appearances his duties are bearing heavily upon him, which leads to the thought that getting in a pickle is not apt to make a man look well preserved, especially when he has it put all over him.

A printers' apprentice society was organized in Boston, October 5, along similar lines to the one in St. Louis. It aims to make the apprentices of today better printers of the future. The boys have taken up the work with enthusiasm, more than forty responding to the first call for a meeting.

No. 13's eight-hour committee, headed by Organizer McPherson, is energetically at work putting into operation what looks to be a very effective campaign for the "rounding up" of all non-union printers in Boston and vicinity.

William S. Waudby, of New York, was one of the "biggest" men at the Toronto convention, measured by every standard. And "ye brewery" did not produce anything half as agreeable as his habitual good humor.

Some of the replies being received by printers who advertise for men are rather surprising. For instance, one man applied for a job as a stone hand, and stated that he guessed he could make good all right, as he had worked four years in a quarry. Another, looking for a machinist's sit, had served his time on a lathe. The chances are they could make as good a bluff as the general run of "rats" at that.

Digitized by Google

John Barlow, of the Globe, passed away October 18, after an illness extending over several months. John was one of the best-known printers in town, and his death is mourned by a large circle of friends.

Organizer Scott informs me that the outlook throughout the New England district is very bright, the men everywhere are standing firm, and victory for the eight-hour day is assured.

James Doig, of Wright & Potter's, passed ten weeks in Glasgow, Scotland, visiting "Andy" Burnett, formerly with Wright & Potter, but now running a news and job office in Glasgow.

How the anarchists must laugh in their sleeves at the spectacle of the "ruling class" killing and maiming themselves at auto racing. Saves them the trouble, eh?

Saltus, of Worcester, is a wise old owl. Note his comment on that "Bevy of Pretty Girls." He himself has two good eyes—both wide open all the time.

J. J. Coady, of the American, is on a month's trip to the coast. He will visit all the large cities en route to San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Cushing's Norwood Press now has ten monotype keyboards. Work has been very slack there of late, and layoffs have been frequent.

Robert S. Moloney, of Lawrence, is a delegate to the Pittsburg convention of the American Federation of Labor.

E. E. Linderholm, proofreader at Wright & Potter's, passed a sixteen weeks' vacation in Norway and Sweden.

There has not been a death in the ranks of No. 13 the past four months.

The International Typographical Union is on the firing line.

Quit knocking and boost the eight-hour day.

HERBERT W. COOKE.

WINNIPEG, CANADA.

"To be, or not to be, that is the question" that is animating the minds of employer and employed alike at the present time in the Prairie City. The struggle for the eight-hour day is in progress, and while the master printers are resolutely and doggedly fighting against fearful odds, and are themselves working a hundred hours or so a week in order to defeat our plans, the members of No. 191, on the other hand, are calmly awaiting the issue, confident in the belief that their optimism will be justified, and that organized labor will gain one of its most sweeping victories.

The members of the local typothetæ had made practically no preparations for the fight, and consternation reigned supreme among their forces when the ultimatum was served upon them by the union officials. One or two of the most important offices at once agreed to accede to our demands, including the Free Press job department, the Telegram job department, the Winnipeg Tribune, and Martel's, Ltd., and the only other important office which refused to sign, and is still holding out, is the Stovel Company. Some of the smaller firms have capitulated since the beginning of the fight.

The following table shows exactly how matters stand, and the importance of the partial victory which has already been gained:

SIGNED THE AGREEMENT.

	No. of Men.
Free Press Job Department	14
Telegram Job Department	8
Tribune Publishing Company, Limited	15
Voice Publishing Company, Limited	4
Martel's, Limited	12
Royal Crown Soap Company	1
Colonial Press	2
Fisher & Cowherd	1
C. F. Birt Company	1
Clarence Lewis	2
Robertson's Company	1
A. Spiers	1
Canada Printing Company (Swedish)	5
Canadian Farmer	2
Western Press	1
Germania	2
	72

In addition to the above, eighty-five men are employed by the Free Press and Telegram newspapers, which are included in the agreement with the Newspaper Publishers' Association, so that altogether about 150 or 160 men are already at work.

AGREEMENT STILL UNSIGNED.

	No. of Men.
The Stovel Company	25
Franklin Press	2
Kingdon Printing Company	2
McIntyre Brothers	3
Peel Printing Company	1
Rugg Printing Company	6
Consolidated Stationery Company	1
Brown's Job Office	1
Toronto Type Foundry	2
Watson-Lane Company	2
Bulman Brothers	5
Wilson Stationery Company	2
	52

H. J. Hardy, of the Toronto Type Foundry, signed the agreement after an interval of three weeks, but for some unaccountable reason withdrew, and locked his men out.

One of the most pleasing features of the contest has been the courtesy and kindly wishes which have been extended to the employes by most of the proprietors; but unfortunately nearly every rule has its exceptions, and in this case the exception has been furnished by one or two members of the typothetæ, who, in their ill-concealed chagrin at finding themselves on the losing side, have gone out of their way to slander and vilify the members of the union to such a degree that the statements can not but recoil on their own heads. Plutarch says that "a man should indeed be afraid and ashamed of what is really shameful, but to shrink under every reflection upon his character, though it speaks a delicacy of temper, has nothing in it of true greatness of mind;" and when a prominent member of the typothetæ makes the assertion that the members of the typographical union are for the most part frequenters of saloons, and that the extra hour's relief from work which we are seeking would simply be spent in worshipping at the shrine of Bacchus, then we unhesitatingly throw his venomous and villainous statements back in his teeth, as the inevitable offspring of a disordered imagination and an unbalanced mind.

Digitized by Google

We have already succeeded in breaking the ranks of the typothetæ, the Free Press and the Telegram having hitherto been two of its strongest adherents; and we are confident that before long the remaining offices will fall into line. Several non-unionists have been imported by the typothetæ to take the places of our members, and up to the present, to the bewilderment of the master printers, we have been successful in inducing most of them to join our cause. There is still much to be done; but if enthusiasm, and cohesiveness, and determination are dominant factors in a successful fight, then I have no hesitation in saying that we shall win all along the line.

The recent Labor day parade in Winnipeg afforded No. 191 a splendid opportunity to advertise its intentions with respect to the eight-hour day, and we took advantage of it to the fullest extent. Over 100 members, in twenty-five hacks, took part in the celebration, and as we drove around the city, with the mystic figure "8" in conspicuous positions everywhere, we created an impression the importance of which could not be overestimated. JOSEPH BURGESS.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The all-absorbing question among union printers in Kansas City is the big eight-hour struggle. Every office has its strategy board and every group of printers, wherever congregated, discusses the fight. So far No. 80 has had no trouble, nearly all of our offices having contracts running until about the middle of 1907.

The newspaper offices of Kansas City have improved wonderfully during the last year or so. The Journal composing room especially deserves mention, because the former quarters of that paper were terrible—a fact that every one who ever visited the Ninth and Grand quarters will agree to. In its elegant new building the composing room is arranged with special attention to the health of the printers. The Star composing room is improved somewhat over former conditions, it being possible to see daylight and get a breath of fresh air during the day now, whereas formerly to do either it was necessary to go through a maze of partitions, doors and machinery. The Star and Times now has twenty-two linotypes, the Journal twelve and the World six. The latter office is well ventilated, and arranged with consideration for the health of the printers. More attention should be paid to the hell holes which printers are forced to work in, and wherever one is found a special effort should be made to change the conditions, or union printers should be compelled to quit working in such excuses for printing offices.

Kansas City's labor temple fund is growing slowly but surely. The recent Labor day celebration resulted in a nice sum being added to the fund. Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston financier, was to have delivered the Labor day address, but failed to make connections. However, Mr. Lawson sent his regrets and a check for $1,000, to be added to the labor temple building fund, and promised to address the union men at some future date. The labor temple association intends to place a stone in one corner of the labor temple, when it is built, with a testimonial regarding Mr. Lawson's $1,000 gift to the labor temple fund.

Dave L. Guyette, formerly an active worker in union labor circles of Kansas City, and who held every office within the gift of No. 80, visited Kansas City for several days this month. Guyette is secretary-treasurer of the Guardian Trust Company, with headquarters at Tahlequah, I. T., and is an enthusiastic boomer for that country. Guyette reports that there are many opportunities for printers in the twin territories—Oklahoma and Indian territories—a fact that is further borne out by other union printers who have purchased country newspapers and gone into business in several places.

Robert W. Moore, a well-known union printer of Kansas City, was married to Miss Margaret V. Edwards, September 27.

Secretary-Treasurer James M. Rhodes reports a surplus of printers in Kansas City in all branches. Foremen of offices in different cities throughout the southwest should remember that the secretary of No. 80, Kansas City, is ready at all times to secure printers to meet demands. A letter or a telegram to Secretary James M. Rhodes, 825 Central street, will secure union printers, operators, proofreaders, machinists, admen, etc., and in any reasonable quantity. Remember this, Mr. Foreman, and Kansas City No. 80 will appreciate it.

G. Gus Crawford, well known throughout the southwest, and especially in Texas cities, is assistant foreman on the Kansas City World.

Congressman Edgar C. Ellis, from the fifth congressional district of Missouri, is an ardent advocate of the eight-hour day. Mr. Ellis expressed himself as favoring the shorter workday, in face of the threats of the Kansas City Typothetæ and the employers' association. Vice-President John W. Hays, who was one of the speakers at the big mass meeting given by No. 80 to endorse the eight-hour day, expressed delight at the open endorsement by Congressman Ellis. Franklin Hudson, the notorious "rat" printer of Kansas City, denounced Congressman Ellis for speaking at the meeting, and the employers' association now has Mr. Ellis on its "blacklist." And all because Mr. Ellis had the nerve to stand up and say what he thought about the eight-hour fight.

Joe Dirks, of St. Louis, has been suggested as a candidate for trustee of the Home next year.

The writer knows of three good newspapers that can be secured on good terms, and should any of the readers of THE JOURNAL be looking for an opportunity, information can be secured for a stamped envelope, self-addressed.

Eugene V. Debs spoke in Kansas City October 15, to a very small crowd.

While in Toronto I secured thirty-six views of groups of different members of the International Typographical Union and their wives. While the writer may have failed to send pictures to some of those to whom were promised copies of the kodak views, the oversight was not intentional, and will be attended to upon receipt of letter calling attention to failure to send views.

Digitized by Google

Those who expect to attend the Colorado Springs gathering next year will be well repaid for their trip. The Home is well worth seeing.

CHARLES W. FEAR.

CLARKSBURG, W. VA.

Work still good, but enough men to supply the demand.

C. L. Waymeth, of the Daily News, has gone to Huntington, W. Va., where he has accepted a position in one of the large shops.

The Wade Printing Company, publishers of the opera house program, are making a hit with the patrons, and also with the advertisers. It is a neat book of sixteen pages, with a good supply of ads. Has nice color cover, gotten up in good style. All around, it is a splendid piece of work.

The eight-hour situation is all that can be asked for. The executive council is to be congratulated on the way they are handling it, and also our members, who are proving so loyal to the cause.

Injunctions in some places are the order of the day. Every little helps.

Wear a union button and be prepared.

You can't drink booze in Niagara. It's all gone. "Open shop booze" don't last long.

Pupil, pupil, who's got the pupil? You know who. It's us.

The label stands for all that's good; so demand it.

Colorado Springs for us.

Boost for eight hours. Are you?

Stand pat. WALTER R. WATKINS.

PROOFROOM NOTES.

At the annual election of the Chicago Society of Proofreaders, October 3, the ladies carried off the greater portion of the honors, electing from their number all the officers except secretary, as follows: President, Mrs. E. C. Timblin; vice-president, Mrs. Cora J. Martin; secretary, E. E. Barnum; corresponding secretary, Miss Nannie J. Roberts, 708 Sunnyside avenue; treasurer, Mrs. Mary A. Crewe. The society meets at the rooms of the Clover Club, 261 Dearborn street, on the first Tuesday in each month, at 7 P. M. All proofreaders, copyholders and others interested in the work are invited to be present.

There should be a live, vigorous society of proofreaders in every large town or city in the country. At present I know of none but those in Chicago and Boston. There was once a proofreaders' and editors' society in Grand Rapids, Mich., but I have heard nothing of it for some years.

During the progress of the inquiry into the doings of the meat-packers' trust in Chicago, in the present year, one might easily have been shocked at the glibness of former employes of the packers —stenographers, confidential clerks, etc.—who told how they had preserved memoranda of their employers' transactions and gave some quite damaging testimony regarding them. I wonder what would be thought of a proofreader who would betray the confidences which come to him in the course of his professional work. There are few of us who have not had many opportunities of damaging persons whose copy passed through our hands. Yet I have to hear of the first authenticated case of a betrayal of the trust reposed in them. Printing-office secrecy is no myth.

I am indebted to S. F. Crampin, secretary of the London Association of Correctors of the Press —we would call it society of proofreaders in this country—for copies of the monthly notice-papers sent out by that society. The account of a recent meeting contains a summary of an interesting paper read by C. T. White, of the Chiswick Press, on "Household Words; Familiar and Otherwise," with comments thereon by some other members. I regret that the limits of THE JOURNAL will not permit of the republication of this summary in full. The paper suggests the fact that proofreaders can find nothing in their line more profitable than the study of words—their origin, history and meaning. As our profession confines us to words, not deeds, we neglect our duty to our employers and to ourselves, that we do not pay more attention to this subject.

By the way, did you ever hear of any one reading the dictionary? (Of course you have all heard of the fellow who borrowed a big dictionary, read it through and returned it with the remark that it "changed the subject pretty often." He isn't the man I mean.) I have read or heard of an eminent scholar who, whenever he obtained a new dictionary, would sit down and religiously read it from beginning to end. I know of one proofreader, who, in looking for one word in the dictionary, will catch a number of others and learn something of their origin and meaning. In this way he has picked up an amazing amount of information that greatly assists him in his work, and, as he jokingly says, enables him to pass as a "learned" man even among many who are vastly his superiors in education. HENRY RUSH BOSS.

Chicago, Ill.

SCRANTON, PA.

At the time of sending these notes our neighbor, Wilkes Barre Union No. 187, is still on the now-on-strike list, but it is to be hoped that before long the one office still out will have signed up and peace shall have been restored.

Quite a number of our members attended the last meeting of Carbondale Union No. 239, and from reports it must have been a "hummer," for some of our members were compelled to stay over night on account of missing trains.

No doubt the small attendance at meetings lately is due to the fact that we have "clear sailing" for some time to come; but, boys, don't forget the old maxim, "In time of peace prepare for war."

Reports from headquarters weekly are gratifying, and the way the eight-hour committee is conducting the campaign certainly commands admiration for the ability of the officers throughout the entire land.

It looks to me as though the officers now in possession of the union's affairs should be continued through another year. They have done conscientious work and the Scranton printers can well be proud of them.

Digitized by Google

A little trip to Wilkes Barre is contemplated for the next meeting of that union, so as to give the boys there a little "backbone" in their struggle for eight hours.

Warden Corless is often seen behind the "bars."

Everything is quiet. All men working.

We "Ate Ours."

Thank you. W. C. LAMPING.

"THE GANG."

In every typographical union in which I ever deposited a card I have found a certain number of the members putting forth their every endeavor to advance the best interests of the union. They attend all meetings, take part in all debates, and as a natural consequence are elected to fill the important offices. They are the very life of the organization. Without their efforts the typographical union would not today be the foremost labor organization in the world.

On the other hand, I have also noticed there are men who seldom attend union meetings and who know but little of the important business going on within the union. They are the ones who are always condemning the "gang," as they term the officers, for the "reckless manner in which they transact the union's business." They are forever knocking, whereas they should join the "gang" and be one of the boosters. On election or union meeting day they fail to put in an appearance or try in any manner to rectify the errors they complain of.

This condition of affairs can be found in every labor organization. The proper and just administration of union principles demands every member's closest attention, and its true development will be found not in the spasmodic efforts of good-natured individuals, nor in the ill-advised opposition of a few who "think different," but it is to be found in concentrated, organized and harmonious fellowship, and in this way only can a labor organization hope to attain its most cherished ambitions and become a queen bee in the busy marts of the union labor world.

James Lloyd Sloan, grand master of the Masonic lodge of Tennessee, in an address delivered in Nashville recently, handed out the following words of wisdom, which are applicable to every member of organized labor:

I have noticed in many lodges that I have visited a clan or set of brothers who appear to be more closely attached to each other than the rest of the members. This clan bears many names. By some of their brothers they are called "a clique," by others "the ring," but most generally they are called "the gang."

The "gang" is the life of the lodge. It is at every meeting of the lodge. It confers the degrees. It attends the funerals of the dead brothers. It visits the sick. It is active, pushing, vigorous, zealous and bright in the lectures. It is charitable to almost the extreme. It is not despondent or gloomy. It has no bitterness or venom. Now, strange to say, this "gang" is bitterly opposed in every lodge in which it exists. Some oppose every measure it advocates; they seem to see something in every movement it favors. No matter what the "gang" is for these others are "agin it." They will not attend the rehearsals of the work and lectures of the "gang," because they want to make changes and innovations is the excuse. They grumble and growl at the "gang" and think it is dangerous and will bear watching. My observation and experience leads me to wish that these "gangs" may increase in numbers and membership.

Brother, are you a member of the "gang"? If you are not let me beg of you to stop snarling and grumbling at what it does, but go and join the "gang."

Those who attend union meetings are the ones who are keeping unionism alive, while the "stay-at-homes" do the protesting. I have noticed in THE JOURNAL where a fine is assessed against each member of some locals who fail to attend union meetings, and I know of one union where there is a dollar placed upon the working card of all members who did not attend the previous meeting. It is a shame that such conditions exist; but they do; therefore, the cause justifies the act.

Indianapolis, Ind. WILL P. CLOONAN.

ITHACA, N. Y.

One of the unexpected results of the strike, and one, no doubt, which will be hard for the "teapots" to acknowledge, is the driving of city work to country offices. This may seem peculiar, but is a fact, nevertheless, and the letters and telegrams coming in to the officers in cities where there are strikes will substantiate this statement. This was not looked for by the employing printers, much less the union men.

On account of this general exodus the drain on the assessment fund may not be as large as was anticipated. Most of the country plants seem to be in shape to pay very close to the city scale because of the amount of work forced upon them, and they take it at a rate not much lower than the cost of obtaining it at a large city printery. The effect of this will be to teach the small printer that he can obtain as much for his work as the larger fellow, if he can turn out the same grade of work. This work is being done by city printers who are just now located in the rural and interurban districts.

Their work will start the rustic comp thinking, and he will copy it and study more—if not the trade papers, he will study the modern man's work when he distributes the type.

Thus the eight-hour movement is of far-reaching effect—more than we ever dreamed of—and will be one of the grandest and most uplifting things that has happened in many years.

We are in a fair way to win, so don't quit or relax in your efforts before the cause is gloriously won. FRANK M. HALL.

OFFICIAL BATTLE CRY OF THE I. T. U.

We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen.

Digitized by Google

A FEW EIGHT-HOUR TOWNS.

Wheeling, W. Va.
Elmira, N. Y.

Albany, N. Y.
Rahway, N. J.
East Liverpool, Ohio.

Windsor, Ont.
Ithaca, N. Y.
New Castle, Pa.
Newport News, Va.
Iowa City, Iowa.
New Brunswick, N. J.
Greenville, Texas.

Ashland, Wis.
Lafayette, Ind.
Lead, S. D.

Tucson, Ariz.
Henderson, Ky.
Eureka, Cal.

Waukegan, Ill.
Anaconda, Mont.
Youngstown, Ohio.

Danbury, Conn.
Olympia, Wash.
Wabash, Ind.
Nanaimo, B. C.

Trinidad, Colo.
Hamilton, Ont.
Elizabeth, N. J.

Lawrence, Mass.
Indianapolis German-American.
Niles, Mich.
El Paso, Texas.

Indianapolis, Ind. FRANK J. DEWARF.

SOME MEN AND THEIR METHODS.

Unwillingly I find myself writing on the subject chosen by John Edwards in the opening article of the October number of THE JOURNAL. I say unwillingly, because I would gladly let the job out, but can not, because no one else will do it.

My remarks will include only the ideas in the three paragrams at the beginning of his otherwise timely article.

I am or I am not versed in political economy. The same is true of Mr. Edwards. "The union man who is a free trader, so far as concerns the political economy of his country, is the strongest advocate of protectionism when wages and hours of labor are in question." From this I judge that he thinks that the United States has a peculiar brand of political economy, and that he does not know of another kind. Then I also judge that this peculiar political economy has been worked out by some political party, and that Mr. Edwards is a stanch supporter of that party.

"Theoretically the free trader should be a non-unionist." Why? Mr. Edwards does not tell us. And nowhere else does he show so good sense as in the omission.

"There are many free traders who are forced to acquiesce in the protection theory when the question of wages arises." I would like to know what kind of free traders he means, and what kind of protection. If I had read only one side of the dispute between free traders and protectionists, and that side, or its literature, was presented by men who had big axes to be ground and were looking for other men with more muscle than thinkpower to do the turning of the grindstone, I would know just what his language meant. But—probably unfortunately—I have read all sides, and for more than twenty years have been trying to get others to do likewise. Does Mr. Edwards know what the politician means when he uses the word "protection"? Has Mr. Edwards himself an idea of its meaning? He gives no hint that he does. Let me give a hint. Wages are twice as high in England as in Germany; England has free trade and short hours of work, while Germany has "protection" and long hours of work. To make the comparison more odious, the same piece of silver money—or gold, if you rather—will buy more of the necessaries of life in England than in Germany. To make it more odious yet, trade unions are much stronger in England than in Germany. Excuse me; I don't want to be suspected of being inclined to "protectionism."

Let us inquire what this word "protection" means and what it stands for; for often a word has one meaning and stands for something else. A protector is a guardian. If a man is totally unfit or unable to take care of himself the court may appoint a guardian who is empowered to take possession of all effects, property, inheritances and earnings of his ward. This is a humane proceeding. Many an unfortunate who would dissipate his patrimony and become a charge upon the community has been saved by his guardian. We all know of such cases, but I will mention one with which we are all familiar. Mr. Carnegie found a lot of men who were looking for a protector. Congress, unconstitutionally sitting as a guardians' court, by act duly certified, appointed Mr. Carnegie guardian of as many men—citizens or not—as he could persuade to come under his protecting ægis. Now, a guardian must have compensation. So congress, by act duly certified, though without warrant in the constitution, provided that Mr. Carnegie and others who might associate themselves with him, or act independently of him in the same benevolent capacity, if they would agree among themselves and not cut on prices, might charge the American consumers of iron from 44 to 80 cents more on the dollar's worth than the same could be bought for abroad. That is, on each dollar of cost there should be added from 44 to 80 cents. On a bill of $100 the charge at the customhouse was from $44 to $80. This was to enable them, as good protectors of their wards, the workingmen, to pay them magnificent wages and save them from competition with the cheap union iron workers in England and their cheap iron and steel. Talk of the millennium or a Utopia was not to be compared with this eleemosynary undertaking. Other like charitable projects have followed. Mr. Baer has told us that he was not only commissioned by congress to do a like charitable work in the Pennsylvania coal fields, but Providence itself appointed him as guardian of the weak-minded miners.

Free traders—myself probably as unthoughtful as any—have sometimes said unkind words of this display of "the political economy of this country." For instance, we may have put in jeopardy the whole beneficent scheme when we advertised the fact that the cost of producing and marketing a ton of iron, steel or coal was less in dollars and cents than anywhere else in the world. I say we may have put a quietus on the whole business, but we did not, and so we may be forgiven. "Protection" still has the right of way, and Mr. Edwards may have known what he meant when he inferred that it is "the political economy of this country." If it is, then it is the political economy of Russia also, though Russia can not use it so drastically as our Uncle Samuel does, or as some men in their methods are allowed to use it in his name.

Digitized by Google

Now one paragram on the question of the cheapest market. There is a saying, "The best is the cheapest." The best is usually the cheapest. That is the one reason why the newspaper and many other employing printers want union printers. To some extent this may be due to the label, as Mr. Edwards says, but before there was a label the live newspapers were nearly all union. The best was the cheapest, and the union printers were more reliable and cared better for the material than the non-union. Is it not so in other trades? I know that it is true of some others, and assume it is true of most of them. Let the standard of competency and reliability of union printers deteriorate and there will be another story told to our officers when they talk of unionizing shops. There is less of sentiment among employers than among employes.

I hope I shall not be understood as underestimating the potency of the label, but I wish to be understood as saying that there are other matters, and some in politics, that are potential factors in our advancement or retrogression, and that one of these will easily be found in the political issue lightly and, I think, injudiciously handled by Mr. Edwards. GEORGE SHELLEY HUGHS.

Chicago, Ill.

BELLINGHAM, WASH.

At our September meeting we discussed the Cummings memorial subscription proposition. It needed discussion for the reason that most of the membership at the present time were members of different unions along the coast at different times during the past two years, when such assessments were levied. Some of us have been assessed twice before and some have been assessed once; nearly all claiming to have donated their expected mite—50 cents. At any rate, Bellingham is one of the towns which has never been given credit for helping to swell the fund. We settled the discussion by coming to the conclusion that we who had given 50 cents had not given enough, and that those who had given 50 cents twice should be glad to give 50 cents a third time to so noble a cause; so it was agreed to put 50 cents extra on each working card for October.

The tributary towns to Bellingham are certainly well represented by International Typographical Union men. At Mount Vernon there is one of the best country printing offices in the west, and at the head of the composing room is William Grogan, who insists on paying his dues to the nearest local—Bellingham—in advance. At Anacortes one of our oldest members, B. C. Ferguson, is holding a job. And at Lynden O. E. Shannon, who has done heavy work in the editorial rooms of some of the larger newspapers of the east, and who has worked in many adrooms, is acting as writer-printer-pressman on a very neat little weekly publication, and is working overtime on a garden, so they say. Think how well it would be for all the country situations to be held by card men.

G. H. GRAY.

ELIZABETH, N. J.

Our October meeting was a splendid one—splendid in more than one way. The number of members present was the largest in months. Ten new members were received and also a number of traveling cards. The amount of business handled was unusually large, and the meeting was uncommonly protracted.

Although feeling secure in our position as regards the eight-hour day, we, nevertheless, take keen interest in the welfare and progress of our brethren in Newark, who are "in the trenches." When it became known that Mr. Throssel, of Newark Union, was present, the members were eager to hear what he had to say. Mr. Throssel was given a hearty reception, and spoke briefly and pointedly. His report was highly encouraging. The Newarkers are more than holding their own. As at the beginning, it was still a 100 per cent strike—not a man had deserted. Financially, the union is all to the good, no assistance was needed. His address gave us a good idea of the condition of affairs on the "firing line."

An attempt to "farm out" some of the Newark work in this city met with failure. Work which had begun on one job by a local firm was stopped. No. 150 voted to reimburse the firm for the work which had been done on the job. This action was protested by Mr. Throssel, who said No. 150 did its full duty in stopping the work, and that his union would gladly pay the cost.

No. 150, by unanimous vote, extended a cordial invitation to the New Jersey eight-hour committee of the International Typographical Union to hold its November session in this city. Our eight-hour committee has charge of the arrangements, and doubtless the state committee will be well received and cared for if it visits ye ancient city of Elizabeth.

I have recently read a two-sheet typewritten letter sent out by the Donnelleys, of Chicago, offering inducements to competent prints to work in a non-union office at so much per week of fifty-four hours. Among other things it was stated that cooking utensils and cots had been provided for those who desired to eat and sleep on the premises. Can you imagine a printer—a master of the art of arts—accepting employment under such debasing conditions? Is it possible that there is any considerable number of printers so lacking in pride, so deficient in self-respect, so utterly debased in manhood, that they will consent to herd together like Chinese coolies, and thus attempt to defeat the craft in its efforts to shorten the hours of toil? I find it difficult to believe that there are many who will thus degrade themselves and what should be, nay, is, the world's proudest craft.

Digitized by Google

George Hemer, of the Elizabeth Journal linotype gang, has taken a night sit on the Paterson (N. J.) Call.

Haven't heard anything lately about that labor temple for this city. And the woman's auxiliary, where, oh, where—.

Eight hours for all—that's all.

And don't forget the label. T. H. BLAKENY.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Now that the smoke of battle has lifted off the San Francisco field and the union label offices are pursuing the even tenor of their eight-hour way, our clear-minded, conscientious typo, who stood by his obligation and fought for principle, has again peacefully resumed the intricacies of the "art preservative," and it will not be amiss to say that California's job compositors and pressmen "use brains in their work," for they are original, tasty, and fast workmen. That is one of the forceful reasons why "imported" labor could not "make good," when it was put to a test. Non-union help never will pay when it competes with the brainy, sober, union artisan.

The scene of action in this state has now shifted to the northern cities and towns, Sacramento being the first place to take the eight-hour matter up for consideration, and we will swing into line of battle for the eight-hour day along with San Francisco. One office is already working under the new order of the International Typographical Union, having granted the change on October 1, and after a meeting held for the purpose of receiving an answer as to the proprietors' position in regard to the eight-hour law, we can publish the fact that no fight nor even a thought of one will be on in this city, for the employers are unanimously in favor of granting the hours and complying with International Typographical Union regulations. So you can credit the capital city of California as an eight-hour city, and we will endeavor to keep the good work up.

I desire to state here that the unanimity with which the employing printers' association of this city acquiesced in the request of the committee of No. 46 for a signed contract not exceeding two years, is indeed worthy of emulation by business men who desire peace and harmony to prevail, when the questions at issue are presented in a spirit of fairness and honest purpose.

Good fellowship was quite noticeable at this meeting of employers and representatives of employes. In January, 1906, No. 46 will observe the law with an enthusiastic membership and a healthy treasury.

NOTES.

In printorial circles here we have men who can be numbered among the hardest workers for union conditions that ever graced the walks of Sacramento, or held situations in political or private circles. Many are gifted with talents that some of the "great men" of the day might well envy. To enumerate, we have poets, lawyers, politicians, editors, "bookmakers," members of the various "bars," etc.

A. J. Dalton, jr., president of No. 46, also president of the federated trades council, has been admitted to practice law by the court of appeals. His first case was defending an injunction suit brought by a tailor who had been declared unfair.

Tom Cody, our busy secretary, has earned an enviable reputation as a "booster," for when he goes out to get a crowd he "gets all that's coming."

The two machine operators at the state printing office, Luke Alvord and Clint Van Allen, have accepted situations in the metropolis.

Ed Prior has issued the second number of his humorous pictorial publication, "Siftings," and the paper is a paying proposition already.

Genial (General) Jerry Galvin, he of Philippine fame, ex-president of No. 21, and ex-delegate to the International Typographical Union, is reading proof in the state printery. He varies the strenuousness of "official" life by dashing off a few stanzas of poetry for "Siftings," and denying the imputation that he is Sacramento's "Beau Brummel." ED WILSON.

WASHINGTON, PA.

We appreciated the copy of "Pages From the Past," received from "Author Joe Washington (D. C.) Saunders." Knowing "Joe" as we did on the old St. Louis Republic, and in the Holiday Street Hotel, Baltimore, Md. (near Kelly's 400), it is safe to testify that the book does contain "truthful tales of a traveling typo going lower case." We predict good sales for the publication (once known).

The Washburn-Crosby Milling Company's products are getting their "desserts" in this city—in the central trades union and No. 456.

Using the editorial "We," we wish to thank Louis F. Fuchs, publisher of The Stick, a craft journal at St. Louis, Mo., for sample copies of the publication, which is certainly a "Stickler" for up-to-date typography. The copies have been circulated among the "boys" at large.

The Donora Daily News, in this jurisdiction, last month ordered a brand new newspaper press of the latest improved pattern, along with a new assortment of type. The Daily News now expects to turn out one of the neatest dailies in the valley. Since J. E. McKenney took charge of that paper it has showed noticeable improvements from day to day. In Mr. McKenney, with "Charley" Lewis, his foreman, the International Typographical Union has friends, the new editor being an ex-member of "Big 6" (New York), and the foreman an oldtime compositor on the Pittsburg Leader.

The oldest newspaper of the world, the Tsing Rao, published at Peking (China), is about to celebrate the fourteenth centennial of its foundation. Notwithstanding its long career the paper has never found it necessary to change the form of its publication, and is the same today as 1,400 years ago. Probably there are some members at the Home who can recall subbin' on this sheet? Sort 'o syndicating-like? Always working for each other's interests.

Digitized by Google

The local central trades assembly is down on the list for the advancement of the city to the extent of $100—two shares. No. 456 is represented in this body by two members.

Some more "coin of the community" is being raised here for the Cummings memorial fund. Let the good work proceed.

"St." Nicholas Bader is back to his winter quarters at Frank J. ("Pony") Judson's job office, where he will be "at home" to all friends every evening of the week. Although Nick is a month earlier in arriving, as the holiday season is a month off, he is, nevertheless, welcomed by us all. As "we go to Indianapolis" he is engaged in job composition at the Journal job rooms, regardless of his nearing the eighty-year mark.

A visitor to ye correspondent last month, whom we had not seen for ten years, was Thomas ("Tommy") Stevens. Approaching, Friend Tommy says: "Hello! Billy, where did I see ye last—on de Koast, naw, it was in Bos-ting!" Whereupon I asked Tom if he had recently come from the Woodriver country, Idaho. There was one good printer, well known and appreciated, from that country, and he was "Woodriver Bill,"—good and true in unionism, you bet.

The attention of all readers of this bit of correspondence is called to the article in the October number of Men and Women, published in Cincinnati, on "The Modern Slaughter of the Innocents," by Owen R. Lovejoy, of the national child labor committee. In the article he says child labor is increasing every year, and that we employ today, to help clothe and feed us, an army of children unprecedented in the history of civilized nations. Men and Women is deserving of reading by all members of the craft—both union and non-union.

WILLIAM CLARK BLACK.

RACINE, WIS.

"It's All Over Now."

On September 18 No. 324 cinched the argument in favor of the eight-hour day and a very substantial increase in salary. The increase in the scale went into effect Monday, September 24, and the eight-hour day will be effective on and after January 1, 1906, for a period of one year from September 24. The scale committee certainly was a busy bunch for a few weeks previous to the time of signing up the contracts, having been compelled on two occasions to hold all-night sessions with the representatives of the different offices, but there was not a complaint heard from the committee on account of "working overtime" on a job of so much importance. Every demand made by the union, with the exception of a concession of $1 per week in the machine scale, was granted, and when it is considered that we gained a 30 per cent increase in wages besides the eight-hour day, all will agree that it was a glorious victory.

On Saturday evening, September 30, the "finishing touches" were put on the new contract when No. 324 tendered a banquet to its members and employing printers and reporters at the Hotel Budar.

The banquet was in celebration of the eleventh anniversary of Racine Typographical Union No. 324, and was for the purpose of celebrating the eight-hour day, which has been granted by owners of Racine printing houses. It was a most successful and interesting event, and brought employer and employe closer together, and such banquets will no doubt now become annual events.

S. E. Farnham, president of the local union, acted as toastmaster. Letters of great regret were received from the president of the International Union and from Postmaster H. J. Smith and Fred C. Bliss, who many years ago worked in printing shops in this city. Toasts were responded to by W. S. Goodland, Frank Starbuck, Phil Luker, W. M. Foster, all employers of printers, and the remarks of all showed the desire to have pleasant relations exist between employer and employe. S. E. Farnham, president of the local union, in his address, told of the success of the union in Racine and of the courteous manner in which the printers were treated by the employers.

Music was furnished by the Schulte orchestra and the Acme quartet, composed of Robert Williams, William Owens, George Schweitzer and John Williams.

The annual election of officers took place at the last meeting, and the roster is as follows: S. E. Farnham, president; J. M. Cooney, vice-president; F. A. Parker, secretary-treasurer; James McCleary, recording secretary; W. A. Hall, reading clerk; A. C. Wagner, sergeant-at-arms.

President Farnham was the recipient of a gold watch and beautiful fob chain as an evidence of appreciation for his untiring labors in the interest of the union during the past five years as its president. F. A. Parker made the presentation.

W. A. HALL.

Banquets have been tendered in Racine during recent years, but none ever excelled the eleventh anniversary banquet of Racine Typographical Union No. 324, given at the Hotel Budar, October 8. Committees had made every arrangement possible and not a detail was lacking. Besides the members of the union, there were present as guests of honor the managers and editorial force of the different newspapers of the city and job offices also. In all there were forty. An excellent menu was provided. After this had been disposed of, various guests were called on for remarks. S. E. Farnham, president of No. 324, acted as toastmaster. At the termination of the speech-making the president spoke of the struggle for decent hours now going on in various parts of the International jurisdiction. He congratulated both the local union and the employers on the peaceful settlement that had been reached in Racine. It was early in the morning when the banquet ended, and it will pass into history as a pleasant and successful event.

At the last regular meeting of the union the annual election of officers took place. For the sixth consecutive time President S. E. Farnham was selected to preside over our deliberations. As a testimonial of the high esteem in which he is held he was presented with a solid gold watch and fob.

Digitized by Google

Arrangements which have been made by the wives and daughters of the members of the union for a series of winter entertainments were announced at the meeting, and met with the hearty approval of all the members. These affairs are held at the homes of the various members, and in years past have proven some of the most enjoyable occasions of the season.

It seems to the members of No. 324 that we have accomplished something out of the ordinary in the fight for the eight-hour day. Our old scale called for $9 per week for hand composition and $11 for machine composition, and the nine-hour day. Our new scale, just signed by every office in town, calls for $12 per week for hand composition and $16 and $17 for machine composition, and the eight-hour day on January 1, 1906.

That's going some. F. A. PARKER.

VINCENNES, IND.

The eight-hour question here has aroused a great deal of inspiration among all trades, and every union man in the city is using his best efforts in behalf of No. 395 in the fight being waged against the Knox County Democrat, which is rated as an incubator for unfair people. The city election caused a furor in the camp of the stalwarts, but every candidate and the committee have stood by the printers, having refused to announce their candidacy in the paper and declined to have cards printed in said office, and every card circulated bore the union label. The battle has been a business one from start to finish, and there will be no let-up until the battle has been won and eight hours are securely in vogue January 1, 1906. The proprietors here went so far as to bar the writer from working in their offices because he saw fit to push matters and bring out the true facts in the fight. It did no good, yours truly fought bravely on, regardless of the bar. It only goes to show what typothetæ members will do when they can not go at it on the square and on the level. We say eight hours, and we will have them on January 1, when the bells at the midnight hour will ring out: Eight hours! eight hours! eight hours!

The magnificent achievements secured already by the International Typographical Union, through the masterly efforts of President Lynch and Secretary Bramwood, only go to show what these tried and true officials can accomplish, despite the "knockers," for their knocks have become a boost. No. 395 is wholly in accord with the administration, and we expect to send a delegate to Colorado Springs at the next convention to substantiate the statement.

Hugo Miller, second vice-president of the International Typographical Union, was a visitor here Sunday, October 1.

The Labor News here has again changed hands, and this time it is believed for the best. The management is under Clarence Johnson as editor and manager, and Albert Charles, member of No. 395, as foreman. Both are hustlers, and have their hearts in the right place. Mr. Johnson is the author of the latest song hit, "My Indiana Mary."

JACK MAYES.

MOBILE, ALA.

Work in Mobile is very brisk, and in fact has been of the best for several months. For a while operators were in demand, but everything is working smoothly at present.

The Register office is, with Charley Rapier in charge, working to every advantage. "Joe" (Handsome) Schryver, chairman of the chapel, still continues to hold the good will of his brothers at heart. John J. Russell, who has been secretary of No. 27 for the past twelve years, is holding down a machine. He is a hard worker for the union.

The Item office is also working nicely, with Arthur Farrell as chairman of the chapel.

At the Herald, "Governor" Stone will be found grinding away at the same old seat of war. Milton J. Amos is at present in charge of the mechanical department, and well worthy of the trust.

Al D. Beasley, who for several months held down a machine on the Register at night, has resigned on account of his eyes, and has accepted a machine on the Herald, where he will be found for eight hours during the day.

At the Brisk Printing Company William Dillon will be found in charge, and Charles Brant, treasurer of the central trades council, is chairman of the chapel.

The Powers Printery is in charge of Edgar T. White, president of No. 27, with Joseph Vautrot, brother of the famous "Gus," as chairman of the chapel.

The job plant of W. W. Gill is one of the largest in Mobile, and there is no doubt but that the eight-hour law will go into effect in that office on January 1. E. Dukehart, an oldtimer, and well known all over the country, is in charge. Among those working there are J. J. Caine, several times a delegate to the International Typographical Union, George Green, a native, Peter Vautrot, a brother of the famous "Gus," and S. J. York, another old Mobilian of good character.

W. J. Patterson is still proprietor of a fine job plant, and is quoted as saying that he will conform to the demand of the typos for eight hours, even if all the other offices in the town do not. He denounces the action of the United Typothetæ in the strongest terms.

The Commercial plant is also doing nicely. Bert Hendey was recently appointed chairman of that chapel.

J. E. Duval & Son's printery is doing some good work. They have recently added a linotype to their mechanical department.

Reports from the job plants of W. H. Taylor, Eugene Hawes & Co., and others all proclaim business of the best.

After a great struggle we have at last secured an allied printing trades council, and hereafter the label of that body will be substituted for the two separate labels that have heretofore been appearing on work of union origin.

No. 27 is represented in the central trades council by five of its members, T. A. White and Celus L. Grigsby being chosen at the last regular meeting to fill out the unexpired terms of two who resigned.

Digitized by Google

Eyre Damer, delegate to the last convention, held at Toronto, made his report at the last meeting, which proved satisfactory to those present. He desires to thank the printers at Toronto for the courtesy shown him while there. He reports the trip one to be long remembered.

Eight hours in all the offices here is a certainty, as there is no other way out of it. Scabs or rats in this town do not stand a ghost of a show.

The foreman of the Register, Charley Rapier, is in receipt of a communication from Poole Brothers, of Chicago, Ill., in which they make an urgent and very lengthy appeal for non-union men. Whatever led them to think that Mobile produced or kept in stock that class of printers we are at loss to know.

And yet they have a full force working steadily, and things are in no way hindered by the present strike in that place.

It makes us pause for laughing.

In the first place they can never expect to get a strikebreaker from Mobile, as they do not tarry here more than a few hours; and second, Mr. Rapier is a man of principle, as are all the other members of No. 27, and their communication or any similar ones will not establish anything but the greatest contempt for them.

The eight-hour law must and will prevail.

CELUS L. GRIGSBY.

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS.

At present time, after nine weeks, we are still out, but the prospects now are brighter than ever, since Organizer Fennessy, of Los Angeles, is on the field, and hopes are entertained that ere this article reaches the fraternity everything will be amicably adjusted, and the boys who have so nobly stood by the cause of unionism will all be back at work.

The election of officers took place the first Sunday of this month, and a more unanimous election of officers has never been known in the history of San Antonio, there being but one nomination for each office, and each one was elected by a rising vote; which shows that there is no dissension whatever in No. 172, as has been reported by the enemy.

The new eight-hour committee, appointed by President Hoefgen, T. J. Derby, James Maginnis and Eugene Nordhaus, and President Hoefgen ex officio, are hard at work and ably assisting Organizer Fennessy, of Los Angeles, in our struggle in this city, and from now on the battle royal will take place until our flag flies to victory, and so it shall be. Organizer Fennessy, after a four-hour conference with C. V. Milligan, president of the typothetæ, left immediately for Galveston to participate in a conference there.

Walter Peteet, formerly chairman of the eight-hour committee, has moved with his family to Dallas, where he is to edit a farmers' journal.

E. NORDHAUS.

HOLYOKE, MASS.

Well, if the October JOURNAL was not the largest ever! Not only was it large, owing to the supplement, but it was as good as it was large. I have put in a good many hours reading mine, and have not laid it aside yet. I am glad, also, to know that there are other members in this jurisdiction who peruse its columns with some degree of thoroughness each month. It may seem a trifle superfluous to have much to say about THE JOURNAL and the attention it deserves from the membership at large, but right here I want to say that, in my opinion, there is too little thought given to the affairs of others in our line; things that there is a way of being interested in without necessarily interfering with other people's "business." Any printer can pick up a TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL and spend hours in digesting its contents.

The eight-hour day is without a doubt a winner. By all accounts there is a strong current of public opinion setting in, in favor of our contention that eight hours is the proper workday.

Get busy with the label. It appears that some employers think that the "open shop," so called, is better than the "closed shop." Now it is up to us to show them that such is not the case. There are, I am glad to say, employers who recognize the benefits of a "closed shop." The printers themselves, it seems to me, ought to be able to see the advantages, especially at this time, that the closed shop has for them. If they do perceive this advantage it seems inexplicable that they should hesitate to agitate the use of the label.

Before this has appeared I expect to have attended the eight-hour conference in Boston on October 23. It is expected that a large number of unions will be represented, the topic, eight hours, being of especial interest at this time.

The effort of the typothetæ to forestall our eight-hour-day plans by commencing trouble prior to January 1, 1906, seems to be up against it. Their hand was called, and in the showdown they failed to make the headway they anticipated. They evidently relied on "buying our weak-kneed members," but the number who so far forgot their honor as to become traitors has, happily, been small. The eight-hour day is no longer in the doubtful column; it is now conceded by good authorities, well and widely-read thinking men, that the eight-hour day is without doubt the logical workday, and is here to stay, and time and money spent in fighting it is money thrown away; money that would go a long way toward making good to the employers the 15 to 20 per cent increase they claim the inauguration of the eight-hour day will mean to them.

In talking to those of prominence in the strike in Springfield the other day, I learned that the chances are very favorable for the union's cause. No men are deserting, although, to their shame be it said, a few who were members of No. 216 at one time have shown so little principle and honor as to have violated a sacred obligation to accept an individual contract or its equivalent. The stigma of ratting is liable to remain with them always. A couple of these men I had known personally and had reason to believe that they would exhibit more principle, that they would hold their obligation to the International Typographical Union more sacred than to thus seek to injure those who would have, but for this offense, done anything in their power to aid them, had they been in trouble. Let us hope that they will, before it is too late, see the error of their way and make amends so far as they can.

Digitized by Google

La Justice, a French publication, has appeared with the label. It is a power in the world, in spite of the efforts of employers' and manufacturers' associations.

Remember that the Nugent House and McAuslan & Wakelin are still on the unfair list of the central labor union. Also leave the National Biscuit Company's crackers and cookies and the different brands of flour of the Washburn-Crosby Milling Company alone. They are unfair. Buy label goods in every line that is possible. If one store has not the article you wish, with the label on, go to another.

Messrs. Raymond and Edwards, formerly members of No. 253, were working in Springfield at the time of the strike and are now out, as is also John Hennessey, who lived in Springfield but was until recently employed in Holyoke and was a member of this union, having been initiated here within the year.

How the small employing printers can have any love for the typothetæ is by me. A case in point: An employer of Northampton has two linotypes, with girls to operate them; a strike in Springfield, and one of his female operators is induced to leave and accept work in a struck office in Springfield. Now if that man had had a union office this would not have happened, as no union man would have accepted a situation struck by a brother member. How can this employer have any love for those who, professing to be his best friends, rob him of his means of production and thus cripple his business? It would have been "just simply terrible" if a union had been to blame for anything like this.

Members with an active interest in their organization will do well to study pages 69, 70, 71, 72 and 73 of the supplement in October JOURNAL. I hope the next time such a list is published No. 253 may have a line of leaders in the arrears column instead of figures, however insignificant those figures may be.

Keep abreast of the times. Read THE JOURNAL carefully. You have no idea what you are missing if you don't. THE JOURNAL is each month cram full of interesting things to printers. Do you ever read the correspondence from other towns? I find it not only interesting but instructive; it helps to broaden our view, and taken all together, makes us better men and women and consequently better printers—and unionists.

At the September meeting of No. 253 the members present turned down a proposition to increase our dues from 60 to 75 cents. I don't wish to be unnecessarily harsh, but it certainly beats me how any one receiving the scale we do can be unwilling, for any cause, to pay an additional 15 cents a month. A goodly number of the members received a $1.50-a-week increase by our new scale, signed April 15, last. Reckoning four weeks to a month they would receive $6 a month more than formerly. To begrudge 15 cents of that to the union treasury, so that we might be in a position to carry on our business with more effect, is past my comprehension. If a few of those present had been able to see the matter differently the motion would have prevailed. It is to be expected that this proposition will be brought up again in the near future, at which time it is to be hoped it will prevail. A union with a large treasury, safely invested, is like a nation with a large army or navy or both, in one particular at least—with physical and financial strength back of them they are able to preserve peace. Many unions during times of stress have gone to pieces on financial rocks.

E. S. ALDEN.

TAKE A BOOK ALONG.

The desire of the members of the International Typographical Union is to help make the Home more homelike, more comfortable and more restful, if such is possible. It occurs to the writer that next August the opportunity will come when at least those who will journey to Colorado Springs can add their mite to make the big institution more desirable—in a literary way.

Let each of the delegates, ex-delegates and visitors who will attend the 1906 convention present to the Home library an interesting book. It need not be an expensive one to make the gift more appreciated, but let it be by a noted author, an eminent writer, a philosopher, a scientist, or what not, just so that it will be a credit to the library and pleasing to the inmates.

Of course the first thought almost will be the possibility of duplicates, but between this time and next August some plan can be devised by which there will be very few, if any, duplicates. If one-half the number are at Colorado Springs that visited Toronto, or even many less than one-half, the library will be well stocked.

That the suggestion will appeal to the generous spirit of the average printerman goes without saying, and it is hoped that the readers of THE JOURNAL, and especially correspondents, will thoroughly digest the proposition. It is one way by which the library at the Home can be made the grandest and most interesting in the country, and the inmates will be benefited and they will appreciate its worth.

Let us talk the matter over.

JAMES MONROE KREITER.

Washington, D. C.

"A WOMAN rushed into the telegraph office the other day," says an exchange, "and informed the operator that her husband had gone to New York to get a banner for the Sunday school, but she had forgotten to tell him the inscription, and how large the banner was to be. She then wrote a telegram containing the needed information and handed it to the operator. It read: 'My dear Frank, Savoy Hotel, New York City: Unto us a child is born, eight feet long and two feet wide.' The husband is still in the city, and it is rumored he isn't coming back."

Digitized by Google

OUR EUROPEAN LETTER.

GERMANY.

In all the world there is no more interesting spot for the touring printer to visit than Mainz, the quaint old city on the Rhine where the art of printing had its birth, for whoever may have really discovered the system of casting movable types as an improvement over the laborious carving of characters or whole pages upon blocks, it certainly was in Mainz that the men whom we designate in English as Gutenberg, Fust and Schoeffer first elevated printing to the dignity of a practical trade. Mainz credits Gutenberg with the discovery, and to him the memorial in that city is dedicated; Frankfort has erected a monument to the three early workers, while Holland claims that Lourens Caster, in Haarlem, was the first printer. The specimens of book work preserved from the early efforts of the Mainz printers are surprisingly neat and clean, and are not at all unlike similar printing today, but the beauty of the hand-lettered and illumined volumes which printing displaced can never be approached by the users of type and machinery. Outside of its typographical associations Mainz is a very interesting city, for a walk up the narrow, crooked streets which Gutenberg trod, and a visit to the old cathedral which stood there when he and Fust were co-laborers, 450 years ago, is a fitting end to a trip up the glorious Rhine. Partly through a scattering caused by religious prosecution, the knowledge of printing spread rapidly over Europe, and by some it is said that the first city in what is now the United States, where the trade was known, was Manila, P. I.

In these days of rapid transportation and close communication between countries of the civilized world, the best ideas from each land are quickly grasped and utilized by its neighbors, so that there is outwardly not a great deal of difference between the printing offices of the large cities of Europe and those of America. This fact came rather as a surprise to me during a recent visit in Germany, for there one would expect to see, at least in job rooms, a great difference from the type and styles of composition to which we are accustomed. On the contrary, the major portion of job printing in that land bears a striking resemblance to that produced by our printeries, such well-known faces as De Vinne, with the addition of a few necessary characters, being freely used. This is not so true, however, in some of the southern states, such as Bavaria, where many printers adhere to strictly German faces of type. Some of the weeklies and magazines have adopted Latin faces for body-type, but the dailies are published mostly in the older German faces, even to a large portion of their display ads. The body type of the newspapers is generally larger than that which our papers use—say from brevier to long primer, with column widths up to twenty ems—and this, coupled with the large amount of display advertising, results in the linotype plants as a rule being small. I was told by a dealer in linotypes that while there were "more than a thousand" machines in Germany, the largest individual plant was about twenty. Many of the plants are run two shifts, the papers coming out in perhaps three editions—morning, noon and evening—the morning and evening editions being under different names. Their telegraph service is fair, but many of the papers devote a portion of the front page to editorial matter and fiction—not such fiction as some papers in other lands delight to publish, but short or continued stories by lesser authors. The continental is not, as a rule, in such a hurry as his American friends, and likes to read his paper at leisure, much as we would a weekly. Almost everywhere in Germany the papers are delivered by women on foot, and there is not that mad rush of automobiles, horses, bicycles and boys in the effort to put the latest "extry" on the streets. The street sales are made largely from small newsstands. Of the larger book printeries, Leipzig contains a good number, but there are some very fine offices in Berlin, two of the daily papers having especially complete plants for the production of illustrated weekly papers and general commercial work. The German art and lithographic printing is perhaps the best in the world.

The linotypes used are constructed at the Berlin factory. In construction the German linotype is almost identical with the Brooklyn machine, but the characters are differently arranged on the keyboard. The familiar pie line which has puzzled so many readers of our papers causes no trouble in Germany—instead, the mysterious word is eniatx, these being the characters of the first row of the keyboard. The letters e and n are much used in the German language, and two channels of each are provided in the magazine. Thus there is necessarily one blank key on the machine, there being but the one extra channel in the magazine. The American form of two-magazine machine has not been placed on the German market, but many papers use the two letter matrices for setting heads. While there is much excellent printing machinery constructed in Germany, at present the factories excel in some forms of bindery machinery, those for book sewing and leather trimming particularly. Type is cast on a point system, but in name, as well as the size of point, there is a difference from the American standard. The linotype output is measured by letters instead of ems.

There is no opening for the American or English linotype operator in Germany, the few machines on which English composition is done having the matrices cut to run according to the German style of keyboard, so it would be necessary to learn to operate all over again. There are, however, several shops where English composition is done by hand, mainly on guide and educational books. Some of the largest of these plants are in Leipzig, and there is an office in Darmstadt where typograph machines are used, and some English composition done. Formerly there was an office in Heidelberg which did English composition, but this has been discontinued.

The German union, Verband der Deutschen Buchdrucker, is strong, having on January 1, 1905, more than 40,500 members. It gained last year nearly 10 per cent in membership. At the time of my visit there were not very many printers out of work, compared to some of the other European countries. On newspapers, while there are no seven-day papers, many of the morning dailies publish large Sunday morning issues, but do not appear on Monday morning, the next issue being Monday noon or Tuesday morning. In many of the smaller cities the scale to us would seem low, $6.35 a week being paid for job printers, and about $9 a week for day linotype operators. This does not sound large, but while wages are low in all trades, one sees, I think, less evidence of actual poverty in Germany than in almost any other country in the world. The houses of the working classes are neat and clean, and their children decently dressed. The necessities of living, as a rule, are reasonable in price; but meat is almost as high as in the United States—as high as 18 cents a pound being asked for beef. This price is prohibitive to some, and has resulted in an increased consumption of horse meat. Bread generally is cheap, rye, grey and black being more used than white bread, and all being very palatable and wholesome. Though beer is much in evidence, and is consumed by almost every one, there is very little drunkenness or debauchery. The great secret of German living seems to be that nothing is wasted. A small fraction of the heat which goes up the English workingman's chimney from his open grate would serve in the curious terra cotta and porcelained stoves of that land to warm the German laborer's entire house.

Digitized by Google

The hours of many workers are long—sixty to sixty-six or more for the full week—and this gives rise to a system of two or three intermissions during the day. In Berlin my roommate was a young native employed in a large factory. Arising at 6 A. M., he would have a cup of coffee with rye bread and lard (butter was beyond his means), and would carry a second breakfast of bread and wurst with him. Commencing work at 7 o'clock, he would continue until 8:30, when the first interval of half an hour occurred. At this time he would go to one of the many breakfast rooms which abound everywhere, order a half-litre (four-fifths pint) of beer, costing about 3½ cents, and eat his bread and wurst. At noon came a hot dinner, and at night a warm supper. In some places there is a short intermission permitted in the afternoon. Eleven hours is the maximum workday for women employed in factories, and according to the latest available report there were about 850,000 female employes in the country, of whom more than half work ten hours or less, the remainder between ten and eleven hours. In the printing trades 25,000 women were employed, almost all of whom worked ten hours or less.

The police supervision is very strict. If one stops in a private family even a few days he must report and register with the police department, notifying them whenever he moves. This seems oppressive, but it results in the police having a record of each of the fifty-eight million or more inhabitants of the country. The only way in which a tourist can avoid the trouble of registering in each town is by stopping entirely in hotels.

While Germany is a land of natural beauty, of history, and of romance, there is yet a more practical side which appeals to the modern visitor, for in that country government ownership of public utilities has reached a magnitude hardly approached by any other land in the world, though in some smaller countries public ownership is more complete. In this land, smaller than Texas, there are over 30,000 miles of railway, all but about 2,500 miles owned by the governing states. This system of roads is the second in the world in size, and under government ownership has reached a high state of efficiency. All the main lines are double-track and completely equipped with block signals, and the percentage of accidents is very low when compared with the appalling totals reached in our own land. There are few grade crossings in cities, the lines being elevated, as a rule, on approaching city limits. Passenger fares are low, the traffic being divided into four classes, and rates based as follows: First class, 8 pf. per kilometer; second, 6 pf.; third, 4 pf., and fourth, 2 pf., which figures may be translated as approximately 2.51 cents, 1.88 cents, 1.255 cents, and .63 cent per mile. The train service is excellent, but fourth-class passengers are not carried on the limited trains. The first three classes differ mainly in finishings and fittings of the cars, but the fourth-class stands by itself in many particulars. The coaches of this class are built with seats at end or side, with an open space in the center, and are intended primarily to enable small farmers to bring their produce to city markets. The products of small farms are generally carried to market in large baskets strapped to the shoulders, and not infrequently it falls to the lot of women to take these great loads to the early markets, for vegetables are not delivered at the customer's door, as in our country, but are displayed for sale in central squares in the cities, to which intending customers may come. Except in the early morning, when passengers must expect to ride in a great mixture of cabbages, turnips, chickens and fruit, traveling fourth-class is not, as a rule, disagreeable, and the coaches are generally filled with well-dressed people. Fourth-class passengers can not check their baggage, but must carry it in the coaches with them, but as fifty-six pounds is the limit of free baggage in the other classes, it matters little. Freight rates seem higher than the average American rate, but this is somewhat deceptive, for in the United States it is the very liberal rates enjoyed by the large shippers of beef, oil, coal and ore which bring the general average down, while not infrequently the farmer must pay "all the traffic will bear."

The telegraph and telephone lines are also under government control, and the service is very good. The telegraph rate is about 1⅙ cents per word (minimum ten words) in Germany, where the distance, of course, would rarely exceed 800 miles. Most European postoffices seem more up-to-date than the United States postal department, in that, besides the regular mail services, they have also parcel post and savings bank departments. The parcel post does a good portion of the business handled by our express companies, and at a great saving to the shipper. The German postoffice is superior to the American in the rapid collection, dispatch and delivery of mails, partly owing to the fact that distances are short and the cities very compactly built. Pneumatic tubes are extensively used in the larger postoffices for transmission of mail to sub-stations. I did not see a single mail box from which less than five collections a day were made, even in towns of 20,000 or less.

Digitized by Google

The street-car systems are almost all owned by the respective cities. Fares are low, sometimes being graduated by distance, and sometimes being a flat rate for all distances. The systems are up-to-date, in some places combining the trolley and storage battery plans, no poles being erected in the center of the city, but the cars being propelled with storage battery or motor through the heart of the city, and utilizing the trolley in the less crowded portions, where poles and wires can be placed.

Most European and colonial towns own large bath and wash houses. These constitute an important branch of public ownership in Germany, where excellent plunge and tub baths can be found at prices from 5½ cents to 11 cents. The larger cities also own their leading theaters and opera houses.

SCOTLAND.

Some of the European typographical unions combine benefit features with their union work. One of the most advanced upon benefit lines is the Scottish Typographical Association, a union of more than 4,000 members, whose headquarters are in Glasgow. This union has out-of-work benefits, sick benefits, funeral payments, removal grants, emigration grants, superannuation grants and strike funds, besides contributing occasionally to affiliated trades. The union had at the end of 1904, 3,976 members, of whom 663 were pressmen. For this membership the following sums were dispersed during the year: Strike and lockout compensation, $166.96; out-of-work benefits, $5,592.88; sick benefits, $8,245.71; funeral payments, $2,179.20; removal grants, $571.36; emigration grants, $343.68; superannuation, $7,939.89, and small grants to other unions in need. Such a variety of benefits of course give rise to a considerable amount of bookkeeping, and rules have been formulated to prevent the various branches of the union being imposed upon. In most of the benefit schemes, one must be a member and pay dues at least twelve months before participating. Out-of-work members are allowed $1.44 a week; sick members are allowed $2.40 a week for the first thirteen weeks, and lesser amounts thereafter, but one can not be a beneficiary of both schemes at the same time. The superannuation scheme amounts to a pension, in which members sixty-five years of age may retire unconditionally and draw, if thirty-five years in the union, $2.40 a week; for thirty years' membership, $1.92 a week, and twenty-five years, $1.44 a week. To draw these full amounts the member must retire from the printing business, but may engage in any other pursuit he sees fit. The funeral allowance is graduated for various terms of membership, from $9.60 for one year, up to $38.40 for ten years, $48 for fifteen years, and $72 for twenty years' membership. The emigration grant applies to those leaving the country; it is $1.92 for each year's membership up to a maximum grant of $24. If a member moves to another city in his own country he is entitled to 96 cents for each year's membership up to a maximum grant of $14.40. The strike allowance is the full scale for five weeks, and $4.80 a week for the next five weeks. To keep up these funds, four cents per member per week is collected for each of the four leading funds—protective, sick, out-of-work and superannuation, and the sum of about 25 cents a week in all is generally sufficient to cover running expenses of the union. These are by no means exorbitant dues.

Of the individual unions which form the Scottish Association, Glasgow is the largest, having on January 1, of this year, 1,640 members. The scale there is: Linotypers, $12 a week of forty-eight hours, night; $9.60 for fifty hours, day; job men, $8.16 for fifty hours. Many of the linotype men are on piece work at a rate of about 12½ cents per thousand, and work shorter hours than are given above. The next largest Scottish union is in Edinburgh, but in that city female labor has seriously affected the trade. It has been found impossible to unionize these women, and they are working for very low wages. The daily papers in Edinburgh are mostly non-union, but are set by male rodents. The job scale is $7.68 for fifty-two and one-half hours, and there is, unfortunately, little demand for a union linotype scale. For other Scottish cities the job scales run from $6.48 to $8.16, and hours are fifty to fifty-two and one-half, while the linotype scale runs from $6.96 to $10.50, and hours from forty-two to fifty-two and one-half. Some of the unions have a piece scale, and the men earn fair wages. The fight to preserve the union is a more difficult one in Scotland than in America, for there is little public interest in unions, and no union label. Machines have not displaced hand labor in job rooms to the extent which they have in the States, but there are some very large linotype plants in these northern cities. In Glasgow the Morning Herald has just installed thirty-two new linotypes, the Morning Record has fourteen, which are run two shifts, the Evening News has fifteen, the Evening Citizen seventeen, and the Evening Times uses eighteen of the Herald machines. Large plants of machines are necessary because practically all advertising goes on the machine, very little in the way of display type being used. The Glasgow papers are among the largest and best in Great Britain.

For much of the information relative to the benefit features of the Scottish Association I am indebted to John Templeton, secretary of that organization, who kindly furnished me with copies of the last annual reports. In speaking of Germany, I have only attempted to give a sketch of such features as are apt to impress a casual observer, and do not profess to have learned all about so large a country in the few short months I spent there. G. I. BRAYTON.

Liverpool, England.

Digitized by Google

ROBERT TOULOUSE MURRAY.

At a regular meeting of Halifax Typographical Union No. 130 the following resolutions were unanimously passed:

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has removed from our midst our friend and brother, Robert T. Murray; and,

Whereas, It is fitting that we should show our appreciation of the many good qualities of one who was so well known to us all; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this union here records its esteem of its departed brother and sincerely mourns his death; and, be it further

Resolved, That this union does convey to the family of the deceased its heartfelt sorrow and deepest sympathy, while they bow with submission to Him who doeth all things well; and, be it further

Resolved, That our charter be appropriately draped for a period of thirty days, and that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this union in memory of our late brother.

Mr. Murray died on the 27th of August, after a lengthy illness, in the sixty-fourth year of his age.

ROBERT T. MURRAY.

The following is from the Halifax Acadian Recorder:

Mr. Murray was perhaps one of the best known of the local government officials and among the longest in the service of the province. He had a reputation for attending to the duties of his office thoroughly. There was nothing slipshod that passed through his hands. He enjoyed a high reputation for efficiency. He served his time as an apprentice in the office of the Sun, under Ritchie and Nugent. He afterwards went to the Journal with Mr. Penny. He remained with the Journal until the tri-weekly Evening Express was started in 1860 by Compton and Bowden, when he entered their employ as a compositor. He was at the case for about two years, when he became a reporter and stayed with the paper in that capacity until it ceased to exist in 1873. He then entered the employ of the Herald, and left that paper in 1878 to become the Queen's Printer. This office he held up to about ten years ago, when, although performing the same duties, his title was changed to Deputy Queen's Printer.

In dealing with the printers in connection with his office, Mr. Murray was ever fair and enjoyed their friendship and esteem to a marked extent.

He was one of the charter members of No. 130; was first president, and held the office of secretary for many years; was also a delegate to the meetings of the International Typographical Union at Boston and Philadelphia in 1875 and 1876. On many occasions Mr. Murray was the recipient of tokens of esteem and good will from the craft in Halifax.

He was a member of the Sons of Temperance, and for one year was grand worthy patriarch for the province. He was on several occasions a delegate to the national grand division.

Mr. Murray was most charitable and kindly in his disposition, and no one at all deserving of charity was turned away empty-handed. His memory will be held in great esteem by many in the city and province, and his death be sincerely mourned by a large circle. His office in the Province building was a center, and many who have enjoyed his fellowship there will miss friendly chats had with him when business duties did not engross his attention—for he permitted nothing to interfere with his work.

His funeral was one of the largest seen in Halifax for some time. The Halifax Typographical Union attended in a body. G. H. MERLIN.

Halifax, N. S.

AN EARLY-DAY STRIKE—NEVER CALLED OFF.

It was in the early '60's that a friction transpired between the union printers of Boston and the daily newspaper publishers of that city. The trouble arose from what evidently was a preconcerted move on the part of the newspaper publishers to disrupt or destroy the union; and might have been entirely successful except for a few of the craft so obstinate and tenacious of principle that they would not acknowledge defeat even if they were starved. Our members then numbered only about 300, and in the city, approximately, were as many more printers who had never joined a union. The grievance lay in so fixing each office's regulation as to disagree in some particular with every other, thus placing the union men at the point of "no scale" or "no time." Standing time, or "waiting" after 9 P. M. had been recognized and allowed for a long time in the morning paper offices, and the attempted abolishment of pay for waiting was one of the stick points, as well as a different rate per 1,000—some offering all asked for and others this, that and t'other thing. The attempts to come to amicable understandings were spurned by the papers, which were then (war times) in full feather of prosperity. Accordingly, after many lurid union meetings, it was decided to strike. And a strike, under the circumstances, as I look back on it forty years ago, was one of the boldest, if not the boldest, move ever made by a labor union. We had no money in our treasury; our treasurer, "Honest John" Leighton, who had served for several years, when called for, could only say there were no funds. He had loaned to a son-in-law all that had been in his care, and s.-i.-l. had failed to make a pile! So the matter stood, and the question was "stand pat" or back down and give up—beat. "Quite a few" of our number, either wisely or otherwise, slumped from the stand taken by them when they took and subscribed to the "obligation," and consequently became vermin in the eyes of the invincibles. It was a sorry plight for the boys to face whose motto was "no surrender." The papers heaped obloquy upon the printers—the unreasonable wretches who would run the business and demand unreasonable things of the concerns that beneficently gave them a support. Their advertisements for compositors were in scare type, some at the heads of their editorial pages—offering big prices, permanent positions and other blandishments. For some time the papers failed to fill and publish the usual quota of matter, and in several instances clergymen, and at least one judge, who sometime in their boyhoods had juggled with types, offered their sympathies and services to "help out."

Digitized by Google

As such things seemed to be carrying a prejudice unwarranted by the nature of the case to the public, I took it upon myself to issue statements of our side, and scourge some of the publishers in language plain, if not complimentary or polite. This continued some days, and daily meetings at the Sherman House brought out questions "What to do." Some applauded the published statements I had got out and circulated free on the streets; while others hoped something better might be done —say a paper. The upshot was that the shafts were pointed at me as the logical solution, and a committee of three—myself and two others—appointed to see what we could do. I found myself alone from the start, as my comrades excused themselves with the suggestion that they would be no good anyway. Well, I looked around and found an office where a real estate paper had been "set up," and bargained for its use, and in a day or two we issued the first number—named The Voice, devoted to labor and humanity. We had "timber" enough in the crowd for all departments: compositors, editors, etc., and so started the cart that brought us the experience to judge, in a way, the tendencies of character in the average man. The strike, its effect upon most strenuous upholders in our meetings, and their cowardly backdowns when it came to the push, gave a chill to us who knew not when we were beaten; and I wish to affirm my belief that there never was a strike unattended with a measure of disaster. In our case there were between twelve and twenty compositors, good men all, who, for weeks and months, worked and strove and starved in the fight against unequal odds—spent all the capital we had laid by—but little in the aggregate—and continually had to strike out and get what we could and where we could.

A few words in regard to The Voice and incidents will suffice to end what has already strung out too far. One after another were obliged to drop out of the paper, and some others dropped in to fill the gaps. The first, as I remember, was Alexander Troupe—exceptionally strong union man—who took upon himself the load to manage the affair, and continued at it for a while, when he fell out and was succeeded by a Mr. Twombly, who, I learned, sold some stock in the paper, but never succeeded in anything more than rubbing along for a time. Meantime I had been away for a year, job-working in Northampton, Mass., where, by selling my boat, I got funds to meet expense of moving. Mr. Troupe got into politics, and, if I mistake not, is now publishing a union newspaper in New Haven, Conn. I came back to Boston, finding war prices for everything but work I had misjudged in a country place. I was induced by "the boys" to again take a place among them—a new dress of type and a cylinder press having been acquired—how, I never knew—and a quite presentable paper was being issued. I stayed as long as I could again, and then took to job work and filling out by subbing Saturday nights on a Sunday paper. The Voice, daily evening edition, was, after a while, suspended, and a weekly edition only was published by a Mr. Blanchard, who had acted as editor for quite a while. It finally succumbed from non-support, after a life of about three years.

Incidents of the strike were many and would be of interest if I had space to enumerate; but I will only mention one or two: I was in the office one day that I had left—the Courier foremanship—when one of the interested parties on the paper said it was a bad thing for me to sacrifice my position for a set of blockhead compositors, and, taking from his pocket a roll of bills, counted off $200 and said, "Take that and go to work and the others will follow." I said "No." "Well," said he, "I'll double it," and counted off another $200, with the assurance that I "should be taken care of." I told him I wouldn't do it if they'd give me the whole concern! Another instance was the offer by the foreman of a "good position" on the Boston Journal if I would go to work there. A long while afterward, when the strike had petered out, I met one of the Journal comps on the street who wanted a sub and pressed his rule upon me to go up and fill his case. Rather doubtingly I went up, and was loudly requested by that same foreman to "step this way." Of course I did, and was there told this, as near as I can remember: "Mr. K——, personally I have no objection to you here, but, as you are the reputed author of articles attacking the character of the proprietor of this paper, I must object to your presence here." Of course the "hint" was sufficient. As a funny thing I will mention how a comp had come from Portland, Me., and gone to work on one of the papers—an old Boston man, by the way, whose love of "good things" was well known here—and a plot was concocted to get him back to the bosom of his family. Accordingly, escorted by three good fellows from one beverage mansion to others, a tour was made through various streets to the pier where lay the Portland boat, and one of the party said he saw aboard a female known to be adored by George, and they all wanted an interview, and George was also anxious. So aboard they all went. The elusive fair one departed down to a lower deck. Nothing daunted, G—— would follow while the others waited for him; but boat time was nearly up, and Mr. Portland man was in no state to know of time, and the boat went and himself with it. The next Sunday Leader contained a graphic account of the affair, which Mr. P—— man had a chance to read the next week when he came back to Boston.

Digitized by Google

Of the actors who participated in The Voice comedy some are now living, but the following named have departed for a sphere where, presumably, there are no need of disputes over scales or hours: Silas D. Hancock, William Knollin, Andrew McCombrey, John Mason, Henry L. Saxton, Isaac Cagman, Paul R. Seavey, and possibly others whom I do not now recall. And, so far as I know, that strike was never called off, or the deserters dealt with for their misdemeanors; they were simply "dropped" as no good, and went their ways in peace, and the union went on in a weakly way, but was still a union.

After a wait of years appeared a Boston daily with the union label, the American, which I hailed as the millennium for labor's cause, and asked myself if it was possible that the few seeds sown under such unfavorable circumstances forty years ago had taken root and materialized—surely such was fact; and was but the fulfillment of the prediction of William Knollin, whose optimistic perspicuity was founded upon the flight across the country, meteor-like, of Dennis Kearney from the "sand lots of San Francisco." And another thought now is anent casting bread upon the waters. In my own case, owing to age and illness, the accumulation of my long years of work are exhausted and I expected to be a city charge—poor house. But members of our union declare they will not permit it, and are contributing to my support. "The world do move."

Boston, Mass. ABRAM KEACH.

ALBANY, N. Y.

The one important matter of interest with us for the past month, of course, has been the eight-hour question. Its development all over the country wherever the initiative has been taken, has been watched with intense interest by our members. The newspapers have furnished very meager information, so far as other localities go, which shows a studied attitude on their part, for a question of so much general interest. The purpose of this attitude is clear. We opine that were the results of our efforts, inaugurated September 8, in behalf of the eight-hour day, to any appreciable degree less favorable to our cause than they have been, the Associated Press dispatches would have discovered them to the public in heavy headlines. As it is, like the little boy on the wagon, they have "nothing to say." Thanks, however, to energetic executive officers and the council, the entire membership has been kept in close touch with the progress of the movement all over the country in the bulletins issued at close intervals and mailed to members in each union. The result is inspiriting. With two months yet before the crucial point will be turned, we find ourselves winning hands down, in spite of the prediction of strenuous opposition on the part of the employers.

Here in Albany the anticipated trouble, which was scheduled to arrive promptly on time January 1, 1906, came so suddenly, and was all over so quickly, that our members are now rubbing their eyes, and wondering if they are awake or not. That the "mills of the gods grind slowly, but grind surely" is feelingly attested by our old war horse, Thomas Palmatier, who has weathered many battles of No. 4, and was in the thick of the present one. Mr. Palmatier is an "ex" of three International Typographical Union conventions, the first of which was that of Cincinnati in 1883, when the eight-hour question was first given International consideration. Twenty-two years is a large fraction of a man's life, but sinks to insignificant proportions when compared with the indefinite future in which the eight-hour day will be an ever present and appreciated fact. Twenty-two years is a long time to devote to the accomplishment of a given purpose, but it demonstrates beyond dispute that the members of the International Typographical Union, when once committed to a certain line of progress, will never cease their efforts any short of its entire achievement.

The passing of the Hamilton street branch of the J. B. Lyon Company from the list of printing offices in this city during the past month has been a matter of much concern to the craft. The outcome is the result of a consolidation of the two separate offices of this company, practically all under one roof, as the combined equipment is now merged at the Beaver street plant. The consolidation furnishes Albany with perhaps the largest single book and job plant outside of New York city. The book room, for instance, has now a battery of twenty linotype machines, besides all the other machinery and material of the two former plants combined. The book room is under the charge of Foreman Stephen F. Clancy, as before the consolidation; N. H. Kelsey, the former foreman of the Hamilton street branch, is now in charge of the job department, and Robert Whitfield still has charge of the law department. This change has been anticipated to a more or less degree for some time, but not until after the awarding of the state contract for another year to the Brandow Printing Company was it a settled purpose to make the consolidation. It has, as a consequence, unsettled, to a degree, many situations that have been permanencies for the past ten years, and has made necessary many changes, and, owing to the usual dullness at this season of the year, not a few have yet to adjust themselves to the new conditions. For many reasons, the craft regret exceedingly the closing up of the Hamilton street office, as it was one of the best buildings for the purpose devoted to the business in this city.

The October meeting of the union was largely attended and much business of a routine nature was quickly and harmoniously dispatched. It was the regular meeting for the quarterly reports of the officers, and these, supplemented by reports from the Labor day committee, the clambake committee and the committee in charge of the eight-hour situation and its attendant strike, made this meeting one of financial considerations almost wholly. The strike situation was presented as a closed incident, its purpose gained in a sharp, short and decisive contest all in our favor, with all attending obligations of a financial nature settled.

Digitized by Google

The total cost in union funds was a trifle over $1,800, and is considered money well spent. Ex-President Palmatier took the opportunity, during the "good and welfare of the union," to enthusiastically commend the union on the victory won. He said, in part, that while the officers and committees faithfully and well performed their work, and to whom many ascribed the merit of the victory, yet it was really the magnificent and unanimous response of the members themselves to the call of the International officers that won the fight so cleanly. No man, from the foreman down to the apprentice boys, wavered or hesitated for a moment at the order to report at the time given to the headquarters established. It brought, in a brief week's duration, nearly three-fourths of the union's membership into closer and more sympathetic relations with each other, and will be well worth the money expended for the added strength it will give in future years. No. 4 looks forward now to a long period of tranquillity.

The following bits of gossip were handed me by a member of the Brandow chapel: "Thomas Mumford, from Pawtucket, R. I., is on the night trick of the Brandow Printing Company (state printers). Tom is all to the good as an operator, it is said. I am pleased to announce the presence here in Albany of Mr. Lund as another monotypist at the state office. He is an artist in his line and hails from New York city. While Mr. Finney was away on his vacation of two weeks last month he was accompanied by a young lady whom he brought home as his bride. May good luck and happiness ever be their portion. Our esteemed friend, James A. Kirwin, has charge of the monotype keyboards at the state office. Jim will be remembered as an old Record hand in the government printing office at Washington. My old friend, Thomas Morgan (J. P. Morgan), is with us all the way from Coxsackie (I guess it's on the map), N. Y."

Among some of the many changes recorded during the past month we note the following: George P. Christy has taken a position on the Brooklyn Eagle; Donald McDonald has gone to the metropolis in search of work; Ed Winne is reading proof on the Argus; William H. Floody is now with the Brandow Printing Company; F. G. Houghtaling (Petie) is down Memphis (Tenn.) way; James Kelly (Smugsy) is in the hospital for general repairs (the strike was too strenuous for Jim), and many more local changes that I do not now call to mind.

The list of benedicts has been increased by at least four new victims during the month past, viz.: Carl Shafer, William Coleman, Mr. Finney and William F. Donnelly, all of the Brandow chapel. Cupid must have his headquarters in that establishment, as one of the copyholders in the proofroom, Miss Sadie Barnard, was also wedded during the same time.

With the consolidation of the two plants of the J. B. Lyon Company under one roof at Beaver street, it is proposed by members of the State Printers' Benefit Society, that has been in successful operation for the past seven years at the Hamilton street branch, that it be so reorganized as to admit any printer employed by the company, or even of the whole union, and thus enlarge its field of usefulness. This society, with an average of sixty members, has paid sick benefits of $8 per week and a death benefit of $35 on a weekly payment of ten cents per member. This has not only been accomplished on the ten cents per week, but two dividends have been declared at intervals of three years each, the first being (if I remember rightly) something over $4 and the last one $6.20 per member for the full period. The society pays $8 per week for seven weeks in any one year. It is a good thing and should be more extended in its scope. CHARLES H. WHITTEMORE.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

Mr. Newton, the ex-correspondent, is making a decidedly successful try of shaking the nerve-racking keyboard for the more pleasing occupation of serving good things to eat. He has located almost opposite the Tribune and Telegram workshops, in the heart of printerdom, and in a few weeks has tripled his force.

Joseph Lippman, United States district attorney, has resigned the general management of the Tribune in order to devote more of his time to the duties of his commission. Mr. Lippman left with the good will of the printers, although at first, like a lot of misguided managers, he interpreted unionism to mean "scrap." He learned better, however, after a recent action in regard to the reproduction of a page of the Los Angeles rat Times, and emphasized his appreciation of fair dealing with a box of cigars.

The secretary of No. 115 would like to hear from James J. Moller, who communicated with that officer last June. Mr. Moller was headed for Chicago at that time from Philadelphia, and if the walking is as good that far east as it is on the desert he should have arrived by this time.

October 1 No. 115 had 118 members. All seem to be working at present, as the job business started up late in September with a tremendous rush. A let-up occurs occasionally, and then there is an over-supply. The secretary receives a great many inquiries as to conditions here in different branches, and many of the writers do not inclose stamp, consequently get no reply. For their information, would state generally that Salt Lake is full of subs and a situation is entirely out of the question.

"Billy" McWhinney, late foreman of the Butte Inter-Mountain, now foreman of the Tribune, has lately returned from a trip of three weeks to his old Minneapolis home. Mr. McWhinney, as was expected by printers who knew him in other cities, made good in every respect as foreman of the Tribune, and the changes he has made in the paper please both the management and the men.

"Billy" Romney has quit Jack Ryan in the linotype business and taken an interest in the Century. And now elbow room in the composing room of that job printing plant is at a premium. A merchant with a prospective job who can get away from Sleater, then escape the persuasion of Willis, and finally elude Romney, must certainly have a good sprint in him. Mr. Willis has announced his intention of withdrawing from the business soon, which will give the said merchant a slightly better percentage of chance in escaping.

Digitized by Google

Ed Heacock has pulled up stakes and departed for Topeka, where he has gone to study medicine.

As a rule union printers glory in the quarrels of organizations of employers, but the exception exists in Salt Lake. The Franklin club recently came to more or less grief through the withdrawal of one big job firm. A number of the members of the Franklin club held active membership cards in No. 115, and the union felt well protected because of this fact.

John Davies, of Butte, the linotype-face man, is back in Salt Lake again, and is working on one of Jack Ryan's machines. A. THOMPSON.

NOTES FROM THE UNION PRINTERS' HOME.

Visitors to the Home from September 9 to October 10, inclusive, 962.

The Home is a monument to unionism.

The open shop is a tombstone to the memory of liberty to the wage-earner and decent living wages.

The eight-hour day is a new epoch in the evolution of the human race.

Oscar Langford, our esteemed correspondent, is indisposed, and has asked me to act for him.

I am informed that several of my friends sent their kind regards to me from Toronto, which I can not personally acknowledge, being unable, up to this writing, to procure their names.

Preparations are being made, on an elaborate scale, to entertain the delegates here at the next convention. Toronto set the pace, and an attempt will be made to beat the record. No. 82 has appointed a committee on arrangements of fifteen members, from which sub-committees have been appointed, and also an advisory committee, to look up the finances, composed of professional and business men, as follows: Henry C. Hall, mayor Colorado Springs; Allen H. Holden, president city council; Francis L. Rouse, chairman board county commissioners; Thomas J. Fisher, president chamber of commerce; Fred S. Tucker, president merchants' association; Henry LeB. Wills, president real estate exchange; George B. Tripp, general manager C. S. L. & P. Co.; Clarence P. Dodge, publisher Morning Gazette; Theo. E. Quinby, publisher Evening Telegraph.

The members of the committee of arrangements are: Charles Deacon, chairman; William A. Snyder, vice-chairman; Thomas McCaffery, treasurer; Charles M. Carter, secretary; W. J. Snider, J. J. McCarty, A. J. E. Hubbard, Austin Davis, C. A. Smith, H. A. Scholton, J. R. Durnell, W. Thomas, E. H. Carrington, J. F. Jones, T. E. Weaver.

The Letter Carriers' Association has decided to build a home here. The following is from the Colorado Springs Gazette:

With the view of making definite plans for the building of a national letter carriers' home in Colorado Springs, John C. Bunton, former vice-president of the National Letter Carriers' Association, and chairman of the home committee; Brooks Irione, the local letter carrier booster; Eugene Doyle, a carrier of Hoboken, N. J.; Henry Russell Wray, secretary of the chamber of commerce, and H. C. Chapman, of the merchants' association, inspected the Union Printers' Home. Charles Deacon, superintendent of the Printers' Home, showed the visitors through the buildings and pointed out the many conveniences of the place. A meeting of the home committee will be held here, when preliminary arrangements for the building of the home will be completed.

George Bridge, thirty-five years old, unmarried, an employe of the Out West Printing and Stationery Company, Colorado Springs, died at the Home September 27. He had a severe hemorrhage a few days previous at his home, and it was decided to remove him to the Home. The unfortunate man had only been in the building about fifteen minutes when he was seized with the fatal attack; death resulted in a few minutes. Mr. Bridge was a brother of John Bridge, foreman of the Out West Printing and Stationery Company, with whom he lived.

A formal tender of eighty acres of land in the vicinity of the Home has been made by the Colorado Springs Merchants' Association to the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the same to be used as a site upon which to build a national home. The land site has been selected by H. G. Chapman and Frank Wolfe, the association's home committee. They refuse to state just where the land is located, because, they say, the price of the land would immediately be raised. The site is located near the Home.

Here is an object lesson in support of the single tax. The price demanded for the above ground will be raised if the offer is accepted. It will probably be raised too high for would-be purchasers to avail themselves of—which will be a bar to the development of the locality. If the assessors taxed the land according to the values placed by its owners, lower prices would prevail and speculation would be discouraged, which means that more land would be used than at present. Land is the initial of labor and labor is the initial of wealth. Think it out.

It may be interesting to those who intend visiting here at the next convention, and also induce others to come, to know that the ground on which the Home is situated (over 6,000 feet above the level of the sea) was at one time the bed of an ocean. To this day it has that appearance, and is proved by the quantities of fossils of petrified fish found here. Mr. Busby, a resident, from Shreveport (La.) Union, has quite a collection, which is an interesting attraction to visitors to the Home, to whom he is always pleased to show and explain it.

When the committee to devise a pension scheme, ordered by the Toronto convention, gets to work, it is to be hoped they will invite opinions from the residents of the Home, some of whom are very much interested in the question—with a view to make the provision for old age and sickness as complete as possible. There are many who can not avail themselves of this establishment, and are worthy of consideration—family, altitude, and other considerations debarring; and there are many here who could not get an equivalent for the Home. Many owe the fact of being active today to coming here, and can not find words to express their gratitude for the treatment they have received in sickness.

Digitized by Google

For list of arrivals and departures, please see superintendent's report, as my letter is too crowded to give them.

We are being kept well posted as regards the progress made with the eight-hour movement, the success of which we all feel is assured.

The Dayton (Ohio) Union Picket, of October 7, has a sketch, illustrated with his portrait, of Oscar Langford, our correspondent. It gives him great praise for his many services to his union, one of which was that he was treasurer for two years. He was a charter member at its reorganization in 1866—his first chance to join—since which time his membership of the International Typographical Union has been continuous.

Mrs. Nellie V. Wilson says that the October item, stating that she was absent a week visiting Boulder friends, is an error. She only paid a two days' visit to friends in Denver.

Fraternally, JAMES H. MARTIN.

HYPHENPHILOSOPHY.

Do not, ungentle reader, jeer unthinkingly at the James-Armstrong-Jr-San-Antonio-Texas sticktogetherations—they may be an adumbration of the language of the future. At anyrate they should be sent at once to F. Horace Teall, the Standard's wordbuilder, whose hyphenhodfuls could not always be carried up without spilling a few. He might see a great light and wonder that he did not see it before. Mr. Teall's logical-hyphen system was not brought forth without wearing birth-pains. Mr. Armstrong's system is simplicity itself. Of course it gives the page a made-in-Germany or drugcircular aspect and is of little immediate value to you and me, who must take things a good deal as we find them. "Faith, thou hast some crotchets in thy head," said I—to myself—as I walked abroad, ruminating, after reading THE JOURNAL—"let me test them." Passing the clinic where the anæstheticgivers practice footamputation and a meetingroom where antitransubstantiationtacklers sometimes speak, I reached the watertransportation-route of the city, and, observing the canalboathandlers, wondered how they would make out on a transsiberianrailway-contract! These extraordinary reflections did not drive me to a patentmedicinejag, but being something of a waterlobster myself, I fraternized with these amphibia—to get rid of The-languageasitis-problem-versus-the-languageasitshouldbe-problem—and my last state was worse than my first. Then. But not now. I wish, while Chicago is no doubt cogitating, to write down, in all seriousness, what is, for us, the moral which Mr. Armstrong's article points, this: That when by logical elimination he got rid of so many hyphens he might almost have got rid of them all—leaving them to be used for end-line word-splitting, for adjectival word-combinations, for, possibly, some few uses not embraced in these classes, and, of course, for the use of the Smith-Joneses and the Brown-Robinsons.

Brooklyn, N. Y. W. MATCHES.

TORONTO, CANADA.

Thanks!

We have landed.

And now we are out for placing the book and job men on the same basis as the newspaper men—namely: eight hours and $16 a week.

The executive committee has received instructions to strictly enforce the laws in the newspaper offices. The eight-hour, matrice, priority and sublist laws are to be looked after.

The convention committee is only one of the many examples of good judgment shown by President Meehan in his committee appointments.

"Organize" should be the watchword of No. 91—remember eight hours for the book and job men.

Attend the meetings and get your news first hand.

It is expected that the convention committee will present an itemized report at the November meeting, which will show a surplus of about $1,500.

We now have an energetic eight-hour committee that knows its duty, and is doing it. May success crown their labors.

The recent convention of the trades and labor congress was the largest and most enthusiastic in the history of that organization. Again the printing trade sent the largest representation. The "ordinary" delegate was much in evidence, for evidently some locals have grown tired of the "professional." The mode of electing officers should be changed, as it was clearly shown that the Hare Spence system is a most pernicious method of election. Victoria, B. C., was chosen as the next place of meeting.

Since the convention the society editors of the daily press refer to printers as "typographical artists."

Old No. 91 can have anything in the gift of the Toronto labor movement.

Are you a shareholder in the labor temple? The profits for nine months were $1,300.

The photographer who took the convention photos was William Galbraith, 239 Younge street.

The rat employing agents visited Toronto, but their efforts proved futile.

What constitutes a "fair" office is up for discussion in Toronto printing circles.

J. J. Hunter, formerly of No. 91, is now proprietor of the Kincardine Reporter.

No. 91 is the eighth largest union in the International Union, and, per population, the largest typographical union in the world.

The members of No. 91 should remember the aldermen who looked after the typos' interests during the past year.

Toronto is after the 1906 convention of the American Federation of Labor.

The woman's auxiliary will hold its first annual "at home" in the labor temple on November 30. This promises to be a brilliant and successful affair.

Fred Heath, late of Hunter-Rose's, is now located in business at Hamilton, Ont.

Walter Johnson, late of San Francisco, Seattle, etc., is now holding down a Merg. at Reid's.

The Copeland-Chatterson firm is occupying its new factory at Brampton. The comps employed by the firm have decided to retain their membership in No. 91, in preference to instituting a new union in that town.

Digitized by Google

Are you a subscriber to the Tribune, Toronto's new labor advocate?

No. 91 voted $25 to the bakers who are on strike at Tomkin's, Weston's and Bredin's. Are you eating bread of the above firms' make? The bakers also report the Nasmith firm as being unfair.

If there is anything wrong, just criticize your officers, it helps them ever so much in having the laws lived up to.

The arrangements committee was able to come to a satisfactory settlement with the party who supplied the meal on the mountain at Hamilton.

Do you know a non-union printer? Tell the eight-hour committee—they'll do the rest.

The book and job men's eight hours has the preference.

Bowling is now in vogue.

Uneasy lies the head of the member who is in arrears.

Eight hundred members, eighth place, eight hours. JOHN CHINN.

OTTAWA, CANADA.

Under the heading of "Rights of a Man" the Toronto Globe administers a well merited rebuke to the News for its flippant, unworthy and childish allusion to James Simpson in a shallow cartoon, thus: "Chamberlain is disconsolate—Jimmie Simpson is against him." This cartoon followed a logical arraignment in forceful but reasonable argument by Mr. Simpson, who spoke at the Labor Congress, as he always does, in a frank, courteous and eloquent style. The Globe says: "The particular incident may appear insignificant in itself, but it is an illustration of an evil tendency in the public discussion of important questions—the tendency to shallow trifling and to rating an argument, not by its intelligence and rationality, but by the social standing of the man who presents it or the popularity of the views it expresses. Had Mr. Simpson been president of the Manufacturers' Association instead of vice-president of the Labor Congress, his opinion would have been treated with respect and on no account would have been made the victim of pseudo-cleverness. And yet the labor man who masters the economic principles involved in protection and traces their bearing on the life of the laboring masses, has as good a right to respectful treatment as has the manufacturer, who, with equal intelligence, equal devotion and equal public spirit makes his contribution to the discussion from the standpoint of the manufacturing classes. That right is one of the inalienable rights of a man under our democratic institutions. To limit and restrain the intelligent and responsible exercise of that right, to regard it as the prerogative of the privileged classes, to discourage and ridicule seriousness and earnestness in the exercise of that right on the part of the common people—all that is of the very essence of aristocratic pretensions, which the spirit of freedom and independence has had to fight more than once in Canada and may have to fight again."

The gains in the eight-hour movement is welcome news to the craft of Ottawa. I have just returned from the Dominion Congress, where Hugh Stevenson simply enthused over the favorable bulletins daily received. The delegates cheered to the echo all information which indicated the progress made in establishing the eight-hour day in the cities which had not already done so.

The Dominion Labor Congress had its sitting in the Labor Temple, Toronto. It lasted six days. Much legislation of a useful nature was discussed. Mr. Vervilee, the president, was re-elected. He deserves the honor, having discharged the onerous duties of this office with honor to himself and credit to his province. James Simpson, the vice-president, was also re-elected. The eloquent Simpson once more demonstrated his generous make-up by nominating Mr. Vervilee in a happy and manly speech. P. M. Draper, the builder of the congress, unanimously received the endorsement of the congress by a most enthusiastic re-election. Mr. Draper, who had taken a wife a few days previous to congress assembling, was the recipient of a superb token of the esteem in which he is held by the labor men of Canada, in the shape of a cut-glass wine set and silver tray. A few well timed expressions was a fitting acknowledgment from friend Draper. All realize the good work accomplished by Draper in the movement throughout Canada. F. Feeney, fraternal delegate from the American Federation of Labor, received a costly gold ring from the delegates as a mark of friendship.

Alderman Pepper and Robert Markel, of No. 102, were prominent delegates. Each had a place upon a good committee and did his work exceedingly well.

Congress has decided to put organizers in the field. Each year shows the need of this effort, and doubtless the results will show the wisdom of the step.

John Armstrong was a most active delegate of the congress. He is getting younger. He wastes no word, speaks to the point, and invariably has something to say.

The good impressions left by the great typographical convention in the Queen City are not soon to be forgotten. All speak eulogistically of the convention and the delegates. Typos can well feel proud of their convention and officers.

Hugh Stevenson is being urged to tackle a delegateship from the International Typographical Union to the American Federation of Labor. That would be a fitting compliment to a Torontonian who has spared neither effort nor pains to advance the interests of typographical unions for some years back. His American friends should note this carefully.

Arsene Lavigne, a well-known ex-president of No. 102, paid a flying visit to his old comrades lately in Ottawa. Mr. Lavigne is now located at Cleveland and is prospering. All the boys were glad to shake the old friend's hand and learn of his progress in Cleveland. Men of Lavigne's type can always rely on receiving a warm welcome at the hands of sound unionists.

Priest, of the Free Press, machine tender and mechanical superintendent, is going to promote a venture of his own in Kingston. It is said the Kingston News has changed hands.

Digitized by Google

Michael Poncle has received a pipe made out of a Tipperary shilalah. He still smiles.

The next Dominion Labor Congress meets in Victoria, B. C.

Mr. Anger, for many years foreman in the Printing Bureau, has been superceded by Mr. Carter. Mr. Statley takes the place of Mr. Belleau as assistant job foreman.

Tom Boucher has become expert of the Free Press machines.

Friends Franc and Paquin were prominent French delegates at the Labor Congress. They are both well posted and fluent.

Our French Canadian printers are organizing to contribute their share towards the prizes annually given to the pupils of the schools here. No more laudable object could have been found by the typos to encourage education.

I see some of the Toronto firms have agreed to indenture apprentices hereafter. This is to prevent the periodical hold-up of the boys who go from one office to the other for an increase of 50 cents each change, regardless of what is lost in the way of learning. What Toronto has realized has been felt in Ottawa years ago. The question now is what will start the ball rolling first—No. 102 or the employers. Whoever does will confer a benefit upon the trade. The nuisance has already existed too long, and, besides, it interfers with the production of first-class workmen. The matter deserves most serious consideration.

C. S. O. Boudreault.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.

The Knickerbocker Press composing room chapel held a smoker on Wednesday, September 27, which the officers of No. 6, New York, were invited to attend. The proceedings were timed to commence at 8:30 so as to give the officers time to reach New Rochelle by train. Unfortunately, however, they failed to put in an appearance, and a telegram from President McCormick announced that they were detained by complications at headquarters. The boys set about forgetting the disappointment by having a real good time. The music supplied was good, the songs catchy and bright, and a recitation by Mr. Dobbs, from New York city, rendered in masterly style, brought down the applause of the house. He also spoke of the condition of affairs toward the eight-hour day, and assured the chapel that No. 6 intended taking a firm stand in the matter. In his opinion, speaking from a strictly business point of view, the master printers could not afford to fight the men, because in so doing they would injure their trade. Competition was so keen and cutting that they would each hesitate, and consider how much it would affect them individually. He quoted one printer as saying in some former trouble in his shop with the men he had lost work he would never regain, although he had made strenuous efforts to do so. Other printers had slipped in and profited by his difficulty. Mr. Dobbs maintained the same spirit would characterize the master printers all through, in spite of the typothetæ, and eventually those who did fight would see their folly and grant the eight-hour day. The work could not be successfully carried on without union men, and the bosses recognized this fact more than ever. He urged them all to stand fast and show a bold front, and they would ultimately succeed. If, however, they went about it with a faint heart, failure was their doom.

A downright good supper was served, which filled all to the brim, rendering them jovial and hearty. A deputation from the foundry, bindery and pressroom was in attendance, showing sympathy with the chapel in its efforts. Richard M. Rundle.

SHOULD ENDORSE THEIR FRIENDS.

To the question, "Should labor unions endorse candidates for public office?" my answer would be that workingmen should support their friends and refrain from giving aid and comfort to their enemies in every shape in which the proposition can come up. But, owing to the fact that with many men, even workingmen, their political partisanship seems to be the strongest actuating motive of their lives, I would say that the greatest prudence should be exercised in endorsing the candidates of either of the great political parties, in order to prevent the possibility of such endorsements being the result of venality or partisan zeal. Candidates, the nominees of political parties, should be endorsed only as individuals, and then in only one of two events—(1) that the candidate has given indubitable evidence of his friendship for the interests of organized labor, or (2) that his opponent has given equally strong evidence of his enmity to organized labor, though, of course, both conditions might exist. In no event should either party be endorsed as a whole, or all of its candidates at any given election, and such endorsement would be worth little, for, as a rule, it would intensify the adherents of the party not endorsed and produce rancor.

An ideal condition would be that in which workingmen abjured allegiance to either or any political party, making both or all bid for their votes—not in monetary consideration to individuals, but in friendly legislation for the benefit of all. Neither of the great parties (and they only are worthy of consideration) is the friend of the workingman as such, for both are controlled by the great moneyed interests of the country. A sop thrown into a platform catches the willing gudgeons, but statutes are what talk. No party makes scarcely a pretension at carrying out the various planks of its platform, and least of all those inserted to catch the labor vote. With the workingmen almost evenly divided between the parties and biting at the bare hook, glad of an excuse for voting the ticket of the party into which they were born—for that is the strongest basis for almost every one's partisanship, however hard he may strive to prove that it is based on profound principles—there is little incentive for either party to cater to the workingman.

If workingmen could learn a lesson from Australia and throw both of the parties to the winds, they could control legislation as in Australia. There is not a greater proportion of workingmen to the whole population there than here, though they do not have the hordes of imported laborers, in the form of immigrants, to contend with that we have, this fact being due to restriction of immigration as soon as the workingmen there gained the control. That Australia and New Zealand are ages ahead of us in legislation friendly to labor and the poor generally is due solely to the workingman cutting loose from alliance with parties having nothing in common with them and giving their support to friendly individuals instead.

Digitized by Google

Perhaps I have got away from the proposition. Returning to it, I say: Endorse and vote for those you know to be friendly and against those who are inimical, and let that be the only consideration.

A. F. Bloomer.

Washington, D. C.

BATAVIA, N. Y.

Charles E. New, formerly president of No. 511, who is a linotypist on the Jamestown Post, has become a benedict, having been married on September 30 in that city to Miss Maud Eloise Stone.

Town Clerk Edward F. Short, who is a member of the Batavia Typographical Union, has been renominated for office.

V. A. Buck, of Minneapolis, Minn., has opened a job printery at North Java. Here's a chance for No. 511 to do some label work.

The Batavia hospital would appear to be a place for printers to fight shy of. Its telephone call is "30."

And the International Typographical Union said, Let there be eight hours; and the printers beheld eight hours, and saw that it was good; and eight hours henceforth it shall be. And God blessed them in their divine right.

Mrs. William S. Waudby, having become an officer of the Batavia Humane Society, whose chief occupation is the prevention of cruelty to animals, you prints will have to be careful how "cruel" you treat the "rats," or Mrs. Waudby won't do a thing to you!

Charles W. Radley, of Columbia Typographical Union, a former Batavian, who is employed in the government printing office, was calling on friends here the latter part of October.

Herbert J. Donovan, a charter member of No. 511, was taken ill with typhoid fever early in October.

Occasionally printers are called to ecclesiastical fields, and in Genesee county there is at least one who bears testimony to the truth of the assertion, in the person of the Rev. W. H. Farnham, pastor of the Alexander M. E. Church, who, fifty-six years ago, was employed on the Tioga Banner at Wellsboro, Pa. Mr. Farnham at that time had as a companion the renowned Brick Pomeroy, who likewise was learning to stick type.

William S. Waudby believes in showing a patriotic spirit at all times and during all kinds of weather, and constantly keeps floating to the breeze a large American flag at his home in Highland Park. "It seems to me," says Mr. Waudby, "that every citizen should keep the colors prominently displayed. Every union man should let Old Glory grace his housetop."

B. G. Woods, with a card from Lansing, Mich., was in Batavia on September 26, wending his way toward New York city.

No. 511, having secured its eight-hour day contract, has kept a sharp lookout in behalf of the locals in this section of the state which are showing the teapot (typothetæ) a thing or two.

L. W. Reade, who has conducted a job printing office in Batavia a couple of years, coming here from Cleveland, Ohio, has been compelled, owing to ill health, to close up his business, and will go west, having taken a traveling card from No. 511. The members all hope Mr. Reade's condition will improve rapidly. Mr. Reade learned his trade in Mount Vernon, Ill., some eighteen years ago.

"Everybody works but father," and, of course, the eight-hour day has no alluring attractions for him.

Batavia's classic name is Holland. Members of the typothetæ entering the territory of No. 511 in quest of strike breakers had better consider well their danger, for we're liable to get our Dutch up.

Melbourne MacDowell's company, playing "Gismonda," met financial disaster in Niagara Falls and went to pieces. Let's see—Niagara Falls was where the typothetæ held its national convention and declared war on the International Typographical Union. No wonder MacDowell went under. The typothetæ anti-eight-hour convention certainly was a mighty poor business promoter. Then, too, undoubtedly "Gismonda" couldn't be properly advertised, owing to the printers being on strike there for the eight-hour day. "These do be trying times," Melbourne, old boy!

Ralph E. Tweed is another printer who holds a withdrawal card from No. 511, who is doing great work as an advertisement artist.

William H. Rial.

GUELPH, ONT.

And Brantford, too. Oh, let there be more!

No. 391 held one of the most enthusiastic meetings on record, on October 3. The matter of possible modification of the eight-hour day in Ontario was handled without the gloves, and if the sentiment expressed by the membership is any criterion, it certainly received a knock-out blow from this jurisdiction.

A vigorous label campaign is being waged by an untiring committee, and the label is coming to the front on the run. Our merchants are getting used to the motto: "Write Union Label on Your Copy."

Our executive committee has been working overtime this month, a number of late sessions being held behind barred doors, and the members are breathlessly waiting for something to drop.

Quite an amusing scene was enacted in the Mercury ad rooms recently. "Shorty" Lamond, who is "it" in that department, and who has the reputation of shoveling more ads together in a given space of time than any of his proteges, was approached by the press agent for the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company, and a bunch of copy shoved into his fist, with the remark: "Can you get that in this edition?" "Not on your life," replied Shorty; "why it would take three or four hours to set it." "Well, I'll be blankety-blank if it will take me three or four hours to set it," says Mr. Press Agent, at the same time peeling his togs, and proceeded to keep "two in the air," while Shorty utterly collapsed from the shock. Now, Shorty happens to be the daddy of the chapel, and, after he had sufficiently recovered from his dazed condition, he pounced down upon his man, with a yell of triumph, to produce that article which all union men are wont to carry in their inside pocket, and was confronted with the genuine, up-to-date signatures of our San Francisco brothers. This was too much for Shorty, who crawled back to his cases, and was heard to mumble, "That fellow has more nerve than that durn Yankee president of ours."

Digitized by Google

It is rumored that two more Mergs and a Miehle press are billed for town.

The new scale went into effect last month and all the boys were wearing smiles, some of them becoming so reckless as to get a hair-cut.

Watty Black, of Detroit, was in town for a few days, looking up old friends. Watty says he don't go back until eight hours is the day, and he don't believe he will have long to stay with us by present indications.

Business continues good. Not an idle man.

"Success to the eight-hour day."

Nowhere in North America can the eight-hour workday become effective on January 1, 1906, with less trouble or friction for the members of the International Typographical Union, than in the Province of Ontario.

Boom the label! and success is sure.

J. P. WALSH.

SHERMAN, TEXAS.

Since last Sherman was represented by correspondence in THE JOURNAL several important changes of interest to the craft have been made.

The Register has changed hands, being purchased by the News Publishing Company, which was recently organized, and R. S. Carver is now at the head of the concern.

L. J. Reynolds and C. W. Parkes, former owners of the Register, have installed a complete job plant, and are now doing a goodly share of the city's job work.

The Democrat has installed a larger and much better equipped press for its news and job work.

Dan Blair, who was here recently, working on the night side of the Register, has taken out his card and left. Mr. Blair is from Des Moines, Iowa.

F. C. Miller recently took out his card and left for Memphis.

On January 1 we can send out the news: "We have met the 'enemy' and they are (8) hours."

On Labor day Sherman Local No. 471 was well represented in the parade, which was one of the best seen in northern Texas on like occasions for many years. The farmers' union was represented in the parade by a float, which attracted a great deal of attention. It was the first time a farmers' organization was ever represented in a Labor day parade in northern Texas.

No trouble is anticipated in Sherman over the eight-hour question. It is said, on good authority, that all offices will sign.

Our popular president, Milford Pharr, of the Register, is at present president of the trades council.

Sherman Local No. 471 elected all old officers to serve another term at a recent meeting.

J. A. Smith, formerly of Oklahoma, has accepted a position with the Democrat, and is now a member of No. 471.

Walter Glafcke, makeup on the Register, will leave shortly for Wyoming.

Mr. Von Turk, of Texarkana, is now handling the ivories on the night side of the Register.

Work is fair. J. T. KNOTT.

WILMINGTON, DEL.

The eight-hour committee has opened negotiations, and arranged for a meeting with the master printers on Thursday evening next, October 19, to discuss a peaceable settlement of the momentous question. This starts the ball, which will be kept rolling steadily onward toward the goal.

Now that winter work has begun with us, and with no idle men in our ranks, it looks as if the times might be prosperous, and the employers making enough to afford a night at the theater and a good cigar.

If employers wanted men to dig ditches, sweep streets, or run street cars they could get plenty of men; but when they want men—honest men—to set type, design and execute first-class printing matter, and men who have a status in their neighborhood, then they can't take any immigrants or thugs.

The circulars outlining the situation, as received from the International eight-hour committee, are a source of much satisfaction to our members. We act on the suggestion that after reading we pass it along to some other printer.

Edmund P. Banks, a special representative of the New York World, was in our town on October 4. Mr. Banks is well known in our midst, having worked under the jurisdiction of No. 123 for a short while. We are always glad to see old friends, and especially those who are numbered among the workers.

We are extremely pleased at the little success of the advertisement in the Philadelphia papers for non-union men. It shows that something is being done in the city of brotherly love besides talking. The interests of our city are so closely identified with those of Philadelphia that the welfare of one is practically the welfare of the other. We are only a distance of about thirty miles apart, and the methods of transportation so many that we are able to keep in daily touch with each other.

We are indebted to the secretary of the correspondents' club for the invitation to join that worthy association. D. H. RUSSELL.

Digitized by Google

ERIE, PA.

Our new scale of prices, calling for eight hours a day on January 1, went into effect on October 1, and was signed by all but two of the principal job shops, one of which had no agreement with our union last year, although two of our men were employed there. Those who refused to sign, outside of two or three one-man shops not worthy of notice, are the Erie Show Print and the Dispatch Printing and Engraving Company. The former absolutely refused to have any dealings whatever with our union and the latter gave as its reason that its other employes—pressmen, binders, etc.—would have to continue working longer hours, and did not think it was "just" to them. It was told that we had no jurisdiction over them and that if they wanted the eight-hour day they should demand it, or, if the company wished all their employes to be on an equal footing, they could grant them the eight-hour day voluntarily. As the matter stands now two men are out at the Dispatch and two at the Show Print, the latter constituting the whole printing force of that establishment. At the Dispatch one man stayed in. At one of the one-man shops which failed to sign the scale, an apprentice left his work and joined the ranks of the unionists.

Everything looks bright and encouraging. The non-union shops have thus far failed to secure any men, and we believe they will secure none; and the final result will be that they will soon—very soon—call to the union to help them out of their dilemma.

The newspaper printers in Erie have been enjoying the eight-hour day for several years past, so we had no trouble on that score from that branch of the business. However, the proprietors objected strenuously to the demand for a flat scale of $18 on afternoon, and $19.50 on morning papers. In view of the fact that the slogan of the International Typographical Union was "Eight Hours," and also because of the fact that the newspaper printers did not wish to place any obstacle in the way of the eight-hour day for the job men, the members magnanimously bowed to their will and allowed that part of the scale to stand the same as the one of the previous year, with the exception of an increase to foremen from $18 to $21.50, which was insisted upon and granted.

At the last regular meeting of Typographical Union No. 77 a resolution was unanimously passed granting to our members, now unemployed on account of the refusal of the shops named to sign the scale, the full scale of wages. When No. 77 does anything, she does it right, and it will serve notice on the tardy proprietors that we mean to have the eight-hour day for all our men or "bust."

Following our success of securing the eight-hour day, No. 77 will boom the label. At the last meeting a resolution was adopted placing in the hands of the business committee a sum of money for it to use in any way it may decide, with only one proviso, and that is, to place the label prominently before the public and instruct them what it stands for.

It is a little late in the day to mention it, nevertheless I can not allow this letter to go into THE JOURNAL without speaking briefly of the visit of Organizer Max Hays, of Cleveland, Ohio, to Erie last month. Mr. Hays was invited by Typographical Union No. 77 to speak at an eight-hour rally which had been provided for at a previous meeting. Mr. Hays responded, and was met at the depot by a committee, which showed him, after one or two stops, the way to the meeting place. Mr. Hays delivered an eloquent little speech, which was frequently punctuated by applause, and at its conclusion a smoke was enjoyed by all. It was greatly regretted by the members that the genial organizer of the International Typographical Union could not remain in the city longer than he did, for he came in, as it were, like a streak, and out just as quick. However, we hope, at some future time, to have Mr. Hays with us again, and then—and then—well, never mind; suffice to say we will not allow him to get away from us so soon.

"Bob" Ethridge, formerly operator on the Morning Dispatch, last month hied himself westward, but did not remain away long, much to the delight of his friends, who are glad to see him back.

Harry Gould, machinist-operator on the Morning Dispatch, has gone to the Mergenthaler linotype factory to put the finishing touches to his schooling on the mechanical intricacies of the machine. He will remain two weeks.

Our members are now paying dues to the amount of 6 per cent on their earnings, provided for at the last meeting. This will keep the treasury well stocked with the "necessary" with which to carry on our campaign for the eight-hour day.

The Erie central labor union, whose meetings during the summer months have been slimly attended, has taken on a new lease of life, and large meetings are reported.

Job printers, steer clear of Erie for a while.

GEORGE A. COOK.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Rhode Island Federation of Labor, at its third annual convention, held at Westerly, September 19 and 20, voted to endorse the demand of the International Typographical Union for an eight-hour day for the book and job printers. The resolutions were introduced by William J. Meegan, who represented the central labor union of Providence. Governor Utter, who resides in Westerly and is the owner of a daily newspaper published in that town, called The Sun, delivered an address of welcome on the assembling of the convention. Governor Utter is the first practical printer to occupy the chief executive chair in this state.

The union got back to the Labor Temple for the September meeting, and there was a large attendance of members present. A communication was received from the eight-hour committee of Boston Union, inviting No. 33 to be represented at a conference of New England journeymen printers which will meet in Boston on October 23. Herbert S. Richardson will represent Providence Union at the conference. A committee of five was appointed to notify the master printers of this city that No. 33 will request an eight-hour day for its book and job members on and after January 1, 1906. The agreement with the master printers requires that three months' notice shall be given of any contemplated change in the scale.

Digitized by Google

The request of the union came before the master printers at their annual meeting, held at Gelb's parlors on the evening of October 10. The following is the newspaper report of the action taken:

"Aside from a general discussion of the matter and of the situation in various other cities of the country, where the union is making similar demands in accordance with a concerted movement, no action was taken on the communication last evening, but it was decided to make it the special order of business for an adjourned meeting to be held on Tuesday evening, November 14. It was left with the secretary of the association to communicate with the president of the typographical union, from whom the notice was received, acknowledging the formal receipt thereof by the association and acquainting him with the above action."

The report goes on to state that "nineteen members of the association sat down to dinner, representing nearly every shop in the state that has a membership in the association."

The fourth annual outing of the Boston and Providence stereotypers' unions was held at the Warwick Club grounds September 17. The menus were the product of the stereotypers' art—each one a matrix. In the baseball game Providence defeated Boston 14 to 10.

The referendum vote on the four propositions submitted by the International Typographical Union convention totaled 91. The vote on the third proposition was close—47 yeas, 44 nocs.

William A. Pratt, of Washington, D. C., and John H. Fitz, of the New York Herald, were in the city recently. Both gained a portion of their knowledge of printing in this city.

Warwick Union No. 662 is the fifth typographical union in the state. It started off with a membership of twelve—could have had thirteen, but preferred to skip that number.

WILLIAM CARROLL.

HARRISBURG, PA.

The old town has not been heard from in the columns of THE JOURNAL since the strike last fall, and a few laconics from this section may meet the eyes of some lone wanderer who has long since forgotten the beautiful town situated on the banks of the Susquehanna river.

The Ben Franklin Club, composed principally of printers and the allied trades, held the last outing for the season of '05 on Sunday, September 17, at their country home, "Riverview." The club will not be closed for the winter, but ended the season for the ladies, who greatly enjoyed these outings, which were held every two weeks.

Labor day was observed here by most of the trade unions, but only three printers were to be seen in the line of the parade, one of the three being B. G. Rapp, who later in the day delivered a strong and eloquent plea for the rights and principles for which we stand.

J. Horace McFarland gave a course of lectures to his employes last winter, and it included a wide range of subjects, but not a word about labor unions. J. Horace is now president of the park commission, against the wishes of No. 14, which gave him a little jolt in councils, a member of our union also being a member of councils in this city, which greatly facilitated this move.

"Old Home Week" was a great success, and thousands of people viewed the parades given daily during the week of October 1–7. Many of the oldtime printers returned for the week who had left the city years ago, and they almost failed to recognize the place of their birth in her festive garments, which were admired and commended by thousands. It was the greatest celebration ever held in central Pennsylvania, and the electrical display on Market Square was most beautiful. Harrisburg had the time of her life.

The Ben Franklin Club had "open door" during the "Old Home Week" celebration, and the spirit of the festivities so overcame one member that he gave a banquet in honor of his fiftieth birthday. He looked younger—and he said that life has many charms for the man of fifty years.

Two of the offices are closed to the union printers, the Patriot and the McFarland Press; both firms refused to sign the scale. B. F. NELSON.

SHOULD ENDORSE PRINCIPLES.

The question, "Should labor unions endorse candidates for public office," is a rather delicate one to approach, and its consideration involves the trades unionist in a maze of perplexing problems. At first blush I would feel inclined to say "No," because the endorsement of a candidate for political office carries with it, to a certain extent, the implied endorsement of the political party with which he is affiliated; and trade unions, made up as they are today, of men of widely differing political faiths, can not afford to even appear to endorse either this or that party, lest it should cause bickerings, quarreling and perhaps a loss in membership over a question which should be as widely separated from trade unions, as such, as are church and state.

But, upon a closer analysis, I find that under certain conditions such a course might be considered a wise one. The trade unions today are growing closer and closer to the halls of legislation. That is, they find it to their advantage to send legislative committees to the state house to advocate measures favorable to labor. They find that it is a distinct advantage to have friends "within the temple," on labor committees, and to advocate measures from the floor. And their regret is only that they have not more of these.

For instance, it has been acknowledged that the election of a union man on the Boston school board has greatly helped along the matter of placing the union label on school books. And if we had a majority of members of labor unions on that board it would soon be an accomplished fact. And in order to place them there, as well as in other political offices, union men must vote for them. Our opponents won't, surely.

So I am led to believe that, where it is known that a candidate for political office is in sympathy with labor unions in every particular, and where trade unions will be benefited by his election, it would certainly be to their advantage to have him elected, and if union endorsement will help toward that end, then he should certainly be endorsed.

Digitized by Google

But I rather fancy the idea that trade unions should endorse principles rather than candidates—and make the candidates endorse the principles. And there are many ways in which it can be made known whether they are with us or against us.

I believe that some such organization as the "flying wedge," which was so successful in defeating Governor Bates last year, should be made a permanent institution; that its scope should be enlarged so as to cover the entire state; and that, during political campaigns, the trade unions and central bodies in every section should appoint representatives whose duty it shall be to inform the working people from the platform at public meetings who are their friends and who are their enemies.

Endorsement of candidates by unions means little unless some measures are taken to inform the membership at large, who rarely attend meetings, of the action taken. But a campaign of education, a preaching of the doctrine of "vote as you strike," will work wonders.

Boston, Mass. HERBERT W. COOKE.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J.

In the September issue of THE JOURNAL I stated that we had applied for a charter from the International and wanted eight hours. Today we are a little over a month old, by the date on our charter, and the eight hours is provided for in two-year contracts "signed, sealed and delivered." Now, what union can beat that?

'Rah for the executive council, eight-hour committee, Woodrow and McLoughlin!

Woodrow made the eight-hour "dough" in this city and McLoughlin "baked" it. We like both of 'em. As a master hand on scale negotiation, Mac is the "Jonny Onthespot." Every shop has signed up.

Get the eight-hour habit.

Our number is 658. The executive council gave us 6, 5 and 8, and we had to have another "8," so we got "8" hours. It's lots better than a "9."

One of our afternoon papers, the Evening News, said editorially:

An agreement with the recently organized typographical union in the city has been signed by the Evening News, and the union scale and regulations go into effect this Saturday. This also means that, in common with a majority of the printing offices throughout the country, the eight-hour day will go into effect here January 1. The movement for shorter hours in the printing trade has attracted public attention for the past month or two, and, in some cases, the proprietors have resisted the demands of the men. The majority of the offices, however, are now in accord with the idea, and it seems evident that the schedule will go into effect everywhere at the date fixed. It is quite possible that owing to these changes the price of printing everywhere will be increased to adjust matters with new scale. The printing offices in Perth Amboy have heretofore been known as "open shops," but with the advent of the union new conditions are created and will have to be met. We believe, however, that all will work to mutual advantage of the printers, proprietors and public.

Samuel Murray, of "From Clime to Clime" fame, spent a Sunday afternoon recently with ye scribe. Frederick Billman came along to see that Sam did not get lost in the wilds of Jersey. Samuel is a good fellow, so is his book—it seems a part of him.

When the employers resort to injunctions it looks as if the stock of Macintyre gas was exhausted.

Stenographers as strike breakers reminds us that several shops in Uncle Sam's domain are running a little "short-hand"-ed just now.

At the rate of seventy-seven eight-hour victories a month it wouldn't be long ere the "short-hand" artists will be out of a job. P. H. CURTIS.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.

No. 146 is coming along smoothly, with no misgivings as to the inception of the eight-hour day on January 1, next. The bulletins (and they are very encouraging ones) received almost daily from headquarters are read here with unabated interest, and there is no dissenting voice as to the outcome of the contest. The vote in the convention seems to have instilled greater enthusiasm in our ranks everywhere.

A. D. Butts has gone to Morgantown, this state, to accept a position with the Acme Printing Company, on the supreme court work. Mr. Butts has been with us continually for fifteen years, during part of that time being in the employment of the state as proofreader and also in the office of the secretary of state. He will be missed greatly by many friends both in and out of the trade, who hope he will soon be with us again.

E. E. Parliament, our vice-president, will leave for Idaho in a few days to recuperate, he having been very ill with lung trouble. Although not having been here long, he has become very popular, and all wish for a speedy recovery and return here.

Work in all lines here is fair, with plenty of people to handle the work.

The state federation of labor will meet in Wheeling in January of next year, postponing its meeting here until 1907.

We are having quite a demand for the label in all lines here and merchants are awaking to the fact that it pays to keep label goods. Several clothing stores make a specialty of union-made goods, and one firm sold members of our union alone over fifty suits of clothing during the past year, every one of them with a label, besides other apparel. Building trades are also in good condition and are accomplishing much, although it is to be regretted that there is not the fraternal spirit in some instances that should prevail to get the best out of unionism.

We all hope and strive for the eight-hour day, and the outcome the first of the year will show that "We have did our durndest—angels could do no more." D. C. LOVETT, JR.

Digitized by Google

ST. JOSEPH, MO.

As we enter the sixth week of our struggle for the eight-hour day we are as determined to win as we were the day we left the offices, and not a single man has broken a link in the eight-hour chain. We have not only the boss printers to fight in this controversy, but the employers' association, which has come out with resolutions in the daily press against the action of the city council in passing resolutions by unanimous vote endorsing Typographical Union No. 40 in its endeavor to better its condition, and in support of the union label.

Yesterday the board of public works awarded a contract for printing to the Combe Printing Company, their bid being ridiculously lower than the firms that can use the label, notwithstanding that the city ordinance requires the union label on city printing. The claim was that a former city counselor held the law unconstitutional, but nevertheless when the ordinances were revised this spring the union label law was not repealed, and the said city counselor had a great deal to do with the revision of the same. The members of No. 40 will keep a record of their friends in this fight and also of their enemies, and around election times the printers will be up and doin'.

The firms are very badly handicapped. It is impossible for them to fill our places with competent men, as this illustration will show: A couple of weeks ago the pickets secured two of Combe's "best" compositors and shipped one of them home, and secured a country sit for the other. The editor of the country paper wrote our secretary last week about as follows: "I thought I told you fellows to send me a printer. That fellow you sent can't set type fast enough to keep the cobwebs out of the case. Please send me a printer this time."

One of the large firms today had one of its office men out trying to secure members of No. 40, but in each instance was given such a calling down that he said that he thought the union would win the eight-hour day if they would stick like that.

A well-grounded rumor has it that a democratic daily paper will be started here in the near future. As there is no paper of that faith in this city of 112,000 it seems it ought to be a paying investment. Let it come—the sooner the better.

The Combe Printing Company had to send two large catalogues to Kansas City to be printed in the rat shops of that city. J. E. MURPHY.

A FEW OF THE ST. JOSEPH (MO.) STRIKERS.

Front row, sitting—C. G. Treme, D. Reid, M. W. Smith, B. F. Hill, commissioner; J. E. Murphy, P. Mabie, H. Connor, J. B. Howell, William Burlington, delegate to Toronto. Second row—C. Morton, Mel Smith, Joe Muchenberger, S. G. Pumphrey, H. O. Showalter, J. G. Hemry, G. W. Calvert, "The Dummy," R. E. White, George Glazier, B. E. Burnham, president. Third row—J. H. Berry, George McMullen, William Jones, Al Robinson, William Ostrander, H. E. Arrow, Robert Meyer, Jack Burner, Dean Buell, C. H. Smirl, John Edgar.

SIOUX CITY, IOWA.

The oldtime printer is still "in our midst," as is evidenced by the number of responses I received replying to a paragraph in my August letter to THE JOURNAL. To begin with, J. P. Underwood, alias "Kid" Underwood, rises from the ashes of the late lamented Minneapolis Times and denies the allegation that he is dead; that he hasn't even been sleeping much of late, owing to the altitudinous price of anthracite coal.

Tom Boland is in St. Louis, as is also George W. Wilson, who, a dozen years ago, folded his tent and left Sioux City because the linotypes had come.

Ambrose M. Shilling writes from Gresham, Ore., to say that he has forsaken the trade of printer and is now proprietor of a drinking emporium in his own right. He inclosed a photograph of himself and place, and both bear evidences of prosperity.

Digitized by Google

M. F. ("Shorty") Landers is located in Belvidere, Ill.

U. G. Graham, an oldtime Boston printer, is now a resident of Council Bluffs; so is "Lottie" Lockmer.

"Jack" Downey was in Sioux City recently.

Arthur S. Hoag, who sojourned on the Missouri river in 1888, writes from Green Cove Springs, Fla., whither he has gone to stay the hand of death from consumption.

Sparhawk Hutchins, who worked in St. Louis and Milwaukee before the war, lives in Sioux City and makes a living out of the music business.

Charles H. Edwards is now a desk sergeant on the Sioux City police force. He worked in Milwaukee and Chicago forty years ago.

"Thirty" Carlin is supposed to be running a newspaper in Colorado.

Willis Pritchard is foreman of a job printing establishment in Fargo, N. D.

Homer C. Campbell is now a resident of Seattle. He visited his parents in Sioux City last month.

George W. Bradley is a St. Louis linotype operator.

Joe G. Rickard was last heard from in Butte, Mont.

A. A. ("Mush") Allburn is in Anaconda, Mont.

Frank E. Cleaves is in Butte, Mont.

"Shorty" McDonald, who saved the Mitchell (S. D.) corn palace by driving the cows away from the corn, is in Seattle.

Leighton Lawrence has just returned from a globe-trotting tour to the Pacific coast and San Francisco Examiner office.

I received from Hugh Saxon, at Los Angeles, a letter of such interest that I herewith submit it in full, eliminating the matter personal to myself:

"Shanty" House is an inmate of the soldiers' home near here, but generally is on furlough, holding down sits in many of the beach towns hereabouts. Crooked-Legged Bob Stockton has been here and gone, and is said to be in northern California. Tom McKinney left here last week to take a foremanship in San Luis Obispo, Cal. Bertie Hancock is in charge of a consumptive hereabouts, in the capacity of nurse and cicerone. Bertie regulates the size of the drinks his well-to-do patient must take. Johnnie Burke is married, has a charming daughter, is working in a job office here, owns a home, and it is a great sight to see John milking a cow, weeding garden and carrying other burdens of respectability. We buried Al, his brother, here about a year ago. Ed Hartley, who will never be forgotten on account of his combative oratory, also lies dead in the printers' plot. He died here of consumption six years ago. Ed Vinson was killed going out of here "lower case" about a year ago. Little Kid Nealon died several months ago in San Francisco, of consumption. Charlie Holden is an operator in 'Frisco. Hugh Saxon is assistant city editor of the Los Angeles Express, is married, owns a home, and often contemplates a trip to the Big Muddy at Omaha, to go down to the historic "Session Block," and sigh as he would recall the time when thirty slept in one room—T. Jeff McGovern's room—and the first one up was the best one dressed. "Reddy" Tupper is in Seattle. "Shorty" Jordan, one of the swiftest of travelers, is in Rochester, N. Y. Kid Lohman is running a German paper in Burlington, Iowa. The great triumvirate—McGovern, Delahoyd and Triche—are wide apart. I am told that McGovern died in Chicago; Triche is in Terre Haute, and Delahoyd is reading proof in Omaha. Kid Coe is in St. Louis, likewise Hart Hood. Billy Mulcahy is an expressman in Chicago. Kid Eckdahl is a soldier in the Philippines, or was, at last accounts. Kid Sloan is dead in South Carolina. Tim O'Brien is in Chicago. Jack Downey and Kit Carson have dropped clean out of sight. Dick Deadeye Ewell is traveling up and down this coast. He doesn't follow the business any more—just travels. Skinny Hines is dead. Gus Saunders is running a restaurant in Newark, N. J. Frank Heimback (Fascinating Frank) is in Jackson, Miss., and—and—this will hold me for a while. We have other rounders here from all parts of the globe, but none like the old Missouri river philosophers, who many times would awake in some car, not given to undue haste, not knowing even what state they were in, and often would sleep 'neath "the shade of the old apple tree" and throw their shoes in the air and knock their breakfasts down. C. C. Stewart, a one-time foreman in Sioux City, was reading proof for me here about a year ago, but now is in Sacramento, Cal. Some printers who were pretty well known on the Missouri river twenty years ago, who are dead are: Bert Chandler, went to sleep on track at Nicholls Junction, Mo.—train cut his head off; Larry True, killed going out of Cincinnati by brakeman and body thrown in river; Shorty Fredericks, also accidentally killed; George McFadden, fell between cars going out of Topeka; Kid Page, froze to death waiting for a train at Springfield, Ill.; Kid De Jarnatt, the swift, drowned at Memphis; Peter B. Lee, died at Lincoln, Neb.; and Kid Maybry is dead; Kid Carrier was distributed along forty miles of track on the Santa Fe road, near Las Vegas, N. Mex.

Where is Jim McClure? A. D. SCOUGAL.

THE I. T. U. BUTTON.

The union button of the International Typographical Union is the circle of true brotherhood. Its title is significant in a world sense, for it implies the golden rule, printed on a white ground of incandescent purity. Its inner circle, dominated by the term "Typographical," is the index of character. The blue black shines as the center of conservatism, for apart from its design, the one word "Copyright" signifies steadiness, caution and judgment. This union button glows with the sunshine of progress. It is fraught with tender recollections. All the vivid personnel of the oldtime prints, who fought a battle royal for the living wage and the shorter workday, is engraved on its face. It is an honor proudly worn by the veteran. It is the educator of the young. It is the disciplinarian of the outsider, and the persistent, insistent, aggressive and progressive foe of the radical opponents of organized labor. It marks the day of the written agreement, for its cardinal tenets are bounded by good will between employer and employe. It is the influence for good.

The union button of the International Typographical Union is bright with the sweetness of living. The consciousness of doing right for the well being of mankind animates its wearer. It brings blessings, and with it gives pride, joy, happiness, comfort, cheerfulness and love—all wrapped up in its refining influence for mankind. It stands for elevation pure and simple. It is beautified by morality, and brightened by humanity. It glows with humanism. It is blazoned by heroism. Nay, who shall not say that it shines with spirituality? Apart from its material influence—found in its refining, uplifting golden-lettered title—its virtues are many. It tingles the blood, for there is inspiration in its eight-hour-day movement. It is the moving force that preserves the future. It is the symbol of emancipation, progress and efficiency. It marks the development of the service. It is the button of good citizenship, the very embodiment of conservative men.

Digitized by Google

The union button of the International Typographical Union is full of the reputation that comes from skilled labor's glory. Liberty, independence and contentment is its trinity. It incarnadines the heavens of sentiment. It helps to shape our lives; to educate our members; to spread the light; to help us repudiate the machine; to study the economics of the day, and to bind its wearers in mutual interchange of thought. The keynote of its character harmonizes with everything that is divine. It is the acme of co-operation, affiliation and the federation of common interests. It deprecates vicious legislation, and shines with the one word "protection." It is the indomitable foe of the open shop, and stands resolute for better wages and better conditions. Wear the button, therefore, oh! my brothers, for it is manly so to do. Stand by the platform of the eight-hour day. Help in the general movement, for that button makes of you an individual organizer. And a triple blessing will descend upon the good old printer who carriers the sign for a betterment of conditions. Enough said.

CHARLES DARIDGE HEMMING,
Scranton, Pa. Newswriters No. 5.

ITHACA, N. Y.

Since our correspondent's last report we have taken in six new members, which makes our membership fifty-nine.

The typothetæ agents that have visited Ithaca for printers have found the city so well organized that their car fare and trouble coming here were wasted indeed. The teapot ads for printers in our local dailies were made worthless by No. 379's advertisement underneath, warning printers in the surrounding towns of the strike, conditions, etc.

Ithaca having arranged for eight hours, by our agreement which expires August next, at our last meeting responded with one-half its assessment fund collected up to date, and has forwarded it to International Typographical Union; the boys of No. 379 watch with interest the battle around us, and flush with pride at the manhood displayed and the way our sister unions are standing true to eight hours and the closed shop.

By the way, boys, have you ever noticed that the open shop is fast becoming the home for the riff-raff and bob-tails, incompetents, etc.?

Do we, as members, do all we can to convince the "prints" that come here that when they work in open shops wages are generally lowest and conditions the worst?

By the way, the only free wage earners today are those who hold union membership.

No. 379 has to report its first death, that of William W. Van Slyke, foreman for years of the Ithaca Daily Journal job department. "Van" was a good workman, a good citizen, and was fast becoming educated to the benefits and justice of the cause of unionism.

Since my last report No. 379 has lost one of its charter members, he having cast his lot with the Auburn (N. Y.) typos—James F. Shea.

Frank M. Hall has been elected secretary-treasurer in place of J. Wesley Tree, resigned.

M. J. Watkins, No. 379's vice-president, and also president of the central labor union here, has been elected delegate, representing the state federation at Pittsburg.

At our last meeting it was voted to have framed and placed in central labor hall the picture of the Union Printers' Home.

The burning question of the day—eight hours!
It is in sight, for right and justice always win.
Personal work for each one of us.

THEO. HASENJAGER.

CLEBURNE, TEXAS.

A little over two months from this date and the agony will be over. Eight hours will, we predict, constitute a day's work in every city and town where an International Typographical Union charter exists, and printers will at last have commenced, in part, at least, to live as nature fitted all men to live. This writer can not conceal a feeling of pride because of the ease with which this glorious result was brought about in his home town, and only hopes and believes that the same happy condition awaits those just at present less fortunately situated. A little patience and time are necessary—nothing more.

Few traveling printers visit Cleburne, but those who do tarry here are never given the "marble heart."

Paul Murray, formerly of Topeka, Kan., but later operator for the Morning Review at this place, went to Austin last week, where he will probably remain for the winter.

Some weeks ago the state federation of labor held an important and interesting session at Denison, being largely attended by delegates from every portion of the state. F. N. Groves, state secretary for that body, and president of Cleburne Typographical Union No. 303, was delegate from this city, and his report of the proceedings of the federation may prove of interest to many readers of THE JOURNAL. Mr. Groves made a highly encouraging report of the deliberations of the Denison meeting, and gave a glowing account of the great and lasting good accomplished, stating among other things that the attendance was much larger on this occasion than at any former meeting. A splendid program, interesting and appropriate, was carried out, and the visitors were accorded royal treatment and gracious hospitality by the citizens of Denison. A grand ball was provided by the board of trade, and an address of welcome by the mayor of Denison won the friendship and respect of the visitors and made them feel that they were indeed welcome. A gratifying feature was the complete harmony prevailing among officers and delegates during the entire session. Official reports gave evidence of a stronger federation than at any time in the past. In all, thirty-three resolutions were adopted. The legislative board reported the passage of four out of six bills presented to the legislature of this state, with the remaining two by no means permanently defeated. Opposing corporations offered eleven bills for consideration; not one passed.

Digitized by Google

In conclusion, the delegate stated that today unionism stood higher in the state of Texas than ever before, and was constantly on the upgrade. An encouraging feature is, that a broad-minded spirit and disposition to co-operate one with the other is prevalent to a degree hitherto unknown, and, best of all, this feeling is confined to no particular class of working people; all are equal.

At the conclusion of Mr. Groves' report (very briefly outlined herein) the union, by a rising vote, extended thanks to that gentleman for valuable services rendered.

At our last meeting it was unanimously voted that no ready-print stuff coming from non-union shops at Dallas should be a part of any Cleburne paper bearing the union label. Our executive committee at once notified all local publishers of this action, and ready-print literature is a scarce article in Cleburne town. LONNIE ADAMS.

MAILERS' TRADE DISTRICT UNION.

Notice has been received at this office to the effect that the Indianapolis mailers were the first to appoint a machine committee, and D. Jesse is chairman of that committee.

Again I am instructed to notify all locals that January 1, 1906, is the time for the inauguration of the eight-hour day, and all mailers are to come under this law, and assist others who are unfortunate enough to work nine and ten hours a day.

According to reports sent out from International Typographical Union headquarters, we see that new eight-hour agreements are being signed almost daily. Many think here in Boston that this section will be selected as the battleground, and all efforts will be put in here, and a prolonged fight is anticipated, but the members of No. 13 are preparing themselves, and a big eight-hour demonstration was held in Faneuil hall on Monday evening, October 13, 1905, when several prominent speakers discussed this subject at great length.

The chairman of the eight-hour committee of the Boston mailers is William J. Ambrose, and he is using his best influences in behalf of the eight-hour proposition.

Two New York mailers have arrived in Boston recently, and have done very well so far. A letter from Secretary Schmidt, of Buffalo, informs me that the mailers of that city are beginning to show some spirit of activity, and that I may hear something good from there before long.

The following locals have paid their per capita for October: Boston, Denver, St. Louis, Toronto; and New York for September.

All locals should insist that "inserting" papers is a part of the mailing trade, and should not allow it to go on the outside. All parts of a newspaper should be handled in the different mailing departments the same as any other branch of work done.

Recent reports from Kansas City are to the effect that, although battered some, we are still upon earth. Secretary Masters' indications are that with a little more time they will be in line with any of our sister locals.

Treasurer Brewer reports that Toronto is progressing along all right, and we are made to believe him, owing to the lovely way we were treated while in the Canadian borders.

Boston, Mass. ROBERT T. ALLEN.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.

At the September meeting of No. 141 the twentieth anniversary of the granting of a charter to a little bunch of craftsmen by President M. R. H. Witter and Secretary E. S. McIntosh, of the International Typographical Union, on September 23, 1885, was fittingly observed. A short business session was held, at which the report of the eight-hour committee was made, which, owing to its splendid nature, acted as an excellent prelude to that which was to follow. Immediately after adjournment the invited guests were ushered in by the excellent committee of arrangements, T. M. Long, S. Gerstenlauer and M. L. Weaver, and they comprised employers, honorary members and many friends. President A. A. Heller held ticket No. 1 of the program, and his address of welcome was ample to cause all to feel at home, even though he was accused of having a "set" speech. The next number was "An Historical Sketch of No. 141." This began in a "blacksmith shop" and ended in a "fizzle," and the writer will positively not tell who was responsible for it. "Reminiscences," was the part played by that honorary of all honorary members, Elmer E. Persun, city editor of the Sun. What "Petey" does not know of No. 141's early history would not be worth writing. His tribute to the departed tourist, his account of attending the Buffalo convention in 1887 as our first delegate, and many other incidents, both humorous and pathetic, were well received, and his only worry seemed to be to get the words to fit in the line properly. The Rev. William Charles Hogg, pastor of the First Presbyterian church and fraternal delegate to labor organizations in the Northumberland Presbytery, was then called upon. He at once brought up the question of set speeches, and felt unprepared, but he wasn't, and kept up a running fire of good things that we never tire of. Then came "Reminiscent" talks by a long list of our earlier members, including W. M. Volkmer, Levi P. Irvin, Dr. Albra Baker, Dr. W. P. Logue, J. J. Galbraith, E. T. Wolf, E. E. Schuyler, W. J. C. Greevy, Cyrus Heller and S. Gerstenlauer.

Of the fourteen charter members four still remain upon our active list, three are honorary members, three hold cards in other jurisdictions and the rest have answered the call of "30."

The letter of Manager Lamade, of Pennsylvania Grit, who was attending the State Editorial Association meeting in Pittsburg, was received with applause. It expressed sorrowfulness at being forced to miss the celebration and was full of best wishes for our future welfare, and hope that the present friendly relations between employer and employe might continue through many years to come.

Digitized by Google

Refreshments were served, consisting of Harrinton's best, our own make and blue label brands.

Eight hours—well, I guess. Committee reports negotiations practically concluded and about all signed, and No. 141 expects to be in the successful column before this gets to press.

The ministers here and all over are just more than getting upon the right side of the union man. There's a subject for some more advertising by Toasted Dough and Molasses Gripe Nuts Christian Worker Post.

Our country printers are standing by us nobly. Up to this writing we have not heard of one who has answered the milk and honey advertisements.

On Tuesday morning, October 17, Joe E. Chambers, a member of No. 141, departed this life, aged thirty-five years. Mr. Chambers was well and favorably known as the actor-printer, having appeared often before local audiences in delightful skits. He was a member of the "Musical Mokes," which has had some extensive and varied experiences. He came to the city from Mifflinburg, Pa., was an expert linotype operator, had a host of friends, all of whom join with us in extending our heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved widow and children. Death came after a long period of sickness caused by diabetes. S. HERMAN ALTER.

TACOMA, WASH.

Out here on the coast we are watching the progress of the eight-hour struggle with considerable gratification at the splendid results so far achieved. The last meeting of No. 190 instructed the president to congratulate the executive council on the winning fight being made, and to pledge our support to the extent of our resources. We've had eight hours for eight years, and we know enough to hang on to a good thing when we get it.

In August an increase in our job scale from $3 to $3.50 per day, and in our news scale from $4 and $4.50 to $4.50 and $5 was asked for. Employers demurred, offering, instead, to sign for one, two or three years, the old scale, with foremen given power to pay all superior workmen a higher rate; in other words, the new scale. The union accepted the proposal for one year, and October 1 new contracts became effective. Seven-eighths of all regular employes, news and job, were raised by the foremen to the new rates of 50 cents higher. Both employers and employes seem satisfied with the peaceful and satisfactory solution arrived at.

One of our oldtimers, Robert E. Fuller, left us in September. Bob was foreman of the Tacoma News for eight or ten years. Another longtime Tacoma printer, Richard P. Milne, succeeded to the position; and still another, about ten years ago foreman of the same paper, C. A. Buchanan, has just returned from San Francisco. I have called these boys oldtimers, but really there isn't an old man in the bunch. Mr. Cassidy, of Spokane, dropped in a night or two ago to shake hands with friends. He has been in Spokane so long—ever since he left Tacoma—that I suppose they call him an oldtimer over there now. He looks as jolly as ever.

I've been reading the big fat October JOURNAL, and it's apparent everybody had his or her money's worth in Toronto. One correspondent, in paying his compliments to the gentler sex in attendance, said "God bless the ladies" so many times he made me jealous.

Hurrah for the eight-hour stand-patters!

CHARLES PERRY TAYLOR.

EIGHT HOURS 'TIS.

In looking over a Sunday paper I find the following in a brief history of the labor movement: "The first national trade union in the United States was formed by the journeymen printers in 1850, and this subsequently became the International Typographical Union, and rapidly spread till it embraced every state and the Dominion of Canada. The rapid growth of this organization soon led to a like organization in other lines." We are proud of this fact of the past, but we can swell with pride at the present. The membership of the International Typographical Union is being tried in the eight-hour movement and not found wanting, and no doubt surprised many with the way they responded to the call from the officers, as it had been stated that the majority of the members were not in favor of it. No, they don't show it. No, they didn't want it—only they thought they did. From the many reports some people had another think coming.

The fact remains that the eight-hour day is a progressive move and has come to stay. It is only in line with the march of industrial development. We can go back, and not so very many years, when the same arguments were advanced against the reducing of the workday from twelve to ten hours and from ten to nine. One of these, which is used frequently in the agitation for an eight-hour day, is (by the way, it ought to be patented) "that in a shorter workday the workingmen would find more time to spend in the saloon to get drunk." Whoever thought of that deserves a tablet in the hall of fame. The following was taken from a speech delivered by an official connected with the Panama canal commission:

> I believe the eight-hour law was intended not merely for our own people, who obtained the immediate personal benefit of it, but it was intended that, as an employer of labor everywhere upon the habitable globe, the United States should hold itself out as an advanced model. But I believe, my friends, that that ruling will not cost the government of the United States one dollar.

That sounds more like it. With the improved machinery that doubles the amount of work done, and labor-saving devices, something should be done in the matter of shorter hours of work to balance this. At the American Federation of Labor convention some years ago the following was a part of the committee report and should appeal to all fairminded people: There is no movement of more value to the working people than that which will lighten the burden of those who are overworked and underpaid and which will give employment to those who are searching in vain for a better chance to live. The realization of the eight-hour day to them means better food and better raiment, happier homes, better citizens, a nobler manhood and a higher civilization. As we approach this question we realize fully the magnitude of the forces arrayed against us, the indifference of the working people themselves, their old-time prejudices and the many dissensions which divide them." The typographical unions of the country are now on the firing line; the issue and battle were forced by the enemy. Shall we retreat? No, not now. P. H. McMahon.

Digitized by Google

North Adams, Mass.

CLEVELAND, OHIO.

Have you changed your eight-day clock to an eight-hour one?

See that the label is also on your printing.

It is queer that the employing job printers should make such a resistance against granting the eight-hour day to their help. Why, the newspaper publishers here never as much as hesitated when the request was made of them. The answer to this question is very simple, and in a few words: It all depends upon the kind of men you work for and the spirit of the men you have to deal with and come in contact with. A resisting proprietor will show his greed for money, and think a man who works for a living has no rights, only to exist for his special benefit. He can come down to the office at 10 A. M., plank his feet up on his desk, sit back, light his cigar, and say to himself: "Now, slaves, work away." You earn $100 for him, he gives you perhaps $10 for your share of it. He looks wise, and you do the work. You, job men, not only do the work, but you build up his institution and make him wealthy. Do not think for a minute he is in the business for his health or for the pleasure of it.

I often laugh at one excuse of the proprietors of the job end of the business in regard to competition in prices on jobs. Just think of it, they have an organization of their own and can not keep up prices! I guess they think we men ought to do the same. Well, they have found out that our organization is not built that way. Don't you think so?

The Detroit strikebreaker who committed suicide in Cleveland in September perhaps thought that Satan had a strike on, and the chances for ratting there were better.

Fourteen were initiated at our October meeting.

Twelve men are still out at the Gillman plant.

By all means keep that raincoat. It might be useful on Pike's Peak.

The Sunday afternoon union label socials have started in for the winter. Do not fail to attend them and bring your families with you.

Get into the wagon supported by Colorado "springs" and it won't jar you.

Joseph Weiner.

In Memoriam

CHARLES H. HYDE.

Charles H. Hyde died on Monday, September 11, at St. Mary's Hospital, Brooklyn, of diabetes and gangrene, after a painful operation which resulted in the amputation of one of his legs, causing his death.

Mr. Hyde was born in New York, in the early 50's, served as apprentice to the Hasford Printing Company, of New York city, and for the past twenty-five years has been employed as an assistant foreman to Edward B. Jones, of the Metropolitan Printing Company, Twenty-sixth street.

In the death of Mr. Hyde No. 6 has lost a steady, faithful, honest and upright member, one who was ever ready to assist his fellow man; a man who was loyal to unionism, never without the "Button," even in death. Mr. Hyde was a member of No. 6 about thirty years.

The members of the Metropolitan Printing Company's chapel extend their heartfelt sympathy to the relatives and friends of the deceased, and particularly to his little son Charles, a boy of seven years, who has been left alone in the world through his father's death.

Mr. Hyde was interred at Cypress Hills, on Wednesday, September 13, in the family plot.

E. W. SHERRARD.

At a meeting of Galveston Typographical Union No. 28, held October 1, 1905, the following resolutions were adopted upon the death of E. W. Sherrard:

Whereas, It has pleased the All Wise Ruler to remove from our midst our fellow member, E. W. Sherrard; therefore, be it

Resolved, That by his death we have lost a true and tried member of many years standing—one who was always ready to advance the welfare of the union.

Resolved, That we extend to the family of deceased our heartfelt sympathy.

Resolved, That in respect to his memory the charter of our union be draped in mourning for thirty days.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the union and a copy be sent to the family of our deceased brother.

JOHN M. ANDERSON.

Halifax (N. S.) Typographical Union No. 130 unanimously adopted the following at their regular meeting, held on October 7:

Whereas, The hand of death having removed from our midst our friend and fellow craftsman, John M. Anderson, we are desirous of testifying our love for his memory, and expressing an earnest sympathy with the household thus deprived of loving husband and father; therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is but a just tribute to the memory of the departed to say that in regretting his removal from our midst, we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our love and respect; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we sincerely condole with the family of the deceased on account of the visitation with which it has pleased Divine Providence

Digitized by Google

to afflict them, and commend them for consolation to Him who orders all things for the best, and whose chastisements are meant in mercy; therefore, be it

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the widow and family of our late brother, and our charter be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days; that they be inscribed upon the minutes of the meeting and published in our local papers, Acadian Recorder and Evening Mail. Also a transcript forwarded to THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL for publication.

E. S. M'MASTER.

Resolutions on the death of E. S. McMaster, adopted by Grand Forks Typographical Union No. 311:

Whereas, It has pleased an All-Wise Providence to remove from our midst one of our most active and beloved brother workmen, E. S. McMaster, a charter member of this union, and a man who had served his organization faithfully and well in all official capacities from its beginning in 1892; and,

Whereas, In his death Grand Forks Typographical Union No. 311 loses a wise counselor in the cause of unionism, whose character and workmanship had endeared him to his employer and all who knew him and labored with him; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we deeply mourn the demise of Brother McMaster, who, in the prime of life, was taken from among us August 15, 1905, causing a break in our ranks which will be hard to fill.

E. S. McMASTER.

Resolved, That we hereby extend to the bereaved widow and children our heartfelt sympathy in the loss of a kind husband and father; and, be it further

Resolved, That as a mark of respect to our departed brother, the charter of this union be draped in mourning for a period of sixty days; that a copy of these resolutions be furnished the widow of the deceased; that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this meeting, and a transcript forwarded to THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL for publication.

OSCAR DONAHO.

At a meeting of St. Louis Typographical Union No. 8, held October 1, 1905, the following resolutions were adopted by a rising vote:

Whereas, A regrettable accident has deprived us of the fellowship of our late associate, Oscar Donaho; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of St. Louis Typographical Union No. 8, feel keenly his absence from among us, and deplore his untimely death.

Resolved, That we extend to the bereaved family assurance of our heartfelt sympathy and such consolation as human hearts can offer upon an occasion such as this.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this chapel and that a copy thereof be presented to the stricken relatives, and another copy forwarded to THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL for publication.

ARTHUR J. AMOS.

The following resolutions were adopted by Mobile (Ala.) Union No. 27:

Whereas, The grim reaper, Death, has gathered into his garner our brother, Arthur J. Amos, on August 20, 1905.

Whereas, Mr. Amos was a loyal member of the union, a true friend and a loving husband and father; therefore,

Resolved, That we deplore his loss and extend to his family our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement.

Resolved, further, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to his family and also furnished to THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL.

EDWIN FULKERSON.

The following resolutions were adopted by Zanesville (Ohio) Union No. 199 on the death of Edwin Fulkerson:

Whereas, Death has invaded our ranks and taken from our midst our esteemed fellow member, Edwin Fulkerson; and,

Whereas, By his death Zanesville Typographical Union No. 199 has lost a true and faithful member; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we keenly feel the loss we have sustained and extend to the family of our deceased brother our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement.

Resolved, That, as a mark of respect, the charter of this union be draped for thirty days, a copy of these resolutions be furnished the family, and the same be spread upon the records of this union.

THE UNION BUTTON QUESTION.

In the October JOURNAL I saw an article from Mr. Page in regard to the advancement of the union button.

Most printers would wear a button if they had one, and some would not wear one at all, and if they were assessed on their cards for one there would be a big roar—not for the money, but for the principle. I think as good a plan as any would be for each local union to instruct the secretary to keep a supply of buttons on hand, say a half-dozen. I have asked several printers why they did not wear a button. "Oh! I don't know; never took the trouble to send for one." Asked if they would buy one if I would send for it. "Yes." And they did, and more are waiting for buttons now. This plan would cause no hard feeling among the members, and it works well here, as nearly every member of No. 271 has a button.

Boise, Idaho. E. R. THOMPSON.

HIS HISTORY.

An Indian Territory editor makes this frank remark: "Ten years ago we entered the newspaper business poor, but honest. We are still poor."—New York Sun.

Digitized by Google

Official Budget

THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL

ISSUED ON THE FIFTH OF EACH MONTH.

AT ROOMS 640-650 NEWTON CLAYPOOL BUILDING, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

J. W. BRAMWOOD, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the postoffice, Indianapolis, Ind., as second-class matter.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.—One dollar per annum to any part of the United States or Canada; foreign, $1.50 per annum; single copies, 10 cents each.

To insure prompt insertion, all official matter, communications and advertisements should reach this office BEFORE the TWENTIETH OF THE MONTH PRECEDING PUBLICATION.

Advertising rates made known on application. All letters and remittances should be addressed to the editor and publisher.

OFFICIAL BATTLE CRY OF THE I. T. U.

We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

Items for the official columns of THE JOURNAL should be prepared on a separate sheet, and the style of the paper followed as closely as possible. Such items should not be made a part of a letter dealing with other subjects, for if this is done the items are likely to be overlooked, even though the greatest care be exercised. Write as plainly as possible—especially proper names—using one side of the sheet only. Communications must in all instances be accompanied by the author's name and address. All official matter must be in the hands of the editor BEFORE THE TWENTIETH OF EACH MONTH, to insure insertion in the issue immediately following. The observance of the foregoing will tend to insure what is desired by all—promptness and accuracy in the publication of official matter.

THE JOURNAL MAILING LIST.

When a member requests a change in his JOURNAL address, he should give the name and number of the union with which he is affiliated, together with his present and former address.

Additions to the mailing list can only be made when received through the local secretary. Members not receiving the magazine should furnish the local secretary with their addresses.

Additions, corrections or alterations reported by local secretaries should be kept separate from other correspondence. When a member deposits his card, and his name is reported for the subscription list, the secretary should state where the member previously received THE JOURNAL, and give the name and number of the union with which he was affiliated. When a member draws his card, is suspended or expelled, or in any manner ceases to be an active member of the local, the secretary should request that his name be dropped from the mailing list.

A large number of those who take cards and remove to unorganized towns fail to renew their cards. To prevent loss in such instances, it has been decided that members holding cards, and located outside of the jurisdiction of a local union, must either deposit their cards with the nearest union and pay dues each month, or pay International dues in advance, in order to get THE JOURNAL. Where a card-holder pays his dues to the local in advance, a specific report should be made by the secretary upon the case, in order that the name can be placed on the list and the magazine sent to the member for the time for which dues have been paid.

The 25th of each month is the latest date upon which changes for the succeeding issue can be made on our mailing list.

Upon request, secretaries will be furnished with a copy of the list of their members to whom THE JOURNAL is being sent.

All correspondence regarding THE JOURNAL should be addressed to J. W. BRAMWOOD, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.

ADDRESSES WANTED.

Tony Comstock, send address to Al E. Overholtzer at Palm Beach, Fla.

W. A. Graves will please write to Sam B. Avery, 6 Bridge street, Worcester, Mass.

Arthur Schoeler, please send address to V. D. Grow, 810 Olive street, St. Louis, Mo.

Winfield Scott, please send address to L. T., 1306 Magazine street, New Orleans, La.

J. G. Hock, please write to your brother, Al Hock, 3 Boyle place, Fond du Lac, Wis.

J. W. Pinkney, or any one knowing his whereabouts, communicate with G. P. Makee, Portal, N. D.

Louis Poullain, send address to your brother, William Poullain, Beaumont, Texas. He is anxious to hear from you.

W. H. Holliday, formerly of St. Louis, communicate with Mrs. W. H. Holliday, 1429 North Seventh street, St. Louis, Mo.

Ben Ali Smith, or any one knowing his whereabouts, communicate with Mrs. Mary Smith, 1627 Southgate street, Louisville, Ky.

Albert E. Brown, Frank H. Millard, Gladwin Bland, Louis Layfield. Write your old friend "Strip," Miner Office, Butte, Mont.

Eugene C. Bennett will learn something to his advantage by communicating with Mrs. Bennett, 532 South Flower street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Charles E. Topf, or any one knowing his whereabouts, communicate with his mother, Betty Unmessig, Rural Route No. 4, Leavenworth, Kan.

Any one knowing the address of E. E. Garrison is requested to communicate with F. C. Birdsall, secretary Union No. 49, box 681, Denver, Colo.

Walter A. Reed, last heard of in New York city, or any one knowing his whereabouts, communicate with Mrs. S. Z. Reed, 598 School street, Lowell, Mass.

Andrew A. Latimer, F. B. Ulrich, W. Miller, Will R. Lounsbury, J. J. Douglas, George Thrasher, Ernst Crawford, John Underwood, C. E. Rippard, Fred Hoor (or Hoar), W. H. Goggin, C. B. Jennings, C. R. Stimson, Charles Hilsom, C. A. Hinsey, M. E. Haughton, Ralph L. Lewis, J. E. Rickard, D. V. Casey, Charles Williams, James Conner, ——— Towe, H. R. Knapp, Mrs. Lewis, care J. W. Lewis, Brown Glenwood, D. W. Hughes, C. S. Osborn, send addresses to J. W.

Digitized by Google

Bramwood, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind., and get mail.

A. J. Fitzsimmons, or any one knowing his whereabouts, is requested to communicate with W. C. Hewitt, room 2, Johnson building, Springfield, Ohio.

Cleve S. Wiley, send address to J. A. Hamilton, care Crescent, Orrville, Ohio, and get information regarding a handsome estate to which you have fallen heir.

William J. Berger, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio, or any one knowing his whereabouts, communicate with H. Johnson, suite 5, 374 Huron street, Cleveland, Ohio.

Charles Sharkey, last heard of in California, or any one knowing his whereabouts, communicate with Mrs. M. Herman, 17 Monmouth street, East Boston, Mass.

Any information concerning Will S. Abbott, who withdrew his card from Denver Union in May, 1903, will be thankfully received by his wife at 911 Sixteenth street, Denver, Colo.

Any one knowing the whereabouts of C. Clugston, W. H. Molton and J. W. Reynolds, will confer a favor by corresponding with William Abell, 93 Abbott street, Providence, R. I.

Any one knowing the present address of Allan Anderson, formerly of New York, will confer a great favor by writing his father, J. Anderson, care Evening Mail, New York city.

"Bud" Mathews, or his wife, Adah T. Mathews, last heard of in San Francisco, Cal., or any one knowing their whereabouts, communicate with Mrs. D. Ridenour, 1367 North Spaulding avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Information wanted of J. T. Moore; five feet four inches high, very stout, and had a limping gait, owing to paralysis of left side. Was at one time a member of Atlanta Union. Address his sister, Mrs. H. E. Orr, 428 Bute street, Norfolk, Va.

Wilford LeClaire, known as "Frenchy," died at Vicksburg, Miss., September 22, 1905. Any one knowing the whereabouts of the relatives of the deceased is requested to correspond with M. J. McAuliffe, jr., care Mississippi Printing Company, Vicksburg, Miss.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Card No. 93608, issued March 7, 1905, to L. A. Owen by Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood, has been lost. This certificate, if found or presented for deposit, should be returned to headquarters.

Card No. 77886, issued to J. A. Gillis by Peterborough Union No. 248, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to J. G. Perry, box 730, Peterborough, Ont.

Card No. 101427, issued by Valdosta Union No. 451 to Jack Powell, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to Charles R. Reid, 305 Jones street, Valdosta, Ga.

Card No. 80282, issued to A. Forest by Montreal Union No. 176 on July 31, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to J. Beckingham, box 734, Montreal, P. Q.

Card No. 93729, issued to W. J. Bishop by Lincoln Union No. 209, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to F. H. Hebbard, 1527 Washington street, Lincoln, Neb.

Card No. 85873, issued to R. S. Crawford by Marion Union No. 286, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to H. Charter, 413 North Branson street, Marion, Ind.

Card No. 94015, issued to Howard Christy by Chattanooga Union No. 89, September 26, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to John O'Brien, 820 Georgia avenue, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Secretary receiving card 33049 or 33050, issued by West Chester Union No. 466, please hold and communicate with R. Frank McCormick, secretary-treasurer No. 466, 509 South Church street, West Chester, Pa. These cards are missing from our book and are supposed to be in the possession of Gilbert O. Foraker, former secretary of this union, who absconded with the union funds.

UNIONS IN ARREARS OCTOBER 25.

Section 1, article ix, of the constitution, requires that: "International dues for each month shall be collected by subordinate unions and transmitted to the secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union before the twentieth of the succeeding month." Under this law the September per capita of all unions was due at headquarters not later than October 20. The following unions were delinquent on October 25, having failed to make their returns.

In this connection attention is directed to section 7, article vi, of the by-laws, which is as follows:

"Section 7. No funeral-benefit claim shall be allowed unless the deceased was possessed of a current working card at the time of his death, nor shall a funeral-benefit claim be allowed if, at the time of death, the union of which deceased was a member is in arrears for per capita tax to the International Union."

26, Petersburg.
67, Lockport.
83, Hebrew.
98, Bedford.
109, Pittsfield.
147, Ashland, Wis.
178, Geneva.
221, San Diego.
222, Montgomery.
225, McKeesport.
237, Sandusky.
264, Chillicothe.
266, Elkhart.
279, Alexandria, Ind.
282, Sterling.
293, Pensacola.
296, Lindsay.
297, Concord.
309, Columbus, Miss.
313, Texarkana.
339, Beaumont.
340, Nelson.
343, Fort Scott.
351, Sharon.
354, Edwardsville.
357, Parkersburg.
366, Berlin, Ont.
382, Salem, N. J.
383, Martins Ferry.
405, Santa Fe.
406, Mason City.
409, Lorain.
422, Mayaguez.
430, Baker City.
431, Manitowoc.
436, Clarksville.
437, Franklin.
438, New Decatur.
440, Selma.
445, Oswego.
451, Valdosta.
460, Chatham.
478, San Juan.
479, Centralia.
485, Fitzgerald.
486, Gloucester.
501, Moscow.
502, Crookston.
505, Clinton, Ill.
517, Gadsden.
519, Winchester.
527, Oelwein.
528, Eugene.
529, Norwalk, Conn.
534, Allentown.
537, Creston.
540, Monroe.
546, Polish.
551, Bozeman.
554, Hinton.
555, Dunkirk.
558, Natchez.
564, Mankato.
571, Chickasha.
574, Hot Springs.
579, St. Hyacinthe.
580, Marion, Ohio.
587, Guthrie.
591, Pekin.
592, Fort Collins.
604, Edmonton.
607, Millville.
608, Chanute.
617, Wallace.
621, Mayfield.
622, Millinocket.
627, Dover, N. H.
631, Idaho Falls.
635, Poplar Bluff.
647, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.
654, Aberdeen, S. D.

MAILERS.

4, Minneapolis.
13, Pittsburg.
14, Detroit.
22, Providence.
24, Buffalo.

NEWSPAPER WRITERS.

10, Montreal.

A WITTY but not over-industrious Celt was one of a street gang. A few minutes before noon, one day, he threw his shovel into the gutter, sat down on the curbstone, and proceeded to fill and light his pipe. Just then the superintendent of streets came around a corner and, seeing Pat, roared out: "Here! What are you throwing down your shovel for at this time of day?" "To cool it, sir-r," said Pat.—Ex.

Digitized by Google

CHARTERS ISSUED AND SURRENDERED.

ISSUED.

Lead (S. D.) No. 498—C. F. Sauerbrunn, C. T. Martin, A. W. Merrick, W. C. Benfer, Jess Shaff, G. A. Stout, W. G. Tamblyn, C. C. Jones.

Deadwood (S. D.) No. 636—L. G. Turck, H. F. Sofge, A. D. Landers, Emil Reuther, W. J. Secor, J. R. Warren, E. H. Culbertson, H. M. Knowles, W. H. Reese, Jesse Simmons, John H. Skinner, B. A. Brewster.

Washington (Iowa) No. 663—J. M. Thompson, Morton Sessler, Charles Sessler, A. E. Crim, John Mintier, O. A. Wolf, Dudley Allen, A. J. Crim, Lloyd Diller, N. R. Black.

Fredericton (N. B.) No. 664—G. P. Barrett, F. S. Lister, James White, F. H. Hazlett, F. A. Davies, W. E. Turvey, H. A. Lipsett, A. T. Finnamore.

Newton (N. J.) No. 665—W. J. Mohair, L. C. McKim, L. J. Kishpaugh, William Hendershott, J. A. McCarrick, J. F. Shaffer, C. L. Trudell, R. E. Foster, J. J. Little.

Moncton (N. B.) No. 666—T. W. Parker, G. B. Storey, L. M. Loftus, Alfred Legere, A. J. Boddington, Clifford Stultz, Victor Iqnowyce, Edward S. Scott, P. A. Bennett, P. D. Ayer, C. H. Blakney, Clarence Spooner.

SURRENDERED.

Lead (S. D.), etc., No. 498, Nanaimo (B. C.) No. 337, Greenville (Miss.) No. 553, Redlands (Cal.) No. 584.

THE DEATH ROLL.

ANDERSON, J. M.—At Halifax, N. S., October 4, 1905, of pyæmia. Age 67 years.

BAXTER, W. L.—At Detroit, Mich., September 21, 1905, of general paresis. Age 34 years.

BEATTIE, THOMAS—At Boston, Mass., September 19, 1905, of tuberculosis. Age 28 years.

BRIDGE, GEORGE—At Colorado Springs, Colo., September 27, 1905, of tuberculosis. Age 35 years.

CAIN, JOSEPH—At Newark, N. J., September, 15, 1905, of epilepticus. Age 50 years.

CURTIS, J. R.—At Beaver, Pa., September 24, 1905, of typhoid fever. Age 25 years.

DAUHARTY, A. W.—At Belleville, Ill., October 3, 1905; killed by train. Age 30 years.

DEGUEHERY, L. C.—At Grand Rapids, Mich., September 28, 1905, of paresis. Age 46 years.

DONAHO, OSCAR—At St. Louis, Mo., August 13, 1905; drowned. Age 28 years.

DOONA, THOMAS—At Washington, D. C., September 22, 1905, of tumor of stomach. Age 54 years.

DUNN, G. R.—At Terre Haute, Ind., September 23, 1905, of epilepsy. Age 37 years.

ERRETT, F. H.—At Cleveland, Ohio, September 16, 1905; suicide. Age 50 years.

FULKERSON, EDWARD—At Youngstown, Ohio, September 21, 1905, of complication of diseases. Age 38 years.

GORE, T. W.—At Los Angeles, Cal., October 5, 1905, of Bright's disease. Age 48 years.

HAMSON, J. M.—At Idaho Falls, Idaho, September 26, 1905, of hemorrhage of lungs. Age 23 years.

HUMMEL, G. H.—At Pittsburg, Pa., October 4, 1905, of paralysis. Age 40 years.

HYDE, C. H.—At New York, N. Y., September 11, 1905, of diabetes. Age 53 years.

LECLAIRE, WILFORD—At Vicksburg, Miss., September 23, 1905, of heart failure. Age 35 years.

MALONEY, ADDIE—At Clinton, Iowa, October 3, 1905, of tuberculosis. Age 30 years.

MATTINGLY, J. T.—At Washington, Ind., September 30, 1905, of dropsy. Age 48 years.

OLMSTEAD, H. W.—At Indianapolis, Ind., September 24, 1905, of paresis. Age 55 years.

PEARSON, WILLIAM—At Princeton, Ind., September 19, 1905, of Bright's disease. Age 28 years.

PFEIFER, AMBROSE—At Columbus, Ohio, September 23, 1905, of consumption. Age 44 years.

PHILLIS, R. T.—At Beaver Pa., September 22, 1905, of consumption. Age 29 years.

REBHANN, J. L.—At New York, N. Y., October 12, 1905, of heart failure. Age 50 years.

REILLY, WILLIAM—At New York, N. Y., September 3, 1905, of pistol wound. Age 62 years.

SCHNIER, JOSEPH—At New York, N. Y., September 30, 1905, of pleurisy. Age 40 years.

SHERRARD, E. W.—At Galveston, Texas, September 13, 1905, of heart disease. Age 56 years.

STORM, F. J.—At Milwaukee, Wis., September 10, 1905, of carcinoma of œsophagus. Age 44 years.

TAYLOR, G. M.—At New York, N. Y., September 29, 1905, of gunshot wound. Age 43 years.

TEMPLE, FREDERICK—At Toronto, Ont., September 24, 1905, of peritonitis. Age 33 years.

THOMAS, A. A.—At Memphis, Tenn., October 7, 1905, of endocarditis. Age 27 years.

TUFTS, JOHN—At Baltimore, Md., October 13, 1905, of cirrhosis of liver. Age 65 years.

VAUGHT, J. E.—At Indianapolis, Ind., September 28, 1905, of apoplexy. Age 72 years.

UNION PRINTERS' HOME.

The following is a record of the admissions and departures for the month of September:

ADMITTED.

933—Jeremiah G. McCarty, New York No. 6; age 63 years; admitted September 6, 1905.

932—John Taylor, New York No. 6; age 61 years; admitted September 8, 1905.

940—Erdmann, H. A., San Antonio No. 172; age 38 years; admitted September 10, 1905.

937—Edgar G. Smith, Albuquerque No. 304; age 44 years; admitted September 13, 1905.

944—W. H. McBride, Nashville No. 20; age 63 years; admitted September 20, 1905.

VACATED.

918—A. B. Stindle, Atchison No. 113; age 39 years; admitted July 10, 1905; vacated September 3, 1905; failing health.

890—L. D. Waltmade, Chicago No. 16: age 34 years; admitted April 15, 1905; vacated September 20, 1905; able to work.

759—Chester Masten, Buffalo No. 9; age 46 years; admitted November 5, 1904; vacated September 23, 1905; wanted to go home.

EXPELLED.

826—Oscar McNay, New York No. 6; age 42 years; admitted August 11, 1904; expelled September 16, 1905; interference with employes.

914—Elmer J. Shepherd, New York No. 6; age 41 years; admitted June 26, 1905; expelled September 16, 1905; engaging with money making enterprise.

DIED.

787—Robert Middleton, Seattle No. 202; age 72 years; admitted April 11, 1904; died September 4, 1905; progressive paralysis.

Number of inmates September 1..... 140
Number of inmates September 30..... 139
Average number for the month..... 140

CHARLES DEACON, Superintendent.

FREDDIE: "I want a dime for being good."

Mrs. Johnson: "Why, your little brother said he would be good for a nickel."

Freddie: "I'll punch that kid as soon as I catch him. I always said he was a scab."—The Telegram.

Digitized by Google

APPLICATIONS FROM UNORGANIZED TOWNS.

Amherst, N. S.—Beverly Coggin, age 24 years; at trade nine years; learned trade in Sussex, N. B.

Camden, Ohio—Edward Brower, age 20 years; at trade four years; learned trade in Camden, Ohio.

Cicero, Ind.—Clarence M. Ervin, age 20 years; at trade four years; learned trade in Pennville, Sharpsville and Cicero, Ind.; worked in Noblesville and Westfield, Ind.

Floresville, Texas—H. C. Thompson, age 60 years; at trade forty years; learned trade in San Antonio, Texas; worked in Lake Charles and San Antonio.

Fulton, Ky.—R. C. Baird, age 22 years; at trade four years; learned trade in Fulton, Ky.; worked in Rives, Tenn.

Lake Odessa, Mich.—Claude Phelps, age 24 years; at trade six years; learned trade in Tekonsha, Mich.; worked in Colon, Mich.

Madera, Cal.—J. Emory Ladd, age 29 years; at trade thirteen years; learned trade in Madera, Cal.

Mt. Vernon, Ill.—Ira E. Geiger; age 39 years; at trade twenty-one years; learned business in Rushville, Ind.; formerly a member of the union but allowed card to lapse.

New Roads, La.—William H. Fowler, age 32 years; at trade twenty-one years; learned trade in Oxford, N. C.; worked in Donaldsonville and New Roads, La.

Pawhuska, Okla.—W. B. Knight, age 43 years; at trade twenty-two years; learned trade in Orrville, Ohio; worked in Raton, N. M., Holdenville and Quinton, I. T.

Piedmont, Mo.—William H. Lewis, age 26 years; at trade ten years; learned trade in Potosi, Mo.; always worked in unorganized towns.

Sparta, Tenn.—R. P. Baker, age 56 years; at trade forty years; learned trade in McMinnville, Tenn.

Tifton, Ga.—Alfred E. Hay, age 38 years; at trade twenty-five years; learned trade in England; worked in Savannah and Macon, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla.; formerly a member, but allowed card to lapse while working in country towns.

Vernon, Texas—Homer Harris, age 18 years; at trade five years; learned trade in Bowie, Texas.

Westfield, N. J.—J. W. Wall, age 29 years; at trade ten years; learned trade in Westfield, N. J.

Winchester, N. H.—Jesse H. Buffum; age 25 years; at trade four years; always worked in unorganized towns.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

5, Columbus, Ohio—Frank Kyle, age 38 years; at trade eighteen years; formerly a member of Lancaster (Ohio) Union. William Schaeneman, age 21 years; at trade four years; learned trade in Akron, Ohio.

8, Denver, Colo. (Mailers)—J. W. Menard, of Pueblo, Colo.; worked in Colorado Springs, Colo.

12, Butte, Mont. (Newspaper Writers)—Frank Conway, worked in Dillon and Missoula, Mont. W. E. Ellsworth, worked on Sun, New York, N. Y., Anaconda and Great Falls, Mont.

17, New Orleans, La.—E. T. Duckert, age 45 years; at trade twenty years; learned trade in New Orleans. John H. Harrison, age 37 years; at trade ten years; learned trade in New Orleans. Horace F. Massie, age 31 years; at trade ten years; learned trade in New Orleans. Lester Walker, age 22 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in New Orleans.

32, Norfolk, Va.—J. H. Burroughs, age 40 years; learned trade in Norfolk; formerly a member of Norfolk Union. J. D. Moore, worked in Jacksonville, Fla., and towns in North Carolina.

35, Evansville, Ind.—A. C. Sheldon, age 29 years; at trade twelve years; learned trade in Cannelton, Ind.

38, Haverhill, Mass.—Herbert L. Poore, age 28 years; at trade fourteen years; worked in Franklin, N. H.

56, Stockton, Cal.—Dalon A. Alexander, age 29 years; at trade twelve years; learned trade in Wilmington, N. C.; never worked in a union town.

66, Portland, Me.—John A. Woodward, age 50 years; at trade thirty-four years; learned trade in Barre, Mass.; worked in Boston, Mass. Joseph L. Whilley, age 32 years; at trade seventeen years; learned trade in Boston, Mass.; worked in Augusta, Me.

75, Burlington, Iowa—E. H. Stivers, age 24 years; learned trade in Brainerd; worked in Portland, Ore., and St. Joseph, Mich.

78, Fort Wayne, Ind.—Walter M. Kear, age 26 years; at business for eleven years; never worked in a union town. Henry C. Hille, age 30 years; at trade three and one-half years; learned business in Dayton, Ohio, and Fort Wayne, Ind. O. S. Humphrey, age 27 years; at trade fourteen years; served apprenticeship at Van Wert, Ohio; never worked in a union town.

82, Colorado Springs, Colo.—O. E. Meyer, age 32 years; worked eight years in Red Bud, Chester and Pinckneyville, Ill.; never worked in union town. S. S. Shippy, age 24 years; worked nine years in Lamoni, Leon, and Davis City, Iowa; never worked in union town.

87, Houston, Texas—Robert M. Auderer, age 24 years; at trade nine years; learned trade in Houston. W. C. Janes, age 30 years; at trade seventeen years; learned trade in Crocket, Texas; worked in Wharton, Crocket and Anderson, Texas; never worked in a union town. Carl Clark, age 21 years; at trade six years; learned trade in Ottumwa, Iowa; never applied for admission before. George E. Morin, age 21 years; at trade five years; worked in Galveston, Texas, and Little Rock, Ark.

89, Chattanooga, Tenn.—G. T. Proxmire, age 30 years; at trade fourteen years; learned trade in Sunbright, Tenn.; worked in Chattanooga, Dayton and Kingston, Tenn. W. T. Terry, age 24 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in Smithville, Tenn.; formerly a member of Chattanooga Union, but allowed card to lapse while working in country towns. L. S. Champitte, age 24 years; at trade six years; learned trade in Cleveland, Tenn.

91, Toronto, Ont.—W. H. Baxter, age 21 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in Prescott, Ont. John Holt, age 21 years; learned trade in Toronto. John T. Saunders, age 38 years; learned trade in England; worked in Minneapolis, Minn., and Winnipeg, Man.; formerly a member of Winnipeg Union. Jacob Markowitz, age 28 years; at trade twelve years; learned trade in Roumania; worked in New York, N. Y. W. C. Whitney, age 21 years; at trade five years; worked in Iroquois, Ont.

93, Macon, Ga.—S. S. Speer, formerly a member of Pensacola Union, but allowed card to lapse.

101, Washington, D. C.—Newton S. Cologne, age 49 years; was a member up to 1896; has not worked at the business since.

115, Salt Lake City, Utah—H. E. Westgate, age 32 years; at trade fifteen years; learned trade in Sycamore, Ill.; worked in DeKalb, Ill.; never made application before. Edward L. Foster, age 18 years; learned trade in Salt Lake City; for apprentice membership.

137, Johnstown, Pa.—Edgar Morrison, at trade five years in Mount Pleasant and Greensburg, Pa. Richard Duffey, at trade fourteen years; allowed card to lapse while working in country towns.

138, Austin, Texas—George Keahey, age 33 years; at trade seventeen years; learned trade in Georgetown, Texas. W. B. Collins, age 26 years; learned trade and worked ten years at the business in Llano, Texas. C. R. English, age 38 years; at trade ten years; has worked in Bonham, Sherman and Texarkana, Texas.

139, Stratford, Ont.—G. R. McBrien, age 18

Digitized by Google

years; at trade five years; learned trade in Clinton, Ont.; worked in Niagara Falls, Ont. Laurie Warner, age 19 years; at trade six years; learned trade in Barrie, Ont.; worked in Tottenham and Thornbury, Ont.

148, Wichita, Kan.—Sam Ridenour, age 31 years; at trade eighteen years; formerly held card, but lost it some years ago; has been working in unorganized towns.

158, Springfield, Mo.—Oscar P. Sisson, age 29 years; at trade seven years; worked in Butler and St. Louis, Mo. E. J. Cline, age 25 years; at trade five years; worked in Amoret, Mo., Paola, Kan., and Kansas City, Mo.

176, Montreal, P. Q.—R. Malkin, worked in Tweed, Ont., and Buffalo, N. Y. George Arnold, age 28 years; at trade five years; learned trade in Montreal. George Colburn, age 36 years; at trade twenty years; learned trade in Rockville, Conn.; worked in Rouses Point, N. Y.

182, Akron, Ohio—A. T. Jones, age 28 years; at trade twelve years; learned the business in Canterburg, Ohio; has worked in Johnstown, Pa.; made application for membership in Columbus, Ohio, in 1899.

202, Seattle, Wash.—Mrs. Nellie Pellette, age 23 years; learned trade in Ashland, Wis.

207, Eureka, Cal.—A. J. Gignac, age 34 years; at trade four years; learned trade in Placerville, Cal.

219, Canton, Ohio—Hugh Conkling, age 23 years; at trade ten years; learned trade in Ligonier, Ind.; worked in Otterbein, Oxford and Veedersburg, Ind.

230, Danville, Ill.—L. S. Maddock, age 33 years; at trade eighteen years; worked in Covington, Ky.; Columbus, Tenn.; Mattoon, Ill., and Augusta, Ga.

244, Cumberland, Md.—W. E. Humrickhouse.

270, New Castle, Pa.—T. C. McCleary, age 62 years; learned trade in New Castle; formerly a member of Galveston (Texas) Union.

271, Boise, Idaho—R. O. Bacon, formerly a member, but allowed card to lapse. W. K. Rutter, formerly a member, but allowed card to lapse.

283, Oklahoma City, Okla.—E. Hultsch, age 36 years; at trade seven years; learned trade in Oto, Iowa; worked in Cherokee, Iowa; Conby, Minn., and St. Charles, Mo. Orvis W. Anthony, at trade five years; worked in Franklin, Neb., Enid, Okla., Chickasha, I. T., and Hennessey, Okla. Margaret Gray, learned trade in Gazette office, St. Louis, Mo.; formerly a member of Oklahoma City Union. Elmer Carson, at trade four years in unorganized towns; for apprentice membership. J. B. Thoburn, age 39 years; formerly a member of No. 283, but allowed card to lapse while in other business. J. F. Stevens, age 26 years; learned trade on News, Champaign, Ill.; worked in Casey, Ill. W. M. Carr, age 32 years; at trade twenty-two years; formerly a member of Indianapolis Union, but allowed card to lapse while working in unorganized towns. Shirley Chapman, age 31 years; formerly a member of defunct El Reno (Okla.) Union. Thomas Hennessey, age 20 years; learned trade in El Reno, Okla. G. G. Lightsey, age 26 years; learned trade in Marion, Ala.; worked in country towns in Texas. G. F. Solburg, age 26 years; learned trade in Salina, Kan.; formerly a member of New York Union, but allowed card to lapse while not working at the trade. Jake Rotchslein, age 18 years; learned trade in Chickasha. John C. Cassady, age 22 years; learned trade in Cheyenne, Okla. D. K. Stauffer, age 24 years; learned trade in Columbus, Kan.; worked in El Reno and Lawton, Okla. James A. Neal, age 21 years; for apprentice membership.

286, Marion, Ind.—W. Arthur Nall, age 24 years; learned trade at Philadelphia, Pa.; worked in Detroit, Mich.

299, Tampa, Fla.—Hewett Hill, age 44 years; learned trade in Oxford, Ohio; worked in Eustis and Gainesville, Fla. P. W. Carr, age 51 years; at trade twenty-four years; learned trade in Durant, Miss.

316, North Adams, Mass.—Henry J. Valade, age 18 years; at trade four years; learned trade in North Adams.

336, Oneida, N. Y.—Leon A. Wilson, worked in Gloversville, Niagara Falls and Rome, N. Y.

347, Wabash, Ind.—Ned P. Keys, age 37 years; has worked in Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit; allowed card to lapse.

351, Sharon, Pa.—William Weaver, age 19 years; at trade four years; learned trade in Sharon. Lon Romelfanger, age 19 years; at trade five years; learned trade in Sharon.

352, Phœnix, Ariz.—O. W. Johnson, age 30 years; at trade ten years; learned trade in Danville, Va.

368, Litchfield, Ill.—Fred W. Vasel, age 21 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in the Illinois school for the deaf, Jacksonville, Ill.; worked in Hillsboro, Ill. Lloyd H. Boyd, age 26 years; at trade thirteen years; learned trade in Hillsboro, Ill.; worked in Nokomis, Ill., Ripley, Tenn., and Granada, Miss.

379, Ithaca, N. Y.—Warren H. Jarvis, age 21 years; at trade three years; for apprentice membership. Lucy Haylett, age 22 years; at trade three and a half years; for apprentice membership. George B. Freer, age 34 years; at trade twelve years; learned trade in Cortland, N. Y.; worked in Earlville, Groton and DeRuyter, N. Y. E. E. Atkinson, age 28 years; at trade fourteen years; learned trade in Manlius, N. Y.; worked in Dryden, Cortland and Tully, N. Y. W. J. Sykes, age 28 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in Groton, N. Y. J. E. Walter, age 38 years, at trade twenty-one years; learned trade in Rome, N. Y.; worked in Cortland, N. Y.

380, Augusta, Me.—Thomas B. Berran, age 21 years; learned trade in Augusta; worked in Waterville, Me.

381, Boone, Iowa—A. D. Granger, age 37 years; worked in Sumner, Jefferson and Grand Junction, Iowa. W. E. Dingman, age 34 years; worked in Newton and Maxwell, Iowa.

403, Tulsa, I. T.—Earl Wing, age 21 years; at trade six years; learned trade in Carthage, Ill.; worked in Osmand and Pierce, Neb.

412, Kokomo, Ind.—T. V. Potter, age 40 years; worked at trade ten years; learned business at Preston, Iowa; made application to No. 16, but left before being taken in.

415, Butler, Pa.—Harry A. Brooks, age 23 years; at trade seven years; learned trade in Girard, Pa.; worked in Erie, Pa., and Cleveland, Ohio; formerly a member, but allowed card to lapse.

429, Battle Creek, Mich.—J. B. Farra, age 39 years; at trade twenty-six years; learned trade in Philadelphia, Pa.; formerly a member of Philadelphia Union.

444, Champaign-Urbana, Ill.—Frank Hamilton, learned trade in Boonville, Mo.; worked in St. Louis, Mo. Daniel Flanners, age 22 years; at trade four and a half years in small towns in Michigan.

452, New Kensington, etc., Pa.—Harry E. Bonsall, age 43 years; at trade thirty years; learned trade in Mifflintown, Pa.; worked in Harrisburg, Pa.

459, St. Thomas, Ont.—Elam Frey, age 21 years; at trade seven years; learned trade in Berlin, Ont.; worked in Mayville, N. Y.

473, Moberly, Mo.—Bessie O'Bryan, age 26 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in Keytesville, Mo.

498, Lead, S. D.—H. W. McManus, age 24 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in Rapid City, S. D.

499, Deposit, N. Y.—James H. Goodsell, age 60 years; at trade forty-two years; learned trade in Pontiac and Detroit, Mich.; worked in Chicago,

Digitized by Google

Ill., and New York, N. Y.; never before applied for membership.

501, Moscow, Idaho—John F. Yost, age 34 years; at trade eighteen years; learned trade in Cuyahoga, Ohio; worked in Spokane, Wash.; formerly a member of Spokane Union.

513, DeSoto, Mo.—W. T. Poston, age 27 years; at trade ten years; learned trade in Bonne Terre, Mo.; worked in Greenville and Elvins, Mo. C. C. Mitchim, age 40 years; at trade twenty years; learned trade in Cape Girardeau, Mo.; worked in Puxico and Willow Springs, Mo.

518, Marion, Ill.—X. Davis, learned trade in Marion, Ill.; has been out of the business for several years. S. K. Casey, learned trade in Marion, Ill.

522, Morristown, N. J.—Miss R. May Decker, age 26 years; at trade six and a half years; learned trade in Rockaway, N. J.; never applied for admission before. Alonzo G. Hance, age 21 years; formerly a member of Morristown Union; worked in Rockaway and Summit, N. J. J. Dana James, age 32 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in Livingston Manor, N. Y.; worked in Liberty, N. Y.; never applied for admission before.

525, Benton Harbor, Mich.—William Campbell, age 35 years; learned trade in Greenville, Pa.; worked in Chicago and Sparta, Ill.

527, Oelwein, Iowa—Ore E. Stark; learned trade in Oelwein; worked in Crowley, La.; formerly a member of defunct Crowley Union.

533, Huntington, W. Va.—George Kusahlman, age 24 years; at trade four years; learned the business in Cincinnati, Ohio; worked in Arlington, Neb., and Ogden, Iowa.

539, Port Arthur, Ont.—Malcolm A. Loman, age 26 years; at trade five years; learned trade in Chase, Kan.; worked in Phœnix, Ariz., Chickasha, I. T., and Rainy River, Ont.

543, Watsonville, Cal.—George N. Groves, age 36 years; at trade eighteen years; learned trade in Scotia, Neb.; worked in Tulare, Hanford and Merced, Cal. Franklin Harriott, age 23 years; at trade seven years; learned trade in Hamilton Printery, Newark, N. J.; worked in Grand Junction, Colo., Upelo, Miss., and New Brunswick, N. J.

547, Greenfield, Mass.—Louis B. Mantner, age 21 years; at trade seven years; learned trade in Chicago, Ill.; worked in Princeton, Ky.

565, South McAlester, I. T.—E. J. Beck, age 42 years; at trade twenty-two years; learned the business in Mount Sterling, Ill.

589, Santa Cruz, Cal.—Seymour W. Rodgers, age 22 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in Boulder Creek, Cal.

596, Houghton, Mich.—Tom J. Prince, age 49 years; at trade twenty-five years; always worked in unorganized towns.

598, Morgantown, W. Va.—Wilbert E. Field, at trade seven years; learned trade on Preston County Journal; worked in Parsons, W. Va. Delbert E. Beach, at trade eight years; learned trade in Baltic, Ohio; worked in Monongahela City.

605, Mitchell, S. D.—C. F. Bender, age 27 years; at trade ten years; worked in Boyden, Rock Valley and Sheldon, Iowa.

625, Salisbury, N. C.—Braxton B. Bolch, age 20 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in Hickory, N. C.; never applied for admission before.

641, Ennis, Texas—Olin F. Hardy, for apprentice membership.

642, Hackensack, N. J.—Ackerman Hawkey, age 51 years; at trade thirty-five years; learned trade in Hackensack. Evan G. Runner, age 32 years; at trade sixteen years; learned trade in Oxford, Pa.; worked in New York, N. Y. Clarence A. Westervelt, age 24 years; at trade nine years; learned trade in Englewood, N. J.; worked in New York, N Y.

654, Aberdeen, S. D.—E. J. Searle, age 31 years; at trade eighteen years; learned trade in Aberdeen, S. D.; worked in Sioux Falls, S. D., and Tacoma, Wash.; formerly a member of Tacoma Union.

655, Redfield, S. D.—H. D. Basford, C. C. Harmon, for full membership.

656, Brandon, Man.—George Albert, age 35 years; at trade twenty-two years; learned trade in England. W. B. Webber, age 25 years; at trade nine years; learned trade in England. William R. Dickson, age 25 years; at trade nine years; learned trade in Scotland. George D. McLean, age 23 years; at trade six years; learned trade in Wingham, Man.

658, Perth Amboy, N. J.—Mrs. Josephine Huff, age 28 years; at trade ten years; learned trade in Perth Amboy. Miss Jennie Totten, age 22 years; at trade four years; learned trade in Perth Amboy. Charles S. Levy, age 21 years; at trade four years; learned trade in office of Carey Printing Company, New York, N. Y.; worked in offices of J. A. Rogers and Corliss, Macy & Co., New York, N. Y. Miss Emily Trout, age 19 years; at trade four years; learned trade in Perth Amboy.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Charleston, S. C.—President, R. B. Britton; vice-president, J. J. Morris; second vice-president, W. H. Miller; recording secretary, J. L. Kiley; financial secretary, M. J. Conklin; sergeant-at-arms, T. C. Dewees; conductor, J. H. Wincey.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—President, Oza Blodgett; vice-president, F. M. Dearing; secretary-treasurer, John O'Brien; recording secretary, Charles F. Guy; sergeant-at-arms, H. Bisplinghoff; auditing committee, A. G. Linn, E. M. Hardy, J. W. Stamps; delegates to central labor union, Oza Blodgett, W. L. Gardner, G. D. Groner, John O'Brien, J. W. Stamps.

Frankfort, Ky.—President, F. J. Freckham; vice-president, F. A. Smith; financial secretary, J. D. O'Connor; sergeant-at-arms, C. A. Watts.

Greenville, Texas—President, Fred Horton; vice-president, B. F. Huckaboy; financial secretary, A. A. Clark; recording secretary, Bob Stary; sergeant-at-arms, W. C. Henry.

Lead, S. D.—President, G. A. Stout; vice-president, Jess Shoff; secretary-treasurer, C. T. Martin; sergeant-at-arms, C. F. Sauerbrunn.

Moscow, Idaho—President, J. P. Barckdall; vice-president, C. H. Bass; recording secretary, F. P. Bangs; secretary-treasurer, Marie Shannon.

Newport News, Va.—President, E. F. Morse; vice-president, F. S. Lyon; secretary-treasurer, Thomas B. Verell; recording secretary, Charles E. Heim; sergeant-at-arms, George L. Buckman.

Norwich, N. Y.—President, W. E. Miner; vice-president, Clark H. Barber; secretary, B. F. Holdredge; treasurer, H. B. Frink; sergeant-at-arms, W. H. Crossman.

Racine, Wis.—President, S. E. Farnham; vice-president, J. M. Cooney; secretary-treasurer, F. A. Parker; recording secretary, James McCleary; reading clerk, W. A. Hall; sergeant-at-arms, A. C. Wagner.

San Antonio, Texas—President, William L. Hoefgen; vice-president, Thomas J. Derby; financial secretary, E. G. Koerps; recording secretary, A. E. Hart; treasurer, William Southworth; sergeant-at-arms, H. Schuetze; reading clerk, Percy Abbey; executive committee, J. H. McGinnis, A. W. Hartman, J. B. Magee; delegates to trades council, Percy Abbey, William Southworth, C. F. Neutzel.

Shelbyville, Ind.—President, D. W. Avery; vice-president, C. O. Caldwell; recording secretary, O. C. Banker; financial secretary, Valentine Hey; sergeant-at-arms, C. O. Sweet.

Trinidad, Colo.—President, J. H. English; secretary, Albert H. Lee.

Digitized by Google

Financial Statement

REPORT OF SECRETARY-TREASURER.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., October 21, 1905.

To Subordinate Unions:

The following is a report of the receipts from per capita tax, supplies, etc., from September 21 to date, and the accounts herewith presented should correspond with the books of the respective unions to which they are credited. Secretaries are requested to compare the accounts printed herein with their books, and should error or omission be found, notice of same should be promptly forwarded to this office.

RECEIPTS.

1,	Indianapolis—For August	$174 00
2,	Philadelphia—For September	380 00
3,	Cincinnati—For September	241 20
	For supplies	2 10
4,	Albany—For September	164 00
5,	Columbus—For September	100 00
	For supplies	1 25
	For eight-hour assessment	353 48
6,	New York—For September	2,500 00
	For transportation of E. E. Shepherd and J. J. Leddy	61 50
7,	Pittsburg—For September	194 80
8,	St. Louis—For September	403 20
	For supplies	10 50
9,	Buffalo—For August and September	285 20
	For supplies	1 50
10,	Louisville—For September	96 40
	For supplies	1 05
	For Journals	3 75
11,	Memphis—For September	64 00
	For supplies	70
	For eight-hour assessment	213 00
12,	Baltimore—For September	192 00
13,	Boston—For September	508 40
	For supplies	50
14,	Harrisburg—For September	34 00
15,	Rochester—For September	136 00
	For supplies	3 00
16,	Chicago—For August and September	2,340 00
	For supplies	30 00
17,	New Orleans—For September	116 80
	For supplies	6 80
18,	Detroit—For September	142 00
19,	Elmira—For September	16 00
	For eight-hour assessment	49 00
	For supplies	25
	For Journal subscriptions	60
20,	Nashville—For September	72 00
22,	Dubuque—For September	19 20
	For supplies	35
	For eight-hour assessment	125 00
23,	Milwaukee—For September	144 40
24,	Jackson—For September	3 20
25,	Baton Rouge—For September	4 40
28,	Galveston—For September	35 20
29,	Peoria—For September	38 40
30,	St. Paul—For September	174 80
	For supplies	30
31,	Fond du Lac—For September	3 20
	For supplies	1 80
32,	Norfolk—For September	37 20
	For supplies	1 50
33,	Providence—For September	82 40
	For supplies	50
34,	Columbia—For September	19 60
35,	Evansville—For September	25 20
	For supplies	1 85
36,	Oakland—For September	53 20
38,	Haverhill—For September	6 00
	For supplies	58
	For Journal subscriptions	1 20
39,	Grand Rapids—For September	61 60
40,	St. Joseph—For September	38 40
	For supplies	50
41,	Augusta—For September	12 80
42,	Minneapolis—For August and Sept.	364 80
	For supplies	60
43,	Charleston—For August and Sept.	$32 80
	For Cummings memorial	8 75
44,	Rome—For September	7 20
	For supplies	30
45,	Leavenworth—For September	10 40
46,	Sacramento—For September	48 40
	For supplies	50
47,	New Haven—For September	49 60
48,	Atlanta—For September	93 60
	For supplies	4 60
49,	Denver—For September	178 40
	For supplies	7 50
	For eight-hour assessment	1,221 10
50,	Valley City—For September	22 80
	For eight-hour assessment	130 00
52,	Troy—For September	59 60
	For supplies	3 10
	For eight-hour assessment	426 81
53,	Cleveland—For September	213 60
	For supplies	2 10
54,	Raleigh—For September	24 00
55,	Syracuse—For September	93 60
	For supplies	3 00
56,	Stockton—For September	14 00
57,	Dayton—For September	70 00
	For supplies	70
58,	Multnomah—For September	101 20
	For supplies	70
	For eight-hour assessment	348 30
59,	Quincy—For September	23 60
	For supplies	50
60,	Roanoke—For September	16 80
	For supplies	3 00
61,	Cambridge—For September	20 00
	For supplies	50
62,	Utica—For September	58 80
63,	Toledo—For September	61 20
	For supplies	6 00
64,	Lafayette—For September	16 80
	For eight-hour assessment	49 00
66,	Portland—For September	24 00
	For supplies	30
68,	Keokuk—For September	9 20
69,	Newark—For September and Oct.	15 60
	For supplies	20
	For eight-hour assessment	33 23
70,	Lancaster—For October	20 80
	For supplies	35
71,	Trenton—For September	38 00
	For supplies	35
72,	Lansing—For September	29 20
	For supplies	40
73,	Ottumwa—For balance September	2 80
	For supplies	2 20
	For eight-hour assessment	19 46
74,	Belleville—For September	5 60
	For supplies	20
75,	Burlington—For September	14 40
	For supplies	30
	For eight-hour assessment	45 21
76,	Terre Haute—For September	32 00
	For eight-hour assessment	98 71
	For supplies	35
77,	Erie—For September	28 80
	For supplies	50
78,	Fort Wayne—For September	37 20
79,	Wheeling—For October	32 80
	For eight-hour assessment	117 69
81,	Bay City—For September	16 40
	For eight-hour assessment	44 83
	For supplies	20
82,	Colorado Springs—For September	37 20
	For supplies	70
	For eight-hour assessment	100 00
83,	Hebrew-American—For August	24 00
84,	San Bernardino—For September	8 00
	For supplies	20
85,	St. John—For September	16 00
86,	Reading—For September	35 60
	For supplies	50
87,	Houston—For September	51 20
	For supplies	18 50

Digitized by Google

88, Hannibal—For September	$8 00
For supplies	35
For Cummings memorial	5 00
89, Chattanooga—For September	29 20
For supplies	35
90, Richmond—For September	73 60
For supplies	55
91, Toronto—For September	303 20
For transportation of A. J. Lane	2 50
92, Little Rock—For September	39 60
For supplies	85
93, Macon—For September	16 00
94, Jersey City—For September	45 60
For supplies	13 00
95, Helena—For September	13 60
For supplies	35
For eight-hour assessment	75 12
96, Glens Falls—For August and Sept.	24 00
For supplies	1 50
97, Peru—For eight-hour assessment	11 59
99, Jackson—For September	15 60
For supplies	20
100, Norwich—For September	17 60
For supplies	20
101, Columbia—For September	761 60
For supplies	6 25
102, Ottawa—For September	118 00
For supplies	1 00
For eight-hour assessment	377 50
103, Newark—For September	120 00
104, Birmingham—For August	37 20
105, Goldfield—For August	3 20
For supplies	20
106, Madison—For September	8 00
107, Tri-City—For September	53 60
For supplies	2 05
108, Hagerstown—For September	14 00
109, Pittsfield—For June	2 80
111, Knoxville—For September	18 00
For supplies	20
112, Scranton—For September	74 40
For supplies	21 45
For eight-hour assessment	400 00
113, Atchison—For September	8 00
114, Annapolis—For September	4 80
115, Salt Lake—For September	47 20
For supplies	70
For eight-hour assessment	192 35
116, Kenosha—For September	8 40
117, Springfield—For September	38 00
For supplies	35
118, Des Moines—For September	82 00
For supplies	6 70
119, Jefferson City—For September	10 40
120, Lynn—For September	19 60
121, Topeka—For August and Sept.	104 00
For supplies	2 55
122, Kalamazoo—For September	20 00
For supplies	35
123, Wilmington—For September	14 00
124, Bloomington—For September	20 40
For supplies	85
125, Durham—For October	4 00
For eight-hour assessment	8 14
126, Butte—For September	27 20
For supplies	1 05
127, Hartford—For September	45 60
For supplies	1 50
128, South Bend—For October	22 00
For supplies	4 20
129, Hamilton — For eight-hour assessment	175 00
130, Halifax—For September	17 60
For supplies	35
131, Bohemian—For September	8 40
For eight-hour assessment	37 49
132, Camden—For August and September	34 80
For supplies	20
133, London—For August	26 80
134, Paducah—For September	12 00
For eight-hour assessment	50 52
136, Duluth—For September	47 20
For supplies	1 85
137, Johnstown—For September	18 00
For supplies	1 00
138, Austin—For September	28 40
For supplies	35
For eight-hour assessment	198 00
139, Stratford—For September	$4 80
For supplies	20
140, Bismarck—For September	5 60
141, Williamsport—For September	24 00
For supplies	35
142, Olympia—For September	6 00
143, Danbury—For August and Sept.	10 40
For eight-hour assessment	23 86
144, Fresno—For August and September	39 20
145, Jacques-Cartier—For September	59 60
146, Charleston—For September	18 00
For eight-hour assessment	114 88
148, Wichita—For September	13 20
For supplies	15
149, Saratoga—For September	12 00
For eight-hour assessment	51 98
150, Elizabeth—For September and Oct.	51 20
For supplies	50
For eight-hour assessment	89 00
151, Oil City—For October	11 20
For supplies	25
152, Manchester—For September	15 60
153, Meridian—For September	3 60
154, Ann Arbor—For September	14 00
For supplies	1 00
155, Shreveport—For September	16 00
156, Bowling Green—For September	5 20
158, Springfield—For September	14 40
159, New London—For September	12 00
160, Columbia—For September	5 60
161, Fall River—For October	24 00
For supplies	70
162, Jacksonville—For September	33 60
For supplies	1 50
163, Superior—For September	10 40
164, Kewanee—For September	4 80
For eight-hour assessment	13 40
165, Worcester—For September	51 20
For supplies	30
166, Adrian—For September	7 20
For supplies	35
167, Schenectady—For September	31 20
For supplies	35
168, Muskegon—For September	8 40
169, New Albany—For September	4 40
170, Tacoma—For September	36 80
For supplies	35
For eight-hour assessment	153 32
171, Elgin—For September	12 00
For supplies	1 50
172, San Antonio—For September	28 80
For supplies	35
173, Dallas—For August	45 00
For supplies	7 40
174, Los Angeles—For September	124 00
For supplies	5 30
175, Pueblo—For September	20 80
For supplies	6 05
For eight-hour assessment	102 44
177, Springfield—For September	50 00
For supplies	40
For eight-hour assessment	155 72
179, Leadville—For August and Sept.	11 20
For eight-hour assessment	55 45
180, Sioux City—For September	31 20
For supplies	35
181, Meadville—For August and Sept.	14 40
182, Akron—For September	43 20
For 30 copies Journal	4 50
183, Savannah—For September	7 20
For supplies	10
184, Wyoming—For September	4 40
For eight-hour assessment	39 45
185, Bradford—For September	10 40
186, Fargo—For September	12 80
For supplies	65
187, Wilkes Barre—For Aug. and Sept.	38 80
For supplies	50
188, Waco—For August and September	16 40
For eight-hour assessment	35 00
189, Blue Grass—For August	9 60
190, Omaha—For September	98 00
191, Winnipeg—For September	86 40
192, Cedar Rapids—For September	29 60
For supplies	35
193, Spokane—For September	55 20
For supplies	70
For eight-hour assessment	394 50

Digitized by Google

194, Joliet—For September	$29	60
For supplies		35
For eight-hour assessment	87	00
195, Paterson—For September	38	40
For supplies		50
For eight-hour assessment	106	05
196, Logansport—For September	17	20
For supplies		55
197, Janesville—For September	5	60
199, Zanesville—For September	18	80
For eight-hour assessment	58	33
200, Youngstown—For September	21	20
For eight-hour assessment	178	00
201, Victoria—For September	16	00
203, Bluff City—For September	14	00
204, Limestone City—For September	8	40
205, Jamestown—For September	15	60
For supplies		20
For eight-hour assessment	43	49
206, Sedalia—For September	6	40
207, Eureka—For September	9	20
For supplies		20
208, Cambridge—For August	8	40
For supplies		20
209, Lincoln—For September	38	40
For supplies	1	50
210, Capital—For September	13	20
211, Oshkosh—For September	11	60
For supplies		20
For eight-hour assessment	33	50
212, Pawtucket—For September	29	60
213, Rockford—For September	20	00
For supplies		20
For eight-hour assessment	55	18
214, Pendleton—For September	4	80
For eight-hour assessment	16	00
215, Decatur—For September	20	00
For supplies		20
216, Springfield—For September	56	80
For supplies		55
217, Murphysboro—For Sept. and Oct	8	80
For eight-hour assessment	21	90
218, Sioux Falls—For September	18	00
For supplies	1	50
219, Canton—For August and September	33	20
For supplies	2	60
220, Columbus—For September	12	00
For supplies		20
221, San Diego—For August	16	80
For supplies		40
223, Marysville—For September	15	20
224, Brockton—For September	27	60
For supplies		55
226, Vancouver—For August	30	00
227, Cripple Creek—For September	3	60
For eight-hour assessment	19	86
228, Norwood—For September	29	20
229, Crawfordsville—For September	10	40
For eight-hour assessment	19	32
230, Danville—For September	20	40
For supplies	1	70
For eight-hour assessment	54	36
231, San Jose—For September	27	20
For supplies		20
232, Binghamton—For September	49	20
For supplies	3	00
For eight-hour assessment	175	00
234, Corsicana—For September	5	20
235, Rahway—For September	10	40
For eight-hour assessment	50	00
236, Ogden—For September	12	40
For supplies	5	50
238, Steubenville—For September	11	60
239, Carbondale—For September	2	80
240, Altoona—For September	17	60
242, York—For September	23	60
For supplies		85
243, Hutchison—For October	7	60
244, Cumberland—For September	7	20
245, Woonsocket—For September	16	80
246, Winona—For September	9	60
For supplies		20
247, Swedish—For September	18	80
248, Peterborough—For September	15	60
249, Fort Smith—For September	13	60
For supplies		50
250, Beaver Valley—For September	14	80
251, Muscatine—For September	$8	00
For eight-hour assessment	25	74
252, Bridgeport—For September	22	40
For supplies		20
For Journal subscriptions	1	95
253, Holyoke—For September	27	20
254, Riverside—For August	3	60
255, Anaconda—For September	13	60
For eight-hour assessment	151	11
For donation eight-hour fund	151	11
256, Great Falls—For September	9	60
For eight-hour assessment	61	00
257, Lisbon—For August and September	10	40
For supplies		20
258, Easton—For September	30	00
For supplies	1	35
259, Waltham—For September	8	00
260, Findlay—For September	9	60
For supplies		20
For eight-hour assessment	24	60
261, Italian—For September	12	40
262, Uniontown—For October	17	20
263, Asheville—For September	7	20
265, Ottawa—For September	6	40
For supplies		35
For eight-hour assessment	17	24
266, Elkhart—For August	9	20
267, Frankfort—For August, September	5	60
For eight-hour assessment	4	18
268, Fulton County—For September	9	60
For supplies		20
269, Peekskill—For September	6	80
270, New Castle—For Sept. and Oct	20	00
For supplies		20
For eight-hour assessment	29	93
271, Boise—For September	18	00
For supplies	1	70
For eight-hour assessment	68	66
272, Norwegian-Danish—For September	8	80
For supplies		20
274, Amsterdam—For September	6	80
275, Victor—For September	2	80
For eight-hour assessment	13	65
276, New Bedford—For September	11	60
For supplies		20
277, Missoula—For September	8	80
For eight-hour assessment	60	90
280, Marietta—For September, October	16	00
281, Marlboro—For September	6	00
283, Oklahoma—For September	22	80
For supplies		80
For Journal subscriptions	4	80
284, Anderson—For September	13	60
For supplies		35
285, Ansonia—For September	7	60
For eight-hour assessment	26	91
286, Marion—For September	16	00
For supplies	5	00
For eight-hour assessment	57	39
287, Frankfort—For September	5	60
For supplies		20
288, Galesburg—For September	11	20
289, Titusville—For September	3	60
For eight-hour assessment	23	77
For supplies		15
290, Hamilton—For September	6	40
For supplies		20
291, Aurora—For September	24	00
292, Grand Junction—For July, August	8	40
For supplies		30
294, Waukegan—For September	8	80
295, Newport—For August, September	8	00
For supplies		06
298, Massillon—For September	8	80
299, Tampa—For September	8	00
300, Port Huron—For September	16	00
For supplies		35
301, Richmond—For October	14	40
302, Quebec—For September	33	60
303, Cleburne—For September	6	80
For supplies		20
304, Albuquerque—For September	11	20
For eight-hour assessment	29	40
For supplies		20
305, Newburgh—For September	19	20
For eight-hour assessment	28	39
306, Alton—For September	8	00
For supplies		20
For eight-hour assessment	82	23

Digitized by Google

307,	New Brunswick—For Aug. and Sept.	$22 00
	For supplies	2 00
310,	Lowell—For September	34 00
	For supplies	3 35
311,	Grand Forks—For September	7 20
	For supplies	20
312,	Las Vegas—For September	3 20
313,	Texarkana—For August	5 60
314,	Meriden—For September	10 40
	For supplies	20
315,	Poughkeepsie—For September	16 40
	For eight-hour assessment	40 56
	For supplies	20
316,	North Adams—For September	8 80
	For eight-hour assessment	22 62
317,	Woodstock—For August	6 40
318,	East Liverpool—For September	13 20
	For eight-hour assessment	30 23
	For supplies	20
319,	Taunton—For Aug. and Sept.	18 80
	For supplies	1 20
321,	Connellsville—For September	4 00
	For eight-hour assessment	20 70
322,	Kingston—For September	2 00
	For eight-hour assessment	10 00
323,	Hoboken—For September	18 40
	For eight-hour assessment	75 00
	For supplies	20
324,	Racine—For September	9 60
	For eight-hour assessment	38 33
325,	Cohoes—For September	10 40
326,	Rutland—For September	12 00
	For supplies	3 00
327,	Lincoln—For August and September	9 60
	For supplies	10
328,	Streator—For September	8 00
	For supplies	20
329,	Waterbury—For September	16 00
330,	Bohemian—For September	30 40
	For supplies	40
331,	Elwood—For September	2 80
	For supplies	20
332,	Muncie—For September	20 80
	For supplies	6 00
	For eight-hour assessment	73 41
333,	Denison—For September	6 80
334,	Clinton—For September	6 40
	For supplies	20
335,	Rossland—For August, September	7 20
336,	Oneida—For September	12 40
	For supplies	15
337,	Nanaimo—For September	1 60
	For eight-hour assessment	7 90
338,	Charlotte—For September	12 40
339,	Beaumont—For August	16 00
340,	Nelson—For August	4 40
341,	Spartanburg—For September	6 00
342,	Canton—For September	4 00
	For supplies	20
344,	Green Bay—For September	12 80
	For eight-hour assessment	50 00
345,	Olean—For August and September	12 00
346,	Burlington—For September	12 00
347,	Wabash—For September	6 80
	For supplies	15
348,	Girard—For September	3 60
	For supplies	20
	For eight-hour assessment	25 81
349,	Waterloo—For September	7 20
	For supplies	50
350,	Joplin—For August and September	20 00
	For supplies	20
351,	Sharon—For August	6 80
	For eight-hour assessment	25 00
352,	Phœnix—For September	9 60
	For supplies	1 40
353,	Newport News—For September	6 00
	For eight-hour assessment	25 53
	For supplies	4 00
354,	Edwardsville—For August	8 40
355,	Bellingham—For October	18 80
	For Cummings memorial	16 00
	For eight-hour assessment	60 25
	For supplies	20
356,	Jacksonville—For eight-hour assessment	18 81
358,	Greenwood—For August and Sept.	7 20
	For supplies	1 60
359,	Sault Ste. Marie—For September	$4 00
	For supplies	20
360,	Menominee—For September	6 40
	For supplies	34
361,	Tuskaloosa—For September	3 60
	For supplies	15
362,	Traverse City—For October	8 00
	For supplies	20
363,	Jackson—For September	3 20
364,	Coshocton—For September	16 00
	For eight-hour assessment	43 50
	For supplies	2 25
365,	Nashua—For September	5 60
367,	Globe—For August and September	9 20
	For supplies	1 50
368,	Litchfield—For October	5 60
	For supplies	15
369,	Taylorville—For September	4 40
370,	El Paso—For September	12 80
	For supplies	2 20
371,	Rome—For September	8 80
372,	Clarksburg—For September	12 40
373,	Durango—For September	3 20
374,	Du Bois—From August to October	14 40
375,	Prescott—For September	4 80
376,	Minot—For September	5 20
377,	Atlantic City—For Sept. and Oct.	20 00
	For supplies	1 50
378,	Brantford—For September	7 60
	For eight-hour assessment	17 17
379,	Ithaca—For September	16 00
	For eight-hour assessment	48 40
	For supplies	35
380,	Augusta—For September	17 60
383,	Martins Ferry—For June and July	6 40
	For supplies	60
384,	Montpelier—For September	7 20
385,	Greenville—For September	9 20
386,	Little Falls—For September	4 40
387,	Mount Vernon—For September	8 80
	For eight-hour assessment	16 00
388,	Walla Walla—For September	7 20
	For eight-hour assessment	58 40
	Donation to eight-hour fight	91 60
389,	Vallejo—For August and September	8 40
390,	Pontiac—For September	7 60
391,	Guelph—For October	11 20
392,	Pittston—For September	4 80
	For eight-hour assessment	22 98
393,	Brockville—For August and Sept.	4 00
394,	Santa Barbara—For September	4 40
395,	Vincennes—For September	6 00
	For eight-hour assessment	14 80
396,	Canandaigua—For August and Sept.	17 20
	For supplies	2 45
397,	Greensboro—For September	9 20
	For supplies	1 00
398,	Billings—For supplies	20
401,	Hazleton—For September	9 60
402,	Barre—For September	6 00
403,	Tulsa—For September	8 80
	For supplies	40
407,	Linton—For August and September	6 40
408,	Ottawa—For September	3 60
	For supplies	50
409,	Lorain—From March to August	16 80
410,	Everett—For September	7 60
	For eight-hour assessment	33 15
411,	Galt—For October	7 20
414,	Marshalltown—For September	4 40
	For eight-hour assessment	16 85
415,	Butler—For September	7 20
	For eight-hour assessment	18 08
416,	St. Catharines—For September	9 60
	For supplies	15
417,	Fort William—For Aug. and Sept.	3 60
	For supplies	5 32
419,	Anniston—For September	3 60
420,	Mansfield—For September	5 20
422,	Mayaguez—For May	2 80
423,	Newburyport—For September	5 20
	For eight-hour assessment	25 17
424,	Orange—For September	20 40
	For supplies	35
426,	Bristol—For September	11 20
	For supplies	30
427,	Vicksburg—For September	5 60
428,	Warren—For September	10 40

Digitized by Google

429,	Battle Creek—For September	$11 20
430,	Baker City—For June and July	7 20
432,	Stillwater—For September	5 20
433,	Dover—For August	4 80
	For supplies	55
434,	Trinidad—For September	3 20
	For eight-hour assessment	32 44
435,	Bluffton—For August and Sept.	7 20
	For supplies	15
438,	New Decatur—For July and August	5 60
439,	Bakersfield—For October	6 00
	For supplies	35
	For eight-hour assessment	50 00
441,	Salem—For October	8 40
	For supplies	20
	For eight-hour assessment	21 39
442,	LaSalle-Peru—For September	6 80
	For supplies	1 70
443,	Mascoutah—For September	3 20
444,	Champaign—For September	9 60
	For supplies	50
445,	Oswego—For August	6 00
446,	Bangor—For September	12 00
447,	Pine Bluff—For September	5 60
	For supplies	50
448,	La Crosse—For September	15 20
	For supplies	60
449,	Calgary—For September	12 00
	For supplies	20
450,	Columbus—For September	6 00
	For supplies	20
	For eight-hour assessment	10 00
452,	New Kensington—For September	4 00
	For supplies	25
453,	Norwich—For September	7 20
	For supplies	70
454,	Huntington—For September	8 40
	For supplies	1 50
455,	Owosso—For September	10 40
456,	Washington—For September	12 40
	For supplies	20
	For eight-hour assessment	41 01
459,	St. Thomas—For September	8 00
460,	Chatham—For July and August	8 80
461,	Cairo—For September	7 60
	For eight-hour assessment	25 08
462,	Nebraska City—For Aug. and Sept.	9 60
463,	Middletown—For October	8 80
465,	Tucson—For October	4 40
	For eight-hour assessment	14 55
466,	West Chester—For September	4 80
	For supplies	20
468,	Yonkers—For September	17 60
	For eight-hour assessment	116 33
469,	Greenfield—For August and Sept.	8 00
470,	Pittsburg—For September	2 80
	For supplies	20
471,	Sherman—For September	10 00
472,	Palestine—For September	6 80
473,	Moberly—For September and Oct.	14 00
	For eight-hour assessment	14 00
474,	Ashtabula—For September	4 00
475,	Redding—For August and September	12 80
	For supplies	1 50
477,	Niles—For October	3 60
480,	Tiffin—For September	7 20
482,	Mineola—For August and Sept.	5 60
483,	Portsmouth—For September	8 00
484,	Muskogee—For September	11 20
	For supplies	1 85
487,	Middletown—For September	3 60
488,	Princeton—For October	3 20
489,	Livingston—For August	2 80
490,	Shawnee—For September	8 40
491,	Pocatello—For August and Sept.	7 60
	For eight-hour assessment	16 80
492,	Bellaire—For September	6 80
	For eight-hour assessment	24 36
493,	Henderson—For September	6 40
	For supplies	4 00
	For eight-hour assessment	35 72
494,	Abilene—For September	5 60
496,	Albany—For September	2 80
497,	Alliance—For September	4 00
498,	Lead, etc.—For September	4 80
	For eight-hour assessment	28 85
	For benefits returned	50
498,	Lead—Charter and outfit	10 00
501,	Moscow—For August	$8 00
503,	Stamford—For September	4 00
	For supplies	1 50
504,	Astoria—For August	2 80
507,	Princeton—For August	2 80
509,	Greenville—For September	9 60
	For eight-hour assessment	17 65
510,	Lynchburg—For September	8 00
	For supplies	50
511,	Batavia—For September	8 00
	For eight-hour assessment	53 14
512,	Pontiac—For August	6 40
	For eight-hour assessment	20 00
513,	De Soto—For August and Sept.	8 80
514,	Niles—For August and September	5 60
515,	Iowa City—For September	10 00
	For eight-hour assessment	49 32
	For supplies	15
516,	Norwalk—For September	8 00
	For supplies	20
518,	Marion—For September	2 80
520,	Mattoon—For September	3 60
	For supplies	1 85
521,	Palo Alto—For September	4 00
522,	Morristown—For September	4 80
523,	Tarrytown—For October	7 20
	For supplies	20
	For eight-hour assessment	22 30
524,	Freeport—For September	7 60
	For supplies	70
525,	Benton Harbor—For September	4 80
	For supplies	38
526,	Oskaloosa—For September	6 40
527,	Oelwein—For June	3 60
530,	Eau Claire—For August and Sept.	2 00
	For eight-hour assessment	1 36
531,	Hudson—For September	4 00
	For supplies	20
532,	Lewiston—For September	8 80
533,	Huntington—For September	6 80
	For supplies	20
535,	Bessemer—For September	2 80
	For supplies	1 50
536,	Auburn—For September	22 40
537,	Creston—For July	4 40
538,	Washington—For September	2 40
	For supplies	15
539,	Port Arthur—From August to Oct.	9 60
541,	Oregon City—For September	2 40
542,	Shelbyville—For August and Sept.	9 20
	For eight-hour assessment	16 89
543,	Watsonville—For September	10 00
544,	Douglas—For September	5 20
	For supplies	6 20
545,	Waukesha—For September	4 40
547,	Greenfield—For August and Sept.	9 20
	For supplies	15
548,	Lancaster—For September	6 00
	For supplies	25
549,	Corning—For September	3 60
550,	Windsor—For August	6 40
552,	Long Branch—For September	4 00
555,	Dunkirk—For August	4 80
556,	Wilmington—For September	10 00
557,	Lewistown—For September	2 80
559,	San Angelo—For September	4 00
560,	Charleston—For September	2 80
561,	Huron—For September	2 80
562,	Pierre—For September	5 20
563,	Harrisburg—For September	3 60
565,	South McAlester—For September	5 20
567,	Salida—For September	2 80
	For eight-hour assessment	10 25
568,	Lake Charles—For September	8 00
	For supplies	20
	For eight-hour assessment	23 95
569,	Painesville—For September	4 00
573,	Aberdeen—For September	10 00
	For supplies	20
	For eight-hour assessment	40 00
575,	Greensburg—For August and Sept.	6 40
	For supplies	1 50
576,	San Luis Obispo—For September	4 80
577,	Santa Rosa—For September	6 40
	For supplies	15
578,	Coffeyville—For September	8 00
	For supplies	15
579,	St. Hyacinthe—For August	3 20

Digitized by Google

581, Fort Madison—For September	$5	60
For eight-hour assessment	25	02
582, Nome—From September to March	40	00
For supplies		20
583, Pasadena—For September	10	80
For supplies		15
586, Greeley—For September	4	40
588, St. Augustine—For September	3	20
589, Santa Cruz—For September	7	60
590, Park City—For August	2	80
593, Brainerd—For September	4	00
594, Morris—From July to September	12	00
595, Athens—For September	4	40
596, Houghton—For September	14	00
For supplies	2	00
For eight-hour assessment	49	51
598, Morgantown—For September	7	60
599, Herrin—For September	2	80
For eight-hour assessment	7	77
600, Petaluma—For September	2	00
601, Grass Valley—For September	4	80
For supplies		40
603, Fort Dodge—For September	8	40
For eight-hour assessment	17	52
605, Mitchell—For September	11	60
For supplies		25
609, Winston—For August and Sept	7	60
For supplies		15
610, Columbia—For September	4	80
611, Reno—For September	9	20
612, Appleton—For September	15	20
For supplies		60
613, Bellefontaine—For September	6	80
615, Manistee—For August	4	80
616, Tonopah—For August and Sept	12	00
617, Wallace—For June and July	11	60
For supplies		35
618, Watertown—For September	3	20
619, Fremont—For September	10	80
623, Fitchburg—For September	5	20
624, San Mateo—For September	2	80
625, Salisbury—For October	4	40
For eight-hour assessment	10	35
626, Manila—For September	18	00
For supplies		30
628, Somerville—For September	6	00
For supplies		25
629, Bowling Green—For Aug. and Sept.	12	00
630, St. Cloud—For September	7	20
For supplies		80
631, Idaho Falls—For August	4	00
632, Cheboygan—For September	4	00
634, Lewiston—For September	8	40
For supplies		20
636, Deadwood—For charter and outfit	10	00
637, Portsmouth—For Aug. and Sept	14	40
638, Stroudsburg—For September	8	80
For eight-hour assessment	15	00
639, Berwick—From April to September	6	00
For eight-hour assessment	7	40
640, Berlin—For August and September	6	80
For supplies		70
For eight-hour assessment	9	00
641, Ennis—For September	2	80
For supplies		60
642, Hackensack—For September	5	60
For supplies	2	20
643, Waterville—For September	4	80
For eight-hour assessment	16	00
644, Bluefield—For September	4	00
645, Elyria—For August and September	12	00
646, Denton—For September	4	80
648, Fayetteville—For September	2	80
649, Ardmore—For August and Sept	13	60
For supplies		12
650, Long Beach—For August and Sept	6	40
651, Le Mars—For September	3	60
652, Independence—For September	2	80
653, Jamestown—For September	2	80
For supplies		20
655, Redfield—For September	2	40
For Journal subscription		60
656, Brandon—For September	5	60
For supplies		60
657, Regina—For September	8	40
For supplies		20
658, Perth Amboy—For September	$4	80
For supplies	8	80
For Journal subscription		50
For eight-hour assessment	2	53
659, Brunswick—For September	6	00
661, Jonesboro—For September	6	40
For supplies	5	40
663, Washington—For charter and outfit	10	00
For October	6	40
664, Fredericton—For charter and outfit	10	00
665, Newton—For charter and outfit	10	00
666, Moncton—For charter and outfit	10	00

GERMAN-AMERICAN.

1, Philadelphia—For September	16	80
2, Cincinnati—For September	19	25
3, St. Louis—For September	26	60
4, Buffalo—For September	11	55
5, Rochester—For September	2	80
6, Cleveland—For September	11	20
7, New York—For September	94	85
8, Newark—For September	8	75
9, Chicago—For September	33	60
10, Milwaukee—For September	30	80
11, Baltimore—For September	12	60
12, Louisville—For September	4	55
13, St. Paul—For September	4	20
14, Indianapolis—For September	7	00
15, Evansville—For September	5	60
16, Pittsburg—For September	8	75
18, Belleville—For September	3	50
19, Columbus—For September	3	85
21, Detroit—For September	9	45
24, Toledo—For September	3	85
25, Wheeling—For September	2	45

MAILERS.

1, Boston—For September	38	40
For supplies		95
2, Chicago—For September	76	80
For supplies		70
For Cummings memorial	5	00
3, St. Louis—For October	27	60
For supplies	1	05
For eight-hour assessment	00	00
4, Minneapolis—For August	2	00
5, Toronto—For September	11	20
6, New York—For September	152	80
8, Denver—For September	7	60
For supplies		20
11, Elmira—For August and September	7	60
12, Cleveland—For September	4	40
15, St. Joseph—For September	3	60
16, Louisville—For September	8	40
17, Cincinnati—For September	20	00
18, San Francisco—For Aug. and Sept	44	00
24, Buffalo—From May to August	10	80
25, Butte—For August and September	6	00
26, Albany—For September	2	00
27, Winnipeg—For September	3	20

TYPEFOUNDERS.

1, New York—For September	6	00
3, Chicago—For September	8	80
For supplies		20

NEWSPAPER WRITERS.

1, Boston—For September	11	20
2, Columbus—For September	12	00
5, New York—For August	2	40
9, Milwaukee—For September	3	20
12, Butte—For September	8	80
18, Dawson—For August and September	4	40
For Cummings memorial	3	00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Akron A. T. C.—For supplies	1	60
Elizabeth A. T. C.—For supplies	1	00
Brockton A. T. C.—For supplies	10	00
Mobile A. T. C.—For supplies	17	20
Milwaukee A. T. C.—For supplies	1	80
Springfield A. T. C.—For supplies	2	40
St. Louis A. T. C.—For supplies	20	00
Everett A. T. C.—For supplies	10	80
Baltimore A. T. C.—For supplies	2	40
Fresno A. T. C.—For supplies	3	20
Columbus A. T. C.—For supplies	10	00
San Francisco A. T. C.—For supplies	62	00

Digitized by Google

International Stereotypers' an Electrotypers' Union—For September	$265 50
C. S. Evans—Cash returned	91
J. M. Randall—Duplicate card	25
Fees of applicants from unorganized towns—W. Lewis, $2; J. W. Wall, $2; C. M. Ervin, $2; R. P. Baker, $2; H. Harris, $2; E. Brown, $2; B. Coggin, $2; C. Phelps, $2; J. H. Buffum, $2; A. E. Hay, $2; B. McQuillan, $2; H. C. Thompson, $2; W. H. Fowler, $2; J. E. Ladd, $2; I. E. Geiger, $2; W. B. Knight, $2; F. B. Turner, $2	34 00
Per capita tax collected on cards—W. F. Miller, $1.20; L. A. Owen, $1.20; H. Saunders, $2.40; J. H. Minter, $2.40; L. Burge, $2.40; M. D. Parks, $1.60; J. P. White, $4.80; J. E. Albertson, $4.80; T. M. Cavanaugh, $2; Ed Haley, $1.60; W. L. Sample, $2; H. A. Weiss, $2.80; J. R. Gannon, $2; G. J. Hepp, $1.60; P. L. Reuther, $2.40; N. Moorhead, $1.20; J. R. Ransom, $1.20; C. E. Hughes, $1.20; R. F. Ellis, $1.20; Frank Hughes, $8; John Marshall, $2; C. P. Robineau, $2; W. A. Stauton, $4.80; W. B. Brooks, $2.40; J. D. Nims, $2.40; J. Mishy, $1.20; J. A. Anderson, $2.40; F. Tullis, $2.40; S. Steele, $2.40; F. M. O'Connor, $2; R. W. Pigne, $1.60; G. E. Bundy, $1.20; C. Guthrie, $1.20; F. E. Bennett, $1.20; A. F. Koontz $$1.60; J. A. Gravatt, $2.80; F. B. Turner, $2.40; J. F. Wormuth, $2.40; Ed Castlen, $2.40; W. W. Hatchett, $2.40; W. L. Sloane, $2.40; E. Vogel, $2.40; R. E. Olmstead, $1.20; C. W. Coombes, $2.40	99 60
General Fund—Sale of sundry supplies to individuals	84 40
The Typographical Journal—
Individual subscriptions	11 70
Advertising	359 79
Total	$30,443 77

OFFICIAL NOTICE.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., September 20, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of Subordinate Unions:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—Though the by-laws prescribe that the secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union "shall publish in THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL a sworn statement of the balance of his bank books of deposit monthly," and "a full monthly statement of receipts and disbursements of all kinds," it is the unanimous opinion of the executive council of the International Typographical Union that it would be inadvisable and detrimental to the best interests of the organization to technically adhere to these provisions during the present struggle for the eight-hour day.

This being our unanimous belief, and in accordance with our sworn duty to safeguard the interests of the International Typographical Union at all times, the secretary-treasurer is hereby instructed to omit the publication of the monthly balance and the monthly statement of disbursements above noted, until further instructions are given, and the monthly financial statement of said secretary-treasurer shall be confined, for the present, to the publication of receipts for per capita tax, supplies, etc.

It is understood, in this connection, that a complete statement of said disbursements and balances shall be published in monthly sequence in THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL at a later date. This, we believe, will comply with the intent of the law requiring the publication of expenditures, and at the same time fully protect the interests of the organization.

Fraternally yours.

JAMES M. LYNCH,
HUGO MILLER,
J. W. BRAMWOOD,

Executive Council International Typographical Union.

REPORT OF SECRETARY-TREASURER UNION PRINTERS' HOME.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., October 23, 1905.

To the Board of Trustees of the Union Printers' Home:

GENTLEMEN—The following is a statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Home fund from September 22 to October 23, inclusive:

RECEIPTS.

Sept. 22.	Balance in fund	$8,257 52
Oct. 4.	Cash from secretary-treasurer I. T. U.	1,500 00
Oct. 7.	Insurance on shed, $32.50; sale of photo, 75c; per Charles Deacon	33 25
Oct. 21.	Cash from secretary-treasurer I. T. U.	3,393 10
	Total	$13,183 87

EXPENDITURES.

Shields-Morley Grocery Co.—Groceries	$304 58
Ira J. Morse—Butter, eggs, vegetables, etc.	331 93
H. A. Brown Commission Co.—Butter, eggs, fruits, etc	143 32
Seldomridge Bros.—Flour, hay and grain	190 59
O. E. Hemenway—Poultry, vegetables, etc.	120 21
Colorado Packing Co.—Meats	528 61
Sanderson Commission Co.—Fish and Oysters	20 03
Robinson Drug Co.—Drugs, brushes, combs, etc	72 01
Holbrook & Perkins—Suits, hats and clothing	248 33
F. A. Vorhes—Shoes	63 10
T. E. Manning—September shoe repairs	5 15
Colorado Springs Electric Co.—September lights	76 65
Houck-Davidson Coal Co.—Coal	71 53
Union Ice & Coal Co.—Ice and coal	52 95
Colorado Springs Fuel Co.—Charcoal	11 00
Perkins Crockery Co.—Dishes	46 35
Burley Co.—Tumblers	10 00
Giddings Bros.—Buttons, thread, pins, etc.	10 53
Puck Soap Co.—Soap	37 35
McCracken & Hubbard—Chairs	11 40
Hext Music Co.—Machine repairs and sheet music	2 25
Newton Lumber Co.—Lumber and lime	20 26
E. M. Portner—Carpenter work	32 00
Out West Printing Co.—Envelopes, office supplies, etc	11 10
Prompt Printery—Letterheads, cards, etc	28 75
J. W. Fletemeyer—Whiskey, wine and gin	18 25
Continental Oil Co.—Gasoline	10 40
Colorado Telephone Co.—Phone rent to January 1, 1906	22 25
R. Ashby—Spectacles and repairs	6 25
John Jones—Shoeing horses	3 50
Postal Telegraph Co.—September messages	3 43
Northfield Land & Water Co.—Water rent to January 1, 1906	125 00
Lowell-Meservey Hardware Co.—Building hardware and kitchen utensils	41 30
Dr. A. B. Baker—Dentistry	12 50
Hallett & Baker—Burial Robert Middleton	42 00
Mrs. H. M. Moodie—Cash in possession of Robert Middleton, deceased	30 70
Hollenbeck Press—10,000 historical booklets	228 50
J. M. Lynch—September salary	33 33
J. W. Bramwood—September salary	33 33
Charles Deacon—September salaries Home employes	1,133 16
Charles Deacon—Yeast and hominy, $4.80; tuning piano and polish, $3; billiard cue tips, 75c; cleaning tents, $7.80; two yearly subscriptions, twelve magazines, $21.81; pensions to inmates, $344.50; pianist funeral Robert Middleton, $2; five loads rock, $5; transporta-

Digitized by Google

tion Messrs. Stindle, Shepherd, McNay, Waltemade, Masten, $126.25; balance September salaries employes, $44.35; telegram, 60c; tobacco for inmates, $7.20; postage, $3; freight, 30c; railroad ticket for domestic, $2.50; want ad, $1.20; car tickets, $2.25.....	$532 96
Total	$4,728 84

RECAPITULATION.

Balance in fund September 22, 1905.....	$8,257 52
Receipts to October 23, 1905.....	4,926 35
Total	$13,183 87
Expenditures	4,728 84
Balance	$8,455 03

The balance reported consists of $1,562.88 on deposit with American National Bank, Indianapolis, $6,331.78 deposited with Drexel & Co., Philadelphia, and $560.37 in the hands of Superintendent Deacon, the expenditure of which is yet to be reported.

Respectfully submitted,
J. W. Bramwood, Secretary-Treasurer.

Indianapolis, Ind., October 23, 1905.

State of Indiana, Marion county, ss:

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 23d day of October, 1905. Witness my hand and notarial seal. [seal] Albert Smith, Notary Public.

My commission expires August 19, 1908.

SUPERINTENDENT DEACON'S CASH ACCOUNT FOR SEPTEMBER.

September.	RECEIPTS.
1.	Cash on hand.....	$193 33
5.	Robert Middleton, deceased.....	30 70
5.	Sale of photo.....	75
5.	Insurance	32 50
9.	Sale of photo.....	75
18.	J. W. Bramwood—Current expenses..	300 00
30	Amount overdrawn.....	83 98
	Total	$642 01

September.	EXPENDITURES.
2.	I. T. U. pensions.....	68 00
2.	Transportation A. B. Stindle and wife	8 25
2.	Ed Kercheval—Services.....	1 66
6.	J. K. Cook—Rock.....	5 00
6.	Clarence D. Sears—Pianist funeral Robert Middleton.....	2 00
8.	Cash transferred to J. W. Bramwood.	31 45
9.	Jessie Brothers—Services.....	2 77
9.	I. T. U. pensions.....	69 00
9.	Postage	3 00
13.	Emma Knaap—Services.....	1 66
14.	Dess Hoffman—Services.....	1 66
15.	A. G. Atnip—Services.....	18 25
16.	I. T. U. pensions.....	69 50
16.	Transportation Elmer E. Shepherd..	30 75
16.	Transportation Oscar McNay.....	30 75
18.	Jennie Graham—Housecleaning.....	5 40
20.	Transportation L. D. Waltemade....	23 75
21.	Mary Sullivan—Services.....	17 10
21.	Esther Easterling—Services.....	1 25
22.	J. R. Smith—Cleaning tents.....	2 40
22.	Brunswick-Balke-Callender Co.—Cue tips	75
22.	R. W. Hunter—Tuning piano.....	3 00
23.	I. T. U. pensions.....	69 00
23	Tansportation C. E. Masten.....	32 75
23.	John Harper—Hominy.....	3 60
25.	Transportation domestic.....	2 50
25.	Subscriptions to magazines.....	21 81
30.	Cash transferred to J. W. Bramwood	33 25
30.	I. T. U. pensions.....	69 00
30.	A. L. Patton—Tobacco for inmates..	7 20
30.	Charles Deacon—Sundries as follows:
	Yeast	1 20
	Want ads.....	1 20
	Freight	30
	Telegram	60
	Car tickets.....	2 25
	Total	$642 01

DONATIONS TO THE CUMMINGS MEMORIAL FUND.

The following is a list of the [illegible] and expenditures from the Cummings fund from September 21 to October 23.

September 21, 1905—Amount in fund...$[illegible]
43, Charleston, S. C.....	8 75
88, Hannibal, Mo.....	5 00
355, Bellingham, Wash.....	16 00
2, Chicago (Ill.) Mailers.....	5 00
17, Dawson (Y. T.) Newspaper Writers	3 00
Total	$12,216 85

EXPENDITURES.

H. E. Garman—Rent typewriter three months	$10 50
Balance	$12,206 35

Respectfully submitted,
J. W. Bramwood, Secretary-Treasurer.

All contributions should be sent to J. W. Bramwood, secretary-treasurer, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind., who has been designated as custodian of the fund.

SILENCE ANSWERED.

Young ladies with a fondness for infantile admirers should be warned by an episode at a seaside resort last summer.

An engaging masculine of seven years became on exceedingly good terms with the belle of their particular hotel, a girl about twenty years his senior. One day the charmer asked the swain to go bathing, and after the bath, as they returned to their bath-houses, the small man suggested a race to see who could dress first. They entered the bath-houses, which adjoined, and in a short time a youthful treble called: "Miss Ethel, oh, Miss Ethel, I've got my stockings on."

A low contralto answered: "Yes, Robbie, so have I."

After a short pause the irrepressible again called: "Miss Ethel, I've got my shoes on."

Again came the answer: "Yes, dear, so have I."

Again a pause—then a triumphant voice shrilly proclaimed: "Miss Ethel, I've got my pants on."

The answering silence was oppressive.—Lippincott's.

GUTENBERG'S DESCENDANTS.

The death occurred last month, at the island of Langenau, in the Rhine, of the Baron Adolphe Molsberg, the elder of the two individuals who claimed to have descended from John Gutenberg, the supposed inventor of typography in the west, who is assumed to have died in 1468. The baron's wife and children had long predeceased him, and he had for some years led a very solitary life, although in his earlier days he had been a traveler, having made several voyages to the east. He was also the author of some philosophical studies. He leaves a younger brother, who is a confirmed bachelor, so that in all probability the family of the celebrated printer will be extinguished at his death.—British Printer.

It would no doubt be a beautiful sight if all wage-earners could be advanced to that brotherhood of freedom and individual reward enjoyed by the professors of a college faculty, which President Eliot has so nobly outlined as the proper goal to be set up for the hopes of the working classes. But not until inventive genius has supplanted manual labor by automatic machinery, and not until the mental attributes of college professors are diffused among the 90 per cent who are manual workers, will it be possible to criticize the motives and methods of wage-earners from the lofty standpoint of professors.—Prof. John R. Commons.

Digitized by Google

International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union

REPORT OF SECRETARY-TREASURER.

The September receipts are as follows:

1,	New York—For September	$180 00
	For supplies	18 75
3,	Chicago—For August	90 90
4,	Chicago—For September	48 00
5,	Cincinnati—For September	10 80
6,	Kansas City—For September	17 40
8,	St. Louis—For September	16 50
10,	Baltimore—For August	8 40
11,	Boston—For August	18 90
	For supplies	60
13,	Denver—For September	9 30
14,	Columbus—For September	5 10
15,	Dayton—For July and August	4 50
	For supplies	40
16,	St. Paul, Minneapolis—For September	7 80
18,	Newark—For September	3 90
19,	Washington—For September	9 60
20,	Denver—for September	4 50
21,	Toronto—For September	14 10
22,	Cleveland—From July to September	27 30
	For supplies	35
24,	Omaha—For September	6 60
26,	Baltimore—For August	3 90
27,	Hartford, etc.—For September, Oct.	12 00
28,	Albany and Troy—For June and July	24 00
29,	San Francisco—For August	21 00
30,	Indianapolis—For September	4 20
31,	Cincinnati—For August and September	51 00
32,	Louisville—For September	5 40
	For supplies	15
33,	Montreal—For September	3 60
34,	Battle Creek—For July and August	10 80
35,	Cleveland—For August	6 00
36,	St. Louis—For September	20 10
	For supplies	35
37,	Akron—For July	3 00
38,	Indianapolis—For June and July	13 80
39,	Toledo—For August	4 50
40,	Des Moines—For September	3 60
41,	Sioux City—For September	3 00
45,	St. Paul and Minneapolis—For August and September	7 80
46,	Utica—For September	1 50
49,	Rochester—For July	5 10
50,	Ottawa—For August and September	5 40
51,	Memphis—For August	3 30
	For supplies	75
52,	Fall River—For August	2 40
53,	Providence—For July and August	12 60
54,	Detroit—For September	5 70
	For supplies	60
55,	Springfield—For September	3 90
	For supplies	75
56,	Pittsburg—For August	11 40
57,	New Orleans—For September	6 00
58,	Los Angeles—For August	6 60
59,	Winnipeg—From July to September	10 80
60,	Butte—For September	2 10
62,	Lincoln—For August	4 20
63,	Galveston-Houston—For September	5 40
64,	Fort Wayne—For July and August	3 00
65,	Seattle—For September	6 30
66,	Richmond—For September	5 10
67,	Colorado Springs—For September	2 10
	For supplies	1 00
68,	Pittsburg—For September	4 20
69,	Elmira—For August and September	3 00
70,	Columbus—For September	5 10
	Total	$820 20

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

32, Louisville, Ky. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—W. H. Kerr, job stereotyper.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Richmond, Va. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—President, Theodore Dunnavant; vice-president, William Leckler; secretary-treasurer, T. E. Marshall; assistant secretary, C. S. Barlow; sergeant-at-arms, L. E. Couti; executive board, W. N. Woolard, D. C. Marshall, J. H. Atkinson.

Chattanooga, Tenn. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—President, Fred Meyer; vice-president, W. L. Treece; secretary-treasurer, Arthur L. Winters.

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

GENERAL OFFICERS—EXECUTIVE BOARD.

President—James J. Freel, 1839 Eighty-fifth, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Vice-President—J. Fremont Fry, care News, Indianapolis, Ind.
Jesse W. Moreland, 159 Mount Auburn street, Cambridge, Mass.
M. J. Shea, 44 V street, N. W., Washington, D. C.
Secretary-Treasurer—G. W. Williams, 534 Warren street, Boston, Mass.

SECRETARIES OF LOCAL UNIONS.

1, New York (Stereotypers)—G. W. Farnum, 347 East One Hundred and Twentieth.
2, Boston, Mass. (Stereotypers)—G. Fred Moore, box 3350.
3, Chicago, Ill. (Electrotypers)—O. C. Baer, 1596 N. Sacramento avenue.
4, Chicago, Ill. (Stereotypers)—W. N. Julien, 2390 North Forty-second avenue.
5, Cincinnati, Ohio (Stereotypers)—Frank Hegner, 947 West Eighth street.
6, Kansas City, Mo. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—O. McFarland, care Times stereotyping room.
7, Philadelphia, Pa. (Stereotypers)—B. J. Brady, 1316 N. Hutchinson.
8, St. Louis, Mo. (Stereotypers)—H. Heinz, 224 Walnut.
9, Detroit (Stereotypers)—Herbert O'Connor, 8 Fox.
10, Baltimore, Md. (Stereotypers)—C. M. Schilling, 915 Woodley.
11, Boston, Mass. (Electrotype Finishers)—F. L. Murray, 27 Putnam avenue, Cambridge, Mass.
12, Milwaukee, Wis. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—G. N. Mihm, 2616 Chestnut.
13, Denver, Colo. (Stereotypers)—H. A. Miller, 529 Twenty-second.
14, Columbus, Ohio (Stereotypers)—W. G. Knopf, 330 St. Clair avenue.
15, Dayton, Ohio (Electrotypers and Stereotypers)—H. C. Pohl, 62 Clover.
16, St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn. (Stereotypers)—W. F. Smith, 1309 Stevens, Minneapolis.
17, Washington, D. C. (Electrotypers)—H. C. Poppe, 17 T, N. W.
18, Newark, N. J. (Stereotypers)—Henry Sander, 51 Lincoln.
19, Washington, D. C. (Stereotypers)—D. J. Murray, The Brunswick.
20, Binghamton, N. Y. (Stereotypers)—E. P. Cahill, 30 Prospect avenue.
21, Toronto, Ont. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—W. S. McDougall, 13 Park Road.
22, Cleveland, Ohio (Stereotypers)—J. E. Hoffman, 157 Yonker avenue.
23, Syracuse, N. Y.—C. F. Sweeney, 531 West Calvin.
24, Omaha, Neb. (Electrotypers and Stereotypers)—S. L. Rowzee, 1502 Ohio.
25, Buffalo, N. Y. (Stereotypers)—J. E. Whitby, 214 Front avenue.

Digitized by Google

26, Baltimore, Md. (Electrotypers)—Howard Hinkle, 219 West Monument.
27, Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport and Meriden, Conn. (Stereotypers)—G. W. Languth, box 161, Hartford, Conn.
28, Albany and Troy, N. Y. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—H. E. Hill, 207 Elm, Albany, N. Y.
29, San Francisco, Cal. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—William Patton.
30, Indianapolis, Ind. (Electrotypers)—C. F. Markey, 379 N. Colorado avenue.
31, Cincinnati Ohio (Electrotypers)—Henry Boehman, 850 West Liberty.
32, Louisville, Ky. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—F. J. Burkel, 725 Preston.
33, Montreal, Que. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—A. Polequin, 3 Cote avenue.
34, Battle Creek, Mich. (Electrotypers)—L. P. Crandall, 419 West Water, Kalamazoo, Mich.
35, Cleveland, Ohio (Electrotypers)—L. M. Odell, 73 Noyes.
36, St. Louis, Mo. (Electrotypers)—John F. Hoyer, 1311 Sullivan avenue.
37, Akron, Ohio (Electrotypers)—Henry Scheffer, 470 Rhodes avenue.
38, Indianapolis, Ind. (Stereotypers)—W. T. Burke, 117 Kansas.
39, Toledo, Ohio (Stereotypers)—Charles Fisher, 907 Norwood avenue.
40, Des Moines, Iowa (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—G. F. Lane, 1310 Cottage.
41, Sioux City, Iowa (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—D. D. Gordon, 817 Main.
42, Atlanta, Ga.—A. W. Mehaffey, 174 Pulliam.
43, Springfield, Ill. (Stereotypers)—E. L. James, care Illinois State Journal.
44, Springfield, Mass. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—H. J. Bagg, 44 Webster.
45, St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn. (Electrotypers)—H. J. Gerrish, 195 Aurora avenue.
46, Utica, N. Y. (Stereotypers)—Thomas O'Neil, 44 Mohawk.
47, Peoria, Ill. (Stereotypers)—F. L. Moore, R. F. D. No. 4.
48, Portland, Ore. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—M. J. Graham, care Journal stereotyping room.
49, Rochester, N. Y. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—William Spofford, Rural Home Company, 11 Aqueduct.
50, Ottawa, Ont. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—A. Riendeau, care Government Printing Bureau.
51, Memphis, Tenn. (Stereotypers) Tom Faughl, 2103 Lenox avenue.
52, Fall River, Mass. (Stereotypers)—Leroy Johnston, 14 Grinnell.
53, Providence, R. I. (Stereotypers)—S. F. Honan, 224 Ives.
54, Detroit, Mich. (Electrotypers)—Joseph Dwyer, 430 Cavalry.
55, Springfield, Ohio (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—W. C. Schafer, 2 Johnson building.
56, Pittsburg, Pa. (Stereotypers)—J. O. E. Lawton, 2835 Wylie avenue.
57, New Orleans, La. (Stereotypers)—M. A. Rice, 2109 Callioppe.
58, Los Angeles, Cal. (Stereotypers)—J. W. Butterfield, Colegrove, Cal.
59, Winnipeg, Man. (Stereotypers)—P. W. Bowen, box 376.
60, Butte, Mont. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—A. O. Ogstead, care News.
61, St. Joseph, Mo. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—Clyde C. Kelley, 712 Warsaw.
62, Lincoln, Neb. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—A. E. Small, 1840 South Fifteenth.
63, Galveston, Texas (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—H. E. Ketchum, 2024 Avenue L.
64, Fort Wayne, Ind. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—J. J. Metker, 2325 Smith.
65, Seattle, Wash. (Stereotypers)—P. B. Gilliland, 110 West Main.
66, Richmond, Va. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—Thomas E. Marshall, 502 N. Thirty-fourth.
67, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, Colo. (Stereotypers)—W. G. Snyder, 1223 Costello, Colorado Springs.
68, Pittsburg, Pa. (Electrotypers)—Charles Seth, 121 Rochelle, Knoxville Boro, Allegheny County, Pa.
69, Elmira, N. Y. (Stereotypers)—C. G. Brown, 744 West Church.
70, Columbus, Ohio (Electrotypers)—C. T. McCarthy, 135 East Cherry.
71, Salt Lake, Utah (Stereotypers)—Charles Cochran, care Tribune stereotype room.
72, Philadelphia, Pa. (Electrotypers)—W. D. Matthews, 1310 South Simpson.
74, Boston, Mass. (Electrotypers)—A. E. Hathaway, 4 Goldsmith Place, off Ruggles street, Roxbury.
75, Philadelphia, Pa. (Electrotype Foundrymen)—Edward X. Green, 1314 Randolph.
76, Buffalo, N. Y. (Electrotypers)—William H. Widmer, 193 Landon.
77, Chattanooga, Tenn. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—Arthur L. Winters, 500 Cherry.

UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

Unjust discrimination in regard to age is a matter that should be taken into serious consideration by the employers and foremen of the various trades. From experience and observation I have noted that foremen and employers often unjustly discriminate between the older and younger members of trade organizations to a great extent, giving the younger men the preference, and leaving the older, true, reliable, and tried veterans "out in the cold," even when they are capable of doing as much work as the younger men, and giving as good, if not better, satisfaction.

I write especially in regard to my own trade, and there is no doubt that an unjust discrimination exists in other trades, as it does in the printing business. For the last thirty years I have worked in all branches of the printing business, from the "devil" in a printing office to the editorship of a newspaper, and have worked in all the leading book and job offices, but I am sorry to say that the "oldtime" printer is not fairly dealt with.

At present in city offices in the printing line the foremen, to a great extent, are young men from twenty-five years up, who, when an "oldtime" printer applies to them for work, often turn him away, simply because he may have a few gray hairs in his head, or his beard is tinged with gray. The oldtimer may know more in a minute than some of them would know in a month, and might make the younger one ashamed of himself if given a chance to prove what he could do.

In regard to the various other trades, I doubt not but the same thing may be said, and undoubtedly exists. Such an unjust discrimination ought not to exist.

The veteran who has fought for his country, to save his flag from disgrace and dishonor, is entitled to our love, respect, and devotion, and in his old age is justly entitled to a pension. The same may be said of the "oldtimer" in any line of work. When he has passed the meridian of life and has commenced his descent toward the sunset of life, then he, too, should have a warm place in the hearts of every true citizen, and should stand an equal show with the younger men of his craft. DAVID B. METCALF.

Chicago, Ill.

Digitized by Google

Official Directory

INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION.

Headquarters—Rooms 640-650 Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind. Long Distance Telephone, Main, 2886.

GENERAL OFFICERS.

President—James M. Lynch, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.

First Vice-President—J. W. Hays, box 522, Minneapolis, Minn.

Second Vice-President—Hugo Miller, Indianapolis, Ind.

Third Vice-President—James J. Mulcahy, 2821 Cass avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

Fourth Vice-President—E. J. Bracken, 1137 Highland street, Columbus, Ohio.

Fifth Vice-President—P. G. Nuernberger, 313 Giddings street, Ravenswood, Chicago, Ill.

Secretary-Treasurer—J. W. Bramwood, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.

TRUSTEES UNION PRINTERS' HOME.

President—James M. Lynch, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.

Vice-President—Thomas McCaffery, 11 Boulder Place, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Secretary and Treasurer—J. W. Bramwood, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.

L. C. Shepard, 8 Pleasant street, Grand Rapids, Mich.

H. H. Rogers, 1138 Adams street, Chicago, Ill.

W. J. White, 4053 Twenty-third street, San Francisco, Cal.

Thomas F. Crowley, room 12, Hulbert block, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Agent—George P. Nichols, 535 North Carrollton avenue, Baltimore, Md.

DELEGATES TO FEDERATION OF LABOR.

James M. Lynch, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.

Frank Morrison, 423-425 G street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

M. S. Hayes, Citizen office, Cleveland, Ohio.

Frank Foster, 116 Eliot street, Boston, Mass.

Victor L. Berger, 614 State street, Milwaukee, Wis.

ORGANIZERS.

Beattie, Charles, 29 Montcalm street, Montreal, P. Q.

Bonnington, F. J., room 19, 533 Kearny street, San Francisco, Cal.

Booth, W. T., 912 East Leigh street, Richmond, Va.

Boyle, P. J., 1228 South Eleventh street, Omaha, Neb.

Birdsall, F. C., box 681, Denver, Colo.

Brady, Bert G., 216 The Shiel Flats, Indianapolis, Ind.

Clancy, P. L., 24 Allen street, Halifax, N. S.

Colbert, Michael, 276 Belden avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Devereux, J. C., jr., 915 Thomas street, St. Paul, Minn.

Dodge, Frank H., Reaves building, Little Rock, Ark.

Dolan, T. H., 6 Terrace street, Pittsburg, Pa.

Evans, C. S., lock box 549, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Fancher, John E., 618 West Twelfth street, Sioux Falls, S. D.

Fennessy, T. D., 831 East Twentieth street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Haight, William S., 55 Eleventh street, Detroit, Mich.

Hayes, Max S., 1 Blackstone building, Cleveland, Ohio.

Hill, Albert E., 313½ Cedar street, Nashville, Tenn.

Hogan, J. W., 162-163 Pennsylvania Block, Butte, Mont.

Howell, G. H., care Oregonian, Portland, Ore.

Hudspeth, H. S., box 1627, New Orleans, La.

James, W. R., 206 John street, Toronto, Ont.

Kinskey, C. E., 6 Chapin block, Buffalo, N. Y.

McLoughlin, J. E., 18 Chambers street, New York city, N. Y., or 1271 Bushwick avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Parrish, L. A., 72 N. Terrace avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

Rodier, J. A., 384 St. Andre street, Montreal, P. Q.

Rust, F. A., 1506 Second avenue, Seattle, Wash.

Scott, Charles T., 1 Cross street, Beachmont, Mass.

Wardlaw, W. S., box 266, Atlanta, Ga.

Wells, D. M., box 94 or corner Dallas and Montana streets, El Paso, Texas.

Williams, J. J., 616 East Seventh street, Charlotte, N. C.

Wilson, H. B., box 337 Calgary, Alberta, Can.

Wilson, W. B., 269 South Front street, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Woodrow, S. T., 3 North Third street, Camden, N. J.

TRADE DISTRICT UNIONS.

Mailers' Trade District Union—Secretary, Robert T. Allen, box 1817, Boston, Mass.

COMMITTEES.

Committee on Cummings Memorial—Michael Colbert, chairman, Chicago, Ill.; H. E. Garman, secretary, Denver, Col.; M. G. Scott, New York, N. Y.; Joe M. Johnson, Washington, D. C.; A. D. Calvert, Philadelphia, Pa.; A. G. Davis, Boston, Mass.; Fred H. Brown, Syracuse, N. Y.; David Hastings, Hamilton, Ont.; L. A. Bickel, San Francisco, Cal.; T. B. Brown, Topeka, Kan.; P. L. Brent, Memphis, Tenn. All contributions should be forwarded to J. W. Bramwood, Indianapolis, Ind.

Committee on Government Ownership and Control of the Telegraph—A. L. Randall, 1510 North Capital street, chairman; F. C. Roberts, 220 K street, N. W.; W. N. Brockwell, 522 Tenth street, N. E.; John B. Dickman, 1107 New Jersey avenue, N. W.; John A. Huston, 15 L street, N. E. All of Washington, D. C.

Committee on International Copyright Law—J. J. Sullivan, chairman, 316 K street, N. E., Washington, D. C.; James H. Platt, John M. Shaen, Typographical Temple, Washington, D. C.

Eight-Hour Day Committee—James M. Lynch, chairman; J. W. Bramwood, secretary; J. W. Hays, Hugo Miller.

Label Committee on Text-Books—N. E. McPhail, chairman, Boston, Mass.; C. P. Connolly, secretary, St. Louis, Mo.; A. E. Hill, Nashville, Tenn.; Charles Perry Taylor, Tacoma, Wash.; James B. Anderson, Toledo, Ohio.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES COUNCILS.

LIST OF SECRETARIES.

["In a jurisdiction where more than one trade holds a charter from the International Typographical Union, they shall create a joint standing committee, to consist of three members from each body * * *."—Section 120, General Laws.]

Akron, Ohio—A. R. Sheehan, care Werner Co.

Albany, N. Y.—W. H. Patterson, 126 First street.

Atlanta, Ga.—E. L. Parham, 12½ North Broad.

Baltimore, Md.—Robert A. Williamson, 1315 Mosher street.

Battle Creek, Mich.—George Wilson, 16 Howard street.

Belleville, Ill.—Andrew Schwarz, care St. Clair Printing Company.

Bellingham, Wash.—F. T. Baltuff, 1115 Key street.

Digitized by Google

Binghamton, N. Y.—George Irving, care Herald.
Birmingham, Ala.—R. P. Schoppert, 136 Sixtieth street.
Bloomington, Ill.—L. C. Spurgin, 604 West Nill st.
Boston, Mass.—D. J. McDonald, room 19, 82 Water street.
Brockton, Mass.—W. W. Adams, 47 West Rossetter street.
Buffalo, N. Y.—C. E. Kinskey, 6 Chapin block.
Butte, Mont.—L. M. Thayer, care Inter-Mountain.
Cedar Rapids, Iowa—R. G. Stewart, 64 Kimball building.
Charleston, S. C.—M. J. Conklin, box 504.
Chicago, Ill.—L. P. Straube, room 302, 134 East Van Buren.
Cincinnati, Ohio—R. H. Curl, 17 Fisher block.
Cleveland, Ohio—George E. Lee, 1 Blackstone building.
Colorado Springs, Colo.—H. J. Cocks, 718 South Weber street.
Columbus, Ohio—C. W. McCahill, 227 Neil street.
Dallas, Texas—Z. M. Duckworth, 170 Second ave.
Decatur, Ill.—J. H. King, care Hostetler Printing House.
Denver, Colo.—H. E. Garman, box 1447.
Des Moines, Iowa—P. E. Spencer, box 48.
Detroit, Mich.—A. A. Schuetzler, 500 Catherine street.
Duluth, Minn.—John M. McDonald, Duluth Heights.
East Liverpool, Ohio—Alex Wilson, 174 Thompson avenue.
Elizabeth, N. J.—E. H. Feller, 1011 Lafayette st.
Elgin, Ill.—R. M. Lord, 313 Center street.
Evansville, Ind.—W. L. Jaus, 400 John street.
Everett, Wash.—S. J. Hart, care Herald.
Fall River, Mass.—D. F. Shea, 455 Peckham st.
Fort Worth, Texas—R. W. Walker, 406 Fifth ave.
Fresno, Cal.—W. L. Cochran, care Franklin Printing House.
Galveston, Texas—H. E. Ketchum, 2024 avenue L.
Grand Rapids, Mich.—John D. Flanigan, 287 S. Division street.
Hartford, Conn.—George A. Clintsman, box 856.
Helena, Mont.—R. L. Fisk, care Record.
Indianapolis, Ind.—Charles Ruth, care Wood-Weaver Company.
Jackson, Mich.—John A. Welch, 213 Ten Eyck st.
Jacksonville, Fla.—H. A. Jackson, 321 E. Second.
Joliet, Ill.—E. W. Coppage.
Joplin, Mo.—Edward Pickering, 201 North Byers avenue.
Kansas City, Mo.—G. G. Crawford, 3829 Michigan avenue.
Knoxville, Tenn.—M. J. Breen, 506 South Gay street.
Lafayette, Ind.—S. H. Saltzgaber, 1505 Main st.
Leavenworth, Kan.—G. E. Hathaway, 107 S. Esplanade.
Lincoln, Neb.—W. H. Creal, 1445 North Twenty-second street.
Little Rock, Ark.—G. C. Alley, 1612 Booker street.
Los Angeles, Cal.—M. M. Lyon, 3112 Eagle st.
Louisville, Ky.—J. Schneider, 447 W. Jefferson.
Lowell, Mass.—John W. Maguire, 25 Whipple st.
Memphis, Tenn.—W. N. Page, 526 Cooper avenue.
Meriden, Conn.—T. E. Lawler, 52 Center street.
Milwaukee, Wis.—Henry Ohl, jr., 1260 Twenty-seventh street.
Minneapolis, Minn.—E. Raschke, care Bureau of Engraving, 15 Seventh street.
Mobile, Ala.—P. E. Thompson, care Daily Item.
Nashville, Tenn.—Ira E. Boylin, 606 S. Summer st.
New Haven, Conn.—D. K. Fitzgerald, box 701.
Newark, N. J.—H. J. Gottlob, box 122.
New Orleans, La.—W. A. Sherwood, box 1627.
New York, N. Y.—George A. Chambers, 843 Washington street.
Niles, Mich.—A. W. Hudson.
Oakland, Cal.—C. R. Mulgrew, 371 Eleventh st.
Omaha, Neb.—D. G. Craighead, 2409 Hamilton st.
Oswego, N. Y.—Frank R. Fitzgerald, 56 E. Eighth.
Paterson, N. J.—James B. Esty, 47 Lexington avenue, Passaic, N. J.
Pawtucket, R. I.—John Gilleece, Lonsdale, R. I.
Peoria, Ill.—W. S. Bush, 103 Main street.
Philadelphia, Pa.—A. M. Fasy, 925 Morris street.
Pittsburg, Pa.—W. J. McAfee, care Burgess Printing Company, 963 Liberty avenue.
Portland, Maine—Arthur Ingersoll, 45 Quebec st.
Portland, Ore.—Hugh M. Glen, care Telegram.
Providence, R. I.—C. F. Martin, 80 Chestnut st.
Pueblo, Colo.—C. E. Donnelley, box 118.
Raleigh, N. C.—L. F. Alford, 125 East South st.
Richmond, Va.—Henry Meyer, box 16.
Rochester, N. Y.—G. E. Faulkner, 42 Finch street.
Sacramento, Cal.—J. Gibfried, 1425 K street.
Salt Lake City, Utah—V. R. Macknight, box 491.
San Diego, Cal.—G. G. Schierholz, 827 D street.
San Francisco, Cal.—D. T. Powers, room 20, 533 Kearny street.
Savannah, Ga.—Ed L. Roberts, 1411 Barnard st.
Seattle, Wash.—F. W. Petty, 1812 Terry avenue.
Shreveport, La.—C. A. Cox, care Williams Printing Company.
Sioux City, Iowa—F. H. Lawrence, 1700 W. Fifth.
Sioux Falls, S. D.—H. Patterson, care Journal.
Spokane, Wash.—A. J. Germain, 28 Reliance block.
Springfield, Ill.—Bert Winter, 1018 South Fifteenth street.
Springfield, Mass.—Walter H. Kirby, 124 Spring street.
Springfield, Ohio—O. B. Miller, 15 S. Mechanic st.
St. Louis, Mo.—C. P. Connolly, 1394 Blackstone avenue.
St. Paul, Minn.—E. P. Boehm, care H. L. Collins Co., Tenth and Minnesota streets.
Superior, Wis.—O. A. Digle, care Telegram.
Syracuse, N. Y.—F. W. Kinsey, 117 Phelps place.
Tacoma, Wash.—Eugene Goodrich, 9 South C st.
Toledo, Ohio—C. S. Brown, box 17.
Toronto, Ont.—John Armstrong, 65 Colborne st.
Trenton, N. J.—Charles Harrison, jr., 923 Carteret avenue.
Utica, N. Y.—C. W. Lettinger, 713 Mary street.
Vancouver, B. C.—J. F. McConnell, 408 Georgia.
Waco, Texas—J. L. McDonald, box 216.
Washington, D. C.—Elmer Johnson, 2009 Flagler street.
Waterbury, Conn.—G. M. Cooley, 13 W. Farm st.
Watertown, N. Y.—F. H. Roof.
Wheeling, W. Va.—W. C. Jones, 63 Indiana st.
Worcester, Mass.—N. L. Davis, 33 Coral street.

SUBORDINATE UNIONS.

LIST OF SECRETARIES, ETC.

Notice of change or error in the following list should be promptly forwarded to the secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union:

ALABAMA.

Anniston No. 419—W. F. McCartney, 2002 Leighton.
Bessemer No. 535—J. A. Nabors, 1822 Second ave.
Birmingham No. 104—J. M. Russell, care News.
Gadsden No. 517—Thompson Hatter.
Mobile No. 27—John J. Russell, 28 South Ann.
Montgomery No. 222—Joe B. Walker, care Journal.
New Decatur No. 438—L. E. Beckley, care Advertiser.
Selma No. 440—J. F. Buhler, box 78.
Tuscaloosa, No. 361—W. F. Cotter, care Times-Gazette.

ALASKA.

Nome No. 582—George Maynard, care News.

ARIZONA.

Douglas No. 544—H. C. Holdsworth, box 772.
Globe No. 367—W. G. Scott, care Belt.
Phœnix No. 352—F. H. Volz, jr., 805 Montezuma avenue.
Prescott No. 375—R. E. Butler, box 476.
Tucson No. 465—F. S. Moreno, box 147.

ARKANSAS.

Fayetteville No. 648—Elizabeth McMurray.
Fort Smith No. 249—J. T. Dormois, box 72.
Hot Springs No. 574—W. H. Watson, box 92.
Jonesboro No. 661—J. L. Thompson, 219 E. Matthew.
Little Rock No. 92—Sterling Moore, box 258.
Pine Bluff No. 447—T. A. Wilson, box 235.
Texarkana No. 313—W. S. Grant, 1219 Laurel.

Digitized by Google

CALIFORNIA.

Bakersfield No. 439—Mrs. C. S. Clare, 721 M street, Kern City, Cal.
Eureka No. 207—R. H. Conklin, 1204 A.
Fresno City No. 144—A. D. Marshall, box 818.
Grass Valley No. 601—G. H. Menifec, Nevada City, Cal.
Long Beach and San Pedro No. 650—Frank M. Jones, 955 California avenue, Long Beach.
Los Angeles No. 174—G. W. Bowman, 208 Potomac building, 217 South Broadway.
Marysville No. 223—Edw. Heisch, care Democrat.
Oakland No. 36—C. E. Backess, box 161 Fruitvale P. O., Cal.
Palo Alto No. 521—Frank Kasson, 522 Emerson.
Pasadena No. 583—George Linney, 777 N. Fair Oaks avenue.
Petaluma No. 600—C. E. Moon, box 371.
Redding No. 475—C. C. Fiske, care Searchlight.
Riverside No. 254—E. H. Markel, box 622.
Sacramento No. 46—T. A. Cody, box 392.
San Bernardino No. 84—Sydney Waite, 132 Fifth.
San Diego No. 221—W. W. Hinds, 1167 Union.
San Francisco No. 21—H. L. White, room 19, 533 Kearny.
San Jose No. 231—J. W. Bowman, Whitton ave., East San Jose.
San Luis Obispo No. 576—F. S. Finney, 670 Pismo.
San Mateo No. 624—Edward E. Cordy, box 186.
Santa Barbara No. 394—J. F. R. Arellanes, 205 East Cota.
Santa Cruz No. 589—Arthur Chubb, 43 Pearl.
Santa Rosa No. 577—W. S. Linsley, 726 Orchard.
Stockton No. 56—H. S. Hornage, box 140.
Vallejo No. 389—R. W. Walker, box 231.
Watsonville-Salinas No. 543—G. A. Blizzard, 150 Second, Watsonville.

CANADA.

Berlin, Ont., No. 366—C. C. Delion, box 70.
Brandon, Man., No. 656—E. H. Hebel, box 723.
Brantford, Ont., No. 378—E. R. Sayles, 56 Albion.
Brockville, Ont., No. 393—S. W. Bell, box 561.
Calgary, Alberta, N. W. T., No. 449—John Pearson, box 1029.
Chatham, Ont., No. 460—A. J. Owen, box 151.
Dawson City, Y. T., No. 467—J. Harmon Caskey, care Daily News.
Edmonton, Alberta, N. W. T., No. 604—H. C. Deeton.
Fort William, Ont., No. 417—A. H. Hutton, care Times-Journal.
Fredericton, N. B., No. 664—T. H. Hazlett.
Galt, Ont., No. 411—J. C. Wilson, box 193.
Greenwood, B. C., No. 358—G. A. Evans, box 26, Grand Forks, B. C.
Guelph, Ont., No. 391—P. J. Golds, box 574.
Halifax, N. S., No. 130—G. H. Merlin, box 492.
Hamilton, Ont., No. 129—J. J. Burns, 230 North John.
Jacques-Cartier No. 145—Henri Cardinal, 997 St. Dennis, Montreal, P. Q.
Limestone City No. 204—Allen Stroud, 91 Rideau, Kingston, Ont.
Lindsay, Ont., No. 296—J. W. Richards, Lindsay, North.
London, Ont., No. 133—W. A. Hunter, 196 Rectory.
Moncton, N. B., No. 666—P. D. Ayer.
Montreal, Que., No. 176—John Beckingham, box 734.
Nelson, B. C., No. 340—President, C. V. Dake; vice-president, W. J. Hill; financial secretary, W. G. McMorris, box 484; sergeant-at-arms, L. W. Ackley; treasurer, C. H. Ink; executive committee, W. J. Hill, C. V. Dake. Union meets last Sunday in each month.
Ottawa, Ont., No. 102—Michael Powell, box 436.
Peterborough, Ont., No. 248—J. G. Perry, box 730.
Port Arthur, Ont., No. 539—C. E. Roberts, care Chronicle.
Quebec No. 302—President, Eugene J. Cote; vice-president, Joseph Dempsey; financial secretary, Alfred Larose, 337 Arago street; secretary, F. Petitclerc; treasurer, Ed Little, P. O. box 263.
Regina, Sask., No. 657—S. Von Rekofski, care Leader.
Rossland, B. C., No. 335—Fred C. Rassman, box 335.
Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., No. 647—E. G. Price, care Star.
Stratford, Ont., No. 139—J. H. Shannon, box 178.
St. Catharines, Ont., No. 416—E. J. Warner, box 940.
St. Hyacinthe, Que., No. 579—Ovila Larue, box 44.
St. John, N. B., No. 85—C. N. Brittain, box 352.
St. Thomas, Ont., No. 459—Robert Porter, box 1116.
Toronto, Ont., No. 91—President, Edward M. Meehan; vice-president, James Simpson; corresponding secretary, A. E. Thompson; financial secretary, T. C. Vodden; treasurer, Ed J. How; chairman board of relief, William Church. Address all officers box 211. Union room, Room 17, 11½ Richmond street. Union meets first Saturday in month, in Labor Temple.
Vancouver, B. C., No. 226—President, R. J. Wilson; treasurer, John Watkins; financial secretary, W. H. Hunt, box 66. Union meets fourth Monday in every month.
Victoria, B. C., No. 201—G. M. Watt, box 209.
Windsor, Ont., No. 550—G. F. Eagleden, box 778.
Winnipeg, Man., No. 191—President, Kempton McKim; corresponding secretary, W. R. Trotter; financial secretary, George H. Moore, box 770.
Woodstock, Ont., No. 317—Walter James, box 425.

COLORADO.

Canon City No. 425—Emil Klunker, box 486.
Colorado Springs No. 82—President, W. J. Snider; financial and corresponding secretary, J. A. J. Birdsall, box 813.
Cripple Creek No. 227—F. R. Foster, 326 Bennett avenue.
Denver No. 49—President, John E. Collett; vice-president, T. F. Dolan; financial secretary; F. C. Birdsall; recording secretary, William Tanner; box 681.
Durango No. 373—H. M. Andrews, care Wage Earner.
Fort Collins No. 592—H. B. Hatch, 319 Matthews.
Grand Junction No. 292—Rodney Jay, 313 North Seventh.
Greeley No. 586—C. G. Heuring, care Tribune.
Leadville No. 179—M. V. Devor, box 194.
Pueblo No. 175—J. D. Gavitt, box 476.
Salida No. 566—J. B. Nichols.
Trinidad No. 434—A. H. Lee, care Chronicle-News.
Victor No. 275—J. H. White, box 288.

CONNECTICUT.

Ansonia No. 285—James B. Baylis, Seymour, Conn.
Bridgeport No. 252—P. W. Pulver, 173 Orchard avenue.
Danbury No. 143—F. G. Capron, 4 Tower Place.
Hartford No. 127—S. T. Pfund, box 856.
Meriden No. 314—H. C. Maydwell, 350 Cook ave.
New Haven No. 47—Frank Van Dyck, box 1269.
New London No. 159—Robert Tarring, box 248.
Norwalk No. 529—F. W. McKane, 8-10 North Main, South Norwalk.
Norwich No. 100—E. H. Crocker, Bliss Place.
Stamford No. 503—Charles Guinas, care Stamford Printing Co.
Waterbury No. 329—R. B. Foley, box 63.

DELAWARE.

Wilmington No. 123—A. O. H. Grier, Every Evening office.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Columbia No. 101—George G. Seibold, 423-425 G, N. W., Washington, D. C.

FLORIDA.

Jacksonville No. 162—B. I. Sharpe, box 271.
Pensacola No. 293—P. McLellan, care Journal.
St. Augustine No. 588—H. P. Davies, care Record.
Tampa No. 299—W. F. Kelly, 801 Zack.

GEORGIA.

Athens No. 595—J. B. Wilbanks, box 462.
Atlanta No. 48—W. H. Grant, box 266.
Augusta No. 41—W. S. Bell, box 635.
Brunswick No. 659—J. C. Latimer.

Digitized by Google

Columbus No. 220—W. H. Adams, box 132.
Fitzgerald No. 485—A. H. Jones.
Macon No. 93—H. H. Myers, 110 Park Place.
Rome No. 371—T. D. Caldwell, box 627.
Savannah No. 183—Ed White, box 554.
Valdosta No. 451—J. D. Gamble, care Valdosta Printing Co.

HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

Honolulu No. 37—John Traut, care Gazette.

IDAHO.

Boise City No. 271—E. R. Thompson, box 85.
Idaho Falls No. 631—David B. Bybee, box 704.
Lewiston No. 634—E. D. Griffin, box 207.
Moscow No. 501—Marie Shannon.
Pocatello No. 491—James Purdie, 1009 N. Hayes avenue.
Wallace No. 617—Irving Wilson, box 312.

ILLINOIS.

Alton No. 306—H. W. Bauer, 528 East Seventh.
Aurora No. 291—Ida L. Gray, 459 South.
Belleville No. 74—A. F. Neubauer, 407 S. Richland.
Bloomington No. 124—G. A. Summers, 901 West Mulberry.
Cairo No. 461—F. E. Thurman, 222 Eighth.
Canton No. 342—Clyde W. Underhill, 844 East Pine.
Carlinville No. 458—F. W. Burgdorff, box 572.
Centralia No. 479—A. W. Reynolds, Drawer G.
Champaign and Urbana No. 444—J. M. Collins, 10 Hickory, Champaign.
Charleston No. 560—F. M. Mealey, care Courier.
Chicago No. 16—President, Edwin R. Wright; vice-president, Thomas P. McCooey, secretary-treasurer, William McEvoy, room 227 Garden City block, 56 Fifth avenue; recording secretary and organizer, John C. Harding; sergeant-at-arms, F. M. Cruikshank; board of trustees, Gus Bilger (chairman), C. F. Sheldon, C. M. Whitman; executive committee, R. L. C. Brown, Charles S. Thomson, Edward Wilcox, John F. Hayes, A. M. Stoetzel and the four executive officers. Union meets last Sunday in each month at 2 P. M. Executive committee meets the Sunday preceding the regular meeting.
Chicago No. 330 (Bohemian)—Frank Janecek, 683 Allport.
Chicago No. 272 (Norwegian-Danish)—A. B. Holm, 459 North California avenue.
Chicago No. 546 (Polish)—John Gretza, 104 Crystal.
Chicago No. 247 (Swedish)—N. W. Anthony, 33 Orchard.
Clinton No. 505—H. E. Montgomery, corner Woodlawn and Elizabeth.
Danville No. 230—T. K. Heath, 409 Grant.
Decatur No. 215—L. L. Underwood, box 484.
Edwardsville No. 354—W. L. Nicodemus.
Elgin No. 171—C. S. Pease, 38 Monroe.
Freeport No. 524—E. C. Bertsch, 4 Fifth avenue.
Galesburg No. 288—O. W. Walkup, 414 N. Cedar.
Harrisburg No. 563—F. M. Pickett, box 407.
Herrin No. 599—M. S. Bolerjack.
Jacksonville No. 356—E. O. Mayer, 403 N. Prairie.
Joliet No. 194—W. M. Funk, 408 Bluff.
Kewanee No. 164—C. H. Curtis, 107 W. Third.
La Salle and Peru, Ill., No. 442—W. E. Mickle, care Post, La Salle, Ill.
Lewistown No. 557—R. L. Alexander, box 344.
Lincoln No. 327—F. P. Alexander, 215½ South Kickapoo.
Litchfield No. 368—Marguerite Dunn, 722 Van Buren.
Marion No. 518—Minto Bradley, care Post-Press.
Mascoutah No. 443—Carl Montag, care Herald.
Mattoon No. 520—Katherine E. Wilson, 1608 Marion avenue.
Morris No. 594—C. A. Violet.
Murphysboro No. 217—George Horsfield, 1314 Walnut.
Ottawa No. 265—C. G. Wilson, 1001 Douglas.
Pekin No. 591—H. S. Kettenring, 8-10 N. Third.
Peoria No. 29—W. S. Bush, 225 N. Adams.
Pontiac No. 390—Fred H. Parrish, 224 N. Main.
Quincy No. 59—D. F. Cover, 406 Jersey.
Rockford No. 213—Fred W. Geng, 610 North.
Springfield No. 177—President, W. H. Rotramel; vice-president and chairman executive committee, F. W. Lamey; corresponding and financial secretary, George Hoole, box 198.
Sterling No. 282—George Phillips.
Streator No. 328—E. M. Barclay, 605 N. Monroe.
Taylorville No. 369—E. J. Flynn, 216 East Palmer.
Tri-City No. 107—C. S. Osborn, 323 West Third street, Davenport, Iowa.
Waukegan No. 294—A. J. Gehlman.

INDIANA.

Alexandria No. 279—A. G. French, care Tribune.
Anderson No. 284—T. F. Casey, 508 W. Tenth.
Bedford No. 98—E. E. Nixon, 1106 W. Fifteenth.
Bluffton No. 435—A. F. Woodruff, care Banner.
Columbus No. 450—Celia Kremer, 636 Fifth.
Crawfordsville No. 229—J. A. Grimes, 716 S. Walnut.
Elkhart No. 266—William Newman, 1223 S. Main.
Elwood No. 331—H. A. Maddock, 1912 North B.
Evansville No. 35—President, W. Byington; secretary-treasurer, Phil Voelker, 409 Sycamore.
Fort Wayne No. 78—J. L. Sessler, box 234.
Frankfort No. 287—Jos. Gardner, 1115 S. Columbia.
Greenfield No. 469—Almon Keifer.
Huntington No. 454—C. E. Boyd, 86 Poplar.
Indianapolis No. 1—President, Edgar A. Perkins; vice-president, Edgar J. Heaton; recording secretary, W. A. Green; financial and corresponding secretary, C. E. McKee, 502 Lemcke building; sergeant-at-arms, J. N. Cullum.
Kokomo No. 412—B. C. Nicholson, 432 S. Main.
Lafayette No. 64—George Sullivan, care Sunday Times.
Linton No. 407—J. M. Johnson, care Call.
Logansport No. 196—H. W. Peters, 1010 Linden avenue.
Marion No. 286—Howard L. Charter, 413 North Branson.
Muncie No. 332—H. A. Brown, care Star.
New Albany No. 169—H. K. Smith, 319 East Main.
Peru No. 97—Fred Felix, box 8.
Princeton No. 488—Frank Conover, 608 N. Race.
Richmond No. 301—Oran Parker, 127 S. Ninth.
Shelbyville No. 542—Valentine Hey, 192 E. Washington.
South Bend No. 128—C. E. Bertch, 608 East Sample.
Terre Haute No. 76—J. S. Edmunds, 1132 South Third.
Vincennes No. 395—J. C. Mayes, 314 South Third.
Wabash No. 347—George Ply, care Plaindealer.
Washington No. 538—Ethel Cross, box 244.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

Ardmore No. 649—Allison Coleman, 203 W. Main.
Chickasha No. 571—Joe King, 516 Chickasha ave.
Muskogee No. 484—M. E. Deming, care Model Printing Company.
South McAlester No. 565—D. C. Lester, box 73.
Tulsa No. 403—J. S. Faith, box 868.

IOWA.

Boone No. 381—E. H. Brady, 1211 Carroll.
Bluff City No. 203 (Council Bluffs)—J. H. Westcott, 128 South First.
Burlington No. 75—Charles Herchenbach, box 463.
Cedar Rapids No. 192—C. L. Woodman, 98 First avenue, West.
Clinton No. 334—O. Lindloff, box 865, Lyons.
Creston No. 537—H. R. Brightman, 406 N. Vine.
Des Moines No. 118—W. D. Ferree, box 556.
Dubuque No. 22—D. W. Frazier, West Fourteenth and Cox.
Fort Dodge No. 603—A. N. Pruess, box 474.
Fort Madison No. 581—Beatrice L. Johnson, 408 Fifth.
Independence No. 652—J. L. Cilley.
Iowa City No. 515—Al Burger, corner Harrison and Linn.
Keokuk No. 68—Albert Kiefer, 515 Main.
Le Mars No. 651—C. H. Reynolds, Fourth and Cedar.
Marshalltown No. 414—Emil Seliene, 406 West Boone.
Mason City No. 406—A. G. Overton, box 438.

Digitized by Google

Decatine No. 251—W. H. Deutschmann, box 183.
Dein No. 527—C. B. De Veny, 205 Second.
Deloosa No. 526—G. A. Rigger, 411 N. Seventh.
Dewa No. 73—H. W. DeJarnette, 262 North Dean.
City and Storm Lake No. 660—E. W. Bethards, care Vidette, Storm Lake, Iowa.
Sioux City No. 180—S. J. McCullough, box 577.
Washington No. 663—Morton Sessler, 529 W. Third.
Waterloo No. 349—J. A. Rosgen, 1123 Sycamore.

KANSAS.

Atchison No. 113—G. W. Mesigh, 323 North Fourteenth.
Chanute No. 608—Wilfrid Cavaness, care Tribune.
Coffeyville No. 578—John A. Reed, 609 West Eleventh.
Fort Scott No. 343—E. M. Willett, 101 S. Eddy.
Girard No. 348—W. E. Ford, 207 South Carbon.
Hutchinson No. 243—W. V. Payne, care Independent.
Iola No. 481—E. L. Gilliatt, 306 South Buckeye.
Leavenworth No. 45—William M. Rose, 711 Cheyenne.
Ottawa No. 408—Will Kienzle, box 91.
Pittsburg No. 470—Walter Graves, 413 W. Fifth.
Topeka No. 121—President, Charles E. Sutherland; vice-president, C. O. Hovather; financial and corresponding secretary, Albert Griffin, box 50; treasurer, Franklin Barnes; recording secretary, Frank Phinney.
Wichita No. 148—President, S. G. Skinner, 635 North Water; financial secretary, C. S. Eckert, 1060 N. Main.

KENTUCKY.

Blue Grass No. 189—W. W. Hoagland, care Leader, Lexington.
Bowling Green No. 629—W. A. Kennedy, Rural Route No. 3.
Frankfort No. 267—J. D. O'Connor.
Henderson No. 493—R. B. Cheaney, box 256.
Louisville No. 10—President, W. H. Stanley; vice-president, Charles D. Culley; recording secretary, J. G. Kestler; secretary-treasurer, J. P. Stack, box 555.
Mayfield No. 621—Ross Rogers.
Paducah No. 134—J. E. Baker, care Sun.

LOUISIANA.

Baton Rouge No. 25—Albert Templet, 802 North.
Lake Charles No. 568—G. W. Brayton, box 425.
Monroe No. 540—W. G. Lawhead.
New Orleans No. 17—President, H. S. Hudspeth; vice-president, J. J. Tucker; recording secretary, E. F. Deimel; corresponding and financial secretary, S. T. Stevenson, box 1627; treasurer, Oscar Schumert; reading clerk, S. P. Allen; sergeant-at-arms, B. J. Bouis.
Shreveport No. 155—R. P. Moore, box 182.

MAINE.

Augusta No. 380—L. V. Clark, 23 Melville.
Bangor No. 446—F. J. Foster, 318 Grove.
Lewiston No. 532—B. M. Shaw, 44 Spring.
Millinocket No. 622—R. S. Morse.
Portland No. 66—M. S. Burke, 83 Anderson.
Waterville No. 643—F. S. H. Callaghan, 54 Silver.

MARYLAND.

Annapolis No. 114—G. R. Tydings, 50 Randall.
Baltimore No. 12—President, William J. Hanafin; vice-president, Joshua W. Lynch; recording and corresponding secretary, Edward J. Burgan, 519 North Washington; secretary-treasurer, R. A. Williamson, 1315 Mosher; trustees, L. M. Augustine, James A. Hartman, Burtson A. Hickcox; sergeant-at-arms, Harry T. Bussey. Union meets last Sunday in each month.
Cumberland No. 244—B. F. Walters, 19 Belleview.
Hagerstown No. 108—W. S. Boward, 306 S. Locust.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston No. 13—Henry Sterling, room 2, No. 52 Federal.
Brockton No. 224—H. B. Foskett, 2 Silver road.
Cambridge No. 61—S. T. Byington, 70 Otis, East Cambridge.
Fitchburg and Leominster No. 623—B. M. Hartshorn, 55 Pacific.
Fall River No. 161—F. E. Durfee, box 479.
Gloucester No. 486—Richard Darcy, 8 Friend.
Greenfield No. 547—Katherine Sullivan, 20 Mill.
Haverhill No. 38—C. S. Huntress, 23 King, Groveland, Mass.
Holyoke No. 253—Aug. Lehmann, 456 Main.
Lawrence No. 51—P. S. Nugent, box 122.
Lowell No. 310—W. H. Brown, box 1026.
Lynn No. 120—G. N. Goodridge, 411 Union.
Marlboro-Hudson No. 281—G. E. Crocker, 52 Huntington avenue, Marlboro, Mass.
New Bedford No. 276—A. H. Adams, 96 Park.
North Adams No. 316—Robert Tudor, box 384.
Norwood No. 228—R. S. Warde, 115 Vernon.
Pittsfield No. 109—F. E. Jones.
Springfield No. 216—A. W. Harrington, box 118.
Taunton No. 319—J. F. Fitzgerald, 29 Plain.
Waltham No. 259—A. L. Moody, 376 Newton.
Worcester No. 165—A. B. Morton, box 176.

MICHIGAN.

Adrian No. 166—W. R. Hellems, 59 State.
Ann Arbor No. 154—J. V. Quirk, 514 N. Davidson.
Battle Creek No. 429—A. F. Oxley, R. F. D. No. 7.
Bay City No. 81—Melvin Hodgins, 219 Washington avenue.
Benton Harbor and St. Joseph No. 525—H. A. Wells, 129 Summit, Benton Harbor.
Cheboygan No. 632—J. P. Lewis, box 836.
Detroit No. 18—President, G. W. Dickson; vice-president, William Haight; secretary-treasurer, J. H. Walker, 360 Loyal Guard building; recording secretary, John Pendergast; sergeant-at-arms, D. J. Curtin; executive committee, J. H. Walker, chairman; laws committee, W. W. Norton, chairman; board of auditors, E. B. Welsh, chairman; board of directors, L. H. Kessel, chairman.
Grand Rapids No. 39—President, W. B. Wilson; vice-president, C. D. Hamill; recording secretary, John E. Gibbs; secretary-treasurer, Daniel Kelly, 487 Cass avenue; sergeant-at-arms, Cornelius Braam.
Houghton No. 596—E. A. Brown.
Jackson No. 99—Carl Worch, suite 8, Allen Bennett block.
Kalamazoo No. 122—G. E. Martin, box 151.
Lansing No. 72—President, John E. Willis; vice-president, John G. Richards; financial and corresponding secretary, Ralph L. Ripley, 513 Lenawee, W.; recording secretary, J. C. Welch, 521½ North Saginaw; treasurer, Thomas Hart; sergeant-at-arms, O. A. Minard; assistant sergeant-at-arms, Claud L. Van Deusen.
Manistee No. 615—T. Charles Price, 77 Oak.
Menominee No. 360—Robert J. Cairns, 1100 Dunlap avenue.
Muskegon No. 168—C. V. Gravlin, 88 Myrtle.
Niles No. 514—W. J. Mahon, 704 Broadway.
Owossso and Corunna No. 455—J. D. Estes, 210 Goodhue, Owosso.
Pontiac No. 512—R. V. Henderson, 31 Allison.
Port Huron No. 300—F. G. Rauser, box 1112.
Sault Ste. Marie No. 359—L. S. Laing, 313 Amanda.
Traverse City No. 362—C. L. Davis, 616 W. Tenth.
Valley City No. 50 (Saginaw)—President, R. A. Beyer; vice-president, E. W. McArthur; financial secretary, L. H. Swart, care Courier-Herald; recording secretary, Ray Needham.

MINNESOTA.

Brainerd No. 593—C. H. Sherman, 502 Norwood.
Crookston No. 502—A. L. Berkland, care Journal.
Duluth No. 136—Augustine Murphy, care Herald.
Mankato No. 564—W. H. Cooper, 122 Lincoln.
Minneapolis No. 42—N. C. O'Connor, box 522.
Stillwater No. 432—F. C. Giossi, 404 S. Fourth.
St. Cloud No. 630—George S. Clark, 27 Fifth avenue, South.
St. Paul No. 30—J. H. Wilson, Federation Hall.
Winona No. 246—M. J. Chesslick, 709 E. Third.

MISSISSIPPI.

Columbus No. 309—W. H. Montgomery, care Dispatch.
Jackson No. 363—T. W. Anderson, 224 North.

Digitized by Google

Meridian No. 153—T. T. Merritt, box 115.
Natchez No. 558—F. W. Koops, 505 North Pine.
Vicksburg No. 427—M. J. McAuliffe, jr., care Mississippi Printing Company.

MISSOURI.

Chillicothe No. 264—L. M. Estep, care Tribune.
Columbia No. 160—A. E. Rothwell, 1216 Walnut.
De Soto No. 513—H. W. Harris.
Hannibal No. 88—C. A. Hill, 421 Rock.
Jefferson City No. 119—President, Theo. H. Haar; financial and corresponding secretary, Edgar Hestand, 501 Madison.
Joplin No. 350—J. S. Armstrong, box 336.
Kansas City No. 80—President, F. N. Cleeton; vice-president, L. E. Goodrich; secretary-treasurer, J. M. Rhodes, box 376; office, 825 Central street.
Moberly No. 473—R. S. Cunningham, 319 Jefferson avenue.
Poplar Bluff No. 635—C. R. Hiatt, box 441.
Sedalia No. 206—J. P. Hurtt, box 153.
Springfield No. 158—B. E. Woolsey, 916 N. Grant.
St. Joseph No. 40—Charles Rhode, lock box 748.
St. Louis No. 8—J. J. Early, 408 Burlington building, 810 Olive.

MONTANA.

Anaconda No. 255—President Mark R. King; vice-president, S. B. Salisbury; financial-corresponding secretary, H. A. Denny, box 546; recording secretary, C. B. Shryock; delegates to central trades and labor council, H. A. Denny, A. A. Allburn, P. J. Coogan, John Green. Union meets first Sunday in month.
Billings No. 398—Charles T. Trott, 3521 Montana avenue.
Bozeman No. 551—J. W. Ellickson, 220 S. Eighth avenue.
Butte No. 126—F. W. Freeman, box 585.
Great Falls No. 256—A. E. Cary, box 360.
Helena No. 95—D. C. D. Moore, box 172.
Livingston No. 489—Charles M. Smith, box 1025.
Missoula No. 277—Edward Killfeather, box 363.

NEBRASKA.

Lincoln No. 209—F. H. Hebbard, 1527 Washington.
Nebraska City No. 462—E. W. Clark, 807 Third avenue.
Omaha No. 190—President, K. S. Fisher; vice-president, J. C. Smith; recording secretary, G. A. Sellenthin; financial and corresponding secretary, V. B. Kinney, box 794; sergeant-at-arms, J. H. Collins.

NEVADA.

Goldfield No. 105—C. O. Glanville, box 993.
Reno No. 611—W. C. Simpson, box 251.
Tonopah No. 616—W. A. Berry.
Washoe No. 65 (Virginia City)—John Craise, box 552.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Berlin No. 640—H. M. Poley, box 325.
Concord No. 297—C. T. Allison, 22 Downing.
Dover No. 627—James Marshall, jr., 192 Silver.
Manchester No. 152—William Gilmore, box 83.
Nashua No. 365—J. H. Thompson, 67 Concord.
Portsmouth No. 483—P. R. Jellison, 43 Deer.

NEW JERSEY.

Atlantic City No. 377—Frank Kay, 26 Mt. Vernon avenue.
Camden No. 132—James Myers, 2112 River ave.
Dover No. 433—H. R. Gill, 37 Union.
Elizabeth No. 150—W. S. B. Valentine, 187 Madison avenue.
Hackensack No. 642—Alfred Kastner, 13 Clinton.
Hoboken No. 323—G. H. Weston, box 33.
Jersey City No. 94—K. M. Forbes, 91 Belmont av.
Long Branch and Asbury Park No. 552—J. P. Jeffrey, 23 Fifth avenue, Long Branch, N. J.
Millville, Bridgeton and Vineland No. 607—E. P. Stewart, 626 North Third, Millville.
Morristown No. 522—J. A. Davis, 106 Western av.
Newark No. 103—President, Edward H. Ashton; vice-president, Edward D. Balentine; treasurer, Theodore Kinney; financial secretary, H. E. Vreeland, room 18, No. 189 Market street; recording secretary, L. D. Pruden; sergeant-at-arms, John S. Heun.
New Brunswick No. 307—Robert Mealey, corner Bethany and Somerset.
Newton, N. J., No. 605—L. C. McKim, 24 Woodside avenue.
Orange No. 424—J. M. Hague, 265 Park avenue.
Paterson No. 195—J. C. Sigler, 1084 Main.
Perth Amboy No. 658—D. H. Curts, 12 McClellan.
Plainfield No. 399—L. W. Niles, Babcock building.
Princeton No. 507—J. H. Stillwell, lock box 86.
Rahway No. 235—Harry Gage, 43 River.
Salem No. 382—W. G. Clark, Olive.
Somerville No. 628—J. M. Lambruskin, 21 Somerset.
Trenton No. 71—W. P. Wilson, box 328.
Union Hill No. 110—R. J. Heuston, 909 Union, West Hoboken.

NEW MEXICO.

Albuquerque No. 304—Frank T. Strother, 517 East Coal avenue.
Las Vegas No. 312—S. J. Sansom, care Optic.
Santa Fe No. 405—M. Vigil, lock box 115.

NEW YORK.

Albany No. 4—President, Thomas J. Quinn; vice-president, Thomas F. Drum; treasurer, J. F. Powers; financial secretary, C. H. Maguire, 138 Colonie; recording and corresponding secretary, M. J. Sullivan, 37 Trinity Place.
Amsterdam No. 274—W. J. Meenam, 6 Blood.
Auburn No. 536—J. E. Jacobs, 10 Liberty.
Batavia No. 511—C. A. Benchley, 13 Oak.
Binghamton No. 232—H. V. Casey, 117 LeRoy.
Buffalo No. 9—W. J. McLaughlin, box 502.
Canandaigua No. 396—J. L. Johnson, 271 Gibson.
Cohoes No. 325—W. H. Smith, 76 Mohawk.
Corning No. 549—J. R. Stah, 40 W. Third.
Deposit No. 499—A. R. Armstrong, Loomis House
Dunkirk and Fredonia No. 555—W. C. Persch, 216 Central avenue, Dunkirk, N. Y.
Elmira No. 19—E. S. Spalding, 509 West Clinton.
Fulton County No. 268—John Bordis, 26 South Main, Gloversville, N. Y.
Glens Falls No. 96—E. C. Lance, 5 Charlotte.
Hudson No. 531—E. W. Rogers, 554 Diamond.
Ithaca No. 379—F. M. Hall, 110 Monroe.
Jamestown No. 205—Gust Magnuson, 310 Barrett avenue.
Kingston No. 322—Thomas Hyland, 37 Third ave.
Little Falls No. 386—W. H. Nolan, 21 Ward.
Lockport No. 67—M. I. Moran, 302 N. Adams.
Middletown No. 463—Christian Walter, 10 1-2 Montgomery.
Mount Vernon No. 387—C. F. Moehring, 46 South.
Newburgh No. 305—M. K. Barrns, 21 William.
New York No. 6—J. F. Healy, 18 Chambers.
New York No. 83 (Hebrew-American)—N. Rosenauer, 1456 Webster avenue.
New York No. 131 (Bohemian)—John Hlavacek, 1399 Avenue A.
New York No. 261 (Italian)—V. Zarrelli, 21-23 Hancock.
New York No. 476 (Slavonic)—Emanuel Diamond, Lebanon street, Westchester, N. Y.
Niagara Falls No. 233—J. J. Dwyer, 1016 Main.
Norwich No. 453—B. F. Holdredge, 28 Canasawacta.
Olean No. 345—E. W. Hayden, Masonic Temple.
Oneida No. 336—J. C. Bates, 85 Elizabeth.
Oneonta No. 135—J. D. Van Dycke, 18 Pine.
Oswego No. 445—George Herron, 111 W. Bridge.
Peekskill No. 269—W. K. Schwab, care Daily Union.
Poughkeepsie No. 315—A. F. Ostrander, 148 Union.
Rochester No. 15—President, Bert H. Bates; financial secretary, T. F. Moore, box 339; recording secretary, M. R. Dutton, 333 Frost avenue.
Rome No. 44—N. J. Fortune, 404 N. Washington.
Saratoga Springs No. 149—J. F. Hays, 169 Lake avenue.
Schenectady No. 167—C. H. Schwartz, 1016 State.
Syracuse No. 55—G. W. Fitch, box 104.
Tarrytown and Ossining No. 523—William W. Lee, box 32, Scarborough, N. Y.
Troy No. 52—John L. Hartnett, 2649 Sixth ave.

Digitized by Google

Utica No. 62—A. W. Phillips, 448 Whitesboro.
Watertown No. 308—F. H. Lewis, care Re Union.
Yonkers No. 468—J. D. Hickerson, 2 Colin.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Asheville No. 263—C. W. Welborn, R. F. D. No. 1.
Charlotte No. 338—W. W. Coker, 206 West Eleventh.
Durham No. 125—J. T. Christian, 730 West Chapel Hill.
Greensboro No. 397—W. P. Turner, box 432.
Raleigh No. 54—W. C. Hufham, 215 S. Person.
Salisbury No. 625—G. Val. Harrison, 322 N. Main.
Wilmington No. 556—H. D. Stanland, 508 Princess.
Winston-Salem No. 609—J. J. Pierce, box 425.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck No. 140—F. L. Moule, 415 Second.
Fargo No. 186—President, W. H. Dietrich, box 638; financial and corresponding secretary, C. A. Jordan, box 364.
Grand Forks No. 311—A. J. Tagley, room 32, Herald building.
Jamestown No. 653—Corliss Fairchild, 520 Fourth avenue, North.
Minot No. 376—Lem Wright, care Reporter.

OHIO.

Akron No. 182—W. H. Salisbury, 31 West York.
Alliance No. 497—Rachael Williams, — Harrison.
Ashtabula No. 474—H. A. Mack, 197½ Prospect.
Bellaire No. 492—A. P. Deafenbaugh, 3021 Union.
Bellefontaine No. 613—Ruby Titsworth, 202 North Madriver.
Bowling Green No. 156—E. N. Grimes, 79½ South Main.
Cambridge No. 208—H. C. Callihan, box 16.
Canton No. 219—Frank J. Ballard, box 416.
Cincinnati No. 3—President, Thomas J. Donnelly; vice-president, William B. Ogden; secretary-treasurer, Robert H. Curl, rooms 17-20 Fisher block; recording secretary, Frank N. Baker. Applications committee meets first Sunday each month. Union meets second Sunday each month.
Cleveland No. 53—George E. Lee, room 1, Blackstone building.
Columbus No. 5—President, Charles E. Whitney, 703 East Long; secretary-treasurer, William E. Bird, 416 Eberly block.
Coshocton No. 364—W. J. Fitch, 750 S. Lawn av.
Dayton No. 57—President, H. G. Keuping; recording secretary, Willard Barringer, 907 River; financial and corresponding secretary, William Hudoff, 434 Forest avenue.
East Liverpool No. 318—M. R. Douglas, 164 Chester avenue.
Elyria No. 645—G. R. Kelley, 920 East avenue.
Findlay No. 260—L. C. Busch, 232 West Hardin.
Fremont No. 619—Charles R. Stoiber, 825 Franklin.
Hamilton No. 290—Earl Uttrich, 124 South D.
Lancaster No. 548—F. G. Benadum, 426 N. Broad.
Lisbon No. 257—W. G. Steele.
Lorain No. 409—W. H. Johnson, care Lorain Printing Co.
Mansfield No. 420—Howard Almy, 106 W. Fourth.
Marietta No. 280—E. J. Berry, South Fifth.
Marion No. 580—A. F. Owens, 169 Leader.
Martins Ferry No. 383—F. R. Barr, 607 Jefferson.
Massillon No. 298—W. D. Klein, 191 Clay.
Middletown No. 487—H. W. Naegele, Nicholas Hotel.
Newark No. 69—J. A. Donahue, 56 Clinton.
Niles No. 477—Sophia A. Davis, care News.
Norwalk No. 516—May Richey, 28 East Legue.
Painesville No. 569—C. J. Higgins, 114 Courtland.
Portsmouth No. 637—L. P. Seitz, 93 West Second.
Salem No. 441—H. W. McCurdy, 48 East Seventh.
Sandusky No. 237—W. A. Ruemmele, 904 Decatur.
Springfield No. 117—W. C. Hewitt, 63 North Race.
Steubenville No. 238—C. W. Brownfield, 202 S. Fourth.
Tiffin No. 480—Ross Locke, 175 S. Washington.
Toledo No. 63—President, E. M. Stewart; vice-president, George Diebold; secretary-treasurer, H. M. Schmit, 338 Erie; recording secretary, W. S. Brown, box 17; sergeant-at-arms, W. H. Clements. Meetings fourth Wednesday of each month.
Youngstown No. 200—Charles G. Muter, box 236.
Zanesville No. 199—C. W. Dutro, 959 E. Market.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORY.

Guthrie No. 587—G. E. Dunnica, lock box 202.
Oklahoma City No. 283—O. S. Wilson, 32 East Second.
Shawnee No. 490—R. E. Peyton, 733 N. Market.

OREGON.

Albany No. 496—H. E. Crawford, 319 W. Third.
Astoria No. 504—W. F. Gratke, 661 Commercial.
Baker City No. 430—Ellsworth Lentz, 1515 Valley avenue.
Capital No. 210 (Salem)—Frank Jaskoski, box 175.
Eugene No. 528—W. A. Dill, 181 E. Thirteenth.
Multonomah No. 58 (Portland)—President J. J. Price; vice-president, H. L. Torrence; secretary-treasurer, Lon De Yarmond, care Oregonian; sergeant-at-arms, J. L. McCown; doorkeeper, P. P. McCully; executive committee, Will Daly, R. P. Coburn, W. C. Davis, Charles Taylor, Fred Perry; auditing committee, Bruce Laughlin, H. C. Lohmann, W. C. Harris.
Oregon City No. 541—R. M. Nims.
Pendleton No. 214—Ed Weaver, 607 Cosbie.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Allentown No. 534—C. M. Rehrig, Sixth and Walnut.
Altoona No. 240—H. E. Leader, 21½ Washington avenue.
Beaver Valley No. 250—O. F. Johndrew, 531 Thirteenth avenue, New Brighton.
Berwick and Bloomsburg No. 639—J. S. Rudy, 431 East Sixth.
Bradford No. 185—J. G. McCutcheon, box 1711.
Butler No. 415—Ed Donnell, box 365.
Carbondale No. 239—L. D. Davis, 146 S. Terrace.
Columbia No. 610—T. E. White, care Spy.
Connellsville No. 321—Edwin Towzey, box 756.
Du Bois No. 374—F. B. Spencer, 319 E. Weber avenue.
Easton No. 258—J. Albert Jones, 1107 Lehigh.
Erie No. 77—G. E. Noble, 510 Walnut.
Franklin No. 437—Lillie A. Whiteley, 1107 Buffalo.
Greensburg No. 575—J. N. Huber, 119½ S. Main.
Greenville No. 602—L. T. Hatton, 160 Clinton.
Hanover No. 241—H. D. Lynerd, 224 Centennial avenue.
Harrisburg No. 14—C. E. Ripper, 16 S. Court ave.
Hazleton No. 401—J. N. Calloway, 50 S. Laurel.
Johnstown No. 137—Harry Hesselbein, Eighth Ward.
Lancaster No. 70—John C. Haus, 352 East King.
McKeesport No. 225—S. W. Smith, 633 Versailles avenue.
Meadville No. 181—P. P. Moyer, 782 South Grant.
New Castle No. 270—T. J. McCluskey, 5 Fulkerson.
New Kensington and Tarentum No. 452—Edward Liebel, 200 West Seventh avenue, Tarentum, Pa.
Oil City No. 151—P. J. McCann, box 86.
Philadelphia No. 2—President, Alfred D. Calvert; vice-president, T. George Middleton; secretary-treasurer, Charles S. Clayton, 512 Odd Fellows Temple; sergeant-at-arms, Mendel Rabuchin; trustees, Joseph C. Gibbs, Warren Cleaver, Benjamin S. Benner. Union meets third Saturday of each month in Odd Fellows Temple, Broad and Cherry.
Pittsburg No. 7—President, C. M. Leighley; vice-president, J. M. Adams; secretary-treasurer, C. O. Lafferty, box 644; reading clerk, T. H. Dolan; sergeant-at-arms, William Schaffer; trustees, Charles J. Niblack, Eugene Merz, R. L. Zimmerman; judges of election, Dan Curten, James Cunningham, H. G. Driver. Meetings first Sunday of each month, 314-316 Fifth ave.
Pittston No. 392—T. G. Scott, 186 College, Kingston, Pa.
Pottsville No. 320—E. R. Williams, 618 Schuylkill avenue.

Digitized by Google

Reading No. 86—Ed S. Bright, 825 Weiser.
Sayre No. 413—J. J. Morrison, 302 Chenning.
Scranton No. 112—President, M. H. Millard; vice-president, M. W. Walton; recording and corresponding secretary, C. A. Kellar, box 226; secretary-treasurer, Jay H. Eaton, box 226; sergeant-at-arms, H. Scholl.
Sharon No. 351—L. C. Crone, 84 Elm.
Stroudsburg No. 638—W. J. Huntington.
Titusville No. 289—J. J. O'Neil.
Sunbury No. 400—C. B. Lyon, 314 Front.
Uniontown No. 262—G. W. Liston, First National Bank building.
Warren No. 428—R. O. Brigham, box 843.
Washington No. 456—J. M. Lydic, box 34.
West Chester No. 466—R. F. McCormick, 509 S. Church.
Wilkes Barre No. 187—W. S. Mellick, box 136.
Williamsport No. 141—S. H. Alter, 937 Erie ave.
York No. 242—C. W. Bastian, 335 South Duke.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

Manila No. 626—Frederick Power, lock box 628.

PORTO RICO.

Mayaguez No. 422—Julio Aybar, box 35.
San Juan No. 478—Rafael Alonso, box 807.

RHODE ISLAND.

Newport No. 295—M. L. Vincent, 25 Clinton ave.
Pawtucket No. 212—W. H. Bussey, 106 West ave.
Warwick No. 662—I. F. Chase, box 1, Arctic, R. I.
Providence No. 33—William Abell, 93 Abbott.
Woonsocket No. 245—A. W. Gleason, 51 Collins.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Charleston No. 43—M. J. Conklin, box 504.
Columbia No. 34—J. P. Selby, 1428 Taylor.
Greenville No. 385—R. L. Chandler, 919 Hampton avenue.
Spartanburg No. 341—Jerry Black, box 384.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen No. 654—H. R. Searle.
Deadwood No. 636—H. F. Sofge.
Huron No. 561—Emma E. Cawood, box 317.
Lead No. 498—C. T. Martin, care Register.
Mitchell No. 605—W. J. Herzog, box 344.
Pierre No. 562—A. L. Thorne, box 172.
Redfield No. 655—F. W. Basford, care Press.
Sioux Falls No. 218—F. T. George, 607 South Dakota avenue.

TENNESSEE.

Bristol No. 426—Ralph Crossman, box 20.
Chattanooga No. 89—John O'Brien, 820 Georgia avenue.
Clarksville No. 436—W. J. Binkley, 212 Forrest.
Jackson No. 24—C. T. Russell, 132 Stoddert.
Knoxville No. 111—J. J. Henry, box 546.
Memphis No. 11—President, W. S. Wells; vice-president, J. C. Caruthers; secretary-treasurer, Horace Johnson, box 103; recording secretary, E. C. Brookshire; fund trustee, W. H. Johnson.
Nashville No. 20—President, A. E. Hill; vice-president, O. J. Thrasher; financial and corresponding secretary, H. J. Loser, Grantland avenue, Waverly Place; recording secretary, Ira Boylin; treasurer, W. H. Jordan; sergeant-at-arms, A. G. Bostick; auditing committee, J. A. Aul, T. J. Dougherty, J. Eagan; chairman business committee, O. J. Thrasher.

TEXAS.

Abilene No. 494—J. W. Daniel, box 52.
Austin No. 138—President, C. L. Leache; secretary, W. L. Holland, lock box 414.
Beaumont No. 339—A. Marchbanks, box 974.
Cleburne No. 303—Lonnie Adams, box 123.
Corsicana No. 234—Eugene Birdsall, care Sunlight Publishing Co.
Dallas No. 173—Z. M. Duckworth, 170 Second av.
Denison No. 333—F. R. Lawhon, box 414.
Denton No. 646—S. M. Richardson, care Record and Chronicle.
El Paso No. 370—H. B. Lawson, box 852.
Ennis No. 641—M. M. Hamlin, box 148.
Fort Worth No. 198—President R. E. McLeary; recording secretary, Marvin D. Evans; secretary-treasurer, C. H. Smith, box 167.
Galveston No. 28—President, G. H. Slater, care Tribune; secretary-treasurer, G. H. Kunz, 1606 Tremont street; executive committee, C. W. Galloway, J. Sandilands, James Prendergast, A. C. Williams, B. L. Appleby.
Greenville No. 509—A. A. Clark, care Banner.
Houston No. 87—J. S. Swope, 1720 Jackson.
Marshall No. 572—W. A. Adair.
Mineola No. 482—A. J. Soule.
Palestine No. 472—W. E. Langston, lock box 222.
San Angelo No. 559—Fannie Struthers.
San Antonio No. 172—E. G. Koerps, 706 Montana.
Sherman No. 471—W. S. McCaulley, care Courier.
Tyler No. 404—J. S. Lee, care Tyler Printing Company.
Waco No. 188—P. A. Richards, box 637.

UTAH.

Ogden No. 236—Thomas Chatland, box 325.
Park City No. 590—W. A. Raddon, box J.
Salt Lake City No. 115—A. Thompson, box 474.

VERMONT.

Barre No. 402—Philip Ellis, care Daily Times.
Burlington No. 346—W. H. Deshaw, 18 Decatur.
Montpelier No. 384—M. E. Mack, 19 First avenue.
Rutland No. 326—C. E. Allen, 10 Elm.

VIRGINIA.

Lynchburg No. 510—B. H. Wear, 210 Harrison.
Newport News No. 353—T. B. Verell, 634 Twenty-ninth.
Norfolk No. 32—E. F. Moore, box 192.
Petersburg No. 26—W. H. Doughty, 15 W. Tabb.
Richmond No. 90—Henry Meyer, box 16.
Roanoke No. 60—T. W. Hudson, 415 Gilmer avenue, N. W.
Winchester No. 519—Stewart L. Forney, 506 South Market.

WASHINGTON.

Aberdeen No. 573—J. B. Hickin, 18 Dabney building.
Bellingham No. 355—G. H. Gray, box 26.
Everett No. 410—E. Marcuson, 1418 Pacific ave.
North Yakima No. 614—Wm. Verran, 202 South Ahtanum.
Olympia No. 142—N. R. Bridges, 1311 Franklin.
Seattle No. 202—U. S. A. Panchott, box 556.
Spokane Falls No. 193—John Anderson, box 755.
Tacoma No. 170—Charles Perry Taylor, 429 California building.
Walla Walla No. 388—J. M. Baldwin, box 13.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Bluefield No. 644—W. M. Gaither, 114 Bluefield avenue.
Charleston No. 146—J. J. Emerick, 224 State.
Clarksburg No. 372—C. M. Ward, 104 Robinson avenue.
Hinton No. 554—W. E. Price, box 35.
Huntington No. 533—J. L. Boswell, box 258.
Morgantown No. 598—W. S. Roberts, care Acme Publishing Company.
Parkersburg No. 357—J. L. Marlow, 512 Tenth-and-a-half.
Wheeling No. 79—President, George B. Barr; vice-president, Frank Carlin; secretary-treasurer, W. C. Jones, 63 Indiana street; executive committee, I. N. Wyckoff, Ned Sims, W. C. Jones, William T. Miller, George Dolan, Robert Johnston, Wilbur Carlin.

WISCONSIN.

Appleton, Neenah and Menasha No. 612—P. F. Arens, 234 Chute, Menasha, Wis.
Ashland No. 147—Freem Smith, 1213 Third, West.
Eau Claire and Chippewa Falls No. 530—H. E. Olson, 622 Congress, Eau Claire.
Fond du Lac No. 31—Herman Graessle, 152 East Arndt.
Green Bay No. 344—Olaf Olsen, 1220 N. State.
Janesville No. 197—S. A. Cooper, 2 E. Milwaukee.

Digitized by Google

Kenosha No. 116—M. F. Zens, 464 Lake avenue.
La Crosse No. 448—J. J. Serres, 1007 S. Sixth.
Madison No. 100—C. J. Koehn, 126 S. Blair.
Manitowoc No. 431—Alex. M. G. Dusold, 623 Jay.
Milwaukee No. 23—A. J. Welch, care Federated Trades, 318 State, upstairs.
Oshkosh No. 211—J. W. Kircher, box 236.
Racine No. 324—F. A. Parker, 1133 Center.
Superior No. 163—O. A. Digle, care Telegram.
Watertown No. 618—Emil Doerr, 507 Division.
Waukesha No. 545—John Birkenheier, 611 Oakland avenue.
Wausau No. 585—W. E. Brandt, 610 Chicago ave.

WYOMING.

Wyoming No. 184—Leslie Scott, 102 East Sixteenth, Cheyenne.

GERMAN-AMERICAN UNIONS.

General Secretary—Hugo Miller, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.
1, Philadelphia, Pa.—Peter Voigt, 1628 N. 27th.
2, Cincinnati, Ohio—G. H. Kramer, care Freie Presse.
3, St. Louis, Mo.—Hugo P. Hirsch, 3308 South Eighteenth street.
4, Buffalo, N. Y.—William F. Beelke, 84 Grape.
5, Rochester, N. Y.—Wm. J. Stieler, 50 Richmond.
6, Cleveland, Ohio—B. F. Hoehner, 98 Woolsey.
7, New York, N. Y.—Fritz Esau, 129 Park Row.
8, Newark, N. J.—Joseph A. Heim, 390 South Eighth.
9, Chicago, Ill.—Hermann Misch, 954 N. Leavitt.
10, Milwaukee, Wis.—Christ. Thren, 653 Twenty-fifth.
11, Baltimore, Md.—F. Adrian, 2106 Ridgewood avenue.
12, Louisville, Ky.—Charles Hoffman, 1539 William.
13, St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn.—Emil Jehring, 1720 Fifth avenue, N. Minneapolis.
14, Indianapolis, Ind.—Herman Borchert, 912 Iowa.
15, Evansville, Ind.—William Buesing, 900 East Maryland.
16, Pittsburg, Pa.—G. A. Wickman, 134 Natchey.
18, Belleville, Ill.—Charles Lenz, 110 South Mill.
19, Columbus, Ohio—J. W. Schaefer, 774 Selbach avenue.
21, Detroit, Mich.—Chas. Padberg, care Volksblatt.
24, Toledo, Ohio—Albert Hielscher, 333 North St. Clair.
25, Wheeling, W. Va.—Michael Scheeser, 2421 Jacob.

TYPEFOUNDERS.

1, New York, N. Y.—J. Kelly, 615 Kosciusko, Brooklyn.
3, Chicago, Ill.—John Emmrich, 721 Herndon.
7, San Francisco, Cal.—T. J. McWilliams, 214 Railroad avenue south.

MAILERS.

1, Boston, Mass.—E. M. Willis, box 1817.
2, Chicago, Ill.—James McNichols, 5956 La Salle.
3, St. Louis, Mo.—William J. Sievers, 3000 Missouri avenue.
4, Minneapolis, Minn.—M. L. Higbee, 708 Thirteenth avenue, S. E.
5, Toronto, Can.—Thomas Morton, 131 Shaw.
6, New York, N. Y.—S. Townshend, 131 Ridgewood avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.
7, Kansas City, Mo.—C. F. Masters, 2635 Kensington avenue.
8, Denver, Colo.—W. C. Davis, 1160 S. Ninth.
9, Los Angeles, Cal.—K. C. Campbell, 1139 East Twenty-seventh.
10, Indianapolis, Ind.—G. S. Kingston, 341 South East.
11, Elmira, N. Y.—Frank Wellson, 412 College av.
12, Cleveland, Ohio—C. H. Volz, care Press.
13, Pittsburg, Pa.—W. J. Rodgers, 12 Mercer.
14, Detroit, Mich.—William S. Webb, 311 Mullett.
15, St. Joseph, Mo.—W. S. Mitchell, 1018 Corby.
16, Louisville, Ky.—E. J. Skiles, care Capital Hotel.
17, Cincinnati, Ohio—Harry Querner, 536 Milton.
18, San Francisco, Cal—J. B. Reighley, jr., 199 Casselli avenue.
20, —— —— ——.
22, Providence, R. I.—Patrick Collins, 240 Pine.
24, Buffalo, N. Y.—J. F. Schmidt, 89 Dodge.
25, Butte, Mont.—J. L. Adams, 316½ W. Porphyry.
26, Albany, N. Y.—H. S. Shock, 238 S. Pearl.
27, Winnipeg, Man.—W. I. Brown, 117 George.

NEWSPAPER WRITERS.

1, Boston, Mass.—Francis A. Good, care American.
2, Columbus, Ohio—C. S. Bash, 74 South Fifth.
5, New York, N. Y.—Ferdinand Ufert, box 1512, 184 William.
9, Milwaukee, Wis.—E. H. Thomas, 344 Sixth.
10, Montreal, P. Q.—Henry Bourden, care La Presse, 51 St. James.
12, Butte, Mont.—C. F. Degelman, care Miner.
18, Dawson, Y. T.—C. R. Settlemier, care News.

HERE'S TO O'SULLIVAN.

To the Members of the International Typographical Union:

Dear Sirs and Brothers—Believing that you will be interested in knowing one of our stanchest friends in our battle for an eight-hour day, we desire to present to your notice Humphrey O'Sullivan, of our city—Lowell, Mass. Mr. O'Sullivan is an oldtime printer, having deposited his card with Big Six in New York in 1874. Soon after that date he went into other business. A short time ago Mr. O'Sullivan took up his card, joined our union, to give us his support.

As a leading business man of our city the influence of Mr. O'Sullivan's action in coming to our union to take his share of the hardships of the strike was very great, and swung public sentiment to us. Several shops very soon granted the eight-hour day.

To assist the other shops to make a decision in our favor Mr. O'Sullivan gave our union $500 and stated "when that is gone there's more where that came from." He also stated that any striker in need of aid outside of strike benefits was to call on him for what he needed.

"You'll win this strike, boys, or I'll go broke," said Mr. O'Sullivan, and he means what he says.

As many of our brothers in other cities handle (in magazines and newspapers) the advertising matter of the O'Sullivan Rubber Heel Company, of which Mr. O'Sullivan is the head, we would respectfully suggest that when there is opportunity to show appreciation of this friend of union printers that they do so in any manner possible.

Mr. O'Sullivan is one of those few men who, having passed from the case to a commanding position in the business world, has the heart to give a helping hand to all who struggle for the improvement of themselves and the happiness of their children. As such we want you to know him, and our introduction of Mr. O'Sullivan to you is endorsed by the unanimous vote of Lowell Union No. 310.

D. A. Sullivan.

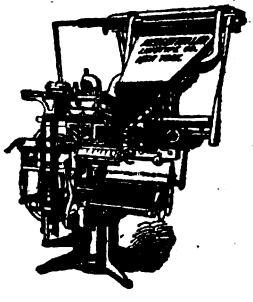
"Was the prisoner informed that he was to be electrocuted?" asked the sheriff.

"Oh, yes," replied the deputy; "I wired him to that effect."—U. of M. Wrinkle.

Digitized by Google

THE

Linotype



Its Use Demonstrates Its Utility

10,000 Linotypes in use are daily giving a practical demonstration of its economy and utility.

The later models are especially adapted for high grade and complicated composition.

Let us send you recent specimens of table and tariff work.

Mergenthaler LINOTYPE COMPANY

NEW YORK : CHICAGO : SAN FRANCISCO : NEW ORLEANS

Instruction

IS GIVEN STUDENTS WHO ENTER THE

Inland Printer Technical School

Pupils are not left to learn what they may, but are given systematic instruction by experts who devote their entire time to this work

The only school where Systematic Tuition may be obtained in

Linotype Operating and Mechanism (Seven Machines)
Job and Ad Composition (A complete equipment)
Imposition (Practical and Theoretical)
Presswork (Rotary, Cylinder and Platen)

Write for booklets, specifying branch

INLAND PRINTER TECHNICAL SCHOOL

A. H. McQuilkin, Manager — 120 Sherman Street : CHICAGO — John S. Thompson, Supt.

Digitized by Google

THE MONOTYPE

It runs like a Watch

THE MONOTYPE as a piece of mechanism is perfection itself, so evenly and smoothly does it perform its allotted tasks. There is no necessity for the operator to stop at frequent intervals, as is the case with other mechanical typesetters, in order to adjust this, that, or the other part. Thus he gains for his time its full equivalent in the shape of work produced and paid for, benefiting himself equally with his employer.

WOOD & NATHAN COMPANY

Sole Selling Agent : 1 Madison Ave., New York

334 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. : 311 Church St., Nashville, Tenn.
Hadwen Swain Mfg Co., Representative for Pacific Coast, San Francisco, California

Digitized by Google

DEC 14
CAMBRID

THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL

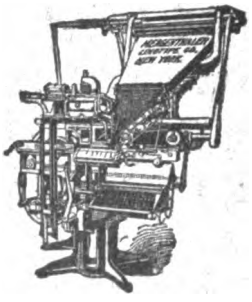
VOL. XXVII
No. 6

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION OF NORTH AMERICA

Digitized by Google

THE

Linotype



Its Use Demonstrates Its Utility

10,000 Linotypes in use are daily giving a practical demonstration of its economy and utility.

The later models are especially adapted for high grade and complicated composition.

Let us send you recent specimens of table and tariff work.

Mergenthaler LINOTYPE COMPANY

NEW YORK : CHICAGO : SAN FRANCISCO : NEW ORLEANS

Instruction

IS GIVEN STUDENTS WHO ENTER THE

Inland Printer Technical School

Pupils are not left to learn what they may, but are given systematic instruction by experts who devote their entire time to this work

The only school where Systematic Tuition may be obtained in

Linotype Operating and Mechanism (Seven Machines)
Job and Ad Composition (A complete equipment)
Imposition (Practical and Theoretical)
Presswork (Rotary, Cylinder and Platen)

Write for booklets, specifying branch

INLAND PRINTER TECHNICAL SCHOOL

A. H. McQuilkin, Manager — 120 Sherman Street : CHICAGO — John S. Thompson, Supt.

Digitized by Google

Contents for December 1905

The Smash-The-Union Movement Offers to Save the Nation 627
Some Statistics 630
Mr. Dooley on the Typothetæ Bulletins 632

NOTE AND COMMENT 633-651
Action by the Building Trades 648
Aid from Over the Sea 634
An Economist on Trade Unionism 646
An Eight-hour Editorial 660
Another Lie Nailed 649
Are You Registered in the Pedigree Book? 650
A Rector Scores Union Critics 646
A Suggestion 748
A Vain Quest 650
"A Word to the Wise" 650
Condemns Citizens' Alliance Boycott 655
Conference of Presidents ... 642
Dissension in the United Typothetæ 645
Dissolved the Injunction 636
Ernst Kreft is Dead 643
Good Advice to the Country Printer 659
Gotham's Typothetæ Getting Restless 645
"Having Eyes They See Not" 647
John D's Hired Man Jeered. 644
Looping the Loop 648
New England Eight-hour Conference 647
New Jersey Eight-hour Conference 641
Newspaperdom Again 640
One of Post's Jokes 648
"Open Shop" Conditions... 644
Others Thankful 651
Put the Screws On 636
Strikebreakers and Lawbreakers 642
The American Federation of Labor Pledges Financial Support 643
The Business Man's Closed Shop 651
The Chicago Injunction 639
The English Invasion 635
The Fifty-cent Assessment.. 643
The Typothetæ Outpointed. 651
The Typothetæ Rogues' Gallery 639
"Twenty-three" for the Stick 644
Were All the Affidavits Like This? 641
What's the Matter With the Printing Business 649

WHAT WE ARE DOING 652-654
More Complete Victories 652
The Eight-Hour Movement. 652
Miscellaneous 654
Vote on the Propositions 655
Report of International Canvassing Board (on the four propositions) 656
President's Paragraphs 661

WOMAN'S DEPARTMENT...663-666
Boston, Mass 665
Chattanooga, Tenn 665
Chicago, Ill 664
Cincinnati, Ohio 666
Evansville, Ind 663
Lincoln, Neb 666
Louisville, Ky 666
Omaha, Neb 663
Report of Secretary-Treasurer 665
St. Louis, Mo 665
St. Paul, Minn 664
Washington, D. C 664

CORRESPONDENCE 667-718
Albany, N. Y 701
Ann Arbor, Mich 672
Bloomington, Ill 701
Boise, Idaho 683
Boston, Mass 670
Cambridge, Mass 680
Charleston, W. Va 710
Chicago, Ill 685
Cincinnati, Ohio 668
Clarksburg, W. Va 688
Cleveland, Ohio 714
Coffeyville, Kan 711
Colorado Springs, Colo 683
Dayton, Ohio 705
Despotism in America 699
Elizabeth, N. J 716
European Letter 697
Fresno, Cal 711
From the Far North 693
Greed's Crafty Plan 702
Guelph, Ont 689
Hamilton, Ont 715
Hartford, Conn 707
Holyoke, Mass 689
Indianapolis, Ind 684
In Memoriam 719
Instances of "Money Madness" 710
Johnstown, Pa 712
Las Vegas, N. M 696
London, Ont 715
Los Angeles, Cal 682
Nashville, Tenn 707
Newark, N. J 683
New London, Conn 702
New York, N. Y 679
Norfolk, Va 711
Notes from the Union Printers' Home 703
Omaha, Neb 681
Ottawa, Canada 692
Ottumwa, Iowa 676
Philadelphia, Pa 675
Pocatello, Idaho 697
Proofroom Notes 748

CORRESPONDENCE—Continued
Providence, R. I 706
Rochester, N. Y 695
Rockford, Ill 692
Salt Lake City, Utah 678
San Antonio, Texas 714
San Francisco, Cal 677
Scranton, Pa 708
Sioux City, Iowa 718
St. Joseph, Mo 716
St. Louis, Mo 690
Syracuse, N. Y 713
Tampa, Fla 717
The Eight-hour Skirmishes. 701
The Man Who Does the Work 694
The Union Button 717
Toledo, Ohio 667
Topeka, Kan 713
Typothetæ Tactics 712
Wanted—A Colony Site 702
Warwick, R. I 682
Washington, D. C 672
Washington, Pa 688
Williamsport, Pa 681
Wilmington, Del 712
Worcester, Mass 677
Report of International Canvassing Board (assessment vote) 719

OFFICIAL BUDGET 723-728
Addresses Wanted 723
Applications for Membership 726
Applications From Unorganized Towns 726
Charters Issued and Surrendered 725
Donations to the Cummings Memorial Fund 725
Election of Officers 728
Miscellaneous 724
Notice to Secretaries 723
The Death Roll 724
The Journal Mailing List... 723
Union Printers' Home 726
Unions in Arrears 725

FINANCIAL STATEMENT ...729-737
Official Notice 736
Report of Secretary-Treasurer 729
Report of Secretary-Treasurer Union Printers' Home 736

I. S. AND E. U 738-739
Official Directory 738
Report of Secretary-Treasurer 738

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY 740-748
Allied Printing Trades Councils 740
International Typographical Union 740
Subordinate Unions 741

Digitized by Google

MESSRS. P. F. COLLIER & SON of Collier's Weekly : order

Eight Century Presses

Thus another of America's foremost Publishing Houses aiming to improve the typographical excellence of its great weekly, selects the Century.

We would recall to your mind that early in the year Mr. Frank A. Munsey ordered 10 Centurys. This battery has been running for several months; during this period the daily product of Mr. Munsey's Pressroom has been increased nearly 33⅓%; while fine half-tone and exact two and three color register work has been profitably produced at a speed of 1800 an hour.

Thus does the CENTURY make good.

The Campbell Company

HENRY A. WISE WOOD, PRESIDENT

334 DEARBORN STREET, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS No. 1 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY
189 FLEET STREET, LONDON, E. C., ENGLAND

Digitized by Google

The Typographical Journal

J. W. BRAMWOOD, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER, INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA
ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE, INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER
ISSUED ON THE FIFTH OF EACH MONTH

VOLUME XXVII — December, 1905 — NUMBER SIX

THE SMASH-THE-UNION MOVEMENT OFFERS TO SAVE THE NATION.

[Ralph M. Easley, in The Civic Federation Review.]

WHAT is generally termed the smash-the-union element in the employing world has been indulging of late in a series of manifestoes designed to prejudice public opinion through misinformation. No economic doctrine can flourish, however persistently advocated and however strong its financial backing, which is based upon misstatements of fact, and whose purpose is not for the greatest good of the greatest number. The group of writers who assail the movement of organized labor tacitly recognizes this truism in its attempts to make it appear that the admitted misdeeds of members of labor unions are universal instead of exceptional; that all labor leaders are radical advocates of violence; and, above all, that the trade agreement, the most practical device that modern industrialism has evolved for peaceful relations between capital and labor, is destructive of the constitutional rights of the individual citizen. While asserting that they favor organizations of wage-earners that are "properly conducted," these writers betray the fact that their idea of "proper conduct" is absolute surrender to the will of the employer, and that they would deprive the labor union of all power to elevate the condition of its members by dealing with employes only as individuals, and never in a body. They oppose violently the closed shop, but they reveal that their conception of the open shop is a place where no union men can work and live.

This anti-union school of writers puts forth its literature in its own periodicals and in the form of addresses and advertisements in the daily press.

A characteristic of this type of literature is its brazenly complacent appropriation of all the virtues of patriotism and all the glories of American history.

To the great number of economists, divines, publicists and editors who encourage and seek to guide the self-helpful efforts of wage-earners to elevate themselves through organization; to the largest employers in the United States, who make collective contracts with organized employes—to all these this literature would deny any of those virtues and glories, while it accuses organized labor itself not merely of a lack of patriotism, but of downright treason.

The typical writer of this literature wraps himself in the American flag, asserts exclusive possession of the constitution, if not of the decalogue, and claims to have a monopoly of that spirit of liberty which maintained with arms the declaration of independence, freed the slaves while saving the Union, and expelled Spanish oppression from Cuba. He would pose as a Washington, a Lincoln and a McKinley all concentrated in a living model of perfect Americanism. By contrast, he would have the reader infer that the 2,500,000 citizens who are enrolled in the American Federation of Labor and the great railway brotherhoods are composed of Arnolds, Booths and Weylers; that they are enemies of their country and foes of civilization. He would deny to them all patriotism, all love, not only of country, but of humanity, all allegiance to the flag, and all respect for the organic law framed by the fathers of the republic.

Digitized by Google

This extravagance should defeat its own purpose. If there were a scintilla of truth in these charges or insinuations, the entire movement of organized labor would have been withered in its infancy by the burning blast of public condemnation. It could have no more chance of survival and growth in a land of self-government than has anarchy or polygamy. The very progress of organized labor in both strength of numbers and intelligence of policy, the very respect which it has won from the largest and best-informed employers, the very consideration it receives from economic scholars and writers form a body of convincing evidence that the movement is recognized as an important social force, meriting critical study, to be credited with having accomplished much in uplifting the mass of wage-earners, and capable of increasing both the producing and consuming capacity of the nation. It is because the malicious and indiscriminate verbal assaults upon this movement could not find entrance into the news or editorial columns of reputable journals that they are frequently forced into the advertising columns, when they are paid for at so much a line.

These smash-the-union writers attempt to class the labor organizations with the most unpopular trusts, and accuse them with being conspiracies to increase the cost of living. They collate with an industry worthy of a better cause the most remote, abnormal and exceptional misdeeds of individual members of labor unions. They claim that the purpose of "citizens' alliances" is to create "a national power for general peace." But they would establish the peace of extermination. The socialists say: "We have nothing to arbitrate with the employer; we would abolish the employer." So these writers say in effect: "We would not negotiate or arbitrate with the unions, but destroy them." And this program they seek to justify by such exaggerated statements as these:

> Tens of thousands of American citizens have been assaulted and hundreds have been murdered by these labor trusts in their bloodthirsty efforts to force all the rest of humanity to implicitly obey their orders.
>
> What about the thousands of decent white men and women, tied hand and foot, unable to work, move or act, except by contribution to and with consent of the trust? Human liberty and constitutional rights of an American citizen are denied them.
>
> Men who have regard for the sacred mantle of liberty fought for, won and handed down to us, are patriots enough to stand together and save this fair America from chaos.
>
> This is not the proper time to talk conciliation. Neither is it the time to talk arbitration or joint agreement. To arbitrate questions of wages and hours is to introduce artificial methods of determining what they shall be. Arbitration is only putting off the day of reckoning.
>
> No organization of men, not excepting the Ku Klux Klan, the Mafia, or the Black Hand societies, has ever produced such a record of barbarism as has this so-called labor society.
>
> The labor leaders are trying to force upon the American people a universal system of slavery even more degrading and more damnable than that to which the negro was subjected.

An official journal of one of the organizations that would thus promote peace by invective and misrepresentation is not content with arrogating to itself all the patriotism and achievements of American history. It assumes that the functions of the American government have now been paralyzed by the labor unions, and it magnanimously proposes that this anti-union organization shall take to itself all executive, legislative and judicial functions. It calmly announces:

> This association is composed of citizens of the United States, organized for mutual protection of person and property.
>
> It is based upon the same fundamentals [as the United States government] and seeks to insure the personal liberty of the individual guaranteed by the constitution.
>
> This subsidiary organization of the people has been made necessary by the impotence of many local municipalities to furnish adequate protection and make good the constitutional guarantee.

This publication, after incidentally charging the "labor trust" with "setting up much actual slavery and robbing vast numbers of people of their liberties," naively remarks:

> The judicial mind will inquire why the people are not now thus protected by the government set up and maintained for their protection.
>
> Theoretically they should be, but bitter experience proves that they are not, for the machinery of the government is slow, inert and clumsy and its movements interfered with by the manipulations of the [labor] trusts until we see great damage done before its machinery gets into operation.

"All of the 780 citizens out of every 800 who are not members of any trust" are invited by this custodian of our liberties to join his would-be substitute for the political machinery that has been running since George Washington took his first inaugural oath. It must be news to 779 out of these 780 citizens that the government at Washington does not still live, or that the state, municipal and township systems have broken down. Is it then possible that the nation has been plunged into anarchy by the labor unions and is all unconscious of its state of woe? Is the United States a lawless mining camp, in need of this proposed national vigilance committee to save its women and children from butchery and its property from destruction?

Digitized by Google

The attempt thus to inflame class hatred reaches the height of absurdity, when it does not sound the depths of misrepresentation and malice.

For instance, one of the stock charges of these assailants of organized labor is that the labor leaders and the labor press continually incite the unions to acts of violence. This is a libel, pure and simple. There is not a labor leader of any standing in this country, nor is there a labor journal, outside of the socialist organs that are apparently acting in alliance with the anti-union agitators, that does not persistently exhort union wage-earners against the employment of force in strikes and advance earnest arguments to prove the folly of that criminal policy.

As an illustration of a labor lecture to labor, THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL, the official paper of the International Typographical Union of North America, published a long article upon the lessons of the teamsters' strike in Chicago, of which it said the principal one is:

> It is unwise, inadvisable and dangerous to pin faith in the outcome of a strike by relying on force and outlawry. . . . The attempt to win a strike by the pugnacious arguments of educational committees, who rely on brick throwing and pop-bottle suasion as a method of demonstrating that the striker is right and the employer wrong, will sooner or later come to grief. . . . When a union declares no other man can work under penalty of death, it assumes a position that sooner or later will become its undoing. . . . Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness can be as well applied in union constitutions as in the Declaration of Independence. This is good unionism enough for a true American citizen by birth or adoption. . . . Unions that devote their energies to making union men instead of killing off the non-union ones are the organizations that are doing business with greater results and less trouble.

Another way in which organized labor has formally and collectively arrayed itself in the ranks of law and order is through its action as to membership in the militia. Great publicity has been given to a few isolated cases where local and ignorant unions have forbidden members to belong to military organizations. A convention of one of the anti-union societies even went so far as to adopt and publish this declaration:

> Whereas, Organized labor throughout the country seeks to discourage and practically prohibits membership in the militia.

This was in face of the fact that the convention of the American Federation of Labor at San Francisco, only two weeks before the anti-union convention, rejected by an overwhelming majority a resolution opposing membership in the militia; and in face of the further fact that President Gompers, of that Federation, which exults in its title "American," has emphatically declared it to be the duty of every able-bodied wage-earner to encourage the citizen militia. Both this action and this utterance were published broadcast. The resolution of the anti-union convention, therefore, could not have originated in ignorance, but must have been founded in malice.

Another example of the wise counsel against all forms of coercion that organized labor is receiving from its own ranks is the contribution of Frank K. Foster, of the Typographical Union, to a symposium upon Labor day, which we reproduce upon another page from the American Federationist, the official magazine of the American Federation of Labor, whose president, Samuel Gompers, is its editor.

The object of these vigilantes is the dissolution of organized labor and the reduction of wages to the lowest point consistent with the continuance of the race. Poverty, discontent, ignorance and crime would be the inevitable fruit of their propaganda, which is therefore unpatriotic as well as unphilanthropic.

The inspiration of the movement of organized labor is the elevation of the physical, mental and moral condition of the great mass of wage-earners. The movement has progressed from the medieval days and nights when workingmen were forced to meet in secret, subject to penalties for "conspiracy," up to the present time, when labor's right to organize for its betterment has undisputed legal status and when the unions make technical and general education, not violence and law-breaking, a part of their regular usages. This great advance has been long and tedious. Those who have done the marching have had to discover their leaders among themselves. Their progress has hitherto been made in the face of discouragement, derision, denunciation and even persecution. Until within a few years they have encountered the solid opposition of employers. If their aim be recognized as one for the benefit of all society, surely it behooves every element of society to stretch out a guiding and a helping hand to those who halt and stumble in their struggle upward. This is a duty that impresses itself with growing force upon educated employers, whose larger opportunities imply greater responsibilities toward the welfare of the mass. Labor should not be left to uplift itself alone and unaided. Yet more should it not be subjected to the rebuffs of would-be oppressors.

Digitized by Google

Organized labor is here and there guilty of law-breaking. Yet in every case its sins of violence react upon its own head. The lessons taught by its most advanced leaders are thus re-enforced by bitter experience. There can be no doubt that labor is learning respect for the law. No one need doubt that it will use with growing wisdom the larger liberty, including just wages and proper leisure, for which its organization strives.

Assuredly, it is more in accordance with the spirit and the principles of American institutions to encourage than to repress an organized movement whose growth depends upon the development of individual character, including the qualities of self-control, self-improvement, fraternal aid and the care and elevation of the home. If organized labor makes for all these desirable ends, it is a factor for good citizenship. For wholesale denunciation of the movement because of errors incident to its progress, it would be more patriotic to substitute efforts looking to the correction of those errors, leading to a lessening of their repetition, and to guidance in the direction of those just and enlightened relations between capital and labor which experience has proved to be of most benefit to both and to the community at large.

SOME STATISTICS.

BY HENRY M. JAMES.

[Concluded from last issue.]

POSTOFFICE SAVINGS BANKS, ETC.

While occasionally there has been a demand in the United States for postoffice savings banks, the Britishers have long enjoyed the advantages afforded by the governmental institution. In 1903, in England and Wales, there were 8,537,991 accounts open, in Scotland 418,981, and in Ireland 446,880, a total of 9.403,852. The trustee savings banks had 1,689,617 accounts open, of which 1,096,404 were in England alone. For the year ending November 20, 1903, the amount received from depositors in the postoffice savings banks was £44,316,084, the amount paid out £42,786,025, and there was due £146,135,147. The trustee savings banks received in the same period £14,017,007, paid out £13,981,749, and owed depositors £52,540,339. We hear occasionally of the wealth of the peasantry of France and of the extravagance of the British workman, but every now and then figures like these presented in this book show the wonderful thrift of that section of the British people who save by pence and shillings for "a rainy day." Including friendly and co-operative societies, trades unions and various types of savings banks, the aggregate funds of the thrifty members of the British working classes reach the enormous sum of £368,000,000. By the figures given above it will be noted that the old-fashioned trustee savings bank seems to be becoming a thing of the past.

Digitized by Google

There is no doubt that thrift is one sure means of elevating the working class, and if postoffice savings banks will do that, let us have them in the United States. Our department of commerce and labor recently published a statement showing that our savings banks are carrying nearly 30 per cent of the total banked savings of the world. The total savings of this class in all countries is $10,500,000,000, contributed by 82,640,000 depositors. The savings banks of the United States carry $3,060,179,000, belonging to 7,305,000 depositors. The provident citizens of our country own more than 29 per cent of the total savings deposits of the world. Here the average is for each depositor $418.89; that of each depositor in all other countries is $101.01. The report of the department of commerce and labor says:

"The average amount of money in savings banks per inhabitant is $11 for the world and $37.38 for the United States. The lowest average in any country considered is in India, where it is but 15 cents. However, several countries have a larger amount on deposit per inhabitant than the United States. Denmark leads with the high average of $96.41. Switzerland is second with $62.26, and New Zealand is third with $49.61. In Australia the average per inhabitant is $43.47, in Prussia $43.10, in Germany $39.98, in Norway $39.94. Germany has more depositors than any other nation, its total being 15,432,211. France is second, with 11,298,474. The United Kingdom is third, with 11,093,469. Japan has 7,467,452 depositors, as compared with 7,305,443 in the United States and 4,950,607 in Russia, including Asiatic Russia."

This excerpt gives some idea of the thriftiness of the various peoples. Give the citizens of any nation every facility for saving their money, and their prosperity will increase wonderfully. In the case of the British, the figures presented above speak eloquently of the popularity of the postoffice savings bank and of the position it occupies in the social economy of the nation. The postoffice banking system, which pays only 2½ per cent, has met the wants of a class which the trustee banks do not reach. This class's convenience has been met by a bank which has its branches everywhere, and which can carry on at any branch a business which it undertook at any other—by which is meant that a bank in any part of the kingdom will pay back any amount that has been paid in at any other place. Fraud and default have not been altogether absent, but depositors have not suffered. Other countries which have adopted the postoffice savings bank system are Belgium, France, Austria-Hungary, Sweden, Italy, Canada, the Netherlands, India, and most of the British colonies. Most of these countries are ahead of the United States in movements having for their object the betterment of the sociological conditions of their citizens. Some own their railways and telegraphic systems, others have old-age pensions, etc.

THE CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATIONS.

The co-operative credit societies of Great Britain, of which the larger number are in Ireland, are combinations for the purpose of raising capital with the object of enabling the societies to make advances on loan to members requiring the temporary use of capital for reproductive purposes, at a reasonable rate of interest. The main features of these combinations are that no shares are issued, the capital being raised by entrance fees, subscriptions and deposits and loans bearing a fixed rate of interest. The liability of the members is unlimited, every member being jointly and severally responsible for any losses that may be incurred. The loans advanced by the societies are for reproductive purposes only, the borrower having to satisfy the manager that he will be able to pay back the amount required. The operations of each society are confined to a small area, in order that the personal character and needs of applicants for loans may be known to the members and managing committee. In 1903, as compared with 1898, the number of societies had multiplied five times and the membership four times; the capital had more than doubled; the amounts of loans advanced and repaid had each multiplied about two and one-fourth times, while the working expenses had doubled and the profits trebled. In 1903 the number of societies making returns was 154, compared with 114 in 1902, and the membership 10,509, compared with 7,921. The total capital was £85,128, the amount of loans advanced £33,753, and the profit £652, after allowing for all expenses. Co-operation, properly carried on, is a sure road to prosperity, and it were well that there were more of it there and here. Voluminous particulars of the growth of the co-operative movement in the United States have been published by the federal labor bureau, but when all the details have been digested it is patent that its progress has not been what one would ordinarily expect. More's the pity, as our people generally know a good thing when they see it.

Digitized by Google

THE FRENCH POSTOFFICE SAVINGS BANK.

Our consul at Rouen, reporting to the state department, says that one in every ten of France's 39,000,000 people has something in the postoffice savings bank. The amount deposited at the end of 1903 was $215,766,294. Within twenty-two years the national savings bank has received one-third as much money as the private banks of this nature, and the depositors number one-half of that of the private institutions. The deposits would have grown much larger but for a law passed in 1895, which reduced the maximum of any deposit from $368 to $289.50. Workmen in factories mostly patronize the state bank. "Some French economists regret that France has not followed the example of Belgium in uniting the state and the ordinary savings banks. Hungary has only the postal savings bank, and in England, Norway, Sweden and Italy the ordinary savings banks are disappearing before the state savings bank."

If national savings are a certain indication of a country's condition financially and economically, as they testify to the people's faith in their government, we have in the figures presented in this résumé an interesting study, one that will certainly appeal to the man who has at heart the betterment of his fellow countrymen. While the deposits in our savings banks are enormous, there is no doubt that the establishment of a national savings bank system would inure to the people's advantage in an astounding manner. "The destruction of the poor is their poverty." (Proverbs, x, 15.) With strong unions to care for their interests, and a postal savings bank to induce them to save, there would not be so much "destruction."

Mr. Dooley on the Typothetæ Bulletins.

(Apologies to F. P. Dunne.)

"Whut do ye think uv th' bulletins th' printin' bosses is sindin' out t' th' public?" asked Mr. Fennessey.

"Shure, Finnissey," said Mr. Dooley, "they ar-re th' wur-rk uv a master moind. It wud not be fer me, Finnissey, t' criticize th' lith-erary effushuns uv th' bar-rd frum th' land uv Bobby Burns. R-rather, Finnissey, let me point out t' ye th' gr-rate services these bulletins ar-re renderin' t' th' tee-po-thee-tee. Here, Finnissey, is th' way they rade:

"'Rising Sun, Indiany, Novimber 1—Stroike over so fer as th' tee-po-thee-tee is concerned. We have secured sivinty-noine foine printers t' take th' places uv th' tin min that quit.'

"'Rising Sun, Indiany, Novimber 2—Employers standin' pat. Thirty-sivin desershuns from th' union. Can use about fifty good min.'

"'Rising Sun, Indiany, Novimber 3—Still standin' pat. Have secured an injunction to prevint th' union min from aven thinkin' about th' stroike. Lost eighteen min an' secured two min—net gain uv twinty.'

"'Rising Sun, Indiany, Novimber 3—It has been discovered that th' employers uv this city signed an eight-hour agreemint with th' union some toime ago. This is not a victory fer th' union, as there niver was a tee-po-thee-tee in this city. If there had been iny throuble, we wud have stud pat.'

"An' so it goes Finnissey, an' th' beautifool city uv Risin' Sun is dhropped from th' tee-po-thee-tee bulletin."

"Do ye suppose," said Mr. Fennessey. "that th' mon that writes th' bulletins belaves thim?"

"Uv course not," said Mr. Dooley—"he's no fool."

As WELL try to find religious liberty in hades as to try to find a spirit of freedom and independence in the so-called open shop.

Digitized by Google

Note and Comment

OFFICIAL BATTLE CRY OF THE I. T. U.

We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen.

THE label—that's all.

WE will fight it out on this line if it takes all winter.

JUDGE HOLDOM will not be able to "coerce" very many printers into voting for him next election.

ROGERS & COMPANY, of Chicago, are buying space for double-page ads in magazines to tell the public they have all the printers they want. No need of getting so excited about it.

SAYS the Inland Printer: "That the one pleasant feature may not be overlooked, we rise to remark that Chicago has had a strike on for (?) weeks and not a man has been slugged or a shot fired. The printers are better than record breakers; they are record makers."

J. F. BUSCHE, general manager of the New York Bond and Ticket Company, and an old member of Big Six, on receiving the assessment circular which was sent to all members, forwarded to the International secretary-treasurer his check for $50, saying: "All right—here it is. I only wish I could do more in this line, but I can't put up the price of oil."

A PRESS dispatch says: "A British Columbia miner has been fined $250 by a judge for working more than eight hours a day. Because he worked half an hour longer than the law allows, P. Zanani, a miner employed in the collieries of James Dunsmuir at Cumberland, B. C., has been found guilty by Judge Abrams of violating the eight-hour law and fined $250." How about the "liberty of contract," etc., that some judges howl so much about?

D. M. PARRY, in a recent number of American Industries, says: "This eight-hour talk is all the veriest humbug. In the first place, granting that that is what the printer employes are after in reality, it is the same pay—and the same holdup—for fewer hours or more money—and the same holdup—for overtime. But it is not the eight-hour day. It is another nail in the coffin of the open shop that they seek to drive." THE JOURNAL is pleased to note that the open shop, according to Mr. Parry, is in its coffin. Whether it is nailed in or not is not particularly interesting.

THE United States supreme court recently affirmed the decision of the supreme court of the state of Missouri upholding the validity of the state law which fixes eight hours as the length of a day's work in the mines. The superintendent of a mine held workmen for a longer period and was proceeded against in the state court, it being a test case. Judge Holdom, David M. Parry, C. W. Post et al. might learn something by reading this decision. It is evident that the loudly heralded "freedom of contract guaranteed by the constitution" does not apply in some cases.

K. U. WHITTED, a member of Topeka (Kan.) Union, has been granted a patent on a system of "flange type" which is proving popular with a great number of newspapers. Mr. Whitted's invention is an associate type, consisting of a type face that rests upon the blank portion of the linotype slugs, with a flange extending downward between contiguous lines so as to hold the letter firmly in position in the lockup.

THE tobacco trust has put a brand on the market called "Union Leader." Many union men are buying it under the impression that it is union made. It is a product of child labor. Looks as if the tobacco trust is beginning to realize the value of union patronage when it will go to such lengths to deceive union men. All that is necessary is the label.

Digitized by Google

Aid From Over the Sea.

It did not take the British typographical societies long to fathom the game of the Winnipeg typothetæ agent. A very interesting account of the British end of our eight-hour fight appears in the November number of the Typographical Circular, the official organ of the typographical association. After outlining the history and status of the shorter workday fight of our union, the Circular takes up the "Personally Conducted Tour to Canada" of the Winnipeg typothetæ agent. The warning sent to the English printers by Secretary Bramwood is printed, as follows:

FROM INDIANAPOLIS, OCTOBER 13, 1905, TO SKINNER, 312 DEANSGATE, MANCHESTER, ENGLAND.

Strike on for eight hours in Canada and United States. Employers advertising for strikebreakers. Issue warning. BRAMWOOD.

As soon as this was given publicity those printers who had been induced by Brunning, the agent, to sign his "contracts," began to get uneasy and ask him embarrassing questions. Following is a copy of the letter he then sent to the doubting ones:

October 17, 1905.

DEAR SIR—I will give you a two years' stamped guarantee as you wish. You to start work immediately on your arrival in Winnipeg at 20 dollars weekly. There can be no dispute in Canada until 1907, when the present agreement between masters and men terminate; that is, unless the men break away. Am I clear? It now depends on you to book your berth direct from Allan's, and I will forward guarantee after verifying your ticket. Your testimonials are quite satisfactory.—Yours faithfully, CHAS. BRUNNING.

Then the typothetæ hired man began on a new tack. He caused to be inserted in many English newspapers, as pure reading matter, statements that the Canadian northwest was in need of printers, and setting forth the advantages offered to those who would emigrate. In order to ascertain the true state of affairs the English secretary communicated with the high commissioner of Canada, and the following letter was received:

26th October, 1905.

SIR—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 23d inst., and to state that this department has no knowledge of the person you name who is said to be organizing parties connected with the printing trade to leave this country for Canada.

The high commissioner has not been officially advised that there is any special demand for printers in Winnipeg or elsewhere in Canada at the present time. W. H. GRIFFITH, Secretary.

When this was made public there was more "explaining" for Mr. Brunning to do. To those who made inquiries he addressed the following letter:

The Winnipeg Printers' Board of Trade,
175 McDermott avenue, Winnipeg, Canada.
Personally-Conducted Printers Tour to Canada,
November, 1905.

Manager, 237 Liscard-road,
Charles Brunning. Liscard, Liverpool,
October 24, 1905.

Mr. ———:

DEAR SIR—You take things very seriously. Don't you know that Skinner is paid to make trouble wherever he can. This man would prevent men from going to Timbucktoo if he thought there was any self-advertisement to be secured from it. The fact is, things have been so quiet lately, and men are so tired of paying out doles for the Hull strikers that Skinner had to do something, and as I happened to make a little trip over here for the purpose of taking a few good men back with me, Skinner pounced upon me, but was not man enough to come and seek an interview with me, but hid his dirty work behind the protection of the union.

I ask you, as printer to printer, what has the likes of Skinner ever done for you, except retard the growth of thousands of young men, by insisting upon a minimum wage for good, bad and indifferent workmen. Another thing, can Skinner offer you what the Winnipeg Printers' Board of Trade offers, a two years' agreement with an honorable body of men, who desire nothing further on earth than the right to conduct their respective businesses quietly, peaceably and well, with credit to themselves and profit to their workmen.

Can Skinner, or, in fact, any of the union officials who smoke fat cigars at the expense of the hard-working printer, provide a solution to the great problem of acute distress in the printing trade at the present moment? Can Skinner help you in any way whatever, by giving you that chance you now have here?

I have some considerable reputation in this country as an authority on newspapers and printing matters, as well as in Canada and the states, but I never in all my life could understand why men put up with the likes of Skinner and his interference in matters which concern him not.

The Canadian unions don't thank him for his interference, and between you and me, the Canadian printer has such a good time of it that he is naturally anxious to keep a good thing to himself. You understand.

A strikebreaker usually gets paid high wages for a short period. Has his railway fare paid both ways. Departs after he has served the purpose he was sent for. You never heard of a strikebreaker taking a two-years' agreement with him to take a job.

Let me further emphasize that you have made a contract with a body of honorable, law-abiding,

Digitized by Google

God-fearing men, who agree to faithfully carry out in every particular that guarantee for two years you have. You can stay on after that as long as you like.

We want you in Canada, and Winnipeg welcomes you.

Don't be sentimental. Things are too bad in England at the moment to indulge in sentiment concerning the Canadian union printers. They furthermore don't need it. I hope to see you on Thursday. Yours faithfully,

CHARLES BRUNNING.

In order to counteract the above, the Emigrants' Information Office, a government institution, issued the following statement:

In view of the fact that considerable numbers of printers are being advertised for in this country by the Winnipeg Printers' Board of Trade, at Winnipeg, Canada, to go to Winnipeg, it is necessary to bear the following facts in mind: There is a movement by printers in many places in Canada to have their hours reduced from nine to eight a day. At Winnipeg nine employing job firms have granted this reduction, but sixteen other firms have refused, and a strike was begun on September 15 last. Printers, therefore, who answer these advertisements should take into account the abovementioned strike.

The thanks of the union printers of America are due to those of our English brothers who have so earnestly taken up our fight. This incident will undoubtedly strengthen the bond of fellowship existing between all workers and hasten the universal brotherhood of man.

The English Invasion.

In last month's JOURNAL our members were given full information regarding the methods of the United Typothetæ of America in its world-wide search for printers. Attention was called to the "personally conducted" excursion being organized in England for the purpose of flooding Canada—and eventually the United States—with strikebreakers. As a result of speedy action on the part of the English typographical societies, taken at the request of Secretary Bramwood, but fifty-one men (?) arrived in the first party. These victims, manacled with contracts, were brought over on the steamship Virginian, and reached Winnipeg, their ostensible destination, November 6. The following account of their arrival, taken from the Winnipeg Voice, will prove of interest:

Fifty-one printers brought from England, shackled with agreements to act as strikebreakers. These arrived in Winnipeg on Monday morning last. This incident has put a new phase on the printers' eight-hour strike in this city.

The International Typothetæ is supplying the funds to carry on some of the operations that are proceeding at this point at this time, and the probabilities are that this is to become the battling ground between the two international organizations. Efforts will be made to bring in more men with the expectation that they can be drafted over the border to act as strikebreakers in cities south of the line.

The contingent that arrived on Monday last did not make up an entirely happy looking crowd, and they didn't march down singing "Britons, never, never shall be slaves," which some of the foreign members of the local trade unions seem to think is the staple recreation of the Britisher at home. Fact was that they made rather a sorry spectacle, with a tail-between-the-legs feeling packed away under their hats. When it was ascertained that some of them had been members of the society of compositors in the old country their dejection was accounted for. The boss printers came to the rescue and gave the party hack rides around the city to enable them to overcome their sea and heart sickness. The car that the party came west on was held over at Kenora on Sunday, as it was deemed inexpedient to arrive in Winnipeg on Sunday to become the prey to the reasoning of the local journeymen printers.

These men, be it said to their credit, do not relish the position that they are in, finding themselves enticed across the ocean to work as "rat" printers for the purpose of defeating the efforts of the Canadian and American printers to establish a uniform eight-hour day in the trade. It is not an enviable position for a decent white man to be in under any circumstances. The whole circumstance of the miserable scheme has now been widely published in Britain and it is very improbable that any more competent men can be obtained to face a similar experience.

The question of the validity of the contracts will be inquired into. We published some extracts last week going to show that the printers' board of trade was the body in whose name these inducements were being offered and contracts made. Since then the secretary of the board has written to the papers denying the connection of the printers' board of trade with the importation. On the face the evidence is against the board, but still it is said to be a fact that the name of the board was used without any authority whatever.

WAS IT A FAKE.

There apparently is not much honor behind these contracts, and the question of their validity is interesting some of the men who were chained up with them. The "bosses" recognize the danger of any close inquiry into this matter and, no doubt for its moral effect, have caused a prosecution to be made against some printer for breach of contract with the Stovel Printing Company. The defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $15. The reports of this case given in the local papers were identical in their wording and the proceeding looked a little fishy. We find that none among the striking printers knew anything about the prosecution, and that it is believed that the man against whom the proceedings were taken was not in Winnipeg at all. It looks as though the prosecution was by consent, and the case was put through with the intent and purpose of frightening the newly imported English contract printers.

Digitized by Google

These English contract printers are held in the "bosses" estimation as lambs to be frightened or tools to be fooled, as occasion may require. They must feel highly flattered.

Some of the new arrivals were put to work on Monday afternoon, and on Tuesday the whole of them were put into printing offices. They were put into the offices whether there was work or not. Some of the smaller offices that had a squad quartered on them are momentarily in clover, as excess salaries will be paid from some outside source.

THE NEW COMERS.

The members of the local union appreciate the unpleasant position that the imported printers find themselves in. They find them to be almost without exception high class and competent printers and gentlemanly fellows, and are confident that a way will be found before long to receive them into the local union. The men were deceived and did not know that there was a strike in progress until they arrived on this side and saw it in the papers in the east. They were taken via St. Martin's junction in order not to go into Montreal, and traveled up here practically and actually locked in the car. At Kenora the car was held over a day in order not to reach Winnipeg on Sunday.

There is no question that these emigrants were grossly deceived by the typothetæ agent, and the typothetæ is responsible for his acts. THE JOURNAL ventures the prediction that this latest move of the typothetæ, though seeming beneficial for the nonce, will eventually result to its detriment.

Put the Screws On.

The following is from typothetæ bulletin 43:

A few typothetæ members complain that garbled and absolutely misleading reports of the strike situation appear from time to time in their local newspapers, and we suggest to all such members that if there are any such misstatements in their local papers, that they send a copy of the same, with full information as to the paper and the date of issue from which the clipping is taken, to this office, together with a copy of the written protest which they make at the time to the paper in question.

And what then, Mr. Macintyre? Will the boycott of the manufacturers' association be put in effect?

Dissolved the Injunction.

The temporary injunction granted the members of the Richmond (Va.) typothetæ some weeks ago, restraining the members of Typographical Union No. 90 from performing divers acts—claimed to be illegal and injurious to the plaintiffs to such a degree that a permanent restraining order should be issued—has been dissolved. The result is said by the Richmond Journal to be "a complete victory for the union, whose past conduct is declared by the court to be without blame."

A perusal of the ruling of Judge Grinnan, of the chancery court, in this case will show that careful thought and attention was given the subject in review, and his methods in this respect are worthy of emulation at the hands of those who seem imbued with the idea that personal opinion constitutes law. Judge Grinnan's decision is quite lengthy, his findings being fortified by rulings in similar cases. It is plainly apparent that this judge does not believe it is the function of the courts to make or break laws at their convenience.

It seems useless to add that the typothetæ has given notice of appeal to the higher courts.

THE JOURNAL reproduces the salient features of Judge Grinnan's decision, and regrets that it is impossible to print it in full. After detailing the various allegations set forth by the typothetæ in obtaining the injunction, the judge says in part:

ATTEMPTED NO BOYCOTT.

These are, in brief, the chief allegations of the bill. The defendants in their answer deny practically all of the material allegations of the bill, but do admit that by argument and persuasion only they have attempted to get certain of the plaintiffs' employes to become members of their union, and they deny that they have resorted to any unlawful method or to violence or intimidation of the employes; also that they have attempted any boycott.

Before making any statement of the acts shown to exist, it will be proper to examine the law applicable to the two points most discussed in the argument of counsel—namely (1) the lawfulness of enticing away an employe by peaceable persuasion, and (2) of picketing.

The plaintiffs claim that it is proper for a court of equity to enjoin the defendants from enticing away, even by peaceable persuasion and argument, any of the plaintiffs' employes, whether under contract to work for a specified time or under a general employment; also from preventing by like means the plaintiffs from securing other employes.

Digitized by Google

PEACEABLE AND QUIET PERSUASION.

There can be no question—and, indeed, it must be admitted—that the defendants, who have now left the employ of the plaintiffs and are strangers to them—have no shadow of a right to interfere with or obstruct the business of the plaintiffs, but the question now to be met is whether it is proper to enjoin them from a peaceable and quiet persuasion of the plaintiffs' employes to leave their employers.

It can not be denied that actions of common law have been frequently sustained for enticing away employes or for procuring the breach of a contract between two persons.

SHOULD NOT BE ENJOINED.

The difficulty that I have is to determine whether or not this principle of law will authorize a court of chancery to enjoin the enticement away of employes even where the admitted purpose of the enticers is by a preconcerted plan to injure the employer in his business, provided the enticement is effected by mere persuasion or argument. It must be admitted that where force, coercion or constraint of any kind is used to force the employes, against their consent, out of the service of the employer, such action ought to be enjoined, for in this free country every person is entitled to pursue his trade or calling without molestation or intimidation of any sort. But it appears to me, from such researches as I have been able to make, that courts of equity will not enjoin a peaceable enticement away of the employes. I shall give some quotations from the opinions of judges and courts that appear to justify this view, taken from cases where the matters presented were in some way similar to those of this suit.

In United States v. Kane, 23 Federal R. 748 (1885), which was a contempt case, Judge David J. Brewer (now Justice Brewer) says that the question really before him for decision was this: "Whether these parties (strikers) went there (to the railroad company's shops) simply, as persons had a right to do, to request engineers and trainmen to desist from further labor, or whether they went there under the circumstances, with such a demonstration of force, with such an attitude and an air, that although nothing but a request was expressed, it was a request which men did not dare decline to comply with. The fact that a half dozen men went there and asked an engineer or a brakeman, or a trainman to quit—that is all right, if it were simply a mere matter of request, a mere matter of giving views and reasons. That is part of the common right of us all. We can all express our opinions. We can go to a friend and urge him to do this or do that; that is a part of the common liberties of every man in this country." See in connection with these remarks of Judge Brewer, the case of Marx & Haas Co. v. Watson, 168 Mo. 133; also Beck v. Railway Union, 118 Mich., 421, paragraph.

AN UNDOUBTED RIGHT.

In Otis Steel Company v. Local Union No. 218, 110 Fed. R. 700 (1901) it is said: "And there is an undoubted right in the members of such organizations to promulgate their theories by reason, logic, argument, and the persuasive influence of those peaceful weapons to the end that other men may be brought to think as they do. When that persuasion has been accomplished, the men persuaded may evidence such fact by joining the organization whose principles and theories they come to believe."

34 Am. St. Rep. 678. In Murdock v. Walker, 152 Pa. 595 (1893), the court says: "The right of working men to organize into associations can not be questioned and the right of the members of such associations, either as members or as an organization, to cease work for an employer and to use all lawful and peaceable means to induce others to refuse to work for such an employer are equally well founded." This was a case somewhat similar to the case at bar.

74 Am. State Rep. 421: In Beck v. Railway Union, 118 Mich. 421 (1898), a case where an injunction was awarded, the court says: "They (laborers) may use persuasion to induce men to join their organization or to refuse to work except for an established wage. They may present their case to the public in newspapers or circulars, in a peaceable way, and with no attempt at coercion."

EMPLOYMENT OF PATROL.

57 Amer. St. Rep. 443: In the case of Vegelahn v. Guntner, 167 Mass. 92 (1896), which was a case somewhat similar to the one at bar, the trial judge held that the employment by the strikers of a patrol to use persuasion and social pressure upon the employes of the plaintiff to induce them to leave their employment, though sufficient to affect the complainant to his disadvantage, was not unlawful, but that the defendants were not entitled to pursue their purpose by threats of personal injury or other harm, and the injunction issued, but permitting the maintenance of the patrol, if the efforts were confined to persuasion and social pressure. In the opinion of the majority of the appellate court, this ruling was proper.

THE CONCLUSION DRAWN.

My conclusion on this branch of the case is that so long as the defendants attempt to induce the new employes to leave their employers by fair and peaceable persuasion only, they are guilty of no act which a court of equity will enjoin. But, of course, the defendants may not molest the new employes, may not coerce them in any way, may not annoy them in any way, so as to drive them from working for their employers.

AS TO PICKETING.

Passing now to the subject of picketing, it is said in Eddy on Combinations, Vol. I, page 547: "It is unlawful for workmen to collect in crowds about the establishment of an employer whose employ they have quit; and it is unlawful for them to follow workmen who have taken their places to their homes and interfere with them along the public streets, for the purpose of intimidating or coercing them into their quitting their employment."

And at page 439 of the same volume: "Pickets

Digitized by Google

may be established about factories and places where non-union men are employed, providing the number of pickets is not so great as to overawe or intimidate the non-union workmen, or in any manner obstruct the street or sidewalk, and providing the so-called pickets confine themselves to the use of persuasion or argument with the non-union employes; but, if the watching or picketing is carried to an extent which causes intimidation, or amounts to coercion, compulsion or molestation in any form, of either the non-union workmen or their employers, it is unlawful, and the combination making use of such unlawful means is a conspiracy."

The above quotations are given to show what may be regarded as the accepted law in regard to picketing. Pickets should be careful that they are not attended by hangers-on, who resort to acts of violence, jeers, cries, etc. (Eddy on Comb., Vol. I, page 441.)

THE USE OF "BRIBES."

There is another point which was argued before me, and that is to what extent is it unlawful for outsiders or strangers to induce employes to leave their employer by "bribes" or money reward? When an employe leaves the employer under the solicitation of a striker and joins the union, he becomes thereby entitled to certain fixed strike benefits, to free transportation to such other towns as he may care to go in search of employment and to the other benefits of the union; these are the ordinary rewards of the new striker on joining the union. But have the strikers the right to entice the employe by the offer of a large sum of money? The question is not discussed in any of the books or decisions that my search has led me to. Nor have I seen any reference to it, except in the opinion of a circuit court judge of another state, to which I have been referred by counsel for the plaintiff. It was argued very ably before me that the use of money—an appeal not to the judgment of an employe, but to his cupidity—to induce him to quit his employer, showed such a determined intention to injure the employer in his business, such malice in the eye of the law, that the wrongdoer ought to be restrained by injunction from such practices, where there is any evidence tending to show its employment to the injury of the employer. While the use of money in order to entice away the employe should doubtless be regarded as an aggravation of the injury done to the employer, yet it occurs to me that it is only one of the methods of peaceable enticement, and that a court of equity may not enjoin simply because the inducement is of a monetary kind. Every argument or enticement of a peaceable nature must appeal, as a rule, to the betterment of the condition of the employe, either at once or hereafter, and it is impossible to draw the line between small inducements or large inducements; but the principle is all the same. Some men are enticed easily, others with difficulty; some with small rewards or expectations, others only by large ones.

In Eddy on Comb., Vol. I, page 424, it is said: "Workmen may combine for the purpose of peaceably and without intimidation persuading their fellow workmen to strike in order to obtain an advance in wages and may lawfully pay the expenses of those who strike," etc. See, also, Vol. II, section 1031, page 1173.

I must hold, therefore, that the offer of payment of strike benefits, of traveling expenses, and even of "bribes," are only forms of peaceable enticement and not the subject of an injunction.

Passing now to the facts that are shown to exist, it may be remarked that where the injunction order appears to be too broad or to enjoin acts that have never been threatened, it should be modified so as to conform to what does appear, or altogether abated, as the case may be. It will not do to say as a ground for an injunction that the order can do no harm; that it only enjoins the defendant from doing what he would have no right to do anyway; courts have no right to sustain injunctions except where the facts presented will justify them, and men may not be properly enjoined from doing acts that they have never contemplated doing.

THE CASE OF WYLDE.

I can not find that the defendants have molested or intimidated the plaintiff or their employes. The case of the man Wylde stands on exceptional grounds. The employes, or some of them, have no doubt been vexed at seeing patrols of pickets near their printing establishments, but I can not see that the strikers have, by their numbers, or by any threats of violence, of gesture or language, deterred any employe from working or any person seeking employment from taking it. The strikers in the patrols appear to have acted almost without exception in a quiet and orderly way. The patrols appear to have limited their acts to observation, interviews with the employes by permission of some of them. Some of the strikers have followed some of the employes to their homes or lodging houses in their efforts to induce them to join the union (which was really to induce them to leave their employment), but their conduct does not appear to have been in any way violent or threatening; they only solicited interviews which were usually granted.

I do not find any evidence of any attempted boycott, nor does the bill charge any. In short, I do not find that the defendants have in any way molested or annoyed the complainants so as to entitle the latter to the injunction of the 21st of October, 1905.

DISSOLVED IN TOTO.

The chief complaint of the employers appears to be that the strikers have enticed away by some means or other, but never by any intimidation, some of the employes. I do not find that courts of equity enjoin such peaceful enticement, even when accompanied by money reward. Upon the whole, I think the injunction now standing should be dissolved in toto. But anything now said is without prejudice to the right of the plaintiffs to move for further injunctions pendente lite, or to such final decree as may be proper; also without prejudice, of course, to their right to bring such actions at common law as they may deem proper.

Digitized by Google

The Typothetæ Rogues' Gallery.

It has come to a rather amusing pass when the typothetæ is compelled to blacklist strikebreakers. Heretofore union men have been shining marks for this sort of persecution. Bulletin No. 33, issued by John Macintyre, the typothetæ hired man, is a sort of rogues' gallery. It seems, from a perusal of this bulletin, that the United Typothetæ of America has been having troubles of its own with the "free and independent." That rats will desert a sinking ship is amply proven by the typothetæ bulletin. THE JOURNAL quotes a few extracts from the blacklist, omitting the names of the parties in question:

> ....., claiming to be a linotype operator (also professional baseball player), succeeded in getting transportation from Savannah, Ga., to Richmond, Va., and from that point he immediately disappeared. Full description of the man will be published as soon as secured.
>
> Rochester, N. Y., reports: .....and....., claiming to come from New York, Pittsburg or Buffalo; they are deserters and untrustworthy in every sense.
>
> Jersey City, N. J., reports: ....., of Wayne, Pa., a linotype operator, a deserter after accepting transportation and board and working one day.
>
> ....., claims to be a linotype operator, but can not prove it. Sold out in Niagara Falls.
>
> ....., good talker and dresser; employed as foreman in Watertown, N. Y., accepted transportation and board; deserted after one day.
>
> ....., engaged at Hartford; after working a short time quit and joined the union, making affidavit that he did not know there was a strike, although it had been fully explained to him before he hired out.
>
> The description of ....., who secured transportation from Savannah to Richmond at the expense of the typothetæ, and then disappeared, is as follows: Age, about 30 years; tall, slender, clean shaven, dark complexion, hair and eyes; nervous temperament.

Then comes the report of the remnant of the Chicago typothetæ. This organization sends to the United Typothetæ of America secretary a list of eighty-nine men who accepted transportation from the typothetæ and failed to deliver the goods. Sixty of these have the general term "deserter" after their names. Fourteen are said to have "joined the union." Three are classed as "defaulters." The rest are classified as "ringers," "not to be trusted" or as "scared out."

Then comes the St. Paul typothetæ with a full description of some twenty-four "printers" who have buncoed that august body out of board, transportation, etc. A number of these are designated by the St. Paul typothetæ secretary as "crooks."

Cincinnati puts up a wail of woe about a certain printer (?) of distinguished appearance—"he carried a cane"—who borrowed a dollar and vanished. Several others are enumerated in the Cincinnati report as having "fooled our cashier."

Various other local branches of the United Typothetæ of America are reporting similar experiences with the "free and independent."

We may be wrong in our judgment, but we are of the opinion that the press agent of the United Typothetæ of America made another break when he sent out Bulletin 33.

The Chicago Injunction.

The Chicago Examiner, together with other papers of that city, has raised its voice in protest against the judge-made law that has been invented by Judge Holdom for the government of the union printers of Chicago. Following are some editorial expressions from the Hearst paper:

> THE LAW AND THE RIGHTS OF THE INDIVIDUAL.
>
> Several months ago the union printers declared for an eight-hour day.
>
> Many years ago the union printers declared for the closed shop. All printers employing union men agreed to this condition.
>
> All the members of the typothetæ accepted the condition.
>
> Answering the notice of the printers that they would stand for eight hours on January 1, the members of the typothetæ declared for an IMMEDIATE OPEN SHOP. Then there were lockouts and strikes.
>
> A judge has enjoined the printers from picketing. The injunction goes further than any similar instrument ever uttered by a judge.
>
> Every plea of the seekers for the injunction is granted.
>
> The printers alleged they were conducting their fight within the law.
>
> They asked men to quit work, they sought to do peaceful picketing, but Judge Holdom avers that any sort of picketing is against the law.
>
> The judge also severely denounces any attempt at boycotting. All of his ruling may be according to the law as made in Illinois and interpreted by courts.
>
> The next question that employers will probably make effort to have settled against workingmen is that IF THEY STRIKE OR QUIT WORK SIMULTANEOUSLY THEY BREAK THE LAW.
>
> Labor under the LAW WILL THEN BE REDUCED TO

Digitized by Google

THE CONDITION THAT MARKED AFRICAN SLAVERY BEFORE THE WAR.

The printers should not violate the letter of the ruling. They should ask for a rehearing at once, and in the event of losing appeal the case.

But if these men are enjoined what about those firms in Chicago, not parties to this fight, that combined and warned employers that if they made terms with the printers they would get no work?

You denounce the sympathetic strike. You may be right, but how about the sympathetic boycott against firms that agreed to the printers' request?

But thus will run the law until the lawmaker feels a responsibility to the individual as well as to the corporate influences that hire and maintain lobbies in the legislation halls.

You talk of the dignity of labor, and yet you will make the man who toils with his hands like unto the dumb ox.

Union printers are not lawbreakers. They represent a craft that was the forefront of the revival of learning. They are men of information and men of honorable dealing.

They do not encourage strikes. They never strike unless driven to it.

But still they must stand as the dumb ox.

Workers will get the liberty that is taken from them in the name of the law when they go into politics, not as fee grabbers and grafters, but in sending men to the legislature who will make laws on the basis of equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

Then they can bring about the election of judges who will base their opinions on the declaration of independence rather than the common law of England that had its foundations in the centuries when the man who toiled in the heat of the sun was an inferior animal.

SHALL THIS NATION BE RUSSIANIZED?

You are startled at what is taking place in Russia. Five hundred years ago the people of Russia were free. They held district meetings and national meetings. Their czar listened to their demands and granted them. They lost their liberty by being separated—by being beaten in detail. They sank in a condition of slavery that made African chatteldom in comparison a delight. Now they are struggling to get back what they have lost.

Thus injunction after injunction has taken away from the man who toils in the sweat of his face his right to property, liberty and happiness. Labor is his property. Now, in this year the right of assemblage and of free speech are denied to an organization of workingmen on the application of an organization of employers after two-thirds of the employers have agreed to what the workers ask.

You destroy the prosperity of the working class and you strike a vital blow at the life of this nation.

These printers want what every other honest workingman wants—decent hours and decent wages for all. They are seeking to elevate the standard of living among workingmen. They are trying to get away from the conditions that are prevalent when workers wore iron collars.

The result of this injunction is to paralyze one branch of the producing classes for the advantage of a class that buys labor at the lowest possible price and gives to the seller no voice in what he has to offer.

You destroy unions and you break down the last fortification against monopoly, that is taking over our courts of law, legislatures, congresses, councils, and will have an absolutely free hand if it can break the toilers into a disorganized mob, and thus beat them.

The printers—members of a trade that has made possible the civilization we have and are in danger of losing—are an intelligent, educated class of men. They are good citizens; they obey the law. Against them a rule of law is turned that should go but one jump further to denounce their union as a conspiracy.

It is time that the rights of the man who asks nothing but a right to get a living wage and living hours for his toil be defined in the last courts of appeal.

There should be an appeal from this injunction issued by Judge Holdom.

The people of this nation still stand for the liberty of every man and the right of every man to the full enjoyment of his liberty, labor and property. If the courts have so shaped the law as to destroy any of these things the people will see that the true intent of the framers of the law is carried out.

Newspaperdom Again.

In the October JOURNAL mention was made of the misleading statements being published in Newspaperdom in connection with the eight-hour contest of the International Typographical Union. One after another different magazines devoted to the printing art have practically conceded that the printers have won their fight for the shorter workday. But in the meantime Newspaperdom goes stumbling blindly along in the old rut, disregarding, perhaps purposely, the series of victories that has followed in the wake of the campaign of the International Typographical Union for the eight-hour day. Newspaperdom has seemingly turned over its columns to the press agent of the United Typothetæ of America, and permits him to write his wondrously constructed tales without fear of the blue pencil. Following are extracts from the issue of Newspaperdom of November 9:

Out of the forty odd cities struck about half say the strike is at an end, and many of the others realize that their troubles are almost over. All of them feel confident, for they see themselves gaining ground daily, and know that by standing together as one man the end can not be long delayed, and that victory will assuredly be theirs.

Digitized by Google

Half of them have won out, and ALL are making gains daily. Figure it out.

The truth of the matter is that of the seven hundred members [typothetæ members] who are fighting the eight-hour-day agreement only sixteen have surrendered, and these only conditionally.

The above is submitted for the consideration of the various unions over the country that have numbers of contracts with typothetæ offices agreeing unconditionally to the inauguration of the shorter workday on January 1, 1906. Take note of the fact that they claim 700 members. Grant that they have this number—and THE JOURNAL believes the figures are far too great—it should not be forgotten that, according to the 1900 census report, there were 22,312 printing establishments in the United States.

Following are the cities claimed by the typothetæ, through the columns of Newspaperdom, as having won "complete victories" over the union: Peoria, Ill., Annapolis, Md., Galveston, Tex., Charlotte, N. C., Cincinnati, O., Jacksonville, Fla., New Haven, Conn., New London, Conn., Newark, N. J., Niagara Falls, N. Y., Omaha, Neb., Quincy, Ill., San Antonio, Tex., Springfield, Mass., Stamford, Conn., St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn., Syracuse, N. Y., Watertown, N. Y., and Worcester, Mass.

THE JOURNAL publishes the above list simply for the information of the unions enumerated. It seems that they don't know when they are beaten.

As the various unions above enumerated win complete victories, and are transferred to the eight-hour column, the membership will be kept informed through the columns of THE JOURNAL.

New Jersey Eight-Hour Conference.

The regular meeting of the New Jersey eight-hour committee was held in Elizabeth on November 19. Delegates were present from the following cities: Camden, Elizabeth, Jersey City, Newark, New Brunswick, Orange, Perth Amboy, Plainfield, Rahway, Somerville, Trenton, Union Hill. Reports from the various unions indicated splendid progress, and confidence was expressed that the shorter workday will be established with a minimum of trouble.

Were All the Affidavits Like This?

The injunction secured by the Chicago typothetæ was granted upon affidavits made by non-union men. The Chicago Typographical Union has issued a statement to the public, in which the following affidavits are reproduced. The first was presented to Judge Holdom and the second to the union. Pay your money and take your choice:

(COPY)

STATE OF ILLINOIS, COUNTY OF COOK, SS:

Charles H. Russell, being first duly sworn, deposes and says: I am thirty-eight years of age; I have been engaged in the printing business for the past twenty years; I am by occupation a compositor; I am a skilled and experienced man in my line of business. Heretofore I have been engaged in the printing business in Viroqua, Wis. On September 27, knowing that there was a strike on against the printing houses in Chicago, and looking for better wages, I came to this city. On October 22 I secured work as a compositor with M. A. Donohue & Co., where I am now employed. On this day (October 4), when returning from lunch to the printing house, I was approached by a man whose name to me is unknown, but whom I believed to have been a striking union picket. He tried to induce me to take out a union card, and I said: "I don't need one, that I had one the other day and couldn't get anything to eat on it, that it put me on the bum." He said: "We will give you transportation anywhere you want to go if you will take out a card." Before anything further could be said a detective who had been protecting the men working for the struck house, M. A. Donohue & Co., stepped up and asked me if I wanted this man to talk any longer to me; I said: "No, I don't want to talk to him," and the detective got between us and he dropped behind and talked to my companion.

CHARLES H. RUSSELL,

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 4th day of October, 1905.

(Seal) GEORGE H. RALPH,
Notary Public, Cook Co., Ill.

(COPY)

STATE OF ILLINOIS, COUNTY OF COOK, SS:

Charles H. Russell, being first duly sworn, deposes and says: I am thirty-eight years of age; I have been engaged in the printing business for the past twenty years; I am by occupation a compositor. I am a skilled and experienced man in my line of business. Heretofore I have been engaged in the printing business in Viroqua, Wis., and other places. I have been a member of the International Typographical Union almost continuously since 1887. I have been up to the headquarters of Chicago Typographical Union a number of times of my own free will, and am anxious now, and have always been anxious, to retain my membership in the International Typographical Union. I have never been bothered or molested by pickets or any other union men, and I make this declaration in good faith and of my own free will, and without any promise of reward of any kind whatsoever. THE AFFIDAVIT SIGNED BY ME ON OCTOBER 4, FOR USE IN THE CASE OF A. R. BARNES ET AL. VS. CHICAGO TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION ET AL. WAS OBTAINED FROM ME BY MISREPRESENTATION AND FRAUD, and I did not know, nor do I now know, who the man is who wrote the said affidavit and asked me to sign it. I have never at any time since coming to Chicago seen or heard of any violence or intimidation from any pickets or alleged pickets of the Chicago Typographical Union No. 16 or any other labor organization.

Digitized by Google

(Signed) CHARLES H. RUSSELL.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 30th day of October, 1905.

(Seal) M. H. CAZIER,
Notary Public, Cook Co., Ill.

There were thirty-nine other affidavits very similar to this one. Do you wonder that No. 16 protests against the injunction?

Strikebreakers and Lawbreakers.

Fifty-one of the strikebreakers secured in England are now at work in non-union offices in Winnipeg. Notwithstanding this, the members of Winnipeg Typographical Union are standing firm, and feel confident of ultimate success, as the residents of that locality do not take kindly to importations of this character.

Reports from England indicate that Brunning, the Winnipeg typothetæ agent, expected to secure several hundred strikebreakers, and that he was much disappointed at the result of his efforts.

Word has been received at International headquarters that a further shipment of forty British strikebreakers reached Winnipeg shortly after the arrival of the first party of fifty-one, and that more will follow. It is asserted that these importations will be divided into small parties, furnished with return tickets in order to deceive the immigration officials at the border, and shipped to some of the cities in the United States where strikes are in progress. Our informant also says Brunning boasts that he is acting under the instructions of officials of the United Typothetæ and claims he is in constant communication with them.

This information verifies the statement in the November JOURNAL that the United Typothetæ of America is backing the movement, and demonstrates that the members of that organization, while loudly prating of their law-abiding character, and seeking court injunctions on the strength of strict observance of the laws of the land, will not hesitate to set any law at defiance when it is to their interest to do so.

The next step in this method of strikebreaking will be carefully watched. "There's many a slip," etc., and Uncle Sam may have something to say.

And yet the typothetæ insists that it has all the printers necessary.

Conference of Presidents.

On Sunday, November 12, a meeting of presidents and other representatives of unions on strike was held at International headquarters. Those present were: W. C. Hewitt, Springfield, Ohio; G. W. Dickson, Detroit, Mich.; W. B. Wilson, Grand Rapids, Mich; K. S. Fisher, Omaha, Neb.; A. D. Calvert, Philadelphia, Pa.; James J. Hoban, Cleveland, Ohio; William D. Willams, New Haven, Conn.; Wade P. Harding, Atlanta, Ga.; M. R. Pace, Richmond, Va.; F. N. Gould, Minneapolis, Minn.; T. F. Thomas, St. Paul, Minn.; C. E. Kinskey, Buffalo, N. Y.; Joseph A. Jackson, St. Louis, Mo.; Bert H. Bates, Rochester, N. Y.; E. H. Ashton, Newark, N. J.; E. M. Stewart, Toledo, Ohio; James Taylor, Syracuse, N. Y.; Edgar A. Perkins and E. P. Barry, Indianapolis, Ind.; E. R. Wright, Chicago, Ill.; B. E. Burnham, St. Joseph, Mo.; James M. Lynch, Hugo Miller and J. W. Bramwood, comprising the executive council.

The gathering was for the purpose of an interchange of ideas, and it developed into a sort of "experience" meeting. Great good was accomplished through a comparison of methods in the conduct of the fight. Close as the International officers were to the situation in the various towns, the statements of the representatives at the meeting were a pleasing revelation to them. Not one discordant note was struck in the course of the meeting, which lasted for eight hours. As one after another arose and described the conditions in his locality, the conviction grew that there can be no such word as "fail." Every union represented has the local situation well in hand.

The International officers offered suggestions as to the conduct of the struggle in various jurisdictions, submitted statistics relative to the number on strike, benefits thus far paid, etc., and announced that the American Federation of Labor had levied an assessment for the typographical union that would net $60,000. They also informed the meeting that the passage of the 50-cent assessment proposition would assure a steady income for the payment of strike expenses.

Digitized by Google

The Fifty-Cent Assessment.

As will be seen by a perusal of the tabulated returns on the fifty-cents-per-week proposition, it was adopted by the overwhelming vote of 25,949 for to 6,333 against. If anything were needed to show the earnestness and determination of our members to fight the shorter workday battle to a successful termination, the result of this vote would demonstrate it. There was never any doubt about the outcome of the vote—it was simply a question of how large the majority in its favor would be. We are now in a position to pass the ammunition up to the boys in the trenches for an indefinite period.

The assessment took effect with the week beginning Monday, November 6.

Ernst Kreft Is Dead.

On Monday, November 20, a telegram was received at International headquarters announcing the death of Ernst Kreft, chairman of the organization committee of Philadelphia Union. The news came as a great shock to the International officers, as it had been but a few weeks since Mr. Kreft was in Indianapolis in conference with the executive council. At that time he seemed in perfect health.

For several years Mr. Kreft has been engaged, as an officer of No. 2, in the organization work in Philadelphia, and now that the critical time has arrived in his union's affairs, it is indeed sad that he could not be spared to help win the battle with his wise counsel.

The International officers extend their heartfelt sympathy to Philadelphia Union in its great loss. The memory of his earnest, conscientious work for the union will live long in the memory of union men.

The American Federation of Labor Pledges Financial Support.

As THE JOURNAL goes to press the American Federation of Labor is in session in the city of Pittsburg. As our members are probably by this time informed, this great body of allied trade unionists had already pledged to the support of the printers about $60,000, which is to be raised by an assessment of one cent per week per member for four weeks. It remained for the convention to recommend that the executive officers of that body continue financial aid after January 1, 1906, if needed. This was done by a unanimous vote. And it was only right that such action should be taken. The fight of the International Typographical Union is the fight of all organized labor. The continuance of the nine-hour day and the introduction of the open shop would be a body blow to every trade unionist in the land. Other unions do not need to be told this—they realize that our fight is their fight, and they stand ready to put their shoulders to the wheel and help the printers drive in the opening wedge for the shorter workday in every trade. Printers should remember that the eyes of the trade union movement of the world are now upon them, and that the winning of the fight means the greatest forward step that organized labor has taken in many years. We are fighting a common enemy, and welcome the support of all union men.

AMERICAN INDUSTRIES of November 1 says: "The Moody Corporation, publisher of Moody's Manual and the many other statistical volumes under that name, is now to be further represented by Moody's Magazine, which, according to its prospectus, will be 'a monthly review for brokers, bankers and men of affairs.' The Moody people have had a remarkable growth in the four or five years since they began business, and chiefly this has been due, one may note, to the virtue of their wares. Moody's Magazine, we have a right to expect, will be one worth reading." Very good. And now we respectfully call the attention of the readers of THE JOURNAL to the report of the Moody corporation alluded to, which was quoted from in the November number, as showing the manner in which wages have failed to keep pace with the rising cost of the necessities of life. The editor of the Moody prospectus further said: "To be sound and continued, prosperity should be accompanied by rising wages, as well as rising prices and rents. * * * It is improbable that wages will rise as rapidly as will prices and rents." The editor of American Industries, D. M. Parry, evidently failed to read the Moody prospectus carefully.

Digitized by Google

"Twenty-Three" For The Stick.

With the November number, The Stick, published by Louis F. Fuchs, of St. Louis, gave up the ghost. The beautiful little "journal of typeart" died game, as witness the following editorial from the last number:

With this number The Stick ceases publication, and the program outlined in the October number will be carried out. The publisher, having sought valiantly to plug up what he conceived to be an aching void, admits himself in error. Yet he does not consider that he has labored in vain, since he is the richer by some experience and several friends. So, in crying quits, he makes the same graceful bow as that which accompanied his entry into the field of trade journalism, and, thanking his friends for their support, turns without vain regret to such other duties as fall to his lot.

John D.'s Hired Man Jeered.

Under the heading, "Anti-Union Speech Hissed at Industrial Banquet," the St. Louis Globe-Democrat said of the recent "break" made by J. Laurence Laughlin at the citizens' alliance banquet in that city:

J. Laurence Laughlin, professor of political economy in the University of Chicago, was hissed, and several times there were cries of "Rats," when he addressed the National Citizens' Industrial Association at the banquet given by the local association at the Planters' last night.

Professor Laughlin spoke on "Labor Unions and Higher Wages," and at several points in his talk he became very bitter against the union laborer and his tactics. He spoke strongly against strikes and advocated the open shop. "The day of the cut-throat and assassin as the walking delegate of the labor union should end. Some of these men would be a disgrace to any penal colony," said Professor Laughlin.

There were some labor leaders among the guests, the industrial association having invited members of labor unions and the employers' association to speak, and at these remarks the hissing began. The demonstration created indignation among the adherents of Professor Laughlin and amusement in the ranks of the industrial people, and for a time friction seemed imminent.

The address of Professor Laughlin was the longest and most comprehensive of the toasts. He presented his arguments as a lawyer before a court, taking up first the employers' side and then that of the laboring man. He was strongly in favor of capital, and the middle men, the common people, and his strictures on the labor union leaders were very bitter.

Then Judge Jesse (Injunction) Holdom spoke on "Order is Heaven's First Law." Wonder if he meant court orders? Then David M. Parry spoke on "Good Will Toward the Laboring Man." But, in the words of the immortal Artemus Ward, "Why lasserate the publick bussum with these things?"

"Open Shop" Conditions.

The following from the news columns of the Chicago Tribune describes pretty accurately the conditions that prevail in "free and independent" plants:

Something like a walled town, where all the workingmen will live within a big stockade, where the curfew will ring at 9 o'clock, and where the only connection with the outside world will be an occasional newspaper or perhaps a letter from distant relatives, will spring into existence this morning just south of Chicago.

The inhabitants of this sequestered settlement are Hungarians and Austrians, 300 of whom have been brought to work in the great coke ovens of the Semet-Solvay company, with their families. They will make a population of nearly 1,000 souls.

For months the coke ovens have been in progress of construction on a plat of sixty acres at One Hundred and Sixty-fourth street and Torrence avenue, adjacent to South Deering. At the same time a high board fence has been erected about the plant. Within the stockade cottages have been built, a big dance hall has been reared, and stores and shops have arisen.

The curiosity aroused in the neighboring towns of South Deering and South Chicago was dispelled yesterday when the company announced its intention of quartering its employes within the gates of the stockade.

Simultaneously some novel rules governing the freedom of the coke workers were made known.

No employes will be allowed outside the gates without permission.

The curfew will ring at 9 o'clock and every man, woman and child must be within the inclosure by that time.

All entertainment will be provided employes by the company. For this purpose a dance hall has been erected. Employes must not attend dances or other entertainments outside the inclosure.

The company opened the dance hall last night,

Digitized by Google

giving a big ball to the workmen and their wives. Until a late hour there were sounds of wild Hungarian music and merrymaking within the stockade. Carefully watching over the scene to see that the fun did not become too boisterous were agents of the company. When the latter thought the dancing had continued long enough they put out the lights, locked the doors of the dance hall, and sent the workmen and their wives back to their cottages.

Work in the coke ovens will begin this week. The church problem has yet to be solved, but it is probable that the inhabitants of the town will be allowed to attend worship in the neighboring villages.

Dissension in the United Typothetæ.

Information comes to THE JOURNAL that all is not harmony in the United Typothetæ of America. Dissatisfaction is developing in the ranks of that body over the course pursued by its secretary, John Macintyre. It seems that a number of employers have announced themselves as opposing the eight-hour day—and that alone. They have no quarrel with the union on any other score. They have no desire for the open shop. What they have wished from the beginning is a peaceable settlement between the International Typographical Union and the United Typothetæ of America. Now they feel that the secretary has gone too far. They begin to see that they were led into an attempted union-busting game. And John is beginning to hear from the rank and file—and in no uncertain tones. THE JOURNAL understands that many employers wanted to make the fight strictly on the eight-hour issue. They did not wish to fight for the open shop or any other union-busting scheme. Now they are being committed to all sorts of wild and impracticable schemes by their hired man. And they don't like it. With the smaller proprietors dropping out on account of the heavy assessments—from which they derive no benefit—and the larger ones finding fault with the conduct of the campaign, there appear to be stormy times ahead for John. Of course every one knows that the open shop issue was incorporated in the plan of campaign by Macintyre to make good with the Manufacturers' Association and obtain badly needed support.

THE union shop is the open shop; the non-union shop is the closed shop.

Gotham's Typothetæ Getting Restless.

The following is a copy of a letter being sent to printers in various parts of the country by the typothetæ of the city of New York:

NEW YORK, November 9, 1905.

DEAR SIR—We are informed that you are a compositor, your name having been given us by Mr. E. R. Cornelius, who is in our employ.

The typothetæ of the city of New York is an organization of employing printers. We expect a strike January 1 on the part of our compositors and operators. If we are struck we will require other printers, men and women, to take the places vacated by our present employes.

To competent compositors we will pay wages of $21 for a fifty-four hour week. We will protect and care for them during the strike, and if they are faithful and return to us the fair treatment which we shall give them, their positions will be permanent.

The opportunity is a great one for any compositor or operator who desires to get started right in the printing trade of this city. If you are disposed to come to New York January 1, write just what your experience in the business has been. If there are other compositors or operators in your vicinity, whom you think would like to avail themselves of this opportunity, will you kindly give us their names and addresses? If several come from one town we will endeavor to place them in the same shop.

A stamped envelope is enclosed for your reply.

Yours truly,
HENRY V. BOYER, Recording Secretary.

Following is the application blank accompanying the above letter:

....
Town. Grade of Service.
....
Application. Field Man.
....., 1905.

To the Typothetæ of the City of New York, 320 Broadway, New York City:

I hereby make application for a position as.... ....at.....dollars ($..) per week of fifty-four (54) hours.

I have had.....years' experience in the printing trade as follows:

My age is.....years; height.....; average weight.....; complexion.....; I am married (or single).

I am not a member of a labor union.

It has been fully explained to me by your representative, ..., that the typothetæ of the city of New York is an organization of employing printers; that a strike is threatened by the compositors and operators employed by the members of the typothetæ of the city of New York, and that it is thought this strike will take place about the 1st of January, 1906. I make application for a position with the full understanding of these matters, agreeing to work in any typothetæ office to which I may be assigned, at the wages above stated, beginning the 1st of January, 1906, and continuing thereafter subject to my rendering satisfactory service.

Digitized by Google

I will report at your headquarters, or wherever I may be requested to report by the representatives of the typothetæ, ... days after notification.

Name.....

Address.....

Witnesses:

As is generally the case, only about 40 per cent of the union book and job printers of New York city are employed in typothetæ offices.

A Rector Scores Union Critics.

The Rev. Dr. E. A. Wasson, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Newark, N. J., and editor of the Crown, the parish paper, recently received an anonymous typothetæ circular attacking the typographical union, and particularly calling attention to the "terrible oath" to which all union printers subscribe. This anonymous circular directed the reader's attention to the fact that this oath was a "capital offense," in that it set the union above the church and Almighty God. The circular was answered by the rector in an editorial in the Crown, as follows:

A day or two ago I received by mail a printed slip purporting to be the vow taken by typographical union men. Some sentences in this vow are printed in capitals, and these sentences are those in which it is declared, in effect, that no other affiliations, political, religious, social, shall be allowed to interfere with the obligation owed to the union.

Fearing that as a preacher I might not have sufficient mental power to understand what I read without assistance, the issuer of the circular kindly added at the foot of it a commentary explaining that this capital utterance was a capital offense, in that it set the typographical union above the church and Almighty God, and adding that some preacher out west said that as long as the typos maintained this oath they could not be admitted to communion.

This circular was unsigned. It had not the slightest indication where it came from. It was artfully calculated that, being a preacher, my ire would rise at the affront put upon the church and the Deity. Well, my ire hasn't risen a bit—against the printers' union. In the first place, assuming that the document is genuine, the anonymous gentleman's commentary is all humbug. I can see that much, even if I am a preacher. All that the language of the obligation says or implies is that as the union doesn't interfere with other organizations, it doesn't propose to allow other organizations to interfere with it. And as for the interests of true religion being jeopardized by this union, I believe that there is more genuine practical religion in it in a week than there is in a whole lot of churches in a century, or in this anonymous gentleman's best Sunday character.

This circular has, no doubt, been issued in the interests of the non-union bosses in the present difficulty between them and their men. A week ago one of the men came to me, not in the dark, nor with a mask on, but in the broad day, appearing rather proud to declare his name and address, and asked me if I could help their cause by some statement. I said that I did not see how I could; nor have I done so; nor had I any thought of doing so—till this anonymous circular came along.

Now, anonymous defamation is low business; it is striking below the belt; it is shooting from behind a hedge; it is doping a horse the night before the race; and I would stand up for an insurance grafter, even, if prevented from confronting his accusers. Nothing is more pleasing to the Almighty than a good honest fight, each side believing itself in the right. But this dark-lantern business is beneath—anything I can think of. Do the bosses approve of this procedure, or have they some fool agent?

To the anonymous gentleman I reply, as a matter of courtesy, that I don't wish to know him, and that as he has tried to hoodwink me, and to misrepresent a body of men with whom he is at variance, these acts together constituting an aggrieved case of foul, I sincerely hope that he and his side will be thoroughly thrashed. It may teach them manners, if not morals.

Dr. Wasson's reply ought to "hold" the "anonymous gentleman" and his sponsors for a minute or two at least. The typothetæ is in sore straits when recourse is had to such duplicity.

An Economist on Trade Unionism.

The Monetary Times, the oldest and the leading financial paper of Canada, published in Toronto, quotes one Professor Adam Shortt to the following effect:

The cause of trade unionism is not the cause of the whole laboring class, and indeed could not be. It is the cause of organized labor only, which must suppress competition, thus crowding the surplus workmen into lower grades of unskilled and unorganized labor. The situation has largely come round to this: that it no longer depends upon capital, but upon the trade unions, as to whether labor should or should not find employment, or at least be eligible to find employment. One effect of the increasing power of trade unionism is to concentrate the poorer and less capable grades of labor in the unskilled and unorganized trades, and thus to swell the ranks of the poverty-stricken and sweated labor bands. Organized labor has thus disposed of the dream of its earlier advocates, that it was capable of bringing universal redemption to the lower classes. On the other hand, the training and self-discipline incidental to the meetings and affairs of the trade unions afford an excellent school in civics, training the members for the wider duties of citizenship and preparing the more capable and intelligent of the laborers to take a new, more rational and more effective interest in municipal, provincial, national and even international duties and obligations.

Digitized by Google

The professor makes statements which nullify each other. He grants the excellence of trade union meetings "in training and disciplining the members for the wider duties of citizenship, and preparing the more capable and more intelligent of the laborers to take a new, more rational and more effective interest in municipal, provincial, national and even international duties and obligations." Well, indeed, may he admit it. The facts force themselves on every mind free from ignorant bias. Yet the trades unionists are charged with "concentrating the poorer and less capable grades of labor in the unskilled and unorganized trades, thus to swell the ranks of the poverty stricken and sweated labor bands." The popular magazines have articles at times from "professors" on economic subjects, but for incomprehensibility "Professor" Shortt has no superiors and few equals. But, then, perhaps, like the other "professors" he is doing the best he can.

"Having Eyes They See Not."

In view of the misleading statements in regard to the eight-hour contest that have appeared in the columns of the American Printer, the following letter was sent to its editor by one of its subscribers:

NEWPORT, R. I., November 7, 1905.

Oswald Publishing Company, New York:

SIRS—The attitude taken in the American Printer on the labor situation in the printing trades reminds me of a text from which I heard a sermon preached not long since; "Having Eyes They See Not, and Having Ears They Hear Not."

You may cross my name off your subscription list at once and leave it off until such time as you can see with both eyes or at least get the telescope through which you view the International Typographical Union adjusted right end to. I can stand honest criticism, but not rank prejudice and false representations.

"There are none so blind as those who won't see." Just wake up and watch the International Typographical Union with both eyes.

Respectfully,

M. L. VINCENT.

New England Eight-Hour Conference.

In response to the invitation of the eight-hour committee of Boston Union No. 13, delegates from the typographical unions of New England met in Boston on October 23 to deliberate on the eight-hour movement. The following delegates were present:

Brockton, Mass., A. B. Slocum, Wm. E. Norris; Marlboro, Mass., John E. Mullen; Woonsocket, R. I., A. J. Crepeau; Waterbury, Conn., Frank W. Wheeler; Worcester, Mass., Freeman M. Saltus; Fitchburg, Mass., John Ryan; Providence, R. I., Herbert S. Richardson; New London, Conn., John F. Murphy; Pawtucket, R. I., John Gilleece; Manchester, N. H., Park Mitchell; Boston, David X. Coughlin, Martin W. Haverty, James A. Punch, Charles G. Wilkins, James B. Gill, Edwin A. Boyle, Bayard E. Harrison, John J. O'Leary, Herbert W. Cooke, Henry Sterling, Frank Hennessy, Ambrose Harvey, John A. McPherson; New Haven, Conn., J. T. Van Houten, M. F. Shea; Lawrence, Mass., Robert S. Maloney, John Hancock; Springfield, Mass., S. G. Strangford; Norwood, Mass., H. Lawton; Taunton, Mass., Alton G. Clay; Lowell, Mass., F. A. Spead, D. A. Sullivan, Bart. Murphy, P. A. Foley, J. R. Gelinas; Portland, Me., John H. Dooley; Hartford, Conn., Philip B. Gray; Waltham, Mass., E. C. Fowler; Holyoke, Mass., E. S. Alden.

A thorough discussion of the eight-hour situation was indulged in, and reports from the various delegates indicated that the movement was in splendid shape and victory assured. Among other resolutions, the following was adopted:

Whereas, The International Typographical Union, at its St. Louis convention, demanded an eight-hour day; and whereas the demand has been reaffirmed at the Toronto convention; and whereas, notwithstanding that every effort has been made to conciliate the typothetæ and bring the latter organization around to the position occupied by us, without avail; and

Whereas, We have used every effort to bring about peace between the contending parties—the International Typographical Union and the typothetæ—and the latter has positively refused to discuss the matter in any way that would be favorable to the inauguration of the eight-hour day on January 1, 1906; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the conference of the New England printers, in convention assembled, place the entire repsonsibility of the difficulties now existing, and others that may follow, upon the National

Digitized by Google

Typothetæ, which, by its persistence in injustice and unfair dealings, has brought these conditions now prevailing in different cities and towns in the United States and Canada about; be it further

Resolved, In view of the fact that success has attended our every effort since the inception of our strikes against the common enemy, and still continues daily to do so, that we now pledge our eternal fealty to each other and will stand by our present position, working as a unit for all time until every city and town from Maine to California shall come under the eight-hour banner, and the acclaim go forth that the printers of this country and Canada stand once again in the forefront of labor's army. Be it further

Resolved, That we hereby heartily endorse the assessment suggested by the International Typographical Union, looking to finance, for all time, the issue pending between the typothetæ and ourselves. Be it further

Resolved, That we endorse our International officers in the successful, indefatigable efforts that they are making towards the accomplishment of the eight-hour day, and we hereby express our fealty to each and all, and pledge ourselves to support them in their every effort.

At the mass meeting held in Faneuil Hall addresses were made by James Duncan, second vice-president of the American Federation of Labor; Organizer John A. McPherson; President David X. Coughlin; Rev. Francis W. Maley; Martin P. Higgins, president International Pressmen's Union; Rev. C. S. McFarland; Henry Abrahams, secretary Boston central labor union; Rev. Alexander Irvine; Francis J. Clark, president state branch American Federation of Labor; Dennis J. Driscoll, secretary state branch American Federation of Labor; Organizer Charles T. Scott, and Frank K. Foster.

Action By the Building Trades.

At a conference meeting of the general executive board of the International Building Trades Council, held at its headquarters November 5, 1905, the following official call was adopted and issued:

St. Louis, Mo., November 5, 1905.

To All Members of the Building Crafts—Greeting:

The general executive board of the International Building Trades Council desires to call the attention of all members of building trades to the strikes and lockouts now being conducted in the printing industry on account of the enforcement of the eight-hour workday by the International Typographical Union.

The printers in this are not only engaged in a grand fight for a noble cause, deserving the support of all justice-loving people; but their success will mean a step nearer to the universal eight-hour workday for all wage-earners and will make more secure and lasting the eight-hour workday of building trades.

It therefore behooves all building crafts to lend every possible aid and support to the striking printers in this noble fight, and we urgently request all building tradesmen everywhere and hereby enjoin the members of affiliated councils and unions to use all honorable means to help the printers to a complete victory.

One of Post's Jokes.

On the eve of the annual convention of the Citizens' Industrial Association at St. Louis, C. W. Post issued a statement to the press that brands him as the peer of Lew Dockstader, Ezra Kendal or any of their kind. C. W. gravely announced that his association was formed for the purpose of helping the labor unions and strengthening them. He made the further statement—without cracking a smile—that a number of trade unions were seriously considering the advisability of joining the Citizens' Industrial Alliance. Probably Post thinks to kill the unions by kindness. Isn't it funny what a man will say when under the influence of postum.

Looping the Loop.

Last May the New Voice, a Chicago temperance paper, said editorially:

Attention is called to the union label at the head of this page. One of the comforts of printing a paper in one's own office is the privilege of running said office according to one's own sweet will. The union label is a small thing; yet it is the biggest thing in the paper. It is notice to all the world that the New Voice is made by men; that the company is not running a butcher shop to skin its employes; that in all its details the highest standard of excellence in its mechanical departments prevails. The producers of the country are properly taking a more and more important part in the affairs of life; the drone consumers have heretofore had things too much their own way. Every change in this direction is a welcome one.

At the present time the New Voice is waging war on the union printers of Chicago, and is forcing the few rats it can obtain to sign the following contract:

State of Illinois, County of Cook, ss:

I, ..., being duly sworn, depose and say: That if the New Voice Company will give me a job in their composing room at current wages I will renounce union alliances that I now have, and hold no communication whatever, either in writing or by word of mouth, with any of the members, officers or walking delegates of any union whatsoever employed in or about any printing office in the city of Chicago.

Digitized by Google

That I will give no information, directly or indirectly, to any one henceforth or hereafter concerning the conditions existing in the New Voice Company's composing room or any other department of their factory;

That I will use no influence whatsoever to get any of their composing room employes into the typographical union;

That any information coming to me from any source whatsoever that will be useful to said New Voice Company I will divulge to them at once.

..... (Seal.)

Signed and sworn to before me this .... day of September, A. D. 1905.

It may be well to state that the man who wrote the editorial quoted has been discharged.

Another Lie Nailed.

In view of the reports that are being circulated by the United Typothetæ of America in regard to San Francisco, the following statement by President French, of San Francisco Typographical Union, published in the Labor Clarion of that city, may be interesting:

As illustrating the desperate plight of the typothetæ and the tactics its officials are resorting to, advices from Philadelphia state that typothetæ officials there are asserting that "twenty good-sized offices in San Francisco have gone back to the nine-hour day." Of course this is unqualifiedly false. Not only have none of the eight-hour employers broken faith with the unions, but within the last two weeks two of the few non-union typothetæ offices have been unionized. As a matter of fact there are but two nine-hour printing offices in San Francisco of any consequence whatever, and both of these are badly crippled, finding it impossible to secure and retain competent workmen. The number of union printing offices in San Francisco today is much larger than at any time in the history of the union, and the membership of the organization has correspondingly increased.

The executive council of the International Typographical Union has submitted to the membership a proposition to levy a per capita assessment of 50 cents a week to carry on the eight-hour fight, and the local union has endorsed the proposition by a vote of nearly 5 to 1. In addition to this, Typographical Union No. 21, at its regular meeting last Sunday, by a practically unanimous vote, tendered the International Union the entire amount standing to the credit of its eight-hour fund—over $2,700. The action of the union was wired to the International officials, who have gratefully accepted this generous contribution to the printers' war chest.

What's the Matter With the Printing Trade?

The employing printers, and the typothetæ in particular, level their great guns at the employes in the printing trade and blame them for the condition the trade is reduced to. "The exactions of unionism," the lack of faithful workmen, etc., etc., are given as reasons for loss of profit. But here is a little catechism from The Drop of Ink, a monthly sheet published in Chicago, that throws the brilliant light of truth on the conditions created by employing printers:

Q. What ails the printing business?

A. Low prices.

Q. Who makes low prices?

A. The printer.

Q. What would make the printing business better?

A. Higher prices.

Q. Who should make higher prices?

A. The printer.

Q. Well, if higher prices would make the printing business better, why don't the printer ask for better prices?

A. He is afraid to.

Q. What makes him afraid to?

A. He is afraid to ask better prices for fear he wouldn't get the job.

Q. Well, if it had to be printed and he lost a job because of higher prices, who would print it?

A. Some other printer.

Q. Why don't the other printer raise his prices?

A. Because he is afraid the other printer won't raise his prices.

Q. What's the matter with printers, are they afraid of each other?

A. Yes, that's it; they pretend to be friendly with one another, but just as soon as an opportunity occurs they go after each other's customers.

Q. Will they ever get wise and remedy this condition of affairs?

A. O yes—after they get tired of losing money.

If the typothetæ and the employing printers would do their plain duty in regulating competition, instead of sitting up nights studying how to force their workmen to work longer hours and for less money than conditions and prices warrant, they would be in better business and in better financial shape.

A MONSTER anti-injunction meeting was held in Chicago the other day. The drastic order of Judge Holdom against No. 16 has proved to be the all but last straw. Correspondent Knott, in his Chicago letter in this issue of THE JOURNAL, gives an interesting account of the meeting.

Digitized by Google

Are You Registered in the Pedigree Book?

Progress, a real labor paper of Buffalo, N. Y., prints a copy of the blank that the manufacturers' association of that city requires the "free and independent" to fill out and sign in order to be granted the gracious privilege of obtaining employment. Following are the questions contained in the manufacturers' catechism:

Name? .....
Where do you live?.....
Are you married?.....
How many children have you?.....
What was your father's name?.....
Where were you born?.....
Where were you last employed?.....
In what capacity?.....
What wages did you receive?.....
State the names and addresses of the employers with whom you have been during the past five years, and the reason for leaving their service.
.....
What church do you attend?.....
What is the pastor's name?.....
Give a list of any references you may have.....
Do you belong to any trades union?.....
Have you ever held office therein?.....
Have you ever heen out on strike?.....
Were you active therein?.....
Do you drink or smoke?.....

That's "individual liberty" with a vengeance.

Good Advice to the Country Printer.

The following is a recent editorial from the Hunterdon County (N. J.) Democrat. It contains some wholesome advice to the country printer, and those who have been enticed from their jobs in the country to act as strikebreakers stand ready to verify the statements contained herein:

The typothetæ, or an organization of employing printers, are flooding the small towns with letters to the printers employed in the country offices, offering them big wages if they will sign a contract to come to New York on January 1 to take the place of the printers who will go on a strike in that city on January 1.

This letter will unsettle many a man, and his family will be dragged to the city to live in some thickly settled part of the tenement district, where he can watch his children growing pale and delicate, breathing about the meanest air that can be found in this great land of the free. When he again turns his face toward his old home, where the hills and the valleys have turned green and the flowers have once more bloomed forth, it may be to bring one of his children, who has succumbed to the fevers and pestilence of the bad sanitary surroundings, back to the old home to lay it away among the beautiful surroundings of its youth.

The fact that the typothetæ, which organization of employing printers are thus willing to resort to the contemptible act of unsettling the pleasant conditions of the country employing printer by coaxing his help away from him by personal solicitation, proves to our mind that the compositors have ground and reason for their typographical unions, and in their fight against such people they have our entire sympathy. The members of the typothetæ would not, and could not, carry out the glittering prospects which their letters to the country typesetters promise. That they will attract many men, who hold good positions that they can fill in the country office, to the city office, where they will be lost in the different character of the work, is sure. That many will be bettered in their condition we doubt.

A Vain Quest.

Secretary Macintyre, of the United Typothetæ of America, has so often made the statement that the eight-hour contracts that are constantly being signed were "provisional" contracts—that is, that they conceded the shorter workday in case it was universally established—and he has so often been called upon to make good his statement, that he is now engaged in an investigation. He is sending confidential letters to the different employers in eight-hour towns, asking them to forward him copies of the contracts signed. THE JOURNAL hopes the employers in these cities will comply with the gentleman's request. If he wants to be shown—show him.

"A Word To the Wise."

We present a copy of the letter with which the Minneapolis typothetæ is flooding the west:

DEAR SIR—We desire to get in touch with you regarding a position as job compositor, and while we say we will pay you $18, we wish to also assure you that if you are worth more than the scale, you will have no trouble in getting full value for your services.

You say you wish a position in a country weekly. Minneapolis is quite a city and has all the advantages that any city has so far as labor is concerned. Still it is not a large city and for a 5-cent fare one can easily have all the advantages of a country life. The advantages of both city and country meet in the metropolis of the northwest.

You will have a splendid chance for rapid advancement if you come at once. We can not say what the conditions will be later. If you can not possibly come Monday, write us, and we will endeavor to hold a position open for you. Remember that your rapid advancement will depend upon your being on the ground here immediately as well as upon your own ability. We are not having any trouble with ex-employes, and we do not expect any. We will guarantee all competent job compositors, stonemen, makeup men, etc., permanent positions in our shops. Would like to see you here on Monday morning. Come direct to this office, and ask no questions of any one on the way. On no account tell any one you are a printer. A word to the wise is sufficient. Open shop, fair play, and a square deal.

Digitized by Google

Very truly yours,
GEORGE W. WRAY,
For Minneapolis Typothetæ.

Don't even make a noise like a printer.

Others Thankful.

The San Francisco Labor Clarion, in the course of a lengthy article reviewing Mr. Macintyre's hysterical "explanations" of his utter rout in San Francisco, says:

Mr. Macintyre abused both public and press for opposing any change in existing conditions, and the reporters were fearful of his anger (?). To one newspaper man, in the presence of witnesses, he thanked God he wasn't an American. Others are thankful besides Mr. Macintyre.

The Typothetæ Outpointed.

The typothetæ met decisive defeat at the hands of Orange Typographical Union when it attempted to carry out its scheme of establishing a training school for printers in the local high school. The Newark News of November 15 said:

Backed by the endorsement of prominent citizens, former School Commissioner Isaac H. Blanchard, of Orange, attended the meeting of the board of education of that place last night and advocated the installation of a printing plant to be used by the boys in the junior and senior classes of the high school. Vigorous objections developed, however, and a formal protest was entered by Thomas Nihill, president of the typographical union of Orange, who maintained that the movement was a scheme of the master printers to break the power of unionized journeymen by substituting boys for men in times of controversy. There was a heated argument between Mr. Blanchard and representatives of the local printers' union for more than an hour and then the whole matter was laid on the table until January 1, 1906, by a vote of 8 to 4.

Wonder why Mr. Blanchard, a New York typothetan and open shop advocate, is so interested in such an odd project just at the present time? Can it be possible that he is trying to make strikebreakers out of the high school students, as set forth in the above clipping. Such pure-minded patriots as this gentleman are likely to resort to anything in order to advance the welfare of the "free and independent."

The Business Man's Closed Shop.

At a meeting of hardware jobbers and manufacturers from all over the United States, T. W. Williams, vice-president of the Bissell Carpet Sweeper Company, among other things said:

I want to point out a significant virtue of an honest system of price maintenance, namely; that while protecting and conserving the best interests of the manufacturer, the jobber and the retailer, it reaches out and fully protects the consumer by insuring to the purchaser a high standard of quality in the article and a reasonable price. On the contrary, price cutting is a species of commercial debauchery that rests upon the relentless doctrine of the survival of the fittest; upon the narrow, cold-blooded principle that merchandising is a sort of commercial warfare; that "all's fair in war" and "the devil take the hindermost." Price cutting lowers the commercial standing of the manufacturer, jobber, or retailer who practices it, destroys profit, breeds distrust, fosters prevarication, and finally robs the consumer by debasing the quality of the commodities upon which prices are cut, if not actually driving many of them from the market.

The Civic Federation Review asks if any union leader could make a stronger argument in favor of the closed shop.

THE typothetæ bulletin announcing the arrival of the rats from England was printed in bold-face type and read as follows:

WINNIPEG, CANADA.

"The fat is in the fire so far as the union is concerned; fifty-one men arrived from England today to take the strikers' places. HAVE NOW MORE HELP THAN WE NEED."

Wait until the Englishmen get their bearings, Mr. Macintyre.

JUDGE HOLDOM was a guest of the citizens' industrial alliance at its recent meeting in St. Louis and delivered an address. "Birds of a feather," etc.

THE next time a member asks you what was done at the meeting, tell him to come up to the next one and hear the minutes read.

Digitized by Google

What We Are Doing

More Complete Victories.

Since the last issue of THE JOURNAL the following unions have gained complete victories, having signed eight-hour contracts with the book and job employers:

14, Harrisburg, Pa.
25, Baton Rouge, La.
93, Macon, Ga.
132, Camden, N. J.
137, Johnstown, Pa.
141, Williamsport, Pa.
185, Bradford, Pa.
269, Peekskill, N. Y.
287, Frankfort, Ind.
290, Hamilton, Ohio.
299, Tampa, Fla.
314, Meriden, Conn.
328, Streator, Ill.
374, Du Bois, Pa.
400, Sunbury, Pa.
411, Galt, Ont.
463, Middletown, N. Y.
498, Lead, S. D.
628, Somerville, N. J.
642, Hackensack, N. J.
650, Long Beach-San Pedro, Cal.
3, St. Louis German-American.
15, Evansville German-American.

The Eight-Hour Movement.

From every standpoint the progress of the eight-hour movement of the International Typographical Union during the past month has been satisfactory in the extreme. As days go by and the struck shops continue to show their inability to secure real printers, it begins to look as if the United Typothetæ of America, the National Association of Manufacturers et al., had at last met their match. They have unlimited capital at their command—that has never been denied—but we repeat, as the days go by, and the first of January, 1906, draws near, a feeling of satisfaction and confidence is spreading over the entire jurisdiction, engendered by the inability of the unfair employers to secure that necessary adjunct to the printing business—printers. Members in the various towns where strikes are in progress know what class of men the typothetæ has secured. It is unreasonable to believe that these unfair shops honestly intend to continue in business indefinitely with these incompetents in their composing rooms. They do not. What they do expect is that they will, in a short while, starve us out, and that we will be willing to go back to work in open shops at whatever wages it pleases them to pay. On our part it is a fight for eight hours, it is true, but back of that let us not forget that it is a fight for the very life of our union. They can't beat us if we remain true to our obligation.

The meeting of presidents at headquarters last month developed the fact that in every instance where a strike was on the local union had complete control of the situation. Gradually the lines are tightening on the struck shops. Gradually work is leaving them for the fair shops. In a number of instances it appears that the bankruptcy court is looming up on the horizon for employers who have tried the experiment of running a printing office without printers.

The result of the referendum vote on the 50-cent assessment proposition demonstrates that the membership of the International Typographical Union will pay strike benefits in this fight as long as the unfair employers want to keep it up. Without wishing to appear boastful, we would respectfully suggest that they put that in their pipe and smoke it.

In the city of Philadelphia there are now seventeen offices affected by the lockout. There are 225 members on the strike roll. Among these are the apprentices and non-union men who walked out. The force of one non-union office (seven men) refused to handle work from struck offices, and walked out in a body. No. 2 has good control of the situation and is confident of winning. "The Stone Wall" (Detroit) is standing without a scratch. The other cities affected, large and small, are maintaining a solid front, and strike rolls are being reduced materially by reason of men being employed in fair shops, which are now enjoying an era of unprecedented prosperity. The employing book and job printers at Richmond, Va., secured an injunction against the local union, but upon application of the union the injunction was dissolved in toto. Since the last JOURNAL went to press Cleveland, Ohio;

Digitized by Google

Little Rock, Ark.; Akron, Ohio, and Wilmington, Del., have been added to the list of towns on strike.

As THE JOURNAL goes to press the following telegram was received from President McCormick, of New York Union No. 6:

NEW YORK, November 24, 1905.

James M. Lynch, Indianapolis, Ind.:

Four non-union men put to work this morning by Butterick Publishing Company. Open-shop notices posted. One hundred men quit work. Electrotypers, stereotypers, and photo-engravers also quit. Nine-hour-day notice posted in these departments. Letter follows. P. H. MCCORMICK.

As the International eight-hour committee is issuing bulletins at intervals, describing the progress of the fight, and as THE JOURNAL is not in the hands of the membership until about ten days from the time it goes to press, it is not thought advisable to print a detailed review of the situation in the cities where strikes are in progress, as conditions are likely to be changed materially in the interim.

Below is given a complete list of the cities that have gained the eight-hour day to date (November 25). The cities appearing in bold face type have secured the shorter workday since the last issue of THE JOURNAL. The total is 280.

4, Albany, N. Y.
5, Columbus, Ohio.
11, Memphis, Tenn.
14, Harrisburg, Pa.
19, Elmira, N. Y.
21, San Francisco, Cal.
22, Dubuque, Iowa.
25, Baton Rouge, La.
28, Galveston, Texas.
36, Oakland, Cal.
41, Augusta, Ga.
44, Rome, N. Y.
49, Denver, Colo.
50, Saginaw, Mich.
51, Lawrence, Mass.
52, Troy, N. Y.
54, Raleigh, N. C.
58, Portland, Ore.
62, Utica, N. Y.
64, Lafayette, Ind.
65, Virginia City, Nev.
67, Lockport, N. Y.
69, Newark, Ohio.
73, Ottumwa, Iowa.
74, Belleville, Ill.
75, Burlington, Iowa.
76, Terre Haute, Ind.
79, Wheeling, W. Va.
81, Bay City, Mich.
82, Colorado Springs, Colo.
83, New York Hebrew.
86, Reading, Pa.
87, Houston, Texas.
93, Macon, Ga.
95, Helena, Mont.
96, Glens Falls, N. Y.
97, Peru, Ind.
100, Norwich, Conn.
102, Ottawa, Ont.
104, Birmingham, Ala.
105, Goldfield, Nev.
108, Hagerstown, Md.
110, Union Hill, N. Y.
112, Scranton, Pa.
115, Salt Lake, Utah.
121, Topeka, Kan.
124, Bloomington, Ill.
125, Durham, N. C.
126, Butte, Mont.
129, Hamilton, Ont.
131, New York Bohemian.
132, Camden, N. J.
134, Paducah, Ky.
137, Johnstown, Pa.
138, Austin, Texas.
141, Williamsport, Pa.
142, Olympia, Wash.
143, Danbury, Conn.
144, Fresno, Cal.
146, Charleston, W. Va.
147, Ashland, Wis.
149, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.
150, Elizabeth, N. J.
151, Oil City, Pa.
158, Springfield, Mo.
161, Fall River, Mass.
163, Superior, Wis.
164, Kewanee, Ill.
167, Schenectady, N. Y.
168, Muskegon, Mich.
170, Tacoma, Wash.
175, Pueblo, Colo.
177, Springfield, Ill.
179, Leadville, Colo.
180, Sioux City, Iowa.
184, Cheyenne, Wyo.
185, Bradford, Pa.
188, Waco, Texas.
193, Spokane, Wash.
194, Joliet, Ill.
195, Paterson, N. J.
198, Fort Worth, Texas.
199, Zanesville, Ohio.
200, Youngstown, Ohio.
201, Victoria, B. C.
202, Seattle, Wash.
205, Jamestown, N. Y.
207, Eureka, Cal.
210, Salem, Ore.
211, Oshkosh, Wis.
213, Rockford, Ill.
214, Pendleton, Ore.
217, Murphysboro, Ill.
219, Canton, Ohio.
221, San Diego, Cal.
225, McKeesport, Pa.
226, Vancouver, B. C.
227, Cripple Creek, Colo.
229, Crawfordsville, Ind.
230, Danville, Ill.
231, San Jose, Cal.
232, Binghamton, N. Y.
235, Rahway, N. J.
236, Ogden, Utah.
237, Sandusky, Ohio.
239, Carbondale, Pa.
242, York, Pa.
243, Hutchinson, Kan.
251, Muscatine, Iowa.
255, Anaconda, Mont.
256, Great Falls, Mont.
257, Lisbon, Ohio.
260, Findlay, Ohio.
262, Uniontown, Pa.
265, Ottawa, Ill.
267, Frankfort, Ky.
269, Peekskill, N. Y.
270, New Castle, Pa.
271, Boise, Idaho.
272, Chicago Norwegian-Danish.
274, Amsterdam, N. Y.
275, Victor, Colo.
277, Missoula, Mont.
280, Marietta, Ohio.
282, Sterling, Ill.
285, Ansonia, Conn.
286, Marion, Ind.
287, Frankfort, Ind.
289, Titusville, Pa.
290, Hamilton, Ohio.
292, Grand Junction, Col.
293, Pensacola, Fla.
294, Waukegan, Ill.
299, Tampa, Fla.
301, Richmond, Ind.
303, Cleburne, Texas.
304, Albuquerque, N. M.
305, Newburgh, N. Y.
306, Alton, Ill.
307, New Brunswick, N. J.
311, Grand Forks, N. D.
314, Meriden, Conn.
315, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.
316, North Adams, Mass.
318, East Liverpool, Ohio.
320, Pottsville, Pa.
321, Connellsville, Pa.
322, Kingston, N. Y.
323, Hoboken, N. J.
324, Racine, Wis.
328, Streator, Ill.
330, Chicago Bohemian.
332, Muncie, Ind.
334, Clinton, Iowa.
335, Rossland, B. C.
344, Green Bay, Wis.
345, Olean, N. Y.
347, Wabash, Ind.
348, Girard, Kan.
351, Sharon, Pa.
352, Phœnix, Ariz.
353, Newport News, Va.
355, Bellingham, Wash.
356, Jacksonville, Ill.
358, Greenwood, B. C.
362, Traverse City, Mich.
364, Coshocton, Ohio.
369, Taylorville, Ill.
370, El Paso, Texas.
373, Durango, Colo.
374, Du Bois, Pa.
378, Brantford, Ont.
379, Ithaca, N. Y.
381, Boone, Iowa.
387, Mount Vernon, N. Y.
388, Walla Walla, Wash.
390, Pontiac, Ill.
391, Guelph, Ont.
392, Pittston, Pa.
395, Vincennes, Ind.
396, Canandaigua, N. Y.
400, Sunbury, Pa.
401, Hazleton, Pa.
407, Linton, Ind.
410, Everett, Wash.
411, Galt, Ont.
414, Marshalltown, Iowa.
415, Butler, Pa.
416, St. Catherines, Ont.

Digitized by Google

419, Anniston, Ala.
422, Mayaquez, P. R.
425, Canon City, Colo.
433, Dover, N. J.
434, Trinidad, Colo.
439, Bakersfield, Cal.
441, Salem, Ohio.
449, Calgary, Alberta.
450, Columbus, Ind.
453, Norwich, N. Y.
456, Washington, Pa.
461, Cairo, Ill.
463, Middleton, N. Y.
465, Tucson, Ariz.
468, Yonkers, N. Y.
470, Pittsburg, Kan.
473, Moberly, Mo.
476, New York Slavonic.
479, Centralia, Ill.
480, Tiffin-Fostoria, Ohio.
481, Iola, Kan.
489, Livingston, Mont.
491, Pocatello, Idaho.
492, Bellaire, Ohio.
493, Henderson, Ky.
498, Lead, S. D.
499, Deposit, N. Y.
505, Clinton, Ill.
509, Greenville, Texas.
511, Batavia, N. Y.
512, Pontiac, Mich.
513, De Soto, Mo.
514, Niles, Mich.
515, Iowa City, Iowa.
522, Morristown, N. J.
523, Tarrytown, N. Y.
527, Oelwein, Iowa.
542, Shelbyville, Ind.
550, Windsor, Ont.
555, Dunkirk, N. Y.
556, Wilmington, N. C.
566, Salida, Cal.
568, Lake Charles, La.
571, Chickasha, Ind. Ter.
573, Aberdeen, Wash.
576, San Luis Obispo, Cal.
578, Coffeyville, Kan.
581, Fort Madison, Iowa.
582, Nome, Alaska.
590, Park City, Utah.
591, Pekin, Ill.
593, Athens, Ga.
596, Houghton, Mich.
599, Herrin, Ill.
603, Fort Dodge, Iowa.
615, Manistee, Mich.
616, Tonopah, Nev.
617, Wallace, Idaho.
625, Salisbury, N. C.
626, Manila, P. I.
628, Somerville, N. J.
638, Stroudsburg, Pa.
640, Berlin, N. H.
641, Ennis, Texas.
642, Hackensack, N. J.
643, Waterville, Maine.
650, Long Beach-San Pedro, Cal.
653, Jamestown, N. D.
658, Perth Amboy, N. J.

MAILERS

3, St. Louis, Mo.
5, Toronto, Ont.

GERMAN-AMERICAN.

1, Philadelphia, Pa.
2, Cincinnati, Ohio.
3, St. Louis, Mo.
4, Buffalo, N. Y.
5, Rochester, N. Y.
6, Cleveland, Ohio.
7, New York, N. Y.
8, Newark, N. J.
9, Chicago, Ill.
11, Baltimore, Md.
12, Louisville, Ky.
13, St. Paul-Minneapolis, Minn.
14, Indianapolis, Ind.
15, Evansville, Ind.
16, Pittsburg, Pa.
18, Belleville, Ill.
19, Columbus, Ohio.
21, Detroit, Mich.
24, Toledo, Ohio.
25, Wheeling, W. Va.

Following is a list of the cities where strikes exist. Cities where eight-hour agreements have been signed with proprietors employing over seventy-five per cent of the book and job members are indicated by bold face type. Those having secured agreements with proprietors employing fifty per cent of the book and job members are distinguished by stars:

1, Indianapolis, Ind.
2, Philadelphia, Pa.
*3, Cincinnati, Ohio.
8, St. Louis, Mo.
9, Buffalo, N. Y.
15, Rochester, N. Y.
16, Chicago, Ill.
18, Detroit, Mich.
*29, Peoria, Ill.
30, St. Paul, Minn.
39, Grand Rapids, Mich.
40, St. Joseph, Mo.
42, Minneapolis, Minn.
47, New Haven, Conn.
48, Atlanta, Ga.
53, Cleveland, Ohio.
55, Syracuse, N. Y.
59, Quincy, Ill.
60, Roanoke, Va.
63, Toledo, Ohio.
77, Erie, Pa.
*88, Hannibal, Mo.
90, Richmond, Va.
92, Little Rock, Ark.
94, Jersey City, N. J.
*103, Newark, N. J.
117, Springfield, Ohio.
122, Kalamazoo, Mich.
123, Wilmington, Del.
127, Hartford, Conn.
136, Duluth, Minn.
154, Ann Arbor, Mich.
159, New London, Conn.
162, Jacksonville, Fla.
165, Worcester, Mass.
172, San Antonio, Texas.
*173, Dallas, Texas.
182, Akron, Ohio.
187, Wilkes Barre, Pa.
190, Omaha, Neb.
*191, Winnipeg, Man.
216, Springfield, Mass.
218, Sioux Falls, S. D.
220, Columbus, Ga.
233, Niagara Falls, N. Y.
240, Altoona, Pa.
*291, Aurora, Ill.
308, Watertown, N. Y.
310, Lowell, Mass.
338, Charlotte, N. C.
397, Greensboro, N. C.
*503, Stamford, Conn.
510, Lynchburg, Va.
*524, Freeport, Ill.

Miscellaneous.

Secretary Lyon, of Sunbury, Pa., says: "Two of the three offices in this place have signed a two-year eight-hour agreement, to take effect on January 1, 1906, and continue in force until December 31, 1907.

Secretary Ward, of Clarksburg (W. Va.) Union No. 372, says: "No. 372 has signed eight-hour contracts with four out of six offices, in spite of the fact that we have existing nine-hour contracts for 1905."

Secretary Moore, of Norfolk (Va.) Union No. 32, says: "A large number of offices here have signed for the eight-hour day, though no demands will be made on the typothetæ until the existing contracts expire on March 26, 1906."

Walter R. Watkins, of Clarksburg (W. Va.) Union No. 372, says: "Although No. 372 has a contract until January 1, 1906, four offices out of six here have signed for eight hours."

Secretary McCurdy, of Salem (Ohio) Union No. 441, says: "We have made the East Palestine Printing Company, of East Palestine, Ohio, a union office."

Bridgeport (Conn.) Union reports that two more shops have been unionized—the Taft Company and Kimberley's.

In a communication received from Secretary Ferree, Des Moines Typographical Union No. 118, that official says: "The special meeting of No. 118 accomplished the following: Agreement signed by Register-Leader (morning daily) last night, for $3.75 per day, eight hours, for two years, and $4 per day for three years after, making a five years' agreement. The evening dailies here (News and Capital) will sign agreement today for $3.25 per day for two years, and $3.50 per day for three years after, making a five years' contract, eight hours. Our former scale, which expired yesterday, called for $2.85 per day for evening dailies, $3.35 per day for morning dailies."

Digitized by Google

Condemns Citizens' Alliance Boycott.

William Marion Reedy, in an article on "Citizens' Alliance Intimidation," in the St. Louis Mirror, discusses the particular brand of boycott being dispensed by the citizens' alliance. Mr. Reedy fails to see any difference between the boycott as practiced by union men and the boycott as practiced by the opponents of union men. He says:

If I have a strike on my hands and the citizens' alliance helps me out to the extent of seeing that my contracts are filled until the strike has been defeated, that is a fairly reasonable proposition of mutual help. But if I accede to the demands of a union and the other men in my business do not, and then the citizens' alliance starts in to see that I do not get any contracts to fill; if it declares that I shall lose such business as it can divert from me, simply because I have given to my employes what they ought to have or what I can't well refuse, that is a form of coercion, intimidation, boycotting, picketing and "reception by the entertainment committee" fully as bad as any that can be applied to me by any band of strikers that ever was gotten together. If the citizens' alliance tries to stop my advertising patronage because I approve of a certain brand of economic or social reform, or because I say that this or that particular strike ought to win, I fail to see wherein its action is any more decent and lawful than would be the course of strikers in slugging the newsboys who sell my paper on the streets, tearing up the papers on newsstands, or blowing up my office with dynamite. The citizens' alliance is as lawless as any union when it acts so or when its organs advise such action.

As a matter of fact, these citizens' alliances, industrial associations and the like are and have been for some time boycotting members of their organization—as well as blacklisting non-members—who have acceded to the request of the Typographical Union for an eight-hour day. By such acts these organizations are sowing the wind, and they will reap the whirlwind.

A FEW months ago C. W. Post, in one of his characteristic proclamations of freedom, said: "I am an open advocate of high wages and an eight-hour day, and will support peaceful methods which do not oppress others in bringing them about." So far we have not seen any account of C. W. protesting against the manufacturers' warfare on the eight-hour aspirations of the typographers. The printers are admittedly pursuing peaceful methods. It's up to Post to come to our support.

THE VOTE ON THE PROPOSITIONS.

The result of the referendum vote on the four propositions submitted to the membership will be found in the tabulated statement printed in this number of THE JOURNAL. All the propositions were carried with the exception of the third—to increase the salaries of the president and secretary-treasurer. The majority against this proposition was 2,392. The total number of unions entitled to vote was 706; total number voting, 455. The unions omitted from the table either failed to vote on the propositions, or forwarded their returns too late to be included in the official count. Each proposition, with the vote thereon, is given below:

FIRST PROPOSITION—Amend section 4, article i, of the constitution, so as to read as follows:

Section 4. The distinctive names of the several subordinate branches shall be: Of the printers, Typographical Union; OF THE MAILERS, MAILERS' UNION; OF THE WRITERS, NEWSPAPER WRITERS' UNION; OF THE TYPEFOUNDERS, TYPEFOUNDERS' UNION; AND OF ALL OTHER ALLIED CRAFTS OR TRADES, IF SUCH THERE BE, THE DISTINCTIVE NAME OF EACH BRANCH.

Result of Vote—For, 20,330; against, 1,600; majority for, 18,730.

SECOND PROPOSITION—Amend section 7, article vi, of the constitution, to read as follows:

Section 7. It shall be the duty of the agent, in the event of the Union Printers' Home corporation neglecting or refusing to comply with the provisions of the deed under which the land on which the Home is situated was transferred, or disobeying any of the orders of the International Typographical Union, to enter upon and take full possession of the property as the custodian of the International Typographical Union: PROVIDED, THAT IT SHALL BE THE DUTY OF THE AGENT TO ATTEND AT LEAST ONE MEETING OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES DURING HIS TERM OF OFFICE.

Result of Vote—For, 20,366; against, 1,740; majority for, 18,626.

THIRD PROPOSITION—Amend section 1, article viii, of the constitution—"Salaries and Expenses"—as follows:

Section 1. The salary of * * *
For the president, $2,100 per annum * * *
Secretary-Treasurer, $2,100 per annum.

Result of Vote—For, 9,970; against, 12,362; majority against, 2,392.

FOURTH PROPOSITION—Amend section 3, article viii, of the constitution to read as follows:

Section 3. When any officer or member is required to perform service away from his home, he shall be allowed, in addition to the amounts set forth above, first-class railroad fare by the shortest route to and from his destination, and ACTUAL HOTEL EXPENSES: PROVIDED, THAT AN ITEMIZED BILL SHALL IN ALL CASES BE RENDERED.

Result of Vote—For, 13,264; against, 8,866; majority for, 4,398.

TOO LATE FOR OFFICIAL COUNT.

Returns were received from the following unions too late to be included in the official count: Nos. 82, 384, 414, 651.

Digitized by Google

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL CANVASSING BOARD.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., November 2, 1905.

TO THE MEMBERS OF SUBORDINATE UNIONS—The committee appointed to canvass the vote on the propositions submitted to the membership under date of September 6, 1905, begs leave to present the following as a true exhibit of the returns received within the time prescribed by law:

Number and Name of Union	First Proposition		Second Proposition		Third Proposition		Fourth Proposition
	For	Against	For	Against	For	Against	For	Against
1, Indianapolis, Ind	171	8	177	11	63	126	128	62
2, Philadelphia, Pa	323	26	324	26	118	237	201	156
3, Cincinnati, Ohio	218	12	182	48	96	140	135	100
4, Albany, N. Y	162	7	165	7	77	84	99	70
5, Columbus, Ohio	94	1	90	5	29	66	54	40
6, New York, N. Y	3,254	331	3,311	291	1,555	2,224	1,979	1,714
7, Pittsburg, Pa	147	17	142	22	69	96	109	55
8, St. Louis, Mo	539	25	540	18	305	254	338	227
10, Louisville, Ky	75	5	80	3	59	25	53	25
11, Memphis, Tenn	90	....	86	2	65	25	59	20
12, Baltimore, Md	255	14	254	14	129	136	180	86
13, Boston, Mass	610	44	621	43	244	425	392	273
14, Harrisburg, Pa	43	6	42	7	23	28	33	18
15, Rochester, N. Y	113	1	112	2	79	35	97	17
16, Chicago, Ill	1,480	81	1,489	91	778	792	1,048	528
17, New Orleans, La	130	4	122	10	62	72	101	33
18, Detroit, Mich	243	14	251	9	125	132	185	72
19, Elmira, N. Y	51	....	51	1	12	41	7	45
20, Nashville, Tenn	105	10	109	4	55	64	71	44
21, San Francisco, Cal	305	14	274	54	143	187	167	161
22, Dubuque, Iowa	34	1	35	....	11	23	32	3
23, Milwaukee, Wis	140	18	148	11	52	106	88	72
25, Baton Rouge, La	7	....	7	....	3	5	7	1
27, Mobile, Ala	33	4	35	2	18	19	24	13
28, Galveston, Texas	50	2	49	2	36	15	42	10
29, Peoria, Ill	71	....	70	....	47	24	51	20
30, St. Paul, Minn	221	8	219	13	102	132	169	63
31, Fond du Lac, Wis	10	....	9	....	4	6	5	5
32, Norfolk, Va	52	10	60	8	7	63	38	32
33, Providence, R. I	82	5	84	3	47	44	61	28
35, Evansville, Ind	21	....	20	....	18	3	20	1
36, Oakland, Cal	65	1	65	2	46	25	44	23
38, Haverhill Mass	9	5	9	5	1	13	7	7
39, Grand Rapids, Mich	96	7	96	7	88	20	87	16
40, St. Joseph Mo	44	2	46	....	31	15	41	5
41, Augusta, Ga	32	....	32	....	29	3	32	....
42, Minneapolis, Minn	204	18	201	20	164	105	99	75
46, Sacramento, Cal	28	2	28	3	24	7	21	10
47, New Haven, Conn	48	1	48	....	49	....	24	22
48, Atlanta, Ga	105	11	106	12	65	52	76	43
49, Denver, Colo	212	20	143	91	71	163	101	131
50, Saginaw, Mich	32	....	41	....	32	9	37	13
52, Troy, N. Y	70	3	70	3	40	33	40	33
53, Cleveland, Ohio	326	15	315	27	140	204	213	127
54, Raleigh, N. C	38	1	34	6	4	36	15	25
55, Syracuse, N. Y	117	1	116	2	85	34	96	22
56, Stockton, Cal	26	....	26	....	19	7	23	3
57, Dayton, Ohio	68	....	68	....	7	61	48	20
58, Portland, Ore	77	....	79	....	41	37	55	23
60, Roanoke, Va	13	2	9	6	4	11	10	5
61, Cambridge, Mass	37	....	37	....	6	29	9	27
62, Utica, N. Y	87	2	86	3	41	47	61	28
66, Portland, Me	48	6	49	6	31	22	33	23
70, Lancaster, Pa	26	2	26	3	....	29	4	25
71, Trenton, N. J	58	1	58	1	18	41	37	22
72, Lansing, Mich	41	2	42	1	5	39	18	25
73, Ottumwa, Iowa	10	5	15	....	4	11	14	1
74, Belleville, Ill	4	....	4	....	2	2	2	2
75, Burlington, Iowa	20	3	22	5	3	24	3	24
76, Terre Haute, Ind	54	1	51	4	34	21	42	13
77, Erie, Pa	31	8	36	3	18	21	24	15
78, Fort Wayne, Ind	33	2	33	....	16	19	25	9
79, Wheeling, W. Va	54	1	48	6	26	28	40	15
80, Kansas City, Mo	170	12	165	17	49	134	72	111
81, Bay City, Mich	20	1	19	2	6	15	8	10
84, San Bernardino, Cal	15	1	15	1	3	13	14	3
86, Reading, Pa	38	8	40	6	4	42	16	32
87, Houston, Texas	59	5	61	3	45	20	49	16
88, Hannibal, Mo	16	....	16	....	11	5	16	....
89, Chattanooga, Tenn	58	3	59	2	41	20	53	8
90, Richmond, Va	63	.	63	1	47	17	53	11
91, Toronto, Ont	425	30	438	20	221	236	320	136
93, Macon, Ga	16	....	15	....	8	8	13	2
95, Helena, Mont	22	....	22	1	15	7	19	4
97, Peru, Ind	14	....	13	1	2	12	6	8
99, Jackson, Mich	20	....	20	....	8	13	18	2
100, Norwich, Conn	18	6	16	8	13	11	16	8
101, Washington, D. C	1,056	190	1,000	257	329	963	468	816
102, Ottawa, Ont	203	27	236	19	109	142	127	125

Digitized by Google

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL CANVASSING BOARD—Continued.

Number and Name of Union	First Proposition		Second Proposition		Third Proposition		Fourth Proposition
	For	Against	For	Against	For	Against	For	Against
103, Newark, N. J.	215	1	212	5	141	79	140	78
107, Rock Island, Ill.	86	7	91	2	35	59	68	26
110, Union Hill, N. J.	20	....	20	....	20	....	20	....
112, Scranton, Pa.	94	17	104	7	66	45	69	42
115, Salt Lake, Utah	55	1	56	....	19	37	22	34
116, Kenosha, Wis.	9	....	9	....	7	1	7	2
117, Springfield, Ohio	50	2	46	6	23	29	35	17
118, Des Moines, Iowa	124	6	123	6	57	71	88	38
119, Jefferson City, Mo.	22	2	21	3	2	22	6	18
121, Topeka, Kan.	78	3	78	3	23	58	59	32
122, Kalamazoo, Mich.	31	1	32	....	5	27	24	8
123, Wilmington, Del.	34	....	34	....	1	33	34	....
124, Bloomington, Ill.	34	1	34	1	23	13	25	11
126, Butte, Mont.	61	1	61	1	51	12	53	10
127, Hartford, Conn.	85	32	93	24	83	33	86	31
128, South Bend, Ind.	37	....	35	....	24	15	32	6
130, Halifax, N. S.	40	20	56	10	63	3	51	15
131, New York Bohemian	....	11	....	11	....	11	....	11
132, Camden, N. J.	18	....	18	....	9	9	13	5
133, London, Ont.	17	....	18	....	4	14	11	7
134, Paducah, Ky.	3	2	3	2	1	4	1	4
135, Oneonta, N. Y.	10	....	10	....	....	9	9	1
136, Duluth, Minn.	38	2	37	3	30	10	31	9
137, Johnstown, Pa.	31	....	30	1	9	22	19	12
138, Austin, Texas	40	....	40	....	28	12	14	26
141, Williamsport, Pa.	35	5	31	9	17	22	36	5
142, Olympia, Wash.	9	....	9	....	8	1	3	6
143, Danbury, Conn.	9	....	9	....	6	3	1	8
145, Montreal, Que.	67	19	44	42	80	2	33	53
148, Wichita, Kan.	15	4	18	1	1	18	7	12
149, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.	19	1	19	1	2	18	8	12
150, Elizabeth, N. J.	47	6	49	6	31	22	33	22
151, Oil City, Pa.	20	....	20	....	10	10	10	10
154, Ann Arbor, Mich.	19	....	19	....	8	11	9	10
155, Shreveport, La.	9	....	9	....	5	4	....	7
158, Springfield, Mo.	23	....	23	....	3	20	21	2
159, New London, Conn.	27	....	27	....	15	13	14	14
161, Fall River, Mass.	33	6	37	2	10	28	16	23
162, Jacksonville, Fla.	41	....	32	9	29	13	28	14
163, Superior, Wis.	14	....	17	1	11	7	11	7
165, Worcester, Mass.	68	....	71	1	24	45	34	35
166, Adrian, Mich.	13	2	13	1	3	12	8	7
167, Schenectady, N. Y.	41	....	41	....	17	24	18	23
168, Muskegon, Mich.	18	....	16	2	10	8	14	4
169, New Albany, Ind.	6	7	5	8	2	11	4	9
170, Tacoma, Wash.	6	....	6	....	2	4	6	....
172, San Antonio, Texas	29	3	29	3	13	19	20	11
174, Los Angeles, Cal.	144	4	143	7	84	70	116	34
175, Pueblo, Colo.	39	2	22	19	17	24	18	23
177, Springfield, Ill.	60	1	61	....	26	35	38	23
180, Sioux City, Iowa	53	1	54	1	17	38	28	27
184, Cheyenne, Wyo.	8	....	8	....	6	2	8	....
185, Bradford, Pa.	21	....	21	....	4	17	12	9
186, Fargo, N. D.	23	....	23	....	15	8	22	1
187, Wilkes Barre, Pa.	28	13	31	10	32	9	29	12
190, Omaha, Neb.	105	2	105	2	43	64	85	22
191, Winnipeg, Man.	149	6	148	8	94	13	111	15
192, Cedar Rapids, Iowa	53	7	64	....	30	30	43	17
193, Spokane, Wash.	68	8	58	21	25	56	49	32
194, Joliet, Ill.	46	3	48	1	17	32	32	17
195, Paterson, N. J.	49	6	50	5	39	16	36	19
196, Logansport, Ind.	22	13	17	18	....	35	11	14
199, Zanesville, Ohio	35	2	34	4	2	36	4	34
200, Youngstown, Ohio	40	....	40	....	21	19	19	21
201, Victoria, B. C.	23	2	21	2	11	13	17	8
202, Seattle, Wash.	108	4	107	4	61	52	79	34
203, Council Bluffs, Iowa	18	2	19	1	11	9	16	4
205, Jamestown, N. Y.	21	3	23	1	8	16	13	11
206, Sedalia, Mo.	14	....	14	....	14	....	14	....
207, Eureka, Cal.	20	....	20	....	4	16	14	6
208, Cambridge, Ohio	18	2	18	2	2	18	5	15
209, Lincoln, Neb.	71	9	72	6	9	72	43	36
210, Salem, Ore.	28	....	28	....	4	24	10	18
211, Oshkosh, Wis.	24	1	21	3	9	16	19	6
212, Pawtucket, R. I.	45	1	46	1	17	31	8	40
213, Rockford, Ill.	28	1	29	1	6	24	20	10
215, Decatur, Ill.	14	5	15	4	6	13	14	5
217, Murphysboro, Ill.	9	....	9	....	1	8	8	1
218, Sioux Falls, S. D.	16	....	16	....	13	3	16	....
219, Canton, Ohio	23	....	23	....	7	16	19	4
220, Columbus, Ga.	12	5	15	2	4	13	8	9
224, Brockton, Mass.	25	1	26	....	3	22	11	14
226, Vancouver, B. C.	39	3	39	2	34	7	32	12
228, Norwood, Mass.	32	2	28	4	4	29	9	24
229, Crawfordsville, Ind.	10	....	10	....	2	8	10	....
230, Danville, Ill.	25	....	25	....	17	8	23	2
232, Binghamton, N. Y.	70	10	79	1	40	40	60	20

Digitized by Google

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL CANVASSING BOARD—Continued.

Number and Name of Union	First Proposition		Second Proposition		Third Proposition		Fourth Proposition
	For	Against	For	Against	For	Against	For	Against
233, Niagara, Falls, N. Y.	22	2	23	....	14	9	15	9
236, Ogden, Utah	21	....	21	....	3	18	12	9
237, Sandusky, Ohio	7	10	7	10	....	17	....	17
238, Steubenville, Ohio	15	....	15	....	15	....	15	....
239, Carbondale, Pa	9	....	9	....	8	1	9	....
240, Altoona, Pa	20	....	20	....	3	17	16	4
242, York, Pa	30	1	31	....	3	28	2	29
243, Hutchison, Kan	12	....	12	....	12	....	12	....
244, Cumberland, Md	15	2	16	1	5	12	9	9
245, Woonsocket, R. I	22	2	25	1	2	24	22	1
246, Winona, Minn	20	....	20	....	2	18	14	6
248, Peterboro, Ont	25	2	27	....	24	4	24	2
250, Beaver Falls, Pa	29	....	29	....	23	6	27	2
251, Muscatine, Iowa	16	....	14	2	4	12	11	5
252, Bridgeport, Conn	30	....	30	....	18	12	24	6
253, Holyoke, Mass	19	1	18	2	1	19	12	8
255, Anaconda, Mont	26	3	29	....	22	7	26	3
256, Great Falls, Mont	17	....	17	....	9	8	13	4
258, Easton, Pa	14	2	15	1	5	11	4	12
259, Waltham, Mass	7	....	7	....	....	7	....	7
260, Findlay, Ohio	20	....	20	....	5	15	11	9
261, New York Italian	21	....	21	....	21	....	21	....
262, Uniontown, Pa	17	....	17	....	....	17	9	8
263, Asheville, N. C	17	....	17	....	10	7	17	....
265, Ottawa, Ill	9	....	9	....	7	2	9	....
268, Gloversville, N. Y	22	1	21	2	10	13	9	14
270, Newcastle, Pa	17	1	17	1	4	17	8	13
271, Boise City, Idaho	18	....	18	....	2	16	3	15
272, Chicago Norwegian-Danish	17	....	17	....	2	15	14	3
276, New Bedford, Mass	12	2	13	1	1	14	5	10
277, Missoula, Mont	17	....	17	....	4	13	2	15
283, Oklahoma City, O. T	33	1	34	....	25	9	21	13
284, Anderson, Ind	22	2	23	1	7	17	7	17
285, Ansonia, Conn	7	....	8	....	7	1	3	5
286, Marion, Ind	27	5	29	4	4	28	18	14
287, Frankfort, Ind	18	....	18	....	....	18	....	18
288, Galesburg, Ill	19	....	19	....	13	6	19	....
290, Hamilton, Ohio	14	2	14	2	11	5	13	3
291, Aurora, Ill	16	....	16	....	7	8	10	5
300, Port Huron, Mich	34	1	30	5	14	21	21	14
301, Richmond, Ind	16	1	17	....	7	10	14	3
302, Quebec, Can	32	....	32	....	30	2	31	1
305, Newburgh, N. Y	35	....	35	....	11	24	11	24
306, Alton, Ill	10	....	10	....	3	7	4	6
307, New Brunswick, N. J	12	2	14	....	7	7	10	4
308, Watertown, N. Y	32	....	32	....	20	12	25	6
311, Grand Forks, N. D	12	....	12	....	7	5	11	1
314, Meriden, Conn	24	2	25	1	13	13	17	9
315, Poughkeepsie, N. Y	34	....	34	....	29	5	34	....
316, North Adams, Mass	16	1	17	1	1	18	7	12
318, East Liverpool, Ohio	13	7	18	2	8	12	11	9
319, Taunton, Mass	10	....	9	....	8	2	9	1
320, Pottsville, Pa	19	1	19	1	2	18	13	6
323, Hoboken, N. J	27	2	29	....	13	16	20	9
324, Racine, Wis	20	1	21	....	20	1	19	2
327, Lincoln, Ill	13	....	13	....	5	9	12	1
328, Streator, Ill	16	2	17	1	6	12	12	5
329, Waterbury, Conn	15	....	15	....	5	10	14	1
330, Chicago Bohemian	43	....	43	....	24	19	23	20
332, Muncie, Ind	30	1	31	....	24	5	27	4
333, Denison, Texas	12	....	12	....	5	7	4	8
334, Clinton, Iowa	12	2	12	2	5	9	10	4
336, Oneida, N. Y	8	2	8	....	....	10	....	9
339, Beaumont, Texas	13	4	15	3	9	9	13	5
342, Canton, Ill	8	....	8	....	2	6	2	6
345, Olean, N.Y	7	1	7	....	5	3	4	4
348, Girard, Kan	8	....	8	....	....	8	1	7
349, Waterloo, Iowa	19	1	19	1	....	20	9	11
350, Joplin, Mo	9	3	10	2	2	10	3	9
352, Phœnix, Ariz	20	....	20	....	20	....	17	3
354, Edwardsville, Ill	17	....	17	....	1	16	....	17
355, Bellingham, Wash	25	....	25	....	10	14	17	8
359, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich	9	....	9	....	3	6	6	3
362, Traverse City, Mich	14	....	14	....	10	4	12	2
365, Nashua, N. H	12	....	12	....	1	11	12	....
367, Globe, Ariz	8	....	8	....	7	1	8	....
368, Litchfield, Ill	5	....	5	....	....	5	5	....
370, El Paso, Texas	20	....	20	....	12	8	17	3
371, Rome, Ga	9	....	9	....	9	....	9	....
377, Atlantic City, N. J	8	5	8	5	3	10	6	7
379, Ithaca, N. Y	37	1	37	1	6	32	16	22
386, Little Falls, N. Y	16	....	16	....	....	16	16	....
387, Mt. Vernon, N. Y	7	....	7	....	5	2	1	6
388, Walla Walla, Wash	9	....	9	....	9	....	10	....
391, Guelph, Ont	9	....	9	....	2	7	9	....
392, Pittston, Pa	5	....	5	....	2	3	5	....
393, Brockville, Ont	14	....	14	....	14	....	14	....

Digitized by Google

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL CANVASSING BOARD—Continued.

Number and Name of Union	First Proposition		Second Proposition		Third Proposition		Fourth Proposition
	For	Against	For	Against	For	Against	For	Against
395, Vincennes, Ind.	9	1	8	2	8	2	8	2
396, Canandaigua, N. Y.	20	....	20	....	20	....	20	....
397, Greensboro, N. C.	17	1	19	....	14	5	18	1
398, Billings, Mont.	5	1	5	1	....	6	2	4
399, Plainfield, N. J.	18	....	18	....	1	17	18	....
402, Barre, Vt.	11	....	11	....	11	....	11	....
403, Tulsa, I. T.	12	....	9	....	1	10	4	8
406, Mason City, Iowa	9	....	9	....	3	6	9	....
407, Linton, Ind.	....	6	....	6	....	6	....	6
410, Everett, Wash.	19	....	19	....	19	....	19	....
411, Galt, Ont.	9	....	9	....	9	....	9	....
412, Kokomo, Ind.	16	1	17	....	4	13	13	4
416, St. Catharines, Ont.	11	....	11	....	3	9	10	1
424, Orange, N. J.	26	8	30	4	15	20	14	21
426, Bristol, Tenn.	11	....	11	....	4	6	10	....
429, Battle Creek, Mich.	14	....	14	....	1	13	3	11
433, Dover, N. J.	12	....	12	....	....	12	12	....
439, Bakersfield, Cal.	16	....	16	....	10	6	16	....
441, Salem, Ohio	18	1	19	....	10	9	12	7
442, LaSalle and Peru, Ill.	8	....	7	1	7	1	8	....
444, Champaign and Urbana, Ill.	15	2	17	....	....	17	16	1
448, La Crosse, Wis.	37	....	35	....	15	21	22	14
449, Calgary, Alberta, N. W. T.	26	....	26	....	13	13	25	1
450, Columbus, Ind.	8	2	10	....	1	9	6	4
455, Owosso and Corunna, Mich.	8	....	8	....	1	7	6	2
456, Washington, Pa.	10	....	9	1	5	5	2	8
463, Middletown, N. Y.	15	2	16	1	4	12	4	12
465, Tucson, Ariz.	7	....	7	....	5	2	7	....
466, West Chester, Pa.	15	....	15	....	4	11	13	2
467, Dawson, Y. T.	7	....	7	....	7	....	7	....
468, Yonkers, N. Y.	10	....	10	....	10	....	....	10
470, Pittsburg, Kan.	10	....	11	....	1	10	9	2
472, Palestine, Texas	9	....	9	....	....	9	....	9
474, Ashtabula, Ohio	10	....	10	....	....	10	....	10
476, New York Slavonic	8	....	8	....	....	8	1	7
479, Centralia, Ill.	8	....	8	....	8	....	8	....
483, Portsmouth, N. H.	6	....	7	1	2	2	3	1
484, Muskogee, I. T.	20	....	20	....	8	12	13	7
491, Pocatello, Idaho	9	....	9	....	....	9	9	....
494, Abeline, Texas	6	....	6	....	2	3	6	....
497, Alliance, Ohio	8	....	8	....	....	8	....	8
503, Stamford, Conn.	11	....	11	....	11	....	11	....
511, Batavia, N. Y.	13	4	16	2	10	8	7	11
512, Pontiac, Mich.	15	....	15	....	10	5	13	2
514, Niles, Mich.	7	....	7	....	7	....	7	....
515, Iowa City, Iowa	18	3	19	2	14	7	17	4
516, Norwalk, Ohio	13	....	13	....	1	12	5	8
521, Palo Alto, Cal.	10	....	10	....	10	....	10	....
523, Tarrytown-Ossining, N. Y.	12	....	12	....	12	....	12	....
524, Freeport, Ill.	19	4	20	3	14	9	16	7
533, Huntington, W. Va.	14	....	14	....	12	2	5	9
534, Allentown, Pa.	8	....	8	....	....	8	4	4
538, Washington, Ind.	10	....	10	....	3	7	1	9
548, Lancaster, Ohio	13	....	13	....	1	12	13	....
563, Harrisburg, Ill.	7	....	7	....	4	3	4	3
568, Lake Charles, La.	15	1	17	....	11	5	11	6
573, Aberdeen, Wash.	5	....	5	....	2	3	3	2
576, San Luis Obispo, Cal.	6	....	6	....	....	6	6	....
581, Fort Madison, Iowa	7	....	7	....	7	....	7	....
583, Pasadena, Cal.	16	....	14	....	4	9	5	7
589, Santa Cruz, Cal.	17	....	17	....	....	17	1	16
595, Athens, Ga.	10	1	11	....	4	7	10	1
601, Grass Valley, Cal.	10	....	10	....	1	9	7	3
603, Fort Dodge, Iowa	14	3	12	7	....	19	4	15
605, Mitchell, S. D.	17	....	17	....	....	15	12	3
610, Columbia, Pa.	10	....	10	....	....	10	10	....
612, Appleton, Neenah & Menasha, Wis.	18	....	18	....	14	4	13	5
614, North Yakima, Wash.	6	2	8	....	6	2	6	2
618, Watertown, Wis.	5	....	5	....	....	5	5	....
619, Fremont, Ohio	8	....	8	....	8	....	8	....
629, Bowling Green, Ky.	4	....	4	....	....	4	4	....
630, St. Cloud, Minn.	9	1	10	....	1	9	1	9
632, Cheboygan, Mich.	8	....	8	....	9	....	9	....
634, Lewiston, Idaho	16	....	16	....	16	....	16	....
641, Ennis, Texas	4	....	4	....	3	1	4	....
642, Hackensack, N. J.	14	....	14	....	1	13	4	10
643, Waterville, Me.	12	....	12	....	11	1	12	....
644, Bluefield, W. Va.	7	....	7	....	7	....	7	....
646, Denton, Texas	10	....	10	....	7	3	4	6
652, Independence, Iowa	7	....	7	....	7	....	7	....
653, Jamestown, N. D.	5	....	5	....	1	4	1	4
658, Perth Amboy, N. J.	7	....	7	....	7	....	7	....
German American—
1, Philadelphia, Pa.	23	1	23	1	18	6	19	5
2, Cincinnati, Ohio	30	1	32	....	15	17	16	16
3, St. Louis, Mo.	34	8	35	7	14	28	18	24

Digitized by Google

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL CANVASSING BOARD—Continued.

Number and Name of Union	First Proposition		Second Proposition		Third Proposition		Fourth Proposition
	For	Against	For	Against	For	Against	For	Against
4, Buffalo, N. Y.	13	2	16	1	1	16	7	10
5, Rochester, N. Y.	5	....	6	1	2	5	2	5
6, Cleveland, Ohio	13	1	15	1	5	12	13	4
7, New York, N. Y.	147	17	145	14	79	89	52	112
8, Newark, N. J.	13	2	15	....	14	1	11	4
9, Chicago, Ill.	45	1	47	1	30	18	14	32
10, Milwaukee, Wis.	43	14	46	11	9	55	11	53
11, Baltimore, Md.	9	2	7	5	2	10	5	7
12, Louisville, Ky.	9	....	9	....	9	....	6	3
13, St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn.	6	4	9	1	1	9	7	3
14, Indianapolis, Ind.	12	3	11	4	2	13	6	9
15, Evansville, Ind.	10	....	10	....	6	4	1	9
16, Pittsburg, Pa	14	2	16	....	6	10	6	10
18, Belleville, Ill.	7	1	8	....	1	7	....	8
19, Columbus, Ohio	9	....	7	2	2	7	2	7
21, Detroit, Mich.	8	5	12	1	1	12	1	12
25, Wheeling, W. Va.	7	....	7	....	....	7	....	7
Typefounders—
3, Chicago, Ill.	12	....	12	....	12	....	12	....
7, San Francisco, Cal.	9	....	9	....	9	....	9	....
Mailers—
1, Boston, Mass.	43	25	61	2	27	40	43	26
2, Chicago, Ill.	85	9	79	15	38	56	60	35
3, St. Louis, Mo.	57	7	56	7	34	30	38	26
5, Toronto, Can.	26	....	26	....	25	1	23	3
6, New York, N. Y.	167	7	163	9	81	86	90	76
8, Denver, Colo.	17	....	14	2	3	13	3	14
11, Elmira, N. Y.	10	....	10	....	10	....	10	....
12, Cleveland, Ohio	12	....	12	....	1	11	4	8
16, Louisville, Ky.	10	10	11	7	1	18	5	15
18, San Francisco, Cal.	55	....	55	....	55	....	55	....
Newspaper Writers—
9, Milwaukee, Wis.	7	....	7	....	7	....	4	3
Totals	20,330	1,600	20,366	1,740	9,970	12,362	13,264	8,866
Majority	18,730		18,626			2,392	4,398

Respectfully submitted,

JAMES M. LYNCH,
J. W. BRAMWOOD, } Canvassing Board.
EARL MCKEE,

An Eight-Hour Editorial.

The following editorial anent the eight-hour movement of our organization appears in the November issue of the American Federationist:

The International Typographical Union is vigorously, intelligently, and successfully carrying on the movement to establish the eight-hour workday throughout the trade, and daily reports to the union's headquarters show a constantly increasing number of establishments agreeing to the eight-hour day.

In some places the employers in their desperate straits have appealed to the courts for writs of injunction. The injunctions restrain the striking printers from "congregating" about business places and from "interfering or attempting to hinder the employers in conducting their business, from following employes of the houses against which strikes have been called, and from ATTEMPTING TO BRIBE EMPLOYES, and from maintaining a picket line about the printing houses."

In answer to the supposed annoyance of the members doing PICKET DUTY, the union officers assert that "MEMBERS OF THE TYPOTHETAE DELIBERATELY ASSAIL OUR MEMBERS WHO ARE ON PICKET DUTY, THEN CRY FOR HELP AND REPRESENT TO THE AUTHORITIES THAT OUR MEMBERS ARE RESORTING TO VIOLENCE." This clearly shows the desperate plight in which the eight-hour opponents find themselves.

The organization has adopted the following slogan in the campaign: "We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen." This is the union printers' answer to the aspersions made upon the union by its opponents in their effort to cast odium upon the movement of the men for the shorter workday.

The printers have the sympathy and co-operation, not only of all labor, but the earnest-thinking people and well-wishers for the advancement of the human race. The campaign is in competent hands and augurs well for a glorious victory.

Digitized by Google

President's Paragraphs

PROGRESS OF THE EIGHT-HOUR STRUGGLE.

In this department last month it was said that "an industrial army that continues to advance, as with an army engaged in actual warfare, will eventually occupy all of the hostile territory." The assertion was prompted by the fact that at that time 260 unions had arranged for or were working under the eight-hour rule. In the month elapsing we have added thirty unions to the list, and 290 is now the total number. A large number of unions are conducting negotiations, with every prospect of success. We steadily advance, notwithstanding that in some sixty cities strikes are in progress, and the unions are meeting with more or less opposition. There is no lessening in the enthusiasm and determination that have thus far characterized the struggle, and from Detroit to the last union that has become involved, the spirit of our membership is as dauntless as on the first day of the strike. The members throughout the jurisdiction, when the opportunity presented, reaffirmed by a tremendous vote allegiance to the eight-hour principle, and through the money test, recognized in all unions as the most severe, provided funds for the continuance of the eight-hour crusade. Our friends of the typothetæ shouted with glee when the executive council placed the assessment proposition before the membership. But since the announcement of the result of the vote the gleeful sounds have turned to doleful mutterings. Because the executive council had the courage to place the exact situation before the people who are the backbone of the eight-hour movement—the membership—the officials of the typothetæ thought they saw a ray of light in an otherwise gloomy night, and promptly seized the opportunity to inject more anti-union tonic into the employers who are jeopardizing their present business standing and future business prospects in an effort to stay the coming of the inevitable development in the progress of civilization, the eight-hour day. December promises to be a notable month. More eight-hour history will be made. We are convinced that the members, on strike and at work, will maintain the same unyielding attitude that has made this industrial struggle the admiration and the hope of the industrial world, and that will, at the dawn of the new year, usher in the shorter workday for all members of the International Typographical Union.

THE FEDERATION EXTENDS AID.

Prior to the opening of the Pittsburg convention, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor levied an assessment for the support of our eight-hour movement. In reporting to the convention the president of the federation said: "There is no field of action upon which, if we concentrate our greatest activity, there will result so great advantages to all, with the least possible injury to any, as the movement to reduce the hours of daily labor, the establishment of a normal workday of eight hours." After setting forth briefly the history of our eight-hour demand, the federation president continues: "Then, carrying out their plan of campaign, the employing printers in the book and job trade began an attack upon printers' unions in several parts of the country. The hope was entertained that by attacking a union here and there and in advance of the time set, January 1, 1906, the International Typographical Union would be unprepared to meet the employers. Realizing the danger of these tactics if allowed to be carried out without any counter move, the officers in charge called upon the membership that wherever it was not in violation of existing agreements the printers in the book and job trade working longer than eight hours should demand from their employers an agreement to introduce that system at once, or not later than January 1, 1906. This resulted in a number of employers agreeing to the eight-hour day immediately, or for its enforcement upon the date named. In a larger number of establishments strikes were inaugurated. Since then the reports from the officers show large successes, many accessions to their ranks, and the eight-hour day enforced in many of those offices. There are still several thousand of their members, with unbroken ranks, manfully contending for the eight-hour day. At our last convention this matter received considerable attention, and it was the unanimous decision that every possible assistance, financial and moral, be pledged and given to the International Typographical Union in its effort, and, if necessary, contest, to enforce the eight-hour day. It was my pleasurable duty to attend the convention of the International Typographical Union, and to convey your fraternal greetings and proffered assistance; to confer with its officers as to the best means by which we can all be helpful in this splendid movement; this movement which can but result in great advantage, not only to the printers, but to all who toil, to all our people. In the report which the executive council will submit to you, part of which many of you have already been advised, will be communicated to you the support we have already given and propose to give to the International Typographical Union in its movement for the inauguration of that potential course for the uplift of man—the eight-hour workday. The printers have already largely gained the day; they can and must be crowned with absolute victory, and it becomes our solemn and binding duty to help them achieve it."

FURTHER AID PLEDGED.

The committee on president's report submitted the following, which was unanimously adopted by the convention: "The contest for the shorter workday, in which the printers are now engaged, as your president has well pointed out, is not one which can be regarded merely from the standpoint of that craft. Entered into only after careful deliberation, after other means of settlement had been exhausted, and with the unanimous approval of the San Francisco convention, the printers' present struggle must be considered as one in which all of our affiliated bodies have a direct concern. More than this, as the citizens' alliance during its convention last week adopted resolutions pledging its moral and financial support to the members of the typothetæ in their attempt to throttle the printers' eight-hour movement, it is therefore peculiarly incumbent upon us to accept the gage of battle there flung down, and to declare our steadfast determination to hold up the hands of our brethren who are on the firing line. The typographical union has by an overwhelming referendum vote levied a substantial assessment upon its working members. It has already established the eight-hour day in 268 cities and towns. With the provision already made by the assessment levied by the executive council and its own resources, it estimates that the movement is amply provided for for the remainder of the year. We therefore recommend that the convention reaffirm its solemn pledge to support the International Typographical Union in its great battle for the eight-hour day, endorse the course of the executive council in levying an assessment, and recommend that the executive council continue this support if the necessity should still exist after January 1, 1906, in such degree as in its judgment the exigencies of the case demand and the limitations of expediency and the constitution permit."

Digitized by Google

THE INJUNCTION FEATURE.

While the issuance of injunctions has not had the adverse effect on our struggle hoped for by the employers, for the reason that the "battle" has been characterized by peaceful and legal methods, this feature of the contest has added much to the literature and history of the injunction, and has further served to arouse the conscience of the people and make it clear that the courts in attempting to restrict the rights and liberties of a class are really placing in jeopardy society as a whole. The Chicago judge who made the law the active assistant of the Chicago typothetæ, later addressed the Citizens' Industrial Association of America at its annual convention in St. Louis, and this association thus expressed its appreciation: "Resolved, That the Citizens' Industrial Association of America honors and congratulates the able judiciary of this country for interpretations of the law which it believes will make for permanent good to all classes and conditions of men." It will be recalled that among other reasons for granting the injunction prayed for by the employers, the Chicago jurist advanced the following: "The United States supreme court held that the sovereign power of the state of New York could not force an eight-hour day upon the employer, and what the sovereign power of a state can not do can not be done by any other power." And within a few days after this most remarkable dictum, the validity of the Missouri state law fixing eight hours as the length of a day's work in mines was upheld by the supreme court of the United States. It would not now be a cause for surprise if the Chicago typothetæ, acting through its favorite judge, sought to enjoin the supreme court. The injunction would undoubtedly be granted if it was shown that capital, as represented by profit, was in any way endangered. In Richmond, Va., the application of the typothetæ of that city for a perpetual injunction against the striking printers was disallowed, and a most exhaustive opinion handed down. Every allegation made by the employers was taken up and dissected, and shown to be without basis or as not constituting violation of the law. But in all other cases thus far the judges willingly, and in some cases hurriedly, granted the injunctions. The employers are now convinced that these injunction writs do not add efficiency to their non-union forces.

REFERRED TO THE OPEN SHOP MASQUERADERS.

The Review, official paper of the National Civic Federation, prints this comment on the hypocrisy that attends the open-shop clamor: "What is generally termed the smash-the-union element in the employing world has been indulging of late in a series of manifestoes designed to prejudice public opinion through misinformation. No economic doctrine can flourish, however persistently advocated, and however strong its financial backing, which is based upon misstatements of fact, and whose purpose is not for the greatest good of the greatest number. The group of writers who assail the movement of organized labor tacitly recognizes this truism in its attempts to make it appear that the admitted misdeeds of members of labor unions are universal instead of exceptional; that all labor leaders are radical advocates of violence; and, above all, that the trade agreement, the most practical device that modern industrialism has evolved for peaceful relations between capital and labor, is destructive of the constitutional rights of the individual citizen. While asserting that they favor organizations of wage-earners that are 'properly conducted,' these writers betray the fact that their idea of 'proper conduct' is absolute surrender to the will of the employer, and that they would deprive the labor union of all power to elevate the condition of its members by dealing with employes only as individuals, and never in a body. They oppose violently the closed shop, but they reveal that their conception of the open shop is a place where no union men can work and live."

NOTES.

Eight hours are hereafter to constitute a day's work in the diamond cutting and polishing industry. This agreement has been reached by the committees representing the Diamond Workers' Protective Union of America and the diamond manufacturers' association. The employes in New York city, who number less than 400, have a field all their own, as no other men in this country have the necessary skill in this kind of work, which requires years of training.

The San Antonio typothetæ sent a circular to employers in other cities, setting forth how easily they had won out against the union. Then they applied for an injunction, and incidentally for $1,000 damages.

After contesting the eight-hour day for several weeks, and employing a large number of "free and independent" workmen,

After using the "open shop" cry and the constitution of the United States to bolster up a weak cause,

After attempting by every means to secure non-unionists who know how to print,

One employer says the "open shop" is a joke.

JAMES M. LYNCH, President.

Digitized by Google

Woman's Department

WOMAN'S INTERNATIONAL AUXILIARY.

President—Mrs. Ed D. Donnell, 906 West Eighth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Secretary—Mrs. C. E. McKee, 430 East Vermont street, Indianapolis, Ind.

OMAHA, NEB.

Of course the principal issue in Omaha at present is the lockout. Although five weeks have elapsed there is still no material change in the situation. Three weeks ago the executive committee of the union called on the auxiliary to help them. Mesdames Bert Cox, G. W. Sancha, W. C. Turner and myself were appointed to represent the auxiliary. I was delegated chairman and spokesman. As some of the members of the executive committee of the business men's association had been instrumental in forcing the lockout, our work was to visit the business men, asking them to use their protest against their executive committee taking any action in this affair, and to have their work done under fair conditions. Our experience was both novel and interesting, meeting with success and encouragement in some places, in others with little satisfaction other than that they would freely express their opinions on unionism on the question of the eight-hour day and of the open shop, leaving no doubt in our minds as to who the friends of labor were, and which we will not forget, but nevertheless treating us with courtesy and respect. At the invitation of the president of the association, I was invited to attend a meeting of their executive committee and state our case there. I very gratefully accepted the invitation and, together with my committee, appeared promptly on time at the commercial club rooms. After thanking them for the privilege, I stated the fact of the lockout as we all knew, and said that as we understood the situation some of the members of that executive committee had been instrumental in bringing extreme pressure to bear on some of the employing printers, compelling them to lock their men out; that the typographical union did not want to use any arbitrary means to settle this trouble; they wanted to settle it quietly with the employers; that their executive board stood ready at any time to meet with the employing printers, or with the executive board of their association, to confer with them towards bringing about a peaceful settlement; as this trouble, if long continued, would have a very disastrous effect on business, and would involve a great many other unions as well; while not presuming to dictate to such a body of men as they, I did not think they could afford to take any stand against the men who had helped to make them what they were. In my interviews with them, individually, some of them had objected to unionism on the grounds of methods employed by some unions in times of trouble. While I had to own that mistakes had been made for which the unions were not to blame, but which had done great injury to the cause, and for which they had had to bear the brunt, still I did not think it fair that the principles of unionism should be condemned because of the acts of unscrupulous individuals. I wanted them to understand that the typographical union was composed of educated, intelligent men, and that the methods which they employed, should they be compelled to employ any, would be in keeping with their character. I respectfully asked them that should they not see fit to take a neutral stand, to use their influence toward bringing about a speedy settlement. We were very grateful for this opportunity and hope it may be productive of good, and are more confident than ever of ultimate victory.

The reports at last meeting from the last party and also from our rummage sale, were very gratifying. Our November party is to be held on the 23d, at the home of Mrs. L. H. Kolb. Prizes are again to be donated by individual members, and no admission charged. We feel it would be unfair at present to further tax the members of the union, and yet we do not want to miss our good times. Not a word of complaint is heard on account of the trouble, but all cheerfully help the good work along. It is encouraging to notice the same results in other cities, and speaks well for the organization and for the fidelity of its members. A great deal of comment was caused at last meeting by receiving the new International auxiliary's by-laws. A law was passed at the last convention that all amendments were to be submitted to the referendum. As this law had not been complied with, the auxiliary decided they could not accept the by-laws. A great deal of other business was also attended to, the attendance large, and the social part and refreshments excellent. The hostess, Mrs. Dermody, put forth special efforts on account of us poor locked-out printers. Our meetings are certainly encouraging and enjoyable. MRS. D. G. CRAIGHEAD.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

We have held three meetings and each time the attendance has been doubled. We hope to have our charter by the next meeting, and elect our permanent officers. We are planning to give a euchre by the first of December. The members of the union have been very kind and courteous to us and assisted us in every way possible to help make our auxiliary a success. Don't you think we are hustlers? I knew if we could get Mrs. Lee in Evansville we would soon have an auxiliary, having known her for two years in Louisville, where I was a member. I know the value of her services. She served us twice as delegate and filled the office of secretary for nearly three years. Our gain has been Louisville's loss. With all due respect to our present international secretary, I want to say that a large majority of the auxiliary and union members in Louisville were sorely disappointed when the tie in the election of international secretary-treasurer was not decided in Mrs. Lee's favor.

Digitized by Google

From my interpretation of the law, I think Mrs. Ames, of Louisville, was a little premature in criticising our secretary-treasurer for sending out the 20 cents per capita tax notices. On page 21 of our international report will be found the following: "On motion of Mrs. Ogden, Cincinnati, duly seconded, all by-laws conflicting with the 20-cent quarterly per capita tax which now appear in the by-laws be changed to conform. Carried."

My best wishes to our international president; may she have a long and successful administration. I always admired her kind, loving letters as secretary-treasurer, and I know she is the right woman in the right place. MRS. T. H. KILGORE.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The November meeting of Woman's Auxiliary No. 13, of Washington, D. C., evidenced a revival of interest on the part of the membership. Considerable business of a general character was transacted. Among the nominations for local officers for the coming year was that of Mrs. A. W. Bowen for president, with no opposition. Mrs. Bowen's services at Toronto as delegate from No. 13 demonstrate that for wise and clear-headed business tact, together with sincere loyalty to the cause of trade unionism, she has few equals and no superiors in our organization.

A matter of most serious consideration was in reference to the failure on the part of the International officers to submit to a referendum vote the amendment adopted at Toronto in regard to the per capita tax. After a thorough discussion of the matter it was decided by unanimous vote that No. 13 should withhold all per capita tax until a thoroughly satisfactory explanation be made by the international officers why the law as laid down on page 11 of the constitution and by-laws was utterly ignored in this instance.

Mrs. Frank Benzler, the energetic chairman of our entertainment committee, is planning a Thanksgiving matinee for the families of No. 101, and, judging from her past success, this will without doubt be up to the standard.

MRS. E. H. THOMAS.

CHICAGO, ILL.

I see Omaha has fired the first gun in its fight for a lower per capita tax. This is a good time to start, for it will give all members of the international auxiliary a chance to watch our secretary's report each month in THE JOURNAL and study for themselves how large a fund is being created. It does not look very encouraging this month. I do not understand how we can crowd new expenses upon ourselves and then cut down our income. The new referendum law, you will find by a little mental arithmetic, will count up considerably. The $10-a-day expense for officers to the convention is another item. I do not want to be understood as thinking it is too much, as long as we can have the money to pay it, but I mention it as an instance. I would like to ask our president, Mrs. Donnell, to give us a statement in next month's JOURNAL, as none knows better than she the financial affairs of our international.

One of our ladies asserted at the convention that "any person who considered $10 a day two much valued the president's time too lightly." Now let me apply the same to the per capita tax. Any person who considers 20 cents every three months too high a price to pay for the privilege of being identified with the International Woman's Auxiliary to International Typographical Union, a body who, so far as I have seen, are individually worth "double price," values that body altogether too lightly. Watch our secretary's report, study upon it and by next May you will be able to make your own deductions as to whether the per capita is too high, as it is now.

Good for you, Mr. Kreiter; that book idea is fine. Let us have a presentation day.

I wish to greet Boston auxiliary; I must know some of you. I met so many bright, genial ladies when I was there. I know you are going to be a success.

No report has been received from our entertainment committee, so can not tell you this month how we are going to amuse the printer man this winter. Our No. 16 ball occurs December 6, and we are all interested in making it a great success. We do not forget how we were aided last year to make our ball such a great one. We are going to have another one just like it, but of that later. Hurrah for Colorado Springs.

MRS. GILBERT R. JONES.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

At our last regular meeting we were visited by a committee from Typographical Union No. 30, and a very interesting talk on the purchase of union-made goods was given by William Templeman, and every member of the auxiliary volunteered to see the merchants and induce them to place the label on their printing in the future.

We also received three new members and four applications, which is very encouraging. However, we regret the loss of one of our charter members, Mrs. Barnes, who has moved to another city, but we hope that our loss may be some other auxiliary's gain, as she was a loyal member.

We have given three very successful socials this season, and are now making preparations for the celebration of our first birthday, which will be January 25, and we hope to double our membership again we celebrate our second birthday.

We have received a circular from the Ahamo auxiliary, stating they have decided to keep up the fight for a lower per capita tax. Being a delegate to the Toronto convention I heard the subject thoroughly discussed and settled to the satisfaction of the majority.

No doubt the international auxiliary could exist on a lower tax, but we should not be satisfied with a mere existence, our ambitions ought to be higher. Is there any one of us who feels quite content with just enough to live on? No, I think not, we all wish for a little extra in case of emergency.

Digitized by Google

Why not build up our international treasury for a few years; give it a good footing; then it will be time enough to talk about a lower tax.

The present tax, 80 cents a year, is within the reach of any one, and instead of feeling it a burden we should deem it a pleasure to contribute to such a good cause. MRS. J. J. CAHILL.

REPORT OF SECRETARY-TREASURER.

The following is the financial report of the secretary-treasurer of the Woman's International Auxiliary to Typographical Union for the month ending November 17, 1905:

RECEIPTS.

Oct. 17.	Balance last report	$310 50
Oct. 18.	Minneapolis—For third quarter	3 15
Oct. 18.	Chicago—For first quarter	7 00
Oct. 20.	Galveston—For third quarter	3 00
Oct. 20.	Toronto—For fourth quarter	8 00
Oct. 23.	Milwaukee—For first quarter	6 20
Oct. 24.	Detroit—For third quarter	5 00
Oct. 24.	Syracuse—For third quarter	4 00
Oct. 27.	London, Ont.—For second quarter	2 80
Nov. 1.	Grand Rapids—For supplies	25
Nov. 2.	Toledo—For second quarter	5 20
Nov. 4.	Omaha—For first quarter	8 40
Nov. 4.	Baltimore—For first quarter	5 00
Nov. 6.	Boston—For supplies	25
Nov. 7.	Indianapolis—For first quarter	8 20
Nov. 8.	St. Louis—For back per capita tax	60
Nov. 10.	St. Paul—For supplies	25
Nov. 10.	Nashville—For fourth quarter	2 40
Nov. 11.	Chattanooga—For second quarter	4 60
Nov. 14.	Portland—For second quarter	5 60
Nov. 15.	Grand Rapids—For third quarter	4 80
	Total receipts	$395 20

EXPENDITURES.

Oct. 27.	500 8-page folders	$15 50
Oct. 27.	1,500 constitution, by-laws	34 50
Nov. 6.	Stamps for secretary	5 00
Nov. 8.	Stencil	65
	Expenses for month	$55 65

RECAPITULATION.

Balance on hand last report	$310 50
Receipts for month	84 70
Total receipts	$395 20
Expenditures for month	55 65
Balance in bank	$339 55

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. C. E. MCKEE,
Secretary-Treasurer.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

The Mountain City Woman's Auxiliary met the 9th of November with our president. Mrs. E. Hale, but as I was not able to be present can not give a full account of the proceedings. Several ladies telephoned me and reported a good time. There not being much business before the house, it was made a social gathering. Many told of the refreshments Mrs. Hale served and spoke very highly of how palatable they were.

Our rummage sale was a grand success, and much credit is due Mrs. John O'Brien, who had it in charge, as she and Miss O'Brien surely did work, and the last night they never even took time to go to supper when only half a block from it. I feel I am safe in saying if all the ladies of all auxiliaries would work with such earnestness we could and would do wonders.

The past week has been one of much sorrow to No. 21, and especially our sister, Mrs. O. F. Pennebaker, who lost her four-and-a-half-year-old child by being burned to death at home while playing, the entire family being present. This child lived several hours and told how it happened. The funeral was the saddest I and many others ever attended. This little girl, unlike many others, enjoyed a woman's company quite as well as a child's, and never did talk like a child. No child was never more intelligent than she at her age. Each member of No. 21 sympathizes with Mrs. Pennebaker in her hour of sorrow. A committee sent flowers as a small emblem of the esteem in which Mrs. Pennebaker is held by the Mountain City Woman's Auxiliary.

MRS. OZA BLODGETT.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

As the time approaches for the annual election the political pot begins to gently ebulliate. Several ladies are "mentioned" for office, but the campaign has not started in earnest.

The sale of tickets for the quilt raffle has been very gratifying.

The arrangements for our euchre are approaching completion, and a complete success is confidently expected.

No. 29's visiting committee called on several of No. 8's sick members recently.

MRS. J. J. DIRKS.

BOSTON, MASS.

Woman's Auxiliary No. 46 makes its initial bow to the International, and wishes to have a fraternal feeling with its sister auxiliaries.

We are only in our infancy as yet, having but just been chartered a few weeks ago. We organized with seventeen members, but judging from the number of applicants who wish to be enrolled as members, we anticipate for our auxiliary a greatly increased membership in the near future.

Henry Sterling, secretary of our local union No. 13, and Herbert W. Cooke deserve the entire credit for organizing this auxiliary. They certainly have worked with a right good will and untiring energy to make a success of this affair, sacrificing much of their time therefor. And they feel now, we think, that their labors were not in vain. The ladies have responded in the proper spirit, and are showing by their earnestness and enthusiasm that they are willing to do their part for the grand cause, and have pledged themselves when the time comes that they will not be found standing idle, but prepared at all times to take their places in the ranks and stand behind the men.

Hitherto our local union has defrayed all the expenses of our organization, but now that we are a properly organized body with a growing membership, we see no reason in future why we should not get along on our own resources.

Our regular meetings are held the third Wednesday in each month in the parlors of the woman's educational union, 264 Boylston street, Boston. We have also made arrangements for holding social events of different kinds for the winter. Whist parties seem to be the most popular, are held at the homes of the different members, and are all a success financially and socially.

Digitized by Google

Our first official meeting was held on Wednesday, November 1, at the home of our president, Mrs. William P. Kennedy, 12 Thomas Park, South Boston. After the reading of the charter the election of officers took place. Mrs. Kennedy, the hostess, was unanimously elected president; Mrs. H. A. Rodgers, secretary; Mrs. C. T. Scott, vice-president; Mrs. H. C. Shannon, treasurer; Mrs. F. J. McGarrity, guide; Mrs. A. Woodhead, chaplain.

William P. Kennedy and Herbert W. Cooke were kind enough to lend their presence and encouragement to us during the evening. A social hour followed, during which a most bountiful collation was served by the hostess, assisted by her two daughters, Misses Bessie E. and Minnie A. Kennedy (also charter members), which brought the evening's entertainment to a most enjoyable close.

Our next regular meeting will be held on Wednesday, November 22, at 2:30 P. M., at 264 Boylston street, Boston. MRS. H. A. RODGERS.

CINCINNATI, OHIO.

The regular meeting of Auxiliary No. 4 was held Monday afternoon, November 13, at the Oxford Hotel, with Mrs. C. W. Kennedy. It was a large and enthusiastic meeting. Two new members were elected, one application presented, and more to be presented next month. So, if any one asks you, No. 4 is growing. Numerous subjects of importance were discussed, among them the per capita tax. Next meeting we will elect new officers, so hope to see every member present.

The second of a series of monthly entertainments projected by the membership of Auxiliary No. 4 was a pleasant event of November 9, being a supper and social at the home of Miss Tessie Conroy, our "printer girl." The committee in charge, Mesdames O'Connor, Donnell, Kennedy and Misses Tessie and Morris Conroy, prepared an elegant supper, which was much enjoyed by the printers, their families and friends. This committee was very ably and materially assisted by three other Misses Conroy, who, unfortunately, have not affiliated with our body. Many new faces were seen during the evening, and the old standbys will soon feel they are gradually breaking the printorial ice of restraint, and ere long, especially after the acquisition of the eight-hour day, will be socially just like other folks. The evening was spent in an enjoyable manner by all concerned, each following his choice as to entertainment—cards, dancing, conversation, and, in the instance of one gentleman at least, eating. Messrs. Cliff Cobb, Louis Schorr and Walter Brierling, of the printers' orchestra, assisted by Ed Donnell, furnished some delightful musical numbers. MRS. W. B. OGDEN.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

Having no quorum present on the 5th and 19th of October, we could hold no meeting during that month. Our secretary, Mrs. J. F. Lee, left the last week in October to make her home in Evansville, Ind. The meetings of November the 2d and 16th were record breakers in point of attendance. We were delighted to welcome our old members back, who said they would attend regularly in the future. Mrs. M. O. West was appointed secretary until the election. The oyster supper given by the eight-hour committee of our auxiliary on Novem- 9 at the residence of Mrs. John D. Kane was a grand success both socially and financially. There were more printers and their families present than at any previous social. The committee was kept on a hop and a jump from 2 to 10 P. M. One of our ladies present happened to lament that on account of illness she had not gotten out to sell any of her tickets. Jerry Moore, foreman of the Courier Journal, spoke up and said he would take them, and he bought her out. Judge Batts, of the Courier, favored us with a vocal solo, which was appreciated by all. We had music and fun galore. One printer on the Herald said he never dreamed that the auxiliary doings were so enjoyable; that we could count on him to come to the next one and bring the "bunch" at the office with him.

Mrs. Buchanan, of Nashville, in October sent our delegate, Mrs. Kane, the souvenir of the Nashville Typographical Union's fiftieth anniversary, which we all think is beautiful, especially the picture of Nashville's auxiliary. I expect from the wide-awake looks of the ladies they have fine meetings.

Our next social will be at the home of Mrs. M. O. West. MRS. EDWARD GOTTSCHALK.

LINCOLN, NEB.

Capital Auxiliary No. 11 gave a charming little parlor farce, "A Box of Monkeys," at their hall, Wednesday, October 18. The participants were Misses Clara King, Emma Schaal, Hazel Smith, Messrs. Victor Barngrover and Paul Riemenschnitter. The young ladies are members of Capital Auxiliary. The play was a decided success, and the auxiliary realized a neat sum. Plans are already perfected, and the auxiliary will give a supper at their hall Wednesday evening, November 15, followed by a program and social hour.

Capital Auxiliary will hold a market of home cooking at the Keystone grocery, Saturady, December 2.

Our auxiliary has been holding its meetings in a hall, but it has not proven the success we expected it would, and, as our lease expires the first of the year, we will go back to the homes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Mickel, formerly of Lincoln, but now of Harvard, Neb., visited relatives and friends a few days last month.

Mrs. C. H. Bowers has gone to Kansas City for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Simmons have purchased a new home at Twenty-sixth and Y streets, and will move soon. MRS. F. W. MICKEL.

Digitized by Google

Correspondence

TOLEDO, OHIO.

The principal topic of discussion the past month has been the establishment of a new evening daily, which will have been launched upon the sea of journalism before this reaches readers of THE JOURNAL. The publication will be known as the Toledo Press and is scheduled to appear on December 1. With the coming of the Press several changes of importance will take place in the personnel of the working forces of the News-Bee and Times. Robert F. Booth, for several years superintendent of these papers, resigned to assume the business management of the Press, and is succeeded by Jay F. O'Donnell. William George, for some years foreman of the Times, becomes foreman of the Press, and John Keltner is foreman of the Times. With the above also occurred several changes of base among the workmen. J. F. Moorhead, W. Walters, Bert McCullagh, William Riley, Vic Love, Jerry Shea and John Carr leave the News-Bee as operators to accept similar situations on the Press. Fred Brandt, J. P. Keating and George W. Scannell of the Times, and John Babcock of the News-Bee, will accept positions as admen.

The Merrell Press, which has been in the hands of the court since the first week of the strike, has been purchased by Alexander Duguid, and it is hardly necessary to add that henceforth it will be manned from cellar to garret by union help. Mr. Duguid is well known either personally or by name to almost every member of the International Typographical Union. Formerly a resident of this city, he had been for years a workman on the Cincinnati Enquirer, leaving there some four years ago to engage in the manufacture of trunks, in partnership with his brother in this city. But Alexander, like most others who get out of the business, has a longing for the odor of printer's ink, and has returned—as they all do—to the print shop. In the good old handset days Alexander was the swift of swifts, and still holds the record made as the champion typesetter of the world in the contest held at Philadelphia on the evening of March 27, 1886, when in one hour and a half he set 3,416 ems of nonpareil, twenty-eight ems measure. Four minutes were consumed in correcting and twenty-five ems deducted for each minute so spent.

In Japan every child is taught to write with both hands. In this country there are a half million children that are not taught to write at all. They are too busy working with both hands to learn to write even with one.

The Hadley Printing and Paper Company, one of the concerns to break away from the "teapot" compact early in the shorter workday campaign, has broken ground for a new and more commodious building, which will be better suited to their wants, on Huron street.

From all appearances there is more of a demand for the little joker on printed matter in this city at present than at any time since the adoption of the label. All union shops are working (some overtime) with increased forces to keep up with the demand. The non-union shops are practically tied up.

Chicago is now reaping the whirlwind of her own "job" of sowing. Scan the daily papers and it is conclusive that crime is epidemic. One wonders whether it was worth the cost to import to Chicago during the late strikes such a large number of "rats" and "scabs," lacking in all responsibility and of unknown antecedents. However, the breezy western city is now paying the penalty for its inherent weakness and hospitality in inviting to its jurisdiction classes from the slums of the universe to be used as strikebreakers. But then the business interests of Chicago have no kick coming —they stood for a "Job" being put up on them by Parry and Post.

A printing concern located in one of the inland cities of Ohio is advertising for non-union job hands to work fifty-four hours, and offers $20 per week. The union scale in the same city is $13.50. Sure, there is lots of competent help outside the union. Does not Macintyre say so?

In the recent municipal election the trade unions played no little part, and for a time it looked as if the noise of the "non-partisan" and "independent" fiasco would drown out the shorter workday campaign. Five candidates contested for the mantle of the late Golden Rule Mayor Sam Jones. The trade unionists kept their powder dry and centered all of their energies and ammunition on the members of the board of public service, who, during their term of office, had proven notoriously unfair to organized labor. They were ignominiously defeated at the polls. All of the glory and credit in thus putting the members of the service board out of office must be given to the members of No. 63. On the other hand, while I must admit that considerable bluster was made by the mayoralty contestants, the campaign lacked that snap, vim and educational propaganda that only a Sam Jones could supply. We had become so accustomed to his talking direct to the workers and educating them as to their importance to society, that we missed his versatile manner of contrasting classes and epigrams such as "First the missionaries, then the gunboats and then trade," and other biting sarcasms on affairs as he saw them. In short we had, for the first time in several years, what might be termed a gentlemen's campaign, in which the orators talked over the heads of the workers instead of at them, as Jones would. Much of the advice and relief promised the workers was "burshwa" of the mediocre economist. Such thought-inspiring advice as "Be honest, be kind; earn a little more, spend a little less, and above all be conservative," seemed to be the slogan of the campaign. One reactionary feature of the state campaign was the charge made by the unions of Cincinnati that the democratic candidate for governor always employs the cheapest scab labor that can be found when he has work to do, while the unions of Cleveland declared that the republican candidate for the same office had hired scab painters to daub the Society for Savings building of that city, which is his property.

Digitized by Google

When you have no agate line measure at hand, remember that the silver dime (a 10-cent piece) measures exactly ten agate lines.

The Labor Searchlight, now under the management of Lon Fassett, is doing yeoman service in the battle for labor's cause. Since the movement for the inauguration of the shorter workday in the printing trades Mr. Fassett has devoted the entire space of the paper in his efforts to aid the shorter workday. This to the exclusion of all other topics of interest to the many trades of which the Searchlight is the official organ. This favor is greatly appreciated by the membership of No. 63 and trade unionists generally. The path of a labor paper is not one strewn with roses, but this healthy youngster bids fair to a successful career, its advertising columns being quite liberally patronized by those merchants who bid for the workers' trade.

That the membership has unstinted confidence in the management of affairs by our present officers was shown at the late annual election, when the entire corps were re-elected by acclamation for another term.

Three shops signed up and were granted the label during last month.

At this time, when several of our sister bodies are smarting under the injunction lash, the following is worthy of record: In the city of Milwaukee a member of a trade union had been working for a concern as an enameler. The company insisted that he work on Sunday as well as the rest of the week. He protested and the company refused to pay him unless he worked. The law states that "unnecessary" work is illegal. The company's attorney undertook to show that this work was necessary, because the enameling ovens must be kept going on Sunday, for if they were not it would require three days to get them properly heated up again. The justice of the peace (and by the way a socialist), before whom the case was tried, held that it might be necessary to keep the fireman at work in order to keep the ovens heated, but it was not necessary for the company to put anything into the ovens. Hence, the enameler's work was not necessary and therefore illegal. On appeal the justice's decision was sustained by a higher court, the company settled with the workman and furthermore took him back to work.

With the vote on the special assessment standing seven to one in its favor it doesn't look as if we had "weak knees," does it?

When things commence to come one's way it's hard telling where they will stop. Added to his other troubles the publisher of the German daily now on strike is confronted with the nightmare of competition. It is rumored, and with some degree of authenticity, that Toledo will have another German daily. A party of Cleveland and Detroit capitalists have been looking the field over, and with the encouragement and support of the independent political movement, of which this city is the hotbed, together with the endorsement of the organized German workers, its publication takes on a rosy aspect.

It's an uphill job for most of us to keep on the level.

At this writing the printers' bowling league, which furnished so much recreation to its members last season, has not as yet been organized. This is due to the activity of a great portion of the membership on committee work anent the shorter workday. Now, however, that "Pica" Howell and "Butch" Scannell have day situations, both are in position to keep the elevator hanging with bowling dope, and it will not be long before they will make an effort to justify the "Agates" and "Picas."

While captains of industry may be able, with the assistance of a friendly court, to obtain an injunction that will bind the trade unionist hand, foot and month, said injunction will not meet the deficit in the pay roll. Neither will it restrain the ragtag and bobtail from making noise like a printer while pursuing their daily avocations of spoiling work and making pi. The injunction will not make printers or drive them back to work except on the terms "written in the contract."

With 5,000 printers on strike since September 11 and only 135 desertions it looks as if Ellis gave his Detroit agent the wrong steer in buying up the "weak-kneed" members.

Lest you overlooked a bet, the November JOURNAL contained five columns—two and one-half pages—of names of applicants for membership—and this in time of war, too.

Two injunctions within two weeks ought to hold you for a while.

Keep away from Toledo; plenty of men here to meet all emergencies—and then some.

JOSEPH P. KEATING.

CINCINNATI, OHIO.

The reform wave struck Cincinnati on election day and upset all calculations. There were two trades unionists elected on the legislative ticket. But it is peculiar that alleged (and I use the word advisedly) labor leaders are so at variance when election time rolls around. We, here in Cincinnati, witnessed the spectacle of a man prominent in the labor movement advocating one set of candidates and bitterly denouncing those of opposite party affiliations, while on the following night, in the same hall, another leader, equally prominent, ridiculed and derided the former speaker and his statements. The laboring men will strike together, fight together and work together, but it seems impossible to get them to vote together. If they would vote as they strike and work it would not take many moons to solve the so-called labor problem.

The label was in evidence during the campaign, and there was quite a little printed matter circulated.

The successful party in Cincinnati is pledged to the initiative and referendum.

The writer hopes that W. R. Hearst wins his fight in New York. Not because our initials are the same, but for what the New Yorker stands for —measures, not men.

The strike situation is unchanged. The men are standing firm, and the situation has resolved itself into a case of which side can hold out the longest. It is stated that the typothetæ members each have up a deposit of $1,000, which would be forfeited in case of a breakaway.

Digitized by Google

Members should be warned against visiting cities where the battle for the eight-hour day is on, especially so if they are book and job men. There seems to be a disposition on the part of some to take advantage of this occasion to land in this city, then seek assistance to some other point, and in several instances return in a few weeks with a like request.

Charles Farrar Browne (Artemus Ward), the humorist, who died in 1867, aged thirty-one years, according to Chambers' Encyclopedia, after providing for his mother and relatives, left the bulk of his estate in trust to Horace Greeley for the purpose of founding an asylum for printers. Not having heard of any such institution, the writer would be pleased to find out something tangible about it, if such a thing was established. Possibly A. F. Bloomer knows where this refuge is located. Hope he will tell us if he does.

"Men and Women" is a non-union product, and not as "deserving" as W. Clark Black would have you believe.

Ex-Delegate Harry Armstrong will hereafter be known as Squire Armstrong, having been elected at the recent contest in Norwood.

A. C. Thoroman (Dingbat Bill) has equipped an office of his own, and is turning out a fine line of work. For years he was in charge of the adroom of the Commercial-Tribune.

C. R. Ogden has gone to Pueblo, Colo., for his health, and is reported as improving rapidly.

The two Bs, Byron and Baker, members of No. 3, are now in business for themselves on Main street. Both being former proofreaders, they should turn out errorless work.

The employers' association has taken up the fight against No. 3 in our endeavor to secure the eight-hour workday. The following is a sample of their literature:

CINCINNATI, November 8, 1905.

Messrs. ————, City:

GENTLEMEN—Recently we called upon a large number of employers of this city to join this association, and to assist us in every way possible in our campaign for better industrial conditions, and to defeat certain proposed labor legislation, to be asked for by organized labor at the next session of the legislature.

In the light of what our association is doing for the whole business community, it really seems unjust that we should have to urge business men as much as we have urged you to join the association, and to contribute a small amount of 50 cents per month to help it along.

Everybody will concede that we have done great work for the business interests in defeating ill-advised and foolish strikes, and in preventing them. Through the efforts of this association the furnace workers were, recently, unconditionally defeated, and now the printers, in their fight for an eight-hour day, are practically defeated. The employers have the situation entirely in their own hands, and will win unconditionally. If the printers should win in their eight-hour-day demand, it would only be the opening wedge for a universal eight-hour day in all lines, and, as is well recognized, the eight-hour day once granted is the beginning of the agitation for a seven-hour day, and so on.

It certainly ought not to be said that any enterprising business man or firm withholds his or their support from this association. We are a recognized factor in the industrial world by all the people, and are certainly worthy of the support of every first-class business house of the city, and we ought to receive it cordially and generously.

The expense of membership is not sufficiently large to keep any one out, and certainly every one ought to recognize the advisability of having a strong association of employers. I trust, therefore, you will favor us by signing the enclosed application at once, and by so doing increase the power and influence of this association for usefulness in the community.

Very truly yours,
EMPLOYERS' ASSOCIATION,
By CHARLES F. WALTZ, Secretary.

"And now the printers in their fight for an eight-hour day are practically defeated. The employers have the situation entirely in their own hands, and will win unconditionally. If the printers should win in their eight-hour-day demand," etc. A little inconsistency, to say the least.

Wilbur Beach, who seven years ago left Cincinnati for the east, has returned, and is looking up the friends he left behind.

George Spellman (better known as Calamity), who, for the past thirty years has been the lunchman on both of the morning papers, is now the manager of a cafe with a table d'hote dinner.

Somebody once said that the man who uses religion as a crutch should not complain if he falls in the mud.

The sense of touch is highly developed in a man who knows just when to ask for a loan.

W. R. VOILES.

With apologies to the gentleman who represents No. 3 in THE JOURNAL for presuming to intrude ourself in the space usually allotted to the Queen City, we will bid all the correspondents in THE JOURNAL farewell. Except that it may be possible to make what we wish to write about an addenda to the scribe who has the field by priority. However, as there have some things happened, and others that will, I trust that there will be no enmity held up against self. Strikes, newspaper deaths and other things is a combination that makes it hard for those affected. About ten days prior to the inauguration of the strike at Minneapolis the Times gave up the ghost, and ye printerman—and there were about thirty—folded up his tent and began to hunt about for some place where he could force some one to pay him a few simoleums to keep the fit of his clothes. With the strike about twenty-five more linotypists were thrown upon the cold, cold market of the north. One of the plants, that of the Minneapolis Typesetting Company, that leased the Times machines, would of necessity be compelled to purchase machines upon the breaking up of that plant—more good fellows without a home when the strike is won. It certainly was a hard blow to lose two newspapers, the St. Paul Globe and Times, in so short a space of time. All those things have had a tendency to change the personnel of the operating forces in the twins. We, along with the rest, would have had no place to return upon resumption of work in the struck shops. With eight months of frosty weather staring us in the face, it became a question of duty to family; hence our embarkation upon the ship that puts distance between oldtime friends. We traveled to Chicago, and there had the pleasure of meeting President Wright and the chief of pickets, Mr. Bessette. It did not look promising for the tourist, but from the way things were going when we left it would appear that in spite of their injunction judges No. 16 will soon be in the saddle once again. And when that time arrives the employers will find that they have a foe to deal with that can put up a much more honorable battle than the judges who render guesses and thinks. We passed through Indianapolis at 3 A. M., and, but that it was raining like—like chimneys smoke in some cities, we would have paid our respects to "John" and "Jim." But here's how, anyway, and as we located but a short distance away, it may be possible that we will run over some fine day.

Digitized by Google

The situation in this city, judging from the report made by the men who have the strike in hand, is everything that could be expected. It is the same old story—the shops can get all kinds of help, but no printers. What a funny thing it must be to some of them, especially those men who thought that it was possible to turn out a full-fledged printer in a couple of days. We attended the regular monthly session of the union, and as the various orators arose and discussed the important business that came up for disposition we very readily recognized some of our old friends in the Flour—Slab Town, as the St. Paulite would say. President Donnelly makes a good presiding officer, and as to the rest—well, after we know them better we will probably discover that they are the right men in the right place. Leaving this city some seventeen years ago, we had some difficulty in discovering ourself upon getting out of the airship upon a rainy Sunday morning. Hailing a passing scow, we negotiated our further passage uptown, and in due time stepped off on to the dock at Walnut and Fifth streets. Upon looking around we discovered "Billy" F. Erickson, relict of the Times, Minneapolis—putting in a little surplus time for the Tribune Printing Company, F. A. Feare, president. Billy was looking well, but when a man has worked some twenty years in one city it certainly is nothing out of the ordinary if he should get homesick and sigh for old conditions and scenes. Never mind, Billy; let us hope that time will bring you as many and as good friends in your new environments as you left behind.

To M. Grant Hamilton, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor, now doing herculean labor for No. 42, President Frank N. Gould, Secretary "Nic" O'Connor, Treasurer Walt Kline, and all the boys of the Mill City, we send best wishes and return thanks for many favors shown, and hope that the success that you all so richly deserve will be yours. Princes of the blood all, and always on the firing line. After thirteen years' association with the boys of the Twins, it is needless to say that it was with much regret that we folded up our little bundle and once again went back to the old school—the one patronized by all printers at one time or another—the tourist's.

WILL J. ROHR.

Eight hours for work, eight hours for sleep, eight hours to do as we will.

BOSTON, MASS.

Forty delegates representing typographical unions from every section of New England, gathered in Appleton hall, this city, on October 23, at the eight-hour conference arranged for by No. 13's eight-hour committee. John A. McPherson, of Boston, was elected chairman, and D. A. Sullivan, of Lowell, secretary. Reports of delegates showed that conditions throughout the district are favorable for the eight-hour workday. Resolutions were adopted commending the efforts being made, and the means used, to establish the universal eight-hour day; thanking Mr. Humphrey O'Sullivan, of Lowell, for his magnificent aid to the striking printers of his city; condemning the attitude of the firm of George E. Keith & Co., of Brockton, Mass., as an obstacle to the printers' eight-hour day; and that secretaries of unions keep in touch with printers holding cards who work in unfair offices in districts other than that to which they formerly belonged, and report to the union from which their cards were originally issued. It was voted that delegates urge their unions to affiliate with the New England Allied Printing Trades. It was voted that each delegate recommend to his union that the union appoint a committee of three to boom the label. Organizer Scott addressed the delegates, urged earnest work and prophesied victory all along the line. Rev. Mr. Irvine, of New Haven, and Frank K. Foster also addressed the convention. Taken as a whole, the meeting of these men from all over New England is looked upon as a long step toward success in the eight-hour struggle, as it not only gave each an insight into the methods used by the other, but also made all more or less familiar with conditions as they exist in other parts of the district. After dinner at the Quincy House, the delegates marched to the eight-hour demonstration in Faneuil Hall, held under the auspices of No. 13. The old Cradle of Liberty rocked to the tune of "eight hours for work, eight hours for sleep, and eight hours to do as we will," intuned by an audience that packed the ancient edifice from pit to dome. It was one of the most successful and enthusiastic labor demonstrations ever held in this city, priest and minister, labor leader and educator touching elbows on the platform, all earnestly urging the necessity for the shorter workday. In addition to the speechmaking, a pleasing vocal and instrumental entertainment was enjoyed, and everyone went home satisfied that an epoch-making day's work had been done, and that a shot had been fired for the eight-hour day that will be heard by typothetæ all over the land.

Honest differences of opinion should not change one man's estimate of another. It is the dishonest differences that do that. But we should even then be sure that a man is "crooked" before we damn him. A man is narrow-minded, indeed, who can become so warped by prejudice as to consider another a fool for not thinking as he does.

The Boston school board has decided against placing the union label on text-books. This order has been hanging fire for over two years; but was finally brought to a head, and the committee having the matter in charge was compelled to report. Before taking final action, the board requested a decision from Corporation Counsel Babson as to the legality of the proposed measure, and in his decision this gentleman says that "the school committee has no legal right to take into consideration questions of political economy, or what in its opinion would be the best rules for the state to adopt in its dealings with organized labor or with home manufacturers. What may be for the interests of the whole community in regard to such matters is a question for the state legislature or congress, not the school committee, to decide." The decision also states that the school committee has no right to say that no textbooks shall be purchased unless they bear the union label. It is apparently up to us to put this matter up to the state legislature.

Digitized by Google

A letter received in this city from James H. Martin, now a resident of the Home at Colorado Springs, states that he is much improved in health. Mr. Martin will be remembered as the first chairman of our book and job branch, and one of the most active factors in its formation, and, now that he is laid by, he takes great pleasure in the memories of the past, and his efforts to organize the book and job men of this city. Our Union Printers' Home contains many such men who live on memories of union work well and nobly done.

Caleb Dodge, of the Globe, an ex-president of No. 13, was the recipient recently of a letter of fraternal greeting signed by all the Globe boys and accompanied by a basket of fruit. Caleb was much affected by the remembrance, and said it reminded him of the time they presented him with a gavel on his election as president. He prizes it very highly, and told the boys that, though he is not wealthy, there is not money enough in the land to purchase it.

"Sport" Howard, who worked on the Globe and Post in the old hand days, and on the latter paper again about five years ago, struck town last month from everywhere, judging by way-station notices by JOURNAL correspondents. "Sport" is well known "all over," and there are few towns of importance or otherwise where he is not known and with which he is not familiar. He intimates that he intends to "bide a weel."

A rousing eight-hour demonstration was held in Lowell, November 10, which went to show the dauntless spirit of the men who are on strike there. A parade was held, red fire was burned, with a grand rally and speechmaking afterward. A large delegation from Boston attended, and the Lowell boys extended all possible courtesies. When it comes to sticktoitiveness, count in the Lowell printers.

No. 13's woman's auxiliary held another successful whist party, November 15, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Preece. It is proposed to hold a large whist party and dance in the near future. The auxiliary is getting along nicely. Mrs. Cooke resigned the presidency on account of domestic duties, and Mrs. William Kennedy, who is a very energetic lady, was chosen to fill the vacancy.

The book and job branch gave an eight-hour smoke talk for the benefit of its friends, particularly the newspaper men, who are giving it such strong support, morally and financially, in its effort to make the branch a power for good. The large hall was crowded, several non-union men being in attendance. A musical and literary entertainment and eloquent speechmaking made up a program of surpassing excellence. And the affair was a highly enjoyable and profitable one. The branch has voted to hold another in the near future. Continued active campaigning of this nature will win for the branch many friends. The committee of arrangements included Messrs. Gill, Studley, Ussher, Shanks, Sears, Guthberlet, Pease, De Freitas, Cummings, Cahill, McSwain, McIntire, McNeil, Woods and Boyle.

No sane man will seriously question the powerful influence of the press in the moulding of public opinion. I venture the assertion that the men who push the pencil rule the world. The writer who has no opinion to offer will never "tear in" anywhere, and a "subtle little joke" now and then is relished by the wisest men.

At the last meeting of No. 13 it was voted that we renew our obligation at every meeting hereafter. There were about 400 present, and it was an impressive sight as these earnest men stood with uplifted hands and pledged renewed fidelity to union principles.

Joseph B. Gill, chairman of No. 13's book and job branch, has been appointed by President Lynch as special organizer for Cambridge and Norwood. It is to be hoped that ye knocker will keep his hands off for a while and give the young fellow a chance.

At this joyous election time the thought occurs that, while the politician is scouring the country for votes, he can not clean up all of them; and for all his scouring he is not assured of a clean-cut victory, nor the citizens of a clean election.

A suggestion to correspondents: Much is said and done toward the organization of the wage-earners. Why not boom the organization of the wage-spenders? They are a most powerful factor in label introduction. Think it over.

The Boston Proofreaders' Association, which has between forty and fifty members, mostly employed in book and job offices, celebrated its tenth anniversary, October 28, with a reception and banquet at the Copley Square Hotel.

I am proud of the stamina displayed by the striking printers everywhere. I glory in their pluck and determination. It is this same never-say-die spirit that has placed the labor movement where it stands today.

President Freeman M. Saltus, of Worcester Typographical Union, and also JOURNAL correspondent, was in Boston during the eight-hour conference, and attended the Faneuil Hall rally in the evening.

John J. Conway, of No. 13, and Daniel J. McDonald, secretary of the Allied Printing Trades Council, have been elected members of the next legislature from Ward 5, Charlestown.

Two Boston men who "walked out" with the Hartford boys were Robert Weeden and Herbert E. Johnson.

Every man at some time or other says some word or commits some act of which he is thoroughly ashamed. It is one of the frailties of human nature. If, when we do this, we do not try to forget it, but bear it in mind and think it over once in a while, we will find ourselves not so liable to make the same mistake again.

Digitized by Google

Three cases of typhoid were developed in the Globe composing room last month as the result of a woman being employed in the lunchroom who had not fully recovered from an attack of the fever.

Alexander Cook, of the Globe, was unanimously chosen alderman at a recent session of the Chelsea board, to fill an unexpired term. He will be a candidate for re-election next month.

It is estimated that between 250 and 300 book and job men will be called out of Boston offices when the strike of the eight-hour day is inaugurated here, February 1.

John McParland, who carried the credentials from No. 16, Chicago, to Detroit convention, but who is now in New York, passed a few days in this city last month.

Fire water fires many a good man off the water wagon.

President Cooke, of the Society of Typographical Journal Correspondents, has made another move. His new address is No. 36 Edwin street, Dorchester, Mass.

The majority of the few votes cast in this town against the fifty-cent assessment came from large offices that at present enjoy the eight-hour day or better.

Nathan Newman, of "Big Six," visited some of his old friends in the Hub last month. Same old "Nate."

Michael Dalton, a well-known book and job man, died November 13, of consumption.

HERBERT W. COOKE.

ANN ARBOR, MICH.

And still the battle rages (ask the typothetæ). Conditions in the university town are not discouraging, thank you, as eight out of the nine offices have already pledged themselves by their signatures to grant the eight-hour day January 1, and the ninth, the Richmond & Backus plant, according to the testimony of Mr. Backus in the Detroit injunction proceedings, "is ruined"—an admission which simply confirms the well known fact that "in union there is strength." Rumors afloat are that they desire to sell the plant. Jack Turner, the irresistible rat, remains at his post, linotyping at the Richmond & Backus plant—tail longer than ever; a "Miss" York, from Detroit, is doing all she can on the other linotype. Henry Thorn, from New York, comprises the only "jobber," since his pal, Marshall, or Steneberg, or some other alias, had the degree H. T. (habitual tippler) conferred on him by a justice last week and got thirty days' leave of absence to celebrate the occasion.

No. 154 is arranging a musicale for an eight-hour fund, to be given the end of this month. The unions of the city will march in a body next Sunday morning to hear Mr. Bilbee preach a sermon on labor at the Trinity Lutheran Church.

On account of the Richmond & Backus plant having its head office at Detroit, the settlement of the question of whether we humans have a right to have anything to say as to what our hours of labor shall be hinges on the conclusion reached in Detroit—and that query looks easy.

Look out for the new-coined kind of typothetæ "gentleman" going the rounds, with about seventy-five dollars' worth of covering on his person, with nice, juicy union labels on each article—hat, overcoat, undercoat, shoes and—well, he didn't display his underclothes—picking up a miserly couple of bills wherever he can. The limit is reached, surely.

One good reason eight hours looks reasonable: They are all falling over themselves to give us nine.

J. V. QUIRK.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

To emphasize not only a righteous but a boastful pride in admiration of the devotion to union principles, it can best be expressed by employing a thought from the eminent English historian, Macaulay, that our membership is "mad with loyal enthusiasm."

Charles B. Stillings, of Boston, has been appointed by President Roosevelt as public printer. His selection came as a complete surprise, and at first glance it looked as though the president again wanted to show his opposition to trade unionism. This supposition had good ground, because Mr. Stillings had been for a number of years connected with the typothetæ people, and they are now boasting that their endorsement won him the job. Whatever glory they can take out of it they are certainly welcome to. Let them rejoice while they have the chance. The printers' union will survive, and the eight-hour day will come, nevertheless. But let us see the shade of calm reflection on the selection. As secretary of the printers' board of trade, Mr. Stillings received a salary. Just what his duties were is mere conjecture, as the writer is not a member of the United Typothetæ, but he is willing to say that he earned every cent. In Washington he proved an efficient officer for his employers. In short, he handled the trust so well that a similar organization in New York secured his services at a greatly increased salary, so it is said. Occupying the position he did, it required little effort to secure the endorsement of the entire United Typothetæ. It is said that the public printership went begging until it came to him. Senator Lodge had strongly endorsed Mr. Ricketts, and when the latter's chances were nil he then was for Mr. Stillings. But it must be understood that Senator Lodge did not endorse the new appointee because he was in the employ of the typothetæ, but because of his ability as a business man, and probably because of home pride. Senator Crane, whose interests in Massachusetts, especially in the paper manufacture, are understood to be large, also endorsed Mr. Stillings. Neither of these men are known to be wreckers of trade unions. And it is extremely doubtful if the endorsement received from the typothetæ had much, if any, influence with the president. Now, then, it must be accepted that Mr. Stillings has not been selected in order to disrupt the several trade unions whose members find employment in the government printing service, and until he attempts to disturb the tranquility and peace now had in the big printery, it would be unwise to pass judgment. It is not likely that it is the intent of the new public printer to make radical changes, or that he will put into practice the unwise methods advocated and promoted by the typothetæ, and in fact it is unreasonable to suppose that Mr. Stillings, being no longer in the employ of that society, will want to bring down upon himself that scorn and contempt which the members of the typothetæ have invited and which they deserve. But instead he will, if he really is the wise and sagacious business man he is reputed to be, accept the conditions as they are, in the belief that it is not necessary to have only a lot of non-union men to reach the goal which bears the sign of efficiency. Mr. Stillings is still a young man. The trades-union movement is not very old. He has the opportunity of his life. Let us, therefore, wait to see him work.

Digitized by Google

The overwhelming vote on the 50-cent assessment, among other things, speaks in positive language of commendation to the men on strike. It is a word picture of a warm handshake with the man who is sustaining the principles of unionism—a good, tight shake at that.

The boostless knocker is still hereabouts.

The increasing request for injunctions and the wide scope of the blanketness of their nature naturally bring hardships on those whom they affect. It is perhaps well that it is so. It is an old saying, and indeed a practical one, that the only way to make an obnoxious law the more hideous is to enforce it. So will the injunction era end. Hardly out of its infancy, so to speak, the decrees of courts have been so unreasonable and absolutely severe and unjust that a remedy must soon be at hand. Union printers are a resolute set of men. They are willing to stand any hardship, that in the end their cause will endure and their action receive the justice it merits. Therefore, believing in the righteousness of their liberties as organized wage-earners, the union printers can well afford to await the reward that will surely come to them.

Loyalty and obedience to the traditions of the printers' union has won whatever progress has been made in the eight-hour movement, and it will gain a signal triumph on January 1, 1906. Insistence in the right that a third of the twenty-four hours is sufficient to the grind of labor will surely be the lesson learned best by the employing printers. There need be no strife to win. Injunctions, temporary or permanent, will not check the advancement of thought toward a shorter work-day, because such efforts are born of intellect and reason. The success already achieved augurs only for a triumphant ending. In less than one month we will have gained a universal eight-hour day.

Chairman Willey, of the Post, made a ballot box out of a type box for the 50-cent assessment election. It was a novel receptacle, but it held well the almost unanimous verdict for the assessment:

"Six days shalt thou labor," says the divine book. The typographical union makes that mandatory on the part of its membership. It is closely adhered to, and when its violation occurs the party so overworking the time must put on a substitute on an extra day. And as God commanded His followers in a righteous cause, so do we, as union men, seek to emulate the edict and endeavor to shorten the day for the toiler and to give employment to a greater number. The principle in the two instances is alike and correct.

In the result of the recent elections in various localities one can easily discern that the grafters' day is doomed. The struggle for civic righteousness was triumphant, and it is reasonable to suppose that the people are delivered from the hold-up type of citizens.

Even though "In God We Trust" is on a counterfeit coin, it is no reason why the belief is not good.

It would not be surprising to learn that the men engaged in issuing the typothetæ strike circulars are candidates for membership in an Ananias club. They are surely eligible.

Judd & Detwiler will put in six Mergenthalers. This firm does a great deal of United States supreme court work in eleven-point type, which gives employment to a large force at hand composition. The advent of the machine will displace many of the oldtime printers downtown, and the Eleventh street rendezvous will soon be a thing of the past.

Ex-Delegate John McCormick (Colorado Springs, 1896) has purchased a weekly newspaper for his two sons, and his printery at Hyattsville, Md., a suburb of Washington, is patterned after a first-class job concern in a big city. The weekly reflects the ability of the McCormicks as newspaper and job printers.

Whenever it is determined to give organized labor a body blow, they appoint to office a man who has always been opposed to that cause. If the appointing powers are in sympathy with trades unions, some good conservative man is selected.

The "walking delegate" in the typothetæ is known by the title of secretary. He is a whole trust, so to speak. He favors the "open shop," long hours, or as many hours as he wants, and objects to living wages.

The loyalty of our members on strike forced the enemy to go into court. And it will force the eight-hour day upon them, too.

Men who are true to their trade union will always be true to their country. Loyalty in the former case is always illustrious in the latter. The lure office and salary has will not sway the honest union man. Of course, this is not the reason that he is so rarely recognized by appointment to office.

These are busy times on the Washington newspapers. With John R. McLean spreading the Post, the Evening Star and the Times are almost at flood tide in the pace. Incidentally, the printerman is working as much as he is able, and some are growing old in rapid fashion. But then there are others coming after.

God loves a cheerful giver, say the divines. Wonder what the devil will do with the fellows who voted against the 50 cents per week per man assessment? By the returns it will be observed that the latter will hardly need to perform overtime.

Christmas will be all the merrier to all of us who have voted to contribute that there may be an universal eight-hour day. It will be likewise exceedingly cheerful and glorious in the achievement of it. Triumph lies in the solidarity of purpose.

Digitized by Google

Washington should have two newspaper representatives in its delegation to International conventions. It is not so much as to numbers to be represented. It is more as to the interests involved in legislation. This equality in representation is of as much importance to Washington newspaper men as it is in being granted in other cities.

The Leaden Heel is the title of a little publication issued in New York under the editorial direction of John F. Busche. It is published under the auspices of the General Philosophic Society, of which George A. Fiske is secretary, and it teems with bright sayings in a most polished style. The Leaden Heel is unique in many respects, and is no doubt established with a view to afford those who are fortunate enough to have their contributions accepted to wield the hammer to their hearts' content. In this particular it will evidently thrive, as its promoters hope to see it.

Restless is the head that in a moment can be decapitated by the chief executioner. And there are some such in this town.

Non-payment of dues does not necessarily make a man solid with an "open shop" advocate.

The turkey trust, by any other name, is fowl. Hooray!

Every 50 cents given to establish an eight-hour day is a contribution toward a better condition for our craftspeople and a perpetuation of the principle that in union there is strength. Don't growl about it, then.

Edward Ash, a well-known printer of Baltimore and elsewhere, was chosen as a member of the Maryland legislature. His election, he says, is due to the loyalty of the union printers and organized wage-earners of that city. His many friends in Washington know that he will be loyal to union principles during his term of office, as he is in private life. Congratulations, Ed, my boy!

Foreman Hawthorne, of the Baltimore American, has about the finest plant in the country. It is a feast for the eyes of a man who thinks he has seen a first-class composing room. In the first place, the American office building is put up in the most modern fashion. Situated in the burned district, it rears to at least fifteen stories, and every section of the city can be viewed from its top. The owner's idea to make it a princely edifice for a newspaper office is shown everywhere, and in his courteous consideration Mr. Hawthorne never tires in making a visit to the composing room a most interesting incident.

Daniel Vaughan, one of Washington's delegation to the St. Louis convention, has been transferred from the main proofroom in the big printery to the labor and commerce department. He is well satisfied with his new berth, and that he will make a proficient clerk goes without saying.

The probability of a downtown president of Columbia Union is gradually focusing into an expediency. During the incumbency of Mr. Shields, it will be recalled, the union was run with equal smoothness in comparison to the long line of presidents from the government printing service. There is every reason to believe that the majority of members in the big printery will grant the plea made for many years that conditions warrant the selection of a downtown man for the presidency next year. Of course, it is far from nomination day, but it is none too soon to look around for the right kind of material. There is no need to mention names just yet. No doubt there will be a number who will want to make the race when it is known that there is a reasonable chance for an out-of-the-government-service candidate. It is equally true, too, that the downtowners will center upon a man thoroughly capable to fill the office with honor and credit.

The Baltimore News chapel made Prince Louis an honorary member during the prince's visit to the Monumental City, and the son of nobility can wear no greater honor. Louis served an apprenticeship at the printing trade, and he will no doubt appreciate this nice distinction accorded by the News printers.

It is "Dixie" Lancaster by all who know him among the craftspeople in Baltimore. He is the editor, publisher, operator, proofreader, corrector and whatnot of the Home Guard Gazette, issued in Baltimore and "published extemporaneously." The last issue was a one-side, four-column affair, without advertisements. But it is well edited, and teems with many bright and original sayings, and the evidence is conclusive that Lancaster is way out of his true line in hoisting the elevator—on a Mergenthaler. He is one of the American's force, and is a charming fellow.

The overwhelming vote on the 50-cent assessment will be interesting reading to President Ellis and his co-employers of the United Typothetæ. The verdict sort of savors of unanimity. The result will hardly be reprinted in any of the typothetæ publications.

Assuming that President Ellis and the rest of the members of the United Typothetæ are entirely familiar with the Bible, the tenth commandment is referred to them for their careful study and consideration.

The universal sentiment of reaching the "last ditch," so earnestly referred to by the United Typothetæ people, is a matter of universal satisfaction on the part of the union printers. The vote in Washington, while it was just what there was reason to expect, was extremely gratifying. It was an evidence that members of Columbia Union were keenly alive to the situation.

The weekly strike bulletins are of much information, and are eagerly looked for.

Are you thinking about an interesting book to take with you to Colorado Springs as a donation to the Home library? Even unions who can not afford to send a delegate may conclude to donate a book. Think it over.

Nowhere in the country was there a newspaper which heralded in big headlines the decision of the United States supreme court making the Missouri eight-hour law constitutional. This decision was a practical victory for the advocates of a shorter workday, principally found in trades unions, and, of course, with its usual silence on this particular subject, the press showed inertia. But the decision stands just the same. JAMES MONROE KREITER.

Digitized by Google

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

This city may now be numbered among those fighting manfully for the eight-hour day in the composing rooms under the jurisdiction of the International Typographical Union. This fight was not sought by No. 2, but was brought to us by the typothetæ in an ultimatum presented to the union. The more radical members of the master printers' association, who, by the way, are proprietors of our worst non-union concerns, insisted upon this action. The more conservative members were willing to defer the issue until January 1, 1906. But the hotheads predominated, and the battle is now on, and it is a great satisfaction to know that the union was not the aggressor. What does worry the membership, however, is the fear that work may be driven from this city during the lockout which may never be recovered, and it is also feared that some of the firms may go into bankruptcy, as they are almost completely tied up. The men obtained, in a great measure, are incompetents, and unable to handle the work formerly turned out in this city, which has always been noted for its excellence. Men have gone to work in some of the offices who have not rubbed a rule on a stone for ten years or more.

To say that the offices affected are in distress would be putting it mildly. Those having contracts for monthly trade journals and magazines are suffering more than the smaller offices. At the Patterson & White establishment, the first to lock out its men, a cylinder press is said to have stood idle three-quarters of a day waiting for a half dozen lines of corrections. At Lippincott's it is impossible for the pressmen to get a register on what forms are sent in, and at Dunlap's only one form had been sent to a cylinder press in nearly a week, the employes in this office being for the most part boys with two or three years' experience. This is a fair sample of conditions in all the offices which have locked out their men and those which were struck on account of doing work for them.

The number of offices affected by the strike is seventeen, and there are 225 men on the benefit roll, and the number of union men who forfeited their cards is sixteen. Among those drawing benefits are the non-union men and apprentices who came out. There was one non-union office employing seven men who refused to handle the work that came from one of the locked-out places, and they walked out in a body. It is impossible for the typothetæ to enforce the nine-hour day when their former allies refuse their aid. These men realize that the loss of this fight in this city means a ten-hour day and a $12 a week scale, as that is plainly the purpose of the members of the typothetæ who precipitated the fight here. It is almost impossible to get competent operators; those working are destroying machinery at a frightful rate, one incompetent breaking twenty-five space-bands in three days. Very expensive hand, this. And it is known that there are plenty like him among the strikebreakers.

Another sample of the duplicity of James Elverson, jr., proprietor of the rat Inquirer, came to light during the past month. Shortly before the election, which was held on November 7, there was every indication that the paper would be squared. It was given out that it would not do to have this happen at that time, as it would lay the Inquirer open to criticism from the other newspapers. So the matter was deferred until the 16th of November, when a conference was held with officials of the union, and he claimed that he had nothing to arbitrate. This was a trick, pure and simple, to stay the hostility of the union workingmen in this city until after the campaign was over and then inform them to go to—well, where there is no skating. The purpose of No. 2 now is to push this fight in such a relentless manner that the proprietor of this rat sheet will beg for mercy, and this can be done in a short time, as the people are aroused to a high pitch of indignation at this slanderous newspaper, which was used as a handbill during the late campaign and distributed at the rate of 100,000 a day throughout the city, because it contained attacks on all the candidates striving for reform. And now that reform has triumphed, the Inquirer will go down to oblivion along with the "gang" whose cause it championed.

It is the general opinion here that the typothetæ was back of the failure of the union to square the Inquirer, as it was contended that a victory for the union in this fight would arouse too much enthusiasm here. There were two agents of the National Manufacturers' Association here lending a hand to try to defeat the eight-hour day. A proposition was made to some of our members that they would be paid $25 a week to circulate among the men and talk against the eight-hour movement. This proposal was spurned by those approached, and Colonel Allen and Mr. Ryan left this city in disgust. They had headquarters at the Bingham House, and endeavored to have a meeting of about fifteen or twenty conservative men, and after wining and dining them they were to go among the locked out men and advocate a return under old conditions. This never materialized, and they decided that this city has improved very much in unionism, or else they had been misinformed as to the caliber of the men here.

As further indicating that Philadelphia is improving and that it is no longer entitled to the name of the "worst rat hole in the east," that unfair newspaper, the Press, during the past month advertised for non-union operators without success. This is something unprecedented, a newspaper advertising for men for the composing room.

Ernst Kreft, chairman of the organization committee, who has been conducting the affairs of No. 2 during its present stormy period, has succumbed to an attack of erysipelas, and is confined to his home, dangerously ill. Nothing more unfortunate could happen to us at this time than the illness of Mr. Kreft. His wise judgment, his cool and calm manner of debating intricate problems, and his aggressive presentation of the union's side to the proprietors, was admired by them, and will be sadly missed by No. 2. It is sincerely hoped by his legion of friends that he will speedily recover and that for years to come our union will reap the benefit of his ever-broadening mind and his ceaseless efforts for the uplifting of the trade unionist in general, but particularly the printers.

Digitized by Google

[See note of Mr. Kreft's death in Note and Comment.—Ed.]

William T. Innes, sr., more familiary known as "Pud," a member of No. 2, has been locked out in the eight-hour fight by his sons, W. T. Innes, jr., and Edward K. Innes, printers and publishers. This firm is a member of the typothetæ, and on a refusal of the men to sign a three-year agreement for nine hours they were discharged. When the agreement was brought into the composing room Mr. Innes, who was the foreman for his sons, said: "Well, I don't believe any of the boys here will sign your agreement. I know I will not. I am a union man, and a union man I will be, whether I can work here or not. I will not give up my card for ten jobs." The men walked out in a body.

A comparative statement published by one of the morning newspapers showing the amount of advertising printed in one week recently by the five morning newspapers showed a gain of 76¾ columns for the Ledger, 34¼ for the North American, 52¾ for the Record, and a loss of 5½ for the Inquirer and 1¾ for the Press. This is merely a gentle hint of the feeling of our business men toward the unfair Inquirer.

During the continuation of the eight-hour fight in this city No. 2 has decided not to accept traveling cards.

The woman's auxiliary of No. 2 has decided to hold special meetings once a week hereafter on Monday evening. The work of the women in the present campaign has been of a character that is highly appreciated by the membership of No. 2. The women have gone on picket duty along with the men, and they have been successful in persuading several women to give up the places of the men which they had taken. There is no getting away from the argument which can be presented by a wife to a woman who has taken her husband's place, and it is a woman with a heart of stone who can refuse. The proprietors tried to work on the wives of our members, sending their business managers to the homes of men whom they knew had large families, and tried to enlist the wife on their side to influence their husbands to remain at work. In this they were unsuccessful, as the woman's auxiliary, by its noble example, had set a standard which the others followed, and if any of the wives showed any inclination to falter, they were called upon by members of the auxiliary and persuaded to bear up a little longer until the clouds parted, and then we would behold the silver lining of the eight-hour day, which meant much to them—more time for the husband with his family and his children, and the establishment of better conditions for those to follow to take up life's burdens where the present journeyman printer has ceased.

An entertainment was given on November 17 for the locked-out members and their wives. It was a very enjoyable affair, and it was surprising the amount of good talent among the printers, and if the worst comes to the worst there are bright prospects that we can form a musical entertaining association, and with the consent of the musicians' union, give entertainments, as did the miners' band during the mineworkers' strike in 1902. President Calvert, in a few well-chosen words, explained to the women how the union was led up to the present difficulty, and assured them that everything pointed to a speedy settlement of the strike. Mrs. Clements, a member of the woman's auxiliary, also said some cheering words to the women and the men also. The entertainment was voted a success.

J. L. Rodier, a member of No. 2, has been appointed special organizer for the American Federation of Labor in this district. Mr. Rodier well deserves his appointment, as he is a good worker and the right man in the right place. He has been doing great work against the Inquirer throughout the state of Pennsylvania during the past eighteen months.

All those attending the Colorado Springs convention should take a book to present to the library of the Home, as it has been well said that "a man will never be lonely with a good book for a companion," and printers are lovers of good literature.

Our union is now passing through the stormiest period of its existence. Not since 1882 have we been under such a heavy assessment (13 per cent), and while it is hard to bear such heavy taxation, if one stops to consider the everlasting benefit to the craft, and that the other fellow would do the same for you if conditions were reversed, this is the spirit of brotherly love which brings so close together the members of trade unions, and is the keystone of success, because no lasting benefit has ever been accomplished without sacrifice and an expenditure of money. Stand together, and victory will be ours. John Meade.

OTTUMWA, IOWA.

Last month No. 73 gave a smoker in honor of the inauguration of the eight-hour day in Ottumwa. Over forty guests were present and the affair was a success in every particular. The committee on entertainment was composed of G. J. Pickett, James Nicholas and H. W. De Jarnette.

The Commercial Printing Company has incorporated with a capital stock of $15,000. The firm has purchased the Courier Blank Book Company, and the new firm is now known as the Commercial Printing and Blank Book Company, and will remove the old Courier Blank Book Company's plant to their enlarged quarters on Second street. They will also install a linotype and a complete stereotyping outfit.

G. J. Pickett, member of the executive council of the Iowa State Federation of Labor, attended the two days' session of that committee in Des Moines.

The 50-cent special assessment carried here with a whoop, 15 to 1. If the International Typographical Union can keep its strikers in food and clothes on such a small sum as this during the coming winter it is more than welcome to it.

No. 73's scale committee presented the new scale to A. G. Wallace recently, but met with the same old evasive replies. As a result, the delegates from this local presented their grievances to the Ottumwa Trades and Labor Assembly and stated that the solicitor for the above mentioned firm carried a card in the local musicians' union and flashed it to secure printing. The assembly gave its support to No. 73, and action was taken censuring the conduct of the solicitor and requesting that his local take the matter in hand and report on same at the next meeting of the assembly.

Digitized by Google

Word has been received from "Bob" Hindman, now in Spokane Falls, that on one of the papers there at least seventeen "subs" showed up daily. "Bob" has many friends here who regretted to see him leave town.

No. 73's secretary has some pretty little colored cards that cost 50 cents each, but never, boys, did you buy more worthy tickets than these receipts for the 50-cent special assessment.

The Ottumwa Trades and Labor Assembly will give a ball in the near future, and President Humphrey, of No. 73, is one of the committee on arrangements.

Its up to every printer in the International Typographical Union, who is a member of the Royal Arcanum, to write to the secretary of that order requesting the use of the label on its printing.

No. 73 has surrendered its jurisdiction over Kirksville, Mo.

The writer notices in the Sioux City correspondence of last month an article mentioning "Kid" De Jarnette, the swift, drowned in Memphis, Tenn., some twenty years ago. When "Kid" De Jarnette took part in the famous race his brother was a little shaver reading eighteen point out of Appleton's primer. HARRY W. DE JARNETTE.

WORCESTER, MASS.

The following editorial appeared in the Messenger, a weekly paper published in Worcester, Mass., and conducting a strictly union establishment, and an eight-hour office in January next:

"This concern is satisfied with its transactions with the typographical union, and also helps to repudiate that overworked and terribly misleading fabrication that often is thrust upon the public—the union wants to run our business.

"Very few outside the printers themselves realize that a strike of the craft is on in Worcester. The daily newspapers refuse to print a line of news matter in relation to it, but if it was a strike of coal handlers or hod carriers or any other trade, there would be scare headlines every day. The printers say they are very well satisfied with the newspaper quietness, however, and that they intend to win the fight for an eight-hour day in this city. The breaking away of the Belisle Publishing Company from the typothetæ, and that firm's acceptance of the union's demands, is the latest feature of the strike, but the fact that Mr. Belisle signed the agreement will be known to the public only when they read the Messenger. The printers expect that other firms will be forced to accept their conditions in a few days, as the help promised the typothetæ from outside sources has failed to materialize." JOHN F. DUGGAN.

Eight hours for work, eight hours for sleep, eight hours to do as we will.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Our October regular meeting developed into an eight-hour lovefeast. Motions pledging full support to the movement and instructing No. 21's officers to forward the money in the shorter workday fund—amounting to $2,700—were unanimously carried. An expression of opinion heartily favored the 50-cent assessment, and two days later the proposition was carried by a five-to-one vote. A committee was appointed to arrange for an entertainment having for its object a further substantial check for the International's treasury. Our fight cost several thousand dollars, but while there are unions in need of support it is unlikely that San Francisco Union will present any requisition for the money. On the contrary, every energy will be devoted to the cause we are deeply interested in. We realize that the best possible eight-hour insurance is the sum of 50 cents a week from each member. In order to make this payment as easy as possible for all concerned, arrangements were made to have the organization pay for those who earn less than $10 a week. As there are a number of unemployed men in town, this was a thoughtful provision. We are in the fight to encourage by our victory, to cheer with hopeful words, and, above all, to contribute the hard coin of the realm in heavy "chunks." If there is anything else we can do, please ask John Macintyre, of the United Typothetæ of America, for our address!

The splendid stand of Detroit Typographical Union aroused enthusiasm at the last meeting. The grim determination to refuse to be beaten illustrates the printer-unionist spirit. To our comrades of No. 18 we send hearty congratulations. When the smoke of battle clears, and the shorter workday becomes universal, these men, in every sense of the word, will deserve a high niche in the temple of victory.

He who reads as he runs has observed that the non-unionist is always used as a foil, gently placed on the sidewalk when a settlement is reached by his employer—never mind how roseate the previous promises—and, incidentally, the gainer in the end by the improved conditions secured through the combination of his union craftsmen. If these men who prate of "tyranny" and "individualism" in this free (?) economic age would only be consistent and absolutely refuse to work less than nine hours in the future, or had insisted in toiling ten hours in the days gone by, we could understand their reasoning. But history shows that they reach out gladly for the prize—at the other fellow's expense.

John Macintyre's official (mis)statement of the San Francisco lockout of last July is a beautiful exhibition of what didn't happen. Biblical history tells us of another Macintyre. John says that we "lie," "misrepresent," "hesitate at nothing to gain our ends," are "men dangerous to the welfare of any community or trade," were guilty of "violence" and "intimidation," that our word is not to be believed "either written or given in the presence of witnesses," and sundry other choice expressions. Brother Macintyre looks and talks as though his forebears were of good old Presbyterian stock. If so, John surely learned the lesson of the cruel fate awaiting those who do not confine themselves to the truth. A reply has been prepared, in justice to the facts (it isn't necessary to contradict John), and it will probably be printed in full in the trade papers. We are told we wouldn't "confer." We held conferences. John was present at one, and kept a stenographer's arm busy taking down bitter words concerning our International officers—a truly noble pastime, considering that these gentlemen were absent. The tieup was so complete that there was no chance for "violence" or "intimidation," had we desired to indulge. As a matter of history, we don't do either. John was so anxious to break the combination between the printers and pressmen that he offered the latter eight hours on an arbitration scheme. He found our coworkers to be trade unionists. John says that there are fourteen "open" shops, employing "three hundred hands," a legacy of his valiant efforts. There are just three shops, manned by a few incompetents. We have gained two of the largest non-union houses within the past month, something we owe a debt of gratitude to John for. They are now "fair" for the first time in their history. No. 21 never was in better shape. It has more label offices than ever. The Macintyre connection with our dispute may be summed up in two words: John failed.

Digitized by Google

The typothetæ authorities told Philadlephia Union of "open shop" conditions here—an absolutely untrue statement. The foregoing paragraph contains the facts.

The writer voted for increasing the salaries of the International officers. Men who have large interests entrusted to their care, who have to be ready at all times to write and talk as our spokesmen, who are required in the natural order of events to violate the eight-hour law, and whose decisions and actions are far-reaching, are entitled to better compensation. In San Francisco we have a job printer holding a responsible position who receives $300 a year more than our International president, and there are scores of foremen in the country supervising a handful of men whose salaries are larger. The proposition is reasonable, and should become law.

While business is fair for the holiday season, we have received an extra number of traveling cards lately. There are more men in town than there is work for, and the Christmas rush will be nearly over when these lines are perused.

The Chronicle tower was burned in a spectacular fire on election night, November 7. Tons of water were thrown on the flames, and seeped down to the basement. Two nights after the composing force was back in its old quarters, and men are rapidly transforming the building into its former condition. The typesetting machines, cases and presses were covered in such excellent style that but little damage resulted.

When the annex to the Chronicle building is completed the composing room will be enlarged. The Examiner contemplates giving its employes more space. These reforms are needed.

W. W. Wilson died on October 23, aged thirty-four years. The deceased was a native of Kansas. E. A. Peterson died on October 25, at the age of thirty-nine. W. S. (Windy) Taylor, an ex-secretary of No. 21, died in Fresno, Cal., on October 29. John J. Kennedy, an exempt member, died in Nome, Alaska, last February.

Robert Collins, of No. 21, had patented on August 15 last a linotype mouthpiece for the ventilation of linotype molds—a problem that has puzzled those connected with the machines since Mergenthaler's genius was given to the world. The object of the invention is to provide a mouthpiece for the metal pot or crucible of a linotype machine by means of which a better flow of metal into the mold is allowed and the thorough venting of the mouthpiece permitted, thus preventing defective slugs. This patent avoids sunken or depressed letters. It has been used in a machine office in San Francisco since May 2, and has given perfect satisfaction. Mr. Collins is enthusiastic over the outcome of his long period of toil and planning, and predicts that his linotype mouthpiece will be universally used when its merits are shown to those whose capital is invested in machines.

The unions are printing a calendar for 1906, to be distributed in every home in San Francisco. It will show in colors the various union labels and buttons, and will prove both useful and ornamental.

Herbert George, of Denver, the head of the local citizens'. alliance, stated that he whipped the unions in the primary election. But the labor candidates were elected by majorities running from 7,000 to 11,504 at the polls on November 7. despite a fusion of the republican and democratic parties on an opposition ticket. The c. a. was responsible for the victory. WILL J. FRENCH.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

At the last meeting of No. 115 considerable eight-hour enthusiasm was shown, and the sentiments expressed generally would do those men on strike a heap of good could they have heard them. While we are far removed from any base of the fight, the heroes now waging war may rest assured that Salt Lake is ever ready to furnish its full share of ammunition to crush the underlying open-shop movement. The fight on its face is for eight hours, but a defeat for the union means a thousand times worse than eight hours. It means disruption—first by time, second by open shop, then our displacement. The open shop also means more than it says in words. It means that employers will take advantage of conditions by urging union men that they need no organization, showing them how well their fellow workmen get along without paying dues, etc. Of course, this argument would have no effect with union men of experience, but there are hundreds of our members who have never given unionism the serious thought the subject demands. There are weaklings in all organizations—men and women who have never been taught or had sufficient experience to shield them against the pretty little studied speeches of union-breaking employers. While we are proud that our ranks are hanging well together, we must take every precaution to educate our membership in union principles.

Digitized by Google

It would be a thousand times better to work nine hours or more than to harbor even the thought of the open shop. I would rather see a 50 per cent assessment than to see the open shop gaining ground. The only thought in the minds of employers who urge the open shop is the disruption of unions. Clothing manufacturers are giving us a good illustration of this plan, and it is safe to say that 50 per cent less clothing today carries the union label than two years ago. Unless a mighty effort is at once put forth, the union label on manufactured clothing will never again be seen.

The present contest must be won, and the working membership must stand solid in support of our out-of-work brethren. The question of money should be the least of our troubles, and our loyalty to every desire of the executive council should be shown in such a way that our officers have the unanimous and unlimited support of every member of the International Typographical Union.

Men who go to war for a nation seldom eat pastry, and we should all feel that, if necessary, we will cut out the pie and cake and send the equivalent to furnish the necessities at the front.

All quarrels and grievances should now be forgotten. I am proud to note that such is the case with No. 115, and that our members who have had grievances in the past are the first to announce their hearty support in every way to aid this great fight for the maintaining and upbuilding of our conservative and fair-dealing International Typographical Union.

To the members on strike: Salt Lake No. 115 sympathizes with you and congratulates you on the bright prospects that confront you. By your standing firm you have won the plaudits of organized labor, and your heroism will give your fellows who are not engaged a courage which will never waver when their turn comes to emulate your example.

A. THOMPSON.

NEW YORK, N. Y.

I have no desire to indulge in a political discussion, but I know that every union man is anxious to know what Big Six did in regard to the recent municipal election in New York City in which William Randolph Hearst was a candidate for mayor.

When Hearst was nominated for mayor, the printers of New York seem to have become possessed of that smile-that-won't-come-off. We began to congratulate ourselves that we at last had a true friend of trade-unionism as a candidate for the mayorality. Of course, we knew Hearst all right.

And we stood by him, boys. We talked Hearst, we worked for Hearst, we voted for Hearst, and then we watched the counting of the votes for Hearst.

About three weeks before election I started the ball rolling. I began the organization of a "W. R. Hearst League of the Allied Printing Trades" in the mechanical department of the Textile Publishing Company, 200 Greene street, with forty members. Other offices quickly followed suit, and at the end of one week we had 3,000 members enrolled. Your correspondent was elected president of the league, Alexander MacLean was elected secretary, and C. M. Waggoner treasurer.

We opened up elegant headquarters at 238 Fourth avenue, and I gave my entire time for two weeks to increasing the membership and perfecting the organization. On election day our league had 9,000 members—a most phenominal showing for three weeks' work. Never before has the printing trade in New York so enthusiastically and unanimously supported a man for public office. About 4,000 of our league members were members of Big Six. The remaining 2,100 members of Big Six were divided as follows: One thousand living in New Jersey, had no vote; 500 who had not sufficient residence here to vote; 400 who voted for Hearst, but did not care to join the league, 200 who thought it their duty to vote against Mr. Hearst.

And that is how Big Six endorsed Hearst for mayor. No, we didn't pass any resolutions in any of our regular union meetings, or get off a long string of whereases, but we went out as individuals and did what we could to aid in Mr. Hearst's election.

During the campaign our league held a mammoth mass meeting in Everett Hall, and there were 2,500 cheering printers crowded into the hall —1,000 more were outside in the street trying to pry their way in. Mr. Hearst addressed our meeting and the boys went crazy—yes, crazy with joy—when Mr. Hearst entered the hall, and before Mr. Hearst left we had left no doubt in his mind but what the printers were for him, heart and soul.

At the last regular meeting of Big Six our membership, by a large majority, repudiated the Unionist, and denounced the editor, Mr. J. H. Delaney, for his untruthful attacks on Mr. Hearst in a spurious issue of the Unionist dated October 24. This issue of which I speak is as vile a campaign document as I have ever seen. Two hundred thousand copies of this issue were printed and scattered throughout the city in an attempt to create the impression that the printers of New York regarded Hearst as a slave-driver and employer of scab labor. At least 1,000 members of Bix Six ordered Mr. Delaney to stop their subscriptions, and the paper is dead as far as our local union is concerned.

OSCAR E. WINBURN.

WHAT our grandfathers regarded as the natural and just demands of employer upon employe are now regarded as rigorous and tyrannous exactions of a brute. And in trying still to continue such exactions men slink behind the lawyer-constructed shield of the corporation, that they may be easier in conscience by trying to believe they are not "personally" responsible.—Reader Magazine.

OFFICIAL BATTLE CRY OF THE I. T. U.

We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen.

Digitized by Google

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

The event of the month has been the coming of Joseph B. Gill, the new special organizer. His first introduction to our membership in general was at our November meeting, where he tried to get the union to adopt a plan of organization work which should begin with filling the vacant offices of president and vice-president. Then the floodgates of eloquence were opened—mainly on the question of amalgamation with Boston, despite the explicit assurance brought straight from the Boston leaders that Boston wouldn't touch the amalgamation proposition with a ten-foot pole till the eight-hour difficulty was settled; and the end was that the meeting found the hour so late that it voted to adjourn, after making provision for a special meeting at which action should be taken. The special meeting will be held on November 22, and will, I hope, put us on a working basis. It is true, as was said at the regular meeting, that what the Cambridge situation essentially requires is not electing officers and adopting schemes of organization, but work, largely of the same nature as it would have to be if there were no union in Cambridge. But it is equally true that many parts of this work can not be undertaken with a creditable "face" (as the Chinese call it) unless we have an organization in proper form.

Our best information from Boston seems to be that the way to increase our chances of amalgamation is by making ourselves as strong a body as possible, so that it may look less like a question of taking an element of special weakness into the Boston jurisdiction. If we can not hope to gather more than tenth-rate strength, as some of our members seem to think, that will at least be better as a basis for amalgamation negotiations, as well as for all other purposes, than twentieth-rate or ninety-ninth-rate strength. And this includes not only the increase of membership, but also a decent show of correct organization.

A FEW "BULLS."

Washington, D. C., take notice. I am told, on the authority of Professors Hart and Channing, that "none of the so-called authoritative texts of the constitution are free from error"; this statement "includes the texts published by the state department of the United States, that in the revised statutes of the United States, the manual of the senate, and the manual of the house." What do the proofreaders in the big shop at Washington say to that?

They may say that proofreaders elsewhere sometimes make errors. "International Praise," a very widely-sold Sunday-school hymn-book, has in the hymn "O day of rest and gladness" the lines

> Sing Holy, Holy, Holy,
> To the great God Tribune.

Bishop Wordsworth is believed to have written it without the b. But some folks do seem to be a trifle short on religious language. When I was a small boy I saw a copy of a paper reporting a missionary convention where one speaker, using a Biblical phrase, had said that certain events on the mission field were "the sound of a going in the tops of the mulberry trees"—that is, a divine call to move forward. The compositor or proofreader, I don't know which, had wanted to make it something that he knew of as making a sound, and had left the i out of "going."

That was to make sense, I take it. But what was it when in 1891 the New York Evening Sun went on the street with "September deal" printed instead of "superintendent"? Or when lately the Saturday Evening Post (or was it one of the 10-cent magazines?) called the persons occupying the 50-cent seats at a certain entertainment "fifty-centres"?

Here you see the ravages of style. "Centre" being the office style, it had to go. The like appears when an anarchist paper to which I had written the sentence "it has been current as common law over a much wider area than any where the government either ordained it or permitted it" printed my "any where" as "anywhere" on the same page where it printed my "abominable display" as "automobile display" and my "are wont to end" as "are not to end." All this from typewritten copy, please understand.

But don't imagine that this sort of thing belongs peculiarly to the anarchists. It was this same anarchist paper that printed "if any one is naive enough to believe" something or other, and the New York Times, quoting the words for hostile purposes, made it "knave enough." The anarchist editor got onto the blunder, and made knavish fun of the Times' naïveté.

I think it was another anarchist paper, of a stripe that wouldn't acknowledge the first-named one as anarchistic nor be acknowledged by it, that was printing a translation of Bebel's "Woman," and in the words "when sincere marital relationships exist between husband and wife" got the i and t in "marital" transposed.

Such slurs at marriage should not be permitted. So when in a school-book office the compositor sent in the statement that in some city of southeastern Europe one of the chief articles of traffic was the "wives" of certain countries, the proofreader, being a perfectly respectable young lady, made the v an n as in copy.

Talking of school-books, I have always thought it an instance of intentional mischief by the devil or somebody when in Crippen's "Constitutions of the United States and Vermont" sec. 41 Vt. reads, "Laws for the encouragement of virtue and prevention of vice and immortality ought to be constantly kept in force," etc.

But this perversion of the laws of the land is capped by the "American and English Encyclopædia of Law," which in the article "Marriage," page 509 of the volume, begins a paragraph with the statement "Deceit is an essential of marriage." The copy in the Boston Public Library has "is" corrected in pencil to "in," which certainly makes smoother sense of the sentence as a whole; yet the sentence also makes sense with "is" if you assume that the commas are a trifle careless.

We sometimes hear stories of the consecutive publication of two errors in the same word. I saw such a case in the Burlington (Vt.) Free Press and Times about 1890. An advertiser was calling attention to his stock of cuffs, "including all the nobby styles in Sinks." Evidently the advertiser made a kick on this spelling, for next day the compositor tried a lower-case letter, and the paper came out with the word "tinks." The third day they succeeded in getting in an l.

Digitized by Google

About three years ago the Inland Printer reprinted Andrew Lang's well-known article on proofreaders, wherein Lang complains that they often make errors that the sense should have enabled them to correct. Towards the end of the article Lang tells the story of the geologist who said that a certain plain was "covered with erratic blocks," which was printed "erotic blacks," seemingly in an attempt to make sense that the proofreader could understand. But the Inland Printer proofreader, observing that Lang said the latter spelling was an error, corrected it to agree with the former, so that we got the statement that instead of "erratic blocks" they printed "erratic blocks." I do not remember enough of the details to tell in which of the repetitions of the phrase this was done.

I hope the JOURNAL proofreader won't make similar corrections in my list. All the errors I cite, except "knave," I have seen with my own eyes as printed in their erroneous form. If anybody of my age (thirty-seven) has a list to beat this, I shall take pleasure in reading it.

STEVEN T. BYINGTON.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.

As predicted in our last letter No. 141 has eleven agreements signed out of a possible dozen. The twelfth, however, has no union man employed there, and our full membership is provided for without a struggle; better still, harmony and friendliness continue stronger than ever.

A splendid refutation of the misnomer "open shops" was made in our hearing recently. Calling upon a "boss" to help him see his way clear to sign a contract, the committee was met with the statement that he intended doing as he had for some time past, run his shop on the "open shop" plan. He was told that he was not doing so, for his shop had been closed for two years and in that time he did not have a union man in it, and worse than that, he could not hire a union man until the boys in the local would give the members the privilege to work there. He was surprised to learn this, and we feel it will be some time before he says he is running an "open shop." After all, brothers, we know that this "bugaboo" does not and can not exist without the sanction of the organization.

James Monroe Krieter, of Washington, D. C., whose melodious voice was heard so much as the reading clerk of the Toronto convention, certainly touched the right key when he made the suggestion that all delegates and visitors to Colorado Springs convention next year will take them a book for the library of the Home. We believe this strikes a popular cord, and since we are all going, the trustees had better make arrangements accordingly. In our selections let us use care, and be governed with the idea that we some day may be compelled to lay aside for a while, and then determine what kind of a book would we like to read? This may sound a little selfish, but rather that than careless.

We were an elected delegate to the American Federation of Labor convention in Pittsburg, but circumstances interfering compelled us to forego the pleasure. In reading the reports the campaign between Colorado Springs and Pittsburg at the Toronto convention was again vividly portrayed, for the Springs was there with its usual energetic committee, and we wondered if Snyder was one of them. Foreigners watching the labor movement will soon begin to believe there are only these two places in the United States that entertain conventions of this kind.

S. HERMAN ALTER.

OMAHA, NEB.

First Vice-President Hays was in Omaha November 8 and 9. A special meeting of No. 190 was called for his benefit on the evening of the 9th.

The locked-out members of No. 190 are taking things easy and playing a waiting game. The confidence placed in the committee in charge of the affair is unlimited.

Eighteen imported printers working for the Omaha Printing Company quit work Saturday, November 4, and left the city. This was brought about by the local executive committee.

At time of this writing President Fisher states that the lockout is well in hand and ultimate success is assured.

The local label league gave a ball November 15, which proved a financial success.

This little sticker is being attached to printed matter received by unionists and then sent back to the sender:

I Return This Printed Matter because it does not bear this Label

AMER. FEDERATION OF LABOR — UNION LABEL LEAGUE — OMAHA 32

The use of which indicates that the work is done in OMAHA and under conditions that will build more HOMES.

One of our local "union busters" was talking to a member of No. 190 about what was going to happen to the union printers of Omaha. Among other things he intimated that the union was whipped to a frazzle and everything running fine. "I want to take you around to the various shops and let you see for yourself how smooth everything is working," he concluded. And the next day eighteen imported men quit work in one shop!

This week the Labor Advocate prints a facsimile proof of a job set up by one of the "printers" employed in a local shop. If all the proofs in that shop are one-tenth as bad as the one published the proprietors must be losing barrels of money. The Labor Advocate is giving considerable space to the union end of the lockout and also to exploiting the various union labels. It prints a full page of cuts of different labels and a list of firms handling articles bearing the label, all without expense to local organizations.

Digitized by Google

That Chicago injunction seems to be the limit.

According to reports the United States supreme court has upheld the Missouri eight-hour law for miners. This is the same court that held just the reverse in regard to the bakers of New York.

The railroads seem to be getting wise. After seventeen years of opposition to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers the Burlington road has signed an agreement with that organization. It is now up to the Parryites to get sore and return rebates and passes.

A committee of women from the auxiliary, headed by Mrs. D. G. Craighead, visited the most prominent Omaha business men connected with the business men's association, for the purpose of ascertaining their views on the local lockout of printers and to ask them to keep hands off and allow the employers and employes to settle the matter. The report of the committee was published in full by the Omaha Bee and the Labor Advocate, covering four columns. The auxiliary is a valuable assistant to No. 190 in this time of trouble.

So far we have kept out of the courts.

The local members are paying their 10 per cent assessment with a smile, and no one doubts but what the eight-hour day will be won in Omaha.

I. J. COPENHARVE.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz, of San Francisco, is in Los Angeles at this writing (November 16), and probably will remain a week. For the third time he has been chosen as chief executive of the leading city of the Pacific coast, the majority which he received at the recent election being remarkable, polling 11,500 more votes than his opponent, who was the standard-bearer of both the republican and democratic parties. Every element hostile to organized labor was arrayed against Schmitz and the union labor party, and the battlecry seemed to be, "Down with the unions!" The issue was clear cut. There was no middle ground. Those who favor the unions voted the union labor ticket, Those who oppose the unions voted the mongrel ticket. Not only Schmitz, but every candidate on the labor ticket was swept into office. Naturally, the union men of San Francisco are pleased, but not more so than the union men of Los Angeles, as the landslide has proved almost fatal to poor old Mr. Otis. How a person can rave as he is doing and keep out of the hands of doctors is not easily understood. And, to add to his discomfiture, Mayor Schmitz has been lionized during his visit to this city. Last night the mayor addressed a mass meeting of union men, and added to the gaiety of the occasion by saying:

"If the Times's own statements can be relied upon, organized labor has our friend Otis upon the run, and his destination is a lunatic asylum."

Schmitz handled Otis without gloves, and received thunderous applause. And it may be added that the vote polled by Hearst has not had a tendency to sweeten the temper of the old gentleman with a tin sword and a questionable war record.

The action of the American Federation of Labor in commending the re-election of Mayor Schmitz is a radical departure, as it has ever been the policy of the federation to "keep out of politics." Evidently the labor leaders of the country believe, as did the voters of San Francisco, that the surest way to kill the citizens' alliance is to keep its henchmen out of public office. It would seem that Mr. Otis also appreciates this fact.

J. J. Coady, of the Boston American, visited relatives in Los Angeles during the past month. He made many friends while here, impressing all with whom he came in contact by his earnest and gentlemanly demeanor.

At the last meeting of Los Angeles Typographical Union the secretary-treasurer reported a membership of 336, the largest in the history of the organization.

Organizer T. D. Fennessy has returned from a six-weeks' trip to Texas in the interest of the eight-hour workday. He visited El Paso, San Antonio, Austin, Galveston, Houston, Fort Worth and Dallas, and expresses the belief that by the first of the year practically every office will be in line. While in the Lone Star state "Tom" made the startling discovery that Texas is the best printing country on the map—a fact that every Texan has known a long, long time.

The last session of the eight-hour conference of southern California, held at Long Beach, was most encouraging, reports submitted showing that the eight-hour day will be inaugurated on schedule time in this section of the jurisdiction. After the conference the delegates were taken aboard a launch and conveyed to San Pedro, where a splendid spread was served, the union members of that place doing the honors. The next conference will be held at San Bernardino before this letter appears in print.

In Los Angeles the opinion is general that the adoption of the 50-cent assessment by so large a majority renders certain the success of the eight-hour movement.

Let us make assurance doubly sure by standing together and pulling together.

Remember, there is but one question before the house.

FRANCIS DRAKE.

WARWICK, R. I.

Warwick Union No. 662 is progressing finely. Twelve members are now enrolled in good standing, with one application to be acted upon at next meeting. Three offices in the Pawtuxet valley have applied to the union for the label On Thursday evening, November 9, the union held an entertainment in the Parish House at Phenix, to create a fund to meet the eight-hour assessment. Credit is due Providence Union No. 33 for their aid at this time, as a number of tickets were disposed of to members of Providence Union. But Warwick Union has come to stay, and while we are yet laboring under difficulties, we shall persevere and build up a union which will be a power in the Pawtuxet valley.

A. C. KINGSLEY.

Digitized by Google

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.

The Pike's Peak printorial mind certainly occupies itself largely these days with matters pertaining to eight hours. Nary a bulletin from headquarters but what is thoroughly digested, and endless are the expressions of admiration for the boys "at the front" who are bearing the brunt of the fight and showing that they measure up in every way to that standard of unionism which has won for us at all times. It will win this time, too.

The vote against the 50-cent assessment in the City of Sunshine was so small that it was hardly noticeable. We missed out on unanimity of action by a whisker. As remarked before, No. 82 will stay with the eight-hour movement till the crack of doom.

As far as possible, things keep right on adoing with the convention committee. They are awake all the time. While the committee realizes that its work is seriously handicapped in some respects by the extensive contest over the shorter workday, its sub-committees are busy looking into things and planning in a way that will make the 1906 convention the greatest ever. Later on, when times be more propitious, your correspondent will take pleasure in enumerating a few of the stunts the Rocky Mountain boys have in pickle. Right now it is well to mention, however, that the souvenir will be a stunner. William A. Snyder, delegate to Toronto, Austin Davis and James Durnell have the book in charge, and the committee represents business tact, artistic printing ability and literary efficiency. The production will be largely handmade, of loft-dried, deckel-edge papers, inlaids, fabrics and crashes. The paper in the literary section will be in plate and coated finishes, and will be profusely illustrated in colors. The cover will carry a beautiful three-color design of the Home, in itself a rare specimen of modern artistic typography.

Haverly is said to have claimed that he could make a minstrel out of any man who could talk. Home Superintendent Deacon, as far as known, has never made any such boast, but from the result of the entertainment given at the Home November 9, which was billed as a "Return Engagement of Deacon's All-Star Minstrels," he has Haverly beat a mile. It was the beginning of the series of entertainments which Mr. Deacon inaugurated last winter for the benefit of residents at the Home, and was a success in every way. A pretty first part, set in colonial fashion, and jammed full of catchy and up-to-date music, was followed by an olio of merit. The entertainment is to be repeated shortly, in compliment to the board of trustees at their coming meeting, and I will then take the opportunity to make mention in detail of the performances of those who took part; and they all deserve much credit. Both Superintendent and Matron Deacon work untiringly that these entertainments may be creditable to the Home and a source of pleasure to the residents, and they are invariably successful. The "S. R. O." sign is always up on show nights.

Many will be sorry to hear that Al Stagg is no more. Poor Al died at the Home a week ago and was buried in the plot at Evergreen cemetery. He was one of the too many who came too late.

Which reminds me. Last week I received a letter from an old friend up in New England, describing his condition (extremely advanced), and asking me if I believed he could get well if he came to Colorado. I reply openly and painfully: No! No! No! Colorado air will not make new lungs. There is no place on earth where air will. One may live longer here in an advanced stage than at some other altitude, but that's the best that can be hoped for, and there is doubt about that. I may be considered emphatic, and by some cruel, in my positive conclusion, but the conclusion is based upon careful study and experience, and I stand ready to be accused of any old crime if I can head off some of the damphool eastern doctors from persuading dying men that they can get well if they only come west.

Once more, begin early with the "bugs." The time to do your fighting with them is in the first round.

Ricketty blix. Eight hours.

Pike's Peak or bust. CHARLES M. CARTER.

BOISE, IDAHO.

E. F. ("Tige") Caton is once more a member of No. 271, having returned last week from Portland. "Tige" is an active union worker, and is seldom out of harness wherever he plants his foot.

This union has enjoyed the eight-hour day since January 1, 1905. Since going into effect three job members were voluntarily given $3 per week over the scale ($21 per week). Guess they (the proprietors) must think eight hours is a paying proposition.

J. J. Dallas "pulled stakes" for Anaconda, and Lewis O'Brien and Ed Hays for Tacoma during the month.

'Gene Secor, of Denver, Will J. Hayner, of Boston, and Fred Judson, of Weiser, are new arrivals.

W. E. ROSS.

NEWARK, N. J.

Great progress has been made in Newark in the eight-hour fight since my last letter. Another typothetæ scalp now dangles at our belt, the latest office to sign the shorter workday agreement being the Advertiser Printing House. The lines on the other struck offices have been drawn more tightly, and it is but a question of a short time when good results of the local campaign will be shown.

The utmost confidence is felt here as to the final outcome of the struggle, which will mean the reestablishing of the International Typographical Union forces in greatly strengthened strongholds. No doubt has ever been expressed that this would not be the finale.

It seems to be a fixed idea and belief among many of No. 103 that the continual change of policy by the typothetæ is a sure sign of their weakness, and that the employers are at a loss for an issue to keep their fight before the public. In the last issue of Office Topics, published by the president of the local typothetæ, it was stated that the eight-hour day would come eventually, but what the employers considered their most serious objection was "that they were compelled to keep incompetent men on their pay rolls." They also object to alleged shop practices, but on this point the union will have to be enlightened, for we know nothing concerning shop practices. Each office is given a copy of the rules and regulations before the establishment is unionized, and a perusal will satisfy any mind that nothing is contained therein which infringes upon the rights of a proprietor. It is to be trusted that the typothetæ will pass up the shop practice issue, as we can not comprehend how such a feature should have crept into the local struggle.

Digitized by Google

As was to have been expected, the circulation of printed copies of the International Typographical Union obligation proved a boomerang, and the near-sighted gentlemen of the typothetæ responsible for the action were greatly chagrined when it was seen how one of their choice schemes was nipped in the bud. Rev. Dr. Edwin Wasson, pastor of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, editor of The Crown, dealt a solar plexus blow to the employers, commenting on their sending out the obligation anonymously this way:

> Now anonymous defamation is low business; it is striking below the belt; it is shooting from behind a hedge; it is doping a horse the night before a race, and I would stand up for an insurance grafter even, if prevented from confronting his accusers. Nothing is more pleasing to the Almighty than a good honest fight, each side believing itself in the right. But this dark-lantern business is beneath—anything I can think of. Do the bosses approve of this procedure, or have they some fool agent?
>
> To the anonymous gentleman I reply, as a matter of courtesy, that I don't wish to know him, and that he has tried to hoodwink me, and to misrepresent a body of men with whom he is at variance, these acts together constituting an aggrieved case of foul, I sincerely hope that he and his side will be thoroughly thrashed. It may teach them manners, if not morals.

The Crown, by the way, was published in a typothetæ office, and the employer's feelings upon being compelled to put in type the reverend gentleman's opinion may be imagined. Rev. Dr. William Morgan, of the Central Methodist Church, also approved of the union's course in a sermon from his pulpit, and stated that he hoped the eight-hour day would soon become an assured fact.

Wonder where the typothetæ expects to secure enough hamfatters to fill up the big boroughs the first of the year? The big towns are gutted now, likewise the smaller ones, but it is presumed that there is a bug under the chip that is being carefully guarded, either in camphor or in gold dust. Mr. Blanchard's pretty little contribution to the cause of master printerdom—that of establishing printing plants in all high schools—will take a great deal of time for consummation, and little help can be looked for from this score. The tried-and-found-wanting dodge of breaking in typewriters on the linotype is being given a trial here, but we all know what the result of this will be.

The fight is pretty nearly won, and, with continued fidelity upon the part of our membership, the time will be greatly shortened.

E. D. Balentine.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The printing plant of the Winona Technical Institute, Indianapolis, was formally opened for business last week. The instructors are all union printers—Messrs. Frank Chandler (principal); C. D. Salsich, Charles W. Hayes and John Geckler—a happy combination of superior workmen; each a master in his separate line of trade. There were several thousand people at the opening, and all were amazed at the grand collection of machinery, all of the latest pattern. The composing room is 80x200 feet, well lighted, cement floor, and the assortment of type almost equals in variety the contents of a large type foundry catalogue. The equipment includes five linotype machines of the modern style, four cylinder presses, and a battery of platen presses, roller washing machinery, mammoth paper cutters and dust-proof cabinets of the most recent style. Individual motors are attached throughout. All the machinery is not yet installed.

The apprentice regulation now available makes specialists only, and boys are forced, or restricted, to some particular line of composition, and the average journeyman DOES NOT DARE TO TAKE THE EMPLOYERS' time to instruct apprentices, as employes in nearly all job printing offices must fill a time slip at the close of each day. At the Technical School conditions are different. There is no such thing as RUSH orders. Everything is calm; and everything is business.

The school sets forth that its primary purpose is to increase the industrial capacity of the printer, and through this increased capacity broaden his worth to the employer.

The need of such a school is shown by a peculiar condition which has long existed in the "art preservative." It has been found that there are ample opportunities to learn the rudiments of printing. Hardly a town in the middle west is without its newspaper, with job printing plant attached, with a large or small number of boys who are, in too many instances, learning the trade of some one who is incompetent to teach it. Those who enter the school must obtain the rudiments of printing as they do at present, and must have a definite knowledge of these rudiments when they enter the training school. What the technical institute will undertake will be to polish off the students and make high-grade newspaper and book compositors of them; make them adepts in setting display advertisements, and the artistic side of job work will be extensively dealt with. In press work the students will all take up book, job and color printing and embossing. Along with the artistic and mechanical elements of printing, the student will receive instruction in economical production, the systemization of business, care and economy in the purchase and handling of stock.

This institution is to be more than a training school for young printers. It is proposed to make a permanent exposition of printing and printing appliances out of it, where all those interested in the printing art may see examples of the finest machinery and the highest examples of the art. This school promises to be of great service to the industrial world.

The value of the institution is placed at $1,000,000, and it is maintained by endowments and private subscriptions.

Frank J. DeWare.

Digitized by Google

CHICAGO, ILL.

The committee appointed at the July meeting of No. 16 to report some plan of ward club organization throughout the city, for the purpose of promoting the sale of union-made articles and a more careful attention to the union labels of all crafts by the union members, recommended the plan established and now successfully in use by the Twenty-first Ward Trade Union Club of this city. The objects are as follows:

To promote a more thorough education in the real principles of organized labor.

To further personal acquaintance and strengthen the loyalty of different craft organizations.

To more firmly impress on the minds of union members the duty they owe themselves and others by purchasing articles bearing the union label when the union-made article can be secured.

To have placed on sale in the ward every article manufactured bearing the union label.

To facilitate the patronage of union firms by compiling a "fair list," consisting of union business houses, together with all union-made articles on sale and where they can be found.

To keep constantly before union members the fact that encouraging the employment of non-union men, by lack of discrimination in their patronage, is just as damaging a form of "strikebreaking" as taking the job of the man who strikes for union conditions.

To canvass the ward systematically for non-union workingmen and induce as many as possible to join the union of his craft.

To secure such general information on the manufacture and sale of union-made articles and the employment of union men as may be deemed beneficial to labor.

To establish a system of "Piper-izing" throughout the ward that will keep the "weak-kneed" union man in line.

To render assistance in the formation of similar clubs throughout the city, and, eventually, form a federation or joint council of them all.

The committee's report further stated:

It is estimated that $1,000,000 is earned and spent by members of organized labor in the city of Chicago every day. If all of this money were spent in union houses, for union-made articles, it would eliminate all necessity for strikes and their attending expense and hardships. We have a vivid picture in proof of this statement—the strike of the garment workers' union. During this struggle organized labor contributed thousands of dollars to enable them to make their noble fight for fair wages and conditions. But for every dollar we gave the struggling union, we gave, by our patronage, five dollars or perhaps fifty, in profits, to the employers, knowing that it was being used to crush the union we were sacrificing ourselves to support.

We have a righteous contempt for the "strikebreaker;" how often we forget that every time we buy a suit of clothes without the union label we are "strikebreaking" the garment workers' or tailors' union, that every time we buy a package of tobacco without the union label we are helping to break a strike of the tobacco workers.

We believe it is time to adopt some measure to put a stop to this leakage of the energies of organized labor. Let us draw a dividing line by giving all of our patronage to employers who employ union labor. Let us put all the money we spend where it will benefit our fellow members in other crafts, where it will have a tendency to increase wages and shorten hours. Let those employers who are content to employ non-union men be content with the patronage of non-union men.

There is a real union man, one who is a union man at heart and tries to live up to its principles, and the man who merely "carries a paid-up card" for the immediate advantage it gives him. If you are one of the former class we ask you to join us.

B. F. Chittick and R. D. Hogan constitute the committee. Mr. Hogan is president of the club and a hard worker for the union label—to use his own expression, a "crank" on the subject. The well-known diligence of both gentlemen will insure results.

It must have been the double-enameled irony of fate that made Judge Holdom the judge, jury and executioner in his ruling against the union in less than a year after his appearance as the star of the evening at the Oldtime Printers' celebration of the birthday of that honored patriot but man of many peculiar characteristics, Benjamin Franklin. The learned judge was the guest of honor and symphonious eulogist of the printers' patron saint on that occasion. And the Oldtime Printers' Association is composed almost exclusively of active and honorary members of No. 16, some of them in past troubles even going so far as to engage in strikes, take active part on the picket line, and I know some of them who disregarded the constitution of the United States and the divine right to printing-office property by urging non-union men to join our organization. It's a 100-to-1 shot Judge Holdom will not be invited to participate at the next function.

No. 16 boasts of a variety of stars in the entertaining line as well as the art preservative. An entertainment committee, consisting of Abe Cohen, John J. Cain, J. C. Loftus and W. E. Curry, has arranged and staged two first-class entertainments at the strikers' headquarters, Uhlich's hall, one on October 25 and the last November 15, with a promise of more every two weeks or thereabouts. The talent is nearly all from members of the union, and with some courteous turns by the Actors' Union No. 4 and the Federation of Musicians, the programs have been interesting and entertaining. Charles O'Connor, in "Shamus O'Brien," with C. M. Galaise, Loftus brothers, Frank Mullaney, E. T. Sorge, G. W. Johnson, and the eight-hour quartet, consisting of Messrs. Tefft, Barnum, Quinn and Galaise, as vocalists, make a creditable showing; A. Hoch is a chalk artist of ability, and his characterizations of "hams," "teapots" and "rats" make one wonder why he wastes his time in a printing office; Joe Barton and Harry Kuehl boxed three rounds, and Hod Smith and Norman make the banjo ring with the same vigor as in the days Hod and Roger Feeney traveled together. George and Mrs. Tebbs have a reputation of old at the violin and piano. J. J. Fogarty, in buck and wing dancing, with Jack Zaabel as magician, add to the variety. A wrestling match between H. Krautblatt, representing the union, and Frank Jeroll, representing the typothetæ, was won by the union man, two out of three. C. F. Tefft exhibited Kellar's greatest hypnotic feat, with Ed Bessette as wielder of the sledge hammer. Phonograph selections, music by the Harris sisters, and Frankie Swift and Able's orchestra are all good. President Wright, Organizer Harding and Michael Colbert are always ready to give timely talks, and K. S. Fisher, president of the Omaha Union, was listened to with interest. The entertainments are free, and will be little or no expense to the union.

Continued from last month: That Louis Hornstein has left the Tribune proofroom and is now with the Mergenthaler people. That W. M. Nelis is also attached thereto. That the executive committee lately discussed the subject of married felicity or infelicity. The one member, who, by the way, is not married, said the way to get along with a woman was to reason with her. That another said the way to reason with a woman was with a bedslat. That a third member of the party a night or two afterward went home earlier than usual, and when his wife questioned the propriety of staying out so late other nights he suggested that they reason the matter out. That she replied he must be drunk. That while on the subject of ladies it might be well for the union to remember that "hell hath no fury like a woman scorned." That the "Colonel" and his chum "Jim," after getting through work on the American one morning not long ago, sauntered down Madison street toward a popular resort for printers. That the "Colonel" said "Let's go in." That Jim said "All right." That the porter kindly took them up on the "lift." That everything seemed dark and "nothin' doing." That they explored a little farther and found some of the boys pushing the balls down the alley and the most decorous crowd imaginable watching the game. That the entrance of the "Colonel" and Jim was greeted with shouts of approval and joy, and things resumed their natural slant. That the explanation for the unexpected outburst of hilarity was the porter had mistaken the "Colonel" and Jim for fly cops, and had pushed the button warning everybody to look dry. That if a party by the name of Keegan, who confesses to receiving a $40 donation from the Inter Ocean chapel some years ago, and who returned that kindness by ratting in Chicago during this strike, and who claims to have only one lung, half a liver, short on teeth, but long on bull chop suey, could see the Cincinnati letter that he said would be a recommendation, he would not refer to Cincinnati again. That Donnelley had the nerve during the injunction proceedings to request that one of his ex-force kindly give him some information about a left-over job in his office. That he did not get it. That passing sentimental resolutions at this stage of the game has about as much effect on the situation as attempting to quench the fires of hell with a syringe. That so many of my oldtime friends and acquaintances are using the "stockholder" plea as an excuse for ratting I begin to feel lonesome. That the New Voice, the organ of the prohibition party, believes in the open shop, but closed liquor traffic. That the sworn contract necessary to sign to get "a job" in that office shows that hogotry and slavery go hand in hand. That I hear Joe Dirks is a prospective candidate for president of St. Louis Union. That Jim Mon. Kreiter's suggestion that every visitor to Colorado Springs take a book for the library is a good one and should be boomed. That I will say more on the subject later.

Digitized by Google

The annual reception and ball of the union, under direction of the social features committee, will take place December 6. These annual affairs are popular with the membership, and deservedly so. The personnel of the committee, J. M. McGowan, chairman, G. I. Bradbury, Thomas F. Waugh, R. N. Stonesifer, William Carville, Julius Neilsen and Thomas Mortell, insures a pleasant and high-class reception.

When this cruel war is over I believe the International Typographical Union could bust the International Pressmen's Union into smithereens, if it offered the right hand of fellowship to unions of the Cleveland stamp, that, judging by the circular issuing from that organization, believe in unionism as practiced by the International Typographical Union, and not the brand of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union.

THE LABOR QUESTION AND INJUNCTIONS.

The labor question is the result of the condition of society, and not personality, but it seems almost impossible to separate the two phases of the all-important subject when under discussion. We look on one in his capacity as an employer as a personal enemy, as a personage whose sole aim in life is our enslavement. We go to our lodges or social functions, mix with the employers of labor on equal terms, and usually each considers the other a good fellow. In fact, one meets many men in life whose genial affability would be a passport to intimate friendship if we never discovered that he was an employer. There is no feeling of rancor or distrust on either side. We discuss amiably the small talk of the day, applaud the fraternal sentiments expressed by the speaker, and go home feeling well satisfied with ourselves and the lodge associations in general. But the next day, when he assumes the role of employer, he is a changed man to his erstwhile companion of the night before. He arrogates a superiority in life's strata that is considered rank insolence by you, and your method of transacting business with him in attempting the regulation of hours and wages is considered dictatorial arrogance by him.

These thoughts are brought to mind with added force by reason of my serving on a grand jury some five years ago under the direction of Judge Holdom. His honor appeared to me to be the prince of courteous urbanity. He addressed the jury as "gentlemen of the grand jury." When the jury filed into court every morning, with the true bills of the day before to be presented, the lawyer engaged in argument was chopped off short in his pleading. The judge would rise, gracefully bow, and extend to the jury all the deference that could be imagined or wished for. Everybody gazed in wonderment and awe at the twenty-three men who could with impunity block the wheels of court procedure. The lawyers detailed by the state's attorney to advise with the jury (of whom the present Judge Barnes was one) were as attentive as valets. Court attaches bowed and headed the procession, the elevators were emptied for our accommodation, and Judge Holdom even condescended to break away from the Union League Club, where he was lunching and holding a tete-a-tete with congenial companions, that he might receive the last business of the jury when they closed their labors Saturday night, so they would not be inconvenienced by appearing Monday morning. As a member of that ancient but useless body, in whose hands rests, for weal or woe, the destinies of criminals, great or small, vicious or accidental, depraved or refined, I occupied a distinctively elevated station from which to view obsequious sycophancy in all its disgusting detail. I enjoyed the experience, however, because it afforded an opportunity to tell the then chief of police, Joseph Kipley, a few things about policy shops, open saloons during prohibited hours, gambling joints, etc., all located within a stone's throw of his office, much to his discomfiture and the amusement of the jury, and to the existence of which he pleaded ignorance.

Digitized by Google

But all that took place as a member of the grand jury. The situation is changed. The high eminence from which I viewed crime and misdemeanor, passing judgment on the culpability of the accused, has given place to the level of the ordinary citizen clamoring—be it said with shame, although true—for the fundamental rights guaranteed by article iii, section 2, of the constitution of the United States, and reiterated in the sixth amendment, guaranteeing trial by jury; or the first amendment, which declares against any law respecting the free exercise of religious belief, abridging the freedom of speech, or the right of the people to peaceably assemble; or the fifth amendment, declaring one can not be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law; or the fourteenth amendment, which, besides repeating the foregoing clause, adds, as though to emphasize its meaning, "nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the law."

Judge Holdom can assume these laws have been broken—that is what it is—assumption. He grants certain requests on behalf of the petitioners, makes them binding after a perfunctory hearing, during which he sits with his feet perched on his desk or gazes abstractedly out of the window, and thus the constitution is wiped off the books with his wet thumb and the new constitution of Holdom substituted.

He asserts printers are not engaged in business as proprietors, therefore their interests are not as important as the employers', while in the next breath he admits labor is property, but fails to point out the distinction between that classification of property and the gilt-edged, simon-pure, divine-right property, such as a printing office.

The right to free speech or soliciting for one's own or mutual interests must be curtailed because the employers don't like it. The possession of a printing office constitutes such sacred rights that soliciting its employes to join the union is dubbed a conspiracy. That is Judge Holdom's view of the law. If it is good law, unions must disband, and the work of years of patient, thoughtful labor in advancing wages, lessening hours and improving social conditions be thrown to the winds. If that is good law, convict labor laws must be unconstitutional, because capital is inconvenienced when prohibited from utilizing convicts at 25 or 30 cents per man per day, as against the free, law-abiding citizen at $2 or $3 per day. Capital claims it is being discriminated against, but it is a far greater injustice to labor to permit it, and capital can worry along under the discrimination much easier than labor. Judge Holdom is like all other professional men, whether they be lawyers, college professors, preachers or scientists. They gaze interestedly at labor through the lorgnette or monocle, and wonder what species of impudent monkey he descended from.

Combined capital is waging a war on labor unions, the conservative organizations being classed with the radical, hoping with the help of the courts to declare them illegal institutions, show their weakness as compared with capital's strength, create dissension and desertion, and thus rout the forces that have been a menace and inconvenience to its interests. But just as sure as the sun sometimes shines, all this job-lot sentiment will react, and the final result will be the stronger organizations. Unions have received black eyes, but they learn by experience and become stronger by reason of adversity.

If the judge's decision is good law, individual solicitation for higher salary constitutes an unlawful act because it is against the employer's wishes, and stopping work individually is unlawful because it is a menace to the employer's interests. Carried to a logical conclusion, the decision is extremely ridiculous. I wonder if he would enjoin a trust from forcing advanced prices against the wish of the public? The indignity with which he views labor indicates he would not, because trusts are capital with vested interests. A man's environment and associations carry much weight in forming his views, and judges are not an exception to the rule.

THE ANTI-INJUNCTION MEETING.

The anti-injunction meeting called by the union Sunday, November 5, was largely attended, and addressed by Louis F. Post, editor of The Public, Seymour Stedman, candidate for judge, and Miss Margaret Haley, known the country over as the champion of the overworked but underpaid school teachers. If the speeches could be recorded in THE JOURNAL they would make interesting reading. Two resolutions were adopted. The first, by Alexander Spencer, was as follows:

Resolved, That for the preservation of the rights of the people it has become imperatively necessary that steps should be taken to limit the power of judges, lest by precedents and form of law every innocent act may be made criminal and punished as such at the pleasure of any court which can be so persuaded.

J. C. Loftus offered the following:

Resolved, That we, the trade unionists of Chicago, in mass meeting assembled, unitedly condemn the despotic attitude of employers' associations, and believe that, if successfully persisted in, it can only lead to the utter destruction of the foundations of the principles of the republic.

OTHER TOPICS.

There is nothing that will bring union men to their senses respecting the label except a club. That club is now in employers' associations' hands. The label meeting under the direction of the union November 12 developed into an earnest heart-to-heart talk on the best methods to adopt to make the label the badge of honor. Printers as a whole, under the spell of the present situation, are in a receptive mood as never before. I hear label talk all around by men who have heretofore given the subject only passive endorsement. Earnest work in its advancement marked the addresses of T. P. McCooey, B. F. Chittick, R. D. Hogan, Mrs. Venus

Digitized by Google

Heath, Harry Chirpe, J. C. Harding and C. J. Loftus, and if the spirit shown is followed up on the outside it will produce results. The woman's auxiliary is in the fray for business, and it is a power for good. I believe it was the eight-hour committee who gave the printers the battle cry, "We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of the twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen." An equally inspiring shibboleth is that enunciated by the label committee of the union, which says, "Let those employers who are content to employ non-union men be content with the patronage of non-union men."

It is 2 to 1 that all this funk we hear about the Chinese boycotting American goods is for no other purpose than boosting the plan to modify the Chinese exclusion law. The truth of the matter is the manufacturers' associations want Chinese labor to use as a lever to break up unionism. If they understood English, the typothetæ would fill their offices with Chinamen. At that they are better than most of the rats imported to this town.

It is estimated that 90 per cent of the manufacturers' association membership who comprised the rump convention in Chicago called to consider the question of railroad rates traveled on railroad passes.

At this writing the situation in Chicago is locked up for an indefinite period. The union is still doing business, and will continue in the good work. Judge Holdom is in St. Louis hobnobbing with his friends and clients, the manufacturers' association, instead of tending to the business for which he is paid $10,000 per year, while the courts of Cook county are clogged with litigation for years to come. The free American citizens working in struck offices, with the aid of some pressmen, are doing the best they can to earn $19.50 per week, which is the scale made by the union. Some of them are working for $15 and $12, which is the scale set by the typothetæ. John V. Farwell and the Rock River conference are still actively praying for lost souls and destruction of unions. The souls must be saved, but the bellies can exist on rye bread, with axle grease for butter.

Yours for eight hours and the union office.

GEORGE J. KNOTT.

CLARKSBURG, W. VA.

Work still good.

Charles S. Stillings, of Boston, manager of the printers' board of trade in New York, also connected with the typothetæ, has been made public printer instead of Oscar Ricketts, who of late has been acting public printer. Mr. Ricketts was strongly endorsed by several delegations. It looks to the writer that Stillings' appointment means the "open shop" at the government printery in form most obnoxious to the unions. And yet President Roosevelt says he's a friend to organized labor. "Actions speak louder than words."

Although No. 372 has a contract until January 1, 1906, four offices out of six here have signed for the eight-hour day. Those that have signed are: The James & Law Co. Press, the Daily News, the Wade Printing Company, and the County Mail. We have the assurance of the remaining two, namely, the Herald and the Daily Telegram.

Do you wear an I. T. U. button? If not, get one now. The I. T. U. button is the foe of the open shop. It is beautified by morality and brightened by humanity. Wear an I. T. U. button and be prepared.

Glad to see the label on the Progressive Printer.

Success to the shorter workday.

If in Chicago at any time, you might see this sign hanging out, but don't run, it won't hurt you, "Catcham, Holdom & Kilhem (officers of the law?).

Boost eight hours. Stand pat.

WALTER R. WATKINS.

WASHINGTON, PA.

This branch of the International Typographical Union held two meetings last month—one for discussing and voting on the proposition of each member giving 50 cents a week out of his earnings toward helping out and getting the eight-hour day for his less fortunate brother printer who is striving to get what this union will have up to 1907. Eight hours' work, eight hours to sleep and eight hours to do what they may! The other was the regular meeting, at which time, without a dissenting vote, all assessment moneys of No. 456 were turned over to the parent body to do as it may see proper.

F. Hopkinson Smith, with the last in the series of powerful articles, entitled "Let Us Go Back," which have been appearing in the Ladies' Home Journal, says regarding the young man of today: "As a man needs one-third of the twenty-four hours in which to sleep, so he needs one-third of the year to play. He can take it in a lump by a trip abroad, or he can take it from Friday until Monday every week in the year, or he can take an hour each day; but let him take it; let him insist upon it; let him fight for it if need be." How many printers do this, and isn't this in conformity with the eight-hour day?

Although one of our members, William ("Pete") Ecker, well known in Pittsburg, this state, was beaten in the recent county election for commissioner on the "Reform" ticket by a very thin-spaced vote of 102, he has still to be congratulated on being a union printer.

For that tired feeling these cold winter eves take one TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL, lay back on a sofa, at your place of abode, with four cushions under the "think-tank," and read. Result after a month's treatment: Contentment.

Just because No. 456 had arranged for the eight-hour day prior to September 8 doesn't signify that we will not lend our moral support to any other subordinate, and there may be cases where financial support would be given.

The giving of $500 to the Lowell (Mass.) union by Humphrey "Rubber Heel" O'Sullivan must have made a lot of "rubber necks" among the advocates of typothetæism in that old down-homer city. Mr. O'Sullivan deserves more than a "rubber" medal.

In reply to the question, What is your union

Digitized by Google

doing to keep the label in the public eye? we state that No. 456 is doing many little stunts in that line—getting the "little joker" on a theater program, etc.

Wouldn't a conference of the eight-hour committees of all the typographical unions in the western district of Pennsylvania meet with the approval of some unions larger than No. 456? The locals in the eastern part of our state hold such conferences. Pittsburg (Pa.) correspondents take notice.

Clement ("Sam") Lucas, of Hartford, Conn., paid us a friendly visit last month which we rather enjoyed. "Sam," as he is best known, tells me "Tim" Sullivan has lost "our patronage" at the old Revere House on Third street, his city. Among oldtimers mentioned in our heart-to-heart talk were Richard ("Black Haired") Phillips (although his hair was white), of Syracuse, N. Y.; "Tommy" Morgan, of the same city; George Airensberg, of somewhere in the Buckeye State, and last but not least, James Williamson, the "Lightning Stranger" of St. Catherines, Ont.—all old boys of the class and days in the seventies.

WILLIAM CLARK BLACK.

HOLYOKE, MASS.

Eight hours!

It is almost here for the whole bunch!

Before another issue of THE JOURNAL appears we will all be working eight hours or loafing twenty-four. As each month goes by, more unions are added to the eight-hour list. That means there will be fewer of us to strike and more that will be able and willing to contribute their little mite to the aid of others less fortunate.

I wonder if Mr. Ellis still endeavors to delude himself and fellows with the notion that the "majority of the book and job men do not care for the eight-hour day." If so, he should now be undeceived. The rousing vote for the 50-cent assessment shows that the entire membership is willing to shell out the "sinews of war," so that on January 1, 1906, the eight-hour day will be the universal workday of our craft.

Eight hours to work—sixteen to do as we please with!

Our fraters in Springfield at this writing are standing pat. Not a man has gone back to work in the offices struck. I am positive that not a man of them will return to their old situations until the battle is won, be it ever so long. Quite a number of the members have left town to work elsewhere, thus shortening the length of the strike roll. Some four or five have come to Holyoke.

As a result of the efforts of organized labor in this section the working people won a victory at the polls in the late state election, and Senator-elect Daniel D. Mahoney will represent us in the statehouse in Boston next year. Mr. Mahoney has long been identified with the labor movement. He is an ex-president of the central labor union, and is at present a delegate to that body. With him in the senate we know the interests of the working people, and organized labor in particular, will be well looked after.

No. 13, of Boston, certainly did herself proud on October 23. In the morning, at 10:30, the delegates from the various New England cities to the eight-hour conference were called to order by John A. McPherson, chairman of No. 13's eight-hour committee. The reports of the delegates, especially those from cities where strikes prevail, were listened to with considerable interest. In all cases our membership was standing pat, and in many cases doing excellent work exporting the scabs imported by the employers. After a recess of an hour at noon, the delegates reassembled and further reports were listened to. We also listened to fine addresses from the Rev. Alex. Irvine and Frank K. Foster, who were given a rising vote of thanks. The conference adjourned at 4:45 P. M. and marched to the Quincy House, where No. 13 served the delegates an elaborate dinner. After dinner the delegates went to Faneuil Hall, where a rousing, enthusiastic eight-hour meeting took place. The hall was packed to the doors, balcony and floor, standing room being at a premium. A most pleasant and profitable evening was spent listening to the instrumental and vocal concert and also to the many notable speakers.

Humphrey O'Sullivan, of Lowell (of rubber heel fame), certainly is doing the handsome thing by No. 310 in its fight. It will be impossible for them to lose. It goes without saying that those of the craft who wear rubber heels or soles, or both, will see that the name O'Sullivan is on them.

Don't forget the labels. When you buy, request the merchant to place the label on his printing. Also see to it that the goods you buy bear their respective labels.

Are you wearing a "badge of servitude" these days? You should; it shows that you stand for eight hours a day and a closed shop—ideal conditions.

It is rumored that the city printing of Chicopee will come to Holyoke this year. The label must appear on Chicopee's printing, and Jacobs, who formerly did the work, has lost the label, his men being on strike for the eight-hour day in common with those in Springfield, under whose jurisdiction his workers were.

Eight hours a day.

Boom all labels—ours in particular.

E. S. ALDEN.

GUELPH, ONT.

The November meeting of No. 391 was well attended. The label committee made a very good report, and is doing some excellent work among the merchants in Guelph.

The printers will have two strong teams in the carpetball league, composed of the different trade unions of the city.

Trade continues good; not an idle man.

Success to our fellow members who are on strike in different parts of the continent, and the noble cause for which they are fighting, which shall make us better men, both physically and intellectually. A fair division of the twenty-four hours—eight hours for work, eight hours for sleep and eight hours for recreation.

Cheer up, boys! Remember, the darkest hour is just before dawn.

J. P. WALSH.

Digitized by Google

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The strike situation at this writing is practically unchanged from the last report, in that the same eight houses remain "struck." The physical condition of these latter grows worse as time flies, and their constant quest, through advertising and other methods, for competent men is conclusive. The Greeley Printery is now involved with all the organized printing trades. Through contributions from the wreckers' union the struck houses have been able to hold out thus far, but when a final inventory is taken it will be found that the loss to material and equipment is not thus covered, and that irreparable damage has been sustained by the loss of business and the scattering of competent forces, to gather whose equal will require a long time. On the other hand, most of the strikers have been absorbed in the newspaper branch and in fair job offices. As to finances, the 7 per cent assessment now running, which was made operative by the unanimous vote of the union, will keep any checks from going to protest. All the money in circulation can not make competent printers in less time than nature requires. Hence we are winning because our members are loyal and true. "Stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage." It takes the union card to get the union wage.

Are you boosting the label?

Prominent business men in charge of the campaign for a free bridge appeared before the central trades and labor union recently seeking the latter's endorsement, but were not admitted because their literature did not bear the union label. At the next meeting they reappeared, bearing label printing, and secured the endorsement sought. Undoubtedly many interested in this movement are alliance men. Boost the label.

Secretary-Treasurer J. J. Early tendered his resignation at the November meeting of No. 8. His successor will be elected at the December meeting.

John H. Barnes is an applicant for admission to the Home. Mr. Barnes buried his mother recently. The sympathies of the membership have been drawn to John by his unusually severe reverses.

J. J. Chaudet, now of 'Frisco, but formerly of St. Louis, was here recently on his wedding trip. Chaudet met an old friend while here who worked with him several years ago in a southern city on a paper whose proprietors had great difficulty in accumulating sufficient cash to pay off. They went to the printers regularly before pay hour and inquired whether they would not accept orders for merchandise in lieu of cash. Naturally this did not meet the approval of the compositors. On one occasion one of the proprietors approached Chaudet and gently inquired whether he would not kindly accept an order for a sewing machine. Although a man of unctious urbanity, this was the last straw, and he belched forth a wrathful tirade, of which the following is as nearly correct as memory will permit. For want of space—and other reasons—we omit italics and accented letters:

"No, I do not want a sewing machine. I don't know the keyboard. Neither do I desire an order for a threshing machine, a feed cutter, a diving suit, a pair of swamp boots or set of harness, a dozen bottles of hair restorer, nor load of wood. I may be accustomed to squandering my earnings, but that's my affair. If I want to have it changed into nickels and get on top of a high building and chunk them at people in the street, I can do so. If I take a notion to go down to the river and choke it up with my money, that's my business, too. No, I don't want orders for anything. I want my masuma. And I refuse to start another week's work for you unless I can reach into the em-dash box every time the clock strikes and fish out a half dollar."

A. B. Bennett, of the executive committee, has been in Centenary Hospital for a few weeks.

The editor of a fraternal publication attacked a visitor with a sword. "The pen is mightier than the sword," but we forget this at times.

The Westliche Post, German morning paper, will erect a skyscraper at Broadway and Chestnut streets.

Union labor will be employed in building the Jamestown exposition. Experience teaches.

A galley boy, in explaining why he had failed to "dupe" a galley of ad corrections, triumphantly referred to the copy whereon had been written, in the business office, "correction—don't dup."

There is a growing disposition to accent the first syllable in contemporary.

It has been suggested to us that some of our readers do not always agree with us as to opinions. Obviously, all of the people can not be unanimous all of the time on all questions. Besides, this recalls the incident of the two Irishmen strolling through a statuary hall. Presently one spied a replica of the Venus di Medici and, calling his companion's attention to it, said: "Pat! don't that beat the Dootch!" "That's the intintion."

O. H. Bobel, who became ill after returning from Toronto, has recovered.

"Wanted, a Swede, who doesn't mind the cold, for an open shop."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Might import an Eskimo.

The St. Louis bakers' council states its printing "has always carried the label and always will," and then, "we hope your members will remember that the bakers also have a union label, and it is up to all union men to demand it." Paste this in your hat.

John Z. White, of Chicago, lectured during the greater part of November in St. Louis in the interest of single tax.

The Missouri eight-hour law, recently declared legal by the United States supreme court, is confined to "mining, mechanical, chemical manufacturing or smelting business." Secure a copy of this law and have it introduced in your state legislature.

A club composed of members of No. 16 is systematically booming the label in the Twenty-first ward of Chicago. There's a way.

Merchants who can not endorse the citizens' alliance's departure from first principles are seceding and forming a rival organization, which will pursue a policy of moderation.

The recent railroad rate regulation convention at Chicago, from which the Parrysites withdrew and held a "rump" meeting, was granted a certificate plan rate, with the proviso that at least 100 tickets were sold. A canvass showed that there were ninety-one tickets out of a total of 900 delegates. And the other 809 did not walk!

Digitized by Google

On November 13 the papers announced that a number of the Chicago printing houses which are "struck" would migrate to the country. On November 14 a list of manufactories in lines other than printing which had already left Chicago for the same alleged reason—to escape the tyranny of labor unions—was given. Among these latter were some which are now employers of union labor and use the label. Reverting to the first telegram, it is reasonable to suppose that if the Chicago typothetæ can not lure the country printer to Chicago by promises of free transportation and abnormal wages, greater success will not be achieved by Mahomet going to the mountain. If the Chicago typothetæ, and the typothetæ in general, can stand for the tyranny of the citizens' alliance, it should be ready to stand for almost everything else.

The day after San Francisco elected its city officers a dispatch chronicling the fire in the Chronicle building insinuated that incendiaries were responsible, because the paper had bitterly opposed the successful ticket in the interest of law and order. A day later it was announced that the fire was accidental, being caused by a bomb used in celebrating the result of the election. It's too bad to have to back up.

Kreiter's suggestion, that all who go to the Colorado Springs convention take along a good book for the Home library, is an excellent one. And, if the proposition may be amended, I suggest that all those who do not go send a book "anyway"—by express or mail. And, if you think you will forget about it, send it now. At all events, see that a book donated by you reaches the Home library.

Those Russian printers who refused to go back to work to print the czar's edict announcing the granting of a constitution won't print bogus.

"Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute."

On the eve of their recent convention here, C. W. Post, president of the citizens' alliance, issued the following:

We are an organization of the plain people. We represent neither capital nor labor, but are interested in both. We are organized to protect ourselves and our families. The labor unions were organized to protect the workingman from the capitalist. The National Employers' Association is formed to protect the employer from the unions. Both sides sometimes forget the humble citizen, who is neither an employe nor employer, and he gets the worst of it in every fight. We are trying to look after him.

During our street car strike some years ago, and the teamsters' strike in Chicago last summer, when the men walked out, and on other occasions when their employers locked them out, the citizens had to suffer inconveniences and deprivations. The industrial association is against strikes; it is also equally opposed to lockouts, and it is to arbitrate labor questions that we are in existence.

In the approaching convention there will be addresses by labor union men and employers. Both sides will be given a hearing. After each side tells how to "do" the other, our association will tell them how to get along without hostilities on either side. This is why we meet. The last national convention was held in New York. The idea is to hold our meetings all over the country, in order to spread our views.

Excepting the outside chance that C. W. has heard of the large deflections of its better class of members, who have become disgusted with its methods and have organized business men's leagues to combat its radical aims, and is "hedging," the exceeding benevolence and sacrificial endeavors of these gentlemen furnish a model for good citizenship.

As indicative of the growth of farmers' unions throughout the southwest, an Indian Territory paper announces at the head of its editorial columns that it endorses the printers' union, but can not print the label because there is no local in its town.

We hope to take a piker's peek at Pike's Peak.

The Winnipeg Tribune of November 1 contains an ad for printers, "union or non-union." These labor columns have superseded the funny department.

W. W. Baker, a member of No. 8, will deliver an address on December 28 at Druid's hall on "Socialism and Reform Parties."

The seismic disturbances occurring the middle of November were caused by the conjunction of the citizens' alliance convention and the beginning of federal action against the bridge combine in St. Louis.

Little Rock joins the stone wall.

A head line in a local paper charges a citizen with casting "asparagus" on the governor.

By action of the November meeting, overtime was made to operate on the accumulative system.

That American Federation assessment will help some.

"Pages from the Past," a collection of incidents of the road, is well worth while, and will prove irresistible to the fellow who has been anywhere. (See ad.)

"Productivity," the attribute of making oneself invaluable and indispensable to one's employer, is the remedy for the labor vs. capital problem suggested by J. Lawrence Laughlin in the November Scribner's. Of course, this "settles," but does not adjust. When two men resort to deadly weapons to determine a dispute, and one is killed, the matter is settled so far as the murdered one is concerned. If aggression were never met by aggression in the affairs of this mundane sphere, the law would resemble the story of Othello. Professor Laughlin, who is the occupant of the chair of political economy at the University of Chicago, was one of the speakers at the citizens' alliance banquet given at the Planters' hotel on November 15. That one can at times outherod Herod was demonstrated by the fact that Professor Laughlin was greeted with cat calls and hisses when he said: "The day of the cutthroat and assassin as the walking delegate of the union should end. Some of these men would be a disgrace to any penal colony." It seemed apropos that auditors ejaculated "Rats!"

The spectacle of Judge Jesse Holdom, who granted the blanket injunction against No. 16, and who was introduced by President Post at the recent citizens' alliance convention here as "the Chicago judge who was made an issue by the labor trust, but who was elected by the common people, the citizens," attending this gathering does not suggest the attribute of unbias. If a judge were to grant an injunction to a labor union against employers, and then appear at a labor convention and discuss the capitalists, there would be a vacancy on the bench before he could get back home.

Digitized by Google

While Nunemacher, of Louisville, was discoursing on "The Open Shop and the Printer," the 'Frisco railroad's tariffs, which had been taken from Meyerson's, a closed shop, to Buxton & Skinner's, a "struck" house, were taken by the railroad to Con P. Curran's, a closed shop, because the railroad could not wait until the struck house could deliver the goods. The best is the cheapest.

A "struck" house which employs a force double the normal size has two out of about forty men who are competent enough to find their way back to their respective racks. When they move about they act as bell wethers for the "noises."

Covers were laid at the Planters' hotel citizens' alliance banquet for 356 guests, but there were but 256 present. Even the "open shop" principle at a free feed would not "fill."

For the first time, the November number of the Progressive Printer bears the label.

Tom Crowley stopped over on his way to the board meeting at the Home.

Elbert Hubbard, of East Aurora, N. Y., sent a letter to the alliance convention, the leading thought being: "The open shop means the right to do as one pleases." And that is all it means. And because the laws of human society never did, do not now, and never will permit individuals to "do as they please," the open shop nightmare will vanish.

J. J. DIRKS.

OTTAWA, CANADA.

No one ever felt prouder of No. 102 than I did when, two Saturdays ago, P. M. Draper issued a call of the clan to discuss the 50-cent assessment and support of the eight-hour battle. A big meeting was held, spirited speeches were the order of the day, and but one discordant voice was heard out of over 200. This little man spoke of nationalism, referred to a cabinet minister's reference to civil service rule being in contemplation for the printing bureau, and wound up a jack-in-the-box address by offering his powerful mediation to prevent the 50 cents being paid and the securing of governmental influence. The youth, as may well be imagined, got a cool reception and removed his anatomy from the room in short order. The typos are not in a mood for play just now. They, like serious men, voted for the eight-hour movement and its benefits. They have voiced their support of the new era through their delegates in convention and have practically ordered the executive to proceed with the battle. To my mind it would be nothing short of cowardice to refuse fuel and ammunition to our leaders when conducting so pluckily a fight in the interest of the entire membership. The boys are keenly alive to this and they recorded their manly views in a most significant referendum vote that left no room for doubt as to their stand in this matter. Further than this, No. 102 is going to organize a concert, the profits of which will go to Winnipeg friends, who are battling for justice and right. It is to be hoped all Canadian unions will endeavor to contribute toward the support of the western lads. We should leave no stone unturned to assure the success of the struggle in the western capital. Let every one of us pin in our hats the names of the unfair firms that are supporting strikebreakers, brought from the old country for the purpose of filling the shoes of respectable printers and fathers of families. We can, if we only so desire it, help through our friendly connections in the northwest in causing the business involved some annoyance. This is no ordinary situation. If every weapon is to be tolerated against us, we are justified in adopting the same rule, and fight on the best we can. The boys must rally to win. This is no ordinary campaign. It means much to the workers and I suppose all are fully alive to the necessity of joint action and that of the most energetic kind.

D. J. O'Donoghue has returned from the west. He left an encouraging word in Winnipeg.

The allied printing trades have again been restored to life. There is a chance yet for Rip Van Winkle.

E. A. Irving, an old and respected typo of No. 102, is seriously ill.

The printing bureau has invested in three monotyes. Who shall win in the scramble?

C. W. BOUDREAULT.

ROCKFORD, ILL.

The November meeting of Rockford Union No. 213, held October 5, was one that lacked nothing in real, intense, sound-minded legislation on questions pre-eminent in the present crisis. In answer to roll call almost the entire organization responded—thanks to the weather man. Every one's "cup" seemed "filled to overflowing" with the essence of good arguments that created enthusiastic feeling.

The president made an urgent plea in regard to the label. He contended that if every member hustles with extreme vigilance, boosting the label, we will have success in handling any difficulty that may arise. What a slight burden, he demonstrated, to ask your friends that have printing, the men you transact business with, acquaintances in social orders, to have the "emblem of good fate"—our label—on all their printing.

Along this line exceedingly satisfactory work has been accomplished. The jobs are not few in number that have only recently been taken from unfair shops and labelized. Business men that have lived in ignorance in regard to the printers' label are opening their eyes and now demanding it. This end has been accomplished by persistent work of the organization as a body. The efforts of our president, secretary and label committee along this route can not be excelled anywhere—because "in union there is strength."

Messrs. Oudin, Aspergren, Patrick and others spoke in a spirited manner. The session lasted only three hours. Traveling cards of H. Russell and K. Anderson, of Aurora Union No. 291, were deposited. Both men were out on strike duty several weeks.

C. V. NELS.

Digitized by Google

FROM THE FAR NORTH.

Almost under the shadow of the Arctic circle, the farthest north of Alaskan mining camps, Fairbanks is the proud claimant of the distinction of possessing a modern newspaper plant. Three years ago a small outfit, including an eighth-medium Gordon, left Dawson, Y. T., on one of the last steamers for the new mining camp, then of little known value. With this pioneer equipment the Fairbanks News appeared as an eight-page (8x12) weekly. This size was continued until the summer of 1904, when the big plant of the defunct Dawson Sun was purchased by the enterprising publishers of the Fairbanks News. To accommodate the plant the large log building shown in the illustration was constructed at an immense cost, and the paper was enlarged to a seven-column folio, type being set by hand. In September of the same year the famous linotype that represented an investment of nearly $9,000 to the Dawson News was bought and shipped into the new camp. This machine was taken into Dawson the winter of 1900-'01 in charge of J. B. Barber, formerly of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and now machinist on the Los Angeles Examiner. The high cost of freighting over the ice is shown by the stated valuation of the machine. On it some phenomenal performances have been recorded in favor of Harold Malstrom, still with the Dawson News. The machine, in fact, has an interesting history, and is famed throughout the north.

Upon the arrival of the linotype the Fairbanks News became a semi-weekly, and in May of this year entered the daily field, the only daily newspaper in interior Alaska. Your correspondent accompanied the mill to its new home and started it on its career in the new camp.

Today the News is a metropolitan daily, although but a six-column folio, receiving a telegraphic news service from Seattle via cable to Valdez and thence over the United States military line to Fairbanks. The cost of the service alone would make a "cheechaco" (tenderfoot) turn pale. But the people of Alaska demand the best in all things, and in this particular are especially insistent in the matter of newspapers. To meet the taste of its clientage the Fairbanks News has been, conditions considered, more enterprising than the big dailies of the "outside."

The staff last April, as shown in the cut, from right to left, was: E. K. Sargison, machinist-operator; Mrs. R. J. McChesney, bookkeeper; R. J. McChesney, manager; Sydney Charles, city and telegraph editor. E. Strother Bunch, a member of Dawson Newspaper Writers, and formerly on the

FAIRBANKS (ALASKA) DAILY NEWS.

Digitized by Google

local staff of the News, is shown at the steering gear of the dog-sled. Mr. Bunch and R. L. Bernard, a printer, formerly of Spokane, Wash., have the circulation of the paper on the creeks, and the dog team is their means of delivering during the winter season. The little girl is the carriers' mascot.

Harry Chamberlain, of San Francisco, is now machinist-operator on the News, relieving your correspondent, who, with his family, was anxious to see the outside world again and spend a winter free from snow and ice. E. K. SARGISON.

Seattle, Wash.

THE MAN WHO DOES THE WORK.

But whence is derived this accession of enjoyment that nobody pays for? From the increased command acquired by human intelligence over the productive powers and agents presented gratuitously by nature. A power has been rendered available for human purposes that had before been not known or not directed to any human object * * * or one before known and available is directed with superior skill and effect.—Jean-Baptiste Say, Political Economy, book II, chapter III.

The physical progress of a society between any two points in its history is equal to the extent to which it has substituted mental for physical labor—the extent to which the mind has redeemed the body. Its moral progress is equal to the justice of the division of rewards—the honesty of the distribution of the profits of progress.

All honest profit is a result of intellectual progress, and its first form is time—time to think, to study, to plan, to use the mind, to develop the brain and bring its powers to bear.

Knowledge is the only thing that lightens labor, whether it appears in the making of the tools of a trade or in the intelligence with which the tradesman handles the tools—it is the only thing that develops profit, and it does that by saving time.

The man who perfects himself in a trade of value to society has added something to the productive capacity of the world, has lightened the labor necessary to be performed by the addition of so much more applicable knowledge of the work to be done.

The learning of a trade is primarily a time-saving operation. It is that which makes it of value to society; it increases the value to society of an individual—which is the purpose of education, special training and intellectual development, whether directed to the production of shoemakers or doctors of philosophy. Behind all profitable progress lies mental development—first the thought, then the deed.

So far as the physical part of the labor is concerned, a monkey could set type. Any one who has ever seen a monkey in pursuit of a flea on the back of a friend must have noticed the delicacy of touch, the unerring accuracy of the snatch, and the speed with which the flea is transferred from his fancied security to the jaws of the monkey. The sharp eyesight, the deft quickness of the fingers, the physical strength to lift a bourgeois cap W, all are there—and there are two pairs of hands!—two! !

Think how much work a monkey could do! The employer who really had the interests of the typothetæ at heart could erect a bamboo pole before a sixty-case cabinet, the free and independent workman could wrap his tail around it and, sliding up and down the pole to the music of a hand organ turned by his equal, set up two billheads at once.

The workman's family expenses would be very light. A family of monkeys can catch enough fleas off one another to support themselves. The back of one monkey to another is as a garden spot to the poor.

The Simian element would, of course, have to be represented on the party ticket, but by making one of them a judge and appointing a couple as smoke inspectors all difficulty could be obviated. The judge could be of great service in issuing injunctions against human beings to prevent them from dangling cocoanuts before the eyes of the "free and independent." A judge issuing a faulty injunction can not be impeached, because it is a matter which rests with his own conscience entirely, as affecting things beyond the scope of the written law. A Simian judge would be very apt to cling closely to any precedent desired—first, because monkeys are natural imitators; second, because precedent is the tail of progress, and monkeys are attached to tails. In other cases, where instructions had not been received, any monkey could, by tossing up pennies for heads or tails, get 53 per cent of his work right, and, although 47 per cent of error would give any professional printer a ticket to Kankakee, it is not a disgrace to the bench, apparently, and the judge representing the Simian element would have the hearty support of all writers who do not know the difference between law and equity, and who believe "High on Extraordinary Remedies" is some sort of medical book.

The difficulty confronting the typothetæ in regard to printers, however, can not be solved by the use of monkeys, because the business requires a much greater amount of mental than of physical training and ability. If it were not for this fact those patriotic gentlemen would long ago have been importing monkeys by the shipload and the cunning little animals would have been hailed as free and independent workmen, too proud to submit to the domination of the labor unions; too loyal to their loving employers to listen to the blandishments of the crafty organizer seeking to enroll them in an organization calculated to protect the man who does the work from the man who is a patriot and has the interest of the consumer at heart, and the ideal "satisfied" workman would at last appear—leaving all profit for his employer.

Slavery was labor without profit to the laborer, without hope of progress or advancement except through the favor of a master, and because the most ignorant and brutal of the slaves were best satisfied with their condition, laws were enacted to prohibit the education of slaves (something like injunctions to prohibit the presentation of the benefits of unions to persons ignorant of them); the "satisfied" workman was as much in demand by the slaveholders as he is by the typothetæ, and for the same reason: Willingness to work long hours for the privilege of remaining alive during the years of his strength, in the sweet hope that charity will provide for him in the days of his weakness—all for the glory and happiness of the consumer.

Digitized by Google

Voices of many prophets have risen to plead the cause of this consumer; powerful orators with long, dark hair have carved mighty chunks out of the atmosphere and built up magnificent structures of ossified wind to prove that the consumer has priority rights over the producer; pale, proud men have laid their right forefingers along their jaws in a literary manner and had their pictures printed that way to prove to the consumer that they were engaged in thinking for him alone; persons who never worked have written burning words advising workers to vote for the consumer's friend—but, through it all, the trades unions have been practically alone in their fight for the man who does the work, for the man who furnishes the brains and muscle which produce and support the stupendous values that have made the youngest of the great nations twice as rich as its nearest competitor in the old world.

Profit-sharing, old-age pensions, government ownership and half a dozen other forms of devitalized honesty, besides an S-box full of sibilant isms, have been tried and found wanting, because they leave the man who does the work at the mercy of the consumer—which would be all right if all consumers assisted in the production or development of utilities, but which is all wrong because a large part of those who consume most produce nothing but their kind, develop nothing but trouble, perfect nothing but the inutile; contributing neither to art, science nor literature, and only pretending to understand either; occasionally attempting to justify their existence by pointing to the fact that they consume, while ignoring the fact that a fire in the business district has the same excuse to offer for its being.

Every attempt that has ever been made to shorten the hours of labor has been met by those ignorant of the productive value of brains with the assertion that the shorter hours would increase the cost of the product to the consumer; each time the demand for shorter hours has arisen because the growing intelligence and ability of the workmen have increased their individual productivity until there is not work enough for all without reducing wages and the standard of living in order to stimulate the demand for the product—the workman's brains have already redeemed the workman's hands; it is the increased productivity of the individual workman which calls for the reduction of hours.

The greatest tax on the progress of society is the ignorant and incompetent employer who thinks he MAKES a profit when he TAKES it from the man who does the work, whose individual increase in productivity it represents, and adds it to his own income; his equal is the fellow who declares the man furnishing tools and material has no right to participate in the profits of an enterprise. Each proposition is a good basis for "open-shop" argument; both are dishonest.

It has cost the typothetæ at least a half-million dollars to discover that money invested in type and machinery is not productive capital unless operated by brains, and that the printer who has brains enough to be a profit-maker in an office has brains enough to know that he is entitled to a fair share of the profit he makes, of the time his knowledge and intelligence saves, whether he chooses to take it in kind or in cash—in time or in money.

The social problem is to be solved by eliminating the useless factors and developing the powers of the useful. The trade union is the only agency through which the man who does the work can claim his share of the profits arising from the increased command acquired by his growing intelligence over the productive powers and agents.

The most productive labor in the world, that which develops the intellectual power—origin of all honest profit—is the most poorly paid. Chicago school teachers had to organize under the Federation of Labor before they could get their back salaries, even.

The history of material advancement is a chronicle of ideas worked out. If we could have a history of the ideas which have not been worked out we might know something of what the world has lost by taking profit from those who do the world's work and adding it to the income of money; by taking the reward of service from the thinker and using it to relieve others of the necessity of thinking. M. H. BATTENBERG.

Chicago, Ill.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

October 22 was a rally day for No. 15. President Lynch was scheduled to appear, but the pressure of work at headquarters compelled him to cancel the engagement. Max S. Hayes, of Cleveland, acted as his "sub," and delivered a strong and stirring address upon the progress of the eight-hour movement throughout the country. President Kinskey and Chairman Kilcawley, of the eight-hour committee of No. 9, were also present, and told how the boys in Buffalo were sticking on the firing line. They were followed by John S. Whalen, president, and Hon. George D. Forsythe, attorney of the central trades council, and M. J. O'Brien. The meeting was a decided success, and accomplished a great deal in the way of encouraging our members in their fight for the eight-hour workday.

John E. Stevens, a well-known printer of Rochester, died here on October 31, at the age of seventy-two. The "Judge," as he was familiarly known, held cases for many years on the Post-Express, and upon the advent of the linotype went to work in the job department of that concern, where he was employed until a few weeks before his death. He was of a genial, independent disposition, and the latchstring of his bachelor home was always found on the outside by his numerous friends. Many a weary "print" there found needed rest and sympathetic treatment at the hands of the "Judge." While partisan in his politics and his religion, he counted among his friends people of all parties and every creed. His democracy was of the old school—the kind that is applied in one's everyday life. His religious belief, though it went by a particular name, included every human creature in its plan. The "Judge," above all else, was a lover of humanity—a conscious member of the working class—and the memory of his great personality will serve as an inspiration to all who had the privilege of his acquaintance.

Digitized by Google

Election day is drawing near, but the usual activity of the rival candidates is absent this year, because of the eight-hour fight. The chances are that little change will be made in the official staff of No. 15 for the ensuing year. One thing, however, is certain: Bert H. Bates will be re-elected president without a dissenting vote. He has shown his mettle on more than one occasion during his term of office, and the way in which he has handled the local situation during the present trouble has met with the universal approval of the membership. His re-election will show our appreciation of his work in the most practical manner.

The ninth week of the struggle in Rochester finds the ranks of No. 15 unbroken, even by one single exception. This has been galling to the local typothetæ, which has expended its best efforts in an endeavor to break the line. They now realize that the printers are fighting for a principle, and no terms are acceptable other than a recognition of the eight-hour day. Another source of credit to No. 15 is that not one instance can be cited by the employers where our people have used other than just and lawful means to win their fight. This eight-hour movement, with all its cost in money and labor, will prove to be a good thing in more than one way. It is developing the rank and file of the International Typographical Union into an intelligent, militant body of workers. They are now endeavoring, by methods absolutely "on the square," to raise their standard of living and secure for themselves and others the advantages and conditions to which they are entitled under the industrial progress of the country. If their present methods or plan of organization should prove inadequate to completely achieve this end, then the rank and file of the American working printers will be found equal to the occasion, and they will adopt new methods and better organization until complete success is assured. No. 15 extends congratulations to sister unions that have already won the eight-hour day, and promises them that Rochester will also be swung into line if it takes all winter or longer to do it.

At the recent municipal election the working people of this city proved how far away they still are from realizing the importance of using their ballot for their own welfare. The vote on the eight-hour constitutional amendment was a disgrace to the workingmen of Rochester. Of course, the authorities and public press did little or nothing to aid in securing an intelligent vote upon the question, and every newspaper in the city came out a few days before the election and advised their readers to vote against it. But this did not excuse the workingmen for their neglect of duty. They ought to know by this time the so-called public press is editorially opposed to them, and therefore they must look to some other source for information and advice upon matters that concern the working class. The employer, as a rule, does not need to be told how he should vote upon public questions. He understands his own interests and acts upon his own initiative. The working people will have to do likewise if they ever expect to secure anything for themselves. We had here the absurd condition of about 120 union printers on strike on election day for eight hours, while upwards of 5,000 union men failed to register their votes in favor of an amendment to the state constitution making eight hours a legal workday. It's time they stopped kicking about what the politicians don't do for them, and go after it for themselves with their votes. That's the only way they will ever get it.

HENRY D. HENDERSON.

LAS VEGAS, N. M.

No reply has been received to date regarding the new eight-hour contract submitted to the management of the Optic plant, on account of the absence in the east of the managing proprietor, James G. McNary. However, the secretary has been given to understand that no objection will be raised to the eight hours per, and that the contract will be signed upon Mr. McNary's return, subject to an additional clause covering piece work on machines, which has heretofore been absent.

Three withdrawal cards have been made out during the past few days, the names being as follows: Mrs. Nellie Burk, Charles Peterson and Howard Bromagen.

The secretary of this local is in receipt of many letters from different parts of the country from printers and operators who desire to come here for health reasons, etc., and who seem to think they can get a job, transportation, etc., for the asking. About twenty such letters have been received since the publication of the October JOURNAL, and the answering of such communications involves no little time. I would say, however, that there are no openings here for either printers or operators who have to come this way "for health reasons." Situated as we are, we can not afford to employ individuals who would work one day and have to rest the next two—the staff must be reliable and a permanent part of the institution, and although we always place work in the way of those passing through, and try to keep those deserving and who will stay, it is quite out of the question to guarantee work to those who would perform such labor as best suited their state of health and feelings.

Following is a letter which should prove of interest to eight-hour enthusiasts throughout the country, and particularly to readers of THE JOURNAL. Mr. Rose was formerly employed at the trade, but is now practicing as an attorney, and still holds active membership in No. 312. Would that there were more of him:

ESTANCIA, N. M., November 4, 1905.

S. J. Sansom, Las Vegas, N. M.:

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER—Enclosed please find $1 to apply on my dues to the union. I receive THE JOURNAL regularly now and am much interested in the eight-hour movement, and pleased to see that, in many instances, the demands of the printers have been granted. It seems to me that this is a very fortunate time for this movement, as the financial condition of the country is such that all classes of business are flourishing, and the printing establishments, large and small, are driven to their utmost capacity, so there is no chance to cry dull business or poverty. Another thing is the fact that in such a prosperous time there are very few idle men, and it is almost impossible to get workmen when there is no trouble, and even more so to fill the places of those who have walked out.

Digitized by Google

With best regards to all friends, and especially the members of No. 312, I remain,

Very truly yours, N. S. Rose.

Our president, A. R. Bowman, has left for other parts, and W. E. Thresher was elected last Sunday, November 5, to take his place.

S. J. Sansom.

POCATELLO, IDAHO.

We got ours—eight hours—the first of June, and are willing, nay, anxious, that the others fare likewise.

No. 491 goes on record as voting unanimously for the 50-cent weekly assessment.

Ex-President Lamoreaux has about made up his mind to prove up on his homestead. He was one of the lucky ones from this city who succeeded in drawing a desirable quarter section of land when a part of the Fort Hall Indian reservation was opened for settlement.

Miss Blanche Loughran is more than "making good" on the simplex at the Advance print shop. Miss Loughran is the only lady card "man" in town and is popular with all. During the recent contest inaugurated by the Boise Capital News to determine the most popular young lady in Pocatello, our lady member won out by a handsome majority over twelve candidates. As a prize she was given transportation, with all other expenses paid, to the Portland exposition. Miss Loughran is an elocutionist of marked ability, and is always in demand whenever any "home doings" are given.

Pocatello is the stopping-off place for tourists. It is the first union town north from Salt Lake, south from Butte and east from Boise, and catches all the boys whose peregrinations lead them in either of those directions.

Secretary Purdie is prompt in posting circulars received from headquarters, something greatly appreciated by the members.

Pocatello Union No. 491 will give its first annual dance some time around the 1st of December. As this place is quite well unionized, a good attendance is assured.

Keep up the agitation. We are with you till the end of the dog.

Our slogan has the right sound—make it heard and appreciated.

Work has been very good here this fall, but there is plenty of help to do it all.

C. W. Semmes.

OFFICIAL BATTLE CRY OF THE I. T. U.

We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen.

EUROPEAN LETTER.

IMPORTING STRIKEBREAKERS.

Hail to the eight-hour day! May the dawn of the new year see every local branch of the International Typographical Union firmly established on that most important principle. On this side of the Atlantic the struggle is being watched with the keenest interest, and there is scarcely a printer in England who does not know of the strenuous efforts being put forward by the American unions in their endeavor to fully accomplish that for which they had been so long preparing. The matter was given great prominence through efforts of a Canadian typothetæ to secure men in England to replace those on strike in Canada. The Canadian laws do not prohibit the immigration of contract labor, as do those of the United States and Australia. The plan followed by the typothetæ agent sent here was the usual one. Every effort was made to deceive linotype and job men into accepting situations in Canada of fifty-three hours a week, and to make deposits on their fare before the truth of a strike in Winnipeg could be known. Not only were advertisements inserted in the help wanted columns of many daily papers, but reading notices were also published, stating that new papers were being started almost daily in western Canada, and that printers could not be secured in sufficient number to meet the demand. To add respectability to the plot, letterheads and envelopes were used in correspondence bearing in bold black type the words, "Personally Conducted Printers' Tour to Canada, November, 1905." Some of the letters issued by the "personal conductor" were among the choicest fiction of the year. In one case he used two typewritten pages in an endeavor to convince himself and his correspondent that he was not here to secure strikebreakers. In another case he writes over his own signature: "There can be no dispute in Canada until 1907, when the present agreement between the masters and men terminates. That is, unless the men break away. Am I clear?" This choice prevarication was dated October 17. As Bunting, the Piper of Hameln, however, this agent was not a great success, for, although he piped a merry tune, those insects did not follow him in large numbers.

Too much can not be said in praise of Mr. Skinner, secretary of the Typographical Association and treasurer of the National Printing Trades Federation of England, who led the fight against this plot, and great credit is also due to his subordinate officers and to the officers of the Scottish and London societies for the part they took in the fight. It was necessary to devote considerable time and money to the campaign. Advertisements, circulars and letters warning printers from accepting Canadian fifty-three-hour situations were issued in large numbers, and, as sailing day approached, efforts were made to get into personal touch with those who had made deposits. Through these efforts the number of emigrants was greatly reduced, and what promised to be a disaster to the Canadian unions was averted. In one case a British printer who had been deceived into making a deposit on his fare to Canada forfeited the money rather than take the place of a man on strike for the eight-hour day.

Digitized by Google

OTHER TOPICS.

The typographical unions of the United Kingdom are divided into three main bodies—the Scottish, with 30 branches in Scotland and over 4,000 members; the English, with 143 branches in England and Ireland and a membership of about 18,500, and the London Society of Compositors, which has a membership of nearly 12,000 in London and suburbs. In addition there are several local unions not affiliated, but working in harmony with the larger bodies. Of these, the Dublin society is the most important. There is a national federation, which includes the foregoing and other kindred bodies.

At Belfast, Ireland, I first entered the jurisdiction of the English Typographical Association. In the endeavor to make the circuit of the United Kingdom before winter came on, I left London for Edinburgh in September, and after passing through Scotland went over to Belfast, making a pleasant visit in that city, but not stopping long enough to secure work. The people are most hospitable and kindly in their reception of strangers, and the Emerald Isle is very beautiful, even in the autumn. Belfast is a city of about 375,000 inhabitants, and is quite a business center, but is best known, perhaps, for its extensive ship building yards. The printing trade is well represented there, one of the best equipped offices I have seen abroad being that of the Belfast Evening Telegraph, a newspaper and general printing concern which at times employs about 700 hands. There are a great many lithographic and flat-bed presses in the plant, each driven by its own direct-connected motor, and the latest and most improved machinery is used in other departments. A large photo-engraving plant furnishes plates for three-color halftone work, and by a new process of nickel-plating, halftone and other plates are made for outside houses. Seventeen linotypes comprise the news and job room battery. On the News-Letter, a Belfast morning paper, I was surprised to see two of the best-known American straight-line perfecting presses, which have recently been installed, and are giving excellent satisfaction, the use of colored ink being somewhat of a novelty in this country.

In provincial England there are some very large printing houses. One of the best newspaper plants I visited was that of the Morning Dispatch and Evening Chronicle at Manchester, a large publishing house which issues a number of daily and weekly papers, and also does job work. There are forty-four linotypes and three monotypes in the composing department, and eight perfecting presses in the basement. Stereotyping is done on two auto-plate machines, which are now being constructed in England. The Morning Guardian and Evening News plant has thirty-six linotypes, and uses three auto-plates. Of the machines thirty are in the composing room and six in the basement, the latter being used for "fudging" or "jigger" work. Most English papers devote considerable space to horse racing and sports, and the "fudge" is very common for stop-press news. Other morning papers in Manchester are the Courier, with eighteen linotypes, and the Manchester edition of the London Mail, with nineteen machines. The city of Manchester and its suburbs would roughly correspond to Philadelphia in population. Liverpool, about the size of St. Louis, has two morning and two evening papers, the Post and the Mercury having recently consolidated. The Evening Echo and the Morning Post and Mercury are issued from a plant of twenty-nine machines, and the Morning Courier and Evening Express have twenty machines. Sheffield has two morning and one evening paper. The Independent has twenty-two machines and the morning and evening Telegraph twenty-four. It is a city of about 450,000. These cities are all in the central part of the country. I did not stop between Sheffield and Edinburgh, but visited many of the southern cities from Nottingham to Birmingham, and through Oxford to London. The scales of prices for the larger cities will average about $8.50 for fifty-one hours, job work, and perhaps $10 a week for day and $12.50 for night linotype hands, forty-two to forty-eight hours a week. There is also a piece scale in force in some places, and the rate would be from 10 cents to 12 cents per thousand. In fact, many foreign unions have both piece and time scales, and not a little confusion arises therefrom. An operator working by piece will earn $15 to $20, where on time he would be paid about $12.50. In these cases the time rate has been based on the minimum output, and consequently it is not to be expected that competent men will greatly exceed the rate of output on which their wages are based. From experience abroad at both rates, I personally prefer the time rate as being most satisfactory, provided it is based on the average, and not the minimum output.

When one considers the size of the English cities, they do not seem to have their full quota of newspapers, but this is explained by the fact that distances are so short that the larger dailies greatly interfere with the circulation of smaller papers in outlying districts. The London papers are able to cover the major portion of England each morning. Most of the provincial dailies are made up on the same plan. The first two and the last two pages are devoted to advertisements, and the telegraphic news appears in the center, opposite the editorial page. The news-gathering service is good, but not so complete as that in America. England covers so little territory that most reports should come by mail or long-distance telephone. The long-distance 'phone, however, is not yet greatly used, possibly because the telegraph is exceedingly cheap. Newspaper copy is very bad, practically no typewriter copy, either local or telegraph, being furnished. Not only is the manuscript frequently bad, but words are very much abbreviated. The newspapers and the government have not as yet fully grasped the importance of typewriters as applied to the preparation of copy. Heads are generally set by hand, and italics and small caps still inserted by hand on the machine, for, as one foreman explained, "it is quicker."

Digitized by Google

Altogether the English newspapers are very different from the American, and while it is true our styles are not popular here, their ways would never do for a minute in the States. Display advertising is being slowly introduced here, but as yet advertisers do not take kindly to the idea.

While there are a few weeklies issued on Sunday mornings, there are no seven-day papers, and, of course, little demand for subs. In vacation season, from June to September, there is some demand for extra men, but the rest of the year work is scarce. Tourists are quite out of place. A man who accepts a situation is expected to stay with that house for the rest of his life. In some offices where I applied for work the question was asked, "How long will you stay?" The modest reply, "Eight months," brought the retort, "Oh, I wouldn't hire a man like you." Those who do stay years in one office are not infrequently rewarded by a pension in their old age, one of the largest London newspapers, it is said, having about 150 men on its pension roll, mainly hand men thrown out by composing machinery. All the typographical unions here also give pensions. As their members grow old, the rate has increased, until 4 cents per week per member no longer furnishes sufficient funds. It is thought that 6 cents a week will be sufficient for all time.

The inhabitants of provincial England are extremely conservative, and do not readily fall in with new ideas. Above all, they seem to have a deep suspicion of America and things American. The following items referring to our president and the Portsmouth peace convention are from the October number of Blackwood's Magazine: "But there was no reason why he should have interfered. The interests of America were not imperiled. He dictated how much this side should grant, how much that side would be wise to accept, and he played the part of Providence with equal courage and assurance. Of course he could only act as he did because his country has not inherited the traditions of diplomacy, because his indiscretion comes from another and a newer world than ours. Now the danger of these international busybodies is that, like the journalists who create them, they are without responsibility. Mr. Roosevelt, for his own glory, wanted nothing but peace, peace bad or good, peace at any price . . . Nevertheless, should the peace be broken, the responsibility will be partly his."

More than once, in giving truthful answers to the simplest questions, I have been interrupted with the exclamation, "Oh, we know all about your Yankee yarns." The idea seems prevalent that in America there are no competent workmen, and that all American machinery is cheap and unreliable. Yet, although wages are much higher in America than in England, American goods are invading even the British markets. In spite of these little business jealousies, however, there seems quite a strong undercurrent of friendliness toward our country. On festive occasions the stars and stripes generally figures quite prominently in street decorations—much more prominently than the British flag does in our streets on similar occasions. I was particularly impressed with this at the recent magnificent volunteer review in Edinburgh, Scotland, where the American flag was everywhere in evidence.

Some years ago, when I was a little lad, chasing centipedes around the D. & R. G. railroad ties, I used to dream of days in the future when I might visit our ancient city of Philadelphia, and see the battlefields of the revolutionary war. In this land every field seems a battlefield, and as to old buildings, I am writing this letter at the Guildhall Library, London, in a building erected in the year 1439. At Manchester there is a gin-mill (they call them public houses, or "pubs," here) which has held a license continuously for 520 years. In the days when Columbus' grandmother wore short dresses, and Gutenberg's father was still a young man, drinks were being served by this saloon. The churches and castles of England rank well with those of Germany, and the country is very beautiful indeed.

Nearly every American who comes here has something to say of the old churchyards and the epitaphs upon some of the tombstones. I can not resist the temptation to send this one, from a headstone in All Saints' churchyard, Hastings:

> Here lies an only darling boy,
> Who was his widowed mother's joy;
> Her grief and sad affliction prove
> How tenderly she did him love.
> In childish play he teased a mule—

but why continue in this sad strain—the boy's death was quick and painless—he never knew what hit him, and the mule doubtless lived to a ripe old age. No, this is not a "Yankee yarn," for I have a photograph of that tombstone. Gentle reader, if you seek a moral in this little poem, let the mule represent the International Typographical Union, and the boy those who endeavor to obstruct progress, as represented by the oncoming eight-hour day. G. I. Brayton.

London, November 4.

DESPOTISM IN AMERICA.

Whereas, By means of injunctions, courts of law have gradually acquired the dangerous power to make and execute laws at will, instead of interpreting and enforcing only those of the proper legislative bodies; therefore, be it

Resolved, That for the preservation of the rights of the people, it has become imperatively necessary that steps should be taken to limit the power of judges, lest by precedents and forms of law every innocent act be made criminal, and be punished as such, at the pleasure of any court which can be so persuaded.—Adopted at an anti-injunction meeting in Chicago November 5.

For some time past organized labor has been menaced with a circle of drawn swords and warned not to stir under penalty of severe injury. And all the while the circle is being made smaller and smaller, with the ultimate intention of having the points of the swords meet in the very center of its heart. This is being done in the name and through the power and majesty of law. At first there was the excuse that members of labor organizations were using physical violence and protection was needed. That some adopted this cowardly and foolish method can not be disputed. Not all these wrongful deeds, however, were committed by union men. There are many stories and confessions of such crimes being done by the employers' hired disreputables. The employers gain the most by use of violence, because condemnation obscures the righteousness of labor's cause. Still, had all these unlawful acts been traced to union men, they did not warrant the judges in creating new laws. Violations of law are reasons for courts being themselves especially careful to keep within the law.

Digitized by Google

In our efforts to gain the eight-hour day, which means a greater opportunity for the toilers, we have been particularly anxious to avoid illegal acts. It is a glorious record we have made all over the country in this struggle—no cowardly acts of physical violence; no striking of blows, then running away and hiding in fear; but quietly and effectively persuasion has been used, and it has been a winning battle we have waged. Therefore, to prohibit these methods is to bring courts into deserved contempt.

We are told we must respect the law; but it must prove the right to command respect ere it can obtain it. What the average man knows of the law he gains by hearing of the way it is construed and by its common application. He reads that one judge renders a decision on a certain point and another decides exactly the contrary. He learns that a case which should be settled upon the question of right and justice is thrown out of court upon technicalities. He follows a case up to the highest court, and there sees the most important questions settled by a majority of one. And finally he learns of judges acting with all the tyranny that modern processes admit and trampling under foot the faintest semblance of liberty, while posing as the highest exponents of freedom and virtue, and while holding prominent positions in the church. And still he is told he must respect the law.

Don't make the mistake, however, of supposing that because you can not respect judge-made law, you are able to defy injunctions with impunity. We may despise the most loathsome creature existing, and yet we would be foolish to heedlessly place ourselves within its power. Don't defy injunctions unless you are willing to go to jail for doing so. But if you believe that duty demands such a sacrifice, there will be no disgrace in doing whatever it is right to do in the absence of an injunction. The disgrace is in making such actions criminal.

The claim that superior wisdom or training justifies judges in so extending their power strikes at the very foundation of the republic. It is related that Franklin in France once took part in a discussion on the right of the majority to rule. Finally it came that all but he agreed that the intelligent minority should be the rulers. Then Franklin said that, according to their own decision, his views should have greater weight than all theirs combined, since he believed they would concede he was an intelligent minority.

The only way that superior intelligence should rule others is by logical persuasion. The privilege of using force beyond existing law should be denied judges the same as other citizens. To declare unlawful the attempt to persuade men they are working against their own interests as well as against those of humanity, is to use the power of the court to degrade. Such destruction of liberty may be upheld by higher courts upon technical grounds, or from too great reliance upon precedents that fit with their personal feelings, but it will remain unlawful force nevertheless. The constitutional guaranty of liberty is above all court decisions, and no precedent can set it aside. Though it is through the abuse of power by individual judges that we have come to realize what may be done by courts, it must be remembered the trouble lies in the possession of such power, and the remedy is in making such changes as will restore to the people the liberty which has been taken from them. It has been pointed out that injunctions do away with trial by jury. Little would be accomplished, however, by the introduction of jury trials, if the judges are not restricted in their power in these procedures. Injunctions must be confined to their legitimate sphere of warning against the commission of unlawful acts, or they are certain to be misused.

Possibly the quickest way to secure a remedy is to push the initiative and referendum, that the people may rule. Making laws to suit one's own feelings and prejudices, regardless of whether honest men are thus made criminals, breeds anarchy? Can there be more dangerous foes to fight than those who thus place this country in peril?

The battle we are engaged in is of far greater importance than bloody wars for the acquisition of foreign territory or for the extension of trade. We are fighting against the mighty forces of organized capital, with its different divisions under the names of employers' associations, manufacturers' associations and citizens' alliances. This army is composed largely of business adventurers, ready to invoke all the powers of evil to force us back to the despotism from which Russia is battling to escape.

Russia is struggling upward toward freedom; America is being pressed backward toward hopeless slavery. Despotism is the same merciless tyrant in every country; it makes its own desires the law, and woe be to the one who rebels! Unless it be completely banished, the words "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" can have no meaning.

Were a foreign foe to threaten this country, how quickly the hosts of labor would rush to its defense. The foe we are facing is far more dangerous, far more powerful.

The struggle is not for ourselves alone. It is for the whole of humanity. All the beneficent genius that tends toward progress demands that the hours of labor shall continue to be reduced until not one idle man can be found, unless he be such from choice. Then, when idleness shall be disgrace, the world will have such prosperity and happiness as it never knew before.

It is a time of sacrifice—a time of trial. These are the days when men show what kind of mettle they possess.

Tyranny has usurped justice and come to the aid of our opponents, yet what have they gained? We have only to be loyal and we can never be conquered. Were our antagonists to fully succeed in their object, wages would fall to a dollar a day of ten or twelve hours, and many of us, unable to find work, would have our choice of begging, stealing or starving. That is what the despots call freedom. Even now some employers openly express the wish to reduce wages and to lengthen the day.

Digitized by Google

Those "whited sepulchres" who belong to churches, where the cry is that it must get in touch with labor, and yet whose touch scorches and shrivels labor instead of comforting and expanding it—those blind individuals who declaim about caring for the young who come to the cities, and then seek to defeat honest labor's aspirations by bringing immature youth into the closest and most intimate contact with the very vilest of beings, often doing so under false pretenses—shall they escape retribution? The voice of Eternal Justice thunders: "No! What they sow they shall reap!"

Let us fight on, then, bravely and cheerfully, knowing that nothing is ever settled until it is settled right, and that to yield would be worse than death. Progress and liberty are ours by right, and shall not be wrested from us forever, no matter if every word of agitation and every vote we cast be contested by injunctions obtained by the forces of degeneracy. Though the war may need all our patience and endurance, our cause is just and must ultimately be victorious.

Chicago, Ill. ALEXANDER SPENCER.

THE EIGHT-HOUR SKIRMISHES.

The careful observer must have noticed that our friend, "the typothetæ," is bound to make the demand of the International Typographical Union for an eight-hour workday on January 1 a contest that shall make history. All along the line skirmishes are on to test the fettle of our army, and methinks we can point with pardonable pride to the showing our clansmen are making. In fact, trying to force the issue in the belief that our people are unprepared for the onslaught will make some of our members realize, what they hitherto have dreaded to admit, that there is a class war, and that our friends, the buyers of labor power—the typothetæ in this instance—will not hesitate to strike the blow which they believe will protect their material interests.

These skirmishes all over the country will enable both factors in this class war to muster their hosts and concentrate their forces to best economic advantage. We of the working class know that as long as we remain true to our pledge, "victory will perch on our banner." Our labor exploiting friends must rely on traitors to working-class interests to man their shops to cause our defeat. Will they be able to find enough of the rodents to wage battle? That's the question, and that depends upon circumstances.

If the International Typographical Union can continue to provide funds enough to support those who may be obliged to quit work on January 1, 1906, and there is every indication that the 50 cents per week assessment will enable the executive council to succor where aid is needed, it is only a question of a few weeks when the buyers of labor power will capitulate. Profits are not forthcoming where there are no wage slaves to exploit, and investments, as a rule, are too large to warrant the running of an establishment unless it is fully manned. With not enough rats in reserve to warrant successful operation, the typothetæ will meet its Waterloo.

Now is the time for action, brothers! With a clear conception of what we are striving for, and unity of action on the part of our members who will be drawn into this contest, the day is ours. No court injunction, no combinations of capital can defeat us if we have the working class and its organized hosts behind us. Treason alone midst our ranks can undo us, and we need have no fear in this respect. Eight hours on January 1, 1906, is our war cry! ROBERT BANDLOW.

Cleveland, Ohio.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

The reports in the November JOURNAL show that over 16,000 members have secured contracts for the eight-hour day, counting those who have secured contracts in cities where strikes are now on. Who could wish for better progress than this, two months before the time set for the shorter day to go into effect? Counting the newspaper men in other cities, fully one-half of the membership have the eight-hour day now, or have made arrangements for it.

Where is a typographical poet who will write us a suitable song of victory? There is yet work to do, and battles must still be fought, but there is not room for doubt as to the result. So give us the song to sing.

Labor creates all wealth. And don't you forget it.

Employers believe in unions—so long as they do nothing but pay sick and death benefits. They are good things—so long as the members don't try to have a voice in the terms of their employment. Employers will give us the glad hand so long as we do nothing for our own interests.

One Bloomington shop has a real dead stone. On the under side runs the legend, "———, died July 4, 1856, aged 82 years, 4 months and 18 days." The presence of such a piece of furniture should insure the regular appearance of the ghost.

When American workingmen attain a consciousness of their class interests such as is displayed by the workers of Russia and Italy, nothing can prevent their securing the shorter day. The solidarity necessary for a general strike has never yet been reached in America. The stronger and clearer the feeling of common interest becomes among all the working class, the easier will it be for them to secure a more just reward for their labor.

W. A. WALKER.

OFFICIAL BATTLE CRY OF THE I. T. U.

We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen.

Digitized by Google

GREED'S CRAFTY PLAN.

The God of Greed sat on his throne of skulls and bones all crossed
And watched his aids—his courtiers bold—perform their daily tasks.
Oft had he bidden them all of mankind t' enslave,
And now he shrieked, "The labor hosts have grown too strong by far;
The little toll my servants ask brings threats from them of war,
And yet they yield not half the sum I crave!"

The courtiers sped o'er hill and dale, in lusty, frantic haste,
Each fain to grab of plunder most to please his restless god;
No righteous plea their mad career could check.
All tricks and schemes of good or ill repute were tried in vain;
At last they found, through cunning brain, the way their ends to gain:
This cry was raised: "The open shop will wreck!"

They claimed their slaves true freedom lacked because of toilers' bands;
But told not what such freedom meant—to beg or steal or starve;
To sap Toil's strength and naught but blight to give.
This is the aim of would-be saints and sinners rich in guile,
Whose justice could uphold all thieves, and urge this plea the while:
"Let them go free! They have a right to live!"

To make of Toil a helpless slave, with hope all lost or dead,
Is Folly's dream, though judge and saint may strive to prove it true
With all Law's force deformed and bent to suit;
For Labor crushed again shall rise through Wisdom's use of might;
Its day shall dawn with splendor crowned, and clearer shine its light
To upward lift, and baffled Greed stand mute.

Chicago, Ill. ALEXANDER SPENCER.

WANTED—A COLONY SITE.

"As improvident as a printer" may not be a just comparison to—the printer. But nevertheless the prominent fact is ever in the foreground that many in their days of plenty do not provide for the future. To some the Home at Colorado Springs offers a haven when their usefulness is over or when sickness or disease prevents further work. But many are not in a position to enjoy the benefits the Home offers, on account of home ties. It is for these that I write.

To provide for this class I would establish a colony in some good, healthy location in the South, where early vegetables and fruits can be raised. The reason for selecting the South is that it offers so many more advantages that there is no comparison. It is a well-known fact that a very comfortable living can be made on from five to ten acres of land, which can be purchased for from $5 to $25 an acre. My idea would be to have some land company that has a good colony site open it up in from five to fifteen-acre tracts, the same to be paid for on the installment plan of either weekly or monthly payments. The payments could be so graded that the amount would not be missed. From what I have heard, I firmly believe that a colony of from 750 to 2,000 people could be easily obtained. The business of raising garden vegetables and fruit is readily learned, and yields a good, comfortable living.

I have been conducting a correspondence with several land companies, and some valuable suggestions have been offered. One is that the land company build a hothouse or greenhouse and place an experienced market gardener in charge, so all members could get their plants, seeds, etc., at a convenient time and at a reasonable price.

Then, with the profits of early fruit and vegetables, a cow and pig and some chickens, the time which many of us dread—when we are displaced by younger men—will be faced with a feeling of security not unmixed with joy, for the future has been provided for.

To establish such a colony, I would like to hear from those interested, and especially from land companies having colony sites, or from any railroads who would aid in the matter. Members knowing of a good site will kindly bring the same to notice of those who may be interested.

Clinton, Ill. RAYMOND BOWDEN.

NEW LONDON, CONN.

No. 159 is finishing the third month of its strike, and conditions are very satisfactory. There are only two "rats" in town, not including the three Judases who betrayed us on September 5. None of the struck shops are doing the usual amount of work. In the Utley shop there is one "rat," whom the proprietor would not have allowed in the shop prior to the strike. He is Henry M. King, of New York, grossly incompetent by his own confession to me. At the U. L. Printing Company there is one "rat," who is greatly deficient in ability as a printer. In that shop the windows have been painted, excluding light and a view of the Scotch rodent from the public. At the Bingham shop they are unable to turn out their work. One of the deserters had a severe attack of "eight-hour fever." From remorse and worry he was taken sick, which nearly resulted fatally. Two of the Bingham deserters are interested in a local orchestra and dance hall, and they have suffered a loss of considerably over $600 in patronage during this strike, and the end is not yet.

We see no cause to complain locally or nationally. All we need is firmness and a determination to "stand pat." We have right, justice, money and men on our side, and the "teapot" can never get anything to break that combination.

I wish to make a protest against a certain class of tourists who are going about "holding up" the striking cities. A short time ago one landed here with a Chicago card. He was given a meal at a restaurant. Then he tried to get $2 from a member of the executive committee. Not being successful, he tried to convince our president that he was a striker from Chicago, and wanted us to pay him several weeks' benefits. Such cases are frequent, and this is only one of several that have happened here.

We are paying an assessment here of 5 per cent, to be used as the strike committee may see fit. A canvass has been made among the merchants and other unions, and much good work has been done in the way of having the label on printing. The assessment is being used to aid that canvass in the way of printed matter, and to further assist the men who are on strike.

Digitized by Google

We are making a fight on the Westerly Times, a weekly paper printed in a "rat" shop here for distribution in Westerly, a town eighteen miles from here. Its circulation has been cut from 700 to less than 300, and the sheet is running more than eight "dead" ads. Many thanks are due the granite cutters' union of Westerly for its assistance. As the granite cutters have a membership of over 500 in the town, their efforts in our behalf are bound to count.

It gives me great pleasure to know that the 50-cent assessment won by such a large majority. It shows the spirit that animates the members of the International Typographical Union, and will give the "teapot" a jar in the solar plexus. Such a show of loyalty to our organization is unprecedented, and will have a tendency to weld us together more solidly than ever. When they come to realize what we will gain by this fight, and what it means to all our members, those who voted against the assessment will be sorry. This strike is for something more than the hour. It is for health, happiness, comfort, more home life, and many other things, and we can not afford to lose it, and will not. Let us all stick and work. We all know that, in the words of the poet, "Behind the clouds the sun is still shining," and it will shine for the International Typographical Union with increased splendor and brightness when this fight is won.

ROBERT TARRING.

In making my initial bow to other correspondents and the thousands of brother members who (like myself) would sooner have their week's pay confiscated than be robbed of their TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL, I humbly beg of the "talent" not to "read proof" too closely on my first attempt to "butt in" and add a few words in connection with our able secretary's report from New London, Conn. In last month's JOURNAL the Sioux City (Iowa) correspondent submitted in full a letter from my old "college chum," Hugh Saxon, who is now assistant city editor of the Los Angeles Express. Hugh's letter is particularly interesting to yours truly, as it mentions not a few of my old acquaintances of halcyon days. Some of them have passed over to the silent majority—others are still with us. It is some twelve or fourteen years ago that Hugh Saxon, Johnny Burke, Kid Nealon, Hart Hood and myself worked together in Trenton, N. J., and a few items from the capital of Jersey will perhaps be of some interest at this time.

There are few of the "old school" of traveling comps who do not remember Mrs. Phillips' boarding house on Perry street, under whose table were often stretched the pedal extremities of many distinguished members of our craft, among whom were James T. McGingan, Samuel Irving, Artie (Speck) White, Tommy Turner, Tommy Strathers, John Gibbons, Johnny Burke, Billy Bland, and others too numerous to mention. The girl who waited on the table became as well versed in "printerology" as the printers whom she served, and when one would call for "about half a stickful of coffee," a "galley full of baked beans," "pica slugs" (ginger snaps), etc., she never made an error.

One member of the "old guard" in Trenton is now at the Home—Eugene O'Hallaran.

Charles Phillips, Edward Fletcher, Robert E. Gottshalk and Capt. Matthew Austin have all passed away since my friend Hugh Saxon departed from the East.

I hope that Hugh will write to me after he sees this little story of mine, and a letter to P. O. Box 248, New London, Conn., will reach me O. K.

HARRY TIDGWELL.

NOTES FROM THE UNION PRINTERS' HOME.

William Austin Davis, manager of the Telegraph job department, has discovered the whereabouts of his father, whom he had not seen for seventeen years. The elder Davis was supposed to have died in the yellow fever quarantine at Jacksonville, Fla., in the epidemic of 1888, and his family was informed of his death. But, instead of dying, he secretly escaped, went to Fresno, Cal., and entered the newspaper business, and, with a brother-in-law, has been searching for his son several years. The father finally advertised in THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL last September under "Addresscs Wanted," and, the notice being read by W. A. Davis here, father and son were happily reunited. The elder Davis is seventy years old, and the son is a young man and an active member of No. 82.

John L. Kennedy, former president of Columbia Union No. 101, was a recent visitor to the Springs, and afterwards left for Washington, D. C. Mr. Kennedy is interested in the oil business, his brother having discovered a valuable "strike" on their ranch, sixteen miles east of the city.

Efforts are being made by Colorado "boosters" to secure from the railroads at least one fare for the round trip from all points to the International Typographical Union convention here next August, as well as to the Elks' national gathering in Denver about the same time.

Our friends are reminded that Christmas and New Year's are close by. May both be happy ones to everybody.

Thomas Conklin, from New York No. 6, died of consumption in the hospital annex October 22, aged fifty years. He was admitted to the Home about one week before his death. He was a native of Ireland, and had no relatives in this country. The funeral services were held at St. Mary's Church, and interment was in Evergreen. There ought to be some way to prevent sending a poor, afflicted fellow on an exhausting two-thousand-mile journey in such a weakened condition, thus hastening the end. But they keep on doing it.

The Martinette brothers, famous acrobats, who had a week's engagement at the Empire Theater, recently visited the Home and were entertained by Charley Loughlin.

Miss Laura W. Edinger, the Home's popular bookkeeper, who was employed first in this capacity in the first week in March, 1902, and who tendered her resignation early in October, terminated her services at the institution on Saturday, November 11. On the evening previous (Friday) she was invited to visit the assembly room and meet with the members, on which occasion she was made the recipient of a handsome hunting-case watch and fleur-de-lis pin, the gift of Home members exclusively. The lady left on Sunday, November 12, for Columbus, Ohio, which will be her place of residence in the future.

Digitized by Google

The Western Laborer of November 4 contained an able article entitled "The Great White Plague, Tuberculosis." The article is a commendable one; but the writer makes the unqualified assertion that at this Home "experienced medical skill is in charge and does what it can for the patients, but has not cured any of them." The October TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL contains the annual report of Superintendent Deacon, which states that seventeen tuberculosis patients left here able to work. As to whether they were permanently cured can not be determined, unless they relapse into their former condition. Without qualification (and the Laborer makes a positive assertion), it might be inferred that the Home treatment and climatic conditions are of no benefit, and thus do them an injustice. Suffice it to say that members have come here afflicted with tuberculosis, and have recovered sufficiently to go to work, and are still working, at the printing or other business.

The following are some of the typographical visitors recently registered on our book: Ernst Ebel, of German-American Union No. 9, of Chicago (and wife); Ralph Cleppenger, of Norris City, Ill.; Stanley Koeber, of Philadelphia No. 2; W. M. Leath, ex-secretary of Birmingham (Ala.) No. 104; Henry Meyer, of Colorado Springs No. 82; Curtis B. Haley, of Nashville, Tenn., proofreader (and wife); Frank Jacobs, of Philadelphia No. 2; Mrs. S. G. Hardin, of Ames, Iowa, editress; H. J. Reed, of Denver No. 49; G. S. Foxworthy, of Omaha, honorary member of Lincoln No. 209; H. G. Johnston, of New Orleans No. 17; C. W. Tyree, of Indianapolis No. 1; O. K. Judd, of Little Rock No. 92; John J. Hatch and Daniel McDevitt, of Philadelphia No. 2.

As the official list of arrivals and departures will be reported by Superintendent Deacon, we will merely state that Edward Blair, lately admitted from No. 3, was one of the Cincinnati strikers for the eight-hour day, and that William Mirick, of Minneapolis No. 42, whose case was appealed to the Toronto convention, was admitted October 29.

A letter from George J. Tucker, an old member of Chicago No. 16, who is spending a season at Los Angeles, says that fifty printers deposited cards with No. 174 during October, which has a membership of 336. There are many visiting typos there from towns where eight-hour strikes are unsettled.

Mrs. Nellie V. Wilson, admitted last March from Columbia Union No. 101, and the only lady resident of the Home, vacated November 4 and returned to Washington, improved somewhat, but not convalescent. The trouble is tuberculosis. She made hosts of friends while here, and all hope for her complete restoration to health.

Jim Williams, a former tuberculosis resident of the Home, but who learned the tonsorial art from a barber employed here, and ably filled that position for some years, is back again, working at his new trade at A. L. Patton's barber shop. He has been barbering in Arizona for some two years, but spent the past summer in Columbus, Ohio, his home city.

George Taylor, a former resident of the Home from Omaha, where he has been in business for some time past, called on us recently, en route for Los Angeles to spend the winter. He is totally blind, but travels and does business without a guide.

There were 3,057 visitors registered at the Home from May 1 to November 1, 1905. As many neglected to register, the number of visitors approximated 3,500. This is ahead of all previous records for six months.

Colorado Springs Union No. 82, at its November meeting, voted to donate the whole of the eight-hour assessment to the parent body, and also to pay from the local funds the 50-cent weekly assessment to the eight-hour fund for members who earned less than $10 per week. Great enthusiasm prevailed for the success of the movement, and it is evident that money will not be lacking here to make the eight-hour fight a victorious one throughout our jurisdiction.

Captain H. P. Macloon, of the Twenty-fifth Missouri volunteers, and an old resident of the Home from Denver Union No. 49, has received a medal from the National Association of the Battle of Shiloh Survivors, of which he is a member. The medal is a work of art, worthy to be worn by a survivor of the notable engagement of April 6-7, 1862, and Captain Macloon is naturally extremely proud of it. It is a composition pendant suspended from a log, on which is the word "Shiloh." In a circle around the face is the inscription: "The National Association of the Battle of Shiloh Survivors," and on the back the words: "We Now Drink from the Same Canteen." The front also shows the famous battlefield, a great wooded stretch of country, and the rear the arms of the order. A tiny coffee cup hangs from the bar immediately above the main portion of the medal. The association was formed at the recent encampment of the G. A. R. at Denver. A number of the 900 survivors of the battle live in Denver, but so far as is known Captain Macloon is the only survivor in Colorado Springs.

Don Davidson, a veteran printer of Colorado Springs, has discovered a new hair restorer. He "had no hair on top of his head" for several years, but since he has been working on a morning paper under electric light, it (the hair) is beginning to grow again.

"Deacon's All-Star Minstrels," supported by Fink's full orchestra, made their second annual appearance at the Home, November 9, in an elaborate program and gorgeous costumes. The first part included the time-honored minstrel features, with David Kenneth, jr., as interlocutor, A. D. Carrie and Mrs. C. M. Carter, "bones," and Charles M. Carter and Miss Laura Edinger, "tambos." The vocalists were William Irvine, John Maycock, Charles M. Loughlin, Ernest Webb,

Digitized by Google

Frank Guiterez, Proctor Deacon, Miss Helene Vanderflute, Miss Ella Duff, Miss Helen Houghton, Miss Anna Knapp, Miss Helen Galbraith and Miss Henrietta Deacon, with Clarence D. Sears as director. New songs and "new" jokes were given. In the second part George P. Mesick gave a calisthenic stunt, demonstrating the poetry of motion; Charles M. Carter made his "farewell" appearance on the American stage; Master Proctor Deacon and little Miss Alma Carrie performed a sketch entitled "Strolling," and the show closed with a saxophone quartet. All but three of the performers were residents of the Home, and proved that we have stage talent equal to the best professionals.

Albert L. Stagg died in the hospital annex, of tuberculosis, November 12, 1905, aged forty-five years. He was admitted from New York Union No. 6 about five weeks before his demise. Funeral services were held at the Home the following Tuesday by Rev. E. Evans Carrington, and interment was in Evergreen. O. LANGFORD.

Colorado Springs, Colo.

DAYTON, OHIO.

It is doubtful if there is in the United States a city in which organized labor has had to battle so strenuously for existence as in Dayton. Here was started what is now the manufacturers' association, from which has grown, like barnacles on a ship's side, the other organizations of the employers, sailing under the names of citizens' alliances, employers' associations, etc., all over the United States.

The mouthpiece of the Dayton association, known here as the "riding delegate," frequently belches forth his tirades against labor unions, and has several times publicly asserted he would, inside of three years, destroy every vestige of unionism in Dayton, and in order to hold his job as secretary of the employers' association he has his monthly, sometimes weekly, proclamation issued that the unions are annihilated.

At the present time there are in Dayton fifty-four unions, whose members compose the very essentials of trade organizations, and are of more actual force at the present time than when the same unions, several years ago, represented a much larger membership. But today they represent the very foundation of the movement in Dayton, and are again carefully and steadily increasing in membership and influence.

Typographical Union No. 57 has paid scarcely any attention to this blatant "dickey bird," and has gone forward in her efforts to establish the eight-hour day. But when the committee, in June, submitted the first eight-hour agreement to our employers in the book and job trade, this "Meddlesome Mattie" tried to frighten the committee by publishing a "notice," on May 31, 1905, headed, "To Law-Abiding and Financially Responsible Members of the Union," in which the threat was made that if any employer incurred loss through action of the union in causing strike and consequent damage to the firms involved, damage suits would be instituted against property-owning members of the union. It was signed by the "Dayton Employers' Association," and meant to intimidate our membership through the probable entry of suits against some of our thrifty and home-owning members.

The eight-hour committee persisted in its laudable efforts to secure the eight-hour day, and after repeated rebuffs and a policy in vogue here of not holding any conference with labor unions or committees, they succeeded in getting the signatures of sixteen firms, which employ the majority of our members. The firms which have agreed to establish the eight-hour day January 1, 1906, are as follows: The Pirstle Press, Lander Printing Company, Karl Karstaedt, Stevens & Stevens, Cooper Medicine Company, Herman Rau, O'Donnell Bros. Sweetman Printing Company, Bernard Hill, Kinnard Manufacturing Company, Dayton Paper Novelty Company, William Tucker, Wagner Printing Company, John C. Ely, Ohio Printing Company and Henry F. Colby. All the newspaper offices have been working the eight-hour day for the past four years, and employ nearly sixty of our members.

Those who refused to sign the agreement are members of the local typothetæ, associated with the Employers' Association, and are determined to "make an example of No. 57, as a warning to other unions." These typothetæ shops employed forty-two of our members, and on Saturday, November 4, the men, by action of the union, were ordered out.

On November 2 six true blues walked out of the Reynolds & Reynolds Company plant (who posted an open shop notice), and since that time the firm has been scattering its work all over the commonwealth in hopes of keeping up appearances. They have secured so far only two automatons, who make motions like printers, and are helped by the pressmen in the factory.

On October 2 the typothetæ published its declaration of an open shop, but the union instructed all members to remain at work until any of them started to employ non-union men, to reduce the wages, increase the hours, or violate any of the other trade regulations.

On Tuesday, October 31, the U. B. Publishing House, the representative of the United Brethren Church, whose local manager is W. R. Funk, put to work a non-union Christian soldier from Chambersburg, Pa., and fourteen men and the apprentices called time. This convinced No. 57 that the time was ripe for decisive action, and on Saturday following the committee was instructed to visit all offices which had refused our request, and call the men out. They called the card men from the Bartel Printing Company and the Dayton Blank Book and Printing Company. Brelsford's and Johnson's men also walked out promptly.

The situation today is that about thirty men are out and the typothetæ is scouring the woods and hill tops in futile attempts to secure competent workmen. The bluff has been rung on us in phonographic repetition style that they could immediately fill all situations vacated by our members, but they can not make good.

Now that the contest is on, No. 57 is determined to secure the eight-hour banner, and will wage the battle until hades freezes over before crying enough. We have never yet surrendered in a contest, and the spirit among our members now is that nothing short of victory for the eight-hour day shall cause us to cease our efforts for an instant. Card men are urged to avoid Dayton until the typothetæ is persuaded to deal intelligently with our committee.

Digitized by Google

There are but two other shops, employing five men, that are under the typothetæ's domination, but will not affect the situation materially. The National Cash Register is not included in the present call.

The energetic eight-hour committee is using headquarters room in the Central Block, and guarding closely the union's interests. There can be but one outcome, and that is the eight-hour day by January 1, 1906. WILLIAM HUDOFF.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Nearly sixty members of the union were present at the October meeting, their interest in the proposition to substitute a weekly 50-cent assessment for the one-half of one per cent collected since last January undoubtedly causing the large attendance. The vote on that question, fifty-two to six, is indicative of the sentiment of the members as a whole, for it is proper to presume that nearly all those members who were opposed to the assessment were present and voted against it. A motion was adopted unanimously to pay the assessment of members out of work from the union's treasury. Notice of the adoption of the 50-cent proposition by the entire membership of the International Typographical Union was received on October 9, and the first collection was made on the 10th.

The committee on newspaper scale reported and the matter was referred to the November meeting with order of notice in the call.

Mr. Richardson, delegate to the Boston conference of New England printers, reported the result of that meeting.

The union voted to hold a special meeting on some evening in November for the exclusive consideration of proposed changes in the constitution.

The financial secretary's report for the month showed the largest collections in the history of No. 33, and the membership is also at high-water mark.

John A. Belcher has purchased the interest of the late John J. Minchin in the John F. Greene Company.

Three members of No. 33 were candidates for office at the November election—William Palmer for representative to the general assembly in East Providence, George B. Sullivan for alderman in the Sixth ward of Pawtucket, and Eugene T. Dion for councilman in the Second ward of Central Falls. Dion alone was elected.

In appointing delegates from Rhode Island to the immigration commission, to be held in New York city in December under the auspices of the National Civic Federation, Governor Utter recognized organized labor by naming George B. Sullivan, of No. 33, and Thomas F. Kearney, president of the Providence Building Trades Council.

Fire did serious injury in the press room of the Evening Telegram at about 5 A. M. on October 17, and also did slight injury in the composing room and other portions of the establishment. Work was only interrupted in the press room. The Pawtucket Evening Times placed its plant at the disposal of the Telegram management, and four automobiles were used to transfer the forms from one office to the other, a distance of about four miles. The Evening News also proffered assistance. The loss was fully covered by insurance. One of the presses was repaired and in commission four days after the fire.

A. D. Scougal, of Sioux City, in the November JOURNAL, recalls the names and whereabouts of many of the oldtimers, among them that of Franklin Heimbach, now located in Jackson, Miss. In connection with the work of the souvenir committee of No. 33, Heimbach recently sent the following reminiscences of a visit he made to Providence twenty years ago:

I worked in Providence in the spring of 1885. Charles P. Stiles, Charley Ayres, Daniel Wilson and William A. Orahood (killed by cars) were there together. We all worked on the Evening Telegram. They were a fine lot of gentlemen caseholders. Richard Faulkner was chairman, and in handing out copy mornings, if the regular was not there when time was called, he would hand the take to the nearest sub. This beat anything I had ever seen. If the regular came up the stairs at that moment he was lost and had to go back again, and the chances were he would go right across the street to the old Englishman's and get himself a glass of ale to drown his bad luck. We were all western printers, and it was some time before we got used to drinking ale with scarcely a six-point foam to it.

Another thing that was very agreeable to us was four times to draw money during the week. Three times a week the foreman (James Russell) would come around, after the paper had gone to press, and ask subs and all how much they wanted to draw.

Charley P. Stiles and I had the cheapest room there I ever had in my life. It only cost $1.25 a week for two, and, whether we had in a day or not, we could borrow that much from the first man we met.

They used to play policy there then, and have the numbers telegraphed from Louisville, Ky. Well, one morning we were in the old Englishman's retreat, and I suggested that three of us subs put in 10 cents apiece and each play the number of the slugholder he worked for the day previous, as we all had worked. I worked on five, Stiles on nineteen, and a gentleman whose name I forgot on twenty-six. That evening we were all sitting in the aforesaid Englishman's, when another printer came and wanted to look at our ticket, saying that he thought we had won, as he had been there in the morning and heard us making up the "gig." I had the ticket, and hurried around there (as we were about out of change then), and what do you think? Our three numbers were in the first five numbers on the blackboard. We got a dollar for every cent invested, so I came back to the saloon with $30. The third party to the investment was asleep in a chair, and we could not wake him up. So we had several rounds of drinks immediately, and I told the old Englishman that the sleeper had won $5 (instead of $10), and when he woke up to give it to him. We had use for the money, and I did not see how a man asleep could appreciate more than $5, because he could not buy fast enough.

The answer to the notification of the union that it would demand an eight-hour day on the 1st of next January, the date when the present agreement with the local typothetæ expires, was received on November 15 by President O'Conner. Following is the letter:

Digitized by Google

Providence Typographical Union No. 33, Providence, R. I.:

GENTLEMEN—I beg to inform you that at a meeting of the Master Printers' Association of Rhode Island, held this afternoon, the following vote was unanimously passed:

That the secretary be instructed to inform Providence Typographical Union No. 33, that it is not within the province of the Master Printers' Association of Rhode Island to discuss the eight-hour day, that being a matter which is entirely under control of the United Typothetæ of America.

Respectfully yours,
BENJAMIN P. MOULTON, Secretary.

The union held a special meeting on that evening for the purpose of considering the report of the committee on constitution, and the communication from the master printers was received during the meeting and read to the members by President O'Conner. WILLIAM CARROLL.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

Nashville Union No. 20 did the proper thing when it decided to send all of its eight-hour fund to the International headquarters, and also to send in advance to headquarters a sum equivalent to four weeks' assessment under the newly adopted 50-cent plan. The action was taken at a special meeting by a unanimous vote. No. 20 favored the 50-cent assessment proposition by a vote of 149 to 6, which is nearly twenty-five to one—not a bad vote by any means, although it should have been unanimous. The credit for this good showing is very largely due to John A. Aul, Claude H. Gill and Albert E. Hill, who worked unceasingly to create interest in and carry the proposition to a successful conclusion when the time for voting arrived. At the same time they were heartily seconded by a large portion of our members, who are anxious that eight hours shall be an accomplished fact when January 1, 1906, rolls around. Our members fully appreciate the valuable assistance from other sources, and especially the action of the unions which have sent in their entire eight-hour funds, and also that of the American Federation of Labor. The outlook to us looms brightly.

Frank A. Wood, who was one of No. 20's representatives in the St. Louis convention, last year, has departed for the Printers' Home to reside until good health returns, and his many friends hope that may not be long.

Financial Secretary H. J. Loser is rapidly recovering from a long siege of serious illness.

The state federation of labor meets in January in Memphis. No. 20 is entitled to one delegate.

At this writing A. E. Hill, president of No. 20, is in Pittsburg, representing the trades and labor council in the American Federation of Labor convention.

We printers are quick to demand that the politicians use the label on their printing. Do we demand it when we make purchases? Don't all say "yes" at the same time. But be consistent.

B. A. RATTERREE.

HARTFORD, CONN.

One hundred book and job printers are out in Hartford, the city of great insurance companies and world-famous industries; the city which boasts of the greatest wealth and the greatest beauty of any city of its size in America; the city known far and near among the printing craft for the immenseness of the printer's product, the high standard of efficiency required, and the permanency of the business interests which support so well our printing establishments. Just think of it, brothers, how ludicrous it is, coming from Hartford: only 100 job compositors—employed by concerns all of which are known to be in a prosperous condition, and about one-half employed by one large corporation which almost daily boasts, publicly, that the individual wealth of its stockholders is so vast that they can easily forget all about the printing business—a mere handful of men, having difficulty in securing fair conditions in fair Hartford! So it is we have had nothing to do for nine weeks. But who has been idle? Not this 100! The typothetæ have made strenuous efforts to fill our places, trying their level best to break the back of No. 127, that our situation in all New England may be weakened; but somehow the few strikebreakers who have been imported "do not like the town." In spite of the support of the various associations which has been pledged to our employers, we are still masters of the situation, for here we stand, as nine weeks ago, without one desertion, and here we will stand until we receive a square deal. Not one of us would desire to return to work until the whole body returns, and with our heads up. Not more than fifteen strikebreakers (male and female) are employed in our places, and by the time this letter is before you it is safe to say there will be less. Turkeys are not distributed in Hartford printing offices on Thanksgiving, therefore we will not forfeit ours if we are still "pressing bricks" on November 30, or even December 25. We expect to eat turkey just the same. In spite of our long rest no member appears to feel badly about it; all are now well acquainted with each other, and every one is cheerful. The only long faces in town are those behind roll tops. The problem before them has become serious. Many reports of their intentions have come to us, but just how they are to obtain substitutes for the 100 union men they have turned down is not yet clear. Some declare their intention to suspend business, some to retire from business, and some to "run their own business." This last idea is the most popular one, I believe, but there are those among them who still maintain that scabs had rather live in Hartford than anywhere under the sun. Then, too, comes the "trade school," but that is too slow, you know. Last, but not to be lost sight of, is a plan to introduce "good Christian girls" into one plant at least, and learn them the business; raise them, so to speak. This seems to me the most attractive proposition of all. Just think what a model print shop would develop: no swearing, no spitting on the floor, no whistling (but there would be talking), no fresh-air fiend cooling his aching head on a zero morning with another's window, no politics, no chapel, no prize-fight talk; the windows would be washed every six months at the most, new clean sinks would be installed, plenty of clean towels, toilet soap, etc., electric lights would be placed in the most convenient positions, every one would have a whole frame to herself (the girls won't stand for crowding); delicate natures would necessitate perfect ventilation, and steam would be on before Thanksgiving; stools with cushions would be introduced, new frames would be installed of uniform height, with a space underneath to extend the knees, the floor would be swept carefully by experienced hands, lockers would be provided, palm leaf fans would be furnished in summer, and the proprietor would have a smile for every one when he entered the room. So let them come, boys, and we'll look for a chance to sub.

Digitized by Google

No. 127 has not a woman's auxiliary, but we have women in our families nevertheless: women true-blue and constant, as they have recently demonstrated in a novel and most creditable manner. A paragraph was published in one of the Hartford dailies intimating that the wives of the striking job printers were not thoroughly in accord with our contention for the eight-hour day, and that the daily questioning we received at home would be apt to cause some of us to weaken.

The pot boiled!

A letter vigorously denying the attitude implied was at once circulated among them and signed by thirty-nine, which was practically unanimous; a few could not be readily found. Their committee secured the immediate publication of this letter in the offending paper. They lauded our efforts and determination in the cause for which we are contending, and announced their allegiance in no unmistakable terms. It goes without saying that they were favored with "scare heads" in morning and evening papers, and their names wound up the letter. We will quote you a part of what they said, that you may see how our wives really stand after these many weeks, which firmness and steadfastness only reflects our own, and further than that we know is universal:

A strike in the printing craft is bound to obtain publicity, so great is the demand for the product, and hence the importance of the event; therefore, we assume all readers of this paper to be familiar with the printers' situation. In the above paragraph it appears to us that our position is misunderstood. It is hardly conceivable that the wives of the Hartford printers could thus enter any protest against the advancement of such a reform as the adoption of an eight-hour workday means for us all. We firmly believe the adoption of the eight-hour workday a purely reform measure. To prolong life, to promote mental advancement, and to create happiness among the mechanical class, it seems to us to be a measure absolutely necessary, and we hopefully look forward to the time when eight hours will become a universal standard as a day's work among all mechanics and working people.

It is true that a strike to attain, is not regarded by part of the public as a dignified measure to resort to, but an achievement justifies this means when no other method is accessible. We regret that the employing printers of Hartford could not "see their way clear" to grant what seems to be so reasonable a demand without recourse to a strike by their employes, but we, the undersigned wives of job printers in Hartford, most earnestly deny any such attitude as that ascribed to us, and herein affirm our allegiance to the cause for which our husbands and other members of the Hartford Typographical Union are contending.

Will you kindly publish this with our signatures that our real sentiments will be known?

The strike headquarters of No. 127 is central labor union hall, large, light, well ventilated and warm, carpeted and most comfortably furnished with upholstered settees, chairs, etc., equipped with electric lights and gas, has three large anterooms containing plenty of card tables and comforts, and overlooks City Hall square, the most central point in Hartford's business section. It is, in fact, a very agreeable place to pass our time when not "busy." While waiting for the curtain to rise on something better we are amused in part by Frank's phonograph, Shorty's songs, Barnard's stories, Saunders' jokes, McCreary's information, Gray's experiences, McQuade's dilemma, Geer's latest hit, the sympathy of the Hartford Courant, Joseph's smile, and an occasional "smile" from some unexpected quarter, so you see we are not so bad off in some respects.

This attempt of the typothetæ to demoralize our union forces is doomed to failure. Every day we remain unrecognized only serves to cement us the stronger together, and were I an employer I would never invite a union to demonstrate to me its entire strength—rather would I yield early, and thus leave the union in doubts as to my own inability to resist their request or demand. If I feared the union I would keep it in the dark as to its own power as long as possible. I would not regard an endurance test with my employes as good business policy when it would be the means of wiping out my dividends. The financial support of combined business interests would not suffice to make my labors in life profitable, and the moral support I might receive from such combinations I would not expect to strengthen my position in social life. But I am not an employer. S. N. BARTLETT.

SCRANTON, PA.

For the second time this year the grim reaper, Death, has laid its hand heavily on our beloved union, and this time has taken from our midst Edward Frothingham. Having been here but a short time, he was beloved by all who knew him, and when I think of the pleasant disposition he was endowed with I recall to memory the following:

The thing that goes the farthest
  Toward making life worth while,
That costs the least and does the most,
  Is just a pleasant smile;
It's full of worth and goodness, too,
  With manly kindness blent,
It's worth a million dollars,
  And it doesn't cost a cent.

One applicant was admitted to membership at our last meeting. Membership is growing steadily.

Now doth the eager candidate
  Begin to fret and wonder,
And ask himself where he is at,
  And if so, why, by thunder!

William Neuber, for a number of years a foreman in the International Correspondence School printery, severed his connection with that firm recently and left immediately for Deposit, N. Y., where he has accepted a position similar to the one he held while here, with the Outing Publishing Company. A few tokens of esteem were tendered him before he took his departure.

Digitized by Google

A joint celebration and banquet on Benjamin Franklin's birthday, January 17, is under consideration by the various bodies connected with the printing trade. No. 112 will be represented by the following committee: William Corless, M. W. Walton, C. A. Keller, M. H. Millard and G. L. Newbold.

Quite a number of our flock journeyed to Wilkes Barre, Sunday, November 5, and convened in extraordinary session with the prints of that "hamlet" by the Susquehanna. After spending the afternoon and evening pleasantly, the boys left for home, feeling that some good had been accomplished.

The 50-cent assessment went through "a-hummin'." That's good unionism.

Each report coming from headquarters shows increased gains for the eight-hour issue.

Wonder what has become of the ex-delegates' association? Is it still in existence.

"Mickey" Flynn, ex-Toronto, 1905, was in town recently displaying a Princeton (N. J.) card.

Our union had the honor of entertaining a committee from Wilkes Barre Union at the last meeting.

'Tis yours to stand outside the gate.
There in the cold to watch and wait
Upon the pavements cold and hard,
If you forget to bring your card.

It is did. W. C. LAMPING.

ALBANY, N. Y.

There were only thirty-seven votes against the 50-cent assessment in No. 4's vote. Not so bad as it might have been, but it would have graced No. 4 better to have voted unanimously for it.

The State Printers' Benefit Society has decided to admit to its benefits any member of No. 4 who is not physically incapacitated by old age or chronic disease. Applications may be made to the officers or any member in good standing. The fee to join is 25 cents, and the dues are 10 cents per week, payable in advance. The benefits are $8 per week for sickness, limited to seven weeks in any one year, and a burial benefit of $35.

While No. 4 will have to pay to the International Union 50 cents on each and every member we carry on our roll each week, whether the same are working or not, yet the burden has been arranged by vote at the November meeting so as to permit partial or complete exemption from the assessment of such members as may be wholly or partially unemployed, the deficit to be paid from the treasury of the union. All members earning $10 or more pay the 50 cents; those earning $7.50 and less than $10 will pay 25 cents, and those earning less than $7.50 are exempt.

The Argus Company has made application to enter into the newspaper publishers' agreement with the International Typographical Union.

We beg to differ with Mr. Chinn, of Toronto, in his assertion in the last issue of THE JOURNAL that Toronto Union No. 91, in proportion to population, is the largest union in the world. Toronto has an estimated population of 225,000 and No. 91 claims 800 members, or about 3½ members to each one thousand population. Albany, N. Y., has about 100,000 population, and No. 4 a membership that ranges from 425 to 450, or from 4¼ to 4½ to the thousand. Toronto, on the same basis, would have over 1,000 members. We believe No. 4 easily holds the banner for size in proportion to population.

Fred Blanck had a long letter recently from Herbert H. Steele. Herbert is back among his old friends in San Francisco, but likes to keep green his memories of old Albany events and faces.

Uncle "Bill" Mahan takes a lively interest in the new ladies' auxiliary of the label league. His aid and advice in advancing the purposes of this organization are duly appreciated by the ladies.

Timothy J. Sheehy, ex-delegate to the Washington convention, in 1903, is now the editor of the labor department of the Times-Union.

Charlie Bauer is another member of the Brandon chapel to take unto himself a wife. The happy event occurred in October.

We stated last month that Ed Winne was reading proof on the Argus. He took the job during the recent strike, but on the settlement of the trouble and the signing of the Weed-Parsons Company he went back to them and resumed his old position in the proofroom.

At this writing work is getting lively with the Argus Company. Several machine operators (among them being James Fraser, Charles A. Fry and R. J. Bowers, of the old Hamilton street chapel) have lately been added. William S. Mahan has also joined the proofroom contingent.

James Lane, an erstwhile Albany "print," but now a member of "Big 6," was in town for a short time early in November.

James H. Cahill and William J. Carmody, two members of No. 4, and respectively democratic candidates for supervisor of the fifth ward and alderman of the sixth ward, went down to defeat in the general landslide in favor of the republican city ticket on election day. They want to get on to a municipal ownership ticket next time.

Ex-President M. J. Sullivan is back again as secretary of the central federation, and also being secretary of No. 4 keeps him on the jump. He is a good man in the right place.

Every printer voted for the eight-hour amendment to the state constitution.

Occasionally we meet a member of the union who declares that he seldom if ever looks into his copy of THE JOURNAL when it comes into his home each month. It hardly seems possible that there can be any one who, being a member of an organization into which he pays more or less of his earnings each week, month after month and year after year, but what would be somewhat interested in what is going on within the field of its usefulness, and if so, where they could find that interest better represented than in our TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL. Some appear to have been piqued because, in the first place, they were "forced" to give up an extra nickel a month for it, "forcing it upon them," they say, "whether they wanted it or not," and for that reason refusing to read it or look into it even—cutting off their nose to spite their face, as it were. These are the same members who are the greatest kickers on whatever the union does, though they will never attend a meeting in the endeavor to have the work done right. We are glad to say that we haven't many of this class in No. 4, and so far as the reading of THE JOURNAL goes, once let them get into the habit of reading all the good things in it each month, they find it can not come often enough to suit them. There are others of our members who complain of not getting their JOURNALS as they should; for instance, one member of the Brandon chapel said to me the other day that he hadn't received his JOURNAL for several months, although he had notified the chairman of the fact and given his address several times. To all such I say, while our officers and chairmen are always ready to aid in this matter, yet what we leave to other people to do sometimes goes undone, and that the best thing for a member to do when he makes any change necessitating a change in the address of his JOURNAL is to take a postal card himself, write on it his old address and the new one to which he wishes it sent, sign it with his name, and address it to J. W. Bramwood, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind., and the trick will be done with one-quarter the fuss and bother of the other way. For a union printer to be without his JOURNAL, or to leave it unread when it comes to him, would be exhibiting as much folly as for a merchant to never look into the account books in which his accountants have kept the record of his business transactions.

Digitized by Google

The 50-cent assessment adds quite a little to the routine work of our various officers and chapel chairmen. However, it is all in a good cause, and none complain.

Samuel H. Clark, for many years a proofreader at the Hamilton street branch of the J. B. Lyon Company, died very suddenly early Wednesday morning, November 1. Mr. Clark was sixty-four years old, and while he had not been feeling in the best of health for the few weeks previous thereto, yet he was at work right up to the day of his death.

Alexander Diack was admitted a member of No. 4 at the November meeting. Mr. Diack runs a small job office in Rensselaer, just across the Hudson river from Albany.

The label league is preparing for a monster anniversary meeting for February next. A joint committee consisting of twenty members, five from the central federation, five ladies from the woman's auxiliary and ten from the label league, is making the arrangements.

In mentioning our newly or lately wedded printers this fall, I believe I overlooked the fact that Martin A. Cox, of the Beaver street office of the J. B. Lyons Company, was happily married the day after our late strike was amicably settled.

"Eddie" Jones, for many years a linotype operator at the Hamilton street office, is now operating for the Weed-Parsons Company. Ed held a "sit" some years ago in the government printing office at Washington. CHARLES H. WHITTEMORE.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.

No. 146 continues to move along in the right direction. Almost all the membership are at work, although business in the various offices is hardly so good as last month.

We most cheerfully sent our little mite for the continuance of the eight-hour movement, and are preparing to send the 50 cents per week when it is called for.

Everything here continues lovely for the inauguration of eight hours on January 1.

Let's keep hustling and eight hours is bound to come all right. The sentiment of the convention at Toronto seemed to voice the sentiments of all union people of the jurisdiction, and this is no time to "lay down." The well-disciplined action of all union men in this strike must appeal to all union well wishers and must command the respect of all, even the typothetæ.

Let's keep on and we'll win out.

D. C. LOVETT, JR.

INSTANCES OF "MONEY MADNESS."

The following is from the Philadelphia Ledger of November 5:

SONS LOCK OUT FATHER IN LABOR UNION DISPUTE—REFUSAL TO SIGN AGREEMENT COSTS THE ELDER INNES HIS JOB AT THE INNES PRINTING COMPANY.

William T. Innes, sr., a union printer, has been locked out by his sons, W. T. Innes, jr., and Edward K. Innes, printers and publishers, of 1311 Sansom street.

Innes, sr., has for many years been a member of Typographical Union No. 2. The union is fighting for eight hours, and Innes, sr., stands by the union.

The two sons are members of the typothetæ, the master printers' association, which last week decided to discharge any man who will not give up the eight-hour demand and sign a three-year agreement to work nine hours a day. The Innes brothers went to their father, who was foreman in their composing room, and asked him, as well as the other employes, to sign the master printers' agreement.

"Well, I don't believe any of the boys here will sign your agreement. I know I will not," said Innes, sr. "I am a union man, and a union man I will be whether I can work here or not."

"Well, if you don't sign you can not work here," said one of the sons to his journeyman father.

"All right, boys, here I go," answered Innes, sr. "I will not give up my card for ten jobs."

Innes, sr., went immediately to the headquarters of the printers' union, in Odd Fellows' temple, and reported himself locked out.

The above item recalls to the mind of the writer a similar incident which illustrates the symptoms of "money madness" that seize some people of the Parry class.

During the winter of the Pittsburg newspaper strike I was in that city one day, and called at the headquarters of the union to learn how things were progressing. During my visit there some one pointed out to me Charley Barr, a member of No. 7, brother of A. J. Barr, publisher of the Post, and at that time the dominant spirit in the conspiracy that had been organized to fight No. 7.

Some time after leaving the union rooms I passed Charley on the street and spoke to him. During our brief talk he said: "Albert was after me to go to work, and said he would give me $30 a week for every week I am able to work and $20 for every week I am not able to work. I said, 'No, Albert, I know I have a family of ten at home, but I have held a card from the union for thirty years, and I can not give it up and go back on the boys now. I can not go back on the union now. I am willing to work, but not under present conditions, nor until this trouble is settled. I suppose I'll have to hunt for another job, Albert, to keep my family from want.'"

Digitized by Google

Charley Barr, old and gray-haired and insufficiently clad, shambled across the street to a restaurant, which the union patronized, as a bitter cold gale blew up the avenue.

I have often been amazed at the heartless inhumanity of man to man and kindred to its kind, and equally so at the unswerving loyalty of men to principle.

If employers could only realize that their employes are not their enemies, and are equally interested in the prosperity of their business, but are forced to organize to obtain a just share of the products of labor, how soon would the "labor problem" solve itself and there be peace and happiness where now is discontent and suspicion!

Carlisle, Pa. J. MEDE LININGER.

FRESNO, CAL.

The label committee is up and doing all the time. The latest to its credit is one of the largest department stores in the San Joaquin valley (having branches all through the valley), which has given notice to all printers that hereafter all work done for them must bear the union label.

Now that the wintry winds are blowing (but not here), the trend of the tourist print is California-ward. Seldom a day passes but what one or more "tours" drop in, say "hello," and pass on to the next station.

William (Windy) Taylor, aged eighty-one years, died on the 5th of November. He was a charter member of San Francisco Union.

The Fresno Tribune, which began its existence about the first of September, 1905, has already begun to make additional improvements. A web press is the latest, the old one being inadequate to print the papers necessary for the growing circulation.

Major Demmett, a member of Fresno Union, a veteran of the Mexican war, has applied for admission to the Home at Colorado Springs.

Two more machines in town, making a total of ten. The latest additions are a double-decker for the Republican and one for the Democrat.

At the last meeting of No. 144 the proposed assessment of 50 cents per week was voted on, and after the count of the ballots the president announced that the vote was unanimous. Are there any more at home like us?

Leroy Hastings and Harry G. Butler, recent arrivals from Columbus, Ohio, became homesick a few weeks ago, and the boys were up against it as to what the outcome would be. The latter part of October we were next, as the girls arrived from the east and a double-decker wedding took place, and from all appearances the siege of "homesickness" has disappeared.

A few days after the double-decker had been installed in the Democrat the larger part of a page in the paper was devoted to the description of the machine, and the closing lines read: "That Harry Conner, our expert machinist, assembled the 4,000 parts in record-breaking time." A few days later an old farmer came in and, after watching the machine for a few moments, turned to the operator and said: "Be you the feller that put her up?" Conner replied "Yes." After a short pause the farmer said: "I've got a new hay rake out home. Do you think you be able to get five kinds of hay out of that?" After the visitor had departed Conner turned to one of the operators and inquiringly asked: "Do you think the old man was jollying me?'

HARRY BLUMENTHAL.

COFFEYVILLE, KAN.

John Reeds, our secretary, is mourning the loss of his old-time friend, Jim Walker, who died at Fort Scott, Saturday, November 11. Mr. Walker was president of the Fort Scott Union at the time of his death.

The Record has changed from a morning to an afternoon paper. No kick has been heard from any of the printers on the change.

G. F. Fancher, who served his time in the Free Press office, Detroit, Mich., is now foreman of the Journal office. He hails from the Iola Register.

Grace Thompson and Frank Rector are married. They kept the marriage a secret to their "typo" friends for a long time.

Only two votes were cast against the eight-hour assessment here.

No. 578 held an adjourned meeting Sunday, November 12, and adopted a new constitution and by-laws and scale of prices.

Well, our eight hours are up, and we refuse to send in another line, so "thirty" is in from No. 578.

MYLO G. KARR.

NORFOLK, VA.

The committee from the central labor union of this city and the board of governors of the Jamestown exposition, after conferences lasting for many months, have come to an agreement. All skilled labor on the exposition buildings shall be done by union mechanics, as also all printing must show the label. This is a big victory for organized labor, as great pressure was brought to bear against such an agreement.

The structural trades alliance has taken initiatory steps toward the building of a labor temple in this city. Committees are at work, and much of the capital for same has been subscribed. Such a building has been long needed here, and will be welcomed.

The Virginian-Pilot will have by this time moved into their new building. The building was constructed solely for a printing plant, and is a model. The sheet will print a colored supplement in the future.

A large number of offices here have signed for the eight-hour day, though no demands will be made on the typothetæ until the existing contracts expire on March 26, 1906.

Digitized by Google

The Food and Drink Publishing Company, of New York city, will, after the 1st of January, 1906, publish their paper in this city. It is not known at the present time to what extent their appearance here will affect the trade. The entire plant will be brought to this city, and no doubt afford employment to quite a few comps.

We welcome a new addition to the industry in this city in the firm of the Commercial Printing Company. The promoters are Norfolk people. They have a model shop, have signed the eight-hour agreement, and, though a small shop now, have shown unmistakable signs that they intend to grow.

Just at this time there are a good many globe-trotters passing through this city on the way to their winter quarters in the south.

Well, here's hoping that we may see you at the Jamestown exposition and the International Typographical Union convention here in 1907.

ELWOOD F. MOORE.

TYPOTHETÆ TACTICS.

As a member of No. 11, Memphis, it is right amusing to me to observe the clumsy tactics being practiced by the big rat shops in trying to induce the "country printer" to come to the cities, "where everything is sunshine and bliss," and work for a "big salary" ONLY nine hours a day. It was only today I was over to see my banker, and he had a very pathetic circular letter from the Dorsey Printing Company, Dallas (that good friend of the unions), in which they had the nerve to say the printers wanted them to sign a contract that would be in direct violation of the federal laws; and that they wanted them to raise their wages, which they could not do. They closed the "spiel" by asking him to kindly notify some deserving young printer that there was a job waiting for him in Dallas at good wages. Well, if they get any results from that method it will be more than they got from this town.

A few days ago an agent for Buxton & Skinner, St. Louis, called one of my men up by 'phone and "spit" out a long story (it sounded just like a street fair spiel) about what a fine job he had for him in St. Louis, $19.50 per and only nine hours; would refund his railroad fare. He said it was not a "scab" shop, but an open one, and that both union and non-union worked together. Of course, he did not think my man was a union man in this little country town, but he knows it now, and we believe the reply he got will cause him to remember Cotton Plant many years after we have won the eight-hour strike.

A circular letter from a Cleveland (Ohio) house, addressed to a prominent business man here, found its way to our desk (having missed his waste basket, we presume) a few days ago, and it was along the same lines as the Dorsey letter. I can not remember the name.

The country printers of Arkansas are an intelligent set of men, and those who do not carry an International Typographical Union card next to their heart are willing to join as soon as they get to a town where there is a union, and if the offices in the big cities that are fighting the union are depending on getting non-union country printers from this state they had just as well give up.

I am a member of No. 11 and take this method of informing my many union friends that I am editor and publisher of The Hustler at this place, and that we are pretty small, but everything is union from cellar to garret.

We must, we will, we shall win.

Cotton Plant, Ark. JAMES I. HAWK.

JOHNSTOWN, PA.

This is the first time, to my recollection, of any correspondence in THE JOURNAL from No. 137. Our new scale went into effect on November 1, and we will begin the new year as an eight-hour town. When the new eight-hour scale was presented to the proprietors it certainly struck a snag. An open shop was asked, but the members of No. 137 would have none of that, and demanded the signing of the scale strictly on the eight-hour basis. After many meetings and much parleying the two morning newspapers, the Democrat and Journal, signed. Then but one newspaper office was left, the Evening Tribune. The management of that paper absolutely refused to sign and submitted a proposition to their employes which advanced the wages of ad-men $1.50 per week, and the machine men, in some instances, $3. Organizer T. H. Dolan, of Pittsburg, was sent here to adjust matters, and I am glad to say that now everything is in good running order, and the glad new year will see Johnstown No. 137 flying the eight-hour banner.

Work has been good in this city, and with the holidays approaching the ad rooms of the newspapers will have about all they can handle.

It is like getting a letter from home to read F. A. (Petey) Ward's Syracuse letters. It is a good many years since I have seen his beaming countenance. But in the good old handset days Fred and I have had many a full-mast schooner in Port Murphy & Farley. JOHN H. BLAKE.

WILMINGTON, DEL.

The initial move of the employing printers occurred on November 8 with the discharge of the chairman of the local eight-hour committee, D. H. Russell. His discharge was demanded by Elmer T. Bye, of the Mercantile Printing Company, notwithstanding the protests of the foreman of the shop. The reason alleged was incompetency and because he was detrimental to the welfare of the office. The strange part of it was that for fifteen months he has been with the company, and they had just discovered he was incompetent. The actual reason was because of his connection with the eight-hour committee of No. 123. The other men refused to accede to the demand of the office for the discharge of Russell, and when a contract was demanded for a three-year, nine-hour term, the men promptly quit work. The usual work of the eight-hour committee has been increased, and the chairman now has a chance to do work which was denied him before. Both sides of the question have been explained in our local papers, and we think the opinion in general is in favor of the men.

Digitized by Google

At the last meeting of the central labor union the matter of the typographical branch's fight for eight hours was discussed at length, and a resolution adopted endorsing the movement and pledging moral support in the contest.

The employers do not seem to understand that it is a rule that when the hours of work are cut down wages should advance in proportion.

We are working for eight hours, a closed shop and union conditions. Are you doing the same? If not, you should be.

Wilmington No. 123 donated, at its last meeting, the sum of $5 toward building winter quarters at the new free zoo.

Don't forget, we are alive. You will find us in line for January 1.

Eight hours or nothing! D. H. RUSSELL.

TOPEKA, KAN.

Cards to the number of fourteen were withdrawn from No. 121 last month, but as many more were deposited, thus balancing accounts in membership.

A. C. Green, formerly of Chicago and several other villages of the same kind, is again in Topeka toying with the invention that drove Mergenthaler crazy.

All tourists, and especially operators, have been meeting with great luck in the "catching-on" line. "Everybody works but father."

Paul Murray, I am told, is now in the capital city of Texas. Here's hopin' he's doin' well.

Since the settlement of the strike in this city the Capitol (morning) and the Journal (evening) have been publishing the seventh edition per week. This puts Topeka in a class by herself for Kansas, as there are no other seven-day papers published in the state. This has a tendency to make business good. The extra printers of the town were pressed into service, and some of them have days to give out on account of no subs.

The vote for the 50-cent assessment carried here by a large majority. At the last meeting of No. 121 it was decided to levy an assessment of 3 per cent instead of the flat rate of 50 cents per member. It amounts to the same thing in the long run, so far as the amount of money collected is concerned, but it presses a little bit heavier on the high-salaried men than on the subster, and that, by the way, is the best thing about it.

A story from the Associated Press is to the effect that a million men and women are out of employment in London and the United Kingdom. Those are the people who will endanger the success of the eight-hour movement—they can speak English, and might be able to print it. Italians drive teams, Mexicans work on the levee, Chinese and Japs pick the fruit—none of them set English type. England's unemployed may have a sprinkling of printers and the typothetæ may "git 'em."

E. B. MURPHY.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

"We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen."

The eight-hour contest in Syracuse remains about the same as it was in the last report from here. The unfair offices are doing little work, while the union jobbers are rushed with orders. Among the dozen or so strikebreakers there are only three or four who are entitled to the name of printer, and the quality of their work is of the poorest description. It is the general impression here that the citizens' alliance, composed of scab employers, is behind the typothetæ, both in regard to giving the unfair shops their printing and rendering financial assistance. The employers have scoured this state and adjoining states very thoroughly, but have not succeeded in securing many men. They pulled one ex-printer out of an iron foundry in a nearby village and induced him to go to work, but he came out when informed of the strike and returned to molding. He worked only a short while, and did very little. Another strikebreaker was taken from the penitentiary and put to work in Lyman Brothers at the munificent stipend of $6 per week. He can set quads, and that's about all, but he can make a noise like a printer, and that encourages the boss. The less said about the other strikebreakers the better, for every one of them has proven untruthful and has broken his promises made to the officers of the union.

Eight hours for work, eight hours for sleep, eight hours to do as we will.

There are now thirty-three members out, and some of these are doing more or less subbing.

President James Taylor, of No. 55, attended the eight-hour conference at Indianapolis, November 12, and returned much encouraged at the enthusiasm displayed there and a determination to carry on the fight here with renewed vigor.

At the last regular meeting of the union the eight-hour committee made a report covering the strike situation, and the executive committee recommended the closing of J. P. Fralick's law-case office. This man put up an open-shop notice and refused to sign for eight hours. He has only one employe at present.

During the meeting T. F. Gafney offered the Industrial Weekly free to all members during the course of the strike.

Matt Hayes, who asks no odds of Baron Munchausen, left for Ithaca, N. Y., the first of the month in response to a telegram from there for a first-class printer. Matt is getting pretty old now, but keeps just as gay and loquacious as ever.

"Sport" Howard has left for the east, and Jimmy Corcoran, of the Post-Standard, is inconsolable at the departure of his old sidekicker.

Robert ("Reddy") Grant, of Newark, N. J., is in town.

Stuart Lynch, of Newport News, Va., lingered here for a couple of days the first part of the month, and then went west.

Eddie Hummell, of Newark, N. J., dropped into town from Springfield, Mass., the first of the month, but stayed only a few days, and left for Buffalo. The ex-chairman of the Post-Standard says Eddie should be given a vote of thanks for taking "Bas" Hanlon out of town with him after a star engagement here.

Digitized by Google

"Shorty" Porter was here from old New England, worked a night, and left for Binghamton.

The Post-Standard employes will be tendered a banquet by the management on December 2, and a great time is anticipated.

Your correspondent received a great letter from Tommy ("Kid") Dougherty, November 17, who is now on the day side of the New York American. He writes that he believes there will be no trouble in New York about securing the eight-hour day. The members of "Big Six" are paying a 10 per cent assessment, and gave a big majority for the 50-cent assessment. Tommy writes as follows concerning the eight-hour contest: "The International Typographical Union 50-cent assessment was carried in No. 6 by a big majority, as it should have been. Indeed, it is surprising that any member who has a correct realization of the struggle and wishes to better his own and fellow members' conditions should vote against the assessment. We must have the means to carry on our fight to a successful conclusion. If we stick together the fight is won and victory is ours. Let us stick." Ringing words these, and worthy of the sterling unionism of the man who wrote them.

The many friends of Jerry R. Haley, a former member of No. 55, and one of the old Morning Post operators, will be surprised to hear that he left Brooklyn, where he was running a "mill" on the Citizen, for Denver, Colo., November 15, for the benefit of his health, which has not been of the best of late. His friends here are unanimous in wishing him a complete recovery from his indisposition.

Billy Montgomery, one of the old Post boys, is now holding down a "sit" on the New York Tribune.

Frank Emslie, an oldtime member of the New York Times chapel, has moved his family here, and is now catching the elevator on the Post-Standard.

F. A. WARD.

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS.

The twelfth week of the eight-hour-day fight in San Antonio finds No. 172 more determined and feeling more satisfied than at any other time since the beginning of the trouble on the 15th of August last.

The crucial period of the lockout has passed, as the typothetæ was waiting with a forlorn hope that after the eighth week the benefits to the locked-out printers would be discontinued and the rank and file would fall over each other to save what few situations were still available. With the exception of the two we lost (neither of whom was ever trusted), there has been no defection from the ranks, and none is anticipated, as the weeds have been eradicated, and nothing but the good, strong wheat remains.

The typothetæ is asking when the local union is going to open the "teapot" shops for union men to work in. It is needless to reply, Never!

T. D. Fennessey departed for Los Angeles, after having spent five weeks in the Texas field. His coming has been prolific in solidifying the different state unions on a plan of co-operation, and he did everything in his power to bring forth an amicable settlement.

No. 172's committee was successful in diverting considerable work from the unfair offices, and one big job of $475 was too much for them to bear, so they took it to their last resort—the courts—and prayed for and were granted an injunction to restrain us from in any manner interfering or restraining them from doing business.

No. 172 is to have the first ball in its history, and a committee consisting of R. E. Le Brown, M. C. Vance, E. Nordhaus, H. H. Boone and H. Schumacher are using their utmost endeavors to make it a howling success.

The two afternoon papers are forging ahead, and are closely crowding the Express in the number of pages that they print at the week end.

The farmers' union has taken up the printers' fight in the counties, and two of their organizers are explaining to the county clerks and commissioners the methods and doings of the "big four trust."

At the regular meeting held Sunday, November 5, the reports of the committees handling the strike were read and approved, and undivided support was guaranteed the committee in its handling of the trouble. The members realize that "you can't saw wood with a hammer."

Ere this appears in print the injunction issued on San Antonio Union may have been dissolved, and the members enjoined may be counting the damage money that they will collect from the restrainers.

Yours for eight hours! E. NORDHAUS.

CLEVELAND, OHIO.

You may call it a "stone wall," but I think a "solid front" sounds better, and such is what the men from the struck shops in Cleveland represent. It is pleasing to note the earnest manner in which the pickets fulfill the duties that are assigned to them. The 125 men, women and boys stand together today just as solid as they stood when they answered the summons on October 28. Not one desertion, and the composing rooms present a lonesome appearance. Much credit is due to the fine generalship of the executive committee, under the leadership of our president, Max S. Hayes, whose wise counsel is always bringing results. A large number of shops granted our demands before the call came, and up to November 15 two of the struck shops sent for their old men and signed up. In three weeks the "teapot" was not able to import over six men to fill the places of 125. Large shops are refusing limit contracts, and several have had to lay off their feeders. No. 53 is in this fight to win, and with such determination as the men from the struck shops show they must and shall win. The "solid front" is backed up by refusal of the men of flattering offers of large salaries, life jobs and stock in the company. I have a good one on Tim Ward, of Ward & Shaw, an open shop, from which every man, including a lady proofreader not a member of the union, walked out. When Jim got down in the morning he found his composing room deserted, nobody left but the lady bookkeeper; he got so excited over his plight that he discharged her. After he had cooled down he sent for her to come back.

Digitized by Google

Our secretary, George Lee, is also doing good work in helping to make this fight a winning one. The rulers, binders, feeders, pressmen and all of the allied trades stand ready to go out at a moment's notice to assist us in this surely victorious fight, and perhaps by the time THE JOURNAL goes to press Cleveland struck shops will be dark and deserted and compelled to sign up or close up shop. There is no limit to the resources of No. 53, and we can fight as long as the "teapot" people can.

The papers are full of ads, "Job Printers Wanted," but no takers; also windows display the same sign, and still no takers. This shows a "solid front."

Demand the label on your printing, and in that way you can help the good cause.

"Pike's Peak or bust!" the slogan for next August.

They say a Cart(er) is no Snide(r) with Colorado "springs" attached.

Eight hours for work, eight hours for sleep, eight hours to do as we will.

Have you a book to contribute to the Home library?

We are still taking in new members at every meeting.

Signed-up shops are busy. JOSEPH WEINER.

LONDON, ONT.

"We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen."

All interest here is now centered in the eight-hour question, and the circulars which have been issued by the International eight-hour committee, which were either posted in chapel or have circulated among the members, are eagerly read. They are a source of wonderful inspiration and encouragement to our local.

Active steps have been taken by No. 133 to enforce the eight-hour law, and one office has already been struck.

The London Printing and Lithograph Company has been opposed to the union for years, and through its influence has brought on most of the trouble that ever occurred between the union and employers in this city. The union has at last taken a firm stand against the concern, and has decided that if it takes one year or five it will bring it into line. We fully realize that we have a big job on hand. but we will keep persistently at it from this on. "Little drops of water, etc.," will be our motto till the stone is worn away.

We have now a well-organized woman's auxiliary through the energetic efforts of Mrs. Ryan, wife of the president of No. 133, and it will not be long before all of our wives and daughters will be enrolled. Mrs. Ed Efner is also an energetic member of the auxiliary, and is doing much to make it popular. Not long since she gave a matinee party at the vaudeville, to which all members of the union, their wives and sweethearts, were invited, but unfortunately the weather conditions were very unfavorable. Mrs. Holiday and Mrs. Flowers are also very active workers in the auxiliary, and good results will soon follow. There is one especially nice feature in connection with the auxiliary, in that it brings the printers and their wives together and will have a tendency to weld our friendships and make us more sympathetic with each other.

No. 133 has an executive committee that it can well be proud of. I don't think there ever was a better; they have the full confidence of all, and they deserve it, for they are working hard, and if the eight-hour movement is not a success in this city it will not be their fault.

At the last regular meeting of No. 133 it was decided to put on a 5 per cent assessment, which was unanimously carried at a well attended meeting. JOHN MCLEAN.

HAMILTON, ONT.

Hamilton printers enjoy the eight-hour day.

It went into effect October 1.

The members of No. 129 are delighted with the change, and the employers don't appear to worry very much.

A scale committee was appointed at our September meeting, and has been busy ever since. It has served the new proposition on the employers, and is now patiently waiting to be called hence to state the "whys" and "wherefores" of the demand.

The wages of printers in this city have been too low for a long time, and as the necessities of life keep soaring upward, we can't see how the bosses can make too vigorous a kick.

Business is fair, but no boom on.

Some Cleveland firms are advertising for non-union men in the local papers, offering $15 to $18 per week of fifty-three hours. What a splendid opportunity to improve one's situation—leave a forty-eight-hour job in Hamilton for fifty-three hours in Cleveland! The postman has not had much trouble delivering the applications from this jurisdiction.

The Hamilton membership realizes the many blessings to be derived from the shorter workday. The vote on the 50-cent assessment was ample proof of this. The vote in its favor was decidedly large.

Oh, yes. We'll help the other fellow.

No. 129 at its last meeting voted $25 to the new Hamilton consumptive sanatorium. The members appreciate how good a thing the Colorado Springs Home is, and hope the local institution will prove as great a boon to sufferers from the great white plague.

We have voted all our eight-hour fund to the International eight-hour committee. Wish it had been doubly as large.

John Bleakin, who returned last summer from South Africa, and has been working on the Herald, has gone west. His boy is not very healthy, and it is hoped the western air may benefit him.

Thomas Holden, a member of No. 129, was elected secretary of the local trades and labor council's label committee at its last meeting. This insures that part of the work being well done.

Digitized by Google

Every little helps.

Not a man has been secured from this jurisdiction to partake of the "glorious" benefits offered to strikebreakers in American cities.

At the last meeting it was decided that the Springfield paper would not be a suitable Home Companion for our wives and daughters.

Here's to O'Sullivan's rubber heels.

THE JOURNAL'S the thing.

HUGH H. BORTHWICK.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.

As the members of No. 40 enter upon the ninth week of their struggle for the eight-hour workday the same feeling of victory still remains with those who walked out. There were fifty-seven on the pay roll the first week of the strike, and over half that number have secured employment in other eight-hour cities. Work is still being sent to Kansas City, but the executive committee of No. 80 will keep a sharp lookout to see that it is not "farmed out" to any more union shops. If Kansas City were 1,000 miles away St. Joseph would now be classed among the honorary list of eight-hour towns.

The new paper I mentioned in last month's JOURNAL is an assured fact. Frank A. Pettit, of the Kansas City World, is in the city erecting the machines. Mr. Pettit recently invented a linotype knifewiper and is meeting with great success. Harry Crotty, late foreman of the Kansas City World, will be in charge. The name of the paper will be the St. Joseph Star, and it will be a six-day afternoon sheet, and will also carry the label.

The book scheme recommended by J. Monroe Kreiter, of Washington, D. C., is a good suggestion, and if every delegate, ex and visitor would take along some good book when they attend the next and largest convention at Colorado Springs, the Cummings library, soon to be erected at the Home, will start out with a good supply of interesting reading. So let every one attending the convention have room in their grip for a book, even if you have to carry the other "articles" in your pocket.

S. J. Richardson, linotype operator of the Gazette, was quietly married November 16. The Gazette the next morning contained a nice writeup of the "accident," with a photo of the happy couple side by side.

Commissioner Ben Hill, who is always up to fun, had the following joke perpetrated on him recently: Mr. Crotty, who was in the city making arrangements to start the new paper, and not being acquainted with Mr. Hill, one of the boys introduced him as "the new foreman of the Combe Printing Company, who had come here from Beatrice, Neb., not knowing that any trouble existed, and was willing to resign provided the union would reimburse him for the expense he had incurred in moving his family to the city." Mr. Hill commenced to look wise, and was so overjoyed in getting such big game as the foreman to resign his position that he took his pencil and figured every detail of expense, even cigars and Pullman.

Another true story is that of an errand boy who delivered some job work from a struck shop to a leading manufactory in the city. The manager opened the package in the boy's presence and remarked: "Say, boy, you don't call that printing, do you? Why, it is full of mistakes and very badly arranged." The boy answered: "Well, you don't need to jump on me, for I didn't set it, but jump on the d—n scabs who everybody is finding fault with." The manager was so amused with the boy's answer that he telephoned the job shop what the boy said, and when he returned the proprietor called him down, and he answered: "Well, he had no right to call me down for the mistakes your scabs are making."

Ed Crotty, of Kansas City, arrived this week to take a situation on the St. Joseph Star. His brother, who is foreman, says he will have to frost the front windows on account of the shirt factory opposite the composing room.

New Year's greeting: Eight hours victory!

J. E. MURPHY.

ELIZABETH, N. J.

Should the labor unions go into politics? Well, they went into politics in this city at the November election, and sent two obnoxious councilmanic candidates to humiliating defeat. The union men have had a practical demonstration of the power of concerted action. Great chunks of food for thought were handed out to the politicians. Now, let's all profit by the result.

The Evening Times has added two more Mergs. to its plant, making a total of six. Several presses have been added to the equipment, and other provisions made for a largely increased output.

We were all there when the vote was counted for the 50-cent assessment—well, nearly all.

"We have the men and we have the money"—together will bring the eight-hour day.

It is encouraging to note that the churches are beginning to sit up and take notice of the workingman's struggle for betterment, socially and politically. As yet the religious phase of the question isn't promising.

He wandered into town one day recently. You all know him, or have heard of him. His flitting brought to mind a story. It was in Boston and he was "hard up," which was not unusual. He had an idea, and proceeded to realize on it. With a bandage over one eye, a few blood stains on his face, and a fish's eye (procured at the wharf) in his hand, he proceeded to work the sympathetic public with the story of a "lost" eye. The s. p. responded kindly, and "Speck" had netted a neat little sum before his trick was exposed. Know him? Of course you know "Speck" White. Yes, he drifted into town recently, hit the boys for a few cents, and then drifted out again.

Now, all together for eight hours.

Lest we forget—the label is on everything worth buying.

T. H. BLAKENY.

Digitized by Google

TAMPA, FLA.

By the way, I believe this is the most southern branch of the International Typographical Union in the United States, isn't it? The membership here is small (some twenty-four), but the spirit and material are present, and things are steadily swinging around into the right channels. Considering that the majority of the boys "grew up" here with the city and business, the progress is indeed commendable.

The eight-hour question and an increase in scale was presented to the various employers the early part of the month, and it was finally accepted by the majority after the following things had transpired: The Morning Tribune news and job office refused to sign, and two job men and an apprentice, two admen and an apprentice and three machine men quit work. Just one "issue" of the paper—in which it attempted to belittle the entire typographical union (with results a la boomerang)—and then the proprietor announced his willingness to sign for the news office, declaring that he had disposed of the job department to the former superintendent (Hewitt Hill, who was published in last month's JOURNAL for membership), and that he would give proof of such transfer. His contract was accepted and the ad and machine force put back to work. The new proprietor of the job office turned his back on the union boys and scoured the country for rats—digging up three weak-minded and mellow ones, who had, doubtless, been accustomed to "performing" on the "G. Washington" ten to 'steen hours per day at the rate of fully $2.50 per week and board—and started "him" a "first-class" print shop. Of the job men thrown out there the writer was one, but, I am glad to say, the increase of business in some of the other offices necessitated an increase in force, and I have been kept so busy that I haven't found it necessary to draw upon the typographical union's fund as yet, and I'm hoping I will not have to at all. I am a new print here, and the other two boys were more fortunate and immediately caught "steadys." So it looks as if Tampa will not have to ask outside aid. The other three papers (small job offices in connection) signed up very properly, as did two job offices. With the Tribune job department, two other offices "crawfished," and about three scabs materialized.

The labor paper here came out manfully in defense of the union and "soaked" 'em right and left. The concluding paragraph of an editorial was as follows:

> The Tribune, or any other printshop in Tampa, may close its doors to union printers, turn a deaf ear to every requisition of labor, close its eyes to the picture of "progress and prosperity," and grovel within the four walls of its unhappy domicile, but the union printers, whose request no sane man can say is unreasonable or unjust, will march on to the goal of victory and unfurl at its topmost height a banner on which is inscribed in letters indelible: "Labor Omnia Vincit."

While another article ends:

> The moral of this incipient struggle between the union printers and their employers is patent to every thinking man in Tampa. Good help can not be obtained outside of the unions, and the employer who thinks for an instant that he can "buck" the combined weight of 6,500 "tried and true" exponents of trades unionism, makes a mistake that he will rue in his after consideration.

While some of you old prints are sloshing along through snow or blowing your fingers before you pick up the next type, we are harkening to the twittering of the mocking bird and cautioning the "devil" to not let the ice man miss us. I haven't seen so much as a frost since leaving Missouri. How's that?

CHARLES BARDIN.

THE UNION BUTTON.

I have read with a great deal of interest the articles appearing from time to time in THE JOURNAL, and I believe the "button-hole" campaign is doing much good for our organization. It seems to me every union printer should be proud to wear the neat little button adopted by the International Typographical Union. It is an emblem of purity in trade unionism; it is an emblem of liberty for the oppressed; it is an emblem of truth and sincerity of heart; it is an emblem of justice to all mankind; it is an emblem of fairness to male and female members; it is an emblem of self-respect and honor to all who wear it, and as an emblem it shows respect for others.

The member who takes sufficient interest in his organization to wear its button, thereby proclaiming to the world that above all else he is a union man, is the member within whose heart the best affections for all mankind cluster and dwell, cheering by his honest convictions all with whom he comes in contact. In such a man is found high aspirations for the bettering of existing conditions, and strong energies come forth to help them on to realization. The very fact of such a sentiment in the majority of our members at the present time is doing much to elevate our noble brotherhood, and the inspiration is making them ready and willing to fight a common foe to the bitter end.

The moral influence of the union button is all-powerful for good, and of itself is worth a host of indifferent members. The coat that contains a union button on its lapel is the coat that covers the back of the true American citizen.

"Why don't you wear the union button?" Earnestly, honestly and diligently let us propound this question to the negligent member. These words are as enduring as adamant, as powerful as the human will, as tender as a brother's love for a brother, and an assurance of success in all our undertakings.

As to the mode of getting the button circulated throughout the entire membership, I would suggest a very simple method that has already been adopted by two local unions I know of. One of these locals has a "union button fund," consisting always of $5. The secretary must always have a sufficient number of buttons on hand in order to present one to every new member of the organization immediately after taking the obligation. This gives the president an opportunity to "spread" himself in a neat little presentation speech on the benefits to be derived in always wearing the button. It goes without saying that the new member has become a strong union man from the very outset, and money could not buy that little button from him. The "speech" every month will surely be of material benefit to the other members, while the new brother at once becomes a walking delegate for the union button. Those on whom the monthly "speech" has no effect, the junior members soon shame into purchasing a button either from the local or International secretary. The new member in this instance is always a hard worker, and, by the way, if every union would follow in the footsteps of this one, the typographical union button would soon be as well known as the American flag; besides, it would help the International treasury a little, and "every little bit helps."

Digitized by Google

Indianapolis, Ind. WILL P. CLOONAN.

SIOUX CITY, IOWA.

J. H. Bahne, for nearly twenty years proofreader, city editor, editorial writer, walking encyclopedia and prodigious bureau of general information of the Sioux City Journal office, last month purchased the Osceola County Tribune at Sibley, Iowa, the county seat of Osceola county, one of the northern-tier counties. On November 1 Mr. Bahne moved to Sibley, and is now engaged in putting forth one of the snappiest, newsiest, glintiest, virile and most scintillant weekly newspapers in northwestern Iowa, with 210 inches of ads and a tax list to boot, b'gosh! And a short epistle to one of his former coworkers informs us that things are just "bully," and that he is so busy he almost feels like apologizing for squeezing out the time to write at all. Really, it is easy for any of "Uncle" Jake's friends—and they are innumerable—to figure out how he hasn't had so much fun since he took a ninety-day horseback trip across the country to California in 1863, in company with seven others, six years before the Union Pacific railroad was completed, nor since he used to pass galleys to Henry George, borrow a chew of tobacco of him and enlist his benevolent sympathy in his then frantic endeavors to decipher Mark Twain's rugged and uncertain chirography at Virginia City, Nevada; nor since when later he meandered to 'Frisco and encountered the literary efforts of Bret Harte; nor even since the year 1870, when he paid $126 in gold of the vintage of California for the munificent, magnificent, grandiloquent and never-to-be-forgotten privilege of riding on the Union Pacific railroad at the astonishingly rapid speed of 17½ miles per hour, all the way from San Francisco to Chicago, in the near vicinage of Mr. Bahne's nativity. All this happening four years before a navel orange was planted in California's latent bosom wherewith to give impetus to the annual departure of 17½ miles (2,300) of cars bound for eastern markets. Just think of it! And "Uncle" Jake only sixty-one, and good for thirty more! And the good and prosperous people of Osceola county are to have the benefit of all his experience, wisdom and learning for the mere bagatelle of $1.50 per annum, to say nothing of his delightful, frank and generous companionship, which in itself communicates health, mirth and joy, which in themselves mean to all who come in contact therewith all that this government was founded for the pursuit of—happiness. Verily, there is a vacant chair in Sioux City printerdom; the dean of the newspaper fraternity has departed.

W. P. Webster, an oldtime International Typographical Union man, who worked in Des Moines, Omaha and St. Paul in 1876 and later, founded the Osceola County (Iowa) Tribune twenty-one years ago, a property which sold for $3,000 to J. H. Bahne. In those twenty-one years Mr. Webster has acquired a competence which will give him comfort and ease the rest of his life, and he is a young man yet. His roommate and itinerant companion in those years so far agone was a man named Parker, who is well remembered in Des Moines and Omaha.

C. H. Van Wie, one of the Omaha strikers for eight hours' labor and the glorious privilege of exercising his own discretion as to the disposition of the remaining sixteen, paid Sioux City a visit last week in the interest of the Western Eagle, a midwest spokesman for the Fraternal Order of Eagles. He accepted no "wooden nickels" in payment therefor, emitted a goodly quantity of the oleaginous fluid of optimism, and wended his way homeward more prosperous, happier and wiser for his sojourn in the only eight-hour town on the Missouri river at present.

Des Moines Typographical Union is at last to be really and truly congratulated. She has negotiated a scale of wages that not only approximates, but surpasses Sioux City—or will after November 10, 1907. This is the most joyful news Sioux City has heard in oh, ever so long. It speaks eloquently for the statesmen of No. 118, too.

H. F. Huling, of Fort Smith, Ark., is the new foreman on the night side of the Journal, and supersedes Joe Morrison, who for nearly three years has held that position. Mr. Morrison goes back to the machine sadder, wiser and just as good an operator as of yore. Mr. Huling has made a favorable impression with the men. A. M. Tilley, of Davenport, is Mr. Huling's new assistant foreman. W. H. Mulhall is the new night machinist by reason of Houghton Herrick's departure for Seattle. James O'Connor, of the Journal adroom, has gone to Seattle to help swell the Sioux City colony. Both Mr. Herrick and Mr. O'Connor are popular young men and competent in their respective lines of business. Others who have recently arrived in Sioux City and assimilated with the various printing offices here are: W. C. Hardy and Charles Belle, New Orleans; C. H. Cosgrove, Omaha; H. S. Curtis, Council Bluffs; Charles Hartsough, Leavenworth; Walter Peach, Des Moines.

Pat Devlin, an itinerant operator, who came to Sioux City six weeks ago, recently fell down the elevator shaft in the Journal office, a distance of thirty feet, and sustained only slight injury. That he was not killed was a miracle. Two weeks in a hospital found him so far recovered as to be able to go to work.

A letter from Hugh C. Colley, ex-delegate to Washington, who is now in Houston, Texas, tells his friends he is fortunately circumstanced. But he still longs for good old Sioux.

A. D. SCOUGAL.

Digitized by Google

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL CANVASSING BOARD.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., November 13, 1905.

TO THE MEMBERS OF SUBORDINATE UNIONS—The committee appointed to canvass the vote on the 50-cents-per-week assessment proposition, submitted to the membership by the executive council under date of October 17, 1905, begs leave to present the following as a true exhibit of the returns received within the time prescribed by law:

	For	Against
1, Indianapolis, Ind.	470	....
2, Philadelphia, Pa.	589	44
3, Cincinnati, Ohio	287	35
4, Albany, N. Y.	228	37
5, Columbus, Ohio	61	1
6, New York, N. Y.	3,248	834
7, Pittsburg, Pa.	194	115
8, St. Louis, Mo.	659	64
9, Buffalo, N. Y.	240	14
10, Louisville, Ky.	137	25
11, Memphis, Tenn.	132	13
12, Baltimore, Md.	296	35
13, Boston, Mass.	800	164
14, Harrisburg, Pa.	38	19
15, Rochester, N. Y.	128	2
16, Chicago, Ill.	1,827	41
17, New Orleans, La.	138	58
18, Detroit, Mich.	255	8
19, Elmira, N. Y.	38	7
20, Nashville, Tenn.	149	6
21, San Francisco, Cal.	431	91
22, Dubuque, Iowa	44	3
23, Milwaukee, Wis.	171	84
24, Jackson, Tenn.	6	1
25, Baton Rouge, La.	8	....
27, Mobile, Ala.	39	11
28, Galveston, Texas	67	2
29, Peoria, Ill.	75	1
30, St. Paul, Minn.	371	1
31, Fond du Lac, Wis.	7	4
33, Providence, R. I.	52	6
34, Columbia, S. C.	24	7
35, Evansville, Ind.	51	....
36, Oakland, Cal.	73	21
38, Haverhill, Mass.	2	13
39, Grand Rapids, Mich.	128	....
40, St. Joseph, Mo.	59	....
41, Augusta, Ga.	32	....
42, Minneapolis, Minn.	369	4
43, Charleston, S. C.	21	4
44, Rome, N. Y.	12	2
45, Leavenworth, Kan.	19	3
46, Sacramento, Cal.	54	7
47, New Haven, Conn.	110	....
48, Atlanta, Ga.	95	23
49, Denver, Colo.	260	46
50, Saginaw, Mich.	40	8
51, Lawrence, Mass.	22	26
52, Troy, N. Y.	119	5
53, Cleveland, Ohio	273	136
54, Raleigh, N. C.	50	9
55, Syracuse, N. Y.	169	....
56, Stockton, Cal.	27	1
57, Dayton, Ohio	84	41
58, Portland, Ore.	152	4
59, Quincy, Ill.	47	....
60, Roanoke, Va.	18	....
61, Cambridge, Mass.	36	22
62, Utica, N. Y.	130	9
63, Toledo, Ohio	162	....
64, Lafayette, Ind.	27	1
65, Virginia City, Nev.	14	1
66, Portland, Me.	50	12
67, Lockport, N. Y.	14	12
68, Keokuk, Iowa	13	3
69, Newark, Ohio	16	6
70, Lancaster, Pa.	4	46
71, Trenton, N. J.	55	20
72, Lansing, Mich.	31	17
73, Ottumwa, Iowa	14	1
75, Burlington, Iowa	13	19
76, Terre Haute, Ind.	61	6
77, Erie, Pa.	50	4
78, Fort Wayne, Ind.	58	4
79, Wheeling, W. Va.	49	19
80, Kansas City, Mo.	180	50
81, Bay City, Mich.	22	8
82, Colorado Springs, Colo.	57	7
83, New York Hebrew-American	46	6
84, San Bernardino, Cal.	9	13
85, St. John, N. B.	32	8
86, Reading, Pa.	23	44
87, Houston, Texas	85	8
88, Hannibal, Mo.	12	....
89, Chattanooga, Tenn.	52	7
90, Richmond, Va.	107	....
91, Toronto, Ont.	473	117
92, Little Rock, Ark.	62	14
93, Macon, Ga.	26	8
94, Jersey City, N. J.	82	....
95, Helena, Mont.	27	1
96, Glens Falls, N. Y.	14	28
97, Peru, Ind.	3	11
98, Bedford, Ind.	4	6
99, Jackson, Mich.	14	9
100, Norwich, Conn.	23	2
101, Washington, D. C.	1,179	352
102, Ottawa, Ont.	221	75
103, Newark, N. J.	219	14
104, Birmingham, Ala.	80	5
105, Goldfield, Nev.	4	6
106, Madison, Wis.	8	3
107, Rock Island, Ill.	81	36
108, Hagerstown, Md.	5	6
111, Knoxville, Tenn.	31	1
112, Scranton, Pa.	115	19
113, Atchison, Kan.	6	6
114, Annapolis, Md.	7	....
115, Salt Lake, Utah	56	17
116, Kenosha, Wis.	9	3
117, Springfield, Ohio	90	1
118, Des Moines, Iowa	109	5
119, Jefferson City, Mo.	19	5
121, Topeka, Kan.	79	27
122, Kalamazoo, Mich.	31	1
123, Wilmington, Del.	15	27
124, Bloomington, Ill.	34	13
125, Durham, N. C.	10	....
126, Butte, Mont.	63	....
127, Hartford, Conn.	175	1
128, South Bend, Ind.	32	17
129, Hamilton, Ont.	67	21
130, Halifax, N. S.	46	13
131, New York Bohemian	2	16
132, Camden, N. J.	10	20
133, London, Ont.	43	....
134, Paducah, Ky.	13	5
135, Oneonta, N. Y.	6	6
136, Duluth, Minn.	44	3
137, Johnstown, Pa.	21	14
138, Austin, Texas	49	4
139, Stratford, Ont.	5	5
140, Bismarck, N. D.	15	....
141, Williamsport, Pa.	30	18
142, Olympia, Wash.	11	....
143, Danbury, Conn.	8	5
144, Fresno, Cal.	29	....
145, Montreal, Que. (French)	109	8
146, Charleston, W. Va.	35	7
148, Wichita, Kan.	24	2
149, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.	19	2
150, Elizabeth, N. J.	52	9
151, Oil City, Pa.	18	2
152, Manchester, N. H.	36	17
154, Ann Arbor, Mich.	25	1
155, Shreveport, La.	21	....
156, Bowling Green, Ohio	....	14
158, Springfield, Mo.	25	4
159, New London, Conn.	23	5
160, Columbia, Mo.	10	3
161, Fall River, Mass.	19	32
162, Jacksonville, Fla.	42	1
163, Superior, Wis.	14	4
164, Kewanee, Ill.	7	....
165, Worcester, Mass.	52	29
166, Adrian, Mich.	5	9
167, Schenectady, N. Y.	30	15
168, Muskegon, Mich.	10	8
169, New Albany, Ind.	1	11
170, Tacoma, Wash.	42	6
171, Elgin, Ill.	20	6
172, San Antonio, Texas	54	4
173, Dallas, Texas	149	....
174, Los Angeles, Cal.	196	34
175, Pueblo, Colo.	43	7
176, Montreal, Que.	43	9
177, Springfield, Ill.	65	23
179, Leadville, Colo.	13	....
180, Sioux City, Iowa	52	5
181, Meadville, Pa.	12	8
182, Akron, Ohio	68	12
183, Savannah, Ga.	24	....
184, Cheyenne, Wyo.	9	....
185, Bradford, Pa.	18	3
186, Fargo, N. D.	30	....
188, Waco, Texas	22	....
189, Lexington, Ky.	29	2
190, Omaha, Neb.	160	12

Digitized by Google

	For	Against
191, Winnipeg, Man.	159	7
192, Cedar Rapids, Iowa	61	9
193, Spokane, Wash.	73	21
194, Joliet, Ill.	37	22
195, Paterson, N. J.	46	19
196, Logansport, Ind.	7	26
197, Janesville, Wis.	5	10
198, Fort Worth, Texas	55	5
199, Zanesville, Ohio	30	15
200, Youngstown, Ohio	46	....
201, Victoria, B. C.	19	16
202, Seattle, Wash.	151	11
203, Council Bluffs, Iowa	20	....
205, Jamestown, N. Y.	28	4
206, Sedalia, Mo.	17	2
207, Eureka, Cal.	10	7
208, Cambridge, Ohio	....	22
209, Lincoln, Neb.	59	21
210, Salem, Ore.	30	....
211, Oshkosh, Wis.	15	9
212, Pawtucket, R. I.	24	30
213, Rockford, Ill.	25	6
214, Pendleton, Ore.	13	....
215, Decatur, Ill.	21	15
216, Springfield, Mass.	91	14
217, Murphysboro, Ill.	8	1
218, Sioux Falls, S. D.	38	1
219, Canton, Ohio	36	3
220, Columbus, Ga.	17	....
221, San Diego, Cal.	17	....
222, Montgomery, Ala	5	5
224, Brockton, Mass.	14	18
226, Vancouver, B. C.	63	2
227, Cripple Creek, Colo.	8	....
228, Norwood, Mass.	34	8
229, Crawfordsville, Ind.	8	4
230, Danville, Ill.	50	....
231, San Jose, Cal.	30	6
232, Binghamton, N. Y.	82	4
233, Niagara Falls, N. Y.	24	1
234, Corsicana, Texas	10	3
235, Rahway, N. J.	18	2
236, Ogden, Utah	13	8
237, Sandusky, Ohio	6	11
238, Steubenville, Ohio	16	3
239, Carbondale, Pa.	8	2
240, Altoona, Pa.	17	2
241, Hanover, Pa.	1	9
242, York, Pa.	....	39
243, Hutchinson, Kan.	15	4
244, Cumberland, Md.	1	10
245, Woonsocket, R. I.	19	7
246, Winona, Minn.	18	2
247, Chicago Swedish	25	2
248, Peterboro, Ont.	24	6
249, Fort Smith, Ark.	21	3
250, Beaver Falls, Pa.	25	7
251, Muscatine, Iowa	9	12
252, Bridgeport, Conn.	40	3
253, Holyoke, Mass.	31	11
254, Riverside, Cal.	7	2
255, Anaconda, Mont.	30	....
256, Great Falls, Mont.	20	1
257, Lisbon, Ohio	3	10
258, Easton, Pa.	33	4
259, Waltham, Mass.	10	....
260, Findlay, Ohio	6	16
261, New York Italian	13	4
262, Uniontown, Pa.	8	12
263, Asheville, N. C.	12	....
265, Ottawa, Ill.	10	4
267, Frankfort, Ky.	4	4
268, Gloversville, N. Y.	19	7
269, Peekskill, N. Y.	9	8
270, Newcastle, Pa.	6	16
271, Boise City, Idaho	30	3
272, Chicago Norwegian-Danish	8	11
276, New Bedford, Mass.	17	5
277, Missoula, Mont.	15	2
280, Marietta, Ohio	2	11
281, Marlboro and Hudson, Mass.	8	5
282, Sterling, Ill.	5	4
283, Oklahoma City, O. T.	34	10
284, Anderson, Ind.	6	16
285, Ansonia, Conn.	14	4
286, Marion, Ind.	30	2
287, Frankfort, Ind.	8	8
288, Galesburg, Ill.	16	5
289, Titusville, Pa.	10	....
290, Hamilton, Ohio	12	4
291, Aurora, Ill.	30	2
292, Grand Junction, Colo.	7	....
293, Pensacola, Fla.	13	....
294, Waukegan, Ill.	....	15
295, Newport, R. I.	6	5
297, Concord, N. H.	8	....
299, Tampa, Fla.	11	9
300, Port Huron, Mich.	29	4
301, Richmond, Ind.	15	7
302, Quebec, Can.	19	16
303, Cleburne, Texas	12	....
304, Albuquerque, N. M.	12	4
305, Newburgh, N. Y.	9	31
306, Alton, Ill.	11	10
307, New Brunswick, N. J.	21	2
308, Watertown, N. Y.	43	....
310, Lowell, Mass.	78	....
311, Grand Forks, N. D.	14	2
313, Texarkana, Ark.	4	3
314, Meriden, Conn.	20	3
315, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.	20	11
316, North Adams, Mass.	8	13
318, East Liverpool, Ohio	14	8
319, Taunton, Mass.	5	3
320, Pottsville, Pa.	22	5
321, Connellsville, Pa.	14	1
322, Kingston, N. Y.	4	8
323, Hoboken, N. J.	31	11
324, Racine, Wis.	22	2
325, Cohoes, N. Y.	17	5
326, Rutland, Vt.	16	1
327, Lincoln, Ill.	9	3
328, Streator, Ill.	9	4
329, Waterbury, Conn.	25	2
330, Chicago Bohemian	35	24
331, Elwood, Ind.	10	....
332, Muncie, Ind.	33	14
333, Denison, Texas	10	3
334, Clinton, Iowa	13	1
335, Rossland, B. C.	6	....
339, Beaumont, Texas	19	1
340, Nelson, B. C.	9	....
342, Canton, Ill.	9	....
344, Green Bay, Wis.	15	1
345, Olean, N. Y.	10	3
346, Burlington, Vt.	13	12
347, Wabash, Ind.	2	8
348, Girard, Kan.	9	....
349, Waterloo, Iowa	9	11
350, Joplin, Mo.	14	....
351, Sharon, Pa.	10	....
352, Phœnix, Ariz.	21	....
353, Newport News, Va.	11	3
354, Edwardsville, Ill.	5	4
355, Bellingham, Wash.	23	6
356, Jacksonville, Ill.	9	....
358, Greenwood, B. C.	1	5
359, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.	9	....
360, Menominee, Mich.	6	6
362, Traverse City, Mich.	16	1
364, Coshocton, Ohio	46	1
365, Nashua, N. H.	2	11
368, Litchfield, Ill.	4	6
370, El Paso, Texas	15	5
371, Rome, Ga.	9	....
372, Clarksburg, W. Va.	9	3
373, Durango, Colo.	7	1
376, Minot, N. D.	13	....
377, Atlantic City, N. J.	11	8
378, Brantford, Ont.	20	....
379, Ithaca, N. Y.	13	31
380, Augusta, Me.	4	19
381, Boone, Iowa	10	....
384, Montpelier, Vt.	8	2
385, Greenville, S. C.	13	5
386, Little Falls, N. Y.	7	8
387, Mount Vernon, N. Y.	7	1
388, Walla Walla, Wash.	14	2
390, Pontiac, Ill.	3	6
391, Guelph, Ont.	13	16
392, Pittston, Pa.	8	3
393, Brockville, Ont.	....	7
394, Santa Barbara, Cal.	7	....
395, Vincennes, Ind.	6	5
396, Canandaigua, N. Y.	7	11
397, Greensboro, N. C.	22	1
398, Billings, Mont.	9	1
399, Plainfield, N. J.	11	....
400, Sunbury, Pa.	5	3
402, Barre, Vt.	7	2
403, Tulsa, I. T.	10	2
405, Santa Fe, N. M.	10	2
406, Mason City, Iowa	11	7
407, Linton, Ind.	....	10
410, Everett, Wash.	19	....
411, Galt, Ont.	10	....
412, Kokomo, Ind.	18	4
413, Sayre, Pa.	3	5
414, Marshalltown, Iowa	10	....
416, St. Catharines, Ont.	3	17
417, Fort William, Ont.	8	1
419, Anniston, Ala.	9	2
420, Mansfield, Ohio	7	12
424, Orange, N. J.	31	3

Digitized by Google

	For	Against
425, Canon City, Colo	....	12
426, Bristol, Tenn	13	....
427, Vicksburg, Miss	5	9
428, Warren, Pa	13	3
429, Battle Creek, Mich	14	9
430, Baker City, Ore	8	....
431, Manitowoc, Wis	2	8
432, Stillwater, Minn	8	....
33, Dover, N. J	11	....
434, Trinidad, Colo	10	....
435, Bluffton, Ind	2	7
437, Franklin, Pa	20	2
439, Bakersfield, Cal	14	2
441, Salem, Ohio	4	15
442, LaSalle and Peru, Ill	4	5
443, Mascoutah, Ill	....	13
444, Champaign and Urbana, Ill	16	14
445, Oswego, N. Y	4	8
446, Bangor, Me	20	1
447, Pine Bluff, Ark	13	3
448, La Crosse, Wis	21	3
449, Calgary, Alberta, N. W. T	19	8
450, Columbus, Ind	2	11
452, New Kensington, Pa	....	8
453, Norwich, N. Y	13	4
455, Owosso and Corunna, Mich	6	4
456, Washington, Pa	14	....
458, Carlinville, Ill	4	5
459, St. Thomas, Ont	15	12
460, Chatham, Ont	....	12
461, Cairo, Ill	3	15
463, Middletown, N. Y	16	9
465, Tucson, Ariz	8	1
466, West Chester, Pa	1	14
468, Yonkers, N. Y	25	18
469, Greenfield, Ind	....	8
470, Pittsburg, Kan	3	10
471, Sherman, Texas	17	6
472, Palestine, Texas	9	....
474, Ashtabula, Ohio	3	8
475, Redding, Cal	8	....
477, Niles, Ohio	6	....
479, Centralia, Ill	2	6
480, Tiffin, Ohio	6	9
481, Iola, Kan	16	....
483, Portsmouth, N. H	2	21
484, Muskogee, I. T	18	....
487, Middletown, Ohio	9	....
488, Princeton, Ind	7	2
489, Livingston, Mont	4	1
491, Pocatello, Idaho	9	....
492, Bellaire, Ohio	7	....
493, Henderson, Ky	15	2
494, Abeline, Texas	7	3
496, Albany, Ore	3	3
498, Lead, Deadwood and Central City	8	....
499, Deposit, N. Y	20	3
503, Stamford, Conn	12	....
505, Clinton, Ill	4	3
507, Princeton, N. J	9	....
509, Greenville, Texas	13	1
511, Batavia, N. Y	12	8
512, Pontiac, Mich	14	1
514, Niles, Mich	8	....
515, Iowa City, Iowa	11	7
516, Norwalk, Ohio	14	2
518, Marion, Ill	5	2
520, Mattoon, Ill	11	2
521, Palo Alto, Cal	9	....
522, Morristown, N. Y	....	14
523, Tarrytown-Ossining, N. Y	6	10
524, Freeport, Ill	32	3
525, Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, Mich.	11	3
526, Oskaloosa, Iowa	12	....
533, Huntington, W. Va	16	....
534, Allentown, Pa	4	4
536, Auburn, N. Y	20	25
538, Washington, Ind	5	3
539, Port Arthur, Ont	4	3
541, Oregon City, Ore	5	....
542, Shelbyville, Ind	9	2
543, Watsonville and Salinas, Cal	16	4
544, Douglas, Ariz	7	....
545, Waukesha, Wis	6	3
547, Greenfield, Mass	6	4
548, Lancaster, Ohio	17	....
549, Corning, N. Y	5	5
550, Windsor, Ont	4	13
552, Long Branch-Asbury Park, N. J	2	6
556, Wilmington, N. C	16	....
559, San Angelo, Texas	8	....
563, Harrisburg, Ill	6	1
565, South McAlester, I. T	8	2
566, Salida, Colo	6	1
568, Lake Charles, La	16	4
569, Painesville Ohio	....	8
573, Aberdeen, Wash	10	3
574, Hot Springs, Ark	6	12
576, San Luis Obispo, Cal	6	....
577, Santa Rosa, Cal	10	....
579, St. Hyacinthe, Que	1	7
581, Fort Madison, Iowa	5	4
583, Pasadena, Cal	18	2
585, Wausau, Wis	1	9
588, St. Augustine, Fla	10	....
589, Santa Cruz, Cal	14	2
590, Park City, Utah	....	7
591, Pekin, Ill	8	7
592, Fort Collins, Colo	8	....
593, Brainerd Minn	7	....
595, Athens, Ga	9	....
596, Houghton, Mich	10	....
599, Herrin, Ill	4	1
601, Grass Valley, Cal	5	5
602, Greenville, Pa	2	7
603, Fort Dodge, Iowa	2	16
605, Mitchell, S. D	10	....
609, Winston-Salem, N. C	1	12
610, Columbia, Pa	....	11
612, Appleton, Neenah and Menasha, Wis.	3	13
614, North Yakima, Wash	7	....
615, Manistee, Mich	2	6
616, Tonapah, Nev	12	....
617, Wallace, Idaho	5	....
618, Watertown, Wis	....	5
619, Fremont, Ohio	9	1
623, Fitchburg and Leominster, Mass	7	....
625, Salisbury, N. C	7	5
628, Somerville, N. J	14	....
629, Bowling Green, Ky	6	....
630, St. Cloud, Minn	11	....
631, Idaho Falls, Idaho	7	....
632, Cheboygan, Mich	8	....
634, Lewiston, Idaho	9	5
635, Poplar Bluff, Mo	8	....
636, Deadwood, S. D	7	1
640, Berlin, N. H	4	2
641, Ennis, Texas	5	1
642, Hackensack, N. J	7	7
643, Waterville, Me	10	....
644, Bluefield, W. Va	7	....
645, Elyria, Ohio	8	....
646, Denton, Texas	11	1
649, Ardmore, I. T	11	2
651, LeMars, Iowa	4	2
652, Independence, Iowa	5	3
653, Jamestown, N. D	7	1
655, Redfield, S. D	1	6
656, Brandon, Minn	16	1
657, Regina, Saskatchewan, Can	15	....
658, Perth Amboy, N. J	15	....
659, Brunswick, Ga	6	....
661, Jonesboro, Ark	14	....
662, Phenix and Arctic, R. I	3	5
663, Washington, Iowa	2	7
666, Moncton, N. B	7	5

German-American

1, Philadelphia, Pa	16	23
2, Cincinnati, Ohio	9	28
3, St. Louis, Mo	28	27
4, Buffalo, N. Y	8	17
5, Rochester, N. Y	3	5
6, Cleveland, Ohio	8	15
7, New York, N. Y	100	58
8, Newark, N. J	14	1
9, Chicago, Ill	46	25
10, Milwaukee, Wis	29	43
11, Baltimore, Md	....	28
12, Louisville, Ky	7	3
13, St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn	15	6
14, Indianapolis, Ind	9	7
15, Evansville, Ind	6	7
16, Pittsburg, Pa	5	15
18, Belleville, Ill	4	4
19, Columbus, Ohio	7	4
21, Detroit, Mich	15	7
24, Toledo, Ohio	7	....
25, Wheeling, W. Va	....	6

Typefounders

3, Chicago, Ill	10	1
7, San Francisco, Cal	5	4

Mailers

1, Boston, Mass	17	47
2, Chicago, Ill	98	21
3, St. Louis, Mo	19	49
5, Toronto, Can	11	15
6, New York, N. Y	112	204
8, Denver, Col	5	10

Digitized by Google

	For	Against
12, Cleveland, Ohio	13	....
15, St. Joseph, Mo	....	7
16, Louisville, Ky	2	18
17, Cincinnati, Ohio	43	15
18, San Francisco, Cal	14	35
24, Buffalo, N. Y	....	7
25, Butte, Mont	6	2
27, Winnipeg, Man	2	6
NEWSPAPER WRITERS
1, Boston, Mass	22	11
2, Columbus, Ohio	11	1
9, Milwaukee, Wis	6	....
12, Butte, Mont	7	3
Totals	25,949	6,333
Majority	19,616

Respectfully submitted,

JAMES M. LYNCH,
J. W. BRAMWOOD,
EARL MCKEE,
Canvassing Board.

TOO LATE FOR OFFICIAL COUNT.

The following unions sent in result of vote too late to be included in the official count:

	For	Against
389, Vallejo, Cal	9	3
613, Bellefontaine, Ohio	3	10
11, Elmira (N. Y.) Mailers	9	....

In Memoriam

THOMAS J. CONATY.

The following resolutions of respect and condolence were adopted by Taunton (Mass.) Typographical Union No. 319, on the death of Thomas J. Conaty:

Whereas, In view of the loss we have sustained by the death of our friend and associate, Thomas J. Conaty, and of the still heavier loss sustained by those who were nearest and dearest to him; therefore be it

Resolved, That it is but a just tribute to the memory of the departed to say that in regretting his removal from our union we mourn for one who was, in every way, worthy of our respect and regard.

Resolved, That in our natural sorrow for the loss of a faithful and beloved member, we find consolation in the belief that it is well with him for whom we mourn.

Resolved, That the heartfelt sympathy of this union be extended to his family in their affliction.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the daily papers of Taunton, Mass., THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL, and spread upon the records of this union.

H. J. DONOVAN.

Batavia (N. Y.) Typographical Union No. 511, in special session on Saturday evening, October 21, 1905, adopted the following resolutions:

Whereas, It has pleased the Heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom to call unto Himself our beloved brother and co-worker, Herbert James Donovan; and,

Whereas, In his demise Typographical Union No. 511 loses a true and faithful friend and a charter member of the organization; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we keenly feel the loss we have sustained and express to the bereaved relatives our heartfelt sympathy; and, be it further

Resolved, That in respect to the memory of Brother Donovan the charter be draped thirty days, that these resolutions be spread on the minutes of this meeting and that a copy be published in the News, Times, Labor Leader and TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL.

CHARLES MAIHOT.

At a meeting of Montreal Typographical Union No. 176 the following resolution was passed on the death of Charles Maihot, a respected member of No. 176, and ordered to be inserted in THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL:

That it has pleased Almighty God to remove from among us one of our most respected and active members, Charles Maihot, who passed away after a brief illness, and,

Whereas, The members of No. 176 have lost a good friend and a worthy and popular member, liked by all and loved for his good qualities through his many years' connection with the craft;

Resolved, That No. 176 do hereby extend to the bereaved family our sincere and heartfelt sympathy at the loss they have sustained.

WILLIAM H. WILSON.

William H. Wilson, one of the oldtime printers of Jackson, Mich., died in Boyne City, Mich., on November 9. A local paper says of Mr. Wilson:

Mr. Wilson entered the employ of the Jackson Daily Citizen in 1865, and set type for the first issue of that paper which was the first daily published in Jackson. He took slug one at that time, and remained slug one until he left the paper five years since, a period of thirty-five years. Mr. Wilson was a man of very kindly nature. His purse was always open to those of the fraternity in distress, and his many acts of kindness to those with whom he came in contact in a business way will always be remembered with feelings of gratitude. He was a friend to the apprentice, and in his long years of service at the case taught many the mysteries of the "art preservative." "Billy" has received "30." The copy hook is clear, and the dear old man has gone to his reward.

ALBERT A. THOMAS.

The following resolutions were adopted by Memphis Typographical Union No. 11 on the death of Albert A. Thomas, a native of Trenton, Tenn., who died October 7, 1905:

Whereas, It has pleased an All-Wise God to remove from earthly life our esteemed brother member, Albert A. Thomas; and

Whereas, By his death our said union has lost a true and faithful member and good citizen; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we sincerely feel the loss sustained, and hereby extend to the family of deceased our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement.

Resolved, That as a further mark of our respect a page of the minute book be inscribed to his memory; that a copy of the foregoing be furnished THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL for publication, and a copy of same be furnished deceased's family.

THE constant drip of water
Wears away the hardest stone,
And the lover who keeps asking
May secure her as his own;
But a man who boasts forever
Of the things he means to do
Will, unless he acts, be only
A might-have-been when through.

—Chicago Record-Herald.

Digitized by Google

Official Budget

THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL

ISSUED ON THE FIFTH OF EACH MONTH.

AT ROOMS 640-650 NEWTON CLAYPOOL BUILDING, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

J. W. BRAMWOOD, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the postoffice, Indianapolis, Ind., as second-class matter.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.—One dollar per annum to any part of the United States or Canada; foreign, $1.50 per annum; single copies, 10 cents each.

To insure prompt insertion, all official matter, communications and advertisements should reach this office BEFORE the TWENTIETH OF THE MONTH PRECEDING PUBLICATION.

Advertising rates made known on application. All letters and remittances should be addressed to the editor and publisher.

OFFICIAL BATTLE CRY OF THE I. T. U.

We propose to sell to the employer eight hours out of twenty-four, and we will do as we please with the remaining sixteen.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

Items for the official columns of THE JOURNAL should be prepared on a separate sheet, and the style of the paper followed as closely as possible. Such items should not be made a part of a letter dealing with other subjects, for if this is done the items are likely to be overlooked, even though the greatest care be exercised. Write as plainly as possible—especially proper names—using one side of the sheet only. Communications must in all instances be accompanied by the author's name and address. All official matter must be in the hands of the editor BEFORE THE TWENTIETH OF EACH MONTH, to insure insertion in the issue immediately following. The observance of the foregoing will tend to insure what is desired by all—promptness and accuracy in the publication of official matter.

THE JOURNAL MAILING LIST.

When a member requests a change in his JOURNAL address, he should give the name and number of the union with which he is affiliated, together with his present and former address.

Additions to the mailing list can only be made when received through the local secretary. Members not receiving the magazine should furnish the local secretary with their addresses.

Additions, corrections or alterations reported by local secretaries should be kept separate from other correspondence. When a member deposits his card, and his name is reported for the subscription list, the secretary should state where the member previously received THE JOURNAL, and give the name and number of the union with which he was affiliated. When a member draws his card, is suspended or expelled, or in any manner ceases to be an active member of the local, the secretary should request that his name be dropped from the mailing list.

A large number of those who take cards and remove to unorganized towns fail to renew their cards. To prevent loss in such instances, it has been decided that members holding cards, and located outside of the jurisdiction of a local union, must either deposit their cards with the nearest union and pay dues each month, or pay International dues in advance, in order to get THE JOURNAL. Where a card-holder pays his dues to the local in advance, a specific report should be made by the secretary upon the case, in order that the name can be placed on the list and the magazine sent to the member for the time for which dues have been paid.

The 25th of each month is the latest date upon which changes for the succeeding issue can be made on our mailing list.

Upon request, secretaries will be furnished with a copy of the list of their members to whom THE JOURNAL is being sent.

All correspondence regarding THE JOURNAL should be addressed to J. W. BRAMWOOD, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.

ADDRESSES WANTED.

Frank E. Hall, communicate with J. J. Henry, box 546, Knoxville, Tenn.

Fred N. Lacey, send address to S. L. Deming, 84 Elizabeth street, Utica, N. Y.

Dell Angell, please send address to R. F. Martell, 139 Lord avenue, Bayonne, N. J.

Jack Tracy, send address to your old friend, who has returned to the Tulsa World office.

Charles Desmond or Carroll, send address to Ella Desmond, 1626 Rowan street, Louisville, Ky.

G. J. Wayne, please communicate with E. P. McDevitt, 46 V street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Any one knowing the whereabouts of George J. Ford is requested to write to A. G. Overton, Mason City, Iowa.

M. J. Silk, or any one knowing his whereabouts, communicate with C. C. Fiske, care Searchlight, Redding, Cal.

Earl L. Appleby, or any one knowing his whereabouts, communicate with A. F. Appleby, 419 Pierce street, Dallas, Texas.

Any one knowing the address of Charles E. Gibbs is requested to communicate with Walter H. Grant, box 266, Atlanta, Ga.

Ellis Rhyne, formerly of Wadesboro, N. C., is requested to communicate with Carl H. Gardner, general delivery, Ritzville, Wash.

Joseph F. Church, or any one knowing his whereabouts, communicate with Mrs. J. F. Church, 618 South 26th street, Birmingham, Ala.

C. K. Couse, or any one knowing his whereabouts, communicate with Mrs. H. K. Couse, 309 East Division street, Dowagiac, Mich.

George Truogg, or any one knowing his address is requested to communicate with Fred E. Ross, 505 Madison avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.

A. R. Parsons, last heard from in St. Louis, is requested to send his address to his wife, Mrs. A. R. Parsons, 426 West 5th street, Kansas City, Mo.

Joseph Louis, who worked in Scranton and Plymouth, Pa., some years ago, is requested to write his parents at 19 South Water street, Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Twenty-five dollars reward for address or information that will find Charles Topf, a deaf mute printer, last heard of in Topeka, Kansas, five and a half years ago. Address is wanted for division of property, one-third of which is his. Write Mrs.

Digitized by Google

Amanda Kutzleb, R. F. D. 4, box 44, Leavenworth, Kansas.

Ernest Montgomery, last heard of at Deposit, N. Y., please communicate at once with Charles D. Montgomery, 2516 North Hermitage avenue, Chicago, Ill.

C. C. Bishop, last heard from at Redding, Cal., on August 15, or any one knowing his whereabouts, communicate with his brother, R. H. Bishop, Ardmore, Mo.

Will Marshal Fonda, or any one knowing his address, correspond with Samuel Ofen, 91 Bank street, New London, Conn. Was last heard of in Albany, N. Y.

John S. Daveler, last heard of in Salt Lake City, or any one knowing his whereabouts, communicate with his mother, Mrs. Margaret Graeff, 721 Marietta avenue, Lancaster, Pa.

The secretary receiving the card of M. M. Danford, formerly of Springfield, Ill., or any one knowing his whereabouts, is requested to immediately notify Mrs. M. M. Danford, 123 East Reynolds street, Springfield, Ill.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Any secretary receiving card No. 104016, issued to William Ward by Jersey City Union No. 94, is requested to hold same and notify K. M. Forbes, 91 Belmont avenue, Jersey City, N. J.

Card No. 102003, issued to H. G. Heidelburg by Grass Valley (Cal.) Union, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to G. H. Minifie, Nevada City, Cal.

Card No. 79745, issued to J. W. Connor by Dayton Union No. 57, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to William Hudoff, 434 Forest avenue, Dayton, Ohio.

Card No. 77760, issued to Charles Larson by Superior Union No. 163, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to O. A. Digle, care Telegram, Superior, Wis.

Card No. 100789, issued to Ed Thayer by South McAlester Union No. 565, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to D. C. Lester, box 73 South McAlester, I. T.

Honorable withdrawal card, issued to C. H. Packard by Everett (Wash.) Union No. 410, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found, please return to E. Marcuson, 1418 Pacific avenue, Everett, Wash.

Card No. 99339, issued to W. J. Dickson by Toronto Union No. 91, September 2, 1905, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to Thomas C. Vodden, box 211, Toronto, Ont.

Card No. 99354, issued to Robert Grant by Toronto Union No. 91, October 18, 1905, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to Thomas C. Vodden, box 211, Toronto, Ont.

Card No. 93095, issued to Robert Sterling by Pawtucket Union No. 212, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to Willis H. Bussey, 106 West avenue, Pawtucket, R. I.

Card No. 103644, issued to John Brackenridge by Atlantic City Union No. 377, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found, this card should be returned to Frank Kay, 26 Mt. Vernon avenue, Atlantic City, N. J.

Any local within one hundred miles of New York City, having issued a traveling card o Charles Oakley since last March, or any local having his name on its membership list, please notify Peekskill Union No. 269.

Card No. 86390, issued to B. A. Smith (known as Ben Ali) by Vincennes Union No. 395, has been lost, presumably, and a duplicate issued. Smith worked in St. Paul in September, immediately after leaving Vincennes, and President T. F. Thomas wrote that he had card deposited by Smith. If the above card can be located, together with complete facts hinging upon affairs in St. Paul, please communicate with J. C. Mayes, 314 South Third street, Vincennes, Ind., under seal.

Card No. 98474, issued to D. Ferguson, on October 16, 1905, by Portland (Ore.) Union, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to Lon DeYarmond, care Oregonian, Portland, Ore.

Card No. 88398, issued to C. G. Norris by Terre Haute Union No. 76, July 18, 1905, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to John S. Edmunds, 1132 South Third street, Terre Haute, Ind.

Secretaries are requested to look out for card No. 101990, issued October 21, 1905, to A. H. Blackwood by Greensboro No. 397. If presented, this card should be taken up and returned to W. P. Turner, box 432, Greensboro, N. C.

Card No. 99601, issued to J. F. Aughinbaugh June 29, 1905, by Columbia Union No. 101, has been lost and a duplicate issued. If found or presented for deposit, return to G. G. Seibold, 423-425 G street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Card No. 102699, issued to Guy S. Honeywell by Topeka Union No. 121, has been lost and a duplicate issued. The original card, if presented for deposit, or found, should be returned to Albert Griffin, 321 Kansas avenue, Topeka, Kansas.

Card No. 102263, issued to J. C. Daw on November 6, 1905, by Worcester No. 165, has been lost and a duplicate issued. The original card, if found or presented for deposit, should be returned to M. F. Crotty, box 176, Worcester, Mass.

Card No. 102697, issued to Otis Weaver by Topeka No. 121, has been lost and a duplicate issued. The original card, if found or presented for deposit, should be taken up and returned to Albert Griffin, 321 Kansas avenue, Topeka, Kansas.

Card No. 84926, issued to F. W. McIntyre by Seattle (Wash.) Union No. 202, on September 21, 1905, has been lost and a duplicate issued. The original card, if found or presented for deposit, should be returned to H. W. Peak, box 556, Seattle, Wash.

THE DEATH ROLL.

ALDEN, ALBERT E.—At Gloversville, N. Y., November 11, 1905, of bowel trouble. Age 35 years.

AYCOCK, J. H.—At Fort Worth, Texas, April 13, 1905, of paralysis. Age 46 years.

BARLOW, JOHN—At Roxbury, Mass., October 17, 1905, of blood poisoning. Age 50 years.

BEYERLE, WILLIAM G.—At Newark, N. J., November 9, 1905, of concussion of the brain. Age 41 years.

BOOTH, CHARLES H.—At Boston, Mass., October 19, 1905, of heart disease. Age 75 years.

BREEN, EDWARD P.—At New York, N. Y., November 4, 1905, of phthisis. Age 40 years.

BRYAN, ROBERT B.—At Chickasha, I. T., November 10, 1905, of consumption. Age 24 years.

CANNON, THOMAS B.—At Yonkers, N. Y., September 9, 1905, of tuberculosis. Age 56 years.

CARROLL, JAMES P.—At Sacramento, Cal., November 5, 1905, of phthisis. Age 34 years.

CHAMBERS, JOE—At Williamsport, Pa., October 18, 1905, of diabetes. Age 35 years.

CLARK, SAMUEL H.—At Albany, N. Y., November 1, 1905, of heart failure. Age 62 years.

COEN, FRED E.—At Rochester, N. Y., October 23, 1905, of pulmonary hemorrhage. Age 37 years.

CONATY, THOMAS J.—At Taunton, Mass., October 12, 1905, of nephritis. Age 33 years.

COUCH, JOHN B.—At New York, N. Y., November 11, 1905, of tuberculosis. Age 51 years.

CRUMRIN, ARTHUR—At Chicago, Ill., September 27, 1905, of consumption. Age 48 years.

DALTON, OSCAR—At Dallas, Texas, October 31, 1905, of paralysis. Age 59 years.

Digitized by Google

D'Elia, E. H.—At Chicago, Ill., October 17, 1905, of heart disease. Age 35 years.

Dison, John T.—At Atlanta, Ga., October 30, 1905, of dropsy. Age 45 years.

Donovan, H. J.—At Batavia, N. Y., October 21, 1905, of typhoid fever. Age 22 years.

Dryden, D. P.—At Portland, Ore., October 30, 1905, of apoplexy. Age 55 years.

Foltz, Louis—At New York, N. Y., October 31, 1905, of phthisis. Age 33 years.

Frothingham, Edward—At Scranton, Pa., November 8, 1905, accidental. Age 36 years.

Garrick, William—At Chicago, Ill., October 13, 1905, of paralysis. Age 41 years.

Lincoln, A. S.—At Salinas, Cal., November 10, 1905, of tuberculosis. Age 22 years.

Maihot, Charles—At Montreal, P. Q., September 22, 1905, of diabetes. Age 57 years.

Mara, William—At New York, N. Y., November 5, 1905, of fracture of skull. Age 37 years.

McEwen, J.—At Brooklyn, N. Y., October 19, 1905, of pneumonia. Age 64 years.

McGovern, T. J.—At Chicago, Ill., September 21, 1905, of consumption. Age 48 years.

Morris, Thomas M.—At Seattle, Wash., October 16, 1905, of heart failure. Age 38 years.

Painchaud, Henry—At Toledo, Ohio, November 5, 1905, of tuberculosis. Age 29 years.

Potter, John—At Bellevue, Ohio, October 28, 1905, of paralysis. Age 62 years.

Rasch, F. C.—At New York, N. Y., October 22, 1905, of nephritis. Age 34 years.

Schuele, Theodore—At Columbus, Ohio, October 13, 1905, of atrophy of liver. Age 55 years.

Stindle, Alois B.—At Atchison, Kan., November 12, 1905, of tuberculosis. Age 40 years.

Valdez, F. B.—At El Paso, Texas, October 15, 1905; accidental. Age 28 years.

DONATIONS TO THE CUMMINGS MEMORIAL FUND.

The following is a list of the contributions to the Cummings memorial fund from October 21 to November 21, 1905:

October 21, 1905—Amount in fund	$12,206	35
27, Mobile, Ala.		50
228, Norwood, Mass.	24	00
364, Coshocton, Ohio	21	00
2, Chicago (Ill.) Mailers	5	00
Total	$12,256	85

Respectfully submitted,

J. W. Bramwood, Secretary-Treasurer.

All contributions should be sent to J. W. Bramwood, secretary-treasurer, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind., who has been designated as custodian of the fund.

CHARTERS ISSUED AND SURRENDERED.

ISSUED.

Charles City (Iowa) No. 667—Lillian M. Henry, Carrie B. McCloud, Dora E. Ames, Charles J. Frenske, O. W. Lange, A. C. Fitkin, C. D. Torrence.

SURRENDERED.

Elkhart (Ind.) No. 266, Newburyport (Mass.) No. 423, Selma (Ala.) No. 440, Nebraska City (Neb.) No. 462, Greensburg (Pa.) No. 575, Mitchell (S. D.) No. 605, Dover (N. H.) No. 627, Berwick and Bloomsburg (Pa.) N. 639, Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) No. 647.

UNIONS IN ARREARS NOVEMBER 25.

Section 1, article ix, of the constitution, requires that: "International dues for each month shall be collected by subordinate unions and transmitted to the secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union before the twentieth of the succeeding month." Under this law the October per capita of all unions was due at headquarters not later than November 20. The following unions were delinquent on November 25, having failed to make their returns.

In this connection attention is directed to section 7, article vi, of the by-laws, which is as follows:

"Section 7. No funeral-benefit claim shall be allowed unless the deceased was possessed of a current working card at the time of his death, nor shall a funeral-benefit claim be allowed if, at the time of death, the union of which deceased was a member is in arrears for per capita tax to the International Union."

3, Cincinnati.
21, San Francisco.
26, Petersburg.
80, Kansas City.
96, Glens Falls.
97, Peru.
105, Goldfield.
109, Pittsfield.
110, Union Hill.
131, New York Bohemian.
133, London.
147, Ashland.
153, Meridian.
178, Geneva.
190, Omaha.
221, San Diego.
222, Montgomery.
225, McKeesport.
226, Vancouver.
257, Lisbon.
279, Alexandria.
293, Pensacola.
294, Waukegan.
296, Lindsay.
297, Concord.
307, New Brunswick.
309, Columbus.
313, Texarkana.
317, Woodstock.
343, Fort Scott.
345, Olean.
357, Parkersburg.
360, Menominee.
366, Berlin.
367, Globe.
373, Durango.
383, Martin's Ferry.
404, Tyler.
414, Marshalltown.
422, Mayaquez.
430, Baker City.
431, Manitowoc.
436, Clarksville.
437, Franklin.
445, Oswego.
460, Chatham.
478, San Juan.
480, Tiffin.
485, Fitzgerald.
486, Gloucester.
489, Livingston.
490, Shawnee.
491, Pocatello.
497, Alliance.
501, Moscow.
502, Crookston.
504, Astoria.
505, Clinton.
513, De Soto.
517, Gadsden.
519, Winchester.
520, Mattoon.
527, Oelwein.
528, Eugene.
529, Norwalk.
530, Eau Claire.
534, Allentown.
535, Bessemer.
537, Creston.
550, Windsor.
554, Hinton.
563, Harrisburg.
564, Mankato.
571, Chickasha.
572, Marshall.
579, St. Hyacinthe.
580, Marion.
591, Pekin.
592, Fort Collins.
594, Morris.
600, Petaluma.
604, Edmonton.
607, Millville.
611, Reno.
614, North Yakima.
617, Wallace.
621, Mayfield
622, Millinocket.
636, Manila.
631, Idaho Falls.
637, Portsmouth.
640, Berlin.
646, Denton.
650, Long Beach-San Pedro.
654, Aberdeen.

MAILERS.

7, Kansas City.
11, Elmira.
13, Pittsburg.
14, Detroit.
15, St. Joseph.
22, Providence.
24, Buffalo.
26, Albany.

NEWSPAPER WRITERS.

10, Montreal.

Said the boarder: "Dear Madam, I wish
You would put some health food on my dish.
I am happy to say
That I always eat hay—
I was born up in Battle Creek, Mich."
—Saturday Evening Post.

Digitized by Google

UNION PRINTERS' HOME.

The following is a record of the admissions and departures for the month of October:

ADMITTED.

947—E. G. Fisbeck, Cincinnati, No. 3; age 26 years; admitted October 6, 1905.

946—Ed Blair, Cincinnati No. 3; age 57 years; admitted October 6, 1905.

950—A. L. Stagg, New York No. 6; age 45 years; admitted October 7, 1905.

943—W. L. Scott, Kansas City No. 80; age 47 years; admitted October 9, 1905.

934—A. Herman, New Orleans No. 17; age 34 years; admitted October 10, 1905.

948—Arthur J. Lane, Toronto No. 91; age 36 years; admitted October 11, 1905.

945—E. O'Halloran, Trenton No. 71; age 52 years; admitted October 14, 1905.

953—John A. Moore, New York No. 6; age 28 years; admitted October 14, 1905.

954—Thomas Conklin, New York No. 6; age 31 years; admitted October 14, 1905.

951—John T. Leddy, New York No. 6; age 39 years; admitted October 14, 1905.

952—Richard Collins, New York No. 6; age 43 years; admitted October 14, 1905.

955—W. H. Massengill, Palestine No. 472; age 34 years; admitted October 22, 1905.

956—C. F. Dygert, Little Falls No. 386; age 26 years; admitted October 27, 1905.

882—William T. Mirick, Minneapolis No. 42; age 56 years; admitted October 29, 1905.

VACATED.

907—Raymond Sommer, Newark No. 103; age 30 years; admitted June 6, 1905; vacated October 11, 1905; improved.

943—W. L. Scott, Kansas City No. 80; age 47 years; admitted October 9, 1905; vacated October 13, 1905; wanted to go home.

921—C. J. Wilson, Denver No. 49; age 30 years; admitted July 21, 1905; vacated October 17, 1905; able to work.

DIED.

954—Thomas Conklin, New York No. 6; age 31 years; admitted October 14, 1905; died October 22, 1905.

Number of inmates October 1..... 140
Number of inmates October 31..... 150
Average number for the month..... 145

CHARLES DEACON, Superintendent.

APPLICATIONS FROM UNORGANIZED TOWNS.

Artesian, S. D.—Fred E. Dowdell, age 22 years; at trade five years; learned trade in Artesian, S. D.; worked in Los Angeles and Catalina Island, Cal.

Moultrie, Ga.—J. H. Bailey, jr., age 23 years; at trade seven years; learned trade in Camilla, Ga.; worked in Vienna and Thomasville, Ga.

Pana, Ill.—J. Sim Hodges, age 21 years; at trade six years; learned trade in Vincennes, Ind.

Silverton, Colo.—J. Elmer Guy, age 33 years; at trade twenty-two years; learned trade in Denver, Colo.; worked in Denver, Telluride and Silverton, Colo.

Walkerton, Ont.—William A. Schnurr, age 23 years; at trade seven years; learned trade in Walkerton, Ont.

Waverly, Iowa.—J. B. Quimby, age 39 years; at trade twenty-two years; learned trade in Waverly.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

12, Butte, Mont. (Newspaper Writers)—R. G. Lineberger, worked in Pueblo and Denver, Colo. F. Rooney, worked in Brooklyn, N. Y. Don O. Noel, worked in Des Moines, Iowa and Chicago, Ill. Arthur Wonsetler, worked in Kansas City, Mo., Omaha, Neb., St. Paul., Minn., and Denver, Colo.

17, New Orleans, La.—J. Q. Folks, age 36 years; at trade ten years; learned trade at Nunnemaker's, Louisville, Ky. George P. Krupp, age 22 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in New Orleans, La. V. T. Lowrie, age 28 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in Kansas City, Mo. D. C. Silve, age 22 years; at trade five years; learned trade in New Orleans. J. M. Werner, age 22 years; at trade seven years; learned trade in New Orleans.

20, Nashville, Tenn.—D. K. Young, age 23 years; at trade eight years; worked in Sparta, Tenn. W. J. Boylin, age 55 years; at trade thirty years; formerly a member of Nashville Union. Carroll R. Skinner, age 24 years; at trade five years; worked in Madison, Wis.

23, Milwaukee, Wis.—Sam Zacharwitz, age 20 years; at trade four years; learned trade in Russia.

32, Norfolk, Va.—B. J. Curtis, served time in Franklin, Va.

54, Raleigh, N. C.—H. I. McDuffie, formerly a member of Raleigh Union.

82, Colorado Springs, Colo.—Ed C. Starrett, age 24 years; at trade four and a half years; worked in Lancaster and Shelbyville, Mo.

84, San Bernardino, Cal.—Dexter Brown, age 37 years; at trade twenty years; formerly a member of Dubuque (Ia.) Union; worked in Americus, Ga., Ventura, Glendora and Huntington Park, Cal.

87, Houston, Texas—O. G. Gilbert, age 24 years; at trade seven years; learned trade in Morgan Printing Company office, Austin, Texas. Wayne B. Davis, age 19 years; at trade five years; learned trade in Goliad, Texas; always worked in Texas.

91, Toronto, Ont.—W. E. Hunter, age 22 years; at trade six years; learned trade in Brampton. George Boone, age 33 years; at trade twenty-two years; learned trade in England. R. H. Pearse, age 20 years; at trade five and a half years; learned trade in Campbellford, Ont.; worked in Stratford, Ont. W. S. Harris, age 26 years; at trade twelve years; learned trade in England. William Thompson, age 39 years; at trade twenty-two years; learned trade in England.

101, Washington, D. C.—J. T. Cowen, age 27 years; member of the London Society of Compositors up to 1900; claims to have been out of the business since. Bernard Schwartz, age 38 years; worked in Germany and England and New York, N. Y.; never made application before.

115, Salt Lake City, Utah—John Olsen, jr., age 26 years; at trade fourteen years; learned trade in Willows, Cal.; worked in Davisville, Cal., and Evanston, Wyo.; never worked in a union town.

118, Des Moines, Iowa—William A Hutton, age 45 years; at trade twenty years; learned trade in Webster City, Iowa; worked in Minneapolis, Minn. Eugene H. Grafton, age 22 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in Cambridge, Iowa; worked in Butte and Missoula, Mont., and Story City, Iowa; never belonged to union. Earl Gaylord, age 25 years; at trade five years; learned trade in Atlantic, Iowa; never belonged to union.

130, Halifax, N. S.—George Levy, age 21 years; at trade five years; learned trade in Halifax, N. S., and Winnipeg, Man. Donald McKenzie, age 32 years; at trade fourteen years; learned trade in Charlottetown, P. E. I.; worked in Amherst and New Glasgow, N. S.; never worked in an organized town. J. Edgar Mason, age 22 years; at trade six years; learned trade in Halifax. Gordon Colter, age 20 years; at trade six years; learned trade in Halifax. R. N. Gammon, age 26 years; at trade nine years; learned trade in Halifax.

134, Paducah, Ky.—R. L. Burnett, of Mayfield,

Digitized by Google

Ky.; at trade ten years; worked in Fulton and Mayfield, Ky., and Charleston, Mo. A. T. Barnes, of Metropolis, Ill.; at trade eighteen years; never worked in a union town. Scott McCarty; at trade four and a half years; worked in Chicago, Ill.

137, Johnstown, Pa.—H. J. Champion, at trade four years in England.

138, Austin, Texas—Sam McCulloch, age 26 years; at trade three years; learned trade in Austin; for apprentice membership. J. H. Sasse, age 19 years; at trade three years; learned trade in Taylor, Texas; for apprentice membership.

148, Wichita, Kan.—Estella Barnes, age 26 years; at trade seven years; learned trade in Wichita.

175, Pueblo, Colo.—James S. Martin, age 31 years; learned trade in Muscotah, Kan.; worked in Wellington, Kan., and Hennessey, Okla. F. A. Disbrow, formerly a member of Pueblo Union, but allowed card to lapse while working in country towns. Joseph Francisco, age 30 years; learned trade in San Veta, Cal.; worked in Durango and Saguache, Colo.

179, Leadville, Colo.—Edward Lunny, age 25 years; at trade six years; learned trade in Leadville.

180, Sioux City, Iowa—William E. Richardson, age 29 years; at trade nine years; learned trade in country towns in Iowa; worked three weeks in an open shop in Louisville, Ky., several years ago.

202, Seattle, Wash.—J. E. McDonald, age 27 years; learned trade in Peabody, Kan.; worked in Lawrence, Kan.

206, Sedalia. Mo.—D. A. Rochford, age 36 years; at trade fourteen years; worked in Sedgwick and Osage City, Kan.; has not been working at the business for the past five years.

207, Eureka, Cal.—Miss Minnie Bahr, also known as Minnie Roper, age 30 years; at trade five years; learned trade in Los Angeles, Cal.; worked in Dawson City and Nome, Alaska.

211, Oshkosh, Wis.—W. W. Cook, age 25 years; at trade ten years; learned trade in Lansing, Mich.; worked in Fond du Lac and Berlin, Wis. Mrs. A. L. Brown, age 38 years; at trade five years; learned trade in Neenah, Wis.; worked in Menasha, Wis.

222, Montgomery, Ala.—D. O. Secrest, age 27 years; formerly a member of Atlanta (Ga.) Union, but allowed card to lapse while not working at the business.

231, San Jose, Cal.—B. F. Stead, age 24 years; at trade six years; learned trade in Canton, Minn.; worked in Granite, Okla., and Jackson, Cal.

243. Hutchinson, Kan.—T. E. Palmer, age 32 years; at trade fifteen years; learned trade in Kingman, Kan.; always worked in country towns. Fred D. Rosenquest, age 46 years; at trade twenty-nine years. Has worked in Mankato and Heron Lake, Minn., Webster City, Iowa, Decatur, Mich., and Kingman, Kansas.

249, Fort Smith, Ark.—Allan M. Schaumloffel, has worked in Rockville, Mo., and Tulsa, I. T.

271, Boise, Idaho—John F. Baird, age 34 years; at trade nine years; learned trade in Cedar Rapids, Neb. Avery C. Moore, age 30 years; at trade four years; learned trade in Missoula, Mont. F. M. Judson, age 23 years; at trade seven years; learned trade in Xenia, Ohio. F. N. Judson, age 23 years; at trade seven years.

280, Marietta, Ohio—D. W. Custer, age 40 years; at trade twenty years; learned trade in Fairview, W. Va. C. W. Beach, age 34 years; at trade eleven years; learned trade in Jeffersonville, Ind.

303, Cleburne, Texas—George P. Richardson, at trade fifteen years; learned trade in Texas towns; formerly a member of Waco Union.

312, Las Vegas, N. M.—H. E. Blake, age 36 years; worked in New Mexico; formerly a member of Las Vegas Union.

329, Waterbury, Conn.—Henry Gerrard, age 33 years; at trade twenty years; learned business in Torrington, Conn.; worked in Hartford, Conn., and Los Angeles, Cal. Howell J. Griffiths, age 30 years; learned trade in Ansonia, Conn.; has worked in Derby, Conn., and New York, N. Y.

333, Denison, Texas—E. J. Gaines, age 21 years; learned trade in Paris, Texas; worked in Nashville, Tenn.; never applied for admission before.

339, Beaumont, Texas—Charles M. Church, age 24 years; at trade twelve years; learned trade in Weatherford, Texas; made application to Dallas Union, but petition was not presented, because unaccompanied by proper fee.

363, Jackson, Miss.—Louis H. Zehnder, age 40 years; at trade twenty-five years; learned trade in Jackson, Miss.; formerly a member of Memphis and St. Louis Unions. D. L. Newman, age 30 years; at trade twelve years; learned trade in Magnolia, Miss.; never worked in a union town.

372, Clarksburg, W. Va.—Floyd Sample, age 30 years; at trade ten years; learned business in the office of the Index, at Fairmount, W. Va.

377, Atlantic City, N. J.—J. W. Schraedley, age 24 years; learned trade in Middletown, Pa.; has worked in Hagerstown, Md.

398, Billings, Mont.—Fred H. Averill, age 21 years; at trade six years; learned trale in Lewiston, Mont.

403, Tulsa, I. T.—Ralph L. Wood, age 25 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in Morrillton, Ark.; worked in Warrensburg, Mo., and Okmulgee, Okla.

408, Ottawa, Kan.—Harry Hedrick, age 43 years; at trade twenty-six years; learned trade in Leavenworth, Kan.; worked in Leavenworth, Kan., and Colorado Springs, Colo. Ed C. Gilliatt, age 21 years; at trade four years; learned trade in Fort Scott, Kan.; worked in Iola, Kan.

412, Kokomo, Ind.—John Heinsen, age 23 years; at trade nine years; learned trade in Michigan City; has worked in Chicago.

424, Orange, N. J.—William Baxter; learned trade on Evening News, Newark, N. J.; left business when machines were introduced in that office, and was suspended by No. 103 for non-payment of dues; has not worked at trade since.

425, Canon City, Colo.—H. M. Mason, age 21 years; at trade eight years; learned business at Cambridge, Iowa; has worked in Nevada, Ames and Story City, Iowa.

426, Bristol, Tenn.—G. E. Taylor, age 27 years; at trade ten years; learned trade in Big Stone Gap, Va.; worked in Scranton, Pa.

432, Stillwater, Minn.—Margaret J. Foley, age 22 years; at trade three years; learned trade in Stillwater; for apprentice membership.

435, Bluffton, Ind.—Lawrence Fair, age 22 years; at trade three and a half years; learned trade in Bluffton.

448, La Crosse, Wis.—Stephen S. Cycmanick, age 23 years; at trade three years; learned trade in La Crosse.

449, Calgary, Alberta, N. W. T.—Mary Irvine, age 36 years; at trade thirteen years; learned business in St. John, N. B.; has worked in Sussex, N. B. G. G. Meikle, age 50 years; at trade thirty-four years; formerly a member of Winnipeg Union. A. J. Buckley, age 29 years; at trade seven years; learned business in Park Hill, Ont.; has worked in Fermie, B. C. Fred Kirkpatrick, age 20 years; at trade four years; learned business in Forest and Fermie, B. C.

455, Owosso-Corunna, Mich.—Ray V. R. Birdsall, age 24 years; at trade five years; learned trade in Chesaning, Mich.

461, Cairo, Ill.—Frank Kirkpatrick, age 20 years; at trade four years; learned business in Coulterville, Ill.; has worked in Newton and Sparta, Ill., and St. Louis, Mo.

467, Dawson, Y. T.—Thomas P. Dudley, age thirty-eight years; at trade twenty-two years; formerly a member of the union, depositing San Francisco traveling card with Honolulu No. 37, in 1903.

Digitized by Google

471, Sherman, Texas—H. Frank Miller, age 38 years; at trade twenty-seven years; learned trade in Paris, Texas; worked in Pawnee, Okla.; formerly a member, but allowed card to lapse.

481, Iola, Kan.—J. S. Burnham, learned trade in Wymore, Neb.; worked in Potsdam, N. Y., and Beatrice, Neb. Henry F. Broadbent, learned trade in Corydon, Iowa; worked in Elsmore and Anthony, Kan.

507, Princeton, N. J.—W. A. S. Housel, age 29 years; at trade fourteen years; learned trade in Belmar, N. J.; worked in Spring Lake and Asbury Park, N. J. Clara L. Maire, age 27 years; at trade ten years; learned trade in Asbury Park, N. J.; worked in Belmar, Princeton and Spring Lake, N. J.

518, Marion, Ill.—Frank W. Bahr, age 32 years; at trade fourteen years; learned trade in Chester, Ill.

522, Morristown, N. J.—George L. Morrell, age 56 years; at trade forty years; learned trade in Newark, N. J.; worked in Newton, Washington, Rockaway and Bernardsville, N. J.; formerly a member of Newark (N. J.) Union.

525, Benton Harbor, Mich.—S. A. Ritchie, age 41 years; at trade twenty-five years; formerly a member of Chicago Union, but allowed card to lapse.

531, Hudson, N. Y.—Charles T. Richstien, formerly a member of Albany (N. Y.) Union.

533, Huntington, W. Va.—H. A. Evans, at trade five years; learned trade in Williamson, W. Va.; worked in towns in West Virginia and Kentucky. Nelle Hagaman, served apprenticeship in local offices.

543, Watsonville, Cal.—C. E. Fisk, age 26 years; at trade six years; learned trade in Summerland, Cal.; worked in Arroys Grande and Monterey, Cal.; made application to Los Angeles Union as a two-thirder, but was unable to be present to be initiated.

550, Windsor, Ont.—M. Elizabeth Dickinson, age 25 years; at trade ten years; learned trade in Port Arthur, Ont.; worked in North Bay, Ont.

559, San Antonio, Texas—J. E. Lords, age 25 years; at trade seven years; learned trade in Bay City, Texas; has worked in Brenham and Taylor, Texas.

599, Herrin, Ill.—Lulu Scott Corbett, age 20 years; at trade four and a half years; learned trade in Dawson, Ky.; worked in Princeton, Ky.

603, Fort Dodge, Iowa—C. D. Whitney, at trade eleven years; learned trade in Portland, Mich.; worked in Ionia, Mich., and Cherokee, Iowa.

617, Wallace, Idaho—J. O. Denham, age 33 years; at trade twelve years; learned trade in Princeton, Ill.; worked in Elgin and Belvidere, Ill.

618, Watertown, Wis.—John H. Perkins, age 20 years; learned trade in Lake Mills, Wis.

628, Somerville, N. J.—Leander F. Stryker, age 29 years; at trade fourteen years; learned trade in High Bridge, N. J.; worked in Mt. Kisko, N. Y., Flemington, N. J., and Ware, Mass.

641, Ennis, Texas—Byron Rooker, for apprenticeship membership.

653, Jamestown, N. D.—O. T. Mattison, age 38 years; at trade fourteen years; worked in Omaha, Neb., St. Paul, Minn., Bismarck and Jamestown, N. D.

660, Sac City and Storm Lake, Iowa—J. Lester North, age 28 years; at trade eighteen years; learned trade in Storm Lake. Inex Cory, age 22 years; at trade eight years; learned trade in Early and Sac City, Iowa. C. V. Nelson, age 22 years; at trade nine years in Storm Lake, Iowa. Orville Peterson, age 20 years; at trade four years in Storm Lake, Iowa.

661, Jonesboro, Ark.—C. A. Boessel, age 28 years; learned trade in West Union, Iowa; worked in Deer Creek, Okla., and Arkansas City, Kan.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Charleston, S. C.—President, R. B. Britton; first vice-president, J. J. Morris; second vice-president, W. H. Miller; recording secretary, J. L. Kiley; financial secretary, A. D. Sassard; conductor, J. H. Wincey; auditing committee, W. H. Miller, M. Frank, C. P. Mims.

Cleburne, Texas—President, F. N. Graves; vice-president, Clyde Buchanan; secretary-treasurer, Lonnie Adams; sergeant-at-arms, E. Sharpe; executive committee, E. Sharpe, U. A. Anderson, W. L. Howell; relief committee, A. D. Wells, W. F. Black, R. C. McKie.

Eureka, Cal.—President, C. A. Burtnett; vice-president, E. B. Kain; secretary, R. H. Conklin; treasurer, W. L. Lambert; executive committee, W. H. Jewett, H. D. Zook, J. L. Reed.

Frankfort, Ky.—President, F. J. Freckman; vice-president, F. A. Smith; secretary-treasurer, J. D. O'Connor; sergeant-at-arms, T. A. Watts.

Grand Junction, Colo.—President, R. M. Horn; recording secretary, Ben Rea; secretary-treasurer, Rodney Jay.

Hagerstown, Md.—President, J. Frank Futterer; vice-president, J. C. O'Neal; corresponding and financial secretary, W. S. Boward; auditing committee, Fred Thomas, Clyde Snyder, J. C. O'Neal; delegates to central labor council, C. E. Gray, J. F. Futterer, J. C. O'Neal, Dudley Brewer, A. J. Zinkand.

Knoxville, Tenn.—President, J. J. Henry; vice-president, H. C. Collins; financial secretary, Robert Smith; recording secretary, D. L. Million; sergeant-at-arms, J. T. Barnett; delegates to central labor union, W. M. Pryse, Robert Smith, H. B. Price, T. J. Smith, J. J. Henry.

New Castle, Pa.—President, W. R. English; vice-president, Frank S. Cripps; secretary-treasurer, Elmer S. Mills; recording secretary, P. S. Evans; trustees, John Quinn, C. C. Fulkerson, A. R. Kingsbury.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—President, Arthur C. Hanson; vice-president, W. R. Green; recording secretary, George E. Loch; financial-corresponding secretary, J. J. Dwyer; treasurer, W. H. Myers; sergeant-at-arms, H. Moshier.

Princeton, N. J.—President, John H. Stillwell; vice-president, William P. Cox; secretary-treasurer, Adam C. Peters; recording secretary, Elmer W. Rousseau; sergeant-at-arms, Frank H. Leach.

Quebec, Can.—President, Eugene J. Cote; vice-president, Joseph Dempsey; financial secretary, Alfred Larose; secretary, William Garns; treasurer, Ed Little.

Sac City and Storm Lake, Iowa.—President, C. W. Dowden; vice-president, E. W. Bethards; secretary-treasurer, G. M. Green; recording secretary, E. P. Ward; sergeant-at-arms, D. H. Roush.

San Jose, Cal.—President, J. J. Craig; vice-president, L. B. Littlefield; secretary-treasurer, J. W. Bowman; sergeant-at-arms, M. J. O'Brien; executive committee, L. B. Littlefield, J. G. Miller, James Ballantyne; eight-hour committee, William Groom, R. A. Fry, F. C. Porter; label committee, James Marr, C. F. Hoke, E. R. Botsford; delegates to federated trades, R. L. Telfer, F. C. Porter, M. J. O'Brien, J. W. Bowman.

Stockton, Cal.—President, W. H. Stanley; vice-president, C. H. Bronaugh; secretary-treasurer, H. S. Hornage; sergeant-at-arms, H. J. Von Detten; executive committee, J. D. Woodbridge, W. C. Mayne, T. W. Lowe; auditing committee, D. J. Matthews, W. H. Atkins, F. M. Gum; delegates to allied trades council, W. H. Atkins, H. J. Von Detten, Harry Bray; delegates to central labor council, W. W. Ellis, J. H. Haskins.

St. Thomas, Ont.—President, F. E. Walker; vice-president, J. Smith; financial secretary, R. Stewart; recording secretary, R. N. Fowler; treasurer, W. Stewart; sergeant-at-arms, T. Evans.

Warren, Pa.—President, R. Forbs; vice-president, R. O. Brigham; secretary, W. S. Pittman; treasurer, W. L. Askin; executive committee, George Langdale, Elof Nelson, Ralph Woodruff.

Digitized by Google

Financial Statement

REPORT OF SECRETARY-TREASURER.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., November 20, 1905.

To Subordinate Unions:

The following is a report of the receipts from per capita tax, supplies, etc., from October 22 to date, and the accounts herewith presented should correspond with the books of the respective unions to which they are credited. Secretaries are requested to compare the accounts printed herein with their books, and should error or omission be found, notice of same should be promptly forwarded to this office.

RECEIPTS.

1, Indianapolis—For Sept. and Oct.	$348	40
For supplies	1	80
For eight-hour assessment	228	50
2, Philadelphia—For October	400	00
For supplies	3	00
4, Albany—For October	162	00
For supplies	4	50
5, Columbus—For October	100	00
For eight-hour assessment	177	19
6, New York—For October	2,440	00
For eight-hour assessment	3,100	00
7, Pittsburg—For October	192	00
For supplies	1	50
For eight-hour assessment	108	00
8, St. Louis—For October	418	00
For supplies	6	00
9, Buffalo—For October	130	00
For supplies	6	00
10, Louisville—For October	96	40
For supplies	1	50
For Journal subscriptions	3	75
For eight-hour assessment	110	50
11, Memphis—For October	68	00
For eight-hour assessment	324	00
12, Baltimore—For October	212	00
For supplies	2	80
13, Boston—For October	560	00
14, Harrisburg—For October	30	40
For supplies		35
For 46 copies Journal	4	60
15, Rochester—For October	144	00
For supplies	1	50
17, New Orleans—For October	121	60
For eight-hour assessment	149	50
18, Detroit—For October	173	60
For supplies	2	50
19, Elmira—For October	15	60
For eight-hour assessment	24	00
20, Nashville—For October	76	00
For eight-hour assessment	895	85
21, San Francisco—For September	341	60
For eight-hour assessment	2,695	53
22, Dubuque—For October	18	80
For eight-hour assessment	24	00
23, Milwaukee—For October	150	00
For supplies	2	35
For eight-hour assessment	1,328	19
24, Jackson—For October	4	80
For eight-hour assessment	3	00
25, Baton Rouge—For October	6	80
For eight-hour assessment	40	70
26, Petersburg—From June to Sept.	11	20
For supplies		15
27, Mobile—For September and October	50	00
For supplies		70
For Cummings memorial		50
For eight-hour assessment	26	50
28, Galveston—For October	33	20
For eight-hour assessment	209	63
29, Peoria—For October	37	60
For supplies		35
30, St. Paul—For October	128	00
31, Fond du Lac—For October	7	20
For supplies		50
32, Norfolk—For eight-hour assessment	37	50
33, Providence—For October	76	80
For supplies		65
For eight-hour assessment	67	00
34, Columbia—For October	$20	00
For eight-hour assessment	20	00
35, Evansville—For October	24	40
For eight-hour assessment	27	00
36, Oakland—For eight-hour assessment	328	60
38, Haverhill—For October	8	00
For eight-hour assessment	5	50
39, Grand Rapids—For October	58	00
For supplies	3	50
40, St. Joseph—For October	32	00
For supplies	2	00
41, Augusta—For October	13	60
42, Minneapolis—For October	115	60
For supplies	1	20
43, Charleston—For October	16	80
For eight-hour assessment	7	50
44, Rome—For October	9	60
For eight-hour assessment	8	50
45, Leavenworth—For October	8	80
For eight-hour assessment	12	50
46, Sacramento—For October	43	60
For supplies		35
For eight-hour assessment	53	50
48, Atlanta—For October	78	80
49, Denver—For October	178	40
50, Valley City—For October	35	20
For supplies		35
For eight-hour assessment	29	00
51, Lawrence—For September	20	00
For eight-hour assessment	43	66
52, Troy—For October	54	00
For eight-hour assessment	69	00
53, Cleveland—For October	234	00
For supplies	8	40
54, Raleigh—For October	23	20
For supplies		15
For eight-hour assessment	102	50
55, Syracuse—For October	101	60
For supplies		90
56, Stockton—For October	14	00
For supplies		15
57, Dayton—For October	71	60
58, Multnomah—For October	97	60
For supplies		75
For eight-hour assessment	451	30
59, Quincy—For October	24	40
60, Roanoke—For October	10	00
61, Cambridge—For October	43	60
For supplies	1	85
62, Utica—For October	59	20
For supplies		50
64, Lafayette—For October	16	40
For eight-hour assessment	23	48
65, Washoe—For Sept. and October	16	80
For eight-hour assessment	40	56
66, Portland—For October	36	00
For eight-hour assessment	32	00
68, Keokuk—For October	9	60
For supplies		20
For eight-hour assessment	10	50
69, Newark—For eight-hour assessment	50	37
70, Lancaster—For November	20	80
For eight-hour assessment	4	00
For supplies	1	50
71, Trenton—For October	38	00
For eight-hour assessment	46	50
72, Lansing—For October	33	20
For eight-hour assessment	27	00
73, Ottumwa—For October	6	00
For eight-hour assessment	8	00
74, Belleville—For October	5	60
For supplies		50
75, Burlington—For October	18	80
For supplies		20
76, Terre Haute—For October	29	20
For eight-hour assessment	38	00
For supplies	1	50
77, Erie—For October	26	80
78, Fort Wayne—For October	36	00
For eight-hour assessment	31	00
For supplies		35
79, Wheeling—For November	33	60
For eight-hour assessment	217	11

Digitized by Google

80, Kansas City—For September	$123 60
For supplies	1 50
For eight-hour assessment	497 15
81, Bay City—For October	12 40
For eight-hour assessment	14 50
82, Colorado Springs—For October	26 40
For supplies	3 50
For eight-hour assessment	152 69
83, Hebrew-American—For September	30 00
For supplies	60
84, San Bernardino—For October	9 60
For supplies	1 20
85, St. John—For October	18 40
86, Reading—For October	42 00
For eight-hour assessment	181 55
87, Houston—For October	52 40
For supplies	1 65
88, Hannibal—For October	5 60
For eight-hour assessment	8 50
89, Chattanooga—For October	32 40
For supplies	3 00
For eight-hour assessment	249 36
90, Richmond—For October	59 20
For supplies	1 50
91, Toronto—For October	321 60
For eight-hour assessment	1,987 46
For supplies	1 00
92, Little Rock—For October	43 20
93, Macon—For October	14 80
For eight-hour assessment	18 00
95, Helena—For October	14 40
For eight-hour assessment	110 98
97, Peru—For September	5 60
98, Bedford—For September and Oct.	9 20
99, Jackson—For October	28 40
For supplies	1 50
For eight-hour assessment	16 50
100, Norwich—For October	12 40
For eight-hour assessment	15 50
101, Columbia—For October	754 40
For supplies	7 50
For eight-hour assessment	1,865 00
102, Ottawa—For October	118 00
For eight-hour assessment	591 50
103, Newark—For October	112 00
For supplies	3 00
104, Birmingham—For September	40 00
105, Goldfield—For September	4 40
For eight-hour assessment	34 20
106, Madison—For October	11 20
For eight-hour assessment	6 00
107, Tri-City—For October	57 20
For eight-hour assessment	56 50
108, Hagerstown—For November	8 40
For eight-hour assessment	9 50
110, Union Hill—For September	8 00
For eight-hour assessment	20 59
112, Scranton—For October	49 20
For eight-hour assessment	50 00
113, Atchison—For October	6 80
For eight-hour assessment	4 50
114, Annapolis—For October	3 60
115, Salt Lake—For October	46 40
For eight-hour assessment	246 02
116, Kenosha—For October	4 80
For supplies	20
For eight-hour assessment	7 00
118, Des Moines—For eight-hour ass't	82 50
119, Jefferson City—For October	10 80
For supplies	20
For eight-hour assessment	13 00
121, Topeka—For October	52 40
For supplies	2 00
For eight-hour assessment	59 50
122, Kalamazoo—For October	25 60
123, Wilmington—For October	17 60
For eight-hour assessment	10 00
124, Bloomington—For October	22 40
For eight-hour assessment	17 00
125, Durham—For November	4 00
For eight-hour assessment	8 14
126, Butte—For October	33 60
For eight-hour assessment	341 50
127, Hartford—For October	31 60
For supplies	70
128, South Bend—For November	21 60
For eight-hour assessment	26 00
129, Hamilton—For September, part Oct.	32 40
130, Halifax—For October	$21 20
For supplies	1 50
For eight-hour assessment	27 00
132, Camden—For October	12 00
For eight-hour assessment	11 50
133, London—For September	25 60
134, Paducah—For October	10 00
For eight-hour assessment	17 57
For supplies	1 50
135, Oneonta—For October and Nov.	14 40
For supplies	35
For eight-hour assessment	6 00
136, Duluth—For October	35 60
For supplies	30
137, Johnstown—For October	19 20
For eight-hour assessment	20 50
138, Austin—For October	29 60
For supplies	3 55
For eight-hour assessment	29 00
139, Stratford—For October	6 40
For eight-hour assessment	4 50
140, Bismarck—For October	8 00
For eight-hour assessment	6 00
141, Williamsport—For October	24 80
For supplies	15
For eight-hour assessment	58 00
142, Olympia—For October	5 60
For eight-hour assessment	66 75
143, Danbury—For October	5 60
For eight-hour assessment	7 00
For supplies	50
144, Fresno—For eight-hour assessment	117 25
145, Jacques-Cartier—For October	66 40
146, Charleston—For October	21 60
For eight-hour assessment	20 43
147, Ashland—For July and August	5 60
148, Wichita—For October	18 80
For apprentice subscription	60
For eight-hour assessment	7 50
149, Saratoga—For October	6 80
For supplies	20
For eight-hour assessment	11 00
151, Oil City—For November	10 40
For eight-hour assessment	54 50
152, Manchester—For October	21 20
154, Ann Arbor—For October	15 20
155, Shreveport—For October	18 00
For eight-hour assessment	11 50
156, Bowling Green—For October	5 60
For eight-hour assessment	6 50
For supplies	1 50
158, Springfield—For October	13 20
For supplies	1 25
For eight-hour assessment	8 50
159, New London—For October	12 00
160, Columbia—For October	5 20
For eight-hour assessment	4 50
161, Fall River—For November	24 80
For eight-hour assessment	72 47
For supplies	6 40
162, Jacksonville—For October	22 80
For supplies	50
163, Superior—For October	10 80
For eight-hour assessment	37 75
164, Kewanee—For October	4 40
For supplies	1 50
For eight-hour assessment	21 80
165, Worcester—For October	55 20
For supplies	1 00
166, Adrian—For October	5 20
For eight-hour assessment	6 00
167, Schenectady—For October	29 60
For eight-hour assessment	37 00
168, Muskegon—For October	8 40
For supplies	20
For eight-hour assessment	7 50
169, New Albany—For October	5 60
For eight-hour assessment	12 00
170, Tacoma—For October	34 80
For eight-hour assessment	210 90
171, Elgin—For October	13 20
For eight-hour assessment	8 50
172, San Antonio—For October	41 60
173, Dallas—For September and October	118 40
174, Los Angeles—For October	127 60
For supplies	3 00
For eight-hour assessment	163 00

Digitized by Google

175, Pueblo—For October	$21	20
For eight-hour assessment	24	50
For donation, eight-hour assessm't	100	00
176, Montreal—For October	73	20
For supplies	1	50
177, Springfield—For October	50	00
For eight-hour assessment	52	00
179, Leadville—For October	4	40
For eight-hour assessment	5	50
180, Sioux City—For October	30	40
For eight-hour assessment	332	39
For supplies	1	50
181, Meadville—For October	10	40
For eight-hour assessment	11	00
182, Akron—For October	38	40
For supplies	1	50
183, Savannah—For October	7	60
For supplies		30
For eight-hour assessment	5	00
184, Cheyenne—For October	4	40
For eight-hour assessment	10	80
185, Bradford—For October	7	60
For supplies	1	90
For eight-hour assessment	12	50
186, Fargo—For October	12	00
For supplies		15
For eight-hour assessment	14	50
187, Wilkes Barre—For October	43	20
188, Waco—For October	8	80
For eight-hour assessment	9	50
189, Blue Grass—For September	8	40
For eight-hour assessment	14	00
191, Winnipeg—For October	87	20
For supplies	3	70
192, Cedar Rapids—For October	27	60
For eight-hour assessment	31	00
193, Spokane—For October	49	60
For supplies	3	50
194, Joliet—For October	29	60
For eight-hour assessment	112	85
195, Paterson—For October	32	40
For eight-hour assessment	36	50
For supplies	1	50
196, Logansport—For October	14	00
For supplies		20
197, Janesville—For October	13	20
For eight-hour assessment	1	00
198, Fort Worth—For Sept. and Oct.	63	60
199, Zanesville—For October	18	40
For supplies		35
For eight-hour assessment	43	00
200, Youngstown—For October	22	80
For eight-hour assessment	45	75
201, Victoria—For October	16	00
For eight-hour assessment	65	80
202, Seattle—For September	103	60
For eight-hour assessment	335	55
203, Bluff City—For October	15	20
For eight-hour assessment	14	50
204, Limestone City—For October	8	00
For eight-hour assessment	10	00
205, Jamestown—For October	16	00
For eight-hour assessment	63	49
206, Sedalia—For October	7	60
For eight-hour assessment	10	00
207, Eureka—For October	10	40
For eight-hour assessment	35	18
208, Cambridge—For Sept. and October	20	80
209, Lincoln—For October	48	40
For eight-hour assessment	47	00
210, Capital—For October	14	80
For eight-hour assessment	58	02
For supplies		20
211, Oshkosh—For October	10	80
For supplies		85
For eight-hour assessment	54	15
212, Pawtucket—For October	21	20
For supplies	1	85
For eight-hour assessment	22	00
213, Rockford—For October	20	80
For eight-hour assessment	16	00
For supplies	15	40
214, Pendleton—For October	6	00
For eight-hour assessment	26	70
215, Decatur—For October	21	60
For eight-hour assessment	19	00
217, Murphysboro—For November	3	60
For supplies		50
For eight-hour assessment	11	20
218, Sioux Falls—For October	$16	80
220, Columbia—For October	6	00
For supplies	1	50
221, San Diego—For September	16	80
For eight-hour assessment	25	00
222, Montgomery—For September	8	00
224, Brockton—For October	23	60
For eight-hour assessment	24	00
226, Vancouver—For September	34	00
227, Cripple Creek—For October	11	20
For eight-hour assessment	23	86
228, Norwood—For October	25	20
For supplies		35
For Cummings memorial	24	00
For eight-hour assessment	20	50
229, Crawfordsville—For October	9	20
230, Danville—For October	18	40
For eight-hour assessment	90	12
231, San Jose—For October	24	80
For eight-hour assessment	80	00
For supplies	6	00
232, Binghamton—For October	45	20
For eight-hour assessment	218	56
For supplies		50
233, Niagara Falls—For September	16	40
234, Corsicana—For October	7	20
For eight-hour assessment	6	00
235, Rahway—For October	9	60
For eight-hour assessment	46	71
236, Ogden—For October	11	20
For supplies	2	90
237, Sandusky—For Sept. and October	15	20
For supplies		20
238, Steubenville—For October	10	80
For eight-hour assessment	11	00
239, Carbondale—For eight-hour assessment	4	50
240, Altoona—For October	18	40
241, Hanover—For October	5	60
242, York—For October	19	20
243, Hutchinson—For November	10	00
For supplies		15
244, Cumberland—For October	7	20
For supplies		20
For eight-hour assessment	10	00
245, Woonsocket—For October	7	60
For supplies		20
246, Winona—For October	9	60
For eight-hour assessment	11	00
247, Swedish—For October	14	40
For supplies		80
248, Peterborough—For October	14	40
For supplies		20
For eight-hour assessment	15	50
249, Fort Smith—For October	13	20
For eight-hour assessment	10	50
250, Beaver Valley—For Oct. and Nov.	25	60
For supplies		20
251, Muscatine—For October	10	80
For eight-hour assessment	33	74
252, Bridgeport—For October	14	80
For eight-hour assessment	15	50
253, Holyoke—For October	11	60
For supplies		20
For eight-hour assessment	7	00
254, Riverside—For September	3	60
255, Anaconda—For October	13	60
For supplies		20
For eight-hour assessment	15	50
256, Great Falls—For October	9	60
For eight-hour assessment	70	55
For supplies		20
258, Easton—For October	23	60
For supplies	2	60
For eight-hour assessment	15	00
259, Waltham—For October	4	00
For eight-hour assessment	5	00
260, Findlay—For October	10	80
For eight-hour assessment	10	50
261, Italian—For October	12	40
For eight-hour assessment	10	50
262, Uniontown—For November	8	00
For eight-hour assessment	20	00
263, Asheville—For October	6	00
For eight-hour assessment	8	00
265, Ottawa—For October	7	60
For eight-hour assessment	6	00
266, Elkhart—For September	3	60
For eight-hour assessment		45

Digitized by Google

268, Fulton County—For October	$10 40
For eight-hour assessment	12 50
269, Peekskill—For October	7 20
For eight-hour assessment	8 50
270, New Castle—For eight-hour assessment	36 69
271, Boise—For October	22 00
For eight-hour assessment	17 00
272, Norwegian-Danish—For October	7 20
For eight-hour assessment	99 54
274, Amsterdam—For October	6 80
275, Victor—For October	2 80
For eight-hour assessment	3 50
276, New Bedford—For October	13 20
277, Missoula—For October	6 80
For supplies	20
For eight-hour assessment	18 65
279, Alexandria—For September	2 80
280, Marietta—For November	10 40
For eight-hour assessment	38 46
281, Marlboro—For October	5 60
282, Sterling—For Sept. and October	17 60
For eight-hour assessment	51 36
283, Oklahoma City—For October	24 00
For eight-hour assessment	22 00
284, Anderson—For October	8 00
For eight-hour assessment	16 50
285, Ansonia—For October	10 00
For eight-hour assessment	30 21
286, Marion—For October	14 00
For eight-hour assessment	16 50
287, Frankfort—For October	8 00
For eight-hour assessment	7 50
288, Galesburg—For October	12 40
For supplies	75
289, Titusville—For October	4 00
For eight-hour assessment	5 00
For supplies	2 20
290, Hamilton—For October	8 40
For eight-hour assessment	10 50
291, Aurora—For October	17 20
For supplies	1 70
292, Grand Junction—For Sept. and Oct.	6 00
For supplies	1 20
For eight-hour assessment	3 00
293, Pensacola—For August and Sept.	10 40
For supplies	1 50
295, Newport—For October	10 80
For eight-hour assessment	5 00
298, Massillon—For October	6 00
299, Tampa—For October	8 00
For supplies	70
300, Port Huron—For October	16 00
For supplies	35
For eight-hour assessment	17 50
301, Richmond—For November	9 60
For supplies	20
302, Quebec—For October	39 20
For eight-hour assessment	37 50
303, Cleburne—For October	8 00
For supplies	1 50
For eight-hour assessment	7 00
304, Albuquerque—For October	8 00
305, Newburgh—For October	16 80
For supplies	1 20
306, Alton—For October	8 40
308, Watertown—For Sept. and October	40 00
For supplies	1 70
310, Lowell—For October	19 20
For eight-hour assessment	28 00
311, Grand Forks—For October	10 00
For supplies	50
For eight-hour assessment	9 50
312, Las Vegas—For October	2 80
314, Meriden—For October	11 20
For eight-hour assessment	14 00
315, Poughkeepsie—For October	18 00
For eight-hour assessment	22 00
316, North Adams—For October	9 60
For eight-hour assessment	48 99
318, East Liverpool—For October	11 20
For eight-hour assessment	9 50
319, Taunton—For October	8 40
For eight-hour assessment	10 00
320, Pottsville—For Sept. and October	24 00
For eight-hour assessment	44 30
For supplies	2 20
321, Connellsville—For October	$7 60
For supplies	35
For eight-hour assessment	15 50
322, Kingston—For October	7 20
323, Hoboken—For October	17 20
For supplies	2 40
For eight-hour assessment	121 03
324, Racine—For October	9 60
For eight-hour assessment	10 00
For supplies	20
325, Cohoes—For October	10 40
For eight-hour assessment	10 00
326, Rutland—For October	8 00
327, Lincoln—For October	4 80
For eight-hour assessment	6 00
328, Streator—For October	8 00
For supplies	15
For eight-hour assessment	9 00
329, Waterbury—For October	22 40
For supplies	85
For eight-hour assessment	20 50
330, Bohemian—For October	30 40
For supplies	35
For eight-hour assessment	88 14
331, Elwood—For October	2 80
332, Muncie—For October	21 20
For supplies	90
For eight-hour assessment	101 16
333, Denison—For October	8 80
For supplies	35
For eight-hour assessment	7 50
334, Clinton—For October	8 80
For eight-hour assessment	39 26
335, Rossland—For October	8 80
For eight-hour assessment	3 00
336, Oneida—For October	4 80
For eight-hour assessment	5 50
338, Charlotte—For October	12 80
339, Beaumont—For Sept. and October	26 80
For supplies	20
For eight-hour assessment	12 00
340, Nelson—For Sept. and October	8 00
For eight-hour assessment	10 00
341, Spartanburg—For October	5 60
For eight-hour assessment	7 00
342, Canton—For October	3 60
For eight-hour assessment	9 00
344, Green Bay—For October	12 00
For supplies	15
For eight-hour assessment	9 50
346, Burlington—For October	12 00
For eight-hour assessment	9 50
347, Wabash—For October	6 40
348, Girard—For October	3 60
For supplies	2 40
For eight-hour assessment	11 75
349, Waterloo—For October	14 40
For eight-hour assessment	11 00
350, Joplin—For October	8 00
For eight-hour assessment	9 00
351, Sharon—For Sept. and October	8 80
For eight-hour assessment	8 70
352, Phœnix—For October	9 60
For supplies	50
353, Newport News—For October	5 20
354, Edwardsville—For Sept. and Oct.	14 80
For supplies	20
355, Bellingham—For November	16 40
For eight-hour assessment	19 20
356, Jacksonville—For September	5 20
For eight-hour assessment	5 00
358, Greenwood—For October	4 80
359, Sault Ste. Marie—For October	3 60
For eight-hour assessment	4 50
362, Traverse City—For eight-hour assessment	33 74
363, Jackson—For October	4 00
For supplies	35
For eight-hour assessment	7 00
364, Coshocton—For October	19 20
For eight-hour assessment	68 00
For Cummings memorial	21 00
365, Nashua—For October	1 60
369, Taylorville—For October	4 00
For supplies	1 10
For eight-hour assessment	13 60
370, El Paso—For October	11 20
For eight-hour assessment	64 00
For supplies	40

Digitized by Google

371, Rome—For October	$4 80
For supplies	1 50
For eight-hour assessment	4 00
372, Clarksburg—For October	11 20
For eight-hour assessment	6 50
374, Du Bois—For eight-hour assessment	17 25
375, Prescott—For October	5 20
For supplies	1 65
376, Minot—For October	4 80
For supplies	15
For eight-hour assessment	8 50
378, Brantford—For October	8 00
379, Ithaca—For October	24 00
For supplies	15 00
381, Boone—For October and November	14 40
For eight-hour assessment	51 75
382, Salem—For August and October	8 40
For supplies	80
384, Montpelier—For October	8 00
For eight-hour assessment	7 00
385, Greenville—For October	8 80
For eight-hour assessment	9 50
386, Little Falls—For October	5 60
387, Mount Vernon—For October	7 20
For supplies	2 70
For eight-hour assessment	18 34
388, Walla Walla—For October	11 20
For eight-hour assessment	7 00
389, Vallejo—For October	4 40
390, Pontiac—For October	5 20
For supplies	50
391, Guelph—For November	8 00
For eight-hour assessment	14 50
392, Pittston—For eight-hour assessment	3 00
393, Brockville—For October	6 80
394, Santa Barbara—For October	4 40
395, Vincennes—For October	7 60
For supplies	15
For eight-hour assessment	7 50
396, Canandaigua—For eight-hour assessment	9 50
397, Greensboro—For October	9 60
For supplies	15
For eight-hour assessment	10 50
398, Billings—For Sept. and October	8 80
For supplies	12
For eight-hour assessment	3 50
399, Plainfield—For Sept. and October	12 80
For eight-hour assessment	9 50
For supplies	25
400, Sunbury—For Sept. and October	11 60
For supplies	20
For eight-hour assessment	5 50
401, Hazleton—For October	6 40
402, Barre—For October	5 60
403, Tulsa—For October	8 40
For supplies	1 70
404, Tyler—For September	4 00
405, Santa Fe—For Sept. and October	10 00
406, Mason City—For October	15 60
For eight-hour assessment	7 00
407, Linton—For October	2 80
408, Ottawa—For October	4 80
For eight-hour assessment	6 50
409, Lorain—For Sept. and October	11 20
For supplies	2 19
410, Everett—For October	8 80
For eight-hour assessment	13 15
411, Galt—For November	5 60
For supplies	15
For eight-hour assessment	6 50
412, Kokomo—For Sept. and October	12 40
For supplies	20
For eight-hour assessment	10 00
413, Sayre—For October and November	6 80
For supplies	25
For eight-hour assessment	2 00
415, Butler—For October	5 20
416, St. Catherines—For October	8 40
For eight-hour assessment	8 00
417, Fort William—For October	4 80
For eight-hour assessment	5 00
419, Anniston—For October	9 20
420, Mansfield—For October	5 60
For eight-hour assessment	11 00
424, Orange—For October	15 20
For supplies	1 00
For apprentice subscriptions	3 00
For eight-hour assessment	15 50
425, Canon City—For October	$4 40
For eight-hour assessment	6 00
426, Bristol—For October	9 60
For supplies	15
For eight-hour assessment	6 50
427, Vicksburg—For October	8 40
For eight-hour assessment	10 50
428, Warren—For October	6 00
For supplies	15
For eight-hour assessment	5 50
429, Battle Creek—For October	12 00
For supplies	1 65
For eight-hour assessment	11 00
430, Baker City—For August and Sept.	7 60
For supplies	1 70
431, Manitowoc—For August and Sept.	8 80
432, Stillwater—For October	2 80
For eight-hour assessment	4 00
433, Dover—For Sept. and November	14 40
For eight-hour assessment	17 46
434, Trinidad—For October and Nov.	15 20
For eight-hour assessment	6 00
For supplies	15
435, Bluffton—For October	3 60
For eight-hour assessment	4 50
437, Franklin—For September	9 20
For supplies	1 50
438, New Decatur—For Sept. and Oct.	8 80
439, Bakersfield—For November	6 80
441, Salem—For November	8 00
For eight-hour assessment	27 89
For supplies	24
412, LaSalle-Peru—For October	6 00
For eight-hour assessment	5 50
443, Mascoutah—For October	6 80
444, Champaign—For October	12 40
For eight-hour assessment	13 50
445, Oswego—For September	5 60
For eight-hour assessment	14 00
446, Bangor—For October	12 00
For eight-hour assessment	11 50
447, Pine Bluff—For October	8 00
448, La Crosse—For October	18 00
For supplies	20
For eight-hour assessment	22 50
449, Calgary—For October	15 60
For supplies	1 50
450, Columbus—For October	5 60
For eight-hour assessment	12 17
451, Valdosta—For September	3 20
452, New Kensington—For October	5 20
453, Norwich—For October	10 40
For supplies	65
For eight-hour assessment	10 00
454, Huntington—For October	7 20
455, Owosso—For October	8 40
For eight-hour assessment	41 86
For supplies	35
456, Washington—For October	14 00
For eight-hour assessment	61 04
458, Carlinville—From August to Oct.	12 40
For eight-hour assessment	4 00
459, St. Thomas—For October	12 00
460, Chatham—For September	5 20
461, Cairo—For October	12 40
463, Middletown—For November	16 40
For supplies	1 15
For eight-hour assessment	5 50
465, Tucson—For November	5 20
For supplies	20
For eight-hour assessment	4 50
466, West Chester—For October	8 00
467, Dawson—From November to Jan.	11 20
468, Yonkers—For October	22 80
For eight-hour assessment	38 32
469, Greenfield—For October	4 00
471, Sherman—For October	13 60
472, Palestine—For October	3 20
For eight-hour assessment	5 50
For supplies	1 75
473, Moberly—For eight-hour assessment	7 50
474, Ashtabula—For October	5 60
475, Redding—For October	6 00
For eight-hour assessment	5 00
476, Slavonic—For September	2 40
477, Niles—For eight-hour assessment	3 00
479, Centralia—For Sept. and October	10 40
For eight-hour assessment	16 30
480, Tiffin—For supplies	40

Digitized by Google

481,	Iola—For October	$8 40
	For eight-hour assessment	6 00
482,	Mineola—For October	2 80
	For eight-hour assessment	3 00
483,	Portsmouth—For October	15 20
	For eight-hour assessment	8 00
484,	Muskogee—For October	16 00
487,	Middletown—For October	3 60
	For eight-hour assessment	4 50
488,	Princeton—For November	2 80
	For eight-hour assessment	2 00
489,	Livingston—For September	2 40
	For eight-hour assessment	23 40
491,	Pocatello—For eight-hour assessment	16 80
492,	Bellaire—For October	2 80
	For eight-hour assessment	3 50
493,	Henderson—For October	9 60
	For 50-cent assessment week ended November 11, 1905	8 00
494,	Abilene—For October and Nov.	12 00
	For supplies	25
	For eight-hour assessment	6 50
496,	Albany—For October	2 80
	For eight-hour assessment	3 00
498,	Lead—For October	4 40
	For eight-hour assessment	4 00
499,	Deposit—For Sept. and October	20 00
	For supplies	3 45
	For eight-hour assessment	12 50
501,	Moscow—For September	3 60
503,	Stamford—For October	6 80
	For supplies	25
504,	Astoria—For September	3 20
505,	Clinton—For August and Sept.	10 40
507,	Princeton—For Sept. and October	7 20
	For eight-hour assessment	5 00
509,	Greenville—For October	10 00
	For eight-hour assessment	28 95
510,	Lynchburg—For October	8 00
511,	Batavia—For October	10 40
	For eight-hour assessment	17 37
512,	Pontiac—For Sept. and October	12 40
	For supplies	20
	For eight-hour assessment	6 00
514,	Niles—For October	3 20
	For eight-hour assessment	5 00
515,	Iowa City—For October	12 40
	For supplies	20
	For eight-hour assessment	11 50
516,	Norwalk—For October	6 80
	For eight-hour assessment	6 50
517,	Gadsden—From June to August	10 40
518,	Marion—For October	3 60
	For eight-hour assessment	4 50
521,	Palo Alto—For October	3 60
	For eight-hour assessment	4 00
522,	Morristown—For October	6 40
	For supplies	2 50
	For eight-hour assessment	14 70
523,	Tarrytown—For November	9 60
	For supplies	20
	For eight-hour assessment	38 75
524,	Freeport—For October	14 00
525,	Benton Harbor—For October	6 00
	For eight-hour assessment	5 00
526,	Oskaloosa—For October	4 40
	For eight-hour assessment	7 00
527,	Oelwein—For eight-hour assessment	6 50
532,	Lewiston—For October	7 20
533,	Huntington—For October	12 80
	For eight-hour assessment	7 00
534,	Allentown—For June	3 20
536,	Auburn—For October	26 80
	For eight-hour assessment	19 50
538,	Washington—For October	8 40
	For eight-hour assessment	3 50
539,	Port Arthur—For November	3 20
	For eight-hour assessment	3 50
540,	Monroe—For September and Oct.	5 60
	For eight-hour assessment	2 50
541,	Oregon City—For October	1 60
542,	Shelbyville—For October	4 40
	For eight-hour assessment	9 01
543,	Watsonville—For October	14 80
	For eight-hour assessment	11 00
544,	Douglas—For October	5 60
	For supplies	1 20
	For eight-hour assessment	4 50
545,	Waukesha—For October	$4 50
	For supplies	40
	For eight-hour assessment	4 50
546,	Polish—For Sept. and October	26 00
547,	Greenfield—For October	4 80
548,	Lancaster—For October	6 80
	For eight-hour assessment	7 00
549,	Corning—For October	4 00
	For eight-hour assessment	5 00
550,	Windsor—For September	6 00
	For eight-hour assessment	15 50
551,	Bozeman—For Sept. and October	5 60
555,	Dunkirk—For Sept. and October	10 00
	For eight-hour assessment	28 01
556,	Wilmington—For October	10 80
	For eight-hour assessment	85 08
557,	Lewistown—For October	2 80
	For eight-hour assessment	3 50
558,	Natchez—For Sept. and October	6 40
	For eight-hour assessment	3 00
559,	San Angelo—For October	2 00
	For eight-hour assessment	1 50
560,	Charleston—For October	2 40
561,	Huron—For October	3 20
562,	Pierre—For October	3 20
	For eight-hour assessment	4 00
565,	South McAlester—For October	8 00
	For eight-hour assessment	3 00
568,	Lake Charles—For October	8 00
	For supplies	1 20
	For eight-hour assessment	41 67
569,	Painesville—For October	6 00
	For eight-hour assessment	4 00
572,	Marshall—For August and Sept.	5 60
573,	Aberdeen—For October	4 80
574,	Hot Springs—For September	8 80
576,	San Luis Obispo—For October	4 00
	For eight-hour assessment	28 00
577,	Santa Rosa—For October	2 00
	For supplies	35
	For eight-hour assessment	7 50
578,	Coffeyville—For October	5 60
	For supplies	65
	For eight-hour assessment	7 00
579,	St. Hyacinthe—For September	3 20
580,	Marion—For eight-hour assessment	3 00
581,	Fort Madison—For October	4 40
	For eight-hour assessment	12 00
	For supplies	40
583,	Pasadena—For October	14 40
	For eight-hour assessment	14 50
584,	Redlands—For eight-hour assessment	19 40
586,	Greeley—For October	4 80
	For eight-hour assessment	5 50
587,	Guthrie—For September and Oct.	8 00
588,	St. Augustine—For October	4 00
	For eight-hour assessment	5 00
589,	Santa Cruz—For October	6 80
	For supplies	60
	For eight-hour assessment	34 00
590,	Park City—For September and Oct.	5 60
	For eight-hour assessment	14 18
591,	Pekin—For September	13 60
	For eight-hour assessment	21 58
593,	Brainerd—For October	4 00
	For eight-hour assessment	4 00
595,	Athens—For October	3 20
	For eight-hour assessment	6 50
596,	Houghton—For October	9 60
598,	Morgantown—For October	3 00
	For eight-hour assessment	10 00
601,	Grass Valley—For October	2 80
602,	Greenville—For September	4 80
	For supplies	10
	For eight-hour assessment	1 50
603,	Fort Dodge—For October	13 60
	For supplies	20
	For eight-hour assessment	9 00
604,	Edmonton—For eight-hour assessm't	2 10
605,	Mitchell—For October	8 40
	For strike benefits returned	43 00
	For eight-hour assessment	15 00
607,	Millville—From May to July	8 40
608,	Chanute—For September and Oct.	14 00
609,	Winston—For October	4 40
	For supplies	20
610,	Columbia—For October	4 40
612,	Appleton, etc.—For October	10 00
	For supplies	20

Digitized by Google

613, Bellefontaine—For October	$12 00
614, North Yakima—For September	7 20
For supplies	50
615, Manistee—For September	4 80
616, Tonopah—For October	4 80
For supplies	7 80
617, Wallace—For August	6 40
618, Watertown—For October	3 20
619, Fremont—For October	4 40
623, Fitchburg—For October	7 20
For Journal subscriptions	2 70
624, San Mateo—For October and Nov.	9 60
625, Salisbury—For November	4 80
For supplies	1 50
For eight-hour assessment	5 00
628, Somerville—For October	6 00
For eight-hour assessment	7 50
629, Bowling Green—For eight-hour assessment	3 00
630, St. Cloud—For October	4 80
For eight-hour assessment	4 50
631, Idaho Falls—For September	1 60
632, Cheboygan—For October	3 60
For supplies	15
For eight-hour assessment	4 50
634, Lewiston—For October	6 40
For eight-hour assessment	7 00
635, Poplar Bluff—For Sept. and Oct.	5 60
For eight-hour assessment	4 50
636, Deadwood—For October	4 80
For eight-hour assessment	6 00
638, Stroudsburg—For October	5 60
640, Berlin—For eight-hour assessment	3 50
641, Ennis—For October	2 80
For eight-hour assessment	3 00
642, Hackensack—For October	9 20
643, Waterville—For October	4 80
For supplies	5 60
For eight-hour assessment	24 84
644, Bluefield—For October	8 80
645, Elyria—For October	6 40
For eight-hour assessment	7 00
648, Fayetteville—For October	2 40
For supplies	25
649, Ardmore—For October	5 60
651, Le Mars—For October and Nov.	4 00
652, Independence—For October	3 60
For eight-hour assessment	3 50
653, Jamestown—For October	4 00
For supplies	15
For eight-hour assessment	4 00
655, Redfield—For October	3 60
656, Brandon—For October	7 60
For eight-hour assessment	9 00
657, Regina—For October	4 80
658, Perth Amboy—For October	4 40
For supplies	1 80
For eight-hour assessment	5 00
659, Brunswick—For October	1 60
660, Sac City—For October	8 80
661, Jonesboro—For October	4 80
For eight-hour assessment	6 00
662, Warwick Co.—For October	4 80
For supplies	30
For eight-hour assessment	3 60
663, Washington—For November	4 40
664, Fredericton—For November	3 20
For eight-hour assessment	4 00
667, Charles City—For charter and outfit	10 00

GERMAN-AMERICAN.

Eight-hour assessment, one-half of 1 per cent	1,500 00
1, Philadelphia—For October	16 10
For eight-hour assessment	16 50
2, Cincinnati—For October	17 15
3, St. Louis—For October	25 20
For eight-hour assessment	26 00
4, Buffalo—For October	9 80
5, Rochester—For October	2 80
6, Cleveland—For October	14 00
For eight-hour assessment	25 00
7, New York—For October	95 90
For eight-hour assessment	131 50
8, Newark—For October	8 40
For eight-hour assessment	8 50
9, Chicago—For October	34 30
10, Milwaukee—For October	31 15
11, Baltimore—For October	$11 90
For eight-hour assessment	15 00
12, Louisville—For October	2 80
For eight-hour assessment	4 50
13, St. Paul—For October	3 85
14, Indianapolis—For October	7 00
For eight-hour assessment	8 50
15, Evansville—For October	5 60
For eight-hour assessment	3 50
16, Pittsburg—For October	10 85
18, Belleville—For October	3 50
For eight-hour assessment	13 50
19, Columbus—For October	3 85
21, Detroit—For October	9 45
25, Wheeling—For October	2 45
For eight-hour assessment	7 00

MAILERS.

2, Chicago—For October	77 60
For Cummings memorial	5 00
3, St. Louis—For November	27 60
For eight-hour assessment	133 00
4, Minneapolis—For Sept. and Oct.	4 00
5, Toronto—For October	11 60
For eight-hour assessment	50 00
6, New York—For October	153 20
For eight-hour assessment	26 00
8, Denver—For October	7 60
For eight-hour assessment	7 50
9, Los Angeles—For Sept. and Oct.	6 80
10, Indianapolis—For September	10 00
12, Cleveland—For October	5 20
16, Louisville—For October	8 40
17, Cincinnati—For October	22 40
18, San Francisco—For October	22 40
For supplies	15
24, Buffalo—For September	3 20
25, Butte—For October	3 20
For eight-hour assessment	3 00
27, Winnipeg—For October	3 20
For eight-hour assessment	3 50

TYPEFOUNDERS.

1, New York—For October	5 60
3, Chicago—For October	12 40
7, San Francisco—For Sept. and Oct.	8 40

NEWSPAPER WRITERS.

1, Boston—For October	30 80
2, Columbus—For October	14 00
For eight-hour assessment	11 50
5, New York—For September	4 00
9, Milwaukee—For October	3 20
12, Butte—For October	8 00
For supplies	50
For eight-hour assessment	20 00
18, Dawson—For October	2 40

MISCELLANEOUS.

Syracuse A. T. C.—For supplies	20 00
Indianapolis A. T. C.—For supplies	5 40
Hartford A. T. C.—For supplies	4 00
Cleveland A. T. C.—For supplies	10 00
Des Moines A. T. C.—For supplies	3 50
Spokane A. T. C.—For supplies	4 80
Leavenworth A. T. C.—For supplies	8 00
Chicago A. T. C.—For supplies	18 00
Washington A. T. C.—For supplies	45 00
Seattle A. T. C.—For supplies	7 80
Portland (Ore.) A. T. C.—For supplies	13 90
Buffalo A. T. C.—For supplies	7 20
Pittsburg A. T. C.—For supplies	5 00
Dallas A. T. C.—For supplies	7 20
Donation to eight-hour fund—August Donath	2 00
Donation to eight-hour fund—J. F. Busche	50 00
International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union—For October	316 60
R. F. Radley—Balance expenses returned	18 50
Issuing duplicate card, 25c	25
Interest on deposit, Union National Bank	170 96
J. J. Freel—Balance expenses returned	75 00
Fees of applicants from unorganized towns—F. E. Dowdell, $2; J. E. Guy, $2; J. B. Quimby, $2; J. H. Bailey, $2; W. A. Schnurr, $2; J. S. Hodges, $2	12 00

Digitized by Google

Per capita tax collected on cards—J. N. Page, $2.40; G. A. McKey, $2.40; Fred Crute, $4.80; F. R. Joyce, $2.40; J. E. Randall, $4.80; J. H. Singleton, $2.40; W. L. Amiot, $4.80; J. Sigouin, $1.20; R. D. Hughes, $2.40; J. C. Gile, $2.40; A. J. Geary, 80c; F. W. Jillson, $2.40; H. Haworth, $2.40; A. Buchan, $4.80; C. Anderson, $3.60; J. A. Anderson, $1.20; H. A. Calmelot, $1.20; W. H. Harmon, $2.40; George Bridgman, $2.40; T. C. Queen, $2.40; J. W. Forsler, $2; A. D. Fleet, $2; F. A. Joslin, $1.60; J. P. Arthur, $1.20; R. W. Jackson, $2.80; W. H. Webb, $2.40; Grace Wood, $5; H. Derbyshire, $2; John Marshall, 80c; C. C. Cole, $3; Nellie Hay, $4.50; C. W. Seaman, $4.70; G. E. Bundy, $1.60; G. A. Naeter, $2.40; F. M. O'Banion, $1.60; T. H. Weldon, $2.80; G. A. Pope, $4.80; H. G. Kelley, $1.80; C. Ninekirk, $2.40; Bert Tromley, $2.40; W. L. Sample, $1.20; H. B. Watkins, $3.90	$110 50
General Fund—Sale of buttons and sundry supplies to individuals	54 35
The Typographical Journal—
Individual subscriptions	6 80
Advertising	173 42
Total	$44,426 38

OFFICIAL NOTICE.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., September 20, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of Subordinate Unions:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—Though the by-laws prescribe that the secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union "shall publish in THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL a sworn statement of the balance of his bank books of deposit monthly," and "a full monthly statement of receipts and disbursements of all kinds," it is the unanimous opinion of the executive council of the International Typographical Union that it would be inadvisable and detrimental to the best interests of the organization to technically adhere to these provisions during the present struggle for the eight-hour day.

This being our unanimous belief, and in accordance with our sworn duty to safeguard the interests of the International Typographical Union at all times, the secretary-treasurer is hereby instructed to omit the publication of the monthly balance and the monthly statement of disbursements above noted, until further instructions are given, and the monthly financial statement of said secretary-treasurer shall be confined, for the present, to the publication of receipts for per capita tax, supplies, etc.

It is understood, in this connection, that a complete statement of said disbursements and balances shall be published in monthly sequence in THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL at a later date. This, we believe, will comply with the intent of the law requiring the publication of expenditures, and at the same time fully protect the interests of the organization.

Fraternally yours,
JAMES M. LYNCH,
HUGO MILLER,
J. W. BRAMWOOD,
Executive Council International Typographical Union.

HIS EXAMPLE.

"Robert," said a teacher in one of the public schools to her brightest pupil, "give me an example of the use of the word 'damper' in a sentence."

Robert thought a moment, then delivered himself of the following:

"Teacher is damper-ticular about our English."
—Harper's Weekly.

REPORT OF SECRETARY-TREASURER UNION PRINTERS' HOME.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., November 23, 1905.

To the Board of Trustees of the Union Printers' Home:

GENTLEMEN—The following is a statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Home fund from October 22 to November 23, inclusive:

RECEIPTS.

Oct. 23. Balance in fund	$8,410 68
Nov. 7. Thomas Conklin, deceased, $11; sale of photos, $1.50; sale of cockerel, $1.50; per Charles Deacon	14 00
Nov. 11. Charles Deacon, overpayment on October salaries Home employes	20 00
Nov. 15. Cash from secretary-treasurer I. T. U.	3,000 00
Nov. 17. Cash from secretary-treasurer I. T. U.	1,000 00
Nov. 22. Cash from secretary-treasurer I. T. U.	158 60
Total	$12,603 28

EXPENDITURES.

Shields-Morley Grocery Co.—Groceries	$287 37
Ira J. Morse—Vegetables, butter, eggs, etc.	356 33
H. A. Brown Commission Co.—Butter, eggs and vegetables	88 65
O. E. Hemenway—Poultry, vegetables, butter, etc	88 95
Seldomridge Bros.—Flour, hay and grain	368 06
Colorado Springs Packing and Provision Co.—Meats	524 41
Sanderson Commission Co.—Fish and oysters	19 15
Holbrook & Perkins—Suits, hats and furnishings	225 64
F. A. Vorhes—Shoes	41 76
T. E. Manning—October shoe repairs	4 00
Colorado Springs Electric Co.—October lights	56 49
Colorado Springs Fuel Co.—Charcoal	11 00
Tudor Coal Co.—Coal	138 44
Union Ice & Coal Co.—Ice and coal	65 95
Robinson Drug Co.—Drugs, etc	73 39
Giddings Bros.—Comforts, shades, etc	75 80
Wrought Iron Range Co.—Drip pans, etc.	9 48
Burley & Co.—Dishes	224 71
F. G. Hayner—Dishes	3 75
G. S. Barnes & Son—Refrigerator and kitchen utensils	43 15
Fairley Bros. & Fairley—Creamer and sugar	1 15
New York Electric Co.—Light shades	1 75
Lowell-Meservey Hardware Co.—Glass, building hardware, etc	20 65
Newton Lumber Co.—Lumber and cement	31 85
E. M. Portner—Carpenter work	48 00
St. John & Barnes—Plumbing repairs	3 60
Hendrie & Bolthoff—Valve and jet pump	3 11
Western Electric Co.—Dry cell batteries	2 82
Hallett & Baker—Burial Thomas Conklin	42 00
Out West Printing Co.—Stationery and office supplies	3 85
R. Ashby—Spectacles and repairs	4 00
H. C. Loesch—Blacksmith repairs	3 45
Frank Carrick Harness Co.—Harness and repairs	15 70
Continental Oil Co.—Gasoline	9 88
Puck Soap Co.—Soap	47 45
John Jones—Shoeing horses	7 00
H. Kohnstam—Laundry supplies	78 70
J. W. Fletemeyer—Wine and whisky	14 00
J. M. Lynch—October salary	33 34
J. W. Bramwood—October salary	33 34
Hollenbeck Press—500 applications, 500 physician's certificates, 300 copies report of trustees	29 75
Trustees' meeting—W. J. White, $150; H. H. Rogers, $100; L. C. Shepard,

Digitized by Google

$100; T. F. Crowley, $100, part expenses to Colorado Springs	$450 00
Charles Deacon—October salaries Home employes	1,122 50
Charles Deacon—Hominy, buttermilk, yeast, apples, $21.03; freight on dishes and disinfectant, $24.32; part payment extension shoe William Irvine, $5; poker chips, 50c; cleaning tents, $18.50; freight on Home booklets, $4.56; pencils, 50c; October pensions to inmates, $286; transportation Messrs. Sommer, Scott and Wilson, $53.50; balance October salaries Home employes, $51.84; freight on laundry supplies, $1.54; telephone scrip and tolls, $5.30; postage and box rent, $6.50; tobacco for inmates, $5.50; expressage, $2.05; want ads, $2.25; sharpening saw, 25c; wire, 5c; tissue paper, 35c; car tickets, $2.25.	491 79
Total	$5,206 16

RECAPITULATION.

Balance in fund October 22, 1905	$8,410 68
Receipts to November 23, 1905	4,192 60
Total	$12,603 28
Expenditures	5,206 16
Balance	$7,397 12

The balance reported consists of $441.11 on deposit with American National Bank, Indianapolis, $6,331.78 deposited with Drexel & Co., Philadelphia, and $624.23 in the hands of Superintendent Deacon, the expenditure of which is yet to be reported.

Respectfully submitted,
J. W. BRAMWOOD, Secretary-Treasurer.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., November 23, 1905.

State of Indiana, Marion county, ss:

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 23d day of November, 1905. Witness my hand and notarial seal. [SEAL] ALBERT SMITH, Notary Public.
My commission expires August 19, 1908.

SUPERINTENDENT DEACON'S CASH ACCOUNT FOR OCTOBER.

RECEIPTS.

October.
2.	J. W. Bramwood—Current expenses	$300 00
16.	J. W. Bramwood—Current expenses	300 00
25.	Sale of photos	1 50
25.	Thomas Conklin, deceased	11 00
30.	Sale of cockerel	1 50
	Total	$614 00

EXPENDITURES.

October.
1.	Amount overdrawn	$83 98
2.	Postoffice box rent	3 50
2.	Postage	3 00
2.	Freight on dishes and glasses	3 47
3.	Freight on Home booklets	4 56
4.	Theresa Leonard—Housecleaning	3 50
7.	I. T. U. pensions	69 50
11.	Transportation Raymond Sommers	36 75
12.	Leonora Robeson—Nurse	6 67
12.	John Carlin—Apples	8 00
13.	Transportation W. L. Scott	14 25
14.	I. T. U. pensions	71 50
14.	Freight on laundry supplies	1 54
15.	James Pierce—Services	20 00
16.	Transportation C. J. Wilson	2 50
18.	Colorado Telephone Co.—Telephone scrip	5 00
18.	E. L. O'Connor Mfg. Co.—Part payment extension shoe for William Irvine	5 00
18.	Miss J. R. Smith—Housecleaning	6 00
18.	Ellen Hynes—Services	2 67
20.	John Harper—Hominy	2 40
21.	I. T. U. pensions	72 00
24.	Theresa Leonard—Housecleaning	9 00
25.	Freight on disinfectant	1 28
27.	Maude Suter—Seamstress	22 50
28.	Freight on crockery	19 57
28.	I. T. U. pensions	$73 00
28.	Thomas Hazlett—Buttermilk, tomatoes and squash	8 23
30.	Colorado Springs Gazette—Want ad	1 45
30.	Colorado Springs Telegraph—Want ad.	80
31.	A. L. Patton—Tobacco for inmates	5 50
31.	Cash transferred to J. W. Bramwood	14 00
31.	Charles Deacon—Sundries as follows:
	Yeast	2 40
	Sharpening meat saw	25
	Pencils	50
	Expressage	2 05
	Telephone	30
	Tissue paper	35
	Wire	05
	Poker chips	50
	Car tickets	2 25
	Total	$589 77
	Cash on hand	24 23
	Total	$614 00

ARDMORE, I. T.

This being our first appearance in these interesting columns, excuse timidity.

We organized last May, and are amazed why we delayed the matter as we did.

At our recent meeting we adopted a plan to organize the country printers in our district, which is meeting with success.

The Union Review, a farmers' organ of recent birth, set the pace by adopting the eight-hour day. The other three offices will grant it January 1, without any trouble.

Arrivals—W. W. Peed, Denison; W. C. Reaves, Dallas. Departures—A. T. Wilson, W. W. Woodard.

The Ardmoreite recently passed into the hands of a company capitalized at $50,000. Colonel Suggs, a stanch friend of No. 649, former proprietor, remains with the new concern. By January 1 Ardmore will have a first-class newspaper in every respect.

Work has been plentiful, but there seems to be a general slump in business of late.

The Advocate, a religious weekly, recently moved to Ada, I. T., causing No. 649 to lose four of its members, including Vice-President Eaglebarger.

Two New Year gifts for us—eight hours and statehood. Now, boys, get ready with your resolutions.

At a would-be statehood meeting held in Muskogee some time ago, in regard to separate statehood for the Indian Territory, a resolution was adopted protesting against the closed shop. The various unions in the territory arose in indignation. The statehood grafters and office aspirants at once realized their mistake and called an executive meeting immediately to have the resolution amended. The amended platform, however, only received 25,000 votes of a total of 125,000.

Eight hours January first,
Statehood, too, or burst,
Ardmore, I. T., no more thirst.

LEWIS R. MARSTON, JR.

A SCHOOL teacher recently asked her pupils to give a definition of the word "friend." One young hopeful responded: "A friend is a person who knows all about you, and still likes you."—Exchange.

Digitized by Google

International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union

REPORT OF SECRETARY-TREASURER.

The October receipts are as follows:

1, New York—For October	$181	20
For supplies		60
2, Boston—From August to October	133	80
3, Chicago—For September	90	90
4, Chicago—For October	48	00
5, Cincinnati—For October	10	80
6, Kansas City—For October	17	40
7, Philadelphia—For September	15	90
8, St. Louis—For October	16	20
10, Baltimore—For September	9	00
11, Boston—For September	18	90
12, Milwaukee—From September to Nov.	38	70
13, Denver—For October	9	30
14, Columbus—For October	4	80
15, Dayton—For September and October	6	00
16, St. Paul and Minneapolis—For October	5	40
For supplies	4	90
17, Washington—For August	20	70
18, Newark—For October	3	90
19, Washington—For October	9	90
For supplies		60
20, Binghamton—For October and Nov.	9	00
21, Toronto—For October	14	40
22, Cleveland—For October	9	30
24, Omaha—For October	6	90
For supplies		80
25, Buffalo—For August and September	9	00
26, Baltimore—For September	3	90
28, Albany and Troy—From Aug. to Oct.	36	00
For supplies		60
29, San Francisco—For September	21	60
30, Indianapolis—For October	3	90
For supplies		60
32, Louisville—For October	5	70
33, Montreal—For October	3	60
34, Battle Creek—For September	4	00
35, Cleveland—For September and October	12	00
36, St. Louis—For October	20	10
40, Des Moines—For October	3	60
41, Sioux City—For October	2	70
44, Springfield—For September and Oct.	9	00
46, Utica—For October	1	50
47, Peoria—From August to October	6	30
48, Portland—For September and October	6	60
50, Ottawa—For October	2	70
51, Memphis—For September and October	6	60
For supplies		30
52, Fall River—For September	2	40
55, Springfield—For October	3	90
56, Pittsburg—For September	11	40
57, New Orleans—For October	6	00
58, Los Angeles—For September	6	60
60, Butte—For October	2	10
61, St. Joseph—For September and October	3	00
62, Lincoln—For September and October	8	10
63, Galveston-Houston—For October	5	40
65, Seattle—For October	5	10
66, Richmond—For October	4	50
68, Pittsburg—For October	4	20
69, Elmira—For supplies		25
70, Columbus—For October	4	50
71, Salt Lake City—For Sept. and October	3	60
72, Philadelphia—For August	24	30
75, Philadelphia—For October	9	60
For supplies	7	00
76, Buffalo—For October	6	00
Total	$965	55

SUSPENSION.

58, Los Angeles, Cal. (Stereotypers)—D. S. Griswold, suspended for non-payment of dues.

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

GENERAL OFFICERS—EXECUTIVE BOARD.

President—James J. Freel, 1839 Eighty-fifth, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Vice-President—J. Fremont Fry, care News, Indianapolis, Ind.
Jesse W. Moreland, 159 Mount Auburn street, Cambridge, Mass.
M. J. Shea, 44 V street, N. W., Washington, D. C.
Secretary-Treasurer—G. W. Williams, 534 Warren street, Boston, Mass.

SECRETARIES OF LOCAL UNIONS.

1, New York (Stereotypers)—G. W. Farnum, 347 East One Hundred and Twentieth.
2, Boston, Mass. (Stereotypers)—G. Fred Moore, box 3350.
3, Chicago, Ill. (Electrotypers)—O. C. Baer, 1596 N. Sacramento avenue.
4, Chicago, Ill. (Stereotypers)—W. N. Julien, 2390 North Forty-second avenue.
5, Cincinnati, Ohio (Stereotypers)—Frank Hegner, 947 West Eighth street.
6, Kansas City, Mo. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—O. McFarland, care Times stereotyping room.
7, Philadelphia, Pa. (Stereotypers)—B. J. Brady, 1316 N. Hutchinson.
8, St. Louis, Mo. (Stereotypers)—H. Heinz, 224 Walnut.
9, Detroit (Stereotypers)—Herbert O'Connor, 8 Fox.
10, Baltimore, Md. (Stereotypers)—C. M. Schilling, 915 Woodley.
11, Boston, Mass. (Electrotype Finishers)—F. L. Murray, 27 Putnam avenue, Cambridge, Mass.
12, Milwaukee, Wis. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—G. N. Mihm, 2616 Chestnut.
13, Denver, Colo. (Stereotypers)—H. A. Miller, 529 Twenty-second.
14, Columbus, Ohio (Stereotypers)—W. G. Knopf, 330 St. Clair avenue.
15, Dayton, Ohio (Electrotypers and Stereotypers)—H. C. Pohl, 62 Clover.
16, St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn. (Stereotypers)—W. F. Smith, 1309 Stevens, Minneapolis.
17, Washington, D. C. (Electrotypers)—H. C. Poppe, 17 T, N. W.
18, Newark, N. J. (Stereotypers)—Henry Sander, 51 Lincoln.
19, Washington, D. C. (Stereotypers)—D. J. Murray, The Brunswick.
20, Binghamton, N. Y. (Stereotypers)—F. L. Stone, 207½ Vestal.
21, Toronto, Ont. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—W. S. McDougall, 13 Park Road.
22, Cleveland, Ohio (Stereotypers)—J. E. Hoffman, 157 Yonker avenue.
23, Syracuse, N. Y.—C. F. Sweeney, 531 West Colvin.
24, Omaha, Neb. (Electrotypers and Stereotypers)—S. L. Rowzee, 1502 Ohio.
25, Buffalo, N. Y. (Stereotypers)—J. E. Whitby, 214 Front avenue.
26, Baltimore, Md. (Electrotypers)—Howard Hinkle, 219 West Monument.
27, Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport and Meriden, Conn. (Stereotypers)—G. W. Languth, box 161, Hartford, Conn.
28, Albany and Troy, N. Y. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—H. E. Hill, 207 Elm, Albany, N. Y.
29, San Francisco, Cal. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—William Patton, 185 Tremont ave.
30, Indianapolis, Ind. (Electrotypers)—C. F. Markey, 379 N. Colorado avenue.
31, Cincinnati Ohio (Electrotypers)—Henry Boehman, 850 West Liberty.

Digitized by Google

32, Louisville, Ky. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—F. J. Burkel, 725 Preston.
33, Montreal, Que. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—A. Polequin, 3 Cote avenue.
34, Battle Creek, Mich. (Electrotypers)—L. P. Crandall, 419 West Water, Kalamazoo, Mich.
35, Cleveland, Ohio (Electrotypers) — N. McCarthy, care Central Electrotype Co.
36, St. Louis, Mo. (Electrotypers)—John F. Hoyer, 1311 Sullivan avenue.
37, Akron, Ohio (Electrotypers)—Henry Scheffer, 470 Rhodes avenue.
38, Indianapolis, Ind. (Stereotypers)—W. T. Burke, 117 Kansas.
39, Toledo, Ohio (Stereotypers)—Charles Fisher, 907 Norwood avenue.
40, Des Moines, Iowa (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—G. F. Lane, 1310 Cottage.
41, Sioux City, Iowa (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—D. D. Gordon, 310 Bluff.
42, Atlanta, Ga.—A. W. Mehaffey, 174 Pulliam.
43, Springfield, Ill. (Stereotypers)—E. L. James, care Illinois State Journal.
44, Springfield, Mass. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—H. J. Bagg, 44 Webster.
45, St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn. (Electrotypers)—H. J. Gerrish, 195 Aurora avenue.
46, Utica, N. Y. (Stereotypers)—Thomas O'Neil, 44 Mohawk.
47, Peoria, Ill. (Stereotypers)—F. L. Moore, R. F. D. No. 4.
48, Portland, Ore. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—M. J. Graham, care Journal stereotyping room.
49, Rochester, N. Y. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—William Spofford, Rural Home Company, 11 Aqueduct.
50, Ottawa, Ont. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—A. Riendeau, care Government Printing Bureau.
51, Memphis, Tenn. (Stereotypers) Tom Faughl, 2103 Lenox avenue.
52, Fall River, Mass. (Stereotypers)—Leroy Johnston, 14 Grinnell.
53, Providence, R. I. (Stereotypers)—S. F. Honan, 224 Ives.
54, Detroit, Mich. (Electrotypers)—Joseph Dwyer, 430 Cavalry.
55, Springfield, Ohio (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—W. C. Schafer, 2 Johnson building.
56, Pittsburg, Pa. (Stereotypers)—J. O. E. Lawton, 2835 Wylie avenue.
57, New Orleans, La. (Stereotypers)—M. A. Rice, 2109 Calliope.
58, Los Angeles, Cal. (Stereotypers)—J. W. Butterfield, Colegrove, Cal.
59, Winnipeg, Man. (Stereotypers)—P. W. Bowen, box 376.
60, Butte, Mont. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—A. O. Ogstead, care News.
61, St. Joseph, Mo. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—Clyde C. Kelley, 712 Warsaw.
62, Lincoln, Neb. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—A. E. Small, 1840 South Fifteenth.
63, Galveston, Texas (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—H. E. Ketchum, 2024 Avenue L.
64, Fort Wayne, Ind. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—J. J. Metker, 2325 Smith.
65, Seattle, Wash. (Stereotypers)—P. B. Gilliland, 110 West Main.
66, Richmond, Va. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—Thomas E. Marshall, 502 N. Thirty-fourth.
67, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, Colo. (Stereotypers)—W. G. Snyder, 122 East Costello, Colorado Springs.
68, Pittsburg, Pa. (Electrotypers)—Charles Seth, 121 Rochelle, Knoxville Boro, Allegheny County, Pa.
69, Elmira, N. Y. (Stereotypers)—C. G. Brown, 213 West Third.
70, Columbus, Ohio (Electrotypers)—C. T. McCarthy, 135 East Cherry.
71, Salt Lake, Utah (Stereotypers)—Charles Cochran, care Tribune stereotype room.
72, Philadelphia, Pa. (Electrotypers)—W. D. Matthews, 1310 South Simpson.
74, Boston, Mass. (Electrotypers)—A. E. Hathaway, 4 Goldsmith Place, off Ruggles street, Roxbury.
75, Philadelphia, Pa. (Electrotype Foundrymen)—Edward X. Green, 1314 Randolph.
76, Buffalo, N. Y. (Electrotypers)—William H. Widmer, 193 Landon.
77, Chattanooga, Tenn. (Stereotypers and Electrotypers)—Arthur L. Winters, 500 Cherry.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

Bridgeport gave a practically solid vote for the 50-cent assessment.

The jobbers in this city say they want the eight-hour day and are going to fight for it.

November 6 was election day. Every candidate for the people's suffrage used our label on the election printing. They always come around to us at election time.

Work in the job rooms is a little slow at present. Rumor has it that the different shops are not over-anxious for new work, pending the outcome of the eight-hour fight. Bridgeport will have the eight hours on and after January 1, come what will.

Since our last report we have placed our label in two more shops, the Taft Company and Kimberley's. The addition of these two makes the number of offices entitled to the use of our label seven. There are about ten shops of any consequence in this city; so seven out of ten is not so bad.

The executive committee has the matter of a revised scale in charge.

It is with pleasure I note an increase in attendance at meetings. As the first of the year approaches the boys are taking a more active part in the doings of the union. A healthy sign.

Mayor Mulvihill—that was—by this time has undoubtedly well learned the few lines that

> Of all sad words of tongue or pen
> The saddest are these:
> It might have been.

If he had fulfilled all or even a part of his pretentions made to organized labor in the past four years he might still be working at his old job. The union men of the city made him in the beginning of his eventful political career—from the coal hole to the city hall for two terms. He promised to be good to the unions and to remember them in the way of representatives in the makeup of the different boards, but he soon forgot his promises. The union men finally "tumbled" to him, and now Dennis Mulvihill, mayor of Bridgeport, Conn., is no more; he's gone away back by his little lonesome, and finds lots of time to think of that little poem, "Of all sad words," etc. His name is Dennis. JAMES A. COATES.

CAMBRIDGE, OHIO.

It may be of interest to the readers of THE TYPOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL to know that three members of No. 208 were elected to office at the recent election, as follows: J. P. Mahaffey, state senator eighteenth and nineteenth districts; Asa Baxter, city treasurer; Max P. Taylor, president of the council. H. C. CALLIHAN.

EIGHT hours for work—it's nobody's business what we do with the rest of our time.

Digitized by Google

Official Directory

INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION.

Headquarters—Rooms 640-650 Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind. Long Distance Telephone, Main, 2886.

GENERAL OFFICERS.

President—James M. Lynch, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.

First Vice-President—J. W. Hays, box 522, Minneapolis, Minn.

Second Vice-President—Hugo Miller, Indianapolis, Ind.

Third Vice-President—James J. Mulcahy, 2821 Cass avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

Fourth Vice-President—E. J. Bracken, 1137 Highland street, Columbus, Ohio.

Fifth Vice-President—P. G. Nuernberger, 313 Giddings street, Ravenswood, Chicago, Ill.

Secretary-Treasurer—J. W. Bramwood, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.

TRUSTEES UNION PRINTERS' HOME.

President—James M. Lynch, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.

Vice-President—Thomas McCaffery, 11 Boulder Place, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Secretary and Treasurer—J. W. Bramwood, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.

L. C. Shepard, 8 Pleasant street, Grand Rapids, Mich.

H. H. Rogers, 1138 Adams street, Chicago, Ill.

W. J. White, 4053 Twenty-third street, San Francisco, Cal.

Thomas F. Crowley, room 12, Hulbert block, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Agent—George P. Nichols, 535 North Carrollton avenue, Baltimore, Md.

DELEGATES TO FEDERATION OF LABOR.

James M. Lynch, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.

Frank Morrison, 423-425 G street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

M. S. Hayes, Citizen office, Cleveland, Ohio.

Frank Foster, 116 Eliot street, Boston, Mass.

Victor L. Berger, 614 State street, Milwaukee, Wis.

ORGANIZERS.

Beattie, Charles, 29 Montcalm street, Montreal, P. Q.

Bonnington, F. J., room 19, 533 Kearny street, San Francisco, Cal.

Booth, W. T., 912 East Leigh street, Richmond, Va.

Boyle, P. J., 1228 South Eleventh street, Omaha, Neb.

Birdsall, F. C., box 681, Denver, Colo.

Brady, Bert G., 216 The Shiel Flats, Indianapolis, Ind.

Clancy, P. L., 24 Allen street, Halifax, N. S.

Colbert, Michael, 276 Belden avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Devereux, J. C., jr., 915 Thomas street, St. Paul, Minn.

Dodge, Frank H., Reaves building, Little Rock, Ark.

Dolan, T. H., 6 Terrace street, Pittsburg, Pa.

Fancher, John E., 618 West Twelfth street, Sioux Falls, S. D.

Fennessy, T. D., 831 East Twentieth street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Gill, Joseph B., room 2, 52 Federal street, Boston, Mass.

Haight, William S., 55 Eleventh street, Detroit, Mich.

Hayes, Max S., 1 Blackstone building, Cleveland, Ohio.

Hill, Albert E., 313½ Cedar street, Nashville, Tenn.

Hogan, J. W., 162-163 Pennsylvania Block, Butte, Mont.

Howell, G. H., care Oregonian, Portland, Ore.

Hudspeth, H. S., box 1627, New Orleans, La.

James, W. R., 206 John street, Toronto, Ont.

Kinskey, C. E., 6 Chapin block, Buffalo, N. Y.

McLoughlin, J. E., 18 Chambers street, New York city, N. Y., or 1271 Bushwick avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Needham, W. A., box 1076, Des Moines, Iowa.

Parrish, L. A., 72 N. Terrace avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

Rodier, J. A., 384 St. Andre street, Montreal, P. Q.

Rust, F. A., 1506 Second avenue, Seattle, Wash.

Scott, Charles T., 1 Cross street, Beachmont, Mass.

Wardlaw, W. S., box 266, Atlanta, Ga.

Wells, D. M., box 94 or corner Dallas and Montana streets, El Paso, Texas.

Wilson, H. B., box 337 Calgary, Alberta, Can.

Wilson, W. B., 269 South Front street, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Woodrow, S. T., 3 North Third street, Camden, N. J.

TRADE DISTRICT UNIONS.

Mailers' Trade District Union—Secretary, Robert T. Allen, box 1817, Boston, Mass.

COMMITTEES.

Committee on Cummings Memorial—Michael Colbert, chairman, Chicago, Ill.; H. E. Garman, secretary, Denver, Col.; M. G. Scott, New York, N. Y.; Joe M. Johnson, Washington, D. C.; A. D. Calvert, Philadelphia, Pa.; A. G. Davis, Boston, Mass.; Fred H. Brown, Syracuse, N. Y.; David Hastings, Hamilton, Ont.; L. A. Bickel, San Francisco, Cal.; T. B. Brown, Topeka, Kan.; P. L. Brent, Memphis, Tenn. All contributions should be forwarded to J. W. Bramwood, Indianapolis, Ind.

Committee on Government Ownership and Control of the Telegraph—A. L. Randall, 1510 North Capital street, chairman; F. C. Roberts, 220 K street, N. W.; W. N. Brockwell, 522 Tenth street, N. E.; John B. Dickman, 1107 New Jersey avenue, N. W.; John A. Huston, 15 L street, N. E. All of Washington, D. C.

Committee on International Copyright Law—J. J. Sullivan, chairman, 316 K street, N. E., Washington, D. C.; James H. Platt, John M. Shaen, Typographical Temple, Washington, D. C.

Eight-Hour Day Committee—James M. Lynch, chairman; J. W. Bramwood, secretary; J. W. Hays, Hugo Miller.

Label Committee on Text-Books—N. E. McPhail, chairman, Boston, Mass.; C. P. Connolly, secretary, St. Louis, Mo.; A. E. Hill, Nashville, Tenn.; Charles Perry Taylor, Tacoma, Wash.; James B. Anderson, Toledo, Ohio.

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES COUNCILS.

LIST OF SECRETARIES.

["In a jurisdiction where more than one trade holds a charter from the International Typographical Union, they shall create a joint standing committee, to consist of three members from each body * * *."—Section 120, General Laws.]

Akron, Ohio—A. R. Sheehan, care Werner Co.

Albany, N. Y.—W. H. Patterson, 126 First street.

Atchinson, Kan.—G. W. Mesigh, 323 North Fourteenth street.

Atlanta, Ga.—E. L. Parham, 12½ North Broad.

Baltimore, Md.—Robert A. Williamson, 1315 Mosher street.

Battle Creek, Mich.—George Wilson, 16 Howard street.

Digitized by Google

Belleville, Ill.—Andrew Schwarz, care St. Clair Printing Company.
Bellingham, Wash.—F. T. Baltuff, 1113 Key street.
Binghamton, N. Y.—George Irving, care Herald.
Binghamton, N. Y.— ———. street.
Bloomington, Ill.—L. C. Spurgin, 604 West Nill st.
Boston, Mass.—D. J. McDonald, room 19, 82 Water street.
Brockton, Mass.—W. W. Adams, 47 West Rossetter street.
Buffalo, N. Y.—C. E. Kinskey, 6 Chapin block.
Butte, Mont.—L. M. Thayer, care Inter-Mountain.
Cedar Rapids, Iowa—R. G. Stewart, 64 Kimball building.
Charleston, S. C.—M. J. Conklin, box 504.
Chicago, Ill.—L. P. Straube, room 302, 134 East Van Buren.
Cincinnati, Ohio—R. H. Curl, 17 Fisher block.
Cleveland, Ohio—George E. Lee, 1 Blackstone building.
Colorado Springs, Colo.—H. J. Cocks, 718 South Weber street.
Columbus, Ohio—C. W. McCahill, 227 Neil street.
Dallas, Texas—Z. M. Duckworth, 170 Second ave.
Decatur, Ill.—J. H. King, care Hostetler Printing House.
Denver, Colo.—H. E. Garman, box 1447.
Des Moines, Iowa—P. E. Spencer, box 48.
Detroit, Mich.—A. A. Schuetzler, 500 Catherine street.
Duluth, Minn.—John M. McDonald, Duluth Heights.
East Liverpool, Ohio—Alex Wilson, 174 Thompson avenue.
Elizabeth, N. J.—E. H. Feller, 1011 Lafayette st.
Elgin, Ill.—R. M. Lord, 313 Center street.
Evansville, Ind.—W. L. Jaus, 400 John street.
Everett, Wash.—S. J. Hart, care Herald.
Fall River, Mass.—D. F. Shea, 455 Peckham st.
Fort Worth, Texas—R. W. Walker, 406 Fifth ave.
Fresno, Cal.—W. L. Cochran, care Franklin Printing House.
Galveston, Texas—H. E. Ketchum, 2024 avenue L.
Grand Rapids, Mich.—John D. Flanigan, 287 S. Division street.
Hartford, Conn.—George A. Clintsman, box 856.
Helena, Mont.—R. L. Fisk, care Record.
Indianapolis, Ind.—Charles Ruth, care Wood-Weaver Company.
Jackson, Mich.—John A. Welch, 213 Ten Eyck st.
Jacksonville, Fla.—H. A. Jackson, 321 E. Second.
Joliet, Ill.—E. W. Coppage.
Joplin, Mo.—Edward Pickering, 201 North Byers avenue.
Kansas City, Mo.—G. G. Crawford, 3829 Michigan avenue.
Knoxville, Tenn.—M. J. Breen, 506 South Gay street.
Lafayette, Ind.—S. H. Saltzgaber, 1505 Main st.
Leavenworth, Kan.—G. E. Hathaway, 107 S. Esplanade.
Lincoln, Neb.—W. H. Creal, 1445 North Twenty-second street.
Little Rock, Ark.—G. C. Alley, 1612 Booker street.
Los Angeles, Cal.—M. M. Lyon, 3112 Eagle st.
Louisville, Ky.—J. Schneider, 447 W. Jefferson.
Lowell, Mass.—John W. Maguire, 25 Whipple st.
Memphis, Tenn.—W. N. Page, 526 Cooper avenue.
Meriden, Conn.—T. E. Lawler, 52 Center street.
Milwaukee, Wis.—Henry Ohl, jr., 1260 Twenty-seventh street.
Minneapolis, Minn —E. Raschke, care Bureau of Engraving, 15 Seventh street.
Mobile, Ala.—P. E. Thompson, care Daily Item.
Nashville, Tenn.—Ira E. Boylin, 606 S. Summer st.
New Haven, Conn.—D. K. Fitzgerald, box 701.
Newark, N. J.—H. J. Gottlob, box 122.
New Orleans, La.—W. A. Sherwood, box 1627.
New York, N. Y.—George A. Chambers, 843 Washington street.
Niles, Mich.—A. W. Hudson.
Oakland, Cal.—C. R. Mulgrew, 371 Eleventh st.
Omaha, Neb.—D. G. Craighead, 2409 Hamilton st.
Oswego, N. Y.—Frank R. Fitzgerald, 56 E. Eighth.
Ottawa, Ont.—F. J. Hanion, 46 Cathcart street.
Paterson, N. J.—James B. Esty, 47 Lexington avenue, Passaic, N. J.
Pawtucket, R. I.—John Gilleece, Lonsdale, R. I.
Peoria, Ill.—W. S. Bush, 103 Main street.
Philadelphia, Pa.—A. M. Fasy, 925 Morris street.
Pittsburg, Pa.—C. Q. Lafferty, box 644.
Portland, Maine—Arthur Ingersoll, 45 Quebec st.
Portland, Ore.—Hugh M. Glen, care Telegram.
Providence, R. I.—C. F. Martin, 80 Chestnut st.
Pueblo, Colo.—C. E. Donnelley, box 118.
Raleigh, N. C.—L. F. Alford, 125 East South st.
Richmond, Va.—Henry Meyer, box 16.
Rochester, N. Y.—G. E. Faulkner, 42 Finch street.
Sacramento, Cal.—J. Gibfried, 1425 K street.
Salt Lake City, Utah—A. J. Hansen, box 491.
San Diego, Cal.—G. G. Schierholz, 827 D street.
San Francisco, Cal.—D. T. Powers, room 20, 533 Kearny street.
Savannah, Ga.—Ed L. Roberts, 1411 Barnard st.
Seattle, Wash.—F. W. Petty, 1812 Terry avenue.
Shreveport, La.—C. A. Cox, care Williams Printing Company.
Sioux City, Iowa—F. H. Lawrence, 1700 W. Fifth.
Sioux Falls, S. D.—H. Patterson, care Journal.
Spokane, Wash.—A. J. Germain, 28 Reliance block.
Springfield, Ill.—Bert Winter, 1018 South Fifteenth street.
Springfield, Mass.—Walter H. Kirby, 124 Spring street.
Springfield, Ohio—O. B. Miller, 15 S. Mechanic st.
St. Louis, Mo.—C. P. Connolly, 1394 Blackstone avenue.
St. Paul, Minn.—E. P. Boehm, care H. L. Collins Co., Tenth and Minnesota streets.
Superior, Wis.—O. A. Digle, care Telegram.
Syracuse, N. Y.—F. W. Kinsey, 117 Phelps place.
Tacoma, Wash.—S. A. Beadle, care Daily News.
Toledo, Ohio—C. S. Brown, box 17.
Toronto, Ont.—John Armstrong, 65 Colborne st.
Trenton, N. J.—F. C. Smith, 147 Jackson street.
Utica, N. Y.—C. W. Lettinger, 713 Mary street.
Vancouver, B. C.—J. F. McConnell, 408 Georgia.
Waco, Texas—J. L. McDonald, box 216.
Washington, D. C.—Elmer Johnson, 2009 Flagler street.
Waterbury, Conn.—G. M. Cooley, 13 W. Farm st.
Watertown, N. Y.—F. H. Roof.
Wheeling, W. Va.—W. C. Jones, 63 Indiana st.
Worcester, Mass.—N. L. Davis, 33 Coral street.

SUBORDINATE UNIONS.

LIST OF SECRETARIES, ETC.

Notice of change or error in the following list should be promptly forwarded to the secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union:

ALABAMA.

Anniston No. 419—W. F. McCartney, 2002 Leighton.
Bessemer No. 535—J. A. Nabors, 1822 Second ave.
Birmingham No. 104—J. M. Russell, care News.
Gadsden No. 517—Thompson Hatter.
Mobile No. 27—John J. Russell, 28 South Ann.
Montgomery No. 222—Joe B. Walker, care Journal.
New Decatur No. 438—L. E. Beckley, care Advertiser.
Tuscaloosa, No. 361—W. F. Cotter, care Times-Gazette.

ALASKA.

Nome No. 582—George Maynard, care News.

ARIZONA.

Douglas No. 544—H. C. Holdsworth, box 772.
Globe No. 367—W. G. Scott, care Belt.
Phœnix No. 352—F. H. Volz, jr., 805 Montezuma avenue.
Prescott No. 375—R. E. Butler, box 476.
Tucson No. 465—F. S. Moreno, box 147.

ARKANSAS.

Fayetteville No. 648—Elizabeth McMurry, 131 Spring.
Fort Smith No. 249—J. T. Dormois, box 72.
Hot Springs No. 574—Frank Flannigan, care Sentinel-Record.
Jonesboro No. 661—J. L. Thompson, 219 E. Matthew.

Digitized by Google

Little Rock No. 92—M. H. Guthrie, box 258.
Pine Bluff No. 447—T. A. Wilson, box 235.
Texarkana No. 313—W. S. Grant, 1219 Laurel.

CALIFORNIA.

Bakersfield No. 439—Mrs. C. S. Clare, 721 M street, Kern City, Cal.
Eureka No. 207—R. H. Conklin, 1204 A.
Fresno City No. 144—A. D. Marshall, box 818.
Grass Valley No. 601—G. H. Menifee, Nevada City, Cal.
Long Beach and San Pedro No. 650—Frank M. Jones, 955 California avenue, Long Beach.
Los Angeles No. 174—G. W. Bowman, 208 Potomac building, 217 South Broadway.
Marysville No. 223—Edw. Heisch, care Democrat.
Oakland No. 36—C. E. Backess, box 161 Fruitvale P. O., Cal.
Palo Alto No. 521—Frank Kasson, 522 Emerson.
Pasadena No. 583—George Linney, 777 N. Fair Oaks avenue.
Petaluma No. 600—C. E. Moon, box 371.
Redding No. 475—C. C. Fiske, care Searchlight.
Riverside No. 254—E. H. Markel, box 622.
Sacramento No. 46—T. A. Cody, box 392.
San Bernardino No. 84—Sydney Waite, 132 Fifth.
San Diego No. 221—W. W. Hinds, 1167 Union.
San Francisco No. 21—H. L. White, room 19, 533 Kearny.
San Jose No. 231—J. W. Bowman, Whitton ave., East San Jose.
San Luis Obispo No. 576—F. S. Finney, 670 Pismo.
San Mateo No. 624—N. V. Paddock, care Democrat, Redwood City, Cal.
Santa Barbara No. 394—J. F. R. Arellanes, 205 East Cota.
Santa Cruz No. 589—Arthur Chubb, 43 Pearl.
Santa Rosa No. 577—W. S. Linsley, 726 Orchard.
Stockton No. 56—H. S. Hornage, box 140.
Vallejo No. 389—R. W. Walker, box 231.
Watsonville-Salinas No. 543—G. A. Blizzard, 150 Second, Watsonville.

CANADA.

Berlin, Ont., No. 366—C. C. Delion, box 70.
Brandon, Man., No. 656—E. H. Hebel, box 723.
Brantford, Ont., No. 378—E. R. Sayles, 56 Albion.
Brockville, Ont., No. 393—S. W. Bell, box 561.
Calgary, Alberta, N. W. T., No. 449—John Pearson, box 1029.
Chatham, Ont., No. 460—A. J. Owen, box 151.
Dawson City, Y. T., No. 467—J. Harmon Caskey, care Daily News.
Edmonton, Alberta, N. W. T., No. 604—H. C. Decton.
Fort William, Ont., No. 417—A. H. Hutton, care Times-Journal.
Fredericton, N. B., No. 664—T. H. Hazlett, — Church.
Galt, Ont., No. 411—J. C. Wilson, box 193.
Greenwood, B. C., No. 358—G. A. Evans, box 26, Grand Forks, B. C.
Guelph, Ont., No. 391—P. J. Golds, box 574.
Halifax, N. S., No. 130—G. H. Merlin, box 492.
Hamilton, Ont., No. 129—J. J. Burns, 230 North John.
Jacques-Cartier No. 145—Henri Cardinal, 997 St. Dennis, Montreal, P. Q.
Limestone City No. 204—Allan Stroud, 91 Rideau, Kingston, Ont.
Lindsay, Ont., No. 296—J. W. Richards, Lindsay, North.
London, Ont., No. 133—W. A. Hunter, 196 Rectory.
Moncton, N. B., No. 666—P. D. Ayer.
Montreal, Que., No. 176—John Beckingham, box 714.
Nelson, B. C., No. 340—President, C. V. Dake; vice-president, W. J. Hill; financial secretary, W. G. McMorris, box 484; sergeant-at-arms, L. W. Ackley; treasurer, C. H. Ink; executive committee, W. J. Hill, C. V. Dake. Union meets last Sunday in each month.
Ottawa, Ont., No. 102—Michael Powell, box 436.
Peterborough, Ont., No. 248—J. G. Perry, box 730.
Port Arthur, Ont., No. 539—C. E. Roberts, box 47.
Quebec No. 302—President, Eugene J. Cote; vice-president, Joseph Dempsey; financial secretary, Alfred Larose, 337 Arago street; secretary, Wm. Karns; treasurer, Ed. Little, P. O. box 263.
Regina, Sask., No. 657—S. Von Rekofski, care Leader.
Rossland, B. C., No. 335—Fred C. Rassman, box 335.
Stratford, Ont., No. 139—J. H. Shannon, box 178, Stratford Station, Ont.
St. Catharines, Ont., No. 416—E. J. Warner, box 940.
St. Hyacinthe, Que., No. 579—Ovila Larue, box 44.
St. John, N. B., No. 85—C. N. Brittain, box 352.
St. Thomas, Ont., No. 459—R. Stewart, care Times.
Toronto, Ont., No. 91—President, Edward M. Meehan; vice-president, James Simpson; corresponding secretary, A. E. Thompson; financial secretary, T. C. Vodden; treasurer, Ed J. How; chairman board of relief, William Church. Address all officers box 211. Union room, Room 17, 11½ Richmond street. Union meets first Saturday in month, in Labor Temple.
Vancouver, B. C., No. 226—President, R. J. Wilson; treasurer, John Watkins; financial secretary, W. H. Hunt, box 66. Union meets fourth Monday in every month.
Victoria, B. C., No. 201—G. M. Watt, box 209.
Windsor, Ont., No. 550—G. F. Eagleden, box 778.
Winnipeg, Man., No. 191—President, Kempton McKim; corresponding secretary, W. R. Trotter; financial secretary, George H. Moore, box 770.
Woodstock, Ont., No. 317—Walter James, box 425.

COLORADO.

Canon City No. 425—Emil Klunker, box 486.
Colorado Springs No. 82—President, W. J. Snider; financial and corresponding secretary, J. A. J. Birdsall, box 813.
Cripple Creek No. 227—F. R. Foster, 326 Bennett avenue.
Denver No. 49—President, John E. Collett; vice-president, T. F. Dolan; financial secretary; F. C. Birdsall; recording secretary, William Tanner; box 681.
Durango No. 373—H. M. Andrews, care Wage Earner.
Fort Collins No. 592—H. B. Hatch, 319 Matthews.
Grand Junction No. 292—Rodney Jay, 313 North Seventh.
Greeley No. 586—C. G. Heuring, care Tribune.
Leadville No. 179—M. V. Devor, box 194.
Pueblo No. 175—J. D. Gavitt, box 476.
Salida No. 566—J. B. Nichols.
Trinidad No. 434—A. H. Lee, care Chronicle-News.
Victor No. 275—J. H. White, box 228.

CONNECTICUT.

Ansonia No. 285—James B. Baylis, Seymour, Conn.
Bridgeport No. 252—P. W. Pulver, 173 Orchard avenue.
Danbury No. 143—F. G. Capron, 4 Tower Place.
Hartford No. 127—S. T. Pfund, box 856.
Meriden No. 314—H. C. Maydwell, 350 Cook ave.
New Haven No. 47—Frank Van Dyck, box 1269.
New London No. 159—Robert Tarring, box 248.
Norwalk No. 529—W. S. Ireland, care Sentinel, South Norwalk.
Norwich No. 100—E. H. Crocker, Bliss Place.
Stamford No. 503—Charles Guinas, care Stamford Printing Co.
Waterbury No. 329—R. B. Foley, box 63.

DELAWARE.

Wilmington No. 123—A. O. H. Grier, Every Evening office.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Columbia No. 101—George G. Seibold, 423-425 G, N. W., Washington, D. C.

FLORIDA.

Jacksonville No. 162—B. I. Sharpe, box 271.
Pensacola No. 293—P. McLellan, care Journal.
St. Augustine No. 588—H. P. Davies, care Record.
Tampa No. 299—W. F. Kelly, 801 Zack.

Digitized by Google

GEORGIA.

Athens No. 595—J. B. Wilbanks, box 462.
Atlanta No. 48—W. H. Grant, box 266.
Augusta No. 41—W. S. Bell, box 635.
Brunswick No. 659—Jas. P. Meehan, care Journal.
Columbus No. 220—W. H. Adams, box 132.
Fitzgerald No. 485—A. H. Jones.
Macon No. 93—H. H. Myers, 110 Park Place.
Rome No. 371—T. D. Caldwell, box 627.
Savannah No. 183—Ed White, box 554.
Valdosta No. 451—John B. Chambers, 613 North Ashly.

HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

Honolulu No. 37—John Traut, care Gazette.

IDAHO.

Boise City No. 271—E. R. Thompson, box 85.
Idaho Falls No. 631—David B. Bybee, box 704.
Lewiston No. 634—E. D. Griffin, box 207.
Moscow No. 501—Marie Shannon.
Pocatello No. 491—James Purdie, 1009 N. Hayes avenue.
Wallace No. 617—Irving Wilson, box 312.

ILLINOIS.

Alton No. 306—H. W. Bauer, 528 East Seventh.
Aurora No. 291—Ida L. Gray, 459 South.
Belleville No. 74—A. F. Neubauer, 407 S. Richland.
Bloomington No. 124—G. A. Summers, 901 West Mulberry.
Cairo No. 461—F. E. Thurman, 222 Eighth.
Canton No. 342—Clyde W. Underhill, box 772.
Carlinville No. 458—F. W. Burgdorff, box 572.
Centralia No. 479—A. W. Reynolds, Drawer G.
Champaign and Urbana No. 444—J. M. Collins, 10 Hickory, Champaign.
Charleston No. 560—F. M. Mealey, care Courier.
Chicago No. 16—President, Edwin R. Wright; vice-president, Thomas P. McCooey, secretary-treasurer, William McEvoy, room 227 Garden City block, 56 Fifth avenue; recording secretary and organizer, John C. Harding; sergeant-at-arms, F. M. Cruikshank; board of trustees, Gus Bilger (chairman), C. F. Sheldon, C. M. Whitman; executive committee, R. L. C. Brown, Charles S. Thomson, Edward Wilcox, John F. Hayes, A. M. Stoetzel and the four executive officers. Union meets last Sunday in each month at 2 P. M. Executive committee meets the Sunday preceding the regular meeting.
Chicago No. 330 (Bohemian)—Frank Janecek, 683 Allport.
Chicago No. 272 (Norwegian-Danish)—A. B. Holm, 459 North California avenue.
Chicago No. 546 (Polish)—John Gretza, 104 Crystal.
Chicago No. 247 (Swedish)—N. W. Anthony, 33 Orchard.
Clinton No. 505—H. E. Montgomery, corner Woodlawn and Elizabeth.
Danville No. 230—T. K. Heath, 409 Grant.
Decatur No. 215—L. L. Underwood, box 484.
Edwardsville No. 354—W. L. Nicodemus.
Elgin No. 171—C. S. Pease, 38 Monroe.
Freeport No. 524—E. C. Bertsch, 4 Fifth avenue.
Galesburg No. 288—O. W. Walkup, 414 N. Cedar.
Harrisburg No. 563—F. M. Pickett, box 407.
Herrin No. 599—M. S. Bolerjack.
Jacksonville No. 356—E. O. Mayer, 403 N. Prairie.
Joliet No. 194—W. M. Funk, 408 Bluff.
Kewanee No. 164—C. H. Curtis, 107 W. Third.
La Salle and Peru, Ill., No. 442—W. E. Mickle, care Post, La Salle, Ill.
Lewistown No. 557—R. L. Alexander, box 344.
Lincoln No. 327—F. P. Alexander, 215½ South Kickapoo.
Litchfield No. 368—Marguerite Dunn, 722 Van Buren.
Marion No. 518—Minto Bradley, care Post-Press.
Mascoutah No. 443—Carl Montag, care Herald.
Mattoon No. 520—Katherine E. Wilson, 1608 Marion avenue.
Morris No. 594—C. A. Violet.
Murphysboro No. 217—George Horsfield, 1314 Walnut.
Ottawa No. 265—C. G. Wilson, 1001 Douglas.
Pekin No. 591—H. S. Kettenring, 8-10 N. Third.
Peoria No. 29—W. S. Bush, 225 N. Adams.
Pontiac No. 390—Fred H. Parrish, 224 N. Main.
Quincy No. 59—D. F. Cover, 406 Jersey.
Rockford No. 213—Fred W. Geng, 610 North.
Springfield No. 177—President, W. H. Rotramel; vice-president and chairman executive committee, F. W. Lamey; corresponding and financial secretary, George Hoole, box 198.
Sterling No. 282—George Phillips.
Streator No. 328—E. M. Barclay, 605 N. Monroe.
Taylorville No. 369—E. J. Flynn, 216 East Palmer.
Tri-City No. 107—C. S. Osborn, 323 West Third street, Davenport, Iowa.
Waukegan No. 294—W. E. Secord, County.

INDIANA.

Alexandria No. 279—A. G. French, care Tribune.
Anderson No. 284—T. F. Casey, 508 W. Tenth.
Bedford No. 98—E. E. Nixon, 1106 W. Fifteenth.
Bluffton No. 435—A. F. Woodruff, care Banner.
Columbus No. 450—Celia Kremer, 636 Fifth.
Crawfordsville No. 229—J. A. Grimes, 716 S. Walnut.
Elwood No. 331—H. A. Maddock, 1912 North B.
Evansville No. 35—President, W. Byington; secretary-treasurer, Phil Voelker, 409 Sycamore.
Fort Wayne No. 78—J. L. Sessler, box 234.
Frankfort No. 287—Jos. Gardner, 558 S. Columbia.
Greenfield No. 469—Almon Keifer, 313 S. East.
Huntington No. 454—C. E. Boyd, 86 Poplar.
Indianapolis No. 1—President, Edgar A. Perkins; vice-president, Edgar J. Heaton; recording secretary, W. A. Green; financial and corresponding secretary, C. E. McKee, 502 Lemcke building; sergeant-at-arms, J. N. Cullum.
Kokomo No. 412—B. C. Nicholson, 432 S. Main.
Lafayette No. 64—George Sullivan, care Sunday Times.
Linton No. 407—J. M. Johnson, care Call.
Logansport No. 196—H. W. Peters, 1010 Linden avenue.
Marion No. 286—Howard L. Charter, 413 North Branson.
Muncie No. 332—H. A. Brown, care Star.
New Albany No. 169—H. K. Smith, 319 East Main.
Peru No. 97—Fred Felix, box 8.
Princeton No. 488—Frank Conover, 608 N. Race.
Richmond No. 301—Oran Parker, 127 S. Ninth.
Shelbyville No. 542—Valentine Hey, 192 E. Washington.
South Bend No. 128—C. E. Bertch, 608 East Sample.
Terre Haute No. 76—J. S. Edmunds, 925 South Third.
Vincennes No. 395—J. C. Mayes, 314 South Third.
Wabash No. 347—George Ply, care Plaindealer.
Washington No. 538—Ethel Cross, box 244.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

Ardmore No. 649—Allison Coleman, 203 W. Main.
Chickasha No. 571—Joe King, 516 Chickasha ave.
Muskogee No. 484—M. E. Deming, care Model Printing Company.
South McAlester No. 565—D. C. Lester, box 73.
Tulsa No. 403—J. S. Faith, box 868.

IOWA.

Boone No. 381—E. H. Brady, 1211 Carroll.
Bluff City No. 203 (Council Bluffs)—J. H. Westcott, 128 South First.
Burlington No. 75—Charles Herchenbach, box 463.
Charles City No. 667—Dora E. Ames.
Cedar Rapids No. 192—C. L. Woodman, 98 First avenue, West.
Clinton No. 334—O. Lindloff, box 865, Lyons.
Creston No. 537—H. R. Brightman, 406 N. Vine.
Des Moines No. 118—W. D. Ferree, box 556.
Dubuque No. 22—D. W. Frazier, West Fourteenth and Cox.
Fort Dodge No. 603—A. N. Pruess, box 474.
Fort Madison No. 581—Beatrice L. Johnson, 408 Fifth.
Independence No. 652—J. L. Cilley.
Iowa City No. 515—Al Burger, corner Harrison and Linn.
Keokuk No. 68—Albert Kiefer, 515 Main.

Digitized by Google

Le Mars No. 651—C. H. Reynolds, Fourth and Cedar.
Marshalltown No. 414—Emil Seliene, 406 West Boone.
Mason City No. 406—A. G. Overton, box 438.
Muscatine No. 251—W. H. Deutschmann, box 2483.
Oelwein No. 527—C. B. De Veny, 205 Second.
Oskaloosa No. 526—G. A. Rigger, 411 N. Seventh.
Ottumwa No. 73—H. W. DeJarnette, 262 North McLean.
Sac City and Storm Lake No. 660—G. M. Green, box 415, Sac City, Iowa.
Sioux City No. 180—S. J. McCullough, box 577.
Washington No. 663—Morton Sessler, 529 W. Third.
Waterloo No. 349—J. A. Rosgen, 1123 Sycamore.

KANSAS.

Atchison No. 113—G. W. Mesigh, 323 North Fourteenth.
Chanute No. 608—Wilfrid Cavaness, care Tribune.
Coffeyville No. 578—John A. Reed, 609 West Eleventh.
Fort Scott No. 343—E. M. Willett, 101 S. Eddy.
Girard No. 348—W. E. Ford, 207 South Carbon.
Hutchinson No. 243—W. V. Payne, care Independent.
Iola No. 481—E. L. Gilliatt, 306 North Buckeye.
Leavenworth No. 45—William M. Rose, 711 Cheyenne.
Ottawa No. 408—Will Kienzle, box 91.
Pittsburg No. 470—Walter Graves, 413 W. Fifth.
Topeka No. 121—President, Charles E. Sutherland; vice-president, C. O. Hovather; financial and corresponding secretary, Albert Griffin, box 50; treasurer, Franklin Barnes; recording secretary, Frank Phinney.
Wichita No. 148—President, S. G. Skinner, 635 North Water; financial secretary, C. S. Eckert, 1060 N. Main.

KENTUCKY.

Blue Grass No. 189—W. W. Hoagland, care Leader, Lexington.
Bowling Green No. 629—W. A. Kennedy, Rural Route No. 3.
Frankfort No. 267—J. D. O'Connor.
Henderson No. 493—R. B. Cheaney, box 256.
Louisville No. 10—President, W. H. Stanley; vice-president, Charles D. Culley; recording secretary, J. G. Kestler; secretary-treasurer, J. P. Stack, box 555.
Mayfield No. 621—Ross Rogers.
Paducah No. 134—J. E. Baker, care Sun.

LOUISIANA.

Baton Rouge No. 25—Albert Templet, 802 North.
Lake Charles No. 568—G. W. Brayton, box 425.
Monroe No. 540—J. W. Grisham, box 364.
New Orleans No. 17—President, H. S. Hudspeth; vice-president, J. J. Tucker; recording secretary, E. F. Deimel; corresponding and financial secretary, S. T. Stevenson, box 1627; treasurer, Oscar Schumert; reading clerk, S. P. Allen; sergeant-at-arms, B. J. Bouis.
Shreveport No. 155—R. P. Moore, box 182.

MAINE.

Augusta No. 380—L. V. Clark, 23 Melville.
Bangor No. 446—F. J. Foster, 318 Grove.
Lewiston No. 532—B. M. Shaw, 44 Spring.
Millinocket No. 622—R. S. Morse.
Portland No. 66—M. S. Burke, 83 Anderson.
Waterville No. 643—F. S. H. Callaghan, 54 Silver.

MARYLAND.

Annapolis No. 114—G. R. Tydings, 50 Randall.
Baltimore No. 12—President, William J. Hanafin; vice-president, Joshua W. Lynch; recording and corresponding secretary, Edward J. Burgan, 519 North Washington; secretary-treasurer, R. A. Williamson, 1315 Mosher; trustees, L. M. Augustine, James A. Hartman, Burtson A. Hickcox; sergeant-at-arms, Harry T. Bussey. Union meets last Sunday in each month.
Cumberland No. 244—B. F. Walters, 19 Belleview.
Hagerstown No. 108—W. S. Boward, 306 S. Locust.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston No. 13—Henry Sterling, room 2, No. 52 Federal.
Brockton No. 224—H. B. Foskett, 2 Silver road.
Cambridge No. 61—S. T. Byington, 70 Otis, East Cambridge.
Fitchburg and Leominster No. 623—B. M. Hartshorn, 55 Pacific.
Fall River No. 161—F. E. Durfee, box 479.
Gloucester No. 486—Richard Darcy, 8 Friend.
Greenfield No. 547—Katherine Sullivan, 20 Mill.
Haverhill No. 38—C. S. Huntress, 23 King, Groveland, Mass.
Holyoke No. 253—Aug. Lehmann, 456 Main.
Lawrence No. 51—P. S. Nugent, box 122.
Lowell No. 310—W. H. Brown, box 1026.
Lynn No. 120—G. N. Goodridge, 411 Union.
Marlboro-Hudson No. 281—G. E. Crocker, 52 Huntington avenue, Marlboro, Mass.
New Bedford No. 276—A. H. Adams, 96 Park.
North Adams No. 316—Robert Tudor, box 384.
Norwood No. 228—R. S. Warde, 115 Vernon.
Pittsfield No. 109—F. E. Jones.
Springfield No. 216—A. W. Harrington, box 1187.
Taunton No. 319—J. F. Fitzgerald, 29 Plain.
Waltham No. 259—A. L. Moody, 376 Newton.
Worcester No. 165—M. F. Crotty, box 176.

MICHIGAN.

Adrian No. 166—W. R. Hellems, 59 State.
Ann Arbor No. 154—J. V. Quirk, 514 N. Davidson.
Battle Creek No. 429—A. F. Oxley, R. F. D. No. 7.
Bay City No. 81—Melvin Hodgins, 219 Washington avenue.
Benton Harbor and St. Joseph No. 525—H. A. Wells, 129 Summit, Benton Harbor.
Cheboygan No. 632—J. P. Lewis, box 836.
Detroit No. 18—President, G. W. Dickson; vice-president, William Haight; secretary-treasurer, J. H. Walker, 360 Loyal Guard building; recording secretary, John Pendergast; sergeant-at-arms, D. J. Curtin; executive committee, J. H. Walker, chairman; laws committee, W. W. Norton, chairman; board of auditors, E. B. Welsh, chairman; board of directors, L. H. Kessel, chairman.
Grand Rapids No. 39—President, W. B. Wilson; vice-president, C. D. Hamill; recording secretary, John E. Gibbs; secretary-treasurer, Daniel Kelly, 487 Cass avenue; sergeant-at-arms, Cornelius Braam.
Houghton No. 596—Alex Morell, 271 Edwards.
Jackson No. 99—Carl Worch, suite 8, Allen Bennett block.
Kalamazoo No. 122—G. E. Martin, box 151.
Lansing No. 72—President, John E. Willis; vice-president, John G. Richards; financial and corresponding secretary, Ralph L. Ripley, 513 Lenawee, W.; recording secretary, J. C. Welch, 521½ North Saginaw; treasurer, Thomas Hart; sergeant-at-arms, O. A. Minard; assistant sergeant-at-arms, Claud L. Van Deusen.
Manistee No. 615—T. Charles Price, 77 Oak.
Menominee No. 360—Robert J. Cairns, 1100 Dunlap avenue.
Muskegon No. 168—C. V. Gravlin, 88 Myrtle.
Niles No. 514—W. J. Mahon, 704 Broadway.
Owossso and Corunna No. 455—J. D. Estes, 210 Goodhue, Owosso.
Pontiac No. 512—R. V. Henderson, 31 Allison.
Port Huron No. 300—F. G. Rauser, box 1112.
Sault Ste. Marie No. 359—L. S. Laing, 313 Amanda.
Traverse City No. 362—C. L. Davis, 616 W. Tenth.
Valley City No. 50 (Saginaw)—President, R. A. Beyer; vice-president, E. W. McArthur; financial secretary, L. H. Swart, care Courier-Herald; recording secretary, Ray Needham.

MINNESOTA.

Brainerd No. 593—C. H. Sherman, 502 Norwood.
Crookston No. 502—A. L. Berkland, care Journal.
Duluth No. 136—Augustine Murphy, care Herald.
Mankato No. 564—W. H. Cooper, 122 Lincoln.
Minneapolis No. 42—N. C. O'Connor, box 522.
Stillwater No. 432—F. C. Giossi, 404 S. Fourth.
St. Cloud No. 630—George S. Clark, 27 Fifth avenue, South.

Digitized by Google

St. Paul No. 30—J. H. Wilson, Federation Hall.
Winona No. 246—M. J. Cheslick, 709 E. Third.

MISSISSIPPI.

Columbus No. 309—W. H. Montgomery, care Dispatch.
Jackson No. 363—T. W. Anderson, 224 North.
Meridian No. 153—T. T. Merritt, box 115.
Natchez No. 558—F. W. Koops, 505 North Pine.
Vicksburg No. 427—M. J. McAuliffe, jr., care Mississippi Printing Company.

MISSOURI.

Chillicothe No. 264—L. M. Estep, care Tribune.
Columbia No. 160—A. E. Rothwell, 1216 Walnut.
De Soto No. 513—H. W. Harris.
Hannibal No. 88—C. A. Hill, 421 Rock.
Jefferson City No. 119—President, Theo. H. Haar; financial and corresponding secretary, Edgar Hestand, 501 Madison.
Joplin No. 350—J. S. Armstrong, box 336.
Kansas City No. 80—President, F. N. Cleeton; vice-president, L. E. Goodrich; secretary-treasurer, J. M. Rhodes, box 376; office, 825 Central street.
Moberly No. 473—R. S. Cunningham, 319 Jefferson avenue.
Poplar Bluff No. 635—C. R. Hiatt, box 441.
Sedalia No. 206—J. P. Hurtt, box 153.
Springfield No. 158—B. E. Woolsey, 916 N. Grant.
St. Joseph No. 40—Charles Rhode, lock box 748.
St. Louis No. 8—J. J. Early, 408 Burlington building, 810 Olive.

MONTANA.

Anaconda No. 255—President Mark R. King; vice-president, S. B. Salisbury; financial-corresponding secretary, H. A. Denny, box 546; recording secretary, C. B. Shryock; delegates to central trades and labor council, H. A. Denny, A. A. Allburn, P. J. Coogan, John Green. Union meets first Sunday in month.
Billings No. 398—Charles T. Trott, 3521 Montana avenue.
Bozeman No. 551—J. W. Ellickson, 220 S. Eighth avenue.
Butte No. 126—F. W. Freeman, box 585.
Great Falls No. 256—A. E. Cary, box 360.
Helena No. 95—D. C. D. Moore, box 172.
Livingston No. 489—Charles M. Smith, box 1025.
Missoula No. 277—Edward Killfeather, box 363.

NEBRASKA.

Lincoln No. 209—F. H. Hebbard, 1527 Washington.
Omaha No. 190—President, K. S. Fisher; vice-president, J. C. Smith; recording secretary, G. A. Sellenthin; financial and corresponding secretary, V. B. Kinney, box 794; sergeant-at-arms, J. H. Collins.

NEVADA.

Goldfield No. 105—C. O. Glanville, box 993.
Reno No. 611—W. C. Simpson, box 251.
Tonopah No. 616—W. A. Berry.
Washoe No. 65 (Virginia City)—John Craise, box 552.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Berlin No. 640—H. M. Poley, box 325.
Concord No. 297—C. T. Allison, 22 Downing.
Manchester No. 152—William Gilmore, box 83.
Nashua No. 365—J. H. Thompson, 67 Concord.
Portsmouth No. 483—P. R. Jellison, 43 Deer.

NEW JERSEY.

Atlantic City No. 377—Frank Kay, 26 Mt. Vernon avenue.
Camden No. 132—James Myers, 2112 River ave.
Dover No. 433—H. R. Gill, 37 Union.
Elizabeth No. 150—W. S. B. Valentine, 187 Madison avenue.
Hackensack No. 642—Alfred Kastner, 13 Clinton.
Hoboken No. 323—G. H. Weston, box 33.
Jersey City No. 94—K. M. Forbes, 91 Belmont av.
Long Branch and Asbury Park No. 552—J. P. Jeffrey, 23 Fifth avenue, Long Branch, N. J.
Millville, Bridgeton and Vineland No. 607—E. P. Stewart, 626 North Third, Millville.
Morristown No. 522—J. A. Davis, 106 Western av.
Newark No. 103—President, Edward H. Ashton; vice-president, Edward D. Balentine; treasurer, Theodore Kinney; financial secretary, H. E. Vreeland, room 18, No. 189 Market street; recording secretary, L. D. Pruden; sergeant-at-arms, John S. Heun.
New Brunswick No. 307—Robert Mealey, corner Bethany and Somerset.
Newton, N. J., No. 665—L. C. McKim, 24 Woodside avenue.
Orange No. 424—J. M. Hague, 265 Park avenue.
Paterson No. 195—J. C. Sigler, 1084 Main.
Perth Amboy No. 658—P. H. Curtis, 12 McClellan.
Plainfield No. 399—L. W. Niles, Babcock building.
Princeton No. 507—Adam C. Peters, 34 Chestnut.
Rahway No. 235—Harry Gage, 43 River.
Salem No. 382—W. G. Clark, Olive.
Somerville No. 628—J. M. Lambruskin, 21 Somerset.
Trenton No. 71—W. P. Wilson, box 328.
Union Hill No. 110—R. J. Heuston, 909 Union, West Hoboken.

NEW MEXICO.

Albuquerque No. 304—Frank T. Strother, 517 East Coal avenue.
Las Vegas No. 312—S. J. Sansom, care Optic.
Santa Fe No. 405—M. Vigil, lock box 115.

NEW YORK.

Albany No. 4—President, Thomas J. Quinn; vice-president, Thomas F. Drum; treasurer, J. F. Powers; financial secretary, C. H. Maguire, 138 Colonie; recording and corresponding secretary, M. J. Sullivan, 37 Trinity Place.
Amsterdam No. 274—W. J. Meenam, 6 Blood.
Auburn No. 536—J. E. Jacobs, 10 Liberty.
Batavia No. 511—C. A. Benchley, 13 Oak.
Binghamton No. 232—H. V. Casey, 117 LeRoy.
Buffalo No. 9—W. J. McLaughlin, box 502.
Canandaigua No. 396—J. L. Johnson, 271 Gibson.
Cohoes No. 325—W. H. Smith, 76 Mohawk.
Corning No. 549—J. R. Stah, 40 W. Third.
Deposit No. 499—A. R. Armstrong, lock box 209.
Dunkirk and Fredonia No. 555—W. C. Persch, 210 Central avenue, Dunkirk, N. Y.
Elmira No. 19—E. S. Spalding, 509 West Clinton.
Fulton County No. 268—John Bordis, 26 South Main, Gloversville, N. Y.
Glens Falls No. 96—E. C. Lance, 5 Charlotte.
Hudson No. 531—E. W. Rogers, 554 Diamond.
Ithaca No. 379—F. M. Hall, 110 Monroe.
Jamestown No. 205—Gust Magnuson, 310 Barrett avenue.
Kingston No. 322—John Read, 152 Wall.
Little Falls No. 386—W. H. Nolan, 21 Ward.
Lockport No. 67—M. I. Moran, 302 N. Adams.
Middletown No. 463—Christian Walter, 10 1-2 Montgomery.
Mount Vernon No. 387—C. F. Moehring, 46 South.
Newburgh No. 305—M. K. Barrus, 21 William.
New York No. 6—J. F. Healy, 18 Chambers.
New York No. 83 (Hebrew-American)—N. Rosenauer, 1456 Webster avenue.
New York No. 131 (Bohemian)—John Hlavacek, 1399 Avenue A.
New York No. 261 (Italian)—V. Zarrelli, 21-23 Hancock.
New York No. 476 (Slavonic)—Emanuel Diamond, Lebanon street, Westchester, N. Y.
Niagara Falls No. 233—J. J. Dwyer, 1016 Main.
Norwich No. 453—B. F. Holdredge, 28 Canasawacta.
Olean No. 345—E. W. Hayden, Masonic Temple.
Oneida No. 336—J. C. Bates, 85 Elizabeth.
Oneonta No. 135—J. D. Van Dycke, 18 Pine.
Peekskill No. 269—W. K. Schwab, care Daily Union.
Poughkeepsie No. 315—A. F. Ostrander, 148 Union.
Rochester No. 15—President, Bert H. Bates; financial secretary, T. F. Moore, box 339; recording secretary, M. R. Dutton, 22 Hamilton.
Rome No. 44—N. J. Fortune, 404 N. Washington.
Saratoga Springs No. 149—J. F. Hays, 169 Lake avenue.

Digitized by Google

Schenectady No. 167—C. H. Schwartz, 1016 State.
Syracuse No. 55—G. W. Fitch, box 104.
Tarrytown and Ossining No. 523—William W. Lee, box 32, Scarborough, N. Y.
Troy No. 52—John L. Hartnett, 2649 Sixth ave.
Utica No. 62—A. W. Phillips, 448 Whitesboro.
Watertown No. 308—F. H. Lewis, care Re Union.
Yonkers No. 468—J. D. Hickerson, 2 Colin.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Asheville No. 263—C. W. Welborn, R. F. D. No. 1.
Charlotte No. 338—P. S. McLauchlin, 300 Mint.
Durham No. 125—J. T. Christian, 730 West Chapel Hill.
Greensboro No. 397—W. P. Turner, box 432.
Raleigh No. 54—W. C. Hufham, 215 S. Person.
Salisbury No. 625—G. Val. Harrison, 322 N. Main.
Wilmington No. 556—H. D. Stanland, 508 Princess.
Winston-Salem No. 609—J. J. Pierce, box 425.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck No. 140—F. L. Moule, 502 Third
Fargo No. 186—President, W. H. Dietrich, box 638; financial and corresponding secretary, C. A. Jordan, box 364.
Grand Forks No. 311—A. J. Tagley, room 32, Herald building.
Jamestown No. 653—Corliss Fairchild, 520 Fourth avenue, North.
Minot No. 376—Lem Wright, care Reporter.

OHIO.

Akron No. 182—Reno Sprague, 94 S. College.
Alliance No. 497—Rachael Williams, — Harrison.
Ashtabula No. 474—H. A. Mack, 197½ Prospect.
Bellaire No. 492—A. P. Deafenbaugh, 3021 Union.
Bellefontaine No. 613—Ruby Titsworth, 202 North Madriver.
Bowling Green No. 156—E. N. Grimes, 79½ South Main.
Cambridge No. 208—H. C. Callihan, box 16.
Canton No. 219—Frank J. Ballard, box 416.
Cincinnati No. 3—President, Thomas J. Donnelly; vice-president, William B. Ogden; secretary-treasurer, Robert H. Curl, rooms 17-20 Fisher block; recording secretary, Frank N. Baker. Applications committee meets first Sunday each month. Union meets second Sunday each month.
Cleveland No. 53—George E. Lee, room 1, Blackstone building.
Columbus No. 5—President, Charles E. Whitney, 703 East Long; secretary-treasurer, William E. Bird, 416 Eberly block.
Coshocton No. 364—W. J. Fitch, 750 S. Lawn av.
Dayton No. 57—President, H. G. Keuping; recording secretary, Willard Barringer, 907 River; financial and corresponding secretary, William Hudoff, 434 Forest avenue.
East Liverpool No. 318—M. R. Douglas, 164 Chester avenue.
Elyria No. 645—G. R. Kelley, 920 East avenue.
Findlay No. 260—L. C. Busch, 232 West Hardin.
Fremont No. 619—Charles R. Stoiber, 825 Franklin.
Hamilton No. 290—Earl Uttrich, 124 South D.
Lancaster No. 548—F. G. Benadum, 426 N. Broad.
Lisbon No. 257—W. G. Steele.
Lorain No. 409—W. H. Johnson, care Lorain Printing Co.
Mansfield No. 420—Howard Almy, 106 W. Fourth.
Marietta No. 280—E. J. Berry, South Fifth.
Marion No. 580—George R. Snyder, 411 N. Main.
Martins Ferry No. 383—F. R. Barr, 607 Jefferson.
Massillon No. 298—W. D. Klein, 191 Clay.
Middletown No. 487—H. W. Naegele, Nicholas Hotel.
Newark No. 69—J. A. Donahue, 56 Clinton.
Niles No. 477—Sophia A. Davis, care News.
Norwalk No. 516—May Richey, 28 East Legue.
Painesville No. 569—C. J. Higgins, 114 Courtland.
Portsmouth No. 637—L. P. Seitz, 93 West Second.
Salem No. 441—H. W. McCurdy, 48 East Seventh.
Sandusky No. 237—W. A. Ruemmele, 904 Decatur.
Springfield No. 117—W. C. Hewitt, 63 North Race.
Steubenville No. 238—C. W. Brownfield, 202 S. Fourth.
Tiffin No. 480—Ross Locke, 175 S. Washington.
Toledo No. 63—President, E. M. Stewart; vice-president, George Diebold; secretary-treasurer, H. M. Schmit, 338 Erie; recording secretary, W. S. Brown, box 17; sergeant-at-arms, W. H. Clements. Meetings fourth Wednesday of each month.
Youngstown No. 200—Charles G. Muter, box 236.
Zanesville No. 199—C. W. Dutro, 959 E. Market.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORY.

Guthrie No. 587—G. E. Dunnica, lock box 202.
Oklahoma City No. 283—O. S. Wilson, 32 East Second.
Shawnee No. 490—Frank Brown, box 67.

OREGON.

Albany No. 496—H. E. Crawford, 319 W. Third.
Astoria No. 504—W. F. Gratke, 661 Commercial.
Baker City No. 430—Ellsworth Lentz, 1515 Valley avenue.
Capital No. 210 (Salem)—Frank Jaskoski, box 175.
Eugene No. 528—W. A. Dill, 181 E. Thirteenth.
Multonomah No. 58 (Portland)—President J. J. Price; vice-president, H. L. Torrence; secretary-treasurer, Lon De Yarmond, care Oregonian; sergeant-at-arms, J. L. McCown; doorkeeper, P. P. McCully; executive committee, Will Daly, R. P. Coburn, W. C. Davis, Charles Taylor, Fred Perry; auditing committee, Bruce Laughlin, H. C. Lohmann, W. C. Harris.
Oregon City No. 541—R. M. Nims.
Pendleton No. 214—Ed Weaver, 607 Cosbie.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Allentown No. 534—C. M. Rehrig, Sixth and Walnut.
Altoona No. 240—H. E. Leader, 21½ Washington avenue.
Beaver Valley No. 250—O. F. Johndrew, 531 Thirteenth avenue, New Brighton.
Bradford No. 185—J. G. McCutcheon, box 1711.
Butler No. 415—Ed Donnell, box 365.
Carbondale No. 239—L. D. Davis, 146 S. Terrace.
Columbia No. 610—T. E. White, care Spy.
Connellsville No. 321—Edwin Towzey, box 756.
Du Bois No. 374—James M. Knapp, 115 Second.
Easton No. 258—E. R. Kutz, 328 North Eleventh.
Erie No. 77—G. E. Noble, 510 Walnut.
Franklin No. 437—Lillie A. Whiteley, 1107 Buffalo.
Greenville No. 602—L. T. Hatton, 160 Clinton.
Hanover No. 241—H. D. Lynerd, 224 Centennial avenue.
Harrisburg No. 14—C. E. Ripper, 16 S. Court ave.
Hazleton No. 401—J. N. Calloway, 50 S. Laurel.
Johnstown No. 137—Harry Hesselbein, Eighth Ward.
Lancaster No. 70—John C. Haus, 352 East King.
McKeesport No. 225—S. W. Smith, 633 Versailles avenue.
Meadville No. 181—P. P. Moyer, 782 South Grant.
New Castle No. 270—Elmer S. Mills, 212 Park avenue.
New Kensington and Tarentum No. 452—Edward Liebel, 200 West Seventh avenue, Tarentum, Pa.
Oil City No. 151—P. J. McCann, box 86.
Philadelphia No. 2—President, Alfred D. Calvert; vice-president, T. George Middleton; secretary-treasurer, Charles S. Clayton, 512 Odd Fellows Temple; sergeant-at-arms, Mendel Rabuchin; trustees, Joseph C. Gibbs, Warren Cleaver, Benjamin S. Benner. Union meets third Saturday of each month in Odd Fellows Temple, Broad and Cherry.
Pittsburg No. 7—President, C. M. Leighley; vice-president, J. M. Adams; secretary-treasurer, C. O. Lafferty, box 644; reading clerk, T. H. Dolan; sergeant-at-arms, William Schaffer; trustees, Charles J. Niblack, Eugene Merz, R. L. Zimmerman; judges of election, Dan Curten, James Cunningham, H. G. Driver. Meetings first Sunday of each month, 314-316 Fifth ave.
Pittston No. 392—T. G. Scott, 186 College, Kingston, Pa.
Pottsville No. 320—E. R. Williams, 618 Schuylkill avenue.
Reading No. 86—Ed S. Bright, 825 Weiser.

Digitized by Google

Sayre No. 413—J. J. Morrison, 302 Chenning.
Scranton No. 112—President, M. H. Millard; vice-president, M. W. Walton; recording and corresponding secretary, C. A. Kellar, box 226; secretary-treasurer, Jay H. Eaton, box 226; sergeant-at-arms, H. Scholl.
Sharon No. 351—L. C. Crone, 84 Elm.
Stroudsburg No. 638—W. J. Huntington.
Titusville No. 289—J. J. O'Neil.
Sunbury No. 400—C. B. Lyon, 314 Front.
Uniontown No. 262—G. W. Liston, First National Bank building.
Warren No. 428—W. S. Pittman, 113 Main ave.
Washington No. 456—J. M. Lydic, box 34.
West Chester No. 466—R. F. McCormick, 509 S. Church.
Wilkes Barre No. 187—W. S. Mellick, box 136.
Williamsport No. 141—S. H. Alter, 937 Erie ave.
York No. 242—C. W. Bastian, 335 South Duke.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

Manila No. 626—Frederick Power, lock box 628.

PORTO RICO.

Mayaguez No. 422—Julio Aybar, box 35.
San Juan No. 478—Rafael Alonso, box 807.

RHODE ISLAND.

Newport No. 295—M. L. Vincent, 25 Clinton ave.
Pawtucket No. 212—W. H. Bussey, 106 West ave.
Warwick No. 662—I. F. Chase, box 1, Arctic, R. I.
Providence No. 33—William Abell, 93 Abbott.
Woonsocket No. 245—A. W. Gleason, 51 Collins.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Charleston No. 43—A. D. Sassard, box 504.
Columbia No. 34—J. P. Selby, 1428 Taylor.
Greenville No. 385—R. L. Chandler, 919 Hampton avenue.
Spartanburg No. 341—Jerry Black, box 384.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen No. 654—H. R. Searle.
Deadwood No. 636—H. F. Sofge.
Huron No. 561—Emma E. Cawood, box 317.
Lead No. 498—C. T. Martin, care Register.
Pierre No. 562—A. L. Thorne, box 172.
Redfield No. 655—F. W. Basford, care Press.
Sioux Falls No. 218—F. T. George, 607 South Dakota avenue.

TENNESSEE.

Bristol No. 426—Ralph Crossman, box 20.
Chattanooga No. 89—John O'Brien, 820 Georgia avenue.
Clarksville No. 436—W. J. Binkley, 212 Forrest.
Jackson No. 24—C. T. Russell, 132 Stoddert.
Knoxville No. 111—Robert Smith, care Sentinel.
Memphis No. 11—President, W. S. Wells; vice-president, J. C. Caruthers; secretary-treasurer, Horace Johnson, box 103; recording secretary, E. C. Brookshire; fund trustee, W. H. Johnson.
Nashville No. 20—President, A. E. Hill; vice-president, O. J. Thrasher; financial and corresponding secretary, H. J. Loser, Grantland avenue, Waverly Place; recording secretary, Ira Boylin; treasurer, W. H. Jordan; sergeant-at-arms, A. G. Bostick; auditing committee, J. A. Aul, T. J. Dougherty, J. Eagan; chairman business committee, O. J. Thrasher.

TEXAS.

Abilene No. 494—J. W. Daniel, box 52.
Austin No. 138—President, C. L. Leache; secretary, W. L. Holland, lock box 414.
Beaumont No. 339—A. Marchbanks, box 974.
Cleburne No. 303—Lonnie Adams, box 123.
Corsicana No. 234—Eugene Birdsall, 903 West Ninth avenue.
Dallas No. 173—Z. M. Duckworth, 170 Second av.
Denison No. 333—F. R. Lawhon, box 414.
Denton No. 646—S. M. Richardson, care Record and Chronicle.
El Paso No. 370—H. B. Lawson, box 852.
Ennis No. 641—M. M. Hamlin, box 148.
Fort Worth No. 198—President R. E. McLeary; recording secretary, Marvin D. Evans; secretary-treasurer, C. H. Smith, box 167.
Galveston No. 28—President, G. H. Slater, care Tribune; secretary-treasurer, G. H. Kunz, 1606 Tremont street; executive committee, C. W. Galloway, J. Sandilands, James Prendergast, A. C. Williams, B. L. Appleby.
Greenville No. 509—A. A. Clark, box 231.
Houston No. 87—J. S. Swope, 1720 Jackson.
Marshall No. 572—W. A. Adair.
Mineola No. 482—A. J. Soule.
Palestine No. 472—W. E. Langston, lock box 222.
San Angelo No. 559—Ed. S. Clark.
San Antonio No. 172—E. G. Koerps, 706 Montana.
Sherman No. 471—W. S. McCaulley, care Courier.
Tyler No. 404—J. S. Lee, care Tyler Printing Company.
Waco No. 188—P. A. Richards, box 637.

UTAH.

Ogden No. 236—Thomas Chatland, box 325.
Park City No. 590—W. A. Raddon, box J.
Salt Lake City No. 115—A. Thompson, box 474.

VERMONT.

Barre No. 402—Philip Ellis, care Daily Times.
Burlington No. 346—W. H. Deshaw, 18 Decatur.
Montpelier No. 384—M. E. Mack, 19 First avenue.
Rutland No. 326—C. E. Allen, 10 Elm.

VIRGINIA.

Lynchburg No. 510—B. H. Wear, 210 Harrison.
Newport News No. 353—T. B. Verell, 634 Twenty-ninth.
Norfolk No. 32—E. F. Moore, box 192.
Petersburg No. 26—W. H. Doughty, 15 W. Tabb.
Richmond No. 90—Henry Meyer, box 16.
Roanoke No. 60—T. W. Hudson, 415 Gilmer avenue, N. W.
Winchester No. 519—Stewart L. Forney, 506 South Market.

WASHINGTON.

Aberdeen No. 573—J. B. Hickin, 521 West Heron.
Bellingham No. 355—G. H. Gray, box 26.
Everett No. 410—E. Marcuson, 1418 Pacific ave.
North Yakima No. 614—Wm. Verran, 202 South Ahtanum.
Olympia No. 142—N. R. Bridges, 1311 Franklin.
Seattle No. 202—H. W. Peak, box 556.
Spokane Falls No. 193—John Anderson, box 755.
Tacoma No. 170—Charles Perry Taylor, 429 California building.
Walla Walla No. 388—J. M. Baldwin, box 13.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Bluefield No. 644—W. M. Gaither, 11 Tazewell.
Charleston No. 146—J. J. Emerick, 224 State.
Clarksburg No. 372—C. M. Ward, 104 Robinson avenue.
Hinton No. 554—W. E. Price, box 35.
Huntington No. 533—J. L. Boswell, box 258.
Morgantown No. 598—W. S. Roberts, box 207.
Parkersburg No. 357—J. L. Marlow, 512 Tenth-and-a-half.
Wheeling No. 79—President, George B. Barr; vice-president, Frank Carlin; secretary-treasurer, W. C. Jones, 63 Indiana street; executive committee, I. N. Wyckoff, Ned Sims, W. C. Jones, William T. Miller, George Dolan, Robert Johnston, Wilbur Carlin.

WISCONSIN.

Appleton, Neenah and Menasha No. 612—P. F. Arens, 234 Chute, Menasha, Wis.
Ashland No. 147—Freem Smith, 1213 Third, West.
Eau Claire and Chippewa Falls No. 530—H. E. Olson, 622 Congress, Eau Claire.
Fond du Lac No. 31—Herman Graessle, 152 East Arndt.
Green Bay No. 344—Olaf Olsen, 1220 N. State.
Janesville No. 197—S. A. Cooper, 2 E. Milwaukee.
Kenosha No. 116—M. F. Zens, 464 Lake avenue.
La Crosse No. 448—J. J. Serres, 1007 S. Sixth.
Madison No. 106—C. J. Koehn, 126 S. Blair.
Manitowoc No. 431—Alex. M. G. Dusold, 623 Jay.
Milwaukee No. 23—A. J. Welch, care Federated Trades, 318 State, upstairs.

Digitized by Google

Oshkosh No. 211—J. W. Kircher, box 236.
Racine No. 324—F. A. Parker, 1133 Center.
Superior No. 163—O. A. Digle, care Telegram.
Watertown No. 618—Emil Doerr, 507 Division.
Waukesha No. 545—John Birkenheier, 611 Oakland avenue.
Wausau No. 585—W. E. Brandt, 610 Chicago ave.

WYOMING.

Wyoming No. 184—H. J. Woodman, 2213 Houst, Cheyenne.

GERMAN-AMERICAN UNIONS.

General Secretary—Hugo Miller, Newton Claypool building, Indianapolis, Ind.
1, Philadelphia, Pa.—Peter Voigt, 1628 N. 27th.
2, Cincinnati, Ohio—G. H. Kramer, care Freie Presse.
3, St. Louis, Mo.—W. Schneider, 4123 Lee ave.
4, Buffalo, N. Y.—William F. Beelke, 84 Grape.
5, Rochester, N. Y.—Alfred G. Stieler, 50 Richmond.
6, Cleveland, Ohio—B. F. Hoehner, 98 Woolsey.
7, New York, N. Y.—Fritz Esau, 129 Park Row.
8, Newark, N. J.—Joseph A. Heim, 387 S. Ninth.
9, Chicago, Ill.—Hermann Misch, 954 N. Leavitt.
10, Milwaukee, Wis.—Christ. Thren, 653 Twenty-fifth.
11, Baltimore, Md.—F. Adrian, 2106 Ridgewood avenue.
12, Louisville, Ky.—Charles Hoffman, 1539 William.
13, St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn.—Emil Jehring, 1720 Fifth avenue, N. Minneapolis.
14, Indianapolis, Ind.—Herman Borchert, 912 Iowa.
15, Evansville, Ind.—William Buesing, 900 East Maryland.
16, Pittsburg, Pa.—G. A. Wickman, 134 Natchez.
18, Belleville, Ill.—Charles Lenz, 110 South Mill.
19, Columbus, Ohio—J. W. Schaefer, 774 Selbach avenue.
21, Detroit, Mich.—Chas. Padberg, care Volksblatt.
24, Toledo, Ohio—Albert Hielscher, 333 North St. Clair.
25, Wheeling, W. Va.—Michael Scheeser, 2421 Jacob.

TYPEFOUNDERS.

1, New York, N. Y.—J. Kelly, 615 Kosciusko, Brooklyn.
3, Chicago, Ill.—John Emmrich, 721 Herndon.
7, San Francisco, Cal.—T. J. McWilliams, 214 Railroad avenue south.

MAILERS.

1, Boston, Mass.—E. M. Willis, box 1817.
2, Chicago, Ill.—James McNichols, 42 Powell Park, first flat.
3, St. Louis, Mo.—Henry Wunderlich, 4452 Pennsylvania avenue.
4, Minneapolis, Minn.—M. L. Higbee, 708 Thirteenth avenue, S. E.
5, Toronto, Can.—Thomas Morton, 131 Shaw.
6, New York, N. Y.—S. Townshend, 131 Ridgewood avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.
7, Kansas City, Mo.—C. F. Masters, 2635 Kensington avenue.
8, Denver, Colo.—W. C. Davis, 614 W. Sixth ave.
9, Los Angeles, Cal.—K. C. Campbell, 1139 East Twenty-seventh.
10, Indianapolis, Ind.—G. S. Kingston, 341 South East.
11, Elmira, N. Y.—Frank Wellson, 412 College av.
12, Cleveland, Ohio—C. H. Volz, care Press.
13, Pittsburg, Pa.—W. J. Rodgers, 12 Mercer.
14, Detroit, Mich.—William S. Webb, 311 Mullett.
15, St. Joseph, Mo.—W. S. Mitchell, 1018 Corby.
16, Louisville, Ky.—E. J. Skiles, care Capital Hotel.
17, Cincinnati, Ohio—Harry Querner, 530 Milton.
18, San Francisco, Cal—J. B. Reighley, jr., 199 Casselli avenue.
20, —— —— ——.
22, Providence, R. I.— —— ——.
24, Buffalo, N. Y.—J. F. Schmidt, 89 Dodge.
25, Butte, Mont.—J. L. Adams, 316½ W. Porphyry.
26, Albany, N. Y.—H. S. Shock, 238 S. Pearl.
27, Winnipeg, Man.—W. I. Brown, 117 George.

NEWSPAPER WRITERS.

1, Boston, Mass.—Francis A. Good, care American.
2, Columbus, Ohio—C. S. Bash, 74 South Fifth.
5, New York, N. Y.—Ferdinand Ufert, box 1512, 184 William.
9, Milwaukee, Wis.—E. H. Thomas, 344 Sixth.
10, Montreal, P. Q.—Henry Bourden, care La Presse, 51 St. James.
12, Butte, Mont.—C. F. Degelman, care Miner.
18, Dawson, Y. T.—C. R. Settlemier, care News.

PROOFROOM NOTES.

The address of Miss N. J. Roberts, corresponding secretary of the Chicago Society of Proofreaders, is No. 427 West Monroe street. It was wrongly given in my last correspondence in THE JOURNAL.

An operator the other night encountered the quotation, "Tithe of mint, anise and cummin." He made it read, "Tithe of merit, arise and commune." It would be a good idea for all printers and proofreaders to familiarize themselves with the Bible. It would help them professionally as well as, perhaps, spiritually.

Operators who would scorn to make a one-letter division do not scruple to divide on one figure, especially in compounds, as 4-foot rule, 6-foot fence. It is radically wrong.

HENRY RUSH BOSS.

A SUGGESTION.

I have become very much interested in the talk which is going the rounds in regard to organizing the country printer. I believe it is a movement that could and should be pushed on to success. I have, for the past two years, worked almost entirely in country offices in this state, and nearly all of them work nine hours, Saturdays included, and pay on an average from $12 to $15 per week. If the country printers were organized I feel confident they could secure the eight-hour day and an advance of $3 and $5 per week.

I would suggest, as a way to bring them into the fold, that all subordinate unions send out circular letters to the country printer, stating the fact that a universal movement was on foot for the eight-hour day and an advance in wages, and invite him to come into the circle to better his own conditions.

I believe such a movement would prove very effective, not only in swelling our numbers, but in helping our country brothers.

Printing business in Boise is picking up, and quite a number of subs are marked up for ad and job work.

E. C. Caton, formerly a member of No. 271, but who has been fingering the keyboard in Portland for about a year, has returned to Boise and has a six-day situation at the Statesman office. Mr. Caton is one of the most effectual workers for the cause of unionism there is anywhere in the west, and all members were glad to see him return.

All the boys here seem to have the skating rink fever, in fact, nearly "the whole damn family" of union "prints" are at the skating rink during the afternoon or evening. J. N. FLOYD.

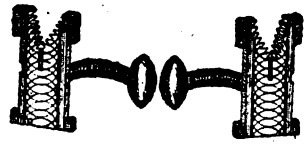
Boise, Idaho.

Digitized by Google

SPACEBAND REPAIRING

30c. each. We guarantee all our work

FREE



A pair of these beautiful gold matrix cuff buttons given FREE with every repair order of 50 bands or more. Stick pin or lapel button given with orders of 25 bands. Write name and address plainly and state if Roman or bright gold finish is wanted.

We are repairing bands for most of the largest establishments in the United States with perfect satisfaction to them and will gladly furnish references upon request.

For two-letter machines we have designed a special sleeve which, being stronger, insures greater life to spaceband.

NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR THIS SPECIAL STYLE

In ordering Spaceband repairs, specify whether for single or two letter machines.

SCHUYLER REPAIR WORKS

139 Laflin Street CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

THE MECHANISM OF THE LINOTYPE

By JOHN S. THOMPSON

Author of "History of Composing Machines," "Correct Keyboard Fingering," etc.

THE REVISED SECOND EDITION CONTAINS CHAPTERS ON THE

DOUBLE-MAGAZINE MACHINE
THE "PICA" MACHINE OR MODEL THREE
THE TWO-LETTER MACHINE

And gives full and complete instructions on their care and mechanism. Every adjustment fully described and illustrated. The only up-to-date and authoritative work on the subject.
List of Technical Questions to assist students of the Linotype, and Valuable Hints on the Erection of Machines and Handling of Tools

Flexible Leather, $2.00 postpaid : Address all orders to

THE INLAND PRINTER COMPANY

CHICAGO & NEW YORK

Digitized by Google

The Monotype

¶ THE MONOTYPE seems to have been designed in the interests of the working printer as well as in those of his employer.

¶ In the first place, the keyboard may be placed so that its surroundings are conducive to the comfort of the operator; second, the caster may be so set up that any fumes arising from the molten metal are prevented from becoming a source of annoyance either to its attendant or the rest of the establishment.

¶ Further than this, the operation of the dual machine is such as to make fewer calls on the nerves and patience of the operators than any other typesetting- and casting-machine on the market.

Wood & Nathan Company

Sole Selling Agent, 1 Madison Ave., New York
334 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. : 311 Church St., Nashville, Tenn.
Hadwen Swain Mfg. Co., Representative for Pacific Coast, San Francisco, Cal.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

This book should be returned to the Library on or before the last date stamped below.

A fine is incurred by retaining it beyond the specified time.

Please return promptly.

JAN 2 6 1989

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google